11th Child Welfare Conference Opens On Campus Today

Annual Event Will Continue For 3 Days

Hundreds of Parents, Teachers and Social Workers Expected

TODAY'S CONFERENCE PROGRAM

Morning
General session, senate chamber, Old Capitol.

10 a.m.—Address of welcome, President Eugene A. Gilmore.
10:15 a.m.—Lecture, "Special Problems of the School Child," Dr. James S. Plant, director of the Essex County Juvenile clinic, Newark, N.J.

11 a.m.—Lecture "Guiding the Child in the Home," Prof. William E. Blatz.

Afternoon
2:30-4 p.m.—Round table discussions.

Round table I—"Special Problems of the School Child," Dr. Plant, chairman, senate chamber, Old Capitol.

Round table II—"Guiding the Child in the Home," Prof. Blatz, chairman, house chamber, Old Capitol.

Evening
General session, chemistry auditorium.

8 p.m.—Lecture, "The Child and His Emotions," Dr. Plant.
8:45—Program of sound films.

Hundreds of Iowa parents, together with teachers, social workers and child welfare specialists, will arrive in Iowa City today to attend first sessions of the 11th annual conference on child development and parent education. The conference will continue tomorrow and Thursday.

Eighteen speakers from the United States and Canada, reporting new ideas in the field of child welfare, will appear on the program.

Theme
"The Child as a Personality" will be the theme of today's meetings. Tomorrow the conference will consider "Contributions of Research and Service to Child Adjustment" and Thursday "The Child and His Community."

How to understand the child, how to guide him, how to build up a home and school life appropriate for encouragement and development, how to provide useful activities, how to keep adults as well as children happy—may be considered the central theme of the conference.

Sponsors
The conference is under the auspices of the Iowa State Council for Child Study and Parent Education, composed of 17 Iowa organizations, and is directed by the Iowa Child Welfare Research station and the extension division.

President Eugene A. Gilmore will officially welcome delegates at the opening session this morning at 10 o'clock. He will be followed by Dr. James S. Plant, director of the Essex County Juvenile clinic, Newark, N.J., who will speak on "Special Problems of the School Child."

"Guiding the Child in the Home" will be discussed by Prof. W. E. Blatz, Canadian psychologist from the University of Toronto, at 11 o'clock this morning.

Round Tables
Round table discussions of the morning addresses will occupy visitors from 2:30 to 4 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Plant and Professor Blatz will serve as chairmen of their respective round tables.

"The Child and His Emotions" is the title of tonight's lecture by Dr. Plant at 8 o'clock. It will be broadcast by station WSUI.

A series of sound films, including "The Growth of Infant Behavior," "Tom Sawyer," "Young America," "Safety" and "Crime School," will be shown at 8:45 tonight.

Windsors "Step Out"
VIENNA, Austria. (AP)—The light-hearted Duke and Duchess of Windsor returned last night to the Viennese night clubs which they enjoyed last year, on a vacation cruise before their marriage. The couple lunched at the British legation, went shopping during the afternoon, and then went dancing.

STEEL STRIKE MEDIATION BOARD IN SESSION

Confronted by a Republic Steel corporation demand that it make its first duty an investigation of the "breakdown of law enforcement," the mediation board appointed by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to bring order out of chaos in the steel industry, is pictured meeting in Cleveland with James Dewey, federal conciliator, standing, left, and Ralph Lind, regional director of the National Labor Relations board. Members of the mediation board shown seated are, left to right, Chairman Charles Taft, Lloyd Garrison and Edward McGrady.—Central Press.

Education For Safety

IOWA'S DEATHS from automobile accidents have now reached a total of 268 for 1937, 28 more than at the same time last year.

This fact will probably create nothing more than a polite yawn as a response from most readers. For it has been widely demonstrated that talking and writing about automobile safety is an ineffectual method of dealing with our high-way death problem.

"What we need," says Prof. A. H. Lauer of Iowa State college, "is a well integrated, systematic course in safety in every Iowa school. It needs to be a course that goes farther than lectures and slogans; it should include actual practice and performance. In studying automobile safety, students should be given training behind the wheel."

Most persons are agreed that Professor Lauer is correct in his observations, but the high schools themselves are powerless to do more than talk about it. In one large high school near Iowa City, the school board recently ordered the principal to begin a course in safety. It was to have as much significance in the curriculum as physical education.

The principal, while enthusiastic, was faced with these problems: There was no teacher qualified to teach the subject. There was no adequate textbook. If a textbook is possible, there was no mechanical equipment with which to teach the fundamentals of driving.

