860 DEAD IN SHANGHAI BOMBING

Japan, Spain, China Endorse Hull's Peace Plea

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (AP)—Secretary Hull's plea for "international self restraint" drew from Italy, Germany and Japan today formal expressions of accord with America's peace policy.

Replies from these countries—where military matters play important parts in foreign policy—accompanied those from 21 other nations agreeing with Hull's peace enunciation.

Reaction today also included diplomatic notes from the Spanish loyalist government, currently battling an insurgent army, and from China, now engaged in hostilities with its neighbor, Japan.

A week ago 37 other nations unanimously expressed attitudes in harmony with the Hull policy statement, issued July 16, and circulated in foreign capitals for comment. It advocated abstinence by all nations from use of force in pursuit of policy and from interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

In a terse note, Germany informed the United States its "basic principle is, as is generally known, directed toward the regulation of international regulations by pacific agreement and hence coincides with the ideas developed by the secretary of state."

Italy voiced appreciation of the "high value" of Hull's principles, saying:

"The fascist government favors everything which may conduce to the pacification and to the political and economic reconstruction of the world."

"Therefore it regards with sympathy every initiative which tends to achieve that end by means of the limitation of armaments, by means of economic understanding among nations, non-intervention in the internal affairs of other countries, and any other means which may now or in the future appear responsible to this objective."

Japan Tempers Note

After expressing general "concurrence," Japan informed Hull its government believed his peace objectives will "only be attained, in their application to the far eastern situation, by full recognition and practical consideration of the actual particular circumstances of that region."

China and Spain, their homelands torn by conflict, sent statements similar to each other, Spain expressing "lively sympathy" and China "full harmony."

Others Approve Policy

Accord with the policy came also from Canada, Costa Rica, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Finland, Greece, Honduras, Iraq, Irish Free State, Lithuania, Mexico, Norway, Panama, Poland, Rumania, Siam and Switzerland.

F.R. TO REVIVE COTTON LOANS

Following a conference with southern senators, President Roosevelt has agreed to revive cotton loans under certain restrictions in exchange for congressional passage of a resolution declaring crop control legislation to be the first order of business in next January's session. Under the arrangement tentatively reached at the White House conference, loans would be made immediately on a 12-cent base only to those farmers who pledged their cooperation with the program to be enacted next year. Senator Ellison D. Smith, chairman of the senate agricultural committee, leader of the bloc which demanded the loan, is seen with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. —Central Press.

Blood-Soaked Peace Enfolds Stricken City

Typhoon Allays Fears Of Immediate Renewal Of War Activities

By MORRIS J. HARRIS

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15 (Sunday)

(AP)—A Chinese typhoon today swallowed the war horrors of Shanghai where Chinese air bombs killed 860 civilians, including three Americans, and injured at least 1,140 in this teeming international city.

Police of the international quarter said 40 foreigners were among the dead, but that a complete check had not been made.

Makes Appeal

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15 (Sunday)

(AP)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., a visitor in Shanghai, today telegraphed Madame Chiang Kai-Shek in Nanking urging there be no repetition of Saturday's bombing of foreign areas in Shanghai in which nearly 900 persons were killed.

Madame Chiang, Wellesley-educated wife of the head of the Chinese government and army, herself is secretary-general of the national air force.

Japanese naval guns thundered spasmodically from ships anchored in the Whangpoo river and machine guns rattled an answer in isolated sections.

Hospitals Crowded

Otherwise blood-soaked peace settled on the stricken city, heaped with the broken bodies of bombing victims and its hospitals crowded with suffering wounded.

Tension in the international quarter, scene of the worst carnage in Saturday's tragic aerial attack, seemed relieved as heavy wind and rain swept in from the sea. Extremely poor visibility seemed to allay fears of any immediate renewal of action by either contending Chinese or Japanese air forces.

