Purdue Speed Merchants Invade Fieldhouse

Boilermakers Favored Over Hawks in Big 10 Cage Game

Old Gold Must Check Sharpshooting Bob Kessler, Young To Win Over Leaders

PROBABLE STARTING LINEUPS

IOWA	PURDUE
Rosenthal (c) LF/LF — Kessler (c)	Schwartz — RF/RF — Young
Drees	Drees
or Walsh — C/C — Elliott	Van Ysseldyk LG/LG — Malaska
Van Ysseldyk LG/LG — Malaska	Suessens — RG/RG — Lambert

Officials: Referee, Nick Kearns (De Paul); umpire, Lloyd Larson (Wisconsin).

Time and Place: Tonight, 7:35, Iowa fieldhouse.

Broadcast: Station WSUL, 880 kilocycles, 7:15 p.m.

Purdue, with one of the greatest arrays of man-power ever assembled on a Big Ten basketball court, invades the fieldhouse tonight highly favored to hand the University of Iowa aggregation its fourth straight conference loss.

Two and three men deep in each of the five positions provide Coach Ward Lambert with the perplexing problem of choosing the best starting quintet from a surplus of talent.

Uses Several Men

The Boilermaker mentor uses several men in each game in an effort to keep the attack fresh and at high speed, thus overcoming the lack of height.

Capt. Bob Kessler, Jewell Young and Johnny Sines; two centers, Ed Elliott and Jim Seward, and three guards, "Red" Lambert, Pat Malaska and Glen Downey, have all seen about equal action thus far.

Iowa's chances for victory lie with the success of her defense in stopping the "fire-department" tactics of the Riveter attack, an offense which has averaged 19 field goals and 45 points per contest.

Drees or Walsh vs. Elliott

Joe Van Ysseldyk and Kenny Suessens, the sophomore guards, will be delegated to stop Kessler and Young, the high-scoring forwards.

Either Jack Drees or Matt Walsh will oppose Ed Elliott, the 6 feet 2 inch Riveter center, and son of the president of Purdue university. The two Hawkeye pivot men have been waging a battle for the post, together with Floyd DeHeer, and any of the three may start with the indications pointing to Drees.

A Purdue Menace

Iowa has always been a thorn in the side of Purdue on the hardwood, particularly at Iowa City, and have made a habit of popping up when least expected with a triumph over the Boilermakers.

The Hawks have been so successful with their "upsets" that they have captured 10 of the 21 games played between the two teams since the World war, a record better than any other conference quintet against Purdue.

Author-Pilot Lands Plane After Trip In 34 Below Wind

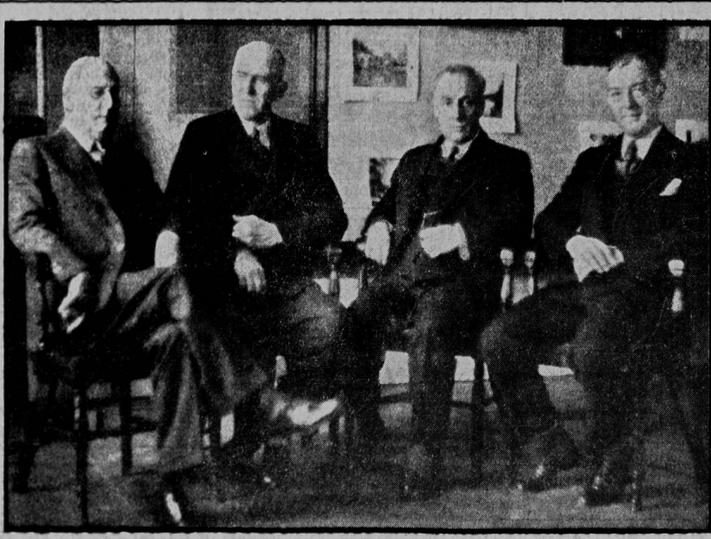

TWIN BRIDGES, Mont., Feb. 7 (AP)—An author-pilot, lashed by a 34-below zero arctic wind, flew an almost unheard of 292 miles an hour in a transport plane today and went to bed protesting his flight and safe landing on a "postage stamp field" was nothing.

The army trained flyer, Lou Goldsmith of Portland, ran into a blizzard and trouble when he came out of Portland last night with his 13-passenger United Air lines ship, bound for Salt Lake City.

Goldsmith was caught in an upper-air hurricane which shot his ship 192 miles in 39 minutes, better than 292 miles in an hour.

WEATHER

DES MOINES, Feb. 7 (AP)—Iowa temperatures staged a feeble comeback today, rising above zero over most of the state.

At Des Moines the mercury climbed to 14 above at 3 p.m., and clung there until after 5 p.m. when it started settling slowly.

The 14 above at Des Moines was the highest temperature here since Jan. 21, the weather man said, recalling that Jan. 21 was the day before winter attacked Iowa with the bitterest combination of cold and drift blocking snow the state has known in many years.

With their bilateral mutual defense pact awaiting only formal ratification by the chamber of deputies, the general staffs of the two nations began the work of coordinating their tasks if Reichfuhrer Hitler's army attacks either.

A loan of 800,000,000 francs (about $54,000,000) in credits to enable the Soviet to repair her western frontier railroads and highways has been under consideration by the cabinet, but has been delayed.

Exchange of officers between the two armies is planned and Russia's student officers may be admitted to St. Cyr, the French West Point.

Leon Archimbaud, reporter of the chamber of deputies army committee, said the Soviets have 3,000,000 men constantly under arms.

SILOUX CITY, Feb. 7 (AP)—Charles B. St. John, 56, who was the object of a widespread search last week by Sioux City police following the finding of a note threatening suicide, took his life Friday afternoon by plunging his head and part of his left arm into the furnace at his home. He had returned early this week.

Dr. Joe Kristgen, county coroner, said that the body had been in the furnace for two or three hours. He said the man's head was nearly cremated and that his arm was burned away, leaving a stump below the elbow.

Gov't, Industry Will Join To Dominate Life

Says Republicans Can't Stop This Union, Calls It Inevitable

A revolutionized social order in which nationalism will be our religion, propaganda will be a dictator, and a union of government and industry will dominate the several phases of American life, was predicted by Prof. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago yesterday.

"What nationalism dictates, you shall do," he told a history conference audience, speaking on our future social trends.

"There is to be a union of government and business in the future," Professor Ogburn declared. "It is inevitable. The new dealers have done the most toward it, but even the supreme court and the republicans can't stop it. The question is, what type of organization are we going to have?"

"I am inclined to think it won't be fascism or communism in this country. The dictatorial aspects will lie in propaganda."

Radical Changes

Radical changes in family life are seen by Professor Ogburn, with restaurants increasing four times as fast as families, and every three or four marriages accompanied by divorce within a year.

"Back to the cities" will be a slogan, he believes as farmers must reduce their numbers for their own good. "There are too many of them and they should move to the cities," he insisted, adding, "The question is whether there will be cities in the future."