The result was a study of reactions—interesting, but almost useless in teaching the student how to drive; a few assembly talks; the reading of "And Sudden Death"; and a general feeling that "something should be done about it."

With superintendents, principals, and teachers from all over the middle west gathered at the university for summer work, however, it would seem that perhaps here is the place to start genuine safety instruction.

A real course in driving safety would be one of the most practical that the university could offer public school teachers at this time—and there is no better place for a course in safety education to begin.

The French Like a Change

THE FRENCH political caldron is seething again. After a brief period of security under Blum, the leftist parties have again succeeded in overthrowing the government and casting the nation into that state of uncertainty which always results from interim governments.

French parties are notoriously unable to combine into the strong factions necessary for a cabinet government in an orderly way; and the most amusing thing about them is the weird fear of appearing reactionary which haunts their leaders. The typical Frenchman wants a conservative party with a radical name. He wants to appear progressive and yet keep the situation practically the same as it was in his father's time. Some wit once remarked that the French people are like an opera chorus which sings "March, march, march" and never moves a foot in any direction.

The most conservative group in Blum's popular front government is the radical socialist party and it is this party which President Le-Brun has asked to form the new government. Just what the radical socialist leaders can do to solve the financial crisis is vague enough in the minds of most observers to suggest that it may also be rather indefinite in the minds of the new cabinet members.

First, of course, the new government will attempt to lure the "deserted" French capital back home by passing a few telling bits of legislation to discourage the communists, who were directly responsible for Blum's downfall. That will not exactly result in harmony and good will.

Next the new government will try to attract foreign capital to France. Possibly London may be enticed by a few particularly choice items in French bonds, but possibility of help from New York has been ruled out by the Johnson act. Blum himself tried that. He issued French bonds redeemable in francs, pounds or dollars—thinking to attract the investor who feared inflation in his native country. He then asked President Roosevelt if a New York bank might serve to peddle these securities, and the president answered that unfortunately the Johnson act forbids such sale.

So the situation facing the new government when it is formed is not very favorable. It will attempt to do many of the things the popular front has already tried to do, but it is obvious that they will be no more skilful. They may try several new devices with partial success, but they will result only in internal dissension.

Briefly, there is good reason to believe that France would keep her international reputation much brighter if Blum were allowed to retain the prime minister's portfolio. But the French have always liked a change—as long as nothing is radically changed—and perhaps the new prime minister will be more successful in repeating the experiments of the recent Blum government.

Facing Our Insanity Problem

AT ONE TIME—a century or two ago—the causes and cures of insanity were unknown; no provisions were made for the care of the insane. Sometimes they were placed on "insane" farms where they were compelled to do menial labor for their support; some were chained in public squares where they became objects of ridicule; others were put in public cages where the curious flocked to see them as we go to see animals at our present-day zoos.

But today such conditions exist no longer. We realize, or should, that insanity is a disease and a disease that is, for the most part, curable. We now house our insane in "hospitals" where competent, well-trained doctors not only take care of them but work for their eventual cure.

At one time Iowa was a pioneer state in the field of insane hospitalization; large appropriations were made for work and study in that field.

But today Iowa's care of its insane is a disgrace known throughout the nation. Its four state hospitals—at Mt. Pleasant, Independence, Clarinda and Cherokee—are already overcrowded. In some places as many as double the original capacity are housed. In addition the staffs are overworked and underpaid; in many instances there are not enough helpers for proper protection. Next year will be even worse, it appears; the state legislature's answer to these conditions during its last session was a $20,000 cut in the yearly appropriation.

There is only one real answer for the immediate solution of this, an increasingly serious problem. We must provide sanitary, healthful living quarters for our insane; we must have trained and adequate attendants. To do that we need more funds.

In the second place Iowa must have complete provision for the sterilization of its incurable insane. Dr. Robert A. Stewart, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Independence, reports 70 per cent of insanity is hereditary. Had Iowa passed such laws years ago its hospitals for the insane would not be filled, much less overcrowded.

The time for action is now. As a forward-looking, modern state we must face a problem that can no longer be ignored.

The America's cup races will soon be held and yachting fans from coast to coast are eagerly awaiting the event. They cannot wait to see which side will win the first protest.

The yachting classic is a contest staged by yachtsmen representing the United States and England and they always finish the races in that order.

To settle the international championship the yachts sail in all directions which proves the pilots are as much at sea as the spectators.

President Jack Oakie rushes to rise as rapidly as that much academic avoider could be said to rise—and report that he will confer an honorary degree upon Frank Fay, trigger-tongued commencement orator of the Oakie college graduation exercises tonight at 7:30 over the WABC-Columbia network.

