Blush Your Way To Beauty Girls, It's All the Rage

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—The way to achieve that peaches and cream complexion, said a Madison avenue beautician today, is to blush—furiously and often.

Grace Donohue said the girl who lets her face get red when it wants has little need of cosmetics.

"One good blush is worth a pound of rouge," she declared.

So Red the Rose

"Blushing is not only a very becoming trait in itself but it's healthful, too. It stimulates the flow of blood through the face."

Miss Donohue, a former Chicago newspaper woman, said the girls of the middle west are much more wholesome looking than those in New York.

At the same time, it was learned that the present delay in the formulation of the administration program has been occasioned largely by careful examination and reexamination to fortify it against constitutional objections based upon the supreme court's AAA decision.

12 Lives

Would Be Needed By Hobo to Save Self From Many Crimes

SCHWERIN, Germany, Feb. 22 (AP)—The man children in southern Germany called "Uncle Tiocktock" because he made his living as a hobo watch repairer, received 12 death sentences from a court which found him guilty of murder today.

Uncle Tiocktock appeared on the court records as Adolf Seefeldt, 65—who has spent 23 years in prison.

Twelve Sentences

Judge Sarkander, president of the court, announced that the 12 death sentences were pronounced because Seefeldt had been found guilty of killing 12 boys over a period of two years.

The judge said he was convinced the itinerant watchmaker had murdered at least 30 children.

Find Bodies

The bodies of Seefeldt's victims were found lying in the woods. Expert toxicologists were called to examine them, but no report ever was made as to exact causes of their deaths. The scientists were unable to determine whether Seefeldt had strangled or poisoned his child victims.

Believe F.R. Will Open Up On Tax Plans

Sends Word to Leaders To Keep Thursday Open for Meeting

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Word from the White House to "keep Thursday night open" quickened expectation of congressional leaders today that President Roosevelt will soon make known his tax recommendations.

The executive, it was learned, has asked his legislative chiefs to be ready for a meeting with him fixed tentatively for Feb. 27, following his return from Hyde Park, N.Y.

Talks to Newsmen

Mr. Roosevelt told newsmen yesterday that he expected to study the tax situation during his absence from the capital. He was in Cambridge, Mass., tonight, and will go from there to his Hyde Park home.

News of the conference was accompanied by an intimation that the executive's proposals would be submitted to congress either next Friday or early the following week and brought to the floor of the house after a fortnight's hearings by the ways and means committee.

H.L. Roosevelt Dies Suddenly

Cousin of F.R. Dies Of Heart Attack After Few Days' Illness

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Col. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, a relative of President Roosevelt and acting secretary of the navy during the illness of Secretary Swanson, died suddenly late today of an acute heart attack.

He was 56 years old. Admitted to Naval hospital only last Thursday for treatment for intestinal influenza, his death was unexpected.

Word was telephoned immediately to President Roosevelt, who was attending a dinner at Harvard University's Fly club at Cambridge, Mass., that his distant cousin had passed away. The chief executive arranged to leave almost immediately for his Hyde Park, N.Y., home.

He and Mrs. Roosevelt will return to the capital Tuesday morning to attend the funeral services. Interment will be in Arlington National cemetery.

News of the death of the assistant naval secretary was flashed to all naval shore stations and to all ships of the United States fleet. All flags were ordered to half mast.

Colonel Roosevelt died at 5:15 p.m., despite a determined effort to save him. An announcement from the White House by one of the President's secretaries disclosed that a navy airplane dashed to Philadelphia during the day and returned with a specialist, Dr. C. F. Mitchell of that city.

Governor Questions Testimony Of Witness in Hauptmann Case

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 22 (AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, who temporarily saved Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair a month ago, cast doubt today on the testimony that placed Hauptmann near Hopewell about the time of the Lindbergh kidnaping, March 1, 1932.

Talks of Case

At the conclusion of two hours of questioning Millard Whited, Sourdlands lumberjack, the governor said it was "highly significant" that Whited once told police he had seen no one near the Lindbergh home, and then apparently reversed himself when Hauptmann was arrested two and a half years later and identified him.

The governor said Whited told him he had been promised a part of the $25,000 reward, offered by the state for the arrest and conviction of the kidnaper, had received about $160 for appearing as a witness, and thought more was due him.

Questions Veracity

"It would be very interesting," the governor said, "to know whether the promise of the reward played some part in his identification of Hauptmann in the Bronx."

Whited's identification of Hauptmann at the extradition proceedings in the Bronx in October, 1934, was one reason New York authorities decided to grant New Jersey's request for the prisoner.

Hauptmann is under sentence to die the week of March 30.

Herring Maps Out Plans For Flood Control

By EDWIN STOUT
DES MOINES, Feb. 22 (AP)—Gov. Clyde L. Herring said tonight he will ask United States army and CCC officials to join with the state government in an immediate program to prevent possible widespread damage and loss of life from threatened spring floods.

As he mapped the state's flood prevention plans, the governor explained he will request the loan of army engineers for a survey to determine probable danger points and ask that CCC camps be transferred to strategic spots as soon as it appears necessary.

"We must not be caught napping if a flood crisis comes," Governor Herring said. "The amount of snow on the ground in Iowa and the possibility of a sudden thaw or continued rains constitutes a serious threat."

"If we can determine where the danger spots are and have men and materials ready to go into action, the first step toward prevention of suffering will have been taken."

He asked that Iowa mayors and county boards of supervisors take whatever measures possible to avert damage in their localities and that local Red Cross chapters in cities threatened with floods "be prepared for an emergency."

NUMBER TWO

than save America. He vindicated democracy at a time when all over the world its enemies were ready to declare the death of the finest system of government ever devised."

Saying "the Hoover panic was defeated because a courageous congress used the national credit to rescue the American people from starvation and want," Farley commented "Kansas got its fair share."

"Depressing" "It was depressing to read some time back," he added, "of hungry men creating disturbances at Ft. Scott (Kan.), but incidents of that kind have happened elsewhere. The comforting thing was that you treated them in humane American fashion and that the federal government was at hand to help you give them food and work."

Hoover the democratic party chief assailed as "the apostle of panic," leading "a terrific economic 'fear campaign' directed against the people of the United States."

"Nation Advances" With Roosevelt, he said, the nation has "advanced from economic confusion and paralysis under Mr. Hoover to economic prosperity."