Vast metropolitan areas replacing communities of the present sort are a part of the Chicago sociologist's H. G. Wellsian view of things to come.

Decrying bad manners of cities now, Professor Ogburn predicted that morals everywhere will change much, and bad manners will be characteristic of the future. "Farmers," he said, "display far better manners than city dwellers."

A religion which will be the totalitarian state, and its sacred literature, the constitution, is coming, he believes. This state religion would serve to unite the country in its fervid nationalism.

What teachers shall teach may be dictated by this new religion, Professor Ogburn fears, declaring, "When that religion gets going in this country, it will crowd other religion out. How far it will go, we don't know, and there will not be much freedom of speech when this nationalistic worship gets going with the universities."

Brown 'Yanks' Shakespeare To Broadway

Says Old Bard Is As Popular This Season As Mary Boland

Spicing his university lecture with apt allusions that kept an enthralled audience in perpetual anticipation, Dramatic Critic John Mason Brown yanked Shakespeare from the college classroom to Broadway last night.

Referring to Shakespeare as saved from school teachers, college professors, and college boards of examiners, the New York critic said, "Mr. William Shakespeare is this season as popular as Mary Boland or the elephant in 'Jumbo.'"

Lauds Lunts

Lauding the Lunts' Broadway production of "Taming of the Shrew," Brown remarked that while married actors often stifle the wish-fulfillment of spectators, "the Lunts have a kind of happy thyroid—that quality we associate with Mrs. Roosevelt, and they show each other off rather than show each other up."

Describing "The Taming of the Shrew" as the sort of production which "would win the attention of the mayor of Chicago, Detroit, or inevitably Boston, if it were not Shakespeare," he remarked that it was the first real circus of the season, having "everything but the callosities."

Scoring the "mucker prose," Brown lauded Maxwell Anderson as a playwright who really and sincerely cares about English, a playwright with an awakened social consciousness. This social consciousness, he insisted, is one of the most significant trends in drama today.

Proof

"This year gives proof that the theater is by no means ready to whistle for the undertaker," he remarked, and described the theater of today as exceptionally varied. Speaking of "goofery," the critic said, "One thing we in the United States do better than anyone else in the world is write with inspired insanity."

"Jumbo," production of Billy Rose, has combined musical comedy with circus," Brown said. "It is the champagne of circuses, and something to be seen."

In conclusion, John Mason Brown defined the theater as "the art of telling a lie more magnificently than truth without ever being found out."

Local Supply Will Be Gone Completely By First of Week

Coal Supplies to Relief Clients in Iowa City Cut by One Half Says Dr. Bywater

Iowa City and surrounding towns will be totally without coal by Monday unless shipments ordered many weeks ago arrive soon, eastern Iowa coal dealers told The Daily Iowan last night. Two local coal yards are empty, and all others are dangerously low, while Hills, Sharon Center, Solon, Williamsburg, and Oxford report acute shortages.

Meanwhile, coal supplies to relief clients have been cut more than one-half, according to Dr. W. L. Bywater, Johnson county relief administrator.

No Suffering

No cases of actual suffering from lack of coal have been reported in eastern Iowa, but unless more fuel is forthcoming within the next few days it is likely that not only relief cases but also those well able to pay for coal will be in actual want.

In addition to labor troubles in Iowa mines, coal dealers blamed railroad tie-ups due to excessive snow as responsible for the present fuel shortage.

Limit Deliveries

Nearly all coal dealers report they are limiting quantities to one-half ton or less, even to buyers who would pay a premium for larger amounts. An additional drain has been put on coal supplies by farmers who normally burn wood but who have not been able to get to their wood lots because of deep snow.

Officials at the university heating plant reported the large reserve supply to be dwindling rapidly, but that enough coal remains to last three weeks.

At Sharon Center, southwest of Iowa City, coal is being sold in half-ton lots as it comes from the railroad cars, but no reserve supply is being maintained in case coal conveyors fail to arrive.

Expect Two Cars

Solon reported all coal gone for more than a week, but expected two cars within several days. Until the cars arrive, coal is being trucked from Iowa City.

At Williamsburg, "very little" coal is on hand, but "we hope some is one the way."

Oxford coal dealers received four cars early this week, but less than one-half car remains. It was believed a second shipment is on the way, but heavy demand all over the midwest makes delivery uncertain, they said.

Local coal dealers urged residents to use coal sparingly. A serious crisis here can be avoided if the comparatively moderate temperatures of last night continue through next week, they said.

Solons Pan Post Office Management

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The house today sent a $367,534,514 deficiency bill to the White House, and dispatched the $989,673,829 treasury-postoffice supply bill to the senate, but not before getting into an argument over Postmaster General Farley.

There were no record votes. In the deficiency bill carrying $196,185,000 to pay government obligations under the invalidated AAA and some $42,000,000 for the new social security program was approved without even the formality of reading a conference report on the bill.

After Representative Taber of New York, ranking appropriations committee republican, had changed that under "price of Bourbon Farley" the postoffice department was being managed 50 per cent worse than it was four years ago, Representative Zlonchek (D-Wash.) proposed an amendment to reduce the postmaster general's salary to $1 for the year.

He strode to the well of the house and dubbed Farley "a rather useful nor ornamental and a distinct nuisance."

Commander Lou E. Clark, speaking for the American Legion veterans here, said: "More than half the veterans in Johnson county have already applied for their bonuses. We've discovered a lot of surprising things about them. About 20 percent of the Legionnaires haven't even cashed in on their certificates. You can bet that when the boys hold on all through the depression, they're not going to squander their money now. The rest of the fellows realize that they've got to pay their bills before they can have a good time. So I think the money that's coming into Johnson county is going to do everybody a lot of good, and three billion dollars in circulation all over the country ought to do everybody a lot of good."

Sill Support F. R. Queried on their attitude to the president's veto of the bonus measure, all but one veteran said that they will not let the veto stand in the way of their support of President Roosevelt in the next election. Most of them seemed to interpret the president's move as "politics."

"He knew it'd pass anyway," stated one Legionnaire.

To receive bonus money, which varies from $50 to a $1,538 maximum, each veteran must file a biographical card with the local American Legion office, must have his discharge slip checked and the pink slip form showing the amount borrowed on the certificate or original certificate approved. All applications must bear the fingerprints of their owners, and all must be passed by Commander Clark or notarized by a notary public.

June 15 Commander Clark expressed the opinion that the baby bond issue will come through by June 15 and that the bonus money or bonds will be in the hands of local veterans at that time.

The local American Legion club rooms will be open for bonus applications to be approved every Monday night until further notice, Commander Clark announced. During the week applications can be taken care of at the office of Mrs. W. H. Pederson, executive secretary of the Johnson County Red Cross chapter. Veterans are urged to get their applications approved by the end of this month.

"Well," sighed one veteran who spent seven months in action overseas and was honorably discharged in 1919 bearing three wounds, "we've waited since 1924 to get it. It's certainly welcome now. Twelve years is a long time to wait to sing 'Happy Days Are Here Again.' We're singing it now, though."