After the commencement program Oakie goes on a vacation and the summer session will begin June 29 under the guidance of the Dean of Swing, Benny Goodman. Honest Jack Oakie will be back as the head of "Ephus Hall" for the fall semester beginning Sept. 28.

A number of unusual songs, including one by King Henry VIII and many of them never before performed on the radio, are to be given by the Madrigal Singers in a WABC-Columbia network program today devoted to a comprehensive history of part singing from early Elizabeth times.

Bernard Herrman is to direct the singers in this "Story of Song" broadcast from 1:30 to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

More than a ton of equipment, valued at close to $15,000, will be scattered at strategic points along the course of the annual Poughkeepsie Regatta today to enable CBS to give a complete and accurate story of the races in an exclusive broadcast.

WSUI HIGHLIGHTS: "The Child and his Emotions," lecture by Dr. James S. Plant of Newark, N. J., given in connection with the conference on child development and parent education, will be broadcast tonight at 8 o'clock.

TODAY'S WSUI PROGRAM: 9 a.m.—Travel's radio review.

Why Strained Vegetables, Fruits Are Fed to Babies

By LOGAN CENDENING, M.D.

QUITE A CHANGE has come over the practice of infant feeding in the last few years, especially in respect to an exclusively milk diet. Milk is the perfect food. Certainly as nature intended it, it is the perfect infant food, but as nothing in this world is completely perfect, it has one or two defects. One is that it contains too little iron, and the other is that it may contain no vitamins C and D. For many years children's specialists have been adding vitamins C and D to the infant's diet, usually using orange juice for vitamin C and cod liver oil for vitamin D. In late years, they have been advocating the addition of some substance which will furnish iron at a very early age.

Nature provides for the deficiency of iron in milk by supplying a reserve of iron in the liver and in the blood itself of the child before he is expected to last until the child is about six months old, but it is usually exhausted before that, so that it is recommended that the iron-containing foods should be added to the infant's diet by at least the third or fourth month.

The best foods to supply iron are egg yolk and pigmented vegetables, such as spinach, carrots, etc. Cereals also contain a considerable amount of iron. It is here that the usefulness of the strained fruits and vegetables in infant feeding comes in. These are now supplied by many manufacturing firms in canned form. Packed singly, they include asparagus, beets, carrots, celery, beans, peas, spinach and tomatoes.

Strained fruits are also packed singly. Vegetable soups form a combination of strained vegetables, sometimes with cereal or beef broth.

A New Yorker At Large

By JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK — San Francisco's few blocks of sin abandoned, the old Barbary Coast, has been immortalized in song, story and pictures. But no one apparently has thought it worth while to make similar records of Brooklyn's Barbary Coast, along which, in its heyday, hell popped just as loudly.

At the tip-end of Carnarvie, facing the occasionally garbage-laden waters of Jamaica Bay, an amusement park was erected a good many years ago. It was called the Barbary Coast.

Its isolation made it an ideal spot for lusty, riotous gatherings. Saloons, houses of ill fame, formed a glittering cluster that bloomed with the night. It was one of those places which the police discreetly left alone. Saturday nights, this devil's spot reared like an inferno and one old-timer tells us that one of the sights of all-time was to slip out with the dawn and see the scores of battle-scarred drunks "sleeping it off" on the beach.

Most of the male revelers were fishermen, sailors, roustabouts. Fights were so common that no one stopped to watch them.

With the coming of prohibition, the saloons and beer gardens went to pot and the wild spenders moved to other sections. Negro pleasure seekers took over the Barbary Coast, welcomed by the small merchants and hot dog vendors who still remained. Bootleg liquor started flowing. Speakeasies sprung up.

Still a more or less isolated section of Jamaica Bay, it became one of the centers of the rum running trade. For a while, it seemed that the Barbary Coast might come into its own again. There were some great brawls there on Saturday nights... knife fights... the dance halls took on some of their old wild, wicked splendor. But even before repeal, the coast guard was making inroads on the rum running trade and the Barbary Coast again was slipping.

Today the gilt and glitter is faded... the piers are rotting... there is a smell of decay. The ground is littered with white, chalky substance, which you examine and find not sand but clam shells.

There still are beer gardens there but they are never crowded, never rowdy. It is an amusement park now, with the ordinary carousels, tunnel ride, shooting galleries, penny arcades, hot dog stands. Those who visit the place are mostly honest laborers with their families. On week-ends, the women and children wander about while the men go out on the fishing boats and dock at the old piers, a day of fishing for $2.

