FIRE RAVAGES INSANE HOSPITAL

EXTRA

$200,000 Blaze Rages Unchecked In Mt. Pleasant

BULLETIN
MT. PLEASANT, Aug. 11—At 5 o'clock this morning, Dr. Leonard Ristine, superintendent, cancelled all orders for trains to transport the patients to other state institutions. All those patients who cannot be housed at the hospital will be taken to the dormitories of Iowa Wesleyan college at Mt. Pleasant temporarily.

(Daily Iowan City Editor)

MT. PLEASANT, Aug. 11—A $200,000 fire which completely destroyed the entire center section of the main building broke out at 10:15 last night at the state hospital for insane here. The fire was partially under control at 4 o'clock this morning.

One thousand inmates of the hospital were taken from the building to temporary headquarters. A hasty survey early this morning revealed that an estimated 16 to 20 patients—none of them believed to be dangerous—escaped. Mt. Pleasant police had recovered two of the patients by 4 o'clock.

Dr. L. P. RISTINE
Hospital Director

The fire, which broke out in the main amusement hall, was discovered at 10:30 last night by one of the 23 convicts from the state penitentiary at Ft. Madison. An alarm was immediately sounded, and more than 100 employes housed in the burning section of the building were rescued by ladders.

Patients Kept Under Guard

The fire, of unknown origin, destroyed the entire administrative headquarters, the stores, women employes' headquarters, the kitchen and a dining hall used for the feeding of more than 1,000 inmates. The entire interior of the center section was gutted and part of the walls had caved in.

More than 450 women patients were kept under guard on the east lawn of the hospital grounds, the remainder being kept in the women's infirmary and the tuberculosis hospital.

Eight hundred and twenty-five men were being housed in the men's infirmary.

Most of the inmates will be taken back into the main building by 10 a.m., Dr. Leonard Ristine, superintendent, said this morning. Temporary headquarters will have to be found for some 200 patients.

Provisions Are Completely Burned

Provisions for the entire hospital—comprising 1,625 patients and about 500 employes—were completely burned. More food and supplies have been ordered, but probably will not arrive until late afternoon or evening.

There was little confusion on the grounds. The 5,000 spectators on the grounds joined hands and formed a single lane while the patients were marched to the lawn, most of them half clothed.

All of the employes in the western wing of the building were taken from the building on two extension ladders found by the convicts.

In the height of the excitement, the elevator in the wing—carrying three convicts and seven nurses—burned out and was stalled between the second and the third floors of the six-story structure. One of the convicts crawled to the third floor, helping the rest to the landing.

150 Firemen Battle Blaze

About 50 firemen and almost 100 volunteers were fighting the fire. The Burlington, New London and Mt. Pleasant fire departments were on hand.

Trains were ordered this morning from Burlington, about 24 miles from here. More than 500 patients may be taken to other insane hospitals in the state, at Independence, Cherokee, Clarinda and Woodward.

Railroad officials this morning said the trains were scheduled to arrive between 5 and 6 this morning, but that many of the patients may have to be taken in freight cars.

Patients Calm

"Most of the patients were calm during the entire time," Dr. Ristine said. "They were frightened, but even the most violent of them seemed so glad to be rescued that they forgot to act up."

One of the men—who had been in a strait jacket—was released from his room, but was found 10 minutes later still in the room—writing a letter.

The women — many of whom had been bedridden—were clad in nightclothes and kimonas and were laid on mattresses and sheets which had been thrown from the windows of the burning building. Only a few tried to escape.

Some of the women believed the fire had been an "act of God." "Can we go home now?" they asked nurses.

Doctors were kept busy treating first aid cases, although not one of the 1,000 patients was severely burned.

The men were served coffee, furnished by Mt. Pleasant housewives, and the women were to be fed soup and coffee.

No decision had been made as to whether the hospital will be rebuilt. Dr. Ristine said he believed an action of the state legislature would be required to secure funds for the rebuilding.

Dr. Ristine, formerly medical advisor to the athletic department at the State University of Iowa here, left in 1932.

Ristine said this morning that 'I can't imagine how the blaze could have started. As far as I know there was nothing inflammable in the auditorium, but it might have been by spontaneous combustion."

Most of the part of the hospital which burned had been built in 1931.

Almost immediately after the discovery of last night's $200,000 blaze at the state hospital for the insane at Mt. Pleasant, more than 450 women patients were brought to the east lawn, where they will remain until they can be brought back into the main building.

Hans Muenzer To Join Music Staff

HANS MUENZER
—Joins Music Staff

Solo Violinist Assumes Duties September 1st

Succeeds Prof. Kendrie; To Direct University Chamber Groups

Hans Muenzer of Chicago, solo violinist and concertmaster, has been appointed associate professor of violin and chamber music in the music department, to succeed Prof. Frank Estes Kendrie who has resigned to accept the chairmanship of the music department at Carleton college, it was announced last night by the office of the president. Mr. Muenzer will assume his duties here Sept. 1.

Directs Chamber Group

In addition to teaching violin and chamber music, the Chicago musician will direct the university music chamber groups.

For five years Mr. Muenzer has taught violin and chamber music in the Chicago Conservatory of Music and for the last 10 years he has been concertmaster of the Chicago theater symphony.

Educated in Leipzig

The distinguished concertmaster was educated in Leipzig, Germany, under the personal tuition of the eminent violinist-composer, Prof. Hans Sitt, who presented Muenzer with a free scholarship for violin and all associated musical branches when he was 12 years old.

Commencing at the age of 16, he was for three years a member of the Gewandhaus orchestra under the direction of Arthur Nikisch. At 17 he was made concertmaster of the Conservatory orchestra and awarded the Mendelssohn prize from the city of Leipzig.

Becomes Concertmaster

After seven years of study he was graduated from the conservatory and became concertmaster of the Philharmonic society. At that time he organized the Muenzer Trio, which had just begun to make a name for itself, when John J. Hattstaedt, the late president of American Conservatory of Music, invited Hans Muenzer to teach violin and chamber music classes at the school in Chicago.

Five years later he became concertmaster of the Chicago theater symphony orchestra and he concertized throughout the country as soloist and with his Trio.

Stock Engages Him

After his first recital in Chicago, Frederic Stock, conductor of the Chicago symphony orchestra, engaged Mr. Muenzer to play the Paganini concerto in D major for two of the regular symphony concerts at orchestra hall.

Of his concerts various newspaper accounts have said: "Mr. Muenzer is a young man of attractive personality and genuine talent for the violin. He plays with breadth and vigor, has excellent technique and understanding of music." "Mr. Muenzer's playing is always the dignified and scholarly performance of a master musician and is ever characterized with good taste."

Mr. Muenzer is 36 years of age, married and has four children.

Fires Crackle Over 7 States

Roar Through Timbers Defying All Efforts To Control Them

By the Associated Press

Devastating forest fires crackled through timberlands of seven states and parts of Canada last night, defying efforts of thousands of trained and volunteer fire fighters in many sections to bring them under control.

A heavy fog checked a serious grass and brush fire near San Jose, Cal., and in Wyoming 2,000 weary foresters reported they had halted the advance of a fire that raced across 5,000 acres of jack pine forest to menace the town of Moskee.

But in northern Minnesota, where the flames wrought the greatest damage in 25 years, residents of two small communities were warned to be ready to flee their homes as the flames advanced steadily against the efforts of 1,500 men.

Prospects of cool weather brought some hope to weary foresters, but 3,500 CCC and WPA workers were mobilized, ready to join the flame fight on a moment's notice. Red Cross aid was rushed to stricken residents of the harassed region.

Six hundred men battled a flame from a peat bog to engulf 1,500 acres of second grade timber along the Canadian boundary of Idaho.

Wisconsin officials estimated 150 separate fires were burning in that state. Fear was expressed for the safety of 20 passengers aboard the motor boat "Faith" which left Portage, Mich., Saturday night. Coast guardsmen, plying relief boats from the fire menaced Michigan mainland, said they had not seen the boat.

Name of Actor Lends Comedy To Astor Suit

By the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Aug 10—The name of John Barrymore provided a whiff of comedy relief to a session of heavy drama today when Mary Astor testified that the great movie lover hurried straight to her "to tell his troubles" on that September day "when he arrived back from his famous trans-continental trip."

A smile broke over her face as she recalled and described it.

