IOWA CROWDS CHEER LANDON

News Flashes

Torture Chamber

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21 (AP)—Two men pleaded guilty today to operating a torture chamber in which persons submitted to injuries to collect accident insurance.

Martin Biggs and William Bone entered guilty pleas to charges of conspiracy to commit grand theft in connection with the scheme. A hearing was set for Sept. 19 after they asked probation.

Obtains Confession

OMAHA, Aug. 21 (AP)—Detective Inspector Fritz Franks said tonight he had obtained confessions from two Omaha men that they robbed an Elliott, Ia., bank of $1,164 last Tuesday. Franks gave their names as Albert England and his nephew, Orie England.

A tip to an Omaha detective that the two men "had been spending too much money" led to their arrest.

'Moral' Embargo

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP)—Invoking a "moral" embargo against experts of war materials to Spain, the state department indirectly has advised inquiring munitions dealers that sales to either faction in the Spanish conflict would be incompatible with America's neutrality policy.

The department disclosed today that several concerns within recent days had solicited its views on the propriety of filling orders from Spain for arms and munitions.

Bus Overturns, 6 Hurt

AMERY, Wis., Aug. 21 (AP)—Skidding over an embankment near here tonight, a Greyhound bus overturned, injuring six of its 19 passengers.

Most seriously injured was Pauline Winterwerber of Dallas, Wis., who suffered a dislocated hip and possible internal injuries.

Slander Suit Settled

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21 (AP)—A $500,000 slander suit against Aimee Semple McPherson, preacher of the Four-Square gospel, was settled out of court today—for a reported $500—and cleared the way for a return of harmony to her dissension-studded Angelus temple.

The suit had been filed by Vivian Denton, discharged as publicity agent at the temple last Feb. 10.

3 Jews, 4 Arabs Killed

JERUSALEM, Aug. 21 (AP)—(Palcor Agency)—Three Jews were shot dead by an Arab band today while four Arabs were killed by British troops as disorders continued throughout Palestine.

The Jews were killed when their car was pierced with bullets by an Arab gang numbering about 30. Two other men and a woman riding with them were seriously wounded.

The four Arab deaths occurred while police were searching the Karkur district, scene of a battle yesterday in which the Arabs were believed to have suffered 32 casualties.

New Hope

CHICAGO, Aug. 21 (AP)—Further precipitation in some parts of drought land today gave agronomists new hope of salvaging paying crops from the ruins left by this season's blazing sun.

Heavy rains, which crop experts said would be of distinct benefit to forage crops and pastures were reported over a wide area of the north central states yesterday.

"The rains were of greatest benefit to Nebraska," A. W. Cook, government weather forecaster of Chicago, said. The precipitation was reported in eastern North Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and northern Illinois.

Olson Weaker

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 21 (AP)—After apparently getting along nicely earlier in the evening, Gov. Floyd B. Olson took a turn for the worse tonight, it was learned from Mayo clinic physicians.

It was emphasized the governor was in no immediate danger, but that he was steadily growing weaker.

22 Indicted

DETROIT, Aug. 21 (AP)—Twenty-two men described as officers of the black legion were indicted today on criminal syndicalism charges based on allegations they plotted an armed uprising to take over the federal government.

Among those named in warrants signed by Circuit Judge James E. Chenot, who presided over the state's black legion grand jury, was Virgil F. (Bert) Effinger, of Lima, Ohio, said by Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea to be national commander of the organization of terrorists.

Two Miners Rescued Alive—Two Dead

Saved After 3-Day Burial In Gassy Tunnel

4,000 Send Up Shout Of Relief as Men Are Brought to Surface

By the Associated Press

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 21—Two coal miners—one of them apparently little the worse for his three-day ordeal—were rescued alive late today from a gas-filled tunnel in which four were imprisoned by a mine collapse Tuesday afternoon, but death had taken their companions.

"Here I am boys, 'I can take it'!" cried 50-year-old A. W. McCann, oldest of the entombed miners, as weary rescue workers wormed their way through a debris-packed mine shaft into the tunnel prison of the quartet.

Sexton Unconscious

His living companion, Demmer Sexton, co-owner of the mine, was sprawled unconscious at his feet.

The others, Edward Stoner Jr., 26, and George T. Dameron, 27-year-old Negro, were huddled in death at the rear of the 200-foot tunnel—victims of deadly white damp.

Dr. John Maddox, the coroner's son, and Sexton was semi-conscious and that he thought "he will pull through."

Griffith said Sexton was revived about 30 minutes after rescuers reached him. His lips were swollen and closed so tightly rescuers had to pry them open before they could give him whisky and coffee as stimulants.

Though McCann was the first one reached, Sexton was brought first to the bottom of the main shaft, Griffith said. McCann told the rescue party Sexton was "back there about 30 feet, still alive."

Stirred Sexton Frequently

McCann said he had trouble keeping Sexton awake, and had to stir him frequently. He feared Sexton would never wake up again if he lost consciousness, he said.

A crowd of 4,000 friends of the miners and curious spectators sent up a piercing shout of relief when Coroner Jesse Maddox appeared at the mouth of the shaft with his terse statement:

"Two of the men are alive—"

But a deep silence, broken only by moans from the women and a sharp cry from the brother of the Negro victim, came when he concluded:

Dead for a Long Time

"The others are dead—apparently they have been dead for a long time."

McCann, weak but apparently free of any serious complications, smiled wanly as stretcher-bearers carried him from the shaft and rushed him to an ambulance.

He sat upon the stretcher and waved to the crowd.

"I had only one worry," he told relieved relatives who accompanied the ambulance to the hospital.

"Every day I was afraid the

Gov. Alf. M. Landon of Kansas, republican presidential nominee, spoke to his largest audience in Iowa at Cedar Rapids yesterday afternoon. He is shown above in the top picture as he made an eight-minute platform speech. Taken from the top of Governor Landon's special train, the picture at the left shows a part of the 10,000 persons packed into the square across from the railroad station to hear the Kansan speak. 3 Amendments Added to Beer Law

Italy's O.K. of Pact Only Peace Ray in War-Clouded Europe

Madrid Warns Against Interference With German Shipping

PAMPLONA, Spain (By courier to French frontier), Aug. 21 (AP)—The "big push" on Madrid was launched by the rebel northern army at dawn today.

A terrific artillery barrage by land batteries and airplanes began the advance.

By the Associated Press

War clouds blackened over Europe last night with a lone ray of peace emanating from Rome where the Italian government said it would not aid either Spanish belligerent—if all other European powers would promise to do the same.

Italy's acceptance—with reservations—of the proposed French neutrality pact gave an official stamp of what has been presented all along as the views of Premier Mussolini.

A second warning to the socialist Spanish government was sent to Madrid from Berlin against any interference with German shipping by the loyalists.

Seven nazi warships were driving toward Spain, under orders of the national-socialist, fascist-inclined regime of Chancellor Adolf Hitler to "meet force with force."

Anxiously diplomatic observers watched Spain's neighbor nation Portugal where it was feared the Spanish revolt might spread and enflame the smouldering political fires of the whole European continent.

The fires of German-Russian distrust were further kindled today by the revelation in Madrid that Soviet partisans had contributed 200,000,000 francs (about $13,000,000) to the cause of the Spanish socialist-communist loyalists whom Hitler's government censured for the Kamerun incident.

Permit Sale Near Campus

Extend Hour for Music In Parlors, Forbid Sale to Minors

An amendment allowing sale of beer less than 300 feet from University of Iowa buildings was one of three added to the local beer ordinance at last night's city council meeting.

Music Hour Extended

A second change, advocated by Alderman George Bouck, provides for the extension of the hour for music in beer parlors from 9 until 10 o'clock at night.

Another amendment to the ordinance makes it "unlawful for a minor to purchase, accept as a gift or consume beer except when furnished him by his parent or guardian."

The third amendment changes the words "within 300 feet of a building used for school purposes" to "within 300 feet of a building used for grade school, junior high school or high school purposes."

This will make it possible for the establishment of beer parlors nearer than 300 feet from University of Iowa buildings.