Destroy Chinese Planes

Japanese sources declared the island empire's naval bombers had penetrated into the interior behind Shanghai and destroyed at least 40 Chinese planes at aircraft bases. The Japanese reported they had effected the destruction of the two Chinese bombers blamed for the lethal attack on Shanghai's foreign section.

The Chinese bombs fell into the city of 3,500,000 persons when the airman missed their Japanese warship target anchored near the Japanese concession.

Chiang Probes Bombing

Chinese sources said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, strong man of the Nanking regime, was conducting a strict inquiry into the bombing. "These sources said that Japanese anti-aircraft bullets striking bomb racks of the low-flying planes released the projectiles prematurely."

Fleet Ready To Evacuate Americans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (AP)—Orders of the state and navy departments held America's Asiatic fleet ready tonight to evacuate American citizens from war-endangered Shanghai.

Secretary Hull said the government directed naval and consular officials in the troubled areas to determine when and how many of the 4,000 nationals should be evacuated.

At the same time, the state department secretary said, this government made "earnest representations" to both Japan and China against any kind of military operations or military bases at Shanghai.

20,000 From Iowa Picnic in California

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 14 (AP)—Former and present residents of the tall corn state, 20,000 strong, crowded Bixby park here today for the semi-annual Iowa state picnic.

Under gray skies, ex-Iowans and Iowans just visiting here flocked to the 99 county registration booths to renew friendships and to see the folks from "back home."

The principal address of the day was made by Dr. Earl E. Harper, president of Simpson college, Indianola, Ia.

Warship Shells Tanker Near Tunisia

British Boat Saves Burning Vessel's Crew

Tanker Abandoned After Attack From Unidentified Guns

LONDON, Aug. 15 (Sunday) (AP)—The Panamanian motor tanker George W. McKnight was reported in messages received early today by Lloyd's to be blazing off the Tunisian coast after she was shelled by an unidentified warship.

The vessel was abandoned and one message said all hands were picked up by the steamer British Commodore.

Advices to Lloyd's from the British freighter Mostyn, which relayed a message from a Tunisian radio station, said the George W. McKnight sent out her first distress signal at 9:13 p.m. last night.

A later message said: "Now cleared. All hands picked up safe by British tank steamer British Commodore. Ship still burning, nothing can be done about it."

The tanker, a vessel of 7,097 tons, was bound for Le Havre, France, from Tripoli and Syria.

Insurgents Claim Gains in Northwest

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 14 (AP)—The insurgent radio at Salamanca said tonight their "big push" to capture Santander and the remainder of government territory in northwest Spain already had resulted in capture of several villages in North Palencia province.

The broadcast, from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's headquarters city, said heavy losses had been inflicted on government troops.

Insurgent officers at Iron said three columns, one of which was Italian, were participating in the "supreme drive" to eliminate all government opposition in northwest Spain.

The Italian column started from the vicinity of Soncillo along the main Burgos-Santander roads. One Spanish column was operating from Agulla de Campo and the other from San Julian Musquest east of Bilbao.

CHINESE BOMB BRITISH CRUISER

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP)—The admiralty announced tonight the British cruiser Cumberland had been bombed by Chinese aircraft at Woosung, gateway to Shanghai, the Chinese mistaking it for a Japanese vessel. The Cumberland was not hit.

Thieves Take 1,200 Purebred Chickens From Roosts Here

There was no crowing for G. C. Crossley, Third and Muscatine avenues, yesterday.

Crossley's flock of four-and-a-half pound purebred pullets, valued at $500, were stolen Thursday and Friday nights from their roosts, he says. The chickens were from Crossley's flock of about 1,200 fowls in one lot. Another lot of about 1,600 birds was not touched.

Asks PWA To Withhold Grant

Van der Zee's Letter Called Threat To Legion Grant

By MERLE MILLER
(Daily Iowan City Editor)

A letter by Prof. J. Van der Zee, former alderman-at-large and MOL leader, jeopardizes the possibility of Iowa City's receiving a $29,000 PWA grant to help rebuild the American Legion building here, Attorney William R. Hart, who has been in charge of efforts to obtain the grant, charged last night.