The movie actress obviously was alluding to Barrymore's celebrated flight from Elaine Barrie when, as "Caliban," he scrawled a vast zigzag across the continent from his erstwhile "Ariel."

Miss Astor was testifying in her suit to break the custody award given her ex-husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, of their four-year-old daughter, Marylyn.

While Miss Astor was testifying, an assertion that George S. Kaufman, noted playwright whose relations with her have been a prominent point in the hearing, had disappeared, came from A. P. Narlian, attorney for Dr. Thorpe.

A bench warrant was issued for Kaufman when he did not answer a subpoena at today's session.

Officials Unable To Establish Identity Of Decomposed Body

By the Associated Press

SIOUX CITY, Aug. 10—The enigma surrounding the finding of the badly decomposed body of a man in the Missouri river this morning continued to baffle Dakota county authorities tonight in their attempts to establish the identity of the victim.

After a post mortem examination tonight revealed a quantity of water and no air in the man's lungs, Malcolm Smith, county attorney of Dakota county, said the man probably had been murdered.

Dr. C. W. Neill, coroner's physician who conducted the examination, said that in all probability the man was alive when his body, weighed with stone was thrown into the river beneath the Nebraska approach of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad bridge spanning the river.

News Flashes

To Divorce Husing

RENO, Nev., Aug. 10 (AP)—Celia Ryland, pretty young Hollywood actress, said today she would file suit tomorrow for divorce from Edward B. (Ted) Husing, noted radio announcer now in Berlin to broadcast the Olympic games.

Miss Ryland, the former Frances Sizer of Savannah, Ga., would not comment on the divorce suit, which she said was contemplated "for very personal reasons."

She married Husing, who was divorced by his first wife, Helen, in Reno in 1934, last April 27 at Harrison, N. Y.

Scores New Deal

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Aug. 10 (AP)—United States Sen. Lester J. Dickinson, republican, of Iowa, scored what he described as the new deal's "economics of scarcity" in a broadcast speech delivered during the Council Bluffs centennial program today.

Citing examples from a list of American exports and imports to show that the standard of American living is dropping, Dickinson charged that if the trend continued "it would not be long before the standard of living on the American farm will be reduced to the standard of the European farm."

"The economics of scarcity has never worked in any country in which it has been tried. Crop curtailment is not a crop stabilizer," he said.

Dawes Surrenders

CHICAGO, Aug. 10 (AP)—Henry M. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil company and a brother of former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, surrendered today to U.S. Marshal William H. McDonnell in connection with his indictment with 83 other individuals and corporations on charges of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Dawes was released in $5,000 bond by U.S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, pending a hearing Aug. 14 on removal proceedings to Madison, Wis., where the indictments were returned.

3 Testify

TOLEDO, Aug. 10 (AP)—A physician, highway engineer, and two state highway patrolmen testified at a coroner's inquest into the death of Milo J. Konicek, and Mildred Kosar of Clutier, Aug. 4, that Homer Kepler, truck driver, was intoxicated.

Kepler's truck was in collision with the Konicek car.

Dr. C. J. Snitkay of Belle Plaine, who attended the injured, said that he had been asked by the county coroner to give Kepler tests for intoxication. He asserted Kepler's responses were those of "second degree alcoholism."

Russians to Take Off

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug. 10 (AP)—Two Russian aviators enroute to Moscow via the Arctic arrived unheralded here today from Bella Bella, B.C., where they were forced down Saturday.

The airmen, Sigismund Levanevsky and Victor Levchenko, immediately asked for weather reports, intending to take their pontoon-equipped plane to Juneau, original destination of the present flight from Seattle.

A strong tail wind aided the fliers on the hop from Bella Bella, isolated fishing settlement, and they landed here at 12:55 p.m. (2:55 p.m., Iowa City time).

Hughes in Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 10 (AP)—Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman flier, landed his "flying laboratory" transport plane at Wright field at 3:44 p.m. today (Iowa City time) after flying non-stop from Los Angeles, and made preparations for take off at 2 a.m., tomorrow for New York.

Five men accompanied Hughes on the trip, which required between 11 and 12 hours.

Hughes, who holds the Los Angeles-New York transcontinental record and the world land-plane speed record, was reticent concerning the flight. Landing here, he communicated with Maj. Gen. A. W. Robins, head of the materials division of the army air corps.

Red Cross Works To Decrease Motor Toll

IN THE battle to lessen the number of motor accidents—last year motor accidents claimed 37,000 lives—the Red Cross is establishing first aid highway stations throughout the nation.

It also plans to give first aid training to crews of state highway trucks and public utility groups and properly equip them, as part of an organization to complement the first aid stations. Thirty-two Delaware state highway maintenance trucks comprise the first unit of a Red Cross motorized highway patrol, with numerous groups in other states prepared to launch similar patrols under Red Cross jurisdiction.

In Johnson county this campaign has begun, the first highway first aid station having opened Saturday at Tiffin. A second station, at the Scott community center on U. S. highway 6 about nine miles from Iowa City, will be opened within a short time.

Don Davis, chairman of the first aid committee here, said:

"The establishment of these stations along heavily traveled roads will bring first aid treatment nearer the accident victim. So often when this assistance is desperately needed the nearest physician is miles away. The trained persons in charge of the station will be able to give adequate aid until a doctor can be called."

This project by the Red Cross is a very commendable one and will undoubtedly serve to cut down the appalling motor fatality toll.

End Now In Sight

WITH THE announcement yesterday of the capture of 13 rebel strongholds, even the most optimistic fascist sympathizers of the Spanish revolution cannot help but think that the inevitable end is now only a matter of days.

The significant fact is not that 13 rebel towns have fallen in the same day, but that every other fascist fort is exposed to the same fate with little better chance of warding it off. Now that the situation can be clearly viewed, it becomes obvious that the insurrection was ill-fated from the very start, or almost immediately thereafter.

The turning point, what there was of it, came two days after the beginning when armed townspeople and loyal police forces drove garrisons from Madrid and Barcelona, thus freeing the two great cities which control the country's political life.

But there were other factors, too, that left little doubt as to the final result. The government either kept or regained all the armament factories and the main auxiliary industries such as iron, steel and transportation, forcing fascists to rely on war supplies already in the hands of the army. When these supplies run out, the rebels will be up against it.

The revolutionaries also miscalculated as to the proletariat which they expected to remain politically divided. But the workers forgot their differences to unite unanimously behind the government. Part were armed to meet the revolted army and the remainder set to work so that the food supply could be maintained. In rebel territory, these workers have gone on a general strike so that the rebels will find themselves considerably embarrassed by inability to maneuver and to get necessary provisions.

Another hazard confronting the fascists is that if they leave their strongholds to advance on Madrid or to reinforce threatened positions, the workers will rise behind their backs and leave them without protection between two fires. Thus the revolted army is powerless to move, while daily its members become more and more demoralized after their early failure and the increasing scarcity of munition and food supplies.

At the same time, the new loyal army is increasing, entrenching and gaining fighting efficiency. Soon the remainder of the beleaguered fascist forts will be starved out, and with no chance to unite for a pitched battle, there can result only ignominous surrender.

The Spaniards, after all, are a humane and highly civilized people. Neither the rebels or the loyalists have interferred with the shipment of sherry to the United States.—The Evening Courier.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, in his capacity as public works administrator, and Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins are at loggerheads again.

"Again" isn't quite the right word to use. They never have been otherwise than at loggerheads, but they are involved in a fresh major engagement.

The treasury department, at President Roosevelt's request, is trying to arbitrate it. It is a safe bet that it cannot be compromised. PWA and WPA sound a good deal alike as initials, but they are poles apart translated into terms of Ickes and Hopkins respectively. A compromise between them means a compromise 100 per cent one way or the other.

THEIR JOINT SUM

Ickes and Hopkins jointly have $1,425,000,000 to spend on relief work.

But it was left to the administration to determine how much Ickes should have and how much Hopkins should have.

Now, Ickes' and Hopkins' relief philosophies differ.

Ickes holds that public works, even for relief purposes, ought to be permanent in character, not mere leaf raking. He considers boondoggling uneconomic—wasted "made work," as the socialists say.

Hopkins' reasoning is that permanent construction calls for large expenditures for the material that goes into it. Boondoggling, he argues, pays more immediate wages.