H. Fanning Enters Prison

Will Serve 12 Years in Missouri State Pen For Robberies

Homer Fanning, Iowa City's number one bad boy, along with his companion, Alfred J. Schmidt, yesterday entered the Missouri state penitentiary to serve 12 year sentences after having been convicted of robberies in three states.

Adair county (Mo.) officials breathed easier as the two self-styled desperadoes were locked away behind the huge penitentiary gates. Sheriff Charles A. Novinger disclosed an attempt had been made by prisoners to break from the Adair county jail Wednesday night.

Novinger said prisoners had made keys from a spoon and piece of iron cut, opened the door from their quarters into the jail lobby and had almost tunneled through the outside wall when their efforts were discovered, according to the Associated Press.

It was believed that Schmidt and Fanning were ringleaders in the attempted prison break, although Sheriff Novinger refused to name participants.

"She'd Have Been President," S. Bose Writes of Addams

"If it were not for masculine prejudice and vanity she would have been the president of the United States," Sudhindra Bose of the political science department declares of Jane Addams in an article in the January issue of Prabuddha Bharata, a publication of India.

Several years ago Mr. Bose interviewed Miss Addams when she was enroute to Cedar Rapids from Iowa City. From his acquaintance with her, Mr. Bose states that he was impressed by her poise, dignity, gentleness, simplicity, peace of mind and purity of soul.

Veteran Actor, Age 11, Has Starred More Than 9 Years

Mickey Rooney, "Puck" in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Has Had Unique Career

Mickey Rooney at the ripe old age of 11 years is a veteran of the stage and screen.

Born in Brooklyn of theatrical parents, he made his first stage appearance when he was 15 months old, with the old vaudeville comedian, Sid Gold. Mickey's part of the act was to toddle onto the stage and bet that he could sing "Pal o' My Cradle Days" better than Gold sang it.

He won every time, and pretty soon he was one of the best known younger vaudevillians, appearing with his parents and later, when he was 5 years old, as a "single."

When Mickey's parents brought him to the coast, he was engaged for Will Morrissey's Revue in Los Angeles.

Mervyn LeRoy, who was then a gag man at Warner Bros.' studio, found a part for Mickey in "Orchids and Ermine."

Mickey played a midget, 45 years old.

His make-up and special mustache were put on by the same artist who created the marvelous mask that Mickey now wears as "Puck" in "A Midsummer Night's Dream"—Percy Westmore.

This appearance was Mickey's screen debut. Since then he has made a steady climb to the top of Hollywood's ladder.

The Mickey McGuire comedies that were patterned after Fontaine Fox's cartoon character were personal triumphs for Mickey Rooney in the title role. He made 68 of them in all.

The popularity of this tow-headed youngster is evidenced by the fact that in the last 15 months, he has played in 43 feature pictures.

"Manhattan Melodrama," "Chain-ed," "Death on the Diamond" and a new picture with Joan Harlow are among his most recent ones.

Mickey is a regular boy—rough and ready. Except for his long, unkempt hair, there is nothing theatrical about him.

He loves his screen work, and puts everything he has into it. Strangely enough, when he is not working, he has the same enthusiasm for his studies.

Mickey is a lover of good books—boy's books—and reads a great deal.

In the part of "Puck" in the Max Reinhardt production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which comes to the Englert theater Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 12 and 13, he has the most outstanding opportunity ever offered a child screen actor.

Reinhardt, who used Mickey in the same role in his Hollywood bowl production says, "The role of Puck was never really played before by anybody. This boy is a great genius."

Continue Gas Dispute Until Next Thursday

Natural Gas Needed For Laboratory Burners Testified

Hearing of the Iowa City natural gas controversy was continued yesterday by Special Master A. A. Herlick until next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, in federal court at Davenport.

E. R. Weaver of Washington, D. C., director of gas utilization for the United States Bureau of Standards, testified yesterday afternoon that blow torch heat is necessary to service laboratory gas burners at the University of Iowa and the three Iowa City hospitals properly.

Weaver said natural gas has a lower thermal content than artificial gas and will not supply highly concentrated heat for laboratory burners as satisfactorily as manufactured gas.

W. L. Hineman, engineer of the United Light and Power company of Washington, D. C., testified yesterday morning on the cost and engineering problems involved in introducing natural gas lines into Iowa City.

Next week the Iowa City Light and Power company will introduce testimony showing the situation in other Iowa cities using natural gas.

Police, Taxi Driver Recover Stolen Car In Less Than Hour

Stolen and recovered within an hour was the record established last night by a car owned by Mrs. Everett D. Plass, 407 Melrose avenue.

At 9:30 last night the car was parked on Clinton street between Washington street and Iowa avenue. Approaching her car, Mrs. Plass saw two young men climb in and drive away.

She took a taxi home, telling the cab driver of her experience, and in less than a half hour when the driver reported back to his office on Dubuque street, he saw the car parked nearby.

Police returned the car to Mrs. Plass, and are searching for the two young men.

King Winter's Wonderland

How many of us, as we sit sniffling by our fires and shuddering as we read that the mercury is plunging to almost record depths, fail to appreciate the true beauty of the white winter snowfall about us?

The student who rushes into an 8 o'clock woefully clasping two frozen ears, has little time for aesthetic dissertations upon the grandeur of nature. The unfortunate motorist whose car has stalled in a mountainous snowdrift can hardly be expected to utter eulogies to winter in the teeth of a 30 below gale.

Yet there is beauty in the wild splendor of driven snow as it swirls in jeweled glory across the wide pink sweep of winter dawn. Or at night when, under the radiant light of a full moon, the vast blanket of pure white stretches away into the distance, seeming to wrap the world in virginal somnolence.

One need not have the soul of a poet to appreciate this beauty. It is the compensation nature has prepared for us to offset the bitterness of winter cold. Spring will undoubtedly bring flood and desolation to many southern states, yet it will also bring budding flowers and balmy blue skies to warm our hearts.

This is the beauty that lives forever. War, politics, or international complications cannot destroy it. Time cannot change it. Rich and poor, kings and beggars, all can share it. So as we splutter uselessly in the face of the frigid blasts of the cold wave, let us not blind our eyes to the visual treat mother nature has prepared. It does no good to curse the weather. Let us try to see the pleasant side.

Men And Dogs

Dan, a little terrier, too weak to bark after being trapped for two weeks in a Tuscarora, Pa., mountain cavern, waited patiently Thursday. His dulled senses told him that his friend, man, was dropping food and working diligently to free him from the rocky prison into which he had fallen 40 feet while pursuing a fox.

From the stone age down to the machine age, a reciprocal "love" has existed between man and dog. This Pennsylvania mountain incident, and for further illustration, the erection of a beautiful monument in the Parls dog cemetery to Barry, the most famous of St. Bernards, displays the regard of man for dog.

