F. R. Drafts Two-Week Program for Congress

Leaders Place Three Bills On Senate Agenda

President Goes Over Plans With Barkley, Bankhead, Rayburn

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt and his leaders from Capitol Hill worked out today an elastic legislative program expected to keep congress in session at least two weeks longer.

With Senator Barkley, the majority leader, Speaker Bankhead and Representative Rayburn, democratic leader of the house, the chief executive went over the "entire legislative situation."

Barkley later listed three items as definitely on the program for the senate: the wage and hour bill, low cost housing legislation and the modified court bill—with some other legislation probably to follow.

One of these measures, the leaders disclosed, is a bill to continue control of sugar marketings, and, in addition, Barkley said an opportunity will be given for a motion to take up the anti-lynching bill.

For the house, Rayburn listed the same program with the addition of a bill to discourage tax evasion, and a crop insurance bill which the senate already has approved.

The house passed the anti-lynching bill several months ago.

Earlier, the path to adjournment was cleared of one bulky obstacle, by an agreement in the house to postpone farm legislation until next year.

Otherwise Barkley was planning that the senate continue its debate on the wage and hour bill, reach a vote not later than tomorrow, and then take up the housing bill and the much-modified court bill.

Whenever the court bill comes up, there may be additional delay, Senator Minton (D-Ind) announced he would propose an amendment to require that two thirds of the supreme court concur, if an act of congress is to be invalidated.

DETROIT, July 28 (AP)—Henry Ford, granting one of his rare interviews on the eve of his 74th birthday, commented tonight on the "present mess," predicted it would do the country "more good than most people expect" and observed that disillusionment is a splendid teacher.

By "mess," Mr. Ford explained, he meant the "mixing of backward politics, stupid business and labor exploitation that has been trying to hold up progress in this country."

He said he had "nothing but optimism," for the future.

The automobile manufacturer said he planned no birthday observance, but would spend tomorrow in his usual activities. During much of the day, he will engage in his regular duties at the huge plant that bears his name.

Thith Ith No Joke To the Thchorrth, Mithter Burglar!

WAUSAU, Wis., July 28 (AP)—It's an even bet that Mr. and Mrs. George Schorr had soup for luncheon today and will have more soup for dinner tonight. And all because a thief, one of the meanest in local police annals, stole their false teeth.

When Schorr and his wife went to sleep last night they left their store teeth, $200 worth, resting side by side in tumblers on a bathroom shelf. This morning they were gone.

"If that ith thomeone's idea of a joke, I mith the point," said George.

Police say they have some snapping good eyes.

CAMERA'S EYE SPOTS—Faces in the Day's News

Mrs. William Ellery Leonard

MADISON, Wis., July 28—Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann today granted Mrs. William Ellery Leonard, 29, a final decree of divorce from her 61-year-old husband, the University of Wisconsin poet-professor whose strange fear of travel keeps him within a few blocks of his home. They were married two years ago, and, according to Mrs. Leonard, quarreled continuously.

Helen Thompson

Swept of a sailboat she and her father were sailing on Lake Michigan from Chicago to Muskogon, Mich., Helen Thompson, 19-year-old Stephens college, Columbia, Mo., student, managed to reach shore at St. Joseph, Mich., in a half-conscious condition after battling the waves for 10 hours. Helen's father, thinking she had been drowned, searched with coast guards for her body.

James J. Hines

Long one of the most powerful figures in Tammany, James J. Hines, lawyer and upper Manhattan leader, may become new leader of Tammany Hall in New York, a post left vacant through the death of James J. Dooling.

House Group Revises Wage, Hour Measure

Former Labor Chief Offers New Minimum, Maximum Restrictions

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP)—A labor leader turned legislator succeeded in writing into the wage-hour bill today a provision permitting a board to fix minimum wages as high as 70 cents an hour and a maximum work week as short as 35 hours.

The house labor committee approved the provision, which members said had been prepared by Representative Wood (D-Mo), long-time president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor.

Major Change
The proposal is a major change from the wage-hour bill as it is now being debated in the senate. Under the latter measure the administrative board could not compel payment of more than 40 cents an hour, and could not reduce the work week below 40 hours.

The change led to immediate predictions that the bill would be defeated. Representative Ramspeck, Georgia democrat, declared: "Representing the section I do, I know I'll vote against the bill if these changes remain."

The vote in the house committee was close. Members said the amendment was approved only after Chairman Norton (D-NJ) broke a tie.

Senate Hears Vandenberg
The senate, debating its own form of wage-hour bill, heard Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) object that it would give an administrative board "life or death" authority over industry.