Hart has received a letter written Aug. 5 by Van der Zee, asking Horatio B. Hackett, public works administrator, to withhold approval of a $29,000 grant for the city's electric project and had given the city $28,000 of the grant for engineering and court expenses. Of this amount the city has spent $20,000. The litigation involving the project is now in the hands of the United States and Iowa supreme courts.

In March, 1937, at the general city election, a new mayor and a new council were elected on a platform opposed to the completion of the electric project. These candidates were backed by the local power company's cash refund offer to its customers of $72,294 "contingent on the abandonment of plans for a municipal plant."

The validity of that city election is now being contested in the Iowa Courts. Meanwhile the new city administration has left no stone unturned to get PWA money for the community building. Because these men intend to kill the electric project, it seems only fair to me that PWA should require them to guarantee to reimburse PWA for the $28,000 given to the city; and if they refuse to do that, PWA is certainly not warranted in approving the city's application for a grant of $29,000 for the community building. There is or should be something like honor and fair dealing in such matters.

I cannot see how city officials who have obviously broken faith with PWA on one project should expect favorable treatment on another.

The political science professor referred to a $413,000 PWA grant made for the building of a municipal light and power plant in which Van der Zee, as head of the Municipal Ownership league, was interested. A total of $28,000 of the

Dear Mr. Hackett:—

Near the end of the year 1936 the mayor and the council (of which I was a member) filed an application for a grant of some $29,000 to help Iowa City build a community hall. At that same time the PWA had already allocated a grant of $413,000 for the city's electric project and had given the city $28,000 of the grant for engineering and court expenses. Gibson, Facing Murder Trial, Dies in Leap

Bank Bandit Cheats Possible Death On Gallows by Suicide

ST. PAUL, Aug. 14 (AP)—Clair Gibson, who had confessed looting 22 banks of $87,000, cheated possible death on the gallows today by jumping three floors to his death in the Ramsey county jail.

The bandit dashed from his second floor cell when the jailer opened it to permit him to talk with his attorney, ran up to the third floor, and, finding his way barred, leaped over the railing to the areaway below.

His back was broken and the left side of his body smashed. He died in a hospital a few minutes later without regaining consciousness.

Held for Zrostlik Slaying

Gibson was being held in jail awaiting transfer to Hancock county, Iowa, to face charges in connection with the slaying of James Zrostlik, shot to death Nov. 2, 1933, by three men who then commandeered his car.

Earlier this week he had been sentenced to serve 40 years in a federal institution after pleading guilty to participation in holdups of the State Bank of Cold Springs, Minn., in June, 1936, and the State Bank of Eyota, Minn., in December, 1936.

After being sentenced to 20 years on each charge, he had waived extradition to Iowa, although he denied connection with the Zrostlik slaying. If he had been tried and convicted in this case, a hanging penalty was possible.

Worried Over Iowa Case

A. Jerome Hoffman, Gibson's attorney, who was waiting in an ante room when his client dashed past, said the bank robber had seemed worried yesterday about his removal to Iowa.

"I went to see him at his request," the attorney said, "and he kept talking about the murder charge. It seemed to bother him a great deal."

Writes Last Chapter In Zrostlik Case

DES MOINES, Aug. 14 (AP)—Retribution, spurred on by fear of the noose or a life behind prison walls, today caught up with the third member of the trio accused of committing "Iowa's most cold blooded murder."

When Clair Ralph Gibson, 31, plunged three stories to his death in the areaway of the federal jail in St. Paul, Minn., this morning, he was writing the closing entry in Iowa's famed Zrostlik murder case.

Thomas Runyon, captured last winter in Wichita, Kan., already was in prison at Ft. Madison serving a life sentence for his part in the Zrostlik slaying.