The St. Bernard, who by his warm coat and tongue, a flask of liquor fastened to his neck and a quick alarm, rescues a freezing man in an Alpine pass, the dog who darts through barbed wire and gunfire to drag a wounded soldier to safety, or just Shep who protects your own babies and keeps the pigs out of the garden, are examples of the dog's regard for man.

"A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer. When all other friends desert, he remains." The Tuscarora mountain men have remembered this.

Savings By Machines

Voters in Johnson county may merely walk up to a machine and move levers to cast their votes this year, if plans for the installation of voting machines are approved by the county board of supervisors. Five would be installed in Iowa City alone, replacing outdated written ballots.

There are two advantages to the mechanical method—speed and economy. Four days or more may be needed to count written ballots, and there is chance for a substantial error, while the machine tabulates the votes as they are cast, and a mere glance at the inner back of the apparatus will disclose the standings. The best illustration of economy may be gained by contrast. In the 1932 election, Johnson county spent $1.71 cents for each ballot cast, while Marshall county with voting machines paid only 13.54 cents a ballot. Both used nearly the same number, but the Marshall county total was $2,765.80 below that of our county, a substantial saving to the taxpayer.

The criticism most frequently hurled at the machine is that it prompts hurried voting and sometimes that straight ticket vote. Thought will tell that it is scarcely harder to pull a lever than make a check mark. The other complaint is from the older voters who say that it is difficult to operate the machine after using the ballot. Any person who can read elementary English can follow the directions printed at the top of the machine.

We hope the county supervisors keep in step with the times—and incidentally save time and money.

The weather bureau says that the temperature must drop 20 degrees in 24 hours and that it must drop lower than 10 degrees below zero to be a cold wave, and from recent experience, we'll take a permanent.

Amateur Fighters Deserve Plaudits

Too much credit cannot be given to these lads who climb into the ring for a bout in the Golden Gloves tournament, now being sponsored by The Daily Iowan. Too many persons pass over the part played by the individual men.

It takes more than ordinary courage to beat, batter and pound, knowing that the cash accorded professionals will not be forthcoming. It takes more than mere determination to lift those leaden arms in the third round and keep those tired legs churning, pounding on the canvas—but they go on. And those men are fighting because they love it as a sport, and they fight clean because the other fellow plays the same fair game.

Fans, too, know that the fights will be good. They can't help but be fairly waged when the entire principle of Golden Gloves is that of lifting the standards of boxing to a clean, amateur scale. Somehow it affords satisfaction to know that, unlike many professional bouts, nothing has been "fixed" in a hotel room just before the bout.

So live, neighbor, that when your automobile stalls in front of your home you can knock on any one of a dozen doors for friendly assistance and not find it necessary to call a garage.

Statistical Danger Signal

More than one-fourth of all auto accidents and the resulting injuries and that nearly one-third of all fatalities in car "smash-ups" may be blamed to the disregard for speed limits, is shown in recent statistics compiled upon research in 44 states by a nationally known insurance company.

Speed limits must be explicitly enforced if both people in autos and auto are to enjoy the maximum of freedom. These statistics and facts have a local application, for speeders are not an uncommon sight on W. Iowa avenue and on other Iowa City streets, slippery as they have been and alive as they are with cars and thousands of students passing to and from classes every hour.

Now that we've had an old-fashioned winter, perhaps the trend will continue and we'll get a little old-fashioned government.

What's Ahead For The Bankhead Bill?

"Just 49 little chicks under hie same old hen." So remarked Senator Charles L. McNary, ranking republican on the senate agricultural committee, in reference to the Bankhead soil conservation-subsidy bill. Farm experts, certain that the large democratic majority on Capitol Hill will find a place for the bill on the statute books, look apprehensively at the six avowed anti-AAA supreme court justices.

Will they find crop reduction through grants-in-aid as unconstitutional as they found crop reduction by contract payments? Significant amendments added by the administration to the year-old soil conservation act, is a clause stipulating that if the states, by Jan. 1, 1938, do not pass permanent enabling acts for grants-in-aid from the federal government and set up local conservation agencies under federal control, the new Bankhead act will become inoperative.

Once more the new deal is toasting something at the venerable supreme magistrates for their cogitation and digestion.

Firm Believer Now

We all have recollections of the times grandpa or grandma told us detailed and thrilling stories of the winter hardships they experienced when young—of how livestock was frozen on foot, of the time a whole family was frozen to death in a cutter during a prairie blizzard, or how entire settlements were isolated for three months at a time. And we also remember that at times we suspected that the old folks had colored facts just a bit to keep the younger generation interested in them and to indelibly impress the great part they had played in building America.

This winter, however, has proved to us who can live in an age of modern conveniences that it must have been no uncommon thing for people to starve or freeze to death in the days of the frontier.

WASHINGTON - It becomes increasingly clear that the Borah speech in New York and the Landon address in Tokyo were not unrelated events. There can be small doubt—none at all in Borah's mind—that the Landon thumb jerk for a republican 1936 bandwagon front seat ride was timed by the Borah schedule. It came just 24 hours after Borah spoke. But for the Borah-for-President activities of New York party liberals, Landon's advisers might have deferred the launching of his presidential boom which the Topeka speech represents. They cannot have been unaware, however, (kindness of Representative Fish of New York and others) that the notion that Borah alone could win for the party this year was being much talked up in the east.

Play's Meaning Need Not Be Limited, Says Brown

By JESS GORKIN Campus Editor In his plays deserved much praise, he explained that it was the more effective medium of expression there was no reason why it should not be used. In his opinion Anderson handles verse cleverly and is a masterful playwright. Questioned about the future of the proletarian theater, which has played a very important role in the American theater during the last few years, he predicted that its importance was on the increase. "The proletarian propaganda plays have made it possible for a particular class of people to attend plays created to please them and are presented at popular prices." These leftist plays, he said, are of great social influence. Two strong proletarian organizations, the Theater Union and the Group Theater, are now strongly entrenched as dominating forces in the theater of today. In regard to the organization of the critic group, comprised of New York City dramatists, which will award a prize for the best play of the year for the first time next spring, in addition to the Pulitzer prize, he said, "I hope the establishment of this group and their decisions will carry much weight."

As the Pulitzer award is now conducted, no playwright may receive the prize twice, but according to Mr. Brown, the critics' prize would involve no such restrictions.

Maxwell Anderson In discussing the work of Maxwell Anderson, whose historical production "Valley Forge" will be presented by University theater Feb. 26, he said that Anderson's practice of including verse as well as prose

A New Yorker

At Large

By JAMES E. RESTON NEW YORK—I was in a bad mood anyway. I felt like writing letters to the editor. Even my new yellow gloves couldn't cheer me up.

I stood at the corner of Sixth avenue and Fifth and looked down toward the Hippodrome. Paul Whelan is playing there and so is Jimmy Durante. I could drop in there and talk to them, I thought, or I could write a column about my yellow gloves.

Sixth avenue is a bad place to be when you're in a mood like that. It's a deplorable street. The elevated tracks straddle it with their feet; the traps hang down a slatternly women swing along the pavements; there is a reek of burnt filth and cooking food about the place. It is a street of lost dreams, a sort of an alley between Fifth and Broadway.