* * *

ARGUMENT FOR ICKES

Personally I am pro-Ickes.

The materials he requires for his permanent projects have to be produced, too. That makes employment for collateral workmanships. And, in the end, there's something to show for it. There's not much to show for leaf-raking.

Still, as Hopkins asserts, his kind of relief may be more "immediate."

Anyway, the administration, sympathizing largely with Hopkins, let Ickes have only $300,000,000 out of the $1,425,000,000.

ICKES BLOCKED

Ickes went to work with it.

He soon ran into this difficulty:

Every cent that he spends in wages must go to workers who were on the relief rolls.

Now, Ickes' projects call for many highly skilled laborers, and comparatively too few of them are on the relief rolls to meet with his requirements. He can get common labor, but not skilled labor. Consequently his projects are held up.

As news dispatchers express it, he "can't spend his $300,000,000."

It seems odd to say that a cabinet member with $300,000,000 to spend can't spend it.

A New Yorker At Large

By JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—Our duty would be left undone if we failed to report on the annual exodus from Manhattan, when New Yorkers abandon the city to visitors and unfortunate stay-at-homes and seek relief from summer heat and the traffic's din at the seashore or in the mountains.

About the daily round at the beaches we have already had our say and we know of no better way of reporting on life at the mountain inns than by picking up a little item from that esteemed journal of the entertainment world, "Variety," which was carried under the delightful headline:

'Mixing' a Must, Mixed Teams a Bust—'Life on the Borscht Circuit'

"Not satisfied with the entertainment they have, mountain hotels on the borscht circuit are instructing their agents (booking entertainment acts) to discontinue sending single women or mixed couples. The joints prefer roaming Romeos floating around to keep the femme guests interested.

"Hotels are always overboard on femme guests and want to equalize the situation as best they can. Dames having to look at each other all day find it a little difficult to stay on. . . Reason for female majority is that many go away for the season minus hubby, who continues working to keep her there. Also the stenogs' two weeks are usually made more intriguing by a little of that Don Juan attention.

"The bands and talent also get out and mix. This was frowned upon for some time, but things being what they are, the boys are now pinch-hitting on direct instructions from headquarters. . . "

New York is the city of strikes. There is never a day when you can walk more than a few blocks in any business area without seeing several placard bearing pickets announcing to the passing trade that the store, firm, shop or factory is unfair to its employes.

The latest strike has provided Manhattan with a laugh. . . it is the strike of exterminators. And now around many of the most hoity-toity hostelries, pickets walk bearing placards, "The Exterminators of (name of hotel) are on strike". . . and are the inn-keepers' faces crimson!

Down in 14th street, on the south of Union Square, a picket with a voice like a fog-horn combines a regular barker's spiel with the visual warning that the department store there is unfair to its employes. Whenever he sees a prospective customer examining the window display, he shouts his warning that the clerks selling whatever article is being examined do not know their business.

In Jackson Heights, a lone picket trudges daily before a two-chair barber shop, carrying a sign that informs the world that this shop is unfair to "its employes."

In West 52nd street, before a restaurant, pickets pack placards written entirely in Yiddish.

Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—A million and a half tourists come to Southern California annually. They all want to see what a studio looks like—inside.

Their lack of ingenuity is amazing. Few of them get past the gates. They don't come prepared. Here are some tips to tourists that ought to stimulate their imaginations:

JOE E. BROWN

Join a baseball club and contact Joe E. Brown. (Joe's a sucker for baseball teams. Always invites them in.)

Win a beauty contest. (They're always looking for talent.)

Get a letter of introduction from the manager of your theater. (The publicity boys will tear out more handfuls of hair when your letter is sent in. But you should worry—hair grows rapidly in these parts.)

Join a visiting admiral's party. (They always get in.)

Attend a convention in Los Angeles. (The studio may refuse individual customers, but they weaken when an army of patrons storms the gates.)

Call up Pat O'Brien and tell him you were a classmate at Marquette university. .

Get chummy with the butcher or the baker who sells to the studio commissary.

Change your name to Joan Crawford. Telephone Miss Crawford. She will invite you to traipse all over the M. G. M. lot. (NO, I don't have her phone number.)

Everyone of these methods has been tried—with great success.

How Common Diseases Of The Hair Are Treated

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE DISCUSSED previously this week the proper care of the hair and scalp, and the real remedies for their healthful preservation.

Dr. Clendening

This simple treatment will help to prevent the commoner disorders of the hair and scalp.

Probably the commonest of all is dandruff. It is in fact, so common that it is hard to say whether it is really a disease or simply the exaggeration of a natural condition. The evidence of dandruff is the fine white scales which can be seen in the hair, come off on the brush, and settle on the coat collar. These are simply the desquamated cells from the outworn upper layer of the skin of the scalp. Everybody has some of this. A mild seborchoic dermatitis or chronic inflammation of the grease glands of the scalp will cause an increase of this natural process of the falling off of the outer layer.

Most cases yield to frequent shampoos—every two or three days—with a soap which removes the maximum amount of oil. Resorcin is a remedy for the more severe cases.

Peculiar Hair Disease

Alopecia areata is a peculiar disease of the hair and scalp, an especial form of baldness. When fully developed, the head presents an unusual spotted appearance with round areas where the hair has disappeared, while elsewhere it is intact. It usually gets well by itself, although appropriate remedies will hasten the resolution. Some such remedies acquire a mighty reputation as remedies for true baldness. But just because they have cured a case of alopecia areata is no reason they will be potent on the old simon pure baldness. Which, incidentally, they are not.

This real baldness is something that is not pleasant for a health writer to discuss, but there is nothing hopeful he can say about it and still be honest. The condition affects almost exclusively men, and is almost certainly hereditary. Its ravages begin at about the age of 25, although it is not until 40 that the process stops. If anyone who is worried about becoming completely bald reaches the age of 40 with some hair, he need have no further worries. And that is about the only hopeful thing medical science can say on the subject.

Favus is a very distressing disease that acts, in its first stages, like dandruff, with scales forming on the scalp and dropping off. But, in fact, it is a much more serious condition, caused by a minute vegetable fungus which invades the hair follicles and destroys the hair. I have seen cases which the patient has allowed to progress until the scalp was covered with a dense crust, with only a few spears of hair, the patient being on the verge of despair. Unnecessary, because it is a disease that is very easy to cure with the X-ray and other methods, and after the fungus is destroyed the hair comes out again and returns to normal.

"BALI AND ANGKOR; OR LOOKING AT LIFE AND DEATH," by Geoffrey Gorer; (Little, Brown).

Geoffrey Gorer is one of the most refreshing combinations of impudence and astuteness the publishing business has turned up in a long while. He is not only impudent in small matters—he is impudent enough to write a book about Bali, Angkor, the Malay states and some other neighboring territories after only three months there, those being spent as a tourist.

He is astute enough to make the book good reading, too. He calls it "Bali and Angkor," and he fills it with a lot of fairly shrewd observation, and a good deal of flash and sparkle. To the man who likes the old fashioned and solid sort of travel book, based on long experience and careful assimilation of carefully checked data, Mr. Gorer will be merely an annoyance. To the general public anxious to read bright prose, he may be a joy.

For one thing, Mr. Gorer dislikes the Dutch. He thinks they are overrated as colonizers; he is not especially fond of any colonizing nation for that matter. He imagines the Dutch looking wistfully at the still untouched beauty spots of Sumatra, worrying because the hills "are still covered by uneconomic virgin forest instead of nice orderly plantations" and because the waterfalls are wasting their potential power.

It should be added that there is a strangely violent attack on Somerset Maugham in the introduction, and that there are a couple of extraordinary short stories in the text.

Blow by Blow in the PRESIDENTIAL ARENA

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

The Springfield Republican points out the singular fact that NOT A SINGLE CRITICISM is being leveled against President Roosevelt's conduct of foreign affairs during a most trying time in world affairs.

This record is unrivaled by any president in modern history. It is the real measure of Mr. Roosevelt's statesmanship.

He put a stop to Mr. Hoover's favorite game of meddling in Europe. He put a stop to Mr. Coolidge's favorite game of sending United States marines to collect debts for the bankers in South America. He has won the good faith and the respect of all countries.

The only definite foreign policy on which Governor Landon has expressed himself is the World Court—AND ON THAT ISSUE HE HAS COMPLETELY REVERSED HIMSELF IN THREE MONTHS.