"Prosperity is a national thing unlike that of the republican era when finance and industry boomed at the very time agriculture was allowed to wallow in the mire of depression." Replying to Hoover's recent Portland, Ore., speech in which he said the "state of the union is a state of confusion," Farley said:

"There Was Confusion" "I passed through Topeka in 1931. Mr. Hoover was in the White House. Wheat was selling at less than 30 cents a bushel and cotton was around five cents a pound. There was confusion then and there was despair. Today wheat is selling above 90 cents and cotton at around 11. Let me remind Mr. Hoover that the only confusion is in his own mind."

Of the "miscalled American Liberty league," he said: "A brilliant editorial writer said it ought to be called the American Cellulose league and he gave two good reasons. He said first, it's a DuPont product and, second, you can see right through it."

Views With Alarm The postmaster general asserted that after having "slipped further and further into the grip of economic depression," the national situation at the beginning of 1933 "could only be described as appalling."

At that time, he said— Jobless and their dependents numbered more than 30,000,000; the press was reporting suicides of fathers and mothers unable to endure the suffering of their children; the farmers swarmed into the highways, grim-faced and determined to protect their homes; bankruptcy courts were busy; banks were failing and "the whole banking system, deprived of public confidence, was on the verge of collapse," along with the railroads.

"Someone well said the national theme song then was — "Brother have you got a dime."

"Nothing Was Done" Asking "what was done in 1930 and 1931 and 1932 to correct the horrible conditions I have described?" Farley said:

"You can answer that yourself. Nothing was done. Fear was everywhere."

There was talk of the possible need of a dictatorship then among the "financial giants," he asserted, adding:

"Almost with an air of resignation, the people patiently waited until the end of the Hoover regime, fearful that a terrible tornado of social forces was about to uproot the land."

"Well my friends, the tornado never happened and you and I know why. While the rest faltered and fumed and fussed, a new leader took over the reins of office March 4, 1933, and his accomplishments were soon echoing like a thunderclap throughout the length and breadth of the land."

"Marched Steadily Forward" "From the day Mr. Roosevelt seized the banner of American leadership from the faltering hands of Herbert Hoover, the United States has marched steadily forward towards the goal of economic security and social justice.

"You may search history without finding a single parallel for the amazing rise in economic conditions which has happened in the United States under President Roosevelt."

Under the new deal, Farley said— Confidence has been restored in the banking structure; the buying power of agriculture has been increased by more than $2,000,000,000 in one year; industrial production is up; government projects "which will prove useful and lasting benefit to the nation" are giving a living to millions; the people have more money and "the American school system—the proudest boast of our democracy—has been rescued from a state of collapse."

"Proud of Record" "That, my fellow Americans, is the three year record of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and we are proud of it. We challenge any political party to meet us on that record."

Turning upon administration critics, Farley said it is "astounding" that the "man who saved America is being criticized and denounced, reviled and condemned by certain noisy elements as though he were a common enemy of his country."

The people, he said, "Want us to answer these attacks." An organization of multi-millionaires which is run as a subsidiary of the republican national committee.

He asserted "70 per cent of contributions to the league came from the "DuPont family or their allies."

For rent— ONE CLOSET suitable for skeletons

IT'S THE ONE where you used to keep your family skeletons. Not the kind referred to as "Uncle Will's unfortunate weakness." The kind that haunted you with reminders of unfortunate purchases. . . .

Appliances bought on snap judgment. Gadgets that didn't run. Dresses you snatched at the last moment — and never wore after the first. All things that cost too much and gave too little. Merchandise from questionable sources — hastily, inconsiderately secured.

You have fewer of these sad mistakes to put away than you used to. You are spending your money more carefully now—days. Hard times — experience — have contributed their lessons. But above all others, one factor has stood your constant guard.

The advertising in this newspaper protects you against wasteful, unsatisfactory expenditures. Advertised products live up to their specifications — and yours.

By reading the advertising — not sometimes but ALWAYS — carefully and critically — you provide yourself with a knowledge of values, prices and names that's yours when you need it. Dispense with that upstairs closet. Buy by name in 1936. You'll collect no buying blunders THAT way!

Young Democrats Issue Challenge THE CAMPUS Young Democrats club has challenged its contemporary opponent, the young republicans, to a debate on the question: Resolved that the new deal has been beneficial to the American people. An interesting argument should result if the challenge is accepted, and both sides will be benefited. A clearer picture of the entire political set-up would be gained by members of both groups. Other students might learn much from attending these debates and an open forum could be held afterward. Party platforms have been confused by many voters, and students often are not sure of the stand taken by either party on any issue. Informed on this point, the young man or woman will be able to join whichever party agrees with his theories. Too many of us are content to follow the lead of the party banner that our fathers liked. Or to ride along with the wave of public sentiment that appears in a community. A sound understanding of political alignments often avoids this. A multitude of problems will face the students of today when they take their places in life. Many of these concern politics and could be benefited by a little information gleaned while in college. We hope the debates wax warm—and soon.

Bridge Tourney Deserves Attention THE FRATERNITY-society bridge tournament which is being planned by the Union Board is one of the commendable social plans of the year. While providing a pleasant pastime it will also afford an opportunity for participants to sharpen their wits. Fast thinking, shrewd bidding, carefully planned playing and the nerve to take a chance are included in the characteristics of a good bridge player. The timid soul will be doomed to failure. The player who insists on overbidding his hand will find himself far behind when total scores are tallied. Not only will the players match wits but they will enjoy several hours of pleasant company in the comfortable lounge of Iowa Union. Those two hours after class and before dinner will be profitably spent in pleasant association with other college men and women instead of loafing in public places or holding gossip sessions at the house. Any plan which encourages students to meet in groups and form worthwhile friendships or further the spirit of goodfellowship should be applauded by officials and students of the university.

Republicans Can't Win Complete Control WALTER LIPPMANN has written an article which will dilute all the promises that the republicans can make in the coming elections. If the republican party should elect the next president and obtain a majority in the house it will not be able to control the senate. Of the 96 senators now holding office, 32 will hold their seats until 1941, or throughout the next administration. There are 32 other senators who will hold their seats until 1939, or throughout the first half of the next administration. Lippmann says that in order to control the government the republicans would need two successive landslide and an epidemic of cholera besides. If the republican party should elect the next president, he would be as hog-tied as Hoover was during his presidential reign, and would be able to accomplish nothing. The majority of voters that any party can muster is on the promise of certain beneficial legislation, and political jobs. If the republican party can't possibly fulfill these promises even with a sweeping victory, it will find it difficult to obtain votes.