Warning colleagues that "the American system of industry may be at stake," Vandenberg said the bill involves "power over price fixing . . . power over the very creation and existence of jobs."

The legislation, he contended, might place industry in a "straight-jacket," when its pressing need is for "a period of adjustment" to the Wagner labor law.

"There is such a thing as economic indigestion," he declared. "There is also such a thing as economic suicide."

4,020 Enrolled In University

Number Includes Correspondence, Campus Students

A total of 4,020 students is enrolled in the University of Iowa this summer, figures released from the registrar's office yesterday reveal.

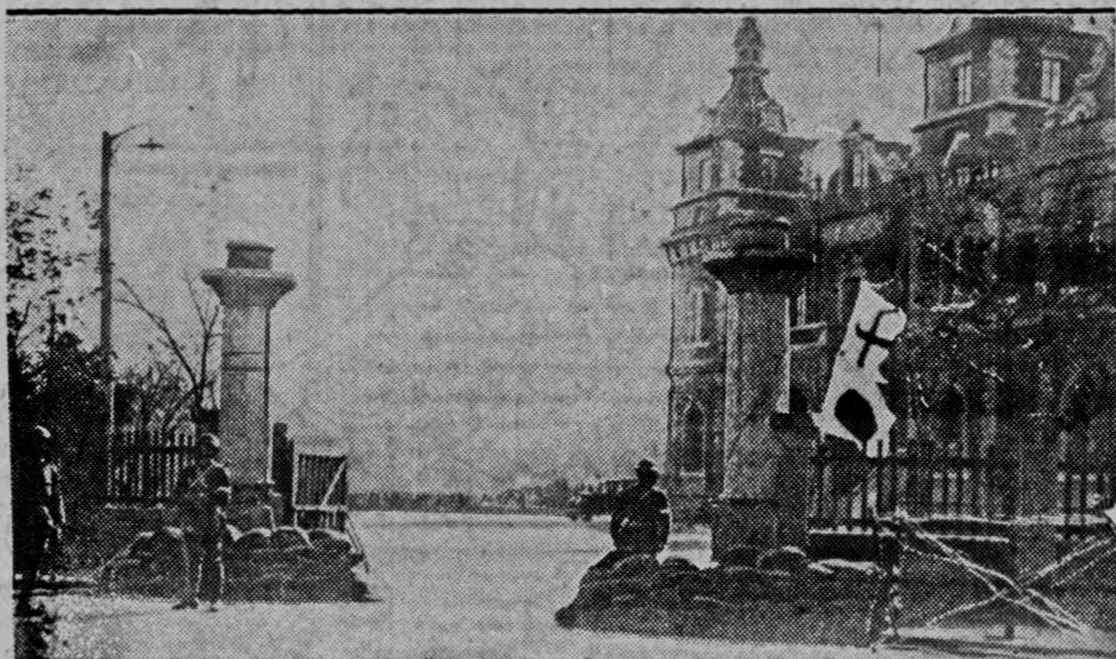

Both campus and non-campus groups are included in the figure. A total of 2,809 students is on the campus, while 1,211 are enrolled in correspondence work or projected registration.

1,902 Graduate Students
More than half of the students on the campus are taking graduate work, the graduate college reporting registration of 1,902 students. The second greatest number, 547, is in the college of liberal arts.

Of the non-campus enrollment the greatest number is composed of liberal arts correspondence students. A total of 721 is enrolled. Graduate students taking correspondence work number 457, while 33 are listed in projected registration.

Increase
This year's figures show an increase in correspondence study and projected registration of 163 over last year's figure, a 15.6 per cent rise. The number of students on the campus is 342 less than for the six weeks' term a year ago. The total registration as compared with the enrollment for the six weeks' term last year is 4.3 per cent smaller.

CHINESE LAUNCH OFFENSIVE AGAINST TIENTSIN

After a brief and ineffective truce, Japanese and Chinese armies are marching again in North China. Focal point in the Chinese attack is Tientsin, vital rail center, now held by the Japanese. At dawn today, Chinese regulars launched a surprise offensive against the city. The picture above shows barricades erected in the streets after the Japanese declared martial law.

Compromise Voted By Buffalo Strikers

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 28 (AP)—Striking truck drivers tonight unanimously ratified a compromise contract reached with wholesale grocery merchants and ended the most serious phase of Buffalo's eight-day food embargo.

They agreed to go back to work early tomorrow and rush new supplies to grocery store shelves empty of many staple foods.