And yet, as the Springfield Republican points out, the peace of the nation may hinge on the handling of foreign affairs during the next few years. Said the editorial:

"In this campaign one of the most be-damned presidents in American history does not draw a single shot from the batteries of the opposition parties and groups because of his handling of the country's foreign or colonial or Monroe Doctrine relations.

"One would not know from reading the platforms of the republicans, the socialists, the Lemke-Townsend-Coughlinites, the communists and the prohibitionists that the United States had any foreign interests or contacts.

ROOSEVELT UNCHALLENGED

"What do you think of it, Watson? Especially in times like these, with all the nations that count frantically arming, and with the roof of the world liable to blow off any minute?

"America is up against the question of whether Governor Landon is to be preferred in managing foreign relations."

A few months ago, Governor Landon said he looked with favor upon adherence to the World Court because the last three republican presidents—Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—favored adherence, and he wanted to advocate the same policy they did. This puzzling pronouncement was a pretty sentiment, but the country naturally wondered if Governor Landon formed all his political views on such will-o'-the-wisp reasoning.

LANDON POLICIES UNKNOWN

And then the republican convention adopted a platform at Cleveland unequivocally condemning adherence to the World Court, and Governor Landon promptly declared his unswerving allegiance to that doctrine. How he can advocate adherence and at the same time pledge himself against it is one of those puzzles that crop up in election campaigns.

Governor Landon's vague references to foreign affairs in his few speeches to date mean nothing. He has endorsed world peace—every one is for that. He speaks in glowing terms of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, negotiated by a republican administration, under which the nations of the world agreed to renounce war forever as an instrument of national policy. He forgets to mention that the nations have been slugging away at each other, in Africa and the orient, regardless of the pact and in violation of its express terms.

NATION NEEDS ROOSEVELT

There is nothing to indicate what course Governor Landon will pursue to avoid the yawning pitfalls that mark the path of foreign affairs. The American public is being asked to entrust the safety of the nation to a kindly, but inexperienced man, who, thrust forward suddenly into the arena of great events, has thus far failed to reveal what he proposes to do about foreign affairs—if elected.

Knowing the danger of a general war in Europe or the orient, the only safe course is to reelect President Roosevelt. His leadership has been tried and proved under the most difficult circumstances.

(Provided by the Republican National Committee)

Few women enter the field of finance to find their careers and fewer still are chosen by sovereign states to handle public funds. Yet that is the unusual record of Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, recently named western director of the women's division of the republican national committee.

Mrs. Reynolds, whose home is in Cambridge City, Ind., was appointed in 1926 to fill the unexpired term of her husband, the late Ben Urbahns, as treasurer of the state of Indiana. Convincing proof of her qualifications for this responsible post is the fact that she was twice reelected.

As director of the republican women's western division, Mrs. Reynolds brings to her post a mind trained to deal with public finance problems. In a stirring appeal to her assistants in the campaign, she said:

"Study the record of Mr. Landon as governor of Kansas and you will know what you may expect from him as president of the United States. At a time when other and wealthier states were desperately devising bond issues and special taxes to meet steadily mounting state deficits, he succeeded in balancing the budget for the state of Kansas.

"The most phenomenal accomplishment in this budget balancing program was the simultaneous reduction of property assessments and taxes," said Mrs. Reynolds. "He reduced the cost of state government $2,500,000 yearly and the taxation by local units was cut $7,000,000 annually.

"All of this was accomplished without inflicting hardship on the Kansas relief program, without curtailing any educational activities and without sacrificing state maintenance. What Mr. Landon has done for Kansas is a dependable indication of what he can do for the nation."

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

"The white flags mark the sailing course . . . and those two little poles over there? They mean good fishing.

"Probably somebody fished and fished all over the lake with no luck at all until he hit that spot. Maybe he got several good strikes about there. Must have calculated in his mind just where the spot was and, next time he came out, brought those poles with him and drove them down, so he'd have something to tie his boat to."

Advertisements mean to an experienced shopper exactly what those two poles mean to an experienced fisherman—"good fishing." Advertisements are markers of the best buys – they save "fishing all over the lake."

American Team Figures In Diving, Boxing Competition

BITS about SPORTS by BOB HOGAN

Jesse Owens of Ohio State will turn professional according to current rumors from official sources abroad. Owens feels that he has reached the pinnacle of track achievements as far as he is concerned and that his remaining year of collegiate competition would avail him nothing. That is all well and fine and here at Iowa sport fans will be glad to hear of that news from the Big Ten track standpoint. But, nevertheless, wouldn't it have packed that Iowa stadium to overflowing if Ohio State coaches would have clad Jesse in football regalia and sent the Ohio State eleven down to Iowa City to play tag with Ozzie Simmons and the rest of the Hawkeye football contingent. Of course this is only a dream but it is certainly fun to imagine the two "Dusky Demons" flitting up and down the Iowa gridiron.

* * *

From Berlin also comes the report that Sam Stoller, who had pointed for a berth on the 400-meter Olympic team, was ready to quit track competition because he was not allowed to run on the American team. After pointing for the event for over a year Stoller was replaced by Foy Draper whose time he had beaten in time trials in Berlin. Stoller will be a senior at the University of Michigan this year, and, like Owens, if he quits competition at this time, will be giving up another year of collegiate competition.

* * *

And, you might ask, why will Iowa fans be glad to hear of the news? Mainly because Coach George Bresnahan will have a fairly powerful contingent this year and Iowa's hopes in the 100 and 220 yard dashes is Capt. Andy Dooley who has faced both Owens and Stoller on various occasions. But Dooley just couldn't seem to keep that black dot from jogging along in front of his eyes. In 1935, at the Big Ten meet in Michigan, Dooley ran the 220 for the second fastest time turned in during the year. But that time was not fast enough to cope with the :20.3 turned in by Owens as a new world's record, in the same race.

* * *

Dooley holds the university record for the 100 with his :9.6 dash. He established this record in the dual meet with Minnesota in 1935. Competing in the Big Ten 100 yard dash event at Michigan last year, Dooley dashed off the 100 in :9.7 but still came in fourth. Owens, likewise set a record when he ran this race in :9.4. Grieve of Illinois was second to the Buckeye Bullet and Sam Stoller of Michigan nosed out Dooley for third. Dooley last year was pointing for the Olympics but several muscle injuries, occurring at different times during the season, dashed all hopes of his making the team. Now with his "injury season" out of the way, maybe Iowa's track captain will be able to lead the Hawkeye thinclads to a year of new records, if that will be possible after these record-breaking Olympics.

* * *

Again Iowa was overlooked by a famous son when Howard Stoecker, Mason City's all-state football and basketball star overlooked Iowa university and turned his eyes to the west, and to U.S.C. in particular. Howard Jones in football and Sam Barry in basketball will have charge of this husky Iowan from now on. At present, Stoecker is in Hollywood working in the same football picture with Jay Berwanger, Bill Shakespeare and the rest of the nationally famous stars of the gridiron.

Ketchell Wins

NEWARK, N.J., (AP)—Leon Ketchell, Giant Polish heavyweight, made his debut in an American boxing ring last night with a one-round knockout over Roy Bennett of Roslindale, Mass., at Meadowbrook field. Ketchell weighed 246, and Bennett 198.

Raiders Win

DAVENPORT, (AP)—The Cedar Rapids Raiders squared the series with Davenport—punching over a 4 to 1 verdict last night, behind the excellent hurling of Allyn Stout who limited the Blue Sox to four hits, one a fluke.

Americans Win 3 Diving Places

Degener, Wayne, Al Greene Win as Trials Begin

BERLIN, Aug. 10 (AP)—Apparently satisfied with dominating the picture for a full week, the United States turned over the Olympic spotlight today to the Japanese, the Dutch and the Peruvians.

Figuring prominently only in the springboard dive and the opening of boxing competition, the Americans otherwise were pretty well outclassed all along the Olympic sport front.

Capture 3 Firsts

Dick Degener of Detroit, Marshall Wayne of Miami and Al Greene of Chicago placed first, second and fourth in the diving competition with half the test completed but America's water poloists were eliminated by Belgium, 4-3, and her swimmers found the Japanese and the Dutch much too fast.