It has been pointed out, however, that the provision of the old beer ordinance was never strictly enforced as both the Maid Rite Sandwich shop and Racine cigar store No. 3—both of which have beer permits—are nearer than 300 feet from the university campus.

The first beer permit which would

Rescued Miner Gives Account of 3-Day Entombment

By the Associated Press

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 21—The following account of a three-day entombment and subsequent rescue from a collapsed coal mine in which two companions perished was told to the Associated Press tonight by A. W. McCann, one of the two survivors:

"It must have been 4 o'clock (Tuesday) when I learned that the fire had broken out.

"We used the old mine trick of going far back in another tunnel (the one in which rescuers found them) and barricaded ourselves against the fire damp.

"We were there for a couple of hours. When the air started to get a little stale, Stoner and Dameron (Edward Stoner Jr., and George T. Dameron, Negro, the two men who died) and I started out to look for fresh air.

"We got into the gas. Pretty soon Stoner dropped. I knew he was gone.

"I turned to Dameron and we started back.

"He went down and said he was too weak to get up, the damp was so bad. So I left him.

"It must have been 15 hours before I went over our barricade again looking for water.

"Sexton (Demmer Sexton, 37, the other survivor) was in pretty bad shape and wouldn't come with me.

"Down the tunnel I found a bucket with a drink of water in it. I took that. Stoner had said there was a jug full of water beside the pony (a work pony entrapped with the men).

Pony Killed Instantly

"The pony was killed almost instantly by the gas.

"I got the water and went back to Sexton. We must have been there 36 hours before I could get Sexton to move around with me.

"He was very weak.

"I could hear the men working up in the shaft.

"I pounded on the timber and tried to make them hear me. I guess they didn't."

Meet Drought In Sensible Way, He Says

Nominee Accepts Offer Of F.R. to Meet In Des Moines Sept. 1

By the Associated Press

ABOARD LANDON TRAIN ENROUTE TO EAST, Aug. 21—Gov. Alf M. Landon told an Iowa audience today that no individual and no organization should meet the drought problem, from the point of view of politics.

Speaking at Cedar Rapids only a few hours after President Roosevelt extended, and his republican opponent said he would accept, an invitation to a drought conference at Des Moines Sept. 1, Landon said:

"I am not concerned about where the credit goes in the solution of this problem of our drought just so we meet it in a humane and a constructive and a sensible way."

10,000 On Hand

The republican candidate's remarks were made to an audience estimated by Mayor Frank Hahn at 10,000. He was cheered as he spoke from a platform a few yards from his special train. Speeding eastward for three speaking engagements, Landon left in Iowa an assertion that one of the fundamental principles of the republican party in this campaign is to promote recovery and provide jobs.

"If any measure will provide jobs," he said, "I am for it and if there is any measure that will hinder recovery and reemployment I am against it."

Landon's remarks concerning the drought, as taken by the train's official reporter, follow:

"Now entirely aside from politics and this year's campaign, we are facing the emergency of the 1936 drought. Being a Kansan, I know what it means. We have suffered there possibly to even greater extent than you have here, with your rich black soil.

"The Kansas people have met this problem for the last several years bravely, just as I know that the people of Iowa are meeting this emergency, with the courage and fortitude that is so characteristic of them. We should combine our initiative and our efforts, just as our pioneer forefathers who settled this state combined their efforts to meet the great problems of their day.

"But no individual and no organization should meet this problem from the point of view of politics. I am not concerned about where the credit goes in the solution of the problem of the drought just so we meet it in a humane and a constructive and a sensible way."

4,000 at Clinton

A gathering estimated at 4,000 by Police Capt. M. P. Duffy cheered the Kansan at Clinton, last Iowa stop before the train crossed the drought-shrunken Mississippi river.

At Sterling, first Illinois stop, a crowd that filled the station platform area, heard Landon stress "good government" as a campaign issue.

Brief stops at Rochelle where Police Chief W. H. Hungerford estimated 4,000 persons were on hand and DeKalb, closed Landon's platform speaking schedule in Illinois.

Governor Landon spent his second day of speaking in the state where he'll meet his democratic opponent face to face Sept. 1 at the president's Des Moines drought conference with governors of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

All, including Governor Landon, said they would accept the president's invitation.

The Kansas governor received his bid at Carroll, Ia., after a relay from Topeka, Kan. Earlier today Landon said:

"As I said before, I will accept."

In his Iowa talks, as in Colorado and Nebraska yesterday, Landon referred often to "good government" and spending.

"We expect government to do a lot of things for us," he said at Boone, "but we have a right to expect that government does that necessary work without squandering our money. I think a man can be liberal and a government can be liberal without being a spendthrift."

10,000 CHEER NOMINEE AT CEDAR RAPIDS

By MERLE MILLER
(Daily Iowan City Editor)

CEDAR RAPIDS, Aug. 21 (Special)—When Gov. Alf M. Landon stepped off the train here today, he faced an audience of 10,000 Iowans who had come "to see this man from Kansas."

Their knowledge of the governor who is also the republican nominee for the presidency was limited. They were asking "What is he like?"

Governor Landon made a very inauspicious entrance. He stumbled on the last step of the train and had to be straightened up.

Want Autograph

As he mounted to the platform from which he spoke three small children thrust themselves in front of him demanding "an autograph." The governor merely smiled.

On the platform he put his straw hat on the chair, brushed off his suit, smoothed his hair and stood up—a crumpled piece of paper clutched in his hand.

First Words Low

His first words were low, almost inaudible, and he was forced to stop once to find out "what was the name of that town we just passed through?"

He looked tired and nervous. He needed a hair cut and a shoe shine, but he had been traveling all day, making some 15 or 20 platform appearances. He had spoken to 150,000 persons, had shaken an estimated 4,000 hands.

He had been surrounded by ten newspaper men, six photographers—including two movie cameramen—and a dozen or more politicians.

As he finished his speech, the 10,000 listeners cheered and waved their arms for more than a minute.

Hurrah for Savior

An old man standing directly in front of the republican presidential nominee jumped up and shouted, "Hurrah for Governor Landon, the savior of the people." A woman fainted from the heat. And Landon was being whisked back to his car on the special train.

A tiny two-year old stopped him on the way to press a huge sun flower in his hand. He grinned and patted her on the head.

On the platform once more the Kansan held his slightly dingy straw hat in the air and tried to shake hands with several hundred persons at once—and succeeded.

Sunflower Badges

An aide threw out thousands of sunflower badges as the crowd broke away from the police lines and strained to get nearer the presidential nominee.

But the train had started. There was a second's delay as a forgotten photographer grabbed the rail of the moving train. And they were on their way.

A New Marshal

Son of Former Mayor Succeeds Ben Rarey At Coralville

Mayor Owen R. Morgan of Coralville last night announced the appointment of Al Robinson, 30-year-old son of former Mayor C. F. Robinson, as town marshal.

The former marshal, Ben Rarey, an automobile mechanic, announced his resignation Thursday night. He said, "people around this town evidently don't want their law enforced."

Have Similar Views

Mayor Morgan refused to comment on Rarey's statement, but said he appointed Robinson because "we have similar views and will agree on matters of law enforcement."

He declared his appointment of the younger Mr. Robinson has "no connection with the fact that his father was former mayor of Coralville."

The former mayor Robinson said his moving to Iowa City was the reason for his resignation.

Harold Monk Is Inspector

S.U.I. Graduate Named Building Inspector By City Council

Harold Monk, 413 S. Madison street, last night was appointed building and wiring inspector and assistant to the city engineer by the Iowa City council.

Monk, a graduate in electrical engineering of the University of Iowa, is one of eight applicants interviewed by the council. He holds a B.S. and an M.S. degree.

Monk was hired to fill the term left vacant by the death of Clarence Kutcher. His term will run until next April.

The salary of the building inspector last night was reduced from $1,800 yearly to $1,380. He must furnish his own transportation for all city building inspections.

Monk will begin work as city inspector and assistant to City Engineer J. F. Sproatt Monday.

Roosevelt Declares Moratorium on Political Speeches Until October; 'Too Much to Do'

By the Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 21 — A moratorium on political speeches until October was declared today by President Roosevelt.