Amateur Referees Spoil Games MANY AMATEUR referees cannot understand why they become so unpopular after officiating in an intramural athletic contest. That is probably the reason why there is such a shortage of officials at these events. Generally, a bystander is asked to assume the duties of a referee, and finds that unless he has had some experience and knows the rules of the game, it is the best policy to refuse. Intramural contests are earnestly played with each team fighting its heart out for victory. A poor official has ruined many an intramural contest by allowing it to become too rough through ignorance of the rules. Only last week a fraternity man received a broken wrist when pushed into a wall during a basketball game. If fraternities and dormitories are to plan good intramural games, they will find it better to arrange for competent referees to be at the gym to handle the contests.

Bicameral And Unicameral Legislatures WHEN THE American colonies constructed their government it was quite natural that they should pattern after the mother country, England, and adopt the prevailing system of a two house legislature. But today little justification can exist for bicameralism. Historical precedent is the only defense for two houses, and in this case it is a very poor alibi. The opposition of the people to any change from the older, and therefore seemingly easier, system has been the stumbling block to those who advocate the change to a single house. On the negative side, we find that defects can be noted in the present system, including the conference committee custom, unnecessary procedure and the startling waste of money. Every bill meeting with serious opposition is sent to a conference committee to save endless haggling and to iron out the difficulties. These six or seven men work in secret committee and no record is kept of proceedings—a decidedly undemocratic plan. Also arbitrary acceptance of the bill is almost forced upon the legislators. They may either accept the bad with the good or reject both. A single house, much smaller in number, would be able to go through all important bills without reverting to the conference committee except possibly for expert advice. A second great evil of bicameral legislature is the unnecessary procedure involved. Ogg and Ray, eminent political scientists, point out that there are 16 separate and distinct steps followed by a bill from its inception to its acceptance or rejection. Many of these are not necessary and could be eliminated by the dropping of one house. Easy control by special interests and the passage of hasty and ill-considered legislation are the offspring when so much time is required and so many bills are offered. Each additional step offers an opening for control by special interests. Because a bill must pass from one house to another, through their committees and through the joint conference committees, there is chance for sidetracking, temporarily or permanently, some bills. As a result the closing hours in a session are all that is allowed to a great number of these "lost" bills. Can much consideration be given such legislation? One glance into the expenditures of the government on congressional work, convinces anyone that two-thirds of the huge expense account could be slashed away by abolishing the bicameral legislature. Some states have recently switched to the unicameral system. It is to be hoped that many others will follow suit in tossing aside blind prejudice and custom to install a simpler and economical representative body. It is not entirely inconceivable that the federal congress will be a unicameral one within the next 50 years.

A Threat To Free Press ISADORE (KID) Cann Blumenfeld was recently acquitted of the murder of Walter Liggett, Minneapolis publisher. Since then the prosecution has apparently decided to drop the case entirely with no further investigation. Peculiar circumstances surrounding the trial and city politics of the grain center indicate that the right of freedom of press is as much at stake as is the solution to a murder. Whether by coincidence or not, Liggett is the second editor in that city to be shot in cold blood during the last two years. Both editors were bitter political crusaders. Both had earned the wrath and hatred of powerful politicians. Despite the identification by two witnesses, Cann was freed when he claimed that he sat in a barber shop at the time of the killing. The jury spent only three and one-half hours on the case, with a third of that time out for lunch. Minneapolis has been the seat of much political warfare in recent years. Mayors have been forced to quit, and at least six chiefs of police have been appointed in as many years. Graft charges have been made freely. It will be remembered that freedom of the press was in danger of being shackled by a Minnesota legislature, until a supreme court halted the move. The record of the state would be cleared greatly in the minds of many, if the Liggett slayers were hunted down. Then it would not appear that violence was gagging the newspaper realm.

A Washington Bystander

WASHINGTON—The in-and-out characteristics of the Wadsworth presidential boom, one of the first to be noised about among political gossips after the 1932 election, make an interesting study. Like Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York, volunteer back seat driver for the Borah boom, Rep. James W. Wadsworth has seen his fond hopes, if he had such, decline to a mere vice-presidential scope among the busy gossips. Certainly Wadsworth looked like something of a natural for republican presidential consideration when he staged a comeback in the midst of the 1932 democratic sweep. True, it was to the house he returned after having lost a seat in the senate; but there he was. If the inner thoughts of republican conservative leaders were known, he probably was then and still is the man they would most like to see elevated to the presidency. What happened to the Wadsworth boom, however, was what also happened to all other eastern booms, including that of Representative Fish. There was a definite if undeclared agreement among virtually all party factions that their 1936 standard bearer must hail from the west. Fish recognized this when he leaped gaily aboard the Borah bandwagon. Easterners whose fancy would have poked, Ogden Mills, Hoover treasury secretary, even against Wadsworth, also saw that handwriting on the fall so far in advance that no Mills boom ever got going. The same could be seen of others. What remains of eastern republican presidential booms, then, is to be found in a Borah-and-Fish ticket suggestion that lurks about Fish's great activity in Borah's behalf; and a Landon-and-Wadsworth idea, put out from undisclosed sources, but said to be very appealing to certain influential party groups in the east. Whether Representative Wadsworth would consider a second place

Nurses Enrolled In Red Cross Service Get Questionnaires Annual questionnaires were sent this week to graduate nurses enrolled in the Red Cross nursing service of 22 northeastern Iowa counties, according to Edith Holmstrom of the bureau of dental hygiene, chairman of the northeastern district. In case of emergency, these questionnaires are used to recruit nurses on the basis of information given as to address, telephone number, and physical status of each volunteer. More than 320 nurses in Iowa City, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Mason City, Dubuque and Davenport are available for public service in case of storms, fires, epidemics, or flood disasters. More than 26,000,000 eggs are deposited by the ling during the spawning season, as compared with more than 9,000,000 by the turbot, which ranks second.

nomination might be questionable. He is known to have had the opportunity to refuse the war portfolio during republican administrations. Important army figures, for army and not political reasons, were then urgently hopeful he would accept. As senate military committee chairman he was popular with the service. A Matter of Routine It was then represented that Wadsworth had no liking for departmental routine. That presumption does not extend to presidential routine; but it might to the more or less fifth-wheel vice-presidency. In the west the Landon-and-Wadsworth suggestion probably was not at all welcome to Landon boomers, at this stage at least. They already were facing attack on the Landon-Topeka speech which established his candidacy as a bid for eastern conservative support that largely ignored western republican liberal trends. Double-heading the Landon ticket with Wadsworth might be hard to explain out west.