Receiving a guest last night, Prof. H. Coleman, 345, retained in his pocket, Marie S. N.Y., and Green Miss Schuetz of the Crane and dam Normal school. From here she is in Greenbay.

SCREEN LIFE

By HUBBARD KEAVY: HOLLYWOOD—Ran into a new Taylor the other day. He isn't so handsome as M.G.M.'s Taylor Beautiful Bob. In fact, he's kind of homely. This is Ferris Taylor. Ferris Taylor looks like another Guy Kibbee. But whether that resemblance kept him from getting into the movies all these years can only be guessed. I think it did.

Taylor, came here seven years ago, from Walls Walla and points northwest, where he had run stock company's for years. He wanted to take a shot at ethereal acting. He got a bit here and an extra role there, but nothing that amounted to much.

There All The Time: Meanwhile, Guy Kibbee was playing the parts Taylor might have been playing—if he had been in the right place at the right time.

A few months ago, Kibbee left the Warner lot. By accident, Taylor was hired to play a bit—to speak one solitary line—in "The Deep South." All he had to say was, "Wonder what's goin' on here?" Well, he could say that line and get it over with and collect his $25.

He got his cue, all right. But instead of saying his single line he pulled out his handkerchief and wiped imaginary perspiration from his bald head before he spoke. Such a trick is permitted—unless it detracts from the star.

Taylor told me, he just what he'd hoped for. He was taking a long chance. The director might have liked the little piece of business—but perhaps he might not. "You're all right," he told Taylor later, "Going to use you in my next one."

The director, Mervyn LeRoy did. Today Taylor is playing an important role—and his best, by far, in Hollywood—in "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air." It's a role Guy Kibbee would be playing, if he hadn't left for another fellow's yard.

Fans Favor Louis in Tonight's Clash.

Championship Fight Moves In Chaos to Ring

Wary Betting Men Figure Bomber to Win by Knockout

By ALAN GOULD
 CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—To the somewhat weary strains of a well-worn overture marked more by confusing overtones than by anything resembling the feverish crescendo of the old days, the world heavyweight prize fight moved tonight toward a climax for the two unpredictable—Jimmy Braddock, the under-dog champion, and Joe Louis, the challenging Negro favorite.

Nevertheless, Chicago's first big title match since the halcyon days of Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey—now just a couple of ringside notables—took shape as the most profitable championship undertaking in seven years, despite the obstacles it has had to overcome and the handicaps of ballyhooing a "battle of ifs."

If the rain clouds hold off tomorrow and the final 24 hours of box office business develop an impulsive rush by wavering cash customers, Co-Promoter Mike Jacobs expects upwards of 60,000 to pay

Jimmy Braddock

Joe Louis

Tonight's championship fight between James J. Braddock and Joe Louis will be broadcast over a national hook-up from Comiskey Park in Chicago. The main event will start between 8:30 and 9 o'clock.

nearly $800,000 to see whether Braddock's first title defense can stave off the challenging power of Louis for 15 rounds.

There's a small prospect that Comiskey park, sealed to handle 75,000 fans and a million-dollar "house," will be sold out. If Jacobs' forecast is fulfilled, however, the fight will top any heavyweight bout of the post-depression period except the non-title bout in which Louis knocked out Max Baer two years ago in Yankee stadium.

The Baer-Louis fight touched the magic million dollar mark but not since Max Schmeling won the title on a foul from Jack Sharkey in 1926, has any heavyweight championship bout drawn as much as $750,000.

If the wary betting men and wiser majority of experts have figured things out correctly, Louis will win, probably by a knockout, and become the second Negro in prize fighting history to wear the heavyweight crown. John Arthur (Jack) Johnson, first Jim Jeffries just 27 years ago.

Louis is the first Negro even to get a "shot" at the crown since Johnson lost it to big Jess Willard at Havana, Cuba, in 1915.

He's still a hot choice, still equipped with the advantages that belong to youth and punching power, but he's no longer invincible. In fact the one-time Bomber has looked so bad to the critics, during his final few workouts, that he has lost much of his expert backing and caused some shortening of betting odds.

An Associated Press checkup today in some of the country's main centers of wagering activity indicated Louis will be no better than a two to one favorite by the time he climbs into the ring at the White Sox ball park tomorrow night, soon after 8:30 p.m. (C.S.T.).

Braddock, first to reach the scene of battle, sped to town early this afternoon after breaking camp at Grand Beach, Mich. The champion, with his board of strategy headed by Muttager Joe Gould and Trainer Doc Robb, was established in an apartment on the south side, not far from the ball park.