The president told reporters he had too much to do to take time to prepare speeches.

He has speaking dates at a "Green Pastures" rally at Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 10, at Washington Sept. 11 before the world power conference, and at the Harvard university tercentennial Sept. 18. But all these will be non-political speeches, the president said.

Drought Non-Political

He has put a trip to drought states, for which he finished the itinerary today, in the same non-political classification. The program calls for him to visit nine drought states between Aug. 25 and Sept. 5 and confer on drought problems with Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the republican presidential candidate, and 11 other executives.

Farley Arrives

Taking a hand in his own campaign, the president aranged places at the dinner table and beds for the night for James A. Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee, W. Forbes Morgan, treasurer and Frank Walker, chairman of the finance committee.

The president told news men Farley was merely to report on the current campaign outlook.

Is This Christian Conduct?

THE RIGHTEOUS indignation of Father James Smith, who forcibly ejected a pretty young woman from his Long Island Catholic church because she "desecrated the House of God" by wearing slacks to the confessional, is an eloquent example of intolerance and misdirected religious zeal.

While many Americans were greatly shocked, and some a little amused, at such a rabid display of fanaticism, Father Smith seemed smugly pleased with his "reverent" action. The next day he spoke heatedly on the subject at all his masses—he, a man of maturity who should have known better and an earthly representative of the Man who taught love, gentleness and tolerance.

Said he, "I would have dragged her to the gutter where morons of her type belong and whence she probably sprang." He said other things too, but they do not need repeating to get the general tenor of his speech. Suffice it to say that the young woman, who was reared in an Irish convent from early childhood, has three different grounds for a slander suit, any one of which could probably be won by even a mediocre lawyer.

We hold no brief for girls wishing to wear slacks to church. It seems to us that that is their business, and if their pastor wishes to discourage them, that is his business. We do think, however, that in this benighted age anyone should be allowed to enter the House of God and do worship, so long as he is clothed to conform with the accepted standards of decency. Is that not the way the Nazarene would have it?

Yet this poor girl was dragged from her pew where she knelt in prayer, all because she wore a pair of slacks instead of the more conventional skirt. Slacks seem now to be everywhere acceptable as female dress, and we might suggest that they are much more efficient at "covering up" than skirts could ever be. Adam and Eve managed to worship God in nothing more than fig leaves, and for centuries afterward their descendants did not wear much more.

It was not even a public service—the girl was only waiting to go to confession. No doubt she would have heeded a kindly request or a gentle admonishment if the father thought it necessary, but such a bestial display of temper was highly out of place, both in the church and in the priest of God.

Certainly there are other sins and sinners of much greater importance in the eyes of God and in the eyes of Father Smith to which he could more profitably direct his attention. The most that can be said for his unfortunate conduct, we fear, is that he makes a mountain of a mole hill and is unable to see the forest for the trees.

Fingerprint Sleuths

IN VIEW OF the ever increasing necessity of fingerprinting in the fight to decrease crime over the country, the move of our police department toward developing a fingerprint expert is an excellent one.

As an example of what finger printing is doing everyday: Suppose an unidentified man were run over by a car in the streets of Iowa City. Thumbprints of the man could be sent to Washington and Des Moines and in a day or two, if the man had ever come in contact with the law at any period in his life, he would be easily identified. To the average person this sort of procedure seems little short of magic. But in police circles it is commonplace.

Figures released by the federal bureau of investigation show that 14,490 fugitives from justice have been located through fingerprinting. If they have criminal records Uncle Sam will find them for you.

In the same period, three fiscal years, 7,731 stolen autos were recovered by these federal law-enforcers, 11,153 persons were convicted, their sentences being, 5 to death, 28 for life, and total imprisonment for the others, 30,411 years, 4 months and 18 days. Some of them will hardly bother the law-abiding citizenry for years to come.

It used to be the strong arm of the law that ran criminals to earth. That is the case no longer. It takes only the little finger of a big bad man to cause the iron prison doors to swing shut.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—What does the future hold for the more freakish of the outstanding personalities developed by the current presidential campaign?

When the campaign has ended will these peculiar folk sink back into inconspicuity or will some of them, at least, remain indefinitely in the national foreground?

Gov. Alf M. Landon, of course, is not one of the number. Nor President Roosevelt. They are the normal antagonists.

Norman Thomas isn't a freak, either. Nor is Earl Browder. Browder, in particular, decidedly is a radical, but he has an understandable program. His future and Thomas' are calculable. They will be licked overwhelmingly at the polls, and they expect to be. Afterward they will go right on leading their respective groups, as long as they live, in all likelihood.

QUEER QUINTET

The really queer quintet consists of Representative William Lemke, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, Father Charles E. Coughlin, the Rev Gerald L. K. Smith and Sen. Rush Holt, especially since he did the keynoting at Father Coughlin's recent gathering in Cleveland.

Perhaps it is incorrect to say that Dr. Townsend's future is unpredictable. He is too old to last long.

Senator's Holt's future also would be easy to prophesy if he were coming up this year for reelection. He certainly would be beaten and that would dispose of him permanently. As an exceedingly babyish senator, he ought to be reasonably modest, or polite anyway. He undoubtedly is too "fresh" to make a hit with the average voter, however successful he seems to have been as a Coughlin keynoter.

But Holt has until 1941 to serve on Capitol Hill.

This gives him quite a while to improve on his tactics. He obviously has undertaken to be a second Huey P. Long and as yet hasn't acquired the hang of it. The Kingfish was pretty blatant but he said a great many things that plenty of perfectly rational Americans had to acquiesce in. Holt, to date, is merely blatant.

But the fact is that the West Virginian genuinely is a very bright young man. He behaved quite creditably early in his stay in Washington. Then, apparently his head swelled and he is trying to be a statesman prematurely.

Perhaps he will have recaptured his judgment by 1941 and be as good as Huey. That would make him a factor to be reckoned with for no one knows how long.

LEMKE EXPERIENCED

Representative Lemke, though as freakish as anyone, is an experienced politician.

He did not put all his eggs in one basket. Besides proclaiming himself presidentially, he saw to it that he likewise was renominated for the house of representatives. Thus, even though defeated for the White House (a hazard that it's impossible to believe he doesn't recognize, despite his refusal to admit it) he still is pretty sure to remain in congress—a soundingboard for lots more of his oratory.

If he has any strength at all, outside his home district, it must be mainly farm strength.

Assuming that agriculture is fairly well satisfied with its lot in the course of the next four years, he probably will have fizzled out entirely by 1940. Should the farmers continue discontented, however, or get more so, there is a chance that his poteney will increase steadily.

HOLLYWOOD—The paymaster of a motion picture company came back from an Indian reservation with a strange story.

He dealt with a small tribe of Indians, the Mesa Grandes, whose little reservation is 100 miles south of here. They agreed to accept any "reasonable" rental for the use of their village in filming the picture "Ramona." The movie men suggested $100 a day, and that was highly agreeable to the Indians.

Wants Check; No Currency

The company used the village six days. Valentine Schusla, the Mesa Grandes chief, came to get the check. It was suggested that perhaps he would like to have the money in small bills, in order to divide it among his people.

"No, a check will do," said Schusla. "Our council has decided not to divide the money. There are only 300 of us and $2 each will not greatly increase our prosperity, we have decided to use the money to repair and rebuild our church."

The roof of the 40-year-old adobe church leaks and the doors sag. There are big cracks in the walls. It needs new altar cloths and there is a shortage of vestments. Mass is said every Sunday, despite the condition of the building. Soon, however, it will be painted and repaired—with movie money.

'Ride' But Get Nowhere

Madge Evans and Bing Crosby spent all morning in the back seat of a car—and didn't get any place. But when the scene reaches the screen, via "Pennies from Heaven," it will appear that Madge and Bing have ridden from one end of Fifth avenue to the other, almost.

"Rear projection," is the technical name for this photographic trick. A camera car was driven down Fifth avenue. This record is flashed on a screen back of the car in which the film pair sit. The players are filmed and the Fifth avenue ride is re-photographed. Simple to go places in Hollywood, isn't it?