I turned south, attracted by a queasy little group of men gazing at an employment bureau bulletin board. I seem always to see this group at this same board, as if they had frozen there and stuck. I looked at the bulletin board, and considered momentarily applying for a job as night-shift cook in a greasy town avenue all-night restaurant at $11 a week. I think I could have had the job. Cooks with new yellow gloves are hard to find.

It was just past one o'clock, but though bitter cold, clear and bright. The tall straight lines of the buildings stood out clear against the blue. Not a line anywhere was blurred. The matinee crowd was gathering at the Hippodrome to see Billy Rose's "Jumbo." I went around to the stage door and told Johnny, the doorman, that I wanted to see Whitey.

In the ante-room were several show girls in varying stages of undress, a boy making love to a painted little doll from the chorus, and a tremendous freak of a man who must have been seven feet six inches tall.

Whiteman was in a little dressing room, a girl manicuring his fingernails, a barber snipping around at what used to be his hair. The room was painted blue, brilliant blue, the lower half and bright red above.

Durante was late, as usual, so I went downstairs to look at the matinee. Johnny told me working in the Arabian boy who was making in $10 a show. He went to Oxford, Johnny said. I went down and had a talk with him. He was tending a strange-looking animal. Little boys, roared wonder in their faces, cast long glances in their mother's hands.

"What's that, mister?" one youngster asked. "The sacred bull of India," my companion replied. The child gasped. "The sacred bull of Indiana," he murmured. The buzzer rang the crowd up into the theater and all my good intentions of walking the streets disappeared. So I stayed in, but I hated to take off those gloves.

Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY HOLLYWOOD—Mary Ellis is back in Hollywood, for the third time, and she already is working on her third picture. She expects to stay here three months.

Mary is not superstitious, so she ignores the combination of "three." She says that if her new picture is not good, she will return to London to stay.

If it is good, she will go back to London anyway. But she will return to Hollywood as often as necessary. "However, I never will become a permanent fixture of Hollywood," she says, with conviction. I suggested that if this new "three" ("Brazen" is its title, by the way) is a huge personal hit, she would be obliged to stay here and take the ways of a motion picture star.

"I spent 17 years preparing for the stage," she replied, "and I'm not going to give it up now. I will spend the winters here, as many as I can, but I feel I owe it to myself to return annually to the east. Anyway, the movies don't appeal to me enough to cause me to give up my time to them."

Mary Ellis said she made more money staying at home than coming to the movies. That is because, although an American citizen, she is a British subject by virtue of her marriage to Basil Sidney and pays the high income tax in England of money earned here. Her Hollywood earnings are also subject to our income tax, but her salary in the London theater is not taxable in the country.

New Adventure

Miss Ellis has been separated for four years, she said, from Sidney, whose leading lady she was for nine years. She lives in a little country house, with her servants, 30 minutes from London. She's very proud of her 18th-century house and her broader still of the very low rental of $750 a year. She calls everything new—a play or a movie or even a house—a new adventure. Her current film is new and the fact that it is the usually fatal third doesn't worry her one whit.

Democracy Faces Test of Functioning in Machine Age

Eastern Prof Sees Millions Left Workless

10 Million Farmers Will Augment Unemployed Says Lingelbach

Today's Program
10 a.m.—Senate chamber, Old Capitol, Prof. Harry G. Plum, University of Iowa history department, presiding.
Address: Prof. James H. St. John, Miami University, the "Meaning of Germany's Reaction Against the Treaty of Versailles."
Address: Prof. Paul A. Knablund, University of Wisconsin, the "Present Crisis in Its Historical Setting."

"Can democracy function in the machine age? It is the test of our times," declared Prof. William E. Lingelbach of the University of Pennsylvania last night.
Professor Lingelbach delivered the evening address of the sixteenth annual historical conference here, which concludes with three addresses this morning.

Ten million farmers thrown out of work within this century to join the 12 million already unemployed in our cities, is the picture seen by the Pennsylvania educator. These men will be victims of the machine—a tragic juggernaut, he said, and some method of control must be devised.

No Need
"We do not need more science. Science has become a cult, with priests and acolytes, and millions spent for research in great laboratories," he said. "The electric dynamo is the symbol of our age. It is the challenge of the new era. In the solution of difficult economic and political problems; we need more leaders in these fields."

"Mankind is at the crossroads. We must consider every solution carefully and without bias. The cost of a growing bureaucracy is appalling, and condemnation of the man who works nine hours a day in order to save up money is contrary to the American tradition."

"Yet before discarding these new concepts of government we should consider the relative merits of an economy of scarcity and an economy of abundance in the new era."

"Whatever institutions we develop must be founded upon the past to be successful," Professor Lingelbach asserted. He condemned the communitists for expecting true freedom to develop from a system which destroys both free speech and a free press.

"Class warfare may be as destructive as the horrors of a war among nations," he declared. "Instead, we need to unite all groups in a war against poverty."

Significant
Clasping the supreme court as the most significant fundamental institution of American government, Prof. Frank H. Strong of the University of Iowa college of law defended the court's interpretation of the constitution and its decisions on the recent acts of congress.

"If there is to be a change in the fundamental doctrine that is the constitution, the people must change it," Professor Strong asserted. "The court will not yield. The people made the constitution, so they must make the change."

The supreme court has re-emphasized the protection of personal liberty and has liberated its views on the protection of private property during the last four years, he said, adding that the most important duty of the court today is to act as an umpire between the nation and the states.

"The due process of law clause, for which interpretation the court has been much maligned," Professor Strong insisted, "is as important for the good of the nation as it is for evil. The court, as a fundamental American institution, after all these years still has its ledger written in black."

Values of the great plains and prairies of the United States were outlined by Prof. Louis B. Schmidt of Iowa State college.

He described the importance of their contributions to the existence of the United States and foreign nations, and sketched the history of the region from its beginning.

"The question as to whether the east and west will ever be closer together has not been decided," Professor Schmidt said in explaining the gap between the two sections of the country.

Invitation Necessary Advises Meier After Taylor Murder

By MARY BURKE
"Don't go into an Indian pueblo without an invitation."
This was the advice of Prof. Norman C. Meier of the psychology department, commenting on the murder of Carl Taylor in New Mexico Wednesday, who was killed, it was rumored, because he had discovered some of the secrets of the Penitentes, a strange religious cult.

Professor Meier spent a summer in New Mexico five years ago, painting landscapes and Indian architecture. A picture of a Penitente chapel near Taos is among his works. Here members of the sect perform their secret rites, which include flagellation and other forms of self torture.

"It's dangerous to try to find out any of their activities," declared Professor Meier. "I've heard of persons stumbling accidentally on a meeting, and being held by the Indians until their intentions were ascertained."

He described a weird form of self-torture practiced by the cult. Slits are cut in the observer's back, through which thongs fastened to an uprooted tree are inserted. The Penitente then drags the tree behind him, revelling in the horrible pain.