Olive McKean of Seattle and Katherine Rawls of Miami, Fla, finished sixth and seventh, respectively in the women's 100 meter free style final which was won by Rita Mastenbroek, Dutch ace, in 1:05.9, a new Olympic record. In the men's division, America's quartet of Charley Nutter, Ralph Gilman, Paul Wolf and Jack Medica qualified for the 800 meter relay finals by winning its heat in 9:10.4 but saw small hope of victory after a Japanese combination had set up a new Olympic standard of 8:56.1. Nor was there any cause for American joy in the 400 meter free style trials when John Macionis of Yale, Ralph Flanagan of Miami and Medica all qualified for the semi-finals but saw Shumpei Uto set up a new Olympic record of 4:45.5 and two other Japanese, Hiroshi Negami and Shozo Mankino qualify in fast time.

Peru Team Withdraws

Meanwhile Peru tossed a bombshell into Olympic circles by withdrawing its entire Olympic delegation after the international football federation had thrown out Peru's 4-2 victory over Austria in soccer competition last Saturday. The federation ordered the game replayed as a result of an Austrian protest that spectators had attacked members of the Austrian team as well as the umpire during the later stages of the match. Peru declined to replay the match and Austria was adjudged the winner by forfeit.

Boxing competition was marked by opening round victories for Louis Laurie, Cleveland flyweight, and Chester Rutecki, Chicago welterweight, and visitation of official wrath on Irving Pease, crack Canadian middleweight. Pease was shipped home as the competition got under way for failure to make the class weight.

Hockey Team Loses

America's field hockey team suffered another reverse, bowing to Hungary, 3-1, and made a poor showing in yachting competition, fast drawing to a close. Holland and Germany won the gold medals in the monotype and star classes as the six meter and eight-meter championships awaited the results of sail-offs today. The United States placed fifth in the final star class results; sixth in the six-meters and 10th in both the eight meter and monotype divisions.

The Americans likewise trailed in the 100 kilometer bicycle road race in which Frenchmen took the first two places. Basketball competition, where the United States is a top-heavy favorite, was at a virtual standstill since the day's program was devoted to second round consolation matches.

Jesse Owens May Turn Pro

BERLIN, Aug. 10 (AP)—Jesse Owens will turn professional if there is enough money in it, he announced today before leaving for Cologne, where he was scheduled to run tonight.

Already he has been offered a $25,000 contract to appear for 10 weeks with a California orchestra, and a flood of other offers indicated the boy who won four gold medals in the current Olympics will have no trouble turning his performances into cash.

Jesse, who will fly to Praha for an exhibition tomorrow and to Bochum for another on Wednesday, has the approval of Larry Snyder, his coach at Ohio State, in the professional venture despite the fact that Jesse still has one year of college elgibility left.

Cards Win 7-3 Game as Fist Fight is Halted

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 10 (AP)—A gesture of sportsmanship by Charlie Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, today probably cost his team the first game of an important series with the St. Louis Cardinals and, with it, the National league lead.

Dizzy Dean, permitted to continue in the game after a first-inning fight because Grimm intervened with the umpires, held the Cubs away from the plate in all but the sixth and eighth innings as he pitched the Cardinals to first place with a 7 to 3 victory.

Fireworks

Fireworks, expected in the three-game series between the two teams, flared after only two men were out. Billy Herman was at bat, with the call one and two, when Dean suddenly raced from the mound toward the Cubs' dugout.

Tex Carleton, slated to pitch tomorrow, leaped out and met Dean near the first base line. The two swung, clinched and scuffled until members of both teams, aided by umpires, separated them. After a brief delay, while tempers cooled, Dean resumed the mound to the amazement of 30,000 fans.

Grimm Pleads

Umpires later informed the press box Grimm had pleaded against expulsion of Dean and, at his insistence, they had permitted the ace pitcher to continue in the game. Carleton was also allowed to remain on the Cubs' bench.

With the near-riot over, the Cards went to work at once on Lon Warneke, scoring a run in the first inning and driving him to the showers in the third with a four-run splurge.

Kelly Oilers To Play Waterloo

Game Slated for Local Field Tomorrow Night at 8:30

Kelly Oilers will bring their I.S.A. season to a close tomorrow night at Kelly Field when they meet the John Deere team of Waterloo at 8:30. The hard hitting John Deere outfit is the only league team that the Oilers have failed to defeat this year. So far the Kellymen have taken three straight on the chin from the visitiors.

Nor will John Deere be the only Waterloo team that is to be faced tomorrow. In the afternoon the Oilers' engage the World's Champion Schuekei team at West Branch. The game will be a part of the program to be held in connection with the community picnic there.

The Oilers will have two good pitchers to rely upon in the I.S.A. game in Al Merry and Ivan Miller. Opposing them, in all probability, will be Carl Einwalter. Einwalter has proved to be no particular puzzle for the Oilers in the past and in view of the improvement in the Kelly outfit's pitching of late, the Iowa City team might have the edge. Since the Oilers have already sustained three straight defeats at the Waterloo team's hands this edge must necessarily be very slight.

Send Material, Prepare For 5th Annual Iowa Football Day

Both Charles S. Galiher, business manager of athletics, and Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, are finding plenty of work ahead of them before the opening day of football practice Thursday, Sept. 10.

Mr. Galiher and his staff of workers have been preparing for mail 3500 Iowa posters, which include the football schedule and prices of each game thereon. Also a large picture of Oze Simmons, superimposed on a picture of the Iowa stadium packed with a homecoming crowd add to the appearance of the poster, which has a yellow and black color scheme predominating.

Iowa Football Day

Professor Mahan is busily engaged in planning a statewide "Iowa Football Day." The event this year will be the fifth annual Iowa Football Day and alumni throughout the state will assemble at luncheon meetings Thursday, Sept. 10, the opening day of practice, to receive advance information about the schedule, the team, and prospects for the season. Also, the groups and alumni members attending these luncheons will listen to messages from the chairman of the board in control of athletics, the director, the Iowa coaches and Iowa players.

It is planned to have an Iowa Football Day luncheon in every county in the state this year. Plans are underway to have the service clubs in the county or in a city join together for a joint meeting to discuss Hawkeye football prospects and at the same time listen to the speeches from the key luncheon which will be held and broadcast in Iowa Union.

Key Luncheon

The luncheon which will be held at the Union plans to be one of the finest yet held. In addition to the football squad and coaches, those present will include: the board in control of athletics, members of service clubs, civic groups and alumni, sport announcers from several radio stations, sports writers from Iowa dailies, and "I" men.

The exact time of the key luncheon in Iowa City has not yet been set. It is necessary to arrange a time that will be in accord with the four radio stations that plan to carry the program. The stations that will cooperate with university officials in carrying the program to every home in the state are: WSUI, WHO of the Central Broadcasting company, and KRNT and WMT of the Iowa Broadcasting company.

Pinkie George, Iowa boxing promoter, is excited about a new fighter. The "find" is Bob Venner, Nebraska school teacher.

Coach Cormack Announces Opening City High Practice

Kistler Must Rebuild Team

Only 5 Lettermen Will Return to U. High For Football Season

The 1935 conference champs of the Eastern Iowa Eight football circuit will begin practically from scratch in practice drills which will begin about the 7th day of September on the University high practice field.

After seeing his team sweep all opposition in the conference last season, Coach Joy Kistler of the University high school will have but five returning lettermen with which to form the framework of what he hopes will be another Little Eight conference winner.

3 Linemen

A guard, a tackle, an end, and two halfbacks form the skeleton of what originally was one of the finest elevens yet produced under Kistler's regime at the river institution. Shebetka, guard, Bob Carson, tackle, Ted Hinman, end, Orville Schnoebelen, halfback, and Capt. Ralph Wombacker, also a halfback, are the five returning lettermen available for the 1936 campaign which will include seven games, four of which will be held in Iowa City.

Still a month remains before the season will officially get underway as far as practice sessions are concerned and it is still a trifle early to predict who will play where but one thing is certain—only a few tried and true "vets" will be on hand.

New Prospects

Among the more prominent new prospects will be: Hamilton Ries, sub-center last year who should prove valuable this season; Harold Campion, a 155-pound end with some past experience; Harv Wyjack, a shifty but small halfback, and also the backfield might find Shebetka in the fullback post.

The Blue eleven will meet Kalona, St. Pat's of Iowa City, Mt. Vernon, and West Branch on the local gridiron and will trek to West Liberty, Monticello and Tipton during the 1936 warfare.