Robert Markwood, former Ursa, Ill., youth, who went to a nameless grave in South Dakota last year when his bullet riddled body was found in a ditch beside the road, was identified after Runyon's confession.

Gibson was taken by surprise at his Rocky Mountain hideout in Oregon two weeks ago. A deputy sheriff, three state patrolmen, and a federal agent effected the capture.

Three Alaskan Planes Start Search for Russians Missing On Moscow-to-Fairbanks Hop

Faint Radio Signal Spurs Hopes; Jimmy Mattern To Join Hunt

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 14 (AP)—Faint radio messages today indicated six missing Soviet fliers were safe somewhere in the arctic between Alaska and the north pole, and three planes bearing Russian officials left Fairbanks to search for their comrades.

"No bearings . . . having trouble with . . . wave band," said the translated version of a message intercepted from the plane by the U. S. army signal corps station in Anchorage at 8:44 a.m. CST.

A part of the message was unreadable and the portion received did not give a clue as to whether the big Moscow-Fairbanks plane was aloft or down in the icy arctic.

Government officials expressed belief the powerful craft long since had descended. Shortly after passing over the pole early yesterday on its projected 4,000-mile flight from the soviet capital to Fairbanks it reported one of its four motors was dead because of a damaged oil line.

The message was the first to be picked up by the army listeners in nearly 28 hours, the last previous one having been at 4:40 a.m. CST yesterday, when the plane reported passing the polar cap in 35-degree sub-zero weather.

The call of fellowship also brought Jimmy Mattern, American long distance flier, into the hunt, in an effort to repay an act of mercy by one of the lost aviators, Sigismund Levanevsky, the "Russian Lindbergh," who was in charge of the missing plane.

Levanevsky led an expedition which rescued Mattern from Siberian wastes in 1933 when he cracked up and was injured on a projected world-circling flight.

With the word that Levanevsky and his comrades were in trouble, Washington officials today gave permission to Mattern, who was at Los Angeles, to go immediately to their aid.

Three planes bearing Russian north pole flight representatives flew out of Fairbanks for the hunt shortly after receipt of the weak message.

Among the searchers was the veteran Alaska "Mercy Pilot," Joe Crosson, who led off with a 13-seater plane.

She was married yesterday, at sea, to Robert Mizzy of New York, her studio announced today. The studio added they would be married again Tuesday, in nearby Santa Ana. Gypsy said she is 23 and Mizzy gave his age as 25.

The Mizzys were reported honeymooning "somewhere around here."

New Blood
For the Court

It has been repeatedly said of President Roosevelt that he is a first rate showman. He likes surprises. He takes great delight in astonishing people.

This typical characteristic was given full play the other day when the following brief message was sent to the senate:

"I nominate Hugo Black of Alabama to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

After the first shock of this unexpected move had worn away, it was really not so surprising after all. Senator Black had been an unwavering advocate of every new deal measure. Not even among the legendary vice-presidents of Hollywood could there be found a more reliable "yes man." If President Roosevelt wanted a spokesman in the court, he will have it in Black. He will also have his liberal, his young man, his "new blood."

Now that it has happened, it also seems natural that a senator should have been selected. In view of the storm just now quieting down over the packing plan, it would be advisable to nominate a man who could be confirmed with the least possible fuss. The senate, through traditional and exaggerated ideas of courtesy, is always happy to confirm one of its own members. And who would be more deserving of the honor than Hugo L. Black, than whom there is none more loyal to the new deal program?

All of these precautions, if they were such, now prove for naught, however. Indications in Washington are that another bitter fight has been stirred up to complicate the last days of this session of congress.

Besides Senator Black's radical new deal tendencies, including those on court reorganization, there is also his record of senate investigations into air and ocean mail contracts and lobbying. His "Black Inquisition" has established him as a prosecutor of note, but has also cast doubts upon his open-mindedness and balance as a judge, attributes that should be of vital importance in our highest tribunal if nowhere else.