A New Yorker At Large By JAMES B. RESTON NEW YORK—A gentleman from the country who likes to have fun with his meals has written in out of curiosity to ask why it is that he has to pay $3.50 for a fillet mignon dinner in New York's top restaurant. Obviously, the answer is: entertainment. I turned his question over to the gentleman who runs perhaps our swankiest restaurant and he merely quoted me the price he is paying the artists who amuse his guests. One of the country's finest orchestras costs him $1,896 a week; a string orchestra which plays during the meal is paid $600; a pianist who plays around while the guests are gathering gets $125; two singers draw $600 and a pair of patent bar their haired ballroom dancers command $500. These are not "Hollywood" figures. The gentleman gave me acceptable proof. In other words, if his restaurant were not atop one of the town's skyscrapers, and if his food and water and kitchen help and maintenance didn't cost him a cent, he would still have to take in a little more than $20 a night to pay his entertainment bill. But even at $3.50 a shot, these restaurants are a bad gamble for the restaurateur. Jimmy Thompson, who was generally admitted to be one of the shrewdest restaurateurs during the speak-easy period, opened a big shiny place on Fifty-seventh street this season, hired Guy Lombardo and a lot of top-notchers to entertain as if straightaway lost most of the money he made in the days when lunacy reigned. If you think the tariff at the top restaurants is too high, a little experience with the intermediate joints is likely to change your mind. These places line the streets in the Forties and Fifties between Park and Eighth avenues, and are tucked away in the Village and Chinatown and the other foreign atmosphere, which you can't eat, and bad liquor, which you eventually wish you had never seen. Of course, there are exceptions; but it is always wise to request a certain brand of liquor and see that you get it; otherwise you are likely to get the bottle which is reserved especially for the out-of-town trade. You might be interested in the contrast between the price of the dinner and the weekly wage paid to their waiters in our fashionable places. At the Waldorf, the waiters are paid approximately $4 a week. Of course, they make $40 or $50 a comedown from the tips when their tips would shoot their earning up around $100 a week; but this comes out of the guests' pockets, not out of the Waldorf exchequer.

Screen Life By HUBBARD KEAVY HOLLYWOOD—The next big style fad, says Orry Kelly, who thinks up things for the movie stars to wear, will be the handkerchief dress. Any kind of handkerchief—large or small, silk or linen, plain or printed, sports or formal—will do. Small handkerchiefs are already being used to adorn sports costumes and big chiffon squares are being turned into entire evening dresses. Already many Hollywood girls have appeared in costumes designed from handkerchiefs. Joan Blondell, Eleanor Whitney, Constance Bennett, Jean Muir and Josephine Hutchinson were among the first to adopt the new style. In a forthcoming picture, Bette Davis wears an evening gown designed by Kelly that is made of four huge block-printed squares. But, like everything else, there's a rule attached. "The trick is to keep your creation from looking as if you'd cut four or five handkerchiefs together to make a dress—which is exactly what you have done," Kelly says. "They must be used subtly, cleverly. I find they are best when used as skirt-insets, godets, cowli necklines and drapes. But they also can be used as collars, cuffs, pockets and belts." Tablitan Print For Jean Printed handkerchiefs with backgrounds in a solid color are also best, Kelly cautioned, because it will be found easier to match up the material for the rest of the dress. Jean Muir's hanky frock is a brown crepe, with wide real sleeves formed from handkerchiefs of a matching Tablitan print, and she carries another in her hand for good measure. Joan Blondell, for a sports costume, slit two colored kerchiefs of harmonizing shades to make tie cuffs, sailor collar and bandana. It is Miss Davis' dress that shows how intricately the new fad may be developed. Four large squares of black crepe, printed in pink and white, were matched to compose the black background for the body of the gown. Two of the handkerchiefs were employed to make a butterfly drape at the back, from shoulder to low décolletage, and two others made a fish-tail train, with the borders running up the sides of the gown.

Law Students To Test Law

Will Argue Legality Of New Price Law Supreme Court Day

A new statute not yet tested in the Iowa courts will be the issue involved in the tenth annual Supreme Court day of the college of law April 2, marking, for senior law students, the culmination of an elimination contest in legal argumentation which began in the first year of the law course.

Argue New Law
The constitutionality of the resale price amendment act which became a law in 1935 will be the subject for argument, with Morton S. Adler of Des Moines, and Boni Druker of Marshalltown, acting as attorneys for the appellant and Robert Powell of Traer, and Herman Grant of Davenport, as attorneys for the appellee.

Students selected to participate in the Supreme Court day arguments are chosen on the basis of ability to analyze and argue effectively legal questions and on the basis of high scholastic standing in law studies.

Part of Program
Included in this year's Supreme Court day program will be initiation into the Order of the Coif, honorary legal organization, a reception honoring visiting justices of the Iowa supreme court and judges of the district courts, the argument, a banquet in Iowa Union, and a farcical musical show staged by law students.

University Medical Library Has Display

Twelve pictures illustrating "Man's Fight Against Disease" form an exhibit this week in the display case at the university medical library.

Discussions accompanying each picture explain progress and innovations in the medical field, beginning with ancient Egyptian medicine men wrestling with "evil spirits" to modern science strangling disease.

Seen From Old Capitol

By JESS GORKIN

You can't keep a good man idle, and Homer, A2 of Blackball, S. D., the wandering bard, would have one know that he is a good man.

He says he wrote the following poem under the influence of a strange volume of isms called "The Meaning of Unintelligibility in Modern Art." The idea, Homer explains, is to write without concrete or descriptive meaning so that the work is as free and abstract as music. But he confesses his failure in the present instance; after the poem was finished, he admits, he found one naturalistic and esthetic meaning in the lines.

us poof,
us state sweet
us reel and in; us rubber, us rub one poof, us smelt our twelve,
us smelt poof three and a-half,
us steal, us steal poof two,
us tobacco.

(Ed. Note)—Homer you are either a genius or crazy.

One University of Iowa faculty member describes a graduate student as "a person who did not know enough to go home after the show was over."

A college of commerce instructor says "reciprocity constitutes giving one as bad a cigar as he gave you."