Adrienne Ames, long absent from the movies, hopes to start in again where she left off. When her Paramount contract expired, Adrienne went to England and appeared in two films. She says she is tired of loafing.

Errol Flynn, who has a home in the hills, gets in early morning exercise tramping around with a rifle hunting for rabbits. He occasionally gets one, too.

Alec Waugh, British novelist, made a visit to friends in California recently by flying across on the Hindenburg, spanning the continent in a plane and then going back on the Normandie.

Buenos Aires has been called "the Paris of the western world."

By JOHN SELBY

'BRAHMS: HIS LIFE AND WORK,' by Dr. Karl Geiringer; (Houghton Mifflin).

After the climactic heights of the romantic period in music (so-called, although certainly there were romanticists afterward), the two chief figures are Johannes Brahms and Richard Wagner. Of these it usually is assumed that Wagner is the more interesting biographical subject, chiefly because he did so many outrageous things.

The assumption seems less valid after a few hours with Dr. Karl Geiringer's "Brahms: His Life and Work." For Brahms becomes, as the result of Dr. Geiringer's profitable research, one of the most "human" of musicians. The popular conception of Brahms as rough-hewn, coarse and rather a human hedgehog has been gained to a surprising degree from one of the most widely known caricatures in the musical world—the one of a lumpy, bearded fellow pushing stumpy legs toward the pedals of a piano, his coarse torso planted rock-like on a piano bench. It is too bad the Laurens portrait, done in 1853 and used by Geiringer as frontispiece, has not had equal circulation.

There is no point synopsizing Brahms' career, but it might be useful to point out a few differences between Geiringer's treatment and the usual one. In the first place, Geiringer has had access to a great mass of hitherto unavailable letters (more than 1,000) written to Brahms by his family and by numerous friends. He also has had access to a large amount of material published in 1933, the Brahms centenary year. There is additional correspondence which is little known and which has been used by Dr. Geiringer most intelligently.

The effect of all this fresh material has been to revise the conception of Brahms' home life, to make much more of a figure of his mother, to explain the several dissatisfactions of Brahms' early life more logically, and to introduce more subtle shading into some of the stock Brahms pictures.

The book will be invaluable to musicologists, and it reads brightly enough to please the more substantial among general readers.

Part Endocrine Glands Play in Physical Makeup

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A READER of this column from Topeka, Kan., writes:

"Seemingly much more significance than formerly is being assigned to the balance maintained by the endocrine glands in determining physiological and psychological aberrations of various sorts. In your opinion are such conclusions warranted, and if so, what benefit may the patient derive through surgery, hypodermic injections and oral assimilation?

Dr. Clendening

"I would like to know upon what basis endocrine analyses are made."

It has been demonstrated, I think, beyond doubt by researches of the last five years, that the endocrine glands have a very considerable influence on the physiological and psychological balance of the body.

As to the question upon what basis endocrine analyses are made, I take it this means how is a diagnosis of endocrine disease made. It is made just as any other diagnosis is made—the glands are known to produce certain changes in the physiology of the body—when such changes are observed and other diseases are ruled out, it is assumed that a specific disease is present.

To go into more detail, a diagnosis of endocrine disease is based on the primary assumption that these glands influence growth, nutrition, development and sexual and reproductive functions particularly. They affect mentality and personality only secondarily.

Absence Produces Cretinism

Under the heading of growth we know that absence of the thyroid gland at birth (cretinism) results in a dwarfed individual with certain characteristic aspects of the face, the skin, the contour of the abdomen, and the mentality. Nothing else produces just this combination—just this type of dwarf. So the diagnosis is made on appearance alone in most cases. When the diagnostician sees a heavy dwarfed body with stupid countenance, protuberant abdomen and imbecile mentality, he catalogues it as cretinism, because nothing else produces just that combination of characters.

Dr. William Osler once asked a student how he was able to name the disease a patient had. "Saw it before," was the answer, and that goes for conclusions of just this sort.

But there are a great many ways to check up accurately on the functions of the ductless glands. It was said above that they influenced development. This means principally bony development. The bones condition growth. They grow in a soft condition for a while, then they ossify—bony substance is laid down. These centers of ossification occur at definite ages. They are delayed in thyroid and pituitary disease, and this can be seen in an X-ray of the wrist which has become a regular part of a complete endocrine diagnostic examination.

Another check-up depends on the fact that the proportions of the body are normally quite regular. In an adult the span—the distance from the end of one middle finger-tip to the other with the arms and hands extended—is about an inch longer than the height. The length of the upper part of the body (from the pelvis to the top of the head) is almost the same as the length of the lower part of the body—that is to say, the length of the legs is about equal to the length of the rest of the body. With these and other measurement tests, the endocrine diagnosis is checked.

Blow by Blow in the PRESIDENTIAL ARENA

Landon Build-Up Abandoned; Poor Record Is a Handicap

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

The republican national committee seems to have abandoned the job of trying to sell Governor Landon as a hopeless task. For about a week, not a single kindly word was spoken about the presidential nominee in the neighboring republican column.

This morning's column, of course, may be an exception. It was not seen by us in advance of publication, and Governor Landon may have crept back into the good graces of the republican editors.

After all, what a welcome thing it would be to the voters if they would only reveal something about Governor Landon. For example, what are his views on currency matters; does he believe in building up the navy or letting it rot; how is he going to cut expenditures and continue farm benefits and unemployed relief; is he still against bank deposit insurance?

It is easy to appreciate the difficulties faced by the republican editors. The fact is that they don't know any more about Governor Landon than the rest of the voting public.

They can't very well say "look at his record" in view of the fact that he was an ardent new dealer until he started campaigning for the presidential nomination.

DANGEROUS ECONOMY

Boosting the governor's economy record was a favorable sport until it was disclosed that he saved money by closing schools, slashing teachers' salaries, and cutting down hospital facilities while insane patients were confined in jail. Now his economy record has to be soft-pedaled.

As the republicans won't tell us anything about Governor Landon's record, this column will continue to do so. Today, his method of caring for the needy and unemployed will be taken up.

The federal government supplies more than 70 per cent of relief funds for Kansas, and the counties and local governments put up the rest. The state itself supplies only a small sum for administrative purposes. But the counties are limited in the amount they can spend by Governor Landon's cash basis law. The question is: is local relief adequate?

The county relief workers at Ft. Scott, Kan., struck last January for higher pay. What happened is described in the following account, reprinted from the Topeka Capital:

TEAR GAS FOR CHILDREN

"Ft. Scott, Jan. 17—A tear gas barrage laid down tonight by sheriff's deputies cleared the Bourbon county courthouse of relief clients entrenched there to demand an increased wage scale on an emergency relief project.

"Nearly a dozen workers were treated in a hospital for effects of the gas. None was believed seriously affected.

"Between 200 and 250 men, women and children were driven gasping and with eyes streaming into the open air after they had ignored the county officials' request that they vacate the building until it could be fumigated.

"The group, representing employables not on WPA work rolls, demanded a wage scale of 30 cents an hour on county-sponsored projects. The county offered $1 a day, with single men given two days a week of work and married men five."

So then, thanks to Governor Landon's cash basis law, the best Kansas can do for needy men is $2 a week for single men, and $5 a week for married men—provided they put in a full day's work on highway labor in zero weather. And tear gas for the women and childen if they protest too strenuously.

New Deal Charged With Waste In Its 'Freak' Building Plan

(Provided by the Republican National Committee)

Amos and Andy ought to be willing to give the Roosevelt administration some good cash for the gags the new deal thought up in its home subsistence project at Reedsville, W. Va. It is about the only chance the new deal will have of paying out on the plan.

It started seriously enough. Certainly miners in West Virginia need better housing. Cottages of four or five rooms were planned. The government can't exactly give houses away, so the homesteader was to pay the government back by easy stages.

In the fall of 1933, 1,133 acres were bought near Reedsville. Some 200 houses were projected.

HELTER SKELTER BUILDING

As work progressed on the first group of 50, the results were as astonishing as those of a blindfolded man drawing a pig.

Splendid basements were constructed, sufficient to support three-story brick homes. These were topped by a single story, pre-fabricated cottage of the summer camp type. Things began to look like a glorious hodge-podge.