Presume Gas Tank Blast Caused Crash

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 28 (AP)—A crack airliner from the Netherlands plunged into a potato field near here today, carrying to flaming death all 15 occupants, three of whom were listed as Americans.

Airline officials identified the Americans only as "Munn, Canton and Goldbloom."

There were seven other passengers and five in the crew. One of the passengers was listed as a Mexican named Trillo.

Tried To Land
Airliner officials, however, announced tonight that their chief technical adviser said he presumed the gas tank in the left wing of the airliner exploded while the ship was flying at a height of about 1,000 feet. He believed it glided down and attempted to land but crashed in the field.

Many hours after the crash, the shattered and charred bodies of a number of the victims still lay in the smoldering wreckage. Of those removed, only one body was identified immediately, that of Miss Van Deven, Dutch stewardess.

Headed for Paris
The plane, a Douglas (United States make), left Amsterdam at 9:20 a.m. on a scheduled commercial flight and headed for Paris after a stop in Brussels. It fell in flames near Hal, 10 miles southwest of here.

Only the tail of the airliner stood out from the remainder of the wreckage.

Police Blame Planted Mine For Blast Marring Royal Couple's Coronation Visit to Belfast

Violent Explosion Occurs Half Mile From King's Route

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 28 (AP)—Police announced tonight that a deliberately planted mine caused today's violent explosion here, during the royal parade marking King George and Queen Elizabeth's coronation visit to Ulster.

The explosion shook a wide area of Belfast, only a half mile from the parade route followed by their majesties.

Railway Plot
Police said they also had discovered a plot to wreck trains carrying police and other visitors to Belfast on their return to the Londonderry area. A mine was discovered beneath the railway line at Temple Patrick in Antrim county.

The explosion within Belfast was one of a series of acts of violence during the day, attributed by police to extremist Irish republicans who oppose the British monarchy.

Feeling ran high in Belfast tonight, and police withheld announcement of the mine plant until after the king's departure aboard the royal yacht.

Not Perturbed
The explosion at midday was followed by the king and queen as they were driven through the city's streets, but they gave no sign of perturbation and the parade was speeded along as scheduled.

The explosion was in a warehouse in Academy street at midday.

"There is not the slightest doubt but that the explosion was caused by explosives," police said. "There was found in the hole caused by the explosion what looks like a bag of rags and which also contained some explosives."

Fuse Found
Explosives and the bag had been placed against a store and to explosives was attached a considerable length of fuse—possibly a time fuse. The fuse was found and is in the possession of police.

Ascends Throne

King Farouk I

Egypt Acclaims New Monarch

CAIRO, Egypt, July 28 (AP)—Wildly jubilant throngs made merry in Egypt's cities and villages tonight in acclaim of Farouk I, who will be invested formally tomorrow as King of Nubia and the Sudan and sovereign of Kordofan and Darfour.

Farouk's father, King Fuad I, died last April, and a regency took charge, awaiting the day when Farouk would be 18. According to the Moslem calendar the day comes tomorrow, although by the Christian calendar Farouk will not be 18 until next Feb. 11.

Since Fuad's death, Great Britain and Egypt have signed a treaty ending the 55-year British military occupation of Egypt and making the country an independent monarchy friendly to Britain.

Americans Menaced By Desperate Fight For Control of City

TIENTSIN, July 29 (Thursday) (AP)—International guards manned machine gun barricades today to protect Americans and other foreigners menaced by desperate fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops for control of this rich gateway to north China.

The situation became more grave by the moment as the battle spread from the environs into the city proper. United States nationals huddled in basements for protection against bursting shells and ricocheting bullets.

At some points the enemy forces, battling to determine whether Japan or China will be supreme in Hopeh and Chahar provinces, were entrenched less than 100 feet apart. Sporadic firing from the house-tops was endangering the lives of foreigners.

Planes Circle City
Overhead Japanese warplanes circled in ominous warning. They were forced to bomb their own airdrome just outside the city when the Chinese attacked.

A state of emergency was declared by authorities in the British, French and Italian concessions as the Chinese 29th army struck at Tientsin, headquarters of the Japanese army in north China, in the early morning. A majority of the American colony lives in the British and French concessions.

Japanese naval vessels began shelling the port of Tangku, near Tientsin.

Chinese fired at a Japanese destroyer off Tangku, the Japanese naval office claimed, causing the Japanese naval units to open fire. Group troops added the naval assault on the port.

Report Stations Seized
One report said Chinese regulars had recaptured the three railway stations—east, west and central. Another source said Chinese had occupied one station.