Another new organization, the Thursday Afternoon Social club, (no comment) has been organized on the University of Iowa campus. After reading the regulations of the club we are willing to give credit to Homer for being sane. But the moguls of the club maintain there is a deep meaning—even poets the culture board of the hibernating Friars—in the rules which it sets forth:

1. Two bottles fry.
2. Either the fellow or girl must have a car and gasoline.
3. The girl must have a reserve fund.
4. Prerequisite 4 and 5 are courses carried the first semester.
5. Either the fellow or girl must be kind of good looking.
6. Each date must be a stranger to the rest of the crowd.
7. No smooching of others.
8. No fair coming home for church.
9. Cut cards to see who changes the radio.
10. The game Monopoly is out.
11. No carrying of boxing gloves or concealed weapons.
12. Trout are to be held the first two weeks of warm weather.

Extremes of Tastes Shown In Art Exhibition at Union

By MARIE HENTZ

An obvious tendency towards sensationalism is evident in the current art exhibit in Iowa Union. Either the majority of artists today are painting "show" pieces, or the judges are choosing them, good and bad, to stimulate public interest.

That the Chicago Art museum would sponsor such a display, supposedly a cross-section of the best in contemporary American art, indicates, on the whole, poor selection on the part of the judges, or a confused state in the field of art.

Contrast
It is only natural that in an exhibit as large as the American showing one would find many mediocre and fairly good pieces. But, it is peculiar to find such artists as Thomas Benton, Julio de Diego, and Blumenschein shown side by side with such obviously incompetent painters as Annot, Jones, and others. Benton's "Romance" is a highlight of the group. While leaning toward caricature, that very quality gives it a striking emotional content and an excellent decorative feeling. Here, by simplification of form, Benton shows his superiority in realizing fundamental emotions and actions of proletarian classes.

"Riderless Racers"
For technical excellent, "Riderless Racers" by Clarence H. Carter, and "Portrait of a Pueblo Indian" by Ernest L. Blumenschein stand out above the other works. Although the former lacks human interest and is in one sense merely another "still-life," it is a fine example of realistic forms used in a decorative manner.

"Juanita" by Julio de Diego is an expressionistic study. With a weird color scheme, particularly of green flash against a red floor, he successfully promotes an emotional response similar to his own reactions to his subject. In this we find an intelligent use of distortion in form, line and color.

The most accurate draftsmanship shown in portraiture is "Self-Portrait" by Peter Helck.

Purposeful Exaggeration
"Promenade All" by Lorin Thompson Jr. is another example of purposeful exaggeration. Through this medium he has shown the humor in the desperate concentration of human beings on physical pleasures as expressed here in movement.

In "Sin and Salvation," by Ella Fillmore Lillie, and "Negro Baptism," by Donald M. Mattison, the artists have smiled satirically on human actions.

Work of Curry Shown
Iowa Citizens who have not before had an opportunity to see the work of John Stewart Curry will be disappointed in his "Mother and Father" included in the current exhibit. Although in subject matter it is in accord with the principles of regionalism of which Curry is a leader, it also contains a degree of sentimentality which is insipid. Added to this is poor and over-obvious composition, dirty color, and a general formlessness.

Unjustifiable Showing
Unjustifiable for inclusion in any art exhibit is Annot's "Portrait Vera Kelsey." The artist's reasons for painting the picture in such a manner, or for even painting it, are obscure.

Retrospective to perhaps the period of Corot is the subject matter of Wendell Jones' "Figures in Landscape"—two nearly nude figures poised lifelessly against a leafy background. It is peculiar to find such a picture selected by judges for a modern exhibit which reputedly shows the vitality of modern American art.

Paul Dengler Will Address History Group

Dengler, director of the Austro-American Institute for Education and a visiting professor of history at the University of Iowa in 1934, will present a graduate college lecture in cooperation with the history department here March 2 and conduct a round table discussion March 3, it was announced yesterday.

Dengler, who presented two series of lectures in addition to his teaching duties in 1934, will speak on the "United States of Europe—Dream of Necessity" and his round table discussion will deal with current European problems.

The series of lectures he gave here were designed to describe conditions in Austria and their effect on the European situation.

Lecture by Toyohiko Kagawa To Draw 5,000 to Fieldhouse

With nearly 2,500 tickets already distributed for the public lecture Wednesday at 8 p.m. by Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese Christian leader, university officials yesterday said the event will occur in the fieldhouse. Tickets may be obtained free of charge at the main desk of Iowa Union.

Approximately 5,000 persons, including delegations from Cedar Rapids, Davenport and other neighboring towns are expected to attend the lecture. The public address system will be used for the lecture.

Presents 100 Lectures
Kagawa, who will present more than 100 lectures during his tour of the United States, will come here following his many talks in the east and midwest.

Sometimes referred to as a modern saint, Kagawa was nearly barred from entering the United States because of trachoma, an eye disease, which he contracted while living in the slums of Kobe. Accompanied by a doctor and a nurse, he was given permission to complete his scheduled tour.

Born in Kobe
Kagawa was born in Kobe, Japan, 47 years ago. His parents died when he was four years old. His childhood was spent with a wealthy uncle, who was opposed to Christianity. The Japanese leader made his first contact with the Christian faith when he entered a Bible class for the purpose of learning English.

When he accepted Christianity in preference to Buddhism, he was disinherited by his relatives, but regardless of their opposition entered the Presbyterian college in Tokyo in 1905 in preparation for the ministry.

He later went to Kobe to enter the theological seminary. Convinced that he could aid persons living in slums of that city, he moved into a single room house in the slums to carry out his work.

In 1914, giving up his plan of improving conditions of the poor by contacts in the slums, Kagawa came to the United States to study for two years in the Princeton theological seminary and to investigate social service institutions in this country.

Following his study at Princeton, he returned to the slums of Kobe and became active in the social issues of Japan. In 1921 he led workers striking for recognition of their union and was arrested several times by Japanese authorities. In 1931, in Kagawa's house in Shinkawa, the first farmer's union of Japan was organized as a result of the pacifist's undertakings.

As a pacifist, the Japanese leader organized the National Anti-War League in Japan in 1928. Since 1931 he has opposed the imperial policy of the Japanese government, and on a recent visit to China, he publicly apologized for the conduct of his countrymen.

Iowa Tanksters Overwhelm Illini, 56 to 28

Walters, Westerfield Shatter Intercollegiate Marks; Hawks Surpass Six Big Ten Times

By HERMAN SCHMIDT Staging the greatest array of record-breaking performances in the history of the University of Iowa swimming, the mighty Hawkeye tank team, led by Ray Walters and Dick Westerfield, splashed its way to a 56 to 28 victory over Illinois at the field-house pool yesterday afternoon.