After the 50 houses were put together and some were painted, defects began to appear. Houses and foundations showed little inclination to match. A ruggedly individual chimney might be found anywhere from one to 10 feet away from the nearest wall!

Some of the houses were termed "gun barrels" by the workmen—having turned out in some surprising manner to be 10 feet wide and 45 feet long. "Planned economy" was going haywire.

Blithely and optimistically they were all torn up and work was started over. One house, called the "little White House" because Mrs. Roosevelt selected it to visit, was torn up six times. Most carpenters have never run into anything like this, but they know what it means in added building costs.

FINAL AVERAGE COST $10,375

Workers inside the flimsy structures discovered from feeling the intense cold in winter and the fiery heat in the summer that there would have to be some change in construction plans if the houses were to be habitable the year around. The final cost was around $10,375 per house, instead of $2,500. Many contend it was much higher.

But the houses are looking better now.

They were stretched to meet the chimneys. Foundations were altered. But even in the end it wasn't much of an achievement for the new deal to crow about. True, the pipes are fine, solid brass which will outlast the houses and some of the added refinements could hardly be found in a mansion, but the furnaces and coal bins have little reference to each other and it is hodge-podge building of the rarest freak sort.

STAGE PROPS USED

However, the project had some good pictures. Rhododrendron was hauled 60 miles and propped up in the snow for the cameramen and the project looked neat and homey in the photographs. It was a tribute to brain trust craft, but the local people, not being fooled by these stage props, began to give hte project the name of "Hollywood."

The Reedsville project, located near-by at Arthurdale—about which we shall have occasion to refer later—is an example of the visionary nature of new deal undertakings. The whole point was to provide good houses at a reasonable price, as a "yardstick" for the private building industry. Naturally, families able to buy only a $2,500 house cannot swing a $10,375 house. At the agreed payment price of $20 (or less) a month, it would take 43 years to pay for a $10,375 house, omitting all thoughts of interest.

No wonder 34 new deal subsistence projects have had to be abandoned!

rescue workers would become discouraged and give up their task.

"Several times when I crawled to the entrance of the shaft I could not hear the fan blowing air into the tunnel.

"Those hours were terrible.

Trembled and Prayed

"I trembled and prayed to God that they wouldn't give up.

"I knew they could reach us if they stuck by it."

All four men—and a black and white pony imprisoned with them—were found within 100 feet of each other by the rescuers.

Griffith said as the rescue crews tore at the last wall of debris separating them from the tunnel, McCann felt the sudden rush of fresh air and crawled to the barrier. He could not make the relief crews hear him, however.

He crawled back to be with Sexton. There the rescue crews found him—smiling wanly in a chamber so heavy with white damp gas that lamps would not burn.

Griffith said only "strong constitutions" saved McCann and Sexton from the death that overtook Stoner and Dameron a few hours after the collapse.

Prof. F. T. Mavis Writes Article In Engineer Magazine

Prof. F. T. Mavis, head of the department of mechanics and hydraulics of the college of engineering, is the author of a discussion of "Varied Flow in Open Channels of Adverse Slope" published in the current Proceedings of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

"Although the methods of computing backwater heights in canals and waterways are fundamentally similar," Professor Mavis stated, "the so-called direct methods are of limited practical value because the physical significance of actual field observations is obscured by mathematical abstractions.

"A method of successive approximations in the hands of an experienced engineer intimately familiar with the hydraulics of open channels leads rapidly to a solution if adequate basic data are available."

Miss will emerge Mademoiselle when she steps out in the luxurious garb being shown for fall wear. The new wardrobe will take a decided turn from the casual knock-about wear so prevalent in past seasons to strike a note of beauty and grace in the costume of the French. Colors and fabrics blend to give richness—deep, warm shades; softer, smoother materials.

Woolens, the mainstay of the cool weather wardrobe, while appearing in nubby weaves for coats, are smoother when used in dresses and costume suits. Dress weaves such as tarton mohair are still nubby but lighter in weight; hairy or rabbit wools, angoras, and some tweeds are fashioned into a dress-up type of sports wear. In three piece tailored suits the fabrics are of sterner stuff.

In the realm of silks there are no restrictions on originality and imagination. Satins, like Ziegfeld girls, are glorified; velvets are richer and more varied in texture than ever before; Canton crepes which Aunt Emma knew as plain and serviceable have blossomed out in a myriad of gala patterns; they're as different from former crepes as cornflowers from hot house roses.

Princess Lines

Tricot and entice satins are ribbed and shiny so that they give body to princess lines yet reflect the light as milady swishes along in a swing skirt. Shiny satin figures brighten a dull background to form a new fabric woven at the Susquehanna mills and known as Susquehanna jacquard.

There's no limit to novelty crepes! It's difficult to choose from the intriguing array—vassar stripe with its smooth background relieved by satin stripes or checks; heavy ribbed barola; a smoother flat crepe called, and rightly, crepe intrigue; crepe tarola, a rough and easy crepe, which translated from stylists' code means that the surface is rough and dull but the inside is satiny and smooth to the skin.

Velvet

All types of frocks from sport dresses to romantic dinner gowns may be had in velvet—spot proof, transparent or silk-backed costume velvet.

And the colors—so rich and full of tone. They seem alive with a depth and fire found in precious gems.

Green

Just plain green appears in a host of shades and with such tempting names—spruce, bronze leaf, and a glorified hunter's. Black and brown, the perennials, are excellent, but their somberness is off-set by a flaunting brilliancy in brick, clay rust, and a whole new family of wine shades, varying from the lighter longchamp to deep May wine. A first cousin to this group is a lucious color simply called raspberry but more reminiscent of an American beauty in full bloom.

Blues, too, have new shade values. The light French blue has a certain chic. In darker tones there is daytime blue which, still darker, becomes sophisticated New Yorker blue—like a midnight sky over the twinkling lights of the metropolis.

It's a luxuriant season, a season of dignified lines and warm colors, beautiful materials which spell quality and workmanship. The lady can not be drab this season—so tempting is the brilliant assortment from which to select her ensemble.

Braddock, Schmeling May Fight Next June

Champ Must Begin Hand Treatments

Schmeling Will Return To Germany Soon; Won't Fight Louis

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (AP)—The heavyweight championship fight between James J. Braddock and Germany's Max Schmeling probably will be held next June instead of next month, as originally scheduled.

The New York State Athletic commission today gave Braddock three weeks to be cured of an arthritis attack, but the promoters, disregarding the possibility of staging the bout this year, went ahead with the arrangements for holding the bout next summer.

Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, announced a few hours after the commission meeting that he had signed for Braddock to meet the conqueror of Joe Louis at the Madison Square Garden bowl either June 3 or June 10, 1937. Madison Square Garden officials, co-promoters of the bout with Mike Jacobs' 20th Century club, then set about getting Schmeling's signature on a contract before his departure for Germany.

Hear M. D.'s Report

After hearing the report of Dr. Fred Albee, bone specialist, who examined the champion Wednesday, the commission went into executive session, then announced Braddock would begin treatments at once and report back to the commission Sept. 15th for another examination.

Visibly upset and disappointed, Schmeling lost no time getting back to Germany He booked passage on the Bremen sailing at midnight

Not Unexpected

The postponement was not unexpected to Max, but he was apprehensive lest things be maneuvered around so that Louis gets a match with Braddock before Schmeling gets his chance.

He cheered up noticeably when Commissioner Bill Brown assured him that Braddock will not be permitted to box anybody in New York state until he goes through with the Schmeling match.

Flew to New York

Schmeling, who flew to New York on the airship Hindenburg two weeks ago, had selected Speculator, N. Y., as his training camp and was preparing to begin training when the announcement of Braddock's injury exploded the arrangements.

Promoter Mike Jacobs made a last minute effort to have Schmeling change his mind and sign for a September return bout with Louis, but the Teuton was obdurate.

The commission's decision virtually amounts to calling off the fight for the rest of the year. Even if Braddock is pronounced fit on Sept. 15, he would require six weeks of training. That would mean Nov. 1 would be the first possible date and that is too late for an outdoor show.