His law record, too, is only mediocre, as even his most enthusiastic supporters have admitted. And every indication is that he has no great respect for the constitution, that he holds the court of which he is about to become a member in actual contempt.

Against these things, of course, are his fine sense of social and economic justice, a kind now supposed to be lacking from the court. He is also industrious, ambitious and conscientious. When he is confirmed, as he seems sure to be, in spite of opposition, he may yet be able to throw aside political allegiances and become a valuable and impartial member of the court.

Kings, centuries ago, had servants "break in" their pipes for them. Such tyranny is today, of course, unthinkable.

Fleas, according to a magazine article, can exist for four months without food. And we've a collie dog who heartily wishes they would.

No Holiday
For Death

NINETEEN PERSONS were killed last week in what some newspaper accounts called an "accident," but which we prefer to call by a different, more accurate name—man-slaughter. A tenement collapsed and these 19 were instantly killed, many others injured. This fact, in itself, is not history-making. Tenements have collapsed before, and innocent tenants have been killed.

What makes last week's tragedy unusual is the fact that it came at an opportune time—if such a tragedy can be said to be opportune. The news seemed to strike like a revealing flash of lightning into the sectional fight over the Wagner housing bill.

Most of the southern senators and congressmen fighting to kill the bill, or to limit it so that the money could be spent only in the south, know little, it would appear, of northern city slums.

This ghastly disaster may serve to show some of these gentlemen why northern cities, particularly New York, need the loan of a little federal money with which to plant cells of modern, decent and safe housing in slum districts. These loans, it is hoped, will force private owners of slum property to raise safety and sanitation standards in competition with publicly built housing. Thus the slum cancer may be gradually alleviated—and only thus. A modest hope, we believe, and a conservative plan.

Congress may adjourn next week end. If its work is finished we believe the congressmen are entitled to a vacation. But to date the house has not acted on the housing bill it has given no indication that it will do so. So far as we know, there has been little debate on the question.

We believe—as do most right-thinking persons the country over—that the housing bill, despite its obvious defects, should be passed and passed quickly. The bill has been ignored during three separate terms of congress, however. The same thing may happen again.

If it does happen—well, more news stories, more pictures of mangled dead and injured can write a far more poignant editorial than we could ever hope to do. Death last week took no holiday, nor is there any holiday planned for this kind of thing—not that is, until we step in with some sort of a housing program.

WIRE-FRAMED AIRPORTS

WILL ROGERS used to say that if you got lost in an airplane all you had to do was to pick up a high tension power line and it would lead you to an airport. It was his way of pointing out what most pilots and veteran air passengers have long observed—namely, that airports have some curious affinity for high-tension and other wires which create the most dangerous hazard possible for either landing or take-off.

The fatal accident to an Eastern Air liner at Daytona Beach, Fla., is a natural reminder of this condition. With tragic emphasis it suggests the question why, in common sense, the hazard should be permitted. In the case of the Daytona crash the pilot, it appears, might easily have vaulted the lethal wire had he known it was there. It had been stretched across his pathway that night, allegedly without notice to the airport officials. But if proper regulations had been in force respecting not only wires but every other obstruction to safe ingress or egress at this field, that wire, it seems clear, would never have been put up, with or without notice.

It happens that the airport section of the Bureau of Air Commerce is formulating much stricter rules to govern its rating of airports. As a federal agency, of course, it cannot dictate to a state or municipality what structures may or may not be permitted in proximity to an airport. On the other hand, it can say, on a basis of hazard, to what extent the station may be used in interstate air-line operation and restrict its service accordingly. If and when the new rules become effective, we understand, they will insist on approaches with a "gliding angle" of 1 to 20, which means simply that, measuring from the ends of the airport's runways, there may be no obstruction higher than one foot to every 20 linear feet of distance therefrom. Either that, or the rating allowed, if forthcoming, will be limited.