Metcalfe Beats Jesse Owens in 100-Meter Dash in Exhibition

COLOGNE, France, Aug. 10 (AP)—Jesse Owens and John Woodruff, Olympic champions, were defeated tonight in an international track and field meet before 35,000 spectators, Owens by Ralph Metcalfe, Chicago, in the 100 meters, and Woodruff by Gerald Backhouse of Australia in the 800 meters run.

Metcalfe won the 100 meters in 10.3, equalling the world record. Owens in second place, was timed in 10.4; Erwin Gillmeister of Germany was third and Bunta Suzuki of Japan fourth.

Backhouse was timed in 1:54.5 in the 800. Harry Williamson, High Point, N. C., was third, and Woodruff, the favorite, sixth.

Seeded Stars Survive East Tennis Finals

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP)—Two minor upsets marked the third day's play in the eastern grass court tennis championships today but none of the seeded players were eliminated as Alice Marble of Palm Springs, Cal., led the women's field into the quarter final round while the men players wound up their first and second round battles and most of the second-round matches.

Robert Harmon of Berkeley, Cal., an unknown so far as the big eastern tournaments are concerned, sprang both of the day's surprises, eliminating a pair of well-known southern players to reach the third round along with such seeded favorites as Don Budge, Bitsy Grant and John Van Ryn.

Football Drill Set for Sept. 1

Six Lettermen, Eight Experienced Men Expected Back

Led by six returning lettermen and eight other candidates who can boast of varsity experience, City high's 1936 football squad will assemble for its initial workout Sept. 1, it was announced yesterday by Coach Herb Cormack. Equipment will be issued to all candidates Aug. 31 at the school gym.

One of the new features of City high's football setup will be the inclusion of a full sophomore schedule of six games. The varsity will have their hands full taking care of nine opponents without a single week end's rest. Coach Cormack urges that all boys desiring to play this year report the first day of practice. This will be necessary if the varsity is to be whipped into shape for the first game, which will be held Sept. 14. He especially desires that all eligible boys report for the sophomore eleven. Cormack states that plenty of suits will be available for soph prospects who wish to prepare themselves for future varsity work.

Six Lettermen

The six returning lettermen, led by Capt. Jens Norgaard, are counted upon to form the nucleous for the eleven which will succeed last year's outstanding outfit. The lettermen include two ends, Capt. Norgaard and the veteran Al Miller; two tackles, Woody Maher and Kenneth Moss; one guard, Bill Meardon, and one back, flashy Keith Hora. Hora will provide the spark for a backfield which will be small but very speedy. Present plans call for a modified five man backfield.

Bierman Will Coach Collegiate Eleven

CHICAGO, Aug. 10 (AP)—Bernie Bierman, whose mighty Minnesota elevens have swept all opposition aside for the last two seasons, will direct the college All Stars against the Detroit Lions, champions of the professional football world, at Soldier field Sept. 1.

Bierman was elected to the office of head coach in the third annual poll conducted by the Chicago Tribune by a margin of 1,088,010 points over Notre Dame's Elmer Layden, who will serve as one of his assistants. The other members of the collegians' board of strategy will be Alvin (Bo) McMillin of Indiana, Lou Little of Columbia, and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, who followed in that order in the poll.

Iowa City Wins

Iowa City's net team made a successful invasion of the Cedar Rapids stronghold Sunday afternoon coming out on top with a six match to three victory. The Iowa City contingent won three of the six singles matches and swept the three doubles encounters. Cline, Okerbloom, Swenson, Keeler, Travis and Fitzgerald carried the colors of the local team.

THE CAMDEN RUBY MURDER

by ADAM BLISS

COPYRIGHT—RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 49

IN FRONT of the Criminal Courts building, Van Every was waiting in a taxi. He joined Keyes and me at the door. Keyes growled at him uncivilly as we went up in the elevator. The detective's face was forbidding. He was furious at Mrs. Bryce, and made no secret of it. She had outwitted him, and Keyes was not used to being outwitted.

When we were settled in his office, Van Every announced that he had been waiting for us for half an hour. He had recognized Keyes' car in front of Mrs. Bryce's apartment, and thought that sooner or later we would come here.

Seeing Keyes dolefully staring at nothing but the surface of his desk, the older man pulled his flask from his pocket and going to the water cooler took several paper cups which he filled with whiskey. Keyes drained his at one draught, and as Van Every had left his flask standing on the desk, calmly helped himself to another drink.

"Good liquor, Van Every," he said. His humor was better already.

I also poured myself another. It was good liquor, but then Van Every's was the best always.

The neatly embossed V. E. was staring me in the face as I quaffed this second drink. He had had it a long time. I remembered in Florence he had poured me innumerable drinks from it. Might not be the same. Perhaps one like it. Thicker and heavier than the new flasks, but a man as old as Van Every liked old things, belongings he was familiar with. Like this flask for instance, habit. I knew essentially Van Every was a creature of habit. I myself was getting that way.

Although Keyes and Van Every didn't take a third, I did. I was tired, and already my fatigue was leaving me. The liquor was mellow, easy to take.

"I'll send you over a few quarts tomorrow," Van Every smiled, as he snapped down the clasp of the flask, first offering me another drink which I refused.

"Please, if it's the same as this."

"I should have done it days ago—but with everything else I forgot," he apologized. Then he turned to Keyes, "Why do you persist in suspecting Edith Bryce?" he asked abruptly.

"How do you know I do?"

"Because tonight she told me she knew you suspected her."

"Well, then I'll tell you why. Wednesday afternoon—Laura Randall visited Edith Bryce. As you know, Miss Randall died Wednesday just before 6."

"Just because Miss Randall visited Mrs. Bryce is no sign——"

"Van Every, listen to this. Mrs. Bryce attended Miss Younger's performance Monday night!"

"Of course! I saw her there, but that makes no difference——"

"It makes a lot of difference to me. Other suspicious circumstances have been connected with Mrs. Bryce. What they are I can't tell you now——"

"I'd know, if she had done it. I tell you I would. I think a great deal of her—and I can't bear to have anyone suspect that she—is the fiend—Keyes, don't you see? She couldn't have done these things."

"Can you tell me exactly where she was when both murders were committed?"

"No—but she can."

"She had a chance tonight, and she refused." Keyes' lips closed in a straight thin line.

"She's very difficult to handle. I know that. You approached her the wrong way. If you'll let me go to her and ask her——"

"You may do whatever you choose."

Van Every nodded, and I knew from the firm set of his face that he would ask Mrs. Bryce just those questions. "You aren't going to—" he paused.

"Arrest her? Not yet. I've no case against her yet. I hear she is planning to leave for Florida. You'll explain to her that she cannot go."

"I'll see that she does not go. She is a difficult woman, Keyes. Especially when you don't understand her. She was probably very angry tonight. I know she was, in fact, when she saw your car out there. You have to handle her carefully—I'll warn you——"

"Thanks," Keyes laughed. He knew, and I knew. Mrs. Bryce was a difficult woman. It would be no easy thing getting a confession from her.

"You'll let me know," Van Every begged, "if you are going to arrest her?"

"So you can warn her? I'm afraid not."

"I promised you she should stay in the city. That is all I can do. You can trust me, because I'm positive she's innocent." After this Van Every left, asking me when I got to the hotel to look in on Joyce and phone him that she was all right. He had gone up to the hotel just before coming to Keyes' office, and Foster was still there, Mrs. Sumner, chaperoning, of course.

With a sigh, Keyes locked the office, and we started away. He dropped me at the hotel, where I got my new key from the clerk. Going up in the elevator, I blessed Van Every again for the three drinks. At the fifth floor I got out, and softly tapped on Joyce's door. Mrs. Sumner answered, dressed in her kimono. Miss Joyce was getting ready for bed. I insisted on seeing her, and Joyce joined us at the door, telling me Allan had left about 15 minutes before. They had planned the wedding, and drawn plans for their new house. She giggled when she said at last that was done. Perhaps the necessity for keeping her in hiding would be off tomorrow night, and she and Allan could dance.

I heard the door lock as I left for my own rooms around the corner. The halls were dimly lighted, and I didn't see the man lounging near my door until I had my key in the lock.

"Mr. Maughan?" a hoarse whisper made me look around. His face was in the shadow, but I did not know him, I was sure of that.