Fightin' Talk From The Training Camps

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—Here is what Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock and Challenger Joe Louis had to say in pre-battle statements:

The champion: "I will retain my title by a knockout within eight rounds. Joe Louis is a great fighter and I expect the hardest fight of my career, but I am confident I will still be heavyweight champion after tomorrow night."

The challenger: "I am fit, ready and confident for Braddock and will win the heavyweight championship of the world. I intend to fight as I always have, moving in and taking charge of the battle."

'BITS about SPORTS

By JOHN MOONEY

CHICAGO, Ill., June 21 — Joe Louis, the Septa Slugger, the Detroit Destroyer, the Brown Bomber (choose any of those cognomens you desire) is scheduled to meet Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock here tomorrow night in a 15 round boxing match for the heavyweight title of the world.

The general consensus of opinion among cauliflower boys is that Louis will lift the crown from Jim's sagging brow, and the bettors, what few they are, are backing their boasts with 3 to 1 odds.

Louis has everything in his favor — youth, power, physique — everything but the fighting heart of that gallant Irishman, who has, in the last few years, surmounted almost impossible obstacles to reach the top.

In the first place, Joe Louis is 23 years old as contrasted to Braddock's 31 or 32 years, depending on which you believe, the record books or Joe Gould. A decided advantage in Louis' favor.

In weight they are practically the same. Louis scales 200 to Braddock's 197.

Braddock is an inch taller than his dusky rival, but both are well over the six foot marker.

Louis' reach stretches an inch longer than the champion's, which cannot be overlooked, and this gives him another advantage.

Their chests, normal and expanded, are practically even, but Louis has 14 inch biceps as contrasted to Braddock's 13 inch measurement. The forearm measurements are the same.

Braddock is thicker through the waist, thighs, and calves than Louis, but this is not to his advantage it seems to us.

On the basis of these measurements we pick Joe Louis to defeat Jim Braddock here tomorrow night in Comiskey park.

We said before that one could not measure a fighting heart, and it is upon this hope that the Braddock supporters rest their hopes.

It seems to me that Braddock must be heavier through the legs and hips and mid-section than his rival — spots that are a handicap rather than an advantage. It is foolish to suppose that Braddock's 31-year-old legs will ever be as strong as the legs of the younger Louis, for Age is one fighter that wears his opponent down, not seeking a quick knockout, but pressing in and knowing that he will get the decision sooner or later. In reality Jim will be fighting two men tomorrow night, and so in spite of ancestral pride and sentimentality for Jimmy, we still must pick who we think will be the winner.

BUT, we also thought Max Schmeling didn't have a chance against Louis last year at this time. Least we forgot.

Huskies Oarsmen Win in Annual Race
 FOUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., June 21 (AP) — University of Washington oarsmen, favored to retain their intercollegiate varsity eight-oared championship tomorrow, gained their first victory of the annual regatta today in the mile race for four-oared "pickle" boats, or substitute combinations.

The Huskies, timed in five minutes, 28 seconds, won by a second from California, with Navy third in 5:40, and Cornell trailing, five seconds back of Navy. The Cornell entry was a four-oared boat without cox.

The race was held after the American Rowing Coaches association, in its annual meeting, elected Tim Ten Eyck, "grand old man" of Syracuse rowing, president.

Will Louis Be King Tonight?

By PAUL MICKELSON

KENOSHA, Wis., June 21 (AP) — In his rented villa by the blue waters of Lake Michigan, perhaps the strangest character in all boxing history loafed today while the sport world wondered if he could become king.

A year and two days ago, Joe Louis was acclaimed the superman of the ring—a scowling, unmerciful killer who struck terror in the hearts of every man he faced—yes, even Max Schmeling trembled when he climbed through the ropes to walk what everyone said would be his "last mile."

Today, as he waited the clang of the gong that would send him against one of the weakest heavyweight champions on record, Louis was rated as just an ordinary fighter with a confused brain. The question on everyone's mind was whether he was good enough to beat James J. Braddock, a man who would have been a poor 100 to 1 shot against him a year and two days ago.

The big question wasn't who was the better man. It was who was the worse fighter.

Possibly Louis has been playing a game and helping the pre-fight ballyhoo to pack paying customers into Comiskey park, scene of the big championship battle tomorrow night. But the experts who have watched him carefully during the past week doubt it. Though in perfect physical condition and as happy as a honey bear, the honey complexioned Negro has appeared sluggish, slow and bewildered except for occasional flashes of his old time viciousness and meanness in the squared arena.

On Saturday and Sunday, as he completed his four weeks training, Louis looked his worst. In his semifinal workout, he was outpointed by two sparmates. Yesterday, one of them, Tiger Halstrom from Wheeling, W. Va., actually had the Brown Bomber groggy and reeling along the ropes when the workout was suddenly halted.