Fellow Artist
The chapel in Professor Meier's painting is a rambling abode approached by a path which leads to the pueblos of some of the Indians about two miles away. A cross stands in front of the chapel. Professor Meier went to Taos to learn of artists' problems in connection with his work in art research, and to try painting. More than half a dozen canvases depicting New Mexico scenery are the result of his trip.

Taos Pueblo
"Taos Pueblo," the first picture finished, was once exhibited at the state fair. "Placita Mission," showing an old Indian mission near Taos, now hangs in the artist's office. It has been exhibited in Ames and Des Moines.

A deserted mission, known as the Pecos mission, is the subject of another painting. A cross whose base rests in a pile of stones is in the foreground. "I don't believe there ever was such a cross here," remarked Professor Meier, "but I think a picture is a composition rather than a reproduction."

Draftsman
His hobby as an artist began when he was a topographic draftsman in the government service, to which work he attributes his interest in landscapes.

Since 1922, he has been doing research work in art psychology, and is now art research director under the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. In this capacity and pursuing his hobby, Professor Meier has visited artists' colonies at Santa Fe, Laguna Beach, Cal., Toronto, New York City, Old Monterey, and Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal.

lege of education, both of the University of Iowa.
In a forenoon address, Mary G. Kelly of Chicago discussed problems of history teaching in the middle grades.

Prof. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago spoke on future social trends. Prof. Ernest Horn of the University of Iowa college of education discussed the relationship between history and geography.

Addresses by two out-of-state educators will conclude the conference at the final session of the two day meeting this morning at 10 o'clock in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

V. Thompson Tells Zoology Meeting Of Grasshopper Eggs

The amounts of water lost by a grasshopper egg during various stages of incubation was the subject discussed by Vincent Thompson, research assistant in the zoology department at a meeting of the zoology seminar yesterday afternoon.

He described studies showing that about midway during incubation there is a pause in growth of the embryo, which is not found in other insect embryos.
The amounts of water lost are used as an index of the change in the embryo, little water being lost when no growth is taking place.

Students Apply For Columbia's 20 Fellowships

Applications for Lydia C. Roberts fellowships for advanced study at Columbia university are being received daily, as the deadline, March 1, approaches.
About 20 fellowships will be awarded to Iowa college graduates.

Any graduate of an Iowa college who is in need of financial assistance in order to continue his studies may apply for the fellowship, which will provide for graduate work in some field other than law, medicine, dentistry, or theology, except as part of a program leading to a degree in some other subject.

A candidate must submit his application to the secretary of Columbia university, including transcript of his college record, a letter of recommendation, any published theses or articles, and personal data. Fellowships, which are given annually, are valued at not less than $750.

Last year Mrs. Earla Blaine Joseph of Hampton, 1935 graduate of the university, was among students who received the award. Seven of the 23 successful candidates of last year from Iowa institutions were from the University of Iowa.

Hawkeye Swimmers Overpower Chicago's Team, 51 to 33

Iowa Smashes 2 Records In Opening Win

Allen, Westerfield Beat Breast, Back Stroke Records in Tank

By HERMAN SCHMIDT
Smashing two university records and capturing firsts in six of the nine events, Iowa's powerful swimming machine lived up to its reputation last night by sweeping aside a determined Maroon squad from the Windy City, 51 to 33.

Coach Dave Armbruster's veterans, aided by the surprising performances of a group of inexperienced sophomores, stepped out to a lead in the opening event and were never headed. Their showing, although not entirely unexpected, served to further establish the Hawkeyes as a strong contender for the conference title.

Two New Records

Bob Allen, husky Iowa breast stoker, churned his way through the waters of the fieldhouse pool before a large crowd to set a new university record in his specialty, and Dick Westerfield, great all-American from last season, pushed his way to another new mark in the 100-yard backstroke.

Allen jumped to a lead at the start of the 200-yard breast stroke and increased it with every powerful thrust of his arms to cross the finish line more than half-a-length ahead of his nearest rival in 2:30.4, almost four seconds faster than the record made last year by Fred Haskins.

Under Big Ten Record

Like Allen, Westerfield had things his own way throughout the back stroke event, forging ahead to finish in 1:31.1, bettering by half-a-second his own mark hung up last year. His time was also under the Big Ten conference record, but since that can only be broken in the conference meet, it does not count.

Chicago's sprint star, Jay Brown, furnished a minor upset when he nosed out Ray Walters in the 50-yard free style. His time of 2:29.4 was only two-tenths of a second above the national record. The pair matched strokes until the final five yards when the Maroon pushed ahead to win by a split second.

Charles Wilson, all-American Chicago distance luminary and captain of the Maroon team, was the high of the point man, taking first in both the 220 and 440-yard free style events. In the 440-yard race, he came from behind with a great final-length drive to eke out a close victory over Bob Christians, Iowa's sophomore, from whom much should be heard before the season is completed.

Earlier on the program Wilson had turned back Capt. Adolf Jacobsmeyer in the 440, pulling away to a victory of almost half-a-length. The Armbrusterites captured both relay events in a walkaway. Stauffer, Maroon diver, provided plenty of competition for Art Christensen, Iowa's all-American, in the diving before losing by a narrow margin of less than six points. John Stark, diving his first varsity meet, looked good for the Hawkeys, finishing within 12 tenths of the winners.

Welmeyer Takes Century

Iowa's transplanted breast stoker, Wilbur Welmeyer, pulled one out of the fire in the 100-yard free style when he eked out an eye-lash victory over Lewis of Chicago. It was the closest finish of the evening.

Summary

100-yard relay—Won by Iowa (Christians, Welmeyer, Sieg and Walters; Chicago, second, Time 3:45.7).
50-yard breast stroke—Won by Allen (Haskins (I), second; Lyon (C), third, Time 2:30.4. (New university record. Old mark of 2:34.2 made by Haskins in 1935).

200-yard free style—Won by Brown (I); Walters (I), second; Stauffer (I), third, Time 2:29.4.
440-yard free style—Won by Wilson (C); Jacobsmeyer (I), second; Reed (I), third, Time 5:21.0.
100-yard free style—Won by Welmeyer (I); Lewis (C), second; Sieg (I), third, Time 3:51.1.
100-yard relay—Won by Christians (I); Walters (I), second; Stauffer (I), third, Time 3:45.7.
200-yard free style—Won by Brown (I); Christians (I), second; Sieg (I), third, Time 2:16.9.
300-yard medley relay—Won by Iowa (Sears, Allen and Bradshaw); Chicago, second, Time 3:18.5.

U.S., Canada Cop Places In Hockey Fight

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Feb. 7 (AP)—The United States and Canada clinched places in the second round of hockey competition today while Norway's famed skiers walked off with the first two individual titles of the fourth winter Olympics and the flames of a new controversy sputtered.

No sooner had the row engendered by Canada's protest over the eligibility of two players on the British team been settled by their re-statement than the figure skaters broke into a rash of complaints over the fact they haven't been given any place for practice.