No Indoor Show

Neither Madison Square Garden nor the 20th Century sporting club, the joint promoters, will consider stagging a heavyweight title match indoors.

Dr. Albee's report showed Braddock to be suffering from sub-acute arthritis in both elbows and his left hand. He said the champ will have to be treated regularly for several weeks and advised that he not undertake the strenuous training grind necessary for a fight in the next month or so.

Grid Squad To Have Plenty Of Big Candidates

More than three-quarters of the 61 squad members of the 1936 Hawkeye football edition range from the 180 mark up to 225 pounds. There are 11 aspirants in the 200 pound division or above. Sixteen men range between 190 and 200, and 21 from 180 to 190. Last season there were only 13 and 11, respectively, in this class.

The weight classifications are as follows: 200 and over—Liggett, 225; DeHeer, 220; Wheaton, 218; Ludemann, 216; W. Olson, 215; Nead, 205; and Chambers, Farroh, Gallagher, Wagler and Walker, each 200. The 190 to 200 class—Balazs, Fuhrmeister, Glaspey, Grange, Harris, Bohac, Herman, Lannon, Martens, Matson, Miltner, Nelson, D. Simmons, Tollefson, White, and Woodruff.

BITS about SPORTS

by BOB HOGAN

Battles reminiscent of the days of yore when gladiators met adversaries on battlefields set apart for the occasion, were enacted, unwittingly and unhesitatingly, yesterday afternoon on the greensward in the Hawkeye football stadium.

Battling knights, representing their respective factions, fought for individual glory and personal honor. And how they fought! For, after giving their all till near the brink of physical exhaustion, the battle culminated and then both winners and losers proudly displayed the marks incurred during the heat of combat.

The bomb burst when a group of local youths reportedly upset some feed belonging to some 4-H youths who were exhibiting stock at the annual Johnson county 4-H show. The farm lads took exception to the choice bit of devilment and made tracks in the general direction of the "city slickers."

The stadium soon became the scene of the melee. Both parties squared off and the final charge, which put to shame the "Charge of the Light Brigade," ensued. Not much headway was gained by either faction so the leaders called their forces aside for a "pep" talk.

With the "city slickers" occupying superlateral seats on the west side of the stadium and the "country hayseeds" similarly situated on the eastern side, a verbal battle, augmented by choice phrases which even Webster hadn't even heard, served as a medium for releasing pent up emotions and just plain anger.

Finally after numerous threats it was decided to revert back to the olden days when ace horsemen and fighters, clad in suits of mail and lance on thigh, would mount a fiery charger and enter the packed stadium in an effort to pick the winner of the "joust" tournament.

With the "jousters" lining the field of battle, shouting words of encouragement, two sun-tanned psuedo-Dempsey's, (one even represented Louis), emerged from the groups on opposite sides of the field. At 10 paces apart they stopped, each surveying his adversary. Pocket knives were discarded, spittle applied to hands and the battle was underway.

Wild haymakers were thrown right and left but suddenly the champ of the city gang drew back and let go with a flying tackle, reminiscent of Oze Simmons, that felled his unsuspecting 4-H'er. They twisted and turned, boxed and wrestled till finally each arose, glowered at the other, shook hands, and retreated to the sidelines to receive the oh's and ah's of their respective cohorts.

* * *

All in all it was very exhilarating—from the sidelines. It reminds us of younger days back home when the north and south side gangs used to meet on the slaughter house grounds down behind the creamery just to see who was to be "king of the hill."

Waterloo Swamps Des Moines

WATERLOO, (AP)—The Waterloo Hawks pounded the offerings of three Des Moines pitchers last night to win the opening game of the series 14 to 4. Julio Bonnetti starting Demon pitcher lasted only one and two thirds inning while Tising, who relieved him fared little better being blasted from the hill in 2 and 2-3 innings. The Hawks took a three run lead in the first and were never headed.

Olympic Team Finishes Tour

Forrest Towns, Glenn Cunningham Stand Out in Victory

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 21 (AP)—America's barnstorming Olympic track and field stars, won five more events today in the concluding program of a three-day international meet.

Forrest (Spec) Towns, the Georgia timber topper, maintained his unbeaten record by capturing the 200 meters hurdles in 24.5 seconds while Glenn Cunningham, who yesterday smashed the world record for 800 meters, made a brilliant finish to win the 1,500 meters run. Other American victories were turned in by Ken Carpenter of Compton, Cal., Foy Draper of Whittier, Cal., and Dave Albritton, Ohio State's great high jumper.

Towns finished three tenths of a second ahead of Lawrence O'Connor of Canada. Draper gained an easy victory in the 300 meters in 34.1 while his nearest rivals, Per Olay Edfeldt and Theunissen of Sweden, were timed in 35 seconds flat.

Cunningham made one of his characteristic "kick" finishes after running fourth until the bell lap. Then he passed Friedrich Schaumberg of Germany and Eric Ne of Sweden with a great spurt to finish in 3:52.8. Schaumberg's time was 3:53.4 and Ne's 3:53.8. Don Lash, the Indiana star was out of condition and dropped out of the race after the first lap.

New York Will Fete Returning Heroes

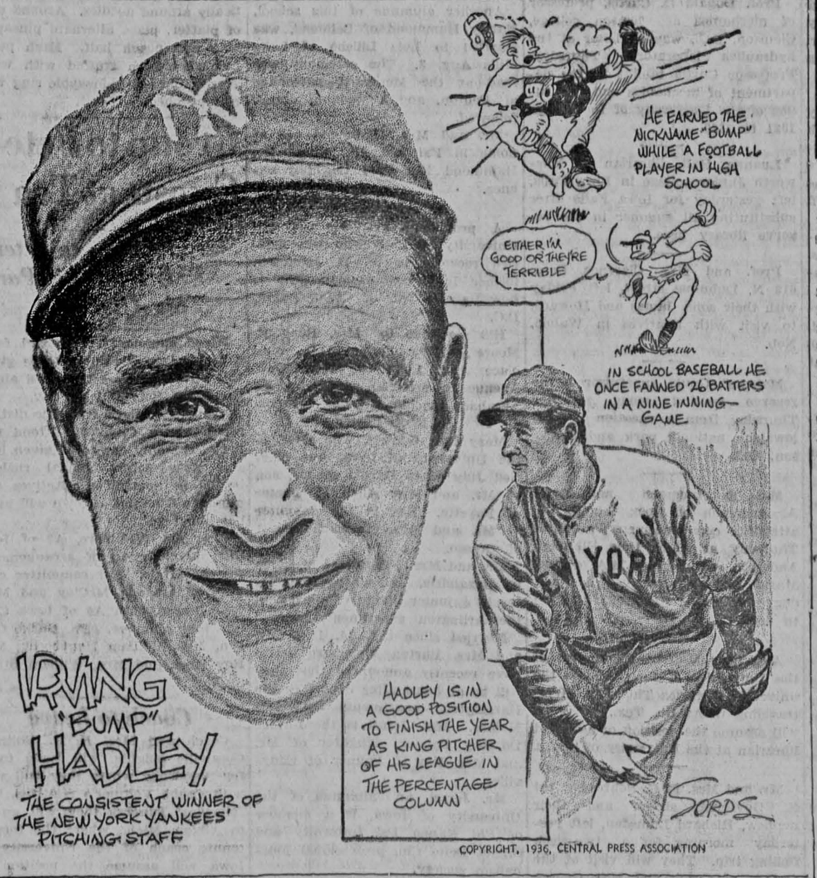
NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (AP)—America's Olympic heroes will swing up lower Broadway's granite canyon, Sept. 3, for an old-time "Walker celebration."

They will ride from the battery to Harlem, up Ticker Tape row, and thence to the Municipal stadium on Randall's island, where they will be presented with medals donated by the city.

These plans were announced today by Stanley H. Howe, executive secretary to Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia.

First of the famous athletes to arrive will be Jesse Owens, winner of four gold medals in the recent games. He will be aboard the Queen Mary Monday and will be greeted by his wife, mother and father, and members of the New York and Cleveland Olympic committees.