With enthusiastic spectators cheering their efforts, Coach Dave Armbruster's cohorts shattered two National Intercollegiate and five university records and surpassed six Big Ten conference marks.

Illini Outclassed Gophers, 35-33, In Fast Battle

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 26 (AP)—Illinois outlasted Minnesota in a nip and tuck battle tonight to win, 35 to 33, and strengthen its grip on third place in the Western conference basketball standings.

The Gophers, led by George Roscoe and Jim Baker, had one of their "on" nights and held the Illini even most of the way. Illinois led by two points at the half, and at the start of the second period quickly worked up a 22 to 14 lead on field goals by Bob Riegel, Jim Vopicka and Harry Combes, before Minnesota scored again. The margin lasted until Roscoe, connecting with one-handed shots from well out in the floor, rang up three quick baskets to tie the score at 32-32.

Riegel scored on a followup and Wil Henry dropped in a free throw in the last minute while Baker made good on a foul shot for Minnesota's last point. Roscoe led the scoring with 13 points, while Baker tied Riegel at 12 points for runnerup honors.

The victory was Illinois' sixth in nine Big Ten games with Minnesota suffering its eighth defeat in 11 games.

Columbia Beats Parsons DUBUQUE, Ia. (AP)—Piling up a decisive advantage in the first half, Columbia had little difficulty in defeating Parsons, 37 to 24 here last night.

"Jake" Cracks Mark Iowa's leader, Jacobsmeier, proved that he is back in top condition as he surpassed his own university record of 2:18 in the 220 yard free style event. "Jake" was timed in 2:17.8, which also was under the conference figure of 2:18.4 set by Schwartz of Northwestern in 1928.

Deprived of the services of Bob Allen, Chicago sophomore, who will be out for two weeks because of an ear injury, Armbruster used veterans Fred Haskins and Allen Dunton in the breast stroke. The former walked away with first place, leading Brook of Illinois by more than five feet at the finish. Dunton gave the Champaign stroker a great battle for second before losing out by six inches.

Christen Takes Diving Arn Christen maintained his undefeated status in the diving event, winning handsily with 106.77 points. Vokac of Illinois and Stark of Iowa waged a battle for second, with the former gaining the verdict.

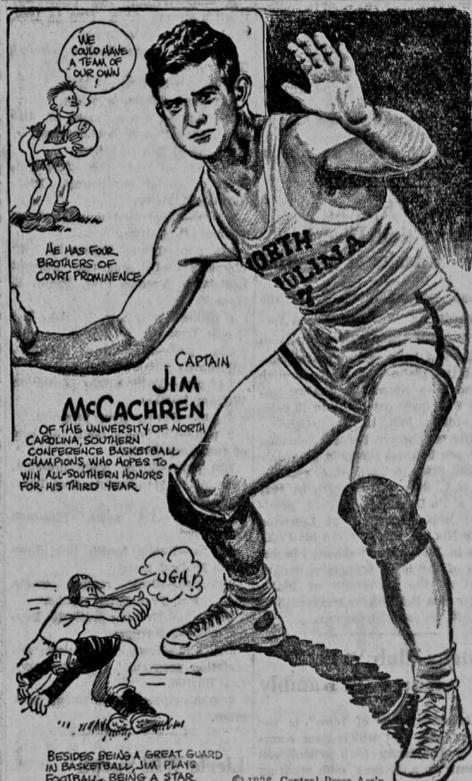

The closest race of the meet resulted in the only triumph of the day for the invaders. Lewis, Oak Park sophomore, and Sieg, Hawk veteran, swam an almost dead heat in the 100 yard dash. After considerable deliberation the Illinois star was credited with first place.

Hawks in Lineup Their startling performances yesterday placed the Hawkeyes in the nation's swimming spotlight and establish them as powerful contenders for the conference and intercollegiate titles.

Gunning Gets 14 Points As Indiana Wins By Easy 54-21 Score

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 22 (AP)—Indiana's streamlined basketball team took undisputed leadership in the Western conference basketball chase tonight by rolling over Wisconsin, 54 to 21, while Purdue was dropping a 45 to 40 decision to Northwestern at Evanston.

The victory was Indiana's ninth Big Ten win against one loss, to Ohio State, while the defeat was Wisconsin's sixth in nine games. After a loose first four minutes in which seven fouls were called against both teams, Indiana set a fast scoring tempo which continued even after the "rookies" replaced the starting five midway in the second half.

Kenny Gunning, Indiana's ranking conference scorer, tallied 17 points tonight on seven field goals and three charity tosses.

Cincinnati Owner Satisfied With 7 Night Game Limit

CINCINNATI, Feb. 22 (AP)—Powell Crosey Jr., who brought night baseball to the major leagues, asserted today his Cincinnati Reds were perfectly content with a rule limiting their nocturnal pastime to seven games a season.

"We have no intention or desire to play more than seven games a season," he said. "We feel it might involve some serious questions if we were to open the major leagues to an unlimited number of night games."

He predicted, however, that other major league baseball clubs would take advantage of the seven-game night baseball rule sooner or later and said that he "imagined the season attendance would be better if all games were played at night."

Top Row Seizes Rich Santa Anita Handicap

SANTA ANITA PARK, LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22 (AP)—Top Row ran a smashing victory in the Santa Anita handicap to win $104,600, the richest turf prize of the year, here today.

Cheered by close to 60,000 wild-eyed fans, the "little Napoleon" of A. A. Baron's stable snaked through and raced in to beat out a gallant Time Supply and Rosemont.

Discovery, top heavy favorite, was bumped at the start, ran on the outside most of the way and was never a dangerous foe.

A total of $350,083 was bet on the handicap, and more than a million dollars were wagered on the eight-race program. It was the largest crowd and the biggest "handle" in the history of horse-racing in California.

Fouls Claimed Pounding down the stretch, the riders tried to dodge a soggy spot in the track, and fouls were claimed—and disallowed—by Jockey Maurice Peters on Rosemont, and Tommy Luther on Time Supply.

Peters protested that Wayne Wright moved the fast-moving Top Row on him and Luther claimed Rosemont bumped Time Supply.

Climax of the colorful classic found every man, woman and child in the palatial Arcadia club yelling and that included the massed thousands in the $2.20 section and the notables, celebrities and just plain rich in the exclusive verandas of the Los Angeles turf club.