First reports of today's fighting were that Japanese had opened fire from their positions in railway stations, in an effort to clear the railway approaches into the city.

Fighting also was reported within the Japanese concession and at the border of Tientsin's Chinese city.

Japanese warplanes early today had warned the populace of Peiping and its environs to flee before a new Japanese offensive in the north China battle zone.

Americans Safe
Most of Peiping's 675 American residents were safely encamped inside the embassy quarter. United States marines set up emergency provisions to care for them.

In Tokyo, Joseph C. Grew, United States ambassador, received the Japanese government's assurances that American lives and property would be safeguarded in Peiping.

The Japanese aerial warning began the second day of what had become undisputed, although undeclared war. Chinese commanders claimed possession of important Japanese positions after sanguinary, day-long fighting on a major scale yesterday.

Both sides openly abandoned any hope of a peaceful settlement of their long-smoldering hostilities in north China. Although neither formally severed diplomatic relations or declared war, both officially proclaimed their reliance on force.

Observers here expected valiant Chinese resistance to Japan's punitive campaign against the strongly anti-Japanese 29th army, and feared the war might become a drawn-out conflict spread across much of eastern China.

REPORT RUSSIANS READY FOR THIRD TRANSPOLAR HOP

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 28 (AP)—A source usually reliable, reported here tonight that a third projected transpolar Russian airplane flight would start from Moscow at 7 a.m. C.S.T. tomorrow.

The authority for the report, who asked not to be quoted, said the Soviet plane would be powered with four motors and would be otherwise different from the two other Russian planes which were successful in their trans-polar flights.

Office Flooded
Governor LaFollette's office at Madison, Wis., was flooded with letters, telegrams and telephone calls offering tall corn stalks.

Meanwhile, government weather forecasters here, predicting fine "corn weather" for the contest, spoke slyly of attaching their thermometers to Iowa corn tassels, abandoning the use of sounding balloons and airplanes for stratosphere temperature observations.

Kills Two, Self
FREDERICK, Md. (AP)—Charles Martin, tall 58-year-old mountain farmer, late yesterday shot and killed two women he said had robbed him, waited at his home until officers arrived and then killed himself.

Mitchell Probes Mystery of Missing Iowa Corn Stalks

There's Treachery Afoot in Tall Corn Derby, but (Shhh!) They Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet

DES MOINES, July 28 (AP)—Hunt for the world's tallest corn stalk went on apace in three midwestern states tonight in the face of an "investigation" promised by the head of Iowa's state law enforcement division.

Iowa Attorney Gen. John H. Mitchell said tonight he was "investigating reports that two 15-foot corn stalks of which Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois boasted, and a couple of other 'sky-scrapers' jealously guarded by Wisconsin's Gov. Philip LaFollette might be Iowa corn."

"Ordinary" Stalks Missing
"We have a report that a couple of ordinary cornstalks, about 15-foot tall, are missing out of a Lee county, Ia., field," Mitchell, who heads the state bureau of criminal investigation, said. "We are investigating this report."

Meanwhile stories poured in from Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa of farmers searching the corn front from tall step-ladders and from church steeples for the tallest stalk.

The corn derby "showdown" will occur Saturday morning when Governor LaFollette meets when Governor LaFollette meets at the statehouse here.

Accepts Wager
Governor LaFollette, who will address a progressive and farmer-labor meeting Saturday night, has accepted Governor Kraschel's wager of "a dinner" that he can produce a taller stalk.

From Davenport, a group of farmers today wired Governor

LaFollette that an 18-foot five and one-half inch corn stalk was growing in Scott county, Iowa.

Not to be outdone, Governor LaFollette dispatched his department of agriculture and markets field men to the southern part of Wisconsin in search of corn stalks 16 and 17 feet tall, and even taller.

"Only the Beginning"
Governor Horner of Illinois, who so far has consented to be represented at Saturday's derby only by proxy, boasted early this week that he had a stalk better than 12-foot tall in his "own back yard" at Springfield.

Actual records have been made so far of Iowa stalks reaching up to 16-foot six-inches, but a grapevine rumor indicated that this may be "only the beginning." Anxious frowns appeared on the faces of statehouse custodians here today, told to make ready a room with a ceiling at least 30-feet high for the display of Iowa's entry. The orders were "secret" they said, and they would not disclose the source.

England Opens Up Divorce Laws

DIVORCE in any form can only be described as the lesser of two evils. No one claims it is any more than that. When married life becomes unendurable, separation is just a poor way out of an otherwise impossible situation. Divorce, especially if there be children, is an anti-social condition; but marriage, if forcibly continued, is likely to do more damage to the psychology of the children and be even more anti-social in its results.