The fact that a sudden downpour of rain had descended at Lake Front stadium and left the canvas of the ring wet was some excuse for Louis' dismal showing in his final drill. Halstrom went about his work like a man who had been kept in check long enough and wanted to show up his boss with his last chance. Meeting Louis in an old fashioned toe-to-toe slugfaring match, Halstrom drove him back with a flurry of lefts and rights and then whipped over two good rights that made Louis blink and hang on the ropes. He seemed bewildered. So did his trainer, sly Jack Blackburn, who has been trying to teach Joe a good defense.

Budge Heads Advance

Favorite Leads In Tennis Meet

Crawford Makes Exciting Comeback In Opening Round

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 21 (AP)—Don Budge, tall red-haired Oakland, Cal., favorite for the crown, led an American advance into the second round of the All-England tennis championships today but the hero of Wimbledon's opening day was 29-year-old John Herbert (Jack) Crawford, veteran Australian campaigner.

Crawford supplied practically all the excitement afforded by the opening round of men's singles as he defeated Roderich Menzel, towering Czech who was seeded sixth, 6-4, 7-9, 4-6, 6-3, 5-4.

The Australian, who won the title in 1933 but was believed to have slipped so far that it wasn't necessary to seed him this time, proved to the thrilled center court audience he still possesses one of the soundest games in the world when he's right. Menzel almost pulled the battle out of the fire when he came within one point of drawing even in the final set after Crawford had gained a 6-1 lead. The Australian, however, had enough left to survive.

Accompanying Budge into the second round were his American Davis cup team-mates, alling Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta, fifth seeded player; Wayne Sabin of Hollywood, Cal.; Frankie Parker of Milwaukee, and Gene Mako of Los Angeles, as well as the young Kansas City player, Hal Surface.

Budge, the top-seeded player and heavy favorite for the crown Fred Perry relinquished, won a routine victory over Norman G. Farquharson, South Africa Davis cup player, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1. Grant, still troubled by a heavy cold, did no more running than was absolutely necessary in beating J. M. Hunt of England, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5, but appeared surprisingly chipper for a youngster who had just arisen from a sick bed.

Allen Comfortable

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Johnny Allen of the Cleveland Indians spent a "very comfortable day" in Boston's Palmer memorial hospital yesterday after an operation for an acute appendicitis Sunday night. Dr. Irving J. Walker described Allen's condition as "good." He will be confined to the hospital for 11 or 12 days, Dr. Walker said, and probably will be lost to the Indians for a month.

Riggs Retains National Title

California Youth Becomes Third Man To Win Title Twice

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—Bobby Riggs of Los Angeles retained his national clay courts tennis single championship today, defeating Joe Hunt, a fellow townsman, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In winning the title, Riggs became the third man in the 27-year-old history of the meet to win the title twice in as many years. His predecessors were Bill Tilden, who reigned supreme from 1922 to 1927, and Bryan Grant, who won the crown in 1934 and 1935.

Riggs, who defeated Hunt recently in the southern tournament at Nashville, Tenn., was much too steady at baseline play for his opponent, even though Hunt scored six more placements than did the victor.

The match was continued from the point at which it was rained out Sunday. At that time Riggs had won the first set and was leading in the second, 4-3. Riggs, incidentally, was suffering from a "charley horse" and the rainstorm gave him a much needed rest.

150 Here For Press Meeting

Iowa Newspaper Mechanical Men Hold Convention

Nearly 150 executives of composing, press and stereotype departments of daily papers in Iowa and surrounding states are attending the 11th annual Iowa Daily Newspaper Mechanical conference which opened yesterday morning in the new Press-Citizen building and continues through today.

Last night, the visitors were guests at a dinner sponsored by printing supply house representatives who are also attending the conference.

Mayor Myron J. Walker welcomed the delegates at yesterday's opening session, led by Ed C. Funk of the Waterloo Courier, president of the conference.

The last of the four sessions, this afternoon, will be an election of next year's officers.

Speakers on yesterday's program included Harry S. Bunker, general manager of the Press-Citizen, Howard Lee of the Ottumwa Courier, Earl Anderson of the Rockford, Ill., Star-Republic, A. H. Parks of Chicago, and R. R. Hill, supervising traffic engineer of the Associated Press bureau in Des Moines.

New Director

Madellene King of Prairie City, who was graduated from the women's physical education department June 7, arrived here yesterday to take charge of her duties of the Iowa City Recreation Center. Miss King has been appointed summer director of the center.