I admitted to being Maughan.

"I've been waiting for you for hours. I must see you!" His voice shook with excitement. I motioned him into the room and turned on the light. When the strong glow from the central chandelier touched his face, I knew it was familiar to me. I seldom forget faces. This one I remembered dimly. Then when his hat came off I knew. His hair was short cropped. It was Ward Van Every!

I looked at my visitor curiously. There was not the slightest likeness to Dow Van Every about him—rather a likeness to Joyce. I saw in his eyes the same vivid love of life, more subdued perhaps, but still there. The same graceful curve of the eyebrows.

Dow Van Every was taller, more strikingly handsome with his silvery hair, and erect, rigid shoulders.

Ward was stooped, thinner than his brother, his face rather emaciated, pallid—the prison color. His hair, which must have been blond, was a mottled gray now, what there was of it. He seemed strong, though, for all this pallor. I remembered that Warden Lawn had said he exercised rigorously in prison.

His eyes, Joyce's eyes, although not so blue as hers, brightened eagerly as he sat down.

Seventeen years in prison. I shuddered when I thought of it. How long must 17 years be when one was counting the hours, the minutes? A lifetime behind bars. And Ward had been an excellent prisoner. No black marks to his name. Free now, because of his conduct.

I passed him some cigars, which he refused, taking some of his own cigarets in preference. As I kept the cigars only for my guests, I took and lighted one of my own cigarets, too.

"You'll think it strange—I came to you," he hesitated, and looked toward the door. Because he seemed to wish it, I went to it and locked it, putting the key in my pocket. He was easier after this.

I waited patiently for him to continue, but now that he was here, in my room, and I was with him, he appeared not to know what to say. I felt sorry for the man, and tried to make him feel at ease. I chatted on about the weather, about everything except the double tragedy until he got hold of himself again.

"You'll think it strange," he started again when I paused significantly, "that I came to you. But I didn't want to go to Dow—I couldn't—he would feel too poignantly the danger I'm in. It would worry him too much, just to have me here in the city. I don't dare to go to Captain Keyes, who is conducting the investigation; I'd be in jail in two minutes. I read in the papers—I read every edition—that you were a friend of Dow's. You were there that night, when the actress was—murdered." He leaned back, weak with his effort of the last word. It must be a terrible word to him. Murder. Seventeen years in prison for it.

After a while he continued. "No, I couldn't go to Captain Keyes. He wouldn't understand. You—from the stories in the paper—you might. I've been hiding now since Monday night, Tuesday morning, in fact. I wanted to come out to tell what I know, but I didn't dare. Not to the police anyway. I've come tonight to ask you to help me. I didn't want to leave Warden Lawn at first—he was so kind to me, but he insisted. This time, they wouldn't give me life. I'd get—the chair. I've lived in horror of it since the trial—so many years ago——

"I'm not making myself plain—I'm so mixed up—you'll excuse me. I didn't intend to hide until I read the papers Tuesday. I didn't sleep all night. Worried and everything. My affairs principally, and what I was to do about them. I bought the paper, an extra early Tuesday morning when I was walking the streets. Then I realized what danger I was in—being near the house the night of the—tragedy." He hadn't said the word he hated this time. "You see?"

"I see," I said as kindly as I could. He would get on with his story eventually. I saw that, and I could afford to be patient.

Senators Trim Yanks in 13 To 4 Ball Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—After waiting all season to score a victory over the Yankees in New York, the Washington Senators accomplished the trick today by pounding three pitchers for 18 hits and a 13 to 4 triumph.

As Jimmy DeShong, ex-Yankee, tamed his former mates with an eight-hit pitching performance, one of the blows being Lou Gehrig's 35th homer of the season, the Senators had such a field day at bat that every one of them got one or more hits. Only Travis failed to cross the plate with a run.

Buddy Lewis really broke up the game in the second inning when he knocked Red Ruffing out of the box with a home run with two on, a blow that put the Senators ahead to stay.

The 18 Senator hits were good for a total of 28 bases, and the barrage gave DeShong his 13th victory of the season. With the rest of the American league, however, the damage wasn't noticeable as the Yankee lead over the second place now stands at 11½ games.

Bees Win 9 To 7 Battle At Phil's Expense

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 (AP)—Boston's Bees came from behind with a three-run rally in the eighth today to hand Philadelphia its eighth straight defeat, 9 to 7.

In the winning inning, Lopez reached first on Norris' error and second on Weir's sacrifice. Urbanski walked and Jordan doubled to center, scoring Lopez. Berger was purposely passed, filling the bases, and Cuccinello responded with a single that sent Urbanski and Jordan over with the clinching runs.

Giants Lose To Brooklyn in 6 To 5 Tussle

BROOKLYN, Aug. 10 (AP)—A two-run uprising that carried them from defeat to victory in the ninth inning gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 6 to 5 triumph over the Giants today, nipping the New York winning streak at seven games.

After tossing away a three run lead to go into the final inning a run behind, the Dodgers settled it after one man was retired. With Coffman on the mound, Hassett and pinch hitter Gautreaux singled and Lefty Al Smith replaced Coffman. Eddie Wilson scored Hassett with a single that tied the score. Lonny Frey followed with a grounder to Bartell, who tried to nip Wilson at second. Too late, Whitehead attempted to catch Frey at first but threw wildly and Gautreaux scored the winning run.

Demons in Lead

OMAHA, (AP)—The Des Moines Demons bounced back into the second half Western league scramble last night by defeating Omaha 5 to 3, but the win may prove costly.

Cowboys Win 7-6

SIOUX CITY, (AP)—The Cowboys rallied in the last three innings last night to nose out Waterloo in the second game of the series, seven to six.

BIG SIX

By the Associated Press

A perfect day at bat, three for three, hiked the unofficial batting average of Johnny Mize, young St. Louis Cardinal first base star, eight points yestreday to .379, increasing his lead in the National league hitting race and tying with Lou Gehrig of the Yankees for second place in baseball's Big Six.

Earl Averill of Cleveland, the pace setter at .382, was idle along with several other leaders. Gehrig, getting two hits in four attempts, lifted his average one point.

An official correction reduced the hit total of Luke Appling, White Sox star, from 137 to 136, cutting his average three points to .377 but he ranked fourth among the Big Six leaders, which follow:

Graduate Gets Scholarship In Chemistry

Florence Olson of Beresford, S.D., has been awarded a $300 scholarship for graduate work in the University of Iowa chemistry department.

The scholarship was given her by the Chemical foundation, an organization for women chemists under the auspices of the American Chemical society. It will enable her to continue a study of infra-red spectra in solutions which she is doing for her Ph.D. degree.

A graduate of the University of South Dakota, where she also received her M.A. degree, Miss Olson was a graduate student, and a graduate assistant in the chemistry department here last year. Under the direction of Prof. James N. Pearce she has been doing work in physical chemistry. This summer she is in Omaha, Neb., doing chemical work at an industrial plant.

Return Clark Girl Today

Florence Clark, 18-year-old Iowa City girl found Saturday at Custer, S. D., after a disappearance of nearly six weeks, is to be returned here today, according to word received last night by her father, C. F. Clark.

The girl was taken to Hot Springs, S. D., from Custer City for observation. Her mother and brother left Iowa City Sunday evening for Hot Springs.

Editor Explains Sewage Plant Rental Criticism

By MERLE MILLER
(Daily Iowan City Editor)

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of four articles dealing with the Iowa City sewage disposal plant—at present the center of much dispute and criticism. The first article explained the background of the controversy. This article will deal with rates charged for sewage disposal treatment.)

Some 4,000 Iowa Citians are paying bills totaling $2,400 monthly for sewage disposal treatment. Some of them are objecting. Some are paying. Some are not.

Saturday, delinquent sewer rental accounts for about 550 Iowa City properties will be submitted to County Auditor Ed Sulek. The rentals total $2,700, and are for all unpaid rentals prior to June billings. Amounts will be certified as lien against the property of the users.

Behind these bills lie answers to much bitter criticism of the sewage plant. Most of these bills are unpaid, not because the user has no money on hand. Neither is non-payment because of carelessness. In many cases bills are left delinquent because users consider them unfair.

Amounts are not great. On a residential property the average bill is about 41 cents a month. In Iowa City as a whole the average bill—including businesses—averages 60 cents monthly.