Finishing fourth behind Rosemont was Azucar moving up but too far back to repeat his upset victory in the $100,000 inaugural handicap last year.

The others crossed the line in this order: Fifth, Whopper; sixth, Howard; seventh, Discovery; eighth, Pompey's Pillar; ninth, Thursday; tenth, Tok On; eleventh, Ariel Cross; twelfth, Singing Wood; thirteenth, Riskulus; fourteenth, He Did; and fifteenth, Preeminent.

Purple Hands Boilermakers First Defeat

Boilermakers Drop To Second Place Nook In League Standings

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 22 (AP)—Northwestern conquered Purdue's powerful basketball team, 45 to 40 tonight to fashion the biggest upset of the Western conference season. The defeat was the Boilermakers' first in nine Big Ten starts and dropped them to second place behind Indiana in the championship race.

A capacity attendance of 5,800 saw the Wildcats, who dropped a 21 to 27 decision to Purdue at Lafayette a week ago, take the lead early and hold it in the face of a blistering rally by the Boilermakers in the second period. Effective shooting by Fred Trenkle, Marcelous (Mike) McMichaels and Jean Smith, helped Northwestern build up a 30 to 22 margin at halftime.

Guards Stop Kessler Northwestern's guards, Duke Vance, Hy Bender and Guy Mercer, held Bob Kessler, ace of the Boilermakers scorers, to two field goals, one in each half, but gave him 20 opportunities for free throws in 30 downs. Kessler, usually weak from the foul line, dropped in nine to collect 13 points for the game and take over the individual scoring leadership with 113 points, to 102 for Bill Haarlow of Chicago.

Glen Downey who made four field goals in the second period, led Purdue's big bid for victory. The rally cut Northwestern's margin to 33 to 31, but Trenkle and McMichaels opened up again to put the Wildcats safely in front.

Indians Gain First Purdue's defeat moved Indiana, which trounced Wisconsin, 45 to 21 at Bloomington, back into first place with nine victories and one defeat. The victory was Northwestern's fourth in eight conference starts.

Cyclones Lose To Sooners To End Poor Year AMES, Ia., Feb. 22 (AP)—Iowa State finished a disastrous defense of its Big Six basketball championship here tonight by losing to Oklahoma, 39 to 42, and dropping into the conference cellar. It was the eighth defeat in 10 games for the Cyclones.

Oklahoma scored first on a free throw and after a see-saw battle through the first half Iowa State emerged with a one-point margin, 19 to 18.

It's A Dull Old Day for Inhabitants of Jail As Winter Months Drag Wearily Along

By MERLE MILLER

If it's adventure you're seeking, go to the latest G-man movie, not the Johnson county jail. Instead of romantic jail breaks and rebellious prisoners, Sheriff Don McComas, who at 34 has been a peace officer for more than 11 years, specializes in dull routine and contented inhabitants in his jail cells.

As the sheriff sits at his desk in the "lobby" of the jail, a squad car from the local police station stops in front.

"New Customer"

"A new customer," he grins as two patrolmen lead in a surly, handcuffed boy of 16 accused of stealing a car.

"Right here, sonny," says McComas pressing the boy's grimy fingers on an ink pad. The fingers are then pressed on a numbered file card bearing identification data of the arrested boy. Next, the new prisoner is photographed, first a profile and then a front view.

Look at the Birdie

Sheriff McComas is unlike most photographers, however, he doesn't urge his subject to smile. He doesn't have time, because taking pictures of all persons convicted of felony, an indictable misdemeanor or a liquor violation is a lengthy task.

After being "mugged," the boy is led upstairs where there is a group of six cells, each designed to accommodate four prisoners. Opening an automatic locking device, inserting an inch-long key and pushing forward a huge lever, Sheriff McComas opens the doors of a double-locked row of eight cells.

"Hi, Don"

"Hi, Don," greet five men who sprawl at ease on canvas hammocks.

"Hi," greets the sheriff. "Was there anything about me in the paper this morning?" inquires a boy of 18. "Nope," says the sheriff, "not a thing." The boy looks disappointed.

Speaking in a voice loud enough for all the prisoners to hear, Sheriff McComas points out that through improvements made in the county jail in 1934, escape is virtually impossible. Window weights are replaced with light steel rollers. All removable rivets are electrically welded, and the automatic locking device makes it impossible for anyone but Sheriff McComas or Deputy Sheriff Preston Koser to operate locks on individual cells.

In the six cells on the first floor are kept all prisoners convicted of minor offenses and serving short terms. Here also are housed prisoners, whose sentences are too long for accommodation in the city jail.

On the second floor are prisoners awaiting trial and those convicted of more serious offenses. A special section of three cells can accommodate 12 women. Here the blankets are gayer than on the men's hammocks, and there is a mirror, toilet soap and even a piece of lipstick left by a departed female "guest." While the jail is not full, male prisoners are allowed to remain together and single cells are left open.

Quite an Arsenal

Behind double-iron doors downstairs is a cupboard containing weapons for McComas and his staff. They aren't used often, Sheriff McComas explains, but they're all ready, just in case. There are three sawed-off shot guns, a dangerous looking sub-machine gun, tear gas and tear gas bombs. "Human restrainers" are kept in hand for insane prisoners. These consist of leather straps for pinning the arms and legs of unruly prisoners to a chair or bed.

Behind the barred doors are men playing cards and reading magazines. One is singing a popular song. Another is brushing his teeth. Still another, the new prisoner, is taking a bath in one of three porcelain tubs, a procedure required of every new prisoner.

Sniff! Sniff!

The sheriff sits down for a moment and files the finger prints of his latest "guest." There is the noise of rattling dishes from the kitchen back of the jail where the sheriff and his wife live in six modern rooms. Delicious odors are emanating from the kitchen.

"Almost dinner time," smiles the sheriff.

It means the common notion of prisoners dining on bread and water is entirely wrong.

"They eat the same food my wife and I do," asserts Sheriff McComas. "Usually it's roast pork or beef, potatoes, a vegetable and sometimes a dessert. My wife's about the best cook there is too."

Even Get Seconds!

Dinner is served in the evening at 5:30 or 6. The prisoners are each served on individual aluminum trays and cups. There is no pushing or scrambling. Everyone knows there is enough for all. Sometimes there is a second helping.

In the evening the prisoners read play cards until 9 and retire at 9:30. Lights are out at approximately 10 o'clock.