At least, that is the American attitude. In England until this month, an opposite view has been held. Conservatives have argued that marriage ties should not be severed for light and transient causes. A stable society, they declared, could not be maintained without strict divorce laws because the family is the basic social institution. Their attitude was frankly influenced by religious dogma and the traditions of their group. Their most severe attack upon divorce was that it was immoral. For many of them, that single argument was sufficient.

IN THE five years since the Reconstruction Finance corporation lent $90,000,000 to the Central Republic Bank and Trust company of Chicago, one of the largest banks in the middle west, much has been said about the loan in the heat of political campaigning that were better, in the interest of truth, left unsaid, and much was left unsaid that should, in fairness to the country's future thinking about financial crisis, have been said. The explanation of Jesse Jones, chairman of the R.F.C., in a recent Saturday Evening Post article, makes a public record of the part played by Charles G. Dawes in this transaction and completely refutes the political argument that the loan was in any way connected with partisan influence.

The facts are, of course, as well known at the time, that early in June, 1932, there was a run on this and other Chicago banks which threatened the foundation of the whole middle west banking structure, and probably the stability of all banks in the country. General Dawes was not an officer of the bank, and for seven years had had no voice in its management. His name was carried as honorary chairman of the board. He was at that time chairman of the R.F.C. When it was seen that there was no hope of stopping the run, he resigned his R.F.C. position, went to Chicago, assumed legal responsibility as an officer of the bank, and decided to close it in the interest of the depositors who were leaving their money. Among the depositors were 700 country banks. Freezing their deposits and the closing of a great bank would, of course, have precipitated a bank panic. It was to avert this panic that Jones and other members and employees of the R.F.C. decided, at a conference with Chicago bankers, that the loan of $90,000,000, plus a loan of $5,000,000 from Chicago banks, should be made. Their plan worked but it did not prevent the bank suspension of a year later. Two thirds of the loan has been paid, and the remainder, minus interest, is regarded as good.

Thus the loan was not a deal between General Dawes and the R.F.C., but the result of a decision of Chicago Clearing House bankers, the R.F.C., the president, and New York banking interests. Under the same conditions, it is probable that the same decision would be made today. It was a case of bank officials, headed by General Dawes, facing their moral and legal responsibility under very trying conditions, and doing their duty as they and other informed persons saw it.—The Indianapolis News

A British magazine editor recently felt very proud the Lindberghs had chosen England as a home to avoid publicity. So he promptly printed a long, illustrated article about it.

The Chinese War Becomes Inevitable

THE WAR is on in China. All talk of "settlement" and "peaceful agreement" is forgotten as both countries openly avow that war is inevitable.

That China would actually accede to the Japanese ultimatum was difficult to believe in spite of appearances—the demands were too harsh and China was too belligerent. But whether China was serious in making her concessions or not, she never got a chance to finish them.

Her whole attention now is engaged, not in evacuating troops, but in sending them forward against the Japanese. This she is even now doing with some success at Tientsin; and at Peiping, the original source of trouble, she appears to be holding her own against a determined Japanese onslaught. These tactics, of course, are merely temporary. China cannot hope, nor does she intend, to carry the war to Japan. The strategy is to stall for time so that the multifarious and far-flung Chinese armies can be rushed to the general scene. Even then China probably will not take the offensive, but will more or less retreat into the vast western mountain territory with every place else opened for a continued guerrilla warfare campaign. Japan can then throw army after army into the evacuated provinces, but greater Chinese mobility and man power will wear them down.

And the Japanese can do nothing until the territory has been thoroughly subjugated, for otherwise the Chinese troops would be continually harrying them.

The situation, as China very well knows, cannot go on forever, for Japan has only limited resources of men, armaments and money. Once these are exhausted, Japan will be powerless, while China's strength will not have been greatly weakened.

And just as conceivable as that this may happen is the possibility that when it does the positions of Japan and China will be reversed. China's star will then go into its ascendancy on the eastern horizon.

Today's paradox: A horse named "Communist" finished third at Thiel-down track, Cleveland—his backer winding up in the black, and not the red.

Science is doing wonders but so far no one has perfected a device which will turn off the neighbors' radio without starting a fight.

Supervision of Milk and Food Supplies Prevents Summer Flu

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

NOT MANY years ago summer was a justly dreaded time for children. The record of our grandfathers' families showed that of 13 children who were born, more than two-thirds on the average, were carried off before their fifth year, usually in the summer, from the dysenteries due to infected foods, particularly milk. Today our supervision of our milk supply is such that these tragedies have been almost eliminated and, in fact, our present problem is rather to reduce the high birth rate than to increase our measures of preventing infantile deaths.