The criticisms are for deeper reasons than the amounts alone. Many object to methods of collection.

Basis for Rentals

Rentals are based on the amount of water used on the property. The sewer rate is determined on a basis of normal water consumption and a financial program aimed to meet operating expenses and retire the bonds in about 20 years.

The plant, which has been in operation since February, was completed at a cost of $465,000. A PWA grant of approximately $125,000 was made; the remainder of the cost was met by a PWA loan, for which $1,000 bonds to mature in 1960 were issued.

Operating expenses of the plant—employing Supt. F. W. Lewis and two men on the day-time chift, one on each of the two other eight-hour shifts—and the office—employing Manager George Dohrer and two office girls—are met from sewer rentals also. Total operating expenses average about $1,000 monthly.

Of the $330,000 in bonds, more than $5,000 worth have already been retired. Bonds totaling $1,290 were retired on January 1, 1936. An interest payment of about half that amount was made on July 1.

No Profit

There is no profit. Alderman J. Van der Zee has said: "This publicly owned sanitary utility is being operated to raise enough income to pay off bonds and interest and the reasonable expense of operation—any considerable receipts over and above that amount indicate that sewer rentals are too high and should be reduced."

But whether the rates will be reduced is extremely doubtful. Sewage rental officials say their department can't survive on less money, that cutting expenses would mean cutting efficiency.

There have been many, however, who have suggested that some other method of figuring rental charges be attempted. Restaurant men have appeared before the present city council both individually and in a group protesting high rental charges.

They must pay steep rental charges because they pay on a basis of the water that they use—as figured from their total monthly water bill. They are objecting. They protest paying for treatment of clear water—such as from air-conditioning units, from their own wells, from clear water left in the glasses of patrons. They want a lower rate for this. So far they have been unsuccessful.

As yet there is only one restaurant in Iowa paying the three-cent rate—to be paid for pumping clear water. Every other establishment—and every home whether it is using clear water for watering lawns and gardens or not—is now paying the seven and one-half cent rate.

No Objection By Dairy Men

Dairy men as yet have not objected. They are, however, facing a 15 cent rate which may be charged packing plants and creameries which have heavy sewage requiring special treatment.

One dairy man is paying sewage rental which will total about $1,500 yearly. He faces a rate doubly high. Laundries and dry cleaners are paying the seven and one-half cent rate for rinse water which remains perfectly clear. They, too, are protesting.

A city councilman has advised the installation of sewage rental meters for such cases. The council has pointed out, however, that the total cost of 4,000 meters would be $40,000 or rental charges for a year and a half. The cost is prohibitive.

Some have advised commercial establishments to either install meters at their own expense or to connect their cooling systems to the storm sewers and thus avoid the higher erate. But restaurant owners say they cannot afford the expense. What the outcome will be no one knows.

(Editor's Note: Tomorrow's article will explain the criticism of Iowa Citians against the ruling of Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor stating that the University of Iowa cannot legally be billed for the three months the plant was not in operation—while the rest of Iowa City has been.)

Cruisers, 22 Persons Sought

By the Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis., Aug. 10—Coast guardsmen were searching in Lakes Superior and Michigan tonight for two large power cruisers carrying a total of at least 22 persons.

One was the 35-foot Faith, with 20 persons aboard which has been reported missing on Lake Superior since Saturday night. The other was the 42-foot Betty Jean which left Sturgeon Bay, Wis., yesterday afternoon with H. C. Kettelson, Milwaukee, his wife and possibly others aboard.

The Faith left Portage, Mich., Saturday for Isle Royale, a run that normally takes about seven or eight hours.

Corn Crop At 37% of Normal

By the Associated Press

DES MOINES, Aug. 10—The federal agriculture department today estimated Iowa's 1936 corn production at 185,300,000 bushels—only 37 per cent of normal, less than half the 1935 yield, and the smallest crop in 42 years.

The estimate was based on the crop condition as reported by observers in each of Iowa's 99 counties on Aug. 1. Leslie M. Carl, federal agriculture statistician for Iowa, said it did not include "any damage Iowa corn may have suffered since that date."

Federal crop experts predicted an average corn yield in Iowa of 17 bushels per acre as compared with 38 bushels in 1935.

The federal crop report today showed the damaging effects of heat, drought and grasshoppers during July. On July 10, the department estimated the Iowa corn yield, based on the July 1 condition, as 419,650,000 bushels.

Iowa City Trio Walking Together in Ninth Straight Year

By NEWMAN TOOMEY

The "Three Musketeers" are at it again!

Yesterday morning at 7:15 they started to walk to work again. They didn't talk much; they didn't discuss the politics of the day. They just walked—as they have been for some 2,720 times during the last nine years.

The three—Willis Mercer, Thomas Farrell and Dr. Frank Whinnery—are Iowa City's most faithful friends. For the last nine years—missing very few days—they have been walking to work together.

No one of them ever seems to be ill. Rain or shine, the three are always seen. Even in the coldest weather they sally forth. They are punctual. Every morning they assemble in front of Mr. Farrell's home at 710 S. Summit street. From there they proceed along Summit to Bowery, then along Gilbert. At the city hall they part—each going to his office.

Excellent Timepieces

Their progress is so regular, neighbors along the way have practiced setting their watches by the time of their passing.

Early this summer Mr. Farrell suffered a broken leg on the golf course, but the trio was undaunted. Mercer and Whinnery continued their morning walk, while Farrell went ahead in a car.

All this was changed yesterday morning, however. Mr. Farrell is completely recovered again. The early risers along the customary route were astonished to see the three adventurers abroad again—as punctual and as regular as before.

Faithful Friends

Iowa City's most faithful friends, they have never quarreled in all the nine years they have been living near each other: Mercer at 733 S. Summit street: Farrell at 710 S. Summit, and Dr. Whinnery at 1023 Kirkwood avenue.

And like the heroes of Dumas' novel, they are "All for one and one for all"

May Quit Plan To Close Inn

Residents on Melrose Not to Push Attempt On 'Polly Inn'

Residents of Melrose avenue last night declared they "probably" will abandon attempts to close "Polly Inn," a restaurant located on the property of George Koser, real estate man.

Koser yesterday decided to prohibit parking on both sides of Riverside drive near the University of Iowa hydraulics laboratory—thus eliminating what university officials have called a "dangerous traffic hazard."

Koser also decided to withdraw his two petitions now before the city council—the first petitioning a permit to erect an oil station opposite the hydraulics laboratory, the second to demand the razing of the University of Iowa laboratory because it "encroaches upon the public highway."

By the Associated Press

MADRID, Aug. 10—American women and children prepared tonight to flee Madrid as loyalist forces of the republic claimed capture of 13 rebel towns in the newest offensive of the 24-day civil war.

Between 30 and 40 Americans were to leave by train for Valencia to board the United States warship Quincy for escape to France.

100 Businessmen Remain

Only about 100 Americans, with business interests here, remained. Several hundred French and British citizens were to depart soon in fear of the growing violence of the war. (A number of Americans were evacuated during the first two weeks of the struggle.)

Capture of the 13 rebel communities, ten of them in Teruel province, two near Zaragoza and one close by Oviedo, inspired confident government predictions that the revolt will be crushed shortly.

Food Shortage

(Reinforced rebel troops massed for attack in the north of San Sebastian and Irun. San Sebastian was short of food, with citizens living up to receive rations of bread and water. Milk was distributed for children only.

(Capture of the town and province of Santander on the Bay of Biscay was claimed in a rebel radio broadcast, and there were indications the oppressed northern loyalists were in danger of defeat momentarily.)

Loyalists continued to blast at rebels with bitter fighting in the Guadarrama mountains. Government troops continued to advance and were busy cutting a wide pathway through pine forests studding the difficult mountainous terrain to facilitate the movement of artillery.

William Duke 'Much Better' After Accident

Although still unconscious, William Duke, 22-year-old taxi driver, was reported "much improved" at an early hour this morning. Duke, who was first taken to Mercy hospital, is now at his home at 505 Third avenue.

Duke was thrown from his speeding motorcycle at the George Angerer home, three miles west of West Liberty, at 3:30 Sunday afternoon.

He was helping to chart a new motorcycle course on the Angerer farm when the machine struck a hole made by the removal of a stump. The machine turned over several times hurling Duke through the air.