Postponement Ordered

Adding further to the woes of the harassed organizing committee, an indefinite postponement of bob-sledding competition, scheduled to start tomorrow, was ordered because of the poor condition of the run.

America's hopes of challenging Canada as Olympic hockey champion soared after the burly United States army, immensely effective on defense, had checked Switzerland's dazzling attack and won, 3 to 0.

Canada, meanwhile, ran through Latvia, 11 to 0, without even getting a good workout and remained the big favorite.

These victories automatically clinched places for the twin robins in the next series of round robin, although East has another match in the first series yet to play.

England Wins Twice

Great Britain, which had threatened to withdraw from hockey competition after James Foster and Alex Archer were declared ineligible, as a result of a Canadian protest, won two victories.

NUMBER ELEVEN

days after the Northwestern game last fall when he heard that several players had been given drinks on the train when they were en route home. He said he asked Fallon whether he knew of anyone drinking on the train and the trainer replied "no."

Spears testified that two days later he talked with Fallon about the Minnesota game the following Saturday, that he remarked it looked like it would be zero weather at Minneapolis and Fallon should have some hot coffee ready. Spears testified: "Bill said: 'Well in 1933 we had something in the coffee.' And I said: 'You did? Well, I didn't know anything about it.' Then Fallon said: 'Well, we did.'"

Repeated the Questions

Spears testified that Fallon repeated the question whether they should have anything to "spike" the coffee and that he "shook his head" in disapproval.

Declared he Had Strict Rules

Against the use of intoxicating liquor during the season, Spears said: "In the 19 or 20 years I have been coaching, I have never ordered the use of liquor for players in any form."

He Added that he Also Advised his Assistants that they should not come before the players with a liquor breath nor drink in the dressing rooms. Spears said he enforced all his rules against liquor.

Asked if he Ever Compelled injured men to play, Spears replied "no knowingly."

Anaesthetic Before Iowa Game

He testified he didn't know that Tony Popp, a 1935 fullback, had sprained ankles when he asked him to practice, and declared he did not scold him. He knew nothing, he said, of a charge he ordered Fallon to inject a local anesthetic into the broken finger of George Deanovich in 1933 just before the Iowa game.

Just before Spears left the stand after two hours of questioning the quiz turned again to his transfer to Wisconsin.

Assured Athletic Directorship

Spears declared he definitely declined to come to Wisconsin at a salary of $8,500 without assurance of the athletic directorship and that he agreed to the $10,000 figure only after a promise of consideration for the job.

"I would never have taken the position at $10,000 or for any other sum if the athletic directorship had not been brought into the picture," Spears said.

Approached First by Alumnus

Spears said he was approached first by Hy Marks of Chicago, a member of the Wisconsin Alumni association, and that Frank called him several times by telephone.

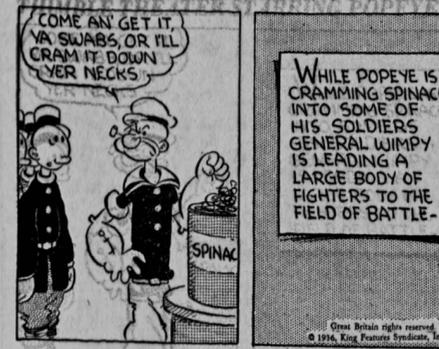

Records produced regarding the athletic board's vote for a director showed Frank voted with the majority for Meanwell.

Frank said his vote was not a judgment on the ability of either man, but was cast because the athletic board had recommended Meanwell.

Hawk Matmen Tangle With Minnesota Tonight

Meet Follows Purdue Game

Iowa Prospects Look Good; Both Teams Boast No Defeats

In view of the fact that Iowa wrestlers have won nine out of 12 matches from the Minnesota Gophers in past years, and because of the excellent shape his men are in, Coach Howard is high spirited in view of a victory today. However, the Norsemen will be at a slight advantage since they have held more intercollegiate meets this season than have the Iowans. Both squads will enter today's struggle with clean slates.

The wrestling fracas will be staged on the Iowa basketball court immediately following the Iowa-Purdue basketball game. Admission to the basketball game will entitle anyone to stay and see the matches.

Richard Millen, Iowa, and McCorquodale will match power for laurels in the 118 pound class. Although this is Millen's first year as a regular, he is speedily developing into strong material.

Howard Grove, 126 pounder, will be matched with Colwell of Minnesota. Robert Larson of Iowa, last year Big Ten champion in the 135 pound class, will endeavor to maintain his undefeated record against Upton of Minnesota.

Scott Fisher, another 145 pound sophomore, will meet Borjaugh of Minnesota. Fisher, who is also among the undefeated Iowa matmen, is enjoying his first year in varsity wrestling. A nip and tuck battle is certain to be staged in the 155 pound class when DeWayne and Daily of Minnesota lock horns. Both men are cherishing an undefeated record thus far this season.

Whitaker Undefeated
Byron Guernsey, stellar 165 pound sophomore and two years ago Mid-Western A.A.U. champion, will pit his strength and undefeated record against that of Whitaker of Minnesota. The northerner has been undefeated in five bouts this season.

Earl Kleihorn, National A.A.U. champion, will muster his 175 pounds of brain and muscle against the undefeated five-match record of Captain Johnson. Throughout his wrestling career, Kleihorn has maintained a position among honor-roll grapplers.

Iowa's heavyweight captain, Frank O'Leary, is slated to tangle with Gustafson of the Gophers. O'Leary holds a clean record so far this season.

Wolfe Stopped
The much injured Bill Leuz took care of Wolfe, 6 foot 4 inch Greyhound, so effectively that the giant was held to 5 points until Leuz was forced to leave the game in the final quarter with a sprained ankle.

St. Pat's went to work on the locals in a masterful way in the first half as all the invaders showed their presence in the scoring column to pile up a 21 to 11 lead at intermission.

Wolfe left the game early in the second period when he collected three personals while trying to stem the Irish tide.

Coen, Healy Break Through
With Wolfe starting the second half, local fans took heart, but the Shamrocks kept right on rolling as Coen and Healy broke loose through the scattered Greyhound defense to increase their margin to 35 to 20 as the tilt went into the final frame.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Patterson was ejected on account of four personals and Leuz sprained his ankle. With two regulars gone the invaders looked to be off key, and without his favorite guardian, Leuz, in the fray Wolfe accounted for six markers as the locals presented a belated rally.

Quench Uprising
The Irish front court men quenched the uprising by almost matching immaculate Conception's points. As the game neared the close, the Greyhounds fought too hard for possession of the ball, the result being that Stramel and Prohaska were thrown out for too many misdemeanors. The game ended a few seconds later, however, before the locals could do anything about closing up the margin.

Bill Leuz, hard fighting Shamrock guard, did the seemingly impossible tonight as he dimmed Wolfe's star for the first time this season. Bill played the pivot position when Patterson left the game, and was able to control the tip despite the fact that he had to spot the long Greyhound five inches.