Diarrhea in adults in the summer time are almost invariably due to contaminated food, and meats, popular opinion to the contrary, are more likely to be infected than vegetables. Some of the most virulent organisms do not produce any change in the odor of the food they contaminate. The treatment of summer diarrhea, either in infant or adult, is largely dietary. A preliminary period of starvation is always advisable. The administration of fluids, however, is important and should be done by mouth.

New Yorker At Large

By JACK STINNETT: NEW YORK—Notes from the cuff. There is never an electrical storm over the steel and stone forests of Manhattan that lightning does not strike its mighty skyscrapers. John P. Galy has even made photographs of great jagged bolts and whirling ropes of it twisting around the Empire State building's multi-lighted tower. It is a horrendous sight, even in a photograph. . . . giant balls of electric flame, doing a devil's dance on the tip of that chromium tooth that needles into upper reaches of the city skyline. Yet, we are told, there are few places in the world so safe during electrical storms as in Manhattan's towers. They are all electrifying. The battalions of tenants and cohorts of workers never even know it when a shaft that would make toothpicks of a California redwood crashes over their heads. Time limps along at a godly pace in spite of the heat. Within a week, the cast of "Virginia" will be assembling to go into rehearsal under the Center's vaulted roof. Already, Nigel Bruce, that eminent Englishman, and Anne Booth, the little London lady who is making her New York debut, have arrived in town. And Ronald Graham and Gene Lockhart will be back from vacations in a day or so to complete the quartet of top-flight principals. The opus is set to raise its curtain Aug. 31. Pre-season rumors are beginning to shower down: that not only will the Abbey players be seen in proven dramas of their repertoire and a couple of new Irish dramas, but that Eddie Dowling is on his way from Erin with announcement of another Celtic company which will swell the volume of Broadway's Gaelic brogue this winter; that Noel Coward will be back in October, and will have with him script, lyrics and arias of a new musical of his own composition in which he himself will appear; that the Kaufman-Hart Rodgers-Hart musical for George M. Cohan will have the title, "Hold Your Horses"; that Hannah Williams Dempsey will be in a Shubert musical come autumn.

SCREEN LIFE

By ROBBIN COONS: HOLLYWOOD—Walter Abel, the mystery man, is back in town. He's having a nice time playing golf in this town where they're always yelling for new faces. Literally, Abel isn't a mystery man. The mystery is in Hollywood. Hollywood has him and Hollywood is using him with the same perspicacity it displayed on each of his three previous visits. His first time was six or seven years ago. An agent took him out by a New York hit and said Hollywood had something colossal, terrific, at least stupendous for him. After several months of waiting it didn't happen. He went back to the stage, played in "When Ladies Meet," another hit. Paramount couldn't wait to jerk him west. That was in December. By June, Walter was still around, wondering where he was and why the pay checks kept coming. In those six months a studio can forget all about a hit play because it's raving about the latest hit play and the latest actor. "Abel? Abel? The name's familiar but—" He never saw a camera. In New York again, he played in a merry comedy, "Merrily We Roll Along," and this time it was RKO that got the bright idea. He was brought west to play "General Grant," a gentleman who rarely smiled, in a somber historical film. Abel starred in four reels of tests, which with story preparations cost $160,000 before the studio decided not to make it. But Hollywood is ingenious. From General Grant to D'Artagnan was but a step. Abel took tests, signed a five-year contract, took an hour's fencing lesson, and started in "The Three Musketeers" the following Monday morning. That was the beginning. The ending included "Second Wife." "Second Wife" is the picture that made money because it was so bad audiences loved it. "Second Wife" made heckling a movie audience pastime. "Second Wife" but why go on? I asked Abel about it. The guy's head is bloody but unbowed, and his grin revealed he still has a sense of humor. "When I meet my friends back east, and we get to talking," he said, "I can always tell when that question is coming. There is always an embarrassed pause, and then: 'But Walter, did you HAVE to make that picture?'" "Second Wife" was Abel's goodbye to Hollywood before joining Katharine Cornell on the stage in "The Wingless Victory." He got good notices, but Hollywood hasn't read them. All Hollywood remembers is "Second Wife."

Looking Glass Reflections

By VERA SHELDON

Brisk evenings and shorter days remind us that winter is not far around the corner. To be smart when the snow flies this year, one must be dressed warmly from the inside out.