YANKS' STAR HURLER



Riggs Faces Parker in Net Tourney Finals

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 21 (AP)—Bobby Riggs of Los Angeles, national clay court champion and ace of the country's younger tennis set, and the youthful but experienced Frankie Parker of Milwaukee and Spring Lake, N.J., became finalists for the fourth time this season today in the historic Newport casino competition.

Riggs, who gained his title at Parker's expense and then bowed to him in the Spring Lake and Longwood bowl tourneys, registered an impressive victory over Joe Hunt, his young townsman, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3.

BOONE, Aug. 21 (AP)—Schukei Motors of Waterloo became a finalist in the state softball tournament here tonight when they defeated Oakland, 4 to 1.

Eight costly errors won the game for the Schukei, four of which came in the second inning, when the Waterloo team brought in four runs on one hit. Harold Speck was the winning pitcher allowing six hits, while Stan Diamond allowed the Schukei but four hits and walked two men.

Score by innings:

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., (AP)—The Davenport Blue Sox last night broke the spell that pitcher Dale Mills has held over them by defeating the Robins 6 to 5, stretching their lead in the Western league to a game and a half.

College Eleven Practices On Fundamentals

CHICAGO, Aug. 21 (AP)—The college all stars put in another session on the rudiments of football today in preparation for their battle with the Detroit Lions at Soldier field under lights Sept. 1.

The drill started with limbering up maneuvers directed by Coach Bo McMillin of Indiana, and was followed by a long drill on passing and kicking. Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, supervised a stiff workout for guards and tackles on offense and defense.

George Roscoe, Minnesota halfback who suffered a fracture on his right cheekbone early in the week, was declared definitely out of the game. He was operated on yesterday and will be unable to work for a month. He is under contract to the Chicago Bears.

Spends Summer Months With Sail, Motor Boats; Will Study Medicine

(Editor's note: This is the 11th in a series of short articles concerning University of Iowa major letter winners who will help carry the Old Gold colors through the 1936 football season.)

By BOB HOGAN
(Daily Iowan Sports Editor)

It's smooth sailing for Homer Harris, Iowa's stellar junior end, out on the coast this year, but it won't be as smooth sailing for the opposing backfield artists that get it into their heads they can circle Harris' end—it just wasn't done last year and probably won't be in vogue this season.

Harris is spending his summer months working for a well-to-do family in Seattle, Wash., his home town. But his work doesn't hold him down to any great degree for he still finds time to operate his own sail and motor boats on the comparatively quiet waters of Puget Sound. What is more, his work and nautical pastime seem to be agreeing with the husky Iowa wingman because he has gained five pounds which will see him tip the scales at an even 200 pounds when Sept. 10 rolls around.

Harris

High School Career

Homer came to Iowa after culminating a very successful high school athletic career. He played end and halfback on the Garfield high school football team for three straight years. Two of those years, he was given all-city honors. In addition to his gridiron activities, he played center on the basketball quintet for two seasons and, in track, as far as is known, he still holds the prep school shot put record with a toss of 51 feet some inches. He plays a mighty sweet game of tennis also.

Harris, probably through the influence of his coach, Brigham Young, former Iowa luminary, enrolled at the University of Iowa two years ago and immediately attracted the attention of not only the Hawkeye coaches but others as well. Homer towers 6 feet two inches which, with his 200 pounds and characteristic walk, attracts an unusual amount of attention.

Good Defensive End

Last year was his sophomore and first year with the Iowa varsity. He started every game on the Hawkeye schedule and finished nearly every battle. Not a flashy player, he is one of the toughest defensive ends Iowa has ever had. Very little yardage was gained around his position last fall. Fairly fast on his feet, he is capable of getting down the field under punts and his long arms are valuable not only in his deadly tackling but also in receiving passes.

Not content with a liberal arts degree or a major in physical education, Harris plans on entering the college of medicine as soon as his collegiate athletic career is finished.

Down The Sports Trail

By PAUL MICKELSON

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (AP)—Down the sports trail for a dash around the big league bases:

Lou and Diz. . . the players who carry the mail are almost unanimous that Lou Gehrig and Dizzy Dean are so far ahead in the races for "most valuable" honor awards this season that they are lonesome. True iron men with an inherent love for baseball, Lou and Diz are in the midst of glamorous years that undoubtedly will enshrine them in baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

The bludgeoning Yankees owe a big wage raise and thanks to the poker faced Joe DiMaggio and the Cards can be thankful for the break that gave them Johnny "Skipper" Mize, but when it comes to real performance they have to award positions number one to Dizzy and Lou, key men deluxe of their victory marchers to date.

Lou, who had to bat around .400 in the closing drive of the 1935 campaign to gain a .329 batting average, is batting around .381 to date, driving in 116 runs and scoring 137—his greatest season since he came up in 1925. His play at first has been almost flawless; his hustle and dash superb.

They overlooked the great Dizzy when they passed around the most valuable player award last year despite his great mark of 28 victories and 12 defeats. The oversight didn't have any effect on the Dizzy one, who so far has won 21 and has a chance to surpass his own record of 30 conquests, collected in 1934.

Furthermore, Dizzy has made one of the most amazing turn-about-faces in baseball history. Last season, he made headline news frequently with temperamental outbursts; this year he did all his exploding as a holdout and has been a nice boy since coming back to work.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21 (AP)—Babe Herman ended his walkout and returned to the Cincinnati Reds today, but it made no difference to the Cubs as they downed the Reds 7 to 2, putting the game on ice with a six-run uprising in the fifth inning.

Cards Lose To Pirates, 5 to 4

Jensen's Homer Proves Margin of Victory; 3 Double Plays

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21 (AP)—The veteran Red Lucas, making use of perfect control, protected a one-run lead and pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

The defeat cost the league-leading Cardinals a game each to the contending New York Giants and Chicago Cubs, both of whom won today.

Forrest Jensen's home run in the fifth inning proved to be the winning tally as three Cardinal double plays, all Frankie Frisch to Leo Durocher to Johnny Mize, kept the Pirates from registering a top-heavy victory.

Terry Moore of the Cardinals hit for the circuit in the fifth inning.

Athletics Down Senators With 3 to 2 Score

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21 (AP)—The Athletics won their third straight game today, coming from behind to beat the Washington Senators, 3 to 2, as Horace Lisenbee bested Buck Newsom in a pitcher's duel.

The A's scored the winning two runs in the sixth on Moses' single, Dean's forceout, Bob Johnson's three-bagger and Pinky Higgins' single. Their other tally came in the fourth on Johnson's single, Stone's two-base boot, and Higgins' long fly.

The Senators scored their runs in the first on successive doubles by Kuhel and Stone and Reynolds' single. After that, Lisenbee permitted only four hits.

One old time rule stated "Pitcher must pitch the ball as near the center of the plate as possible, and the ball must be pitched, not thrown or jerked."

Lawson Hurls As Tiger Win 8 to 6 Game

DETROIT, Aug. 21 (AP)—Roxie Lawson, who pitched to only one batter, was credited with the victory today as Detroit scored four runs, including Goose Goslin's 22nd homer, in the eighth inning to defeat the Chicago White Sox 8 to 6.

Lawson relieved Schoolboy Rowe in the eighth when Rowe's pitching hand was injured slightly in deflecting a grounder. Appling hit into a double play to retire the side and Vic Sorrell finished the game when Lawson was withdrawn for a pinch hitter.

The White Sox also used three pitchers, Merritt Cain being charged with the loss.

Indians Nick Browns, 4-2; Harder Hurls

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians nicked the St. Louis Browns 4 to 2 today for their first victory in five starts.

Roy Weatherly led the Tribe attack with two homers, one in the second and one in the seventh inning, for Cleveland's first two runs.

Mel Harder was credited with his long sought 15th victory, though he had to be relieved for the sixth consecutive time when the Browns threatened in the seventh inning.

With two out, Harder suddenly lost his effectiveness. Lynn Lary doubled to right and Clift hit a home run into the left field bleachers. Julius Solters and Roy Bell followed with singles and when Harder walked Sam West, filling the bases, he was relieved by Thornton Lee. Jim Bottomley ended the inning by succumbing to three called strikes.