"I usually go to bed at about 11 o'clock," says Sheriff McComas. "But I keep a gun handy, and there's a telephone at the head of my bed. One thing I've learned in my 11 years as policeman and sheriff, and that is 'You never can tell.'"

Cold Chills Arise Of Middle - Aislars To Be for January

If the small number of licenses issued in the county clerk's office at the court house is any indication, cold weather is not favorable for matrimony.

Since the first of the year the number of licenses issued has been considerably less than for the same period a year ago. Justice of the Peace J. M. Kadlec announced he has had fewer marriages during 1936.

Justice Kadlec reported only two marriages during January and none so far this month.

In the clerk's office during January and the first 20 days of February in 1935 there were 35 licenses issued, while for the corresponding period this year only 23 have been issued.

Attention, Hollywood!

IF TENOR Joseph Bentonelli ever gets into the movies, as he conceivably might, he can set the script writers to work on his own life. At the University of Oklahoma he was a member of the glee club. He took a degree; then studied under Jean de Reszke, peerless among teachers. Like all standard movie operatic tenors, he went to Italy for further study. There plain Joe Benton, Oklahoma, U. S. A., became Joseph Bentonelli.

Bentonelli in Manon.

He made a debut at Bologna, heard the applause of Italians, and returned to the United States to plod forward for the Big Chance.

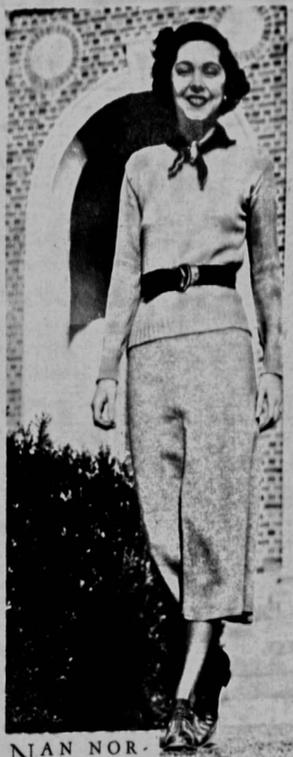

He sang in Philadelphia, but the first electric moment came in Chicago. He was asked to substitute for Mario Chamlee in Manon in the Chicago Opera House. The house echoed to its ornate rafters. Bentonelli auditioned at the Metropolitan in New York, and was put on the waiting list. It chanced that he was in Director Tenor Edward Johnson's office when word came that Richard Crooks was too ill to sing in Manon the next night. Bentonelli became insistent, poured out an aria from Manon, and sang himself into the role. The Met debut was a triumph. Add love interest to all this, and Joe Benton of Oklahoma is set for the movies.

A Major Is a Colonel

THE STORY has it that Jack Major, now good enough to appear on both networks as a singer, once was good enough to outwit Irvin S. Cobb on a Kentucky golf course. A rascally caddy, he pocketed Cobb's golf balls when they fell into the rough; then sold them back to the humorist. Cobb discovered the trickery, but had taken a liking to the bright youngster who had learned through necessity to live by his wits.

Under maturer guidance, Jack joined the Y. M. C. A. and a church.

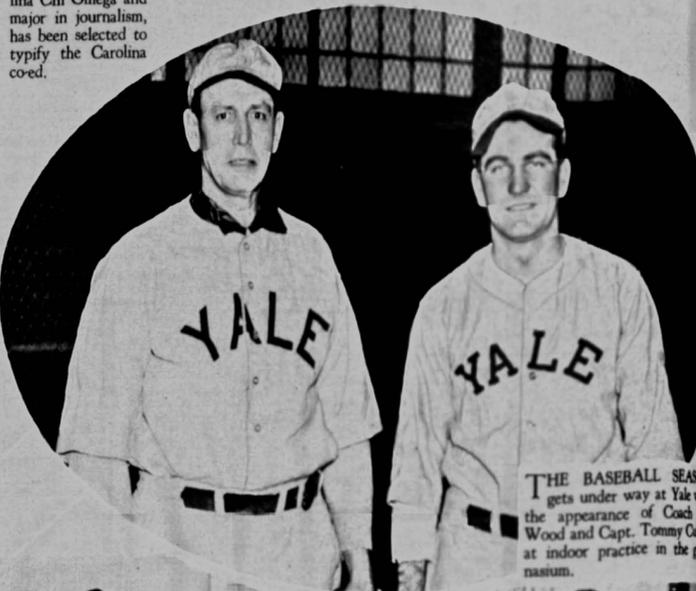

When the church's minister took a teaching job at Rice Institute, he brought Jack along to college. Irvin S. Cobb paid the bills. Like Joe Bentonelli, Jack sang in the college glee club, but he had no aspirations toward the classical. When a local theater manager asked him to whistle, yodel, and sing on a local stage, he did so with alacrity. The encouragement he received induced him to leave college. Now he whistles, yodels, and sings over two networks, and has received his state's conventional, if monotonous blessing by being created a Kentucky colonel.

The device is set by placing the weighted ink bottle attached to the string behind the clock. A lever arm attached to the clock pushes the weight through a hole in the base, thereby tripping the trigger that does the dirty work. Foreign Secretary Lays Down Proposal Of Collective Security; Reassures Germany

LONDON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Anthony Eden laid down a plan today for a universal system of "collective security" in his maiden speech as foreign secretary to the house of commons, but failed to satisfy government opponents, on the more immediate question of an oil embargo against Italy.
Supplementary estimates for British's fighting services, totaling 7,811,000 pounds (about $39,655,000) was approved by the house, which defeated labor amendments, urging their reduction, by large margins.
Before packed galleries, including European diplomats, the erstwhile "white knight of Geneva" staunchly defended rearmament and emphasized that Great Britain must be strong and fearless in taking the leadership to prevent a world war.
Objective
"Our final objective," he told the tense house, "must be a world wide system of collective security which embraces all nations in an authority which is unchallenged and unchallengeable."
In what was interpreted as an effort to reassure Germany, Eden declared "the British government will have no lot or part in encirclement."
"France's foreign policy is based on the encirclement of Germany by a 'ring of steel' of allied power."
Nothing Definite
Eden sidestepped a definite commitment of an oil sanction, which caused immediate criticism of his speech as vague. His address was the subject of frequent interruptions.
The United States' policy toward an oil embargo was frequently mentioned by government opponents, who argued that Great Britain as the league must first set an example if they wanted support from across the Atlantic.