Keep Parlor City Team Dizzy
Coen and Healy had the locals dizzy with their collection of shots of which Coach Charles Seda never saw the equal. Paul Carrigg covered considerable ground defensively and also made numerous passes that resulted in setups. Howard Demery made the crowd gasp when he dropped in one of his long specialties on entering the tilt and upheld his Irish name with his gift.

NUMBER TEN

Daily Iowan champ. It was the semifinals before the scowl-hard punching Leo was eliminated.

Chester, the red, has also had a long and lustrous ring career. He started way back in '29 when he was attending a military academy at Mexico City, Mo. While there he won the light-heavyweight title of the school and also established quite a reputation in the weekly town amateur shows. He advanced to the Golden Glove finals last year but lost out in the final match. Claims he was rusty after a three year lay-off from boxing competition. This match between red-headed Chester and snarling Leo is one that will bring the house down and shouldn't be missed.

Publish Poem By S.U.I. Grad Now at Oxford

Paul Engle, former graduate student in the school of letters now attending Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar, recently published a narrative poem, "Belleau Wood," in the New Oxford Outlook, of which he is an editor. Prof. Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters, received a copy of the magazine with Mr. Engle's compliments.

The poem, describing the experiences of a United States marine from the middlewest in the famous battle of Belleau Wood, is more deeply concerned with the hidden meanings and causes of the World War. The significance of America's war activities is treated as well.

Author of several books of poetry, including "Worn Earth" and "American Song," Mr. Engle has also published poems in many literary journals. Selections from a forthcoming volume of his poetry were printed in the second issue of American Prefaces, university literary magazine.

Mr. Engle is studying English language and literature at Oxford university, and spends his vacations writing on the continent. He expects to return to the University of Iowa for his Ph.D. degree.

AROUND TOWN

with DICK EVERETT

A good time was had by all at the city council meeting last night as Mayor Thomas E. Martin reported to the council on the progress of the natural gas hearing at Davenport. The report occasioned some pointed remarks and many puns from council members. Even a light company representative in the audience apparently had a swell time.

The Hawkeye Taxicab company last night was authorized by the council to transfer taxi license number 21 from one cab to another.

The usual mountainous stack of bills which accumulates at the first council meeting of each month was approved by the city council last night.

Lighting facilities in the city hall are to be improved. The Reliable Electric company submitted the low bid of $103.80 for work in the fire department, and were low with a bid of $81.50 on rewiring work to be done in the offices of the city nurse and city engineer.

A resolution approved by the city council last night provides for the purchase of a manual hoist for the city truck at a cost of $86.17.

The city council last night set the date of March 16 as the time before which the Gjellefeld Construction company must begin work on the extension to section "A," PWA document 2.250 of the sewage disposal system. The time had previously been set as early in February.

The city council last night accepted a proposition of the Gas Machine company of Cedar Rapids to supply Butane gas for starting the digesters at the sewage disposal plant. The Cedar Rapids firm will supply the special gas at five cents per pound.

IOWA CITY'S NEWEST RESIDENCE

Wired with electricity and fitted with furniture, from chairs to an electric wiener roaster, this Eskimo igloo was built by Eloise and Roger Lapp, shown above. The igloo, which is a meeting place for youngsters of the neighborhood, is built on the lawn at the home of their parents, Prof. and Mrs. C. J. Lapp, 426 Bayard Ave.

Two Iowa City Children Build Electrically Wired Snow Hut

Both of last two Saturday afternoons Roger and Eloise Lapp, children of Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department, were busy building an igloo hut in their front yard.

Last Sunday the children had an igloo-warming party. Wired for electricity, the igloo has an electric wiener-roasting machine which provided "hot dogs" and chocolate to six of the neighborhood children.

The idea of imitating the Eskimo style of architecture came to the Lapp children more than two years ago when they heard a lecture by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, arctic explorer, a graduate of the university class of 1903, describing the way the Eskimo architects work. Mr. Stefansson said a special kind of thickly packed snow is required. This sort of snow, he said, seldom fell in Iowa.

Last week Roger, 14, a freshman in the Iowa City high school, noticed one morning that the snow was so hard-packed that it bore him up as a license to dispense beer at Joe's Place by the city council last night.

The city council adjourned last night until next Friday at 7:30 p. m.

Phi Tau Theta, student fraternity of the Methodist church, will tonight sponsor a "Cupid Penny Carnival" in the church parlors. Among the features will be a parody on Major Bowes' amateur hour.

A warrant was issued yesterday by Justice of the Peace T. M. Fairchild charging Henry Yeggy with cruelty to animals. The information was filed by R. H. Sloan, who said Yeggy failed to provide cattle with proper food, drink and shelter.

The Johnson county junior farm bureau is represented at the state convention at Ames, which ends today, by Gladys Hagenbuch, Frank Fisher, Fremont Isaacs, Paul Stutsman, Everett Winborn and Harlan Stubbs.

Plan Funeral For Mrs. Geo. F. Block

Funeral arrangements will be completed this morning for Mrs. George F. Block, 44, resident of Iowa City since childhood, who died at her home, 1184 Hotz avenue, at 4:30 yesterday morning following a lingering illness. Her condition had been serious since last Friday.

She is survived by her husband; two sons, Jack, 15, and William Albert, 12; her father, Albert Kouba of Iowa City; a sister, Mrs. Albert F. Ebert of Iowa City; two brothers, Frank Kouba of Chicago and Ed Kouba of Iowa City; and several nieces and nephews.

It's Iowa City's newest residence. The Lapp children, however, plan to do only "light housekeeping," cooking wieners and chocolate. Eloise wants it understood that it's a community affair. She does the cooking and Roger does the cleaning, if there is any.

Snow plows have cleared more than half the side roads of the county and will continue their work today, Supervisor C. A. Lacinia announced yesterday. When all roads are opened early next week, it will be the fourth time in less than a month that the work has been done.

Jesse L. Richardson, Townsend club organizer for this district during the last year, has been transferred to the second congressional district with headquarters at Cedar Rapids, it was announced yesterday.

Walter E. Holstein of Burlington has been transferred to this district to succeed Mr. Richardson.

Mr. Richardson is going to Davenport today to make final preparations for the Townsend mass meeting to be held tomorrow. At this meeting he will meet with the other district managers to discuss the organizations of new clubs.

Colorado Warned DENVER (AP)—Denver civic and school officials last night appealed to newspapers to warn every section of the state a storm similar to the blizzard five years ago in which a school bus was trapped and the children and the driver froze to death is headed for the state.

Electricity is Cheap

These Things Could Happen in Iowa City During February —

- Over $22,000.00 in cash could be distributed to homes and commercial establishments now using electricity. (Payment of impounded sum.)
- Reduced electric rates — approximately 20% lower — could be placed in effect.
- Cheap Natural Gas — 25% lower for over 3,700 customers — could be brought in.
- Cost of expensive litigation — gas and electric — could be saved local taxpayers and gas and electric users.