Blister Bugs Infest Farms

Small Black Insect In Rural Districts Stripping Foliage

An epidemic of blister bugs has become serious in Johnson county during the last two days, Emmett C. Gardner, county agent, said yesterday.

Described as a slim, black insect about an inch long with small head and prominent antennae, the beetle has stripped foliage from trees and alfalfa throughout the county. Several calls have been received from Iowa City reporting the beetle Gardner said.

The blister beetle larvae destroy large numbers of grasshopper eggs, Gardner added.

An effective spray, which is the best treatment, is easily made by mixing four pounds of lead arsenate with 50 gallons of water.

CONSERVATION GROUP TO PLAN SOIL PROGRAM

Members and township committee chairmen of the Agricultural Conservation association of Johnson county will meet at the county agent's office in the postoffice tomorrow at 8 p. m., Emmett C. Gardner, county agent, announced yesterday.

Plans for the 1938 soil conservation program will be formulated, and the association budget for 1937 will be approved.

Odd Fellows Meet At Regular Session

The regular meeting of the Odd Fellows will be held tonight at 7:30 at the Odd Fellow clubrooms.

Routine business will be considered.

A presidential poll was a poll to end all polls.

Collection

One of the finest private collections of the better books I've seen is that of the English prof who's devoted his entire library to rare editions of Rabelais, Boccaccio and Arabian Nights—unexpurgated.

Plan Free Swimming Courses

Red Cross To Instruct Boys

Youths From 9 To 15 Invited to Join Classes at Dipper

Sponsored by the Johnson county Red Cross, free swimming courses will be offered to all boys between the ages of nine and 15 at the Big Dipper from July 1 to 3 and July 8 to 10, Arthur Boss, chairman of the county Red Cross committee, announced last night.

Both beginners' and junior life saving classes will be conducted by Edward McCloy, A I of Iowa City, from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. The course is divided to allow for water changes in the pool, Boss explained.

Those not having swimming suits may rent them, be continued. In event of bad weather, the course will be postponed.

Boys who desire to register for the course may do so by filling out the coupon appearing on this page and mailing it either to Arthur Boss, 82 Rundell street, or dropping it in the box provided in the Daily Iowan newroom.

$24,000 BONDS TO GO ON SALE

A $24,000 issue of bonds will be placed on sale by the treasurer's office at 10 a. m. Thursday. This sale of bonds, authorized by the county board of supervisors, is to cover the existing indebtedness of Johnson county for the benefit of the poor.

Funeral Rites For Mrs. L. Myers Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral service for Mrs. Lillian Myers, 63, 1123 E. College street, will be tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Oathout funeral chapel. The Rev. Richard E. McEvoy will officiate, and burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Myers, who had been ill for several months, suffered a stroke last February. She died Sunday night in Mercy hospital.

Born in Clinton June 15, 1874, Mrs. Myers came to Johnson county 60 years ago with her parents, John and Mary Whitsel, and had lived here ever since.

She is survived by her husband, George Myers; two sons, Fred Ruppert, and Harold Ruppert, both of Iowa City; two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Ebberhart of Chicago and Mrs. Jennie Watkins of Toledo, Ohio, and two brothers, John Whitsel of Clinton and James Whitsel of Cedar Rapids.

Supervisors to Meet

The meeting of the board of supervisors will be in the courthouse Thursday, Frank J. Krall, chairman of the board, announced yesterday.

Driver Fined, Loses License

Man Involved In Lone Tree Crash Is Brought Into Court

Charged with reckless driving, William Varney of Washington, Ia., was fined $25 and costs, and his driver's license was suspended for 60 days in Justice of the Peace J. M. Kadlec's court yesterday.

Varney, returning from a dance early Sunday morning with nine passengers, was involved in a collision one mile north of Lone Tree, on highway 22. Varney's machine was badly wrecked, but the other car escaped serious damage.

State Highway Patrolman James Gildroy filed the information.

Firemen Summoned

The fire department answered a call to the home of Dwight M. Woods, 218 W. Benton street, at 11:30 a. m. Sunday. The fire, which resulted in little damage, was caused by a defective gasoline stove.

OPERATING COST OF SCHOOLS IS $59,530 HERE

The operating cost of the Iowa City school district, excluding instructors' salaries, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, totalled $59,530, according to a report of the Iowa Taxpayers association.

The group reported that the average daily attendance to schools here was 2,178 for the same year, making the average cost per pupil $27.33. The local expenditure was $3.10 above the average cost per student in the 108 Iowa cities reported in the survey.