Yankees Win From Red Sox

Ferrell Fined $1,000, Suspended After Walking Off Mound

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (AP)—The league-leading Yankees opened their home stand successfully today, downing the Boston Red Sox 4 to 1 behind Monte Pearson's four-hit pitching.

The victory, Pearson's 16th of the season, was clinched when the Yankees shoved three runs across in the sixth off Wes Ferrell.

Ferrell walked from the mound during the scoring splurge without getting orders from Manager Joe Cronin, and was fined $1,000 and suspended indefinitely by the Sox pilot for doing so.

BIG SIX

By the Associated Press

Roy Weatherly, the Cleveland Indians' rookie star, banged out three hits in four times up yesterday to take over the leadership of baseball's batting "Big Six," climbing all the way from third place in the American league to the top with an average of .387. His teammate, Earl Averill, and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees were dropped to second and third, respectively, with their averages unchanged from the previous day. Paul Waner of the Pirates got two hits in three trips to the plate to take over sole possession of third place in the National league, as Frank Demaree of the Cubs slipped out of the leading trio.

Giants Win 10 Straight; Whip Boston 3 to 2

BOSTON, Aug. 21 (AP)—The fast-travelling New York Giants pulled a 3 to 2 decision out of the fire today for their tenth straight victory, as they turned back the Bees' ninth inning rally just short of tying the score.

Gabby Gabler won a suit of clothes from the Giants for turning in his eighth pitching victory, but he wasn't on hand at the finish to receive it, for the Bees blasted him off the mound with their closing splurge, and Dick Coffman wound up the assignment.

Guy Bush went the full distance for the Bees and allowed but nine hits, although four of them came in the first when the Giants scored two of their runs, and two others came in the ninth, when the last New York rally was sent across.

The Bees sent both of their runs across in the ninth, and had the bases loaded when Dick Bartell threw out Al Lopez to end the game. Three straight singles, by Rabbit Warstler, Gene Moore and Baxter Jordan brought in the first run, and Wally Berger's long liner to left field sent the other across.

Four straight singles, by Moore, Burgess Whitehead, Mel Ott and Jim Ripple produced the Giants' two runs in the first inning, and in the ninth, Ott singled, Ripple sacrificed, and Travis Jackson hit safely to bring the other in.

Announce 1936 Iowa Athletic Officials

Joe Magidsohn of Michigan, who will referee two major games and serve as field judge in another, will appear most frequently among the officials at the University of Iowa's 1936 major football games.

Two assignments each have been given to John Schommer of Chicago, Nick Kearns of De Paul, and Jay Wyatt of Missouri, the roster of officials revealed today.

Magidsohn, however, is the only man who will work more than one Iowa game as referee. Fifteen other officials, in addition to the ones named, have been assigned to Iowa contests.

For the two non-conference home games, Carleton and South Dakota, Pete Welsh of Drake has been picked as referee. Each of the other officials for these contests, with one exception, is from the state of Iowa.

Leeper Will Give Decision on Shimek Question Thursday

2-Day Appeal Hearing Before Leeper Closes

Prof. Shimek Introduces Historical Data In Closing Argument

Fate of the Shimek school—the center of a two-day hearing appealing the action of the school board ordering its closing—will probably be determined by next Thursday, County Superintendent W. N. Leeper said last night.

Prof. Bohumil Shimek for whom the school was named introduced historical information yesterday morning concerning its establishment, as Attorney Samuel D. Whiting brought his case for the appellant toward a close. William Horrabin, member of the school board, was the last witness in the hearing, which was closed yesterday afternoon.

Attorneys to Submit Briefs

Superintendent Leeper said attorneys for both sides of the question have been asked to submit briefs setting forth their arguments. The briefs will be filed either next Tuesday or Wednesday, and his written opinion will be ready the next day.

Appeal?

Attorney Samuel Whiting, representing the Shimek parent teachers' association — "If Mr. Leeper's decision is adverse to the Shimek contention undoubtedly the case will be appealed."

Attorney Edwin Wilson, representing the Iowa City school board—"If the decision should rule against us, the next move would lay entirely in the hands of the Iowa City school board."

In his testimony Professor Shimek, a member of the University of Iowa faculty since 1890, declared that ten years ago the superintendent was faced with the same charge—lack of pupils to warrant keeping the school open.

Attorney Edwin B. Wilson, representing the school board, frequently protested Shimek's testimony on historical matters on the grounds that the appeal was not concerned with the past but with the issues at present.

The university botany professor declared he was a special committeeman for the school and as such visited the school often. In reply to Whiting's question as to whether or not he considered the school a fire hazard, Shimek said, "In my recent visits to the school I have not observed any signs that the structure is a fire hazard." The witness was then asked if he saw any economy in closing the school, to which he answered, "I do not—a closed building depreciates very fast. Also there is plenty of territory for expansion in the Shimek district. Furthermore, a small class is much more efficient than a large one, and I also think there are sufficient children in the district to warrant its opening."

Mrs. Woodburn Recalled

As his last witness before resting his case Whiting recalled to the stand Mrs. C. L. Woodburn, president of the Iowa City Parent-Teacher association, and also president of the Shimek school parents' association.

In answer to the attorney's question regarding Mary McGuire, Mrs. Woodburn declared, "I have heard she was directly responsible for the break up of the Shimek school the time before, because the pupils would not go to her, and their parents would not force them to."

It was brought out in testimony that Miss McGuire was teaching at Shimek school at that time. She is now employed at the Horace Mann school as instructor for backward children.

Swisher Testifies

At the opening of the afternoon session, Wilson called J. A. Swisher, member of the school board, to the stand. He was asked why the board deemed it wise to close the school. Swisher said, "The board felt there would be no particular hazard imposed on the Shimek school children because of the added walk to the Mann school."

Throughout the entire hearing Attorney Whiting had been trying to establish the fact that the route along which the children in the Shimek district would have to walk is dangerous because of traffic.

Swisher declared further, "When elected to the board a member should have the welfare of the general public in mind. That is the way the board felt in this action. It is simply a matter of doing the best for the group. If we were increasing a hazard I'd be the last man in the world to vote for the closing."

Presents Figures

Mrs. J. Bradley Rust, secretary to Supt. Iver A. Opstad, was another of Wilson's witnesses. She presented attendance and census prospectus figures of Shimek and other schools in the city.

Mr. Horrabin, called to the stand by the attorney for the school board, testified that U. S. highway 261, where the Shimek school children would have to cross to get to Horace Mann is no more dangerous than any other arterial highway that many children have to cross to get to other schools in the city.

AROUND THE TOWN with MERLE MILLER

Ozzie Simmons

Ozzie Simmons, who looks peculiarly like a Negro Othello, sits on the campus many an afternoon of late and studies complex plays from the mind of his coach Ossie Solem . . . He will say no word of this year's team, will merely say: "I does my best last year. I do my best this year."

Henry Emonds

G. Henry Emonds, who only a few years ago was ace-high as a magazine writer, was making $10,000 a month or more, is today working on a western Iowa weekly, it is reported here. . . He is "barren" he will tell you. . . The ideas just don't come any more.

Notice?

Ever notice those people who appear most nervous ordinarily stand up best in a crisis? . . . People who talk the most, usually know the least. . . College successes are often the worst failures in life. . .

Personality

One of the new personalities on the campus this fall—I understand —will be Nancy Grovner of the "theater" . . . She—at 18—has already appeared in original versions of Broadway shows, is this summer playing in a Maine summer theater.

University of Iowa Seeks More Funds For NYA Work Here

The University of Iowa must wait until Sept. 1 to learn if the federal government will increase the appropriation for NYA work here, Prof. Lonzo Jones, assistant dean of men, said yesterday upon his return from Maryville, Mo., where he attended a conference with representatives of six other states and Richard Brown, assistant director of the national youth administration.

Because of the increased number of applications for aid, the representatives recommended the federal government raise the amount of financial assistance to colleges and schools.

"Every year we get from 800 to 1,200 more applications than can be allowed on the present basis of 12 per cent of the 1934 school enrollment, and it looks like this year the total will be even greater," Professor Jones said.