Innovations in sleeping garments for fall join style with the practical qualities of comfort and warmth. Novelty knits in new, warm colors dominate styles designed for below-zero weather. Cotton meshes, bal fabrics and very sheer silk and wool materials are combined with classic tuck stitches, panel ribs and other distinctive stitch formations to make sleeping something new and different.

Color combinations have emerged from the pastel groups to include new bright blues, flame and orange shades and deep browns or rusts. Other featured colors are mini-cornflower, coral blue and bright aztec red.

An array of California colors has been introduced for fall. Del Monte wine, named for mission grapes, and California gold sun color are among the outstanding shades in an assortment of western tones. There are Monterey red, Palm Springs aqua and blue shades named for Malibu and Coronado.

In styling, models follow manish or sports lines. There are banded-neck styles fashioned after men's collarless pajamas. There are rounded necks or collars finished with simple slide fastener closings. Neckline details and trouser and sleeve cuffs are usually of patterned materials in colors which provide a smart contrast to plain backgrounds.

One model uses a floral bal (a new fabric) for the collar and front neckline. It is finished with deep buttoned piping. Another combines solid color trousers with polka dot or floral pattern tops. A style in natural tones is made with long sleeves and ski-bottom trousers, illustrating the effective use of bright red and blue peasant materials for trimming.

Braid, embroidered peasant manner, is used to vary the center front of one style; a heavy cording forms an unusual yoke effect in another, and a third has a ruffled jabot edged in red and blue yarn.

Classic tuck stitches make up a more conservative pajama displayed in shades of yellow, pink or blue. Legs are fully cut for both comfort and appearance. Ruffled or small collars, yokes and regulation crew necks provide neckline variations.

For very cold nights or outdoor sleeping, pajama suits with attached foot sections will be available. Balbriggans are retaining their popularity of last season. Tops use shirt-waist details are finished with fine buttons, boat necks or convertible collars.

Deep green, nut brown and copper tones are favored colors for a bed jackets and robes with matching

S.U.I. Theater To Give Play

Comedy-Drama Will Be Shown for 1st Time Tonight at 8

"The Circle of Chalk," an early Chinese comedy-drama, will be given by University theater for the first time tonight at 8 o'clock in the dramatic arts building. The play will be given again Saturday, Monday and Tuesday.

Thomas Wood Stevens, guest staff member of the dramatic arts department, is director of the production.

Two casts, the "red" and the "blue" have been selected to enact the production. "The Circle of Chalk" will be interpreted in a manner suggesting the Chinese theater without giving an actual reproduction.

Tickets for the play may be obtained in room 8A, Schaeffer hall. Students may secure free admission by presenting their identification cards.

Three Speech Contests Held For Students

A series of three contests, in extemporaneous speaking, debate and persuasive speech, are being held for all-state high school speech students this week.

Marvin Chapman of Iowa City won the extemporaneous contest yesterday. Don Thompson of Sioux Falls, S.D., placed second, and Paul Blomgren of Mt. Pleasant was third. Others who took part include Jo Hamilton of Winterset, Howard Hines of Iowa City, Sam Goldenberg of Burlington and Betty Peterson of Madison, S.D.

Question The high school debate question for next year, "Resolved: that state legislatures should amend their constitutions to provide for unicameral legislatures," will be discussed in gowns and pajamas. Brushed rayon in chevron design seems to be the most popular fabric.

A new fitted hostess coat cut along princess lines is made of a chenille fabric with full, puffed sleeves. Novelty buttons from neckline to hem match the blue of the material. Another hostess coat buttons in front to a pearl, stand-up collar. Two-piece lounging pajamas with high-yoked trousers and a short coat complete the set.

18 HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS END RECITAL SERIES

Concluding the recital of the all-state high school groups, 18 students performed yesterday afternoon in the music building.

Taking part were Jean Opstad of Iowa City, Harriet Harlow of Toledo, Harriet Pearson of Burlington, Richard Melick of Eureka, Ill., Tom Toborg of Marshalltown, Hope Baker of Lincoln, Neb., John Clarke of Knoxville, Lois Anne Nau of Burlington.

Mary Dickinson of Newton, Kathryn Rose of Story City, Robert Caywood of Iowa City, Catherine Donovan of Iowa City, Culver Keenan of Shenandoah, Mary Katherine French of Dubuque, Margaret Baker, and Dorothy Sonek, John Webster and Margaret Schrock, all of Iowa City.