Costs included in the committee's report were general control costs, instructional supplies, transportation, auxiliary activities, coordinate work, debt service, operation expense, maintenance of plant, fixed charges and capital outlay.

The total expenditure of the schools of the state was $4,858,642. Average costs on the per pupil basis ranged from $37.34 spent by the Osage school district to $12.97 for the schools of Mystic.

Iowa City ranked 25th in average student costs.

Cedar Rapids Taxi Driver Fined Here

Earl Wilson, Cedar Rapids taxi driver charged with passing a cad on the crest of a hill, was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace J. M. Kadlec yesterday.

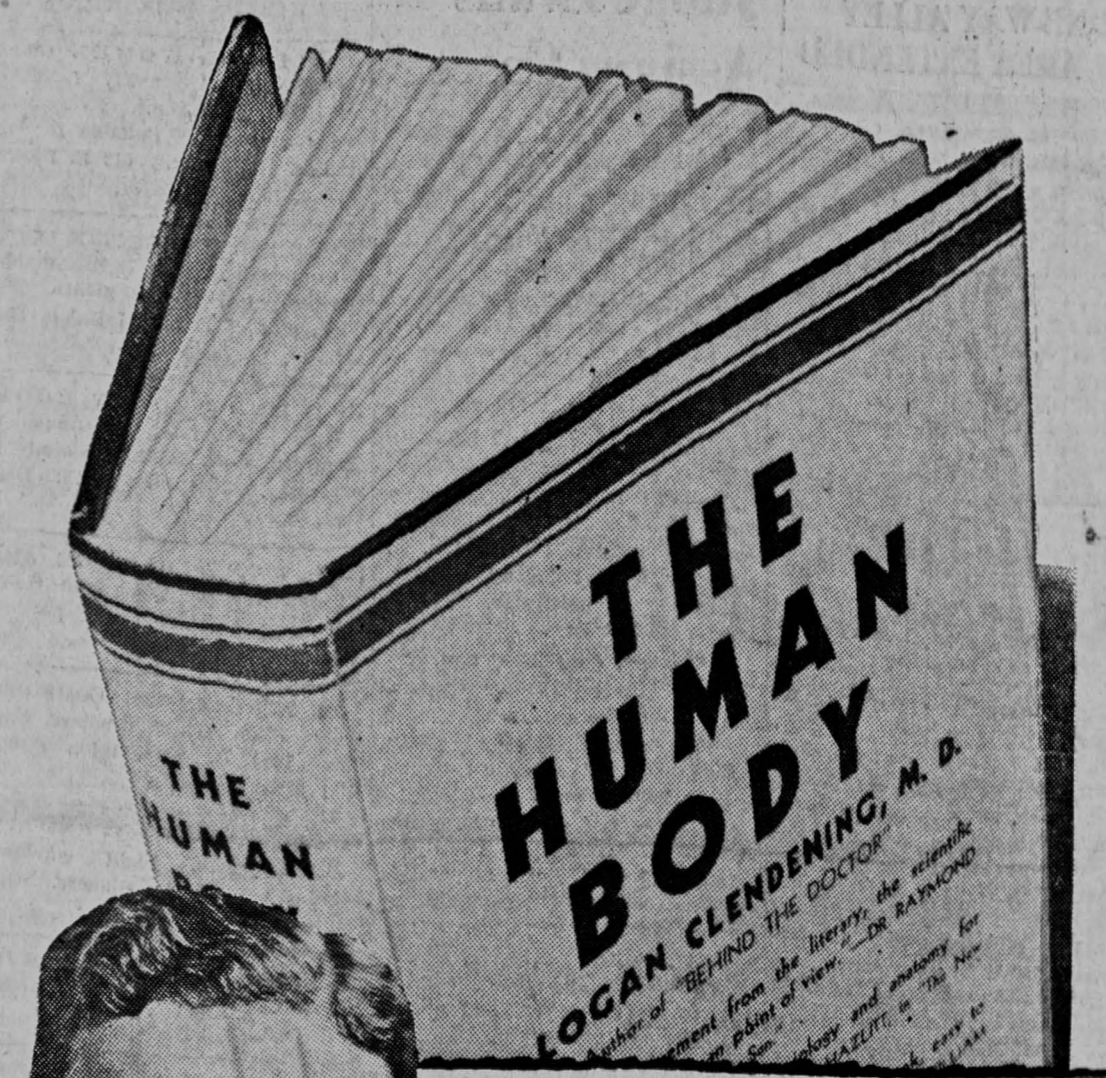

State Highway Patrolman E. B. Martin arrested Wilson north of Iowa City on U. S. highway 161 June 6.