KATHRYN CRAIN TO HONOR MISS REESE

Miss Reese is the guest of her cousin, Gwen Davis, route 3, discussed in the debate contest this afternoon at 3 o'clock in room 221A, Schaeffer hall.

Defending the affirmative will be Marvin Chapman and William Reep of Dwight, Ill. Speaking for the negative will be Bill Van Allen of Mt. Pleasant and Don Thompson of Sioux Falls, S.D.

The persuasive speech contest, which will be tomorrow at 3 p.m., includes the following contestants, Bill Van Allen, Marvin Chapman, Betty Peterson, Betty Cook, Paul Blomgren of Mt. Pleasant, Howard Hines of Iowa City and William Reep of Dwight, Ill.

Orville A. Hiltchock, visiting lecturer in the speech department, is in charge of the contests.

AROUND THE TOWN

with MERLE MILLER

"This Human Conservation" MCGREGOR—Here is one of the largest civilian conservation corps camps in the state. . . Just now more than 100 boys—the oldest 26, the youngest 18—work, sleep and eat here. . . And they love it.

Joseph Leary, the boy I talked to, tells me he hails from the heart of Chicago's "tough district," had, he frankly admits, been hauled into police court twice before he came to the McGregor camp late in 1935 on charges of petty larceny. . . But, both times, because of his youth—Joe is now 20—he wasn't prosecuted. . . There might have been a third time—but Joe heard about the CCC. . . Two of his friends had gone, and Joe went along. . . He has been at McGregor ever since.

When he went, the only work he'd ever done had been soda jerking in a drug store, but at the camp Joe went to night school with the rest of his fellow campers. . . There he learned he had a talent for drawing (the captain at the camp tells me they attempt to discover a special talent in each boy—a sort of "vocational guidance.")

Now, after a day at the parks, Joe tries to put what he's seen on canvas. . . And those who know say he shows a talent with a brush.

One of his finest paintings is called "Buddy"; shows a pal in khaki shirt, with an axe thrown over his shoulder. . . It's a strangely thrilling picture that might be subtitled "A Modern Pioneer."

An done of Joe's fellow CCCers writes short stories—one is soon to be published by "Liberty" . . . Another has talent as a mechanic, a third is interested in engineering, a fourth in chemistry, does experiments in the work room in the evenings.

Altogether it seems to me it's a fairly healthy atmosphere, this CCC camp. . . There's school five evenings a week; there's a library with several hundred books, there's a game room. There's a motion picture once a month or so, and once a week, at least, most of the boys go down town for a movie or a date.

These fellows, youngsters all, have an optimistic outlook on life. The camp is not for always, they declare. . . They're just here for a "time" and then there's to be a "real job." . . It won't be $30 a month for always.

Find 60-Acre Marijuana Patch

Narcotic Weeds Discovered in and Near City; Police Plan To Destroy Them

Five patches of marijuana, "the unknown quantity among narcotics," have been found in and near Iowa City, police reported yesterday.

Last night a 60-acre field of the poisonous and habit-forming weed was discovered four miles south of Iowa City. Four patches of the weed have also been found in Iowa City.

Ed Schuppert noticed the weed in a field near his summer cottage and reported it to police last night. Schuppert said the field was covered with silt as a result of the river overflowing and that the seeds were probably deposited there.

To Be Destroyed The weeds in Iowa City will be destroyed immediately, Police Chief W. H. Bender said.

The marijuana weed was first noticed several days ago when an Iowa City businessman found a plant which he thought similar to one described in a magazine as habit-forming and poisonous. After consulting with Chief Bender and Night Captain Art Schnoebelen, he sent the weed to the federal bureau of investigation. Special Agent H. B. Fletcher reported that although there is no federal law pertaining to the use of marijuana, the Iowa code states that the use and sale of the weed is unlawful.

The magazine article in which the Iowa citizen noticed the description of the weed states that "marijuana is the unknown quantity among narcotics." The article describes the effects of the use of the weed as somewhat similar to the effects of liquors except that the mind is affected, and that the physical reaction is more permanent.

Seven-Bladed Leaves The weed can easily be identified by its seven-bladed, saw-tooth leaves. It grows in stalks from three to eight feet high. The seeds have either been planted by transients, or, occasionally, some of it is found in birdseed, Bender said.

"Any person found using or seeding marijuana will be prosecuted," Chief Bender warned.

The canvassing is being done by 10 teams composed of one business man and one farmer each, who started the drive yesterday morning after a meeting at Reich's pine room.

Both County Agent Gardner and C. A. Dowman, secretary of the chamber of commerce, were "well pleased with the first day's results."

The drive will be completed early next week.