Many an airport then, one imagines, will be found divesting itself of its wire frame. Perhaps even the airport at Washington will be made safe for traffic. For, strangely enough, though the airport of the national capital, it is one of the worst offenders in the country and at the same time, both in itself and its surroundings, subject to immediate federal jurisdiction. The public will be interested to see whether its approaches are cleared to conform with the new standards or whether it receives a limited rating. Meanwhile, there is no need to depend entirely on the Bureau of Air Commerce to solve the problem. New York State has passed legislation authorizing its municipalities to acquire or condemn any structure within 1,500 feet of an airport likely to interfere with the safety of its use. Though not a mandate, this law operates effectively and might well serve as a model for general state action.

Clendening Reports Scientific
Study of Best Shaving Methods

WE HAD SOME very good advice on shaving from Jerome Ephraim (reported in this column in May), and it proves sound when examined against the first elaborate scientific study of shaving ever made and reported last month from the Mellon Institute.

This is properly a health subject, and is of sufficient importance to be given plenty of prominence and publicity. There is nothing more luxurious than a good shave, and nothing more annoying than a poor one; and the annoyance lasts all day with a rough, stinging, sore face. It certainly deserves enough attention that the shaver should take the most loving care of his instruments and all the appliances, such as soap and brush and water.

Women Interested
Nowadays it is a subject of interest to women as well as men, since the removal of hair from legs is considered so desirable, and since shaving is considered by dermatologists as the best way of removing hair (removal of superfluous hair permanently is best done by electrolysis). So we intend to review this Mellon report at some length.

A little history is interesting. I suppose everyone has wondered how the Romans, who are always depicted with smooth faces, shaved. It doesn't seem to have been as much of a problem with the Greeks and ancient Hebrews. If we can believe the classic representations of such typical worthies as Socrates and chin are more uneven and the surfaces more difficult to get at than the cheek.

The rate of hair growth is most rapid immediately after shaving.

China Uses Ads In Tuberculosis Drive

NANKING, (AP)—In an effort to cut China's annual tuberculosis death rate of 1,600,000, welfare organizations here have embarked on a spectacular campaign. Exhibitions, posters and newspaper ads are being used.

Since six per cent of the nation's 400,000 high school students suffer from the white plague, the education ministry, as its share in the campaign, has instituted a program of compulsory athletics. Excessive indoor study has fostered the disease, officials believe. They have ordered all schools closed at 3 p.m.

Chinese high schools require more than twice as many hours of classes a week as American schools.

ELIZABETH HALSEY

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Postmaster General James A. Farley had hardly finished choosing Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg for the next republican presidential nomination before he himself was suggested for the next presidential nomination on the democratic ticket.

Raymond Clapper, a Washington columnist of note, was the "pmg's" sponsor.

Now, Ray Clapper is a friend of mine, a dandy columnist, and heaven forbid that I ever should say I think his judgment is perfectly awful.

Nevertheless, I must admit that I thought this selection of his (and he seemed to be making it seriously) was one of the most extraordinary I ever listened to.

Amazing to relate, however, apparently there are others who apparently agree that Farley might be a pretty good democratic White House nominee.

Does Farley Believe It?
Directly following Clapper's hint I encountered a couple of newspaper cartoons, also pointing to the "pmg" as a presidential possibility.

True, the cartoonists did not imply that THEY considered him presidentially possible. Their implication was, rather, that Farley so considers himself. Perhaps Clapper gave them the idea.

Anyway, one would infer that Farley has presidential ambitions and is getting some of his journalistic friends to start a boom for him.

My gosh! Have I been so obtuse as not to realize that ANYBODY may believe himself to be presidential timber? No, not that exactly. Like every American child, I was taught in my infancy, that the presidency looms in the offing for each and all of us. But I can't remember when I was so young as not to sense that very few of us have much chance at it.

Politician—100 Per Cent
"Jim" Farley is a politician par excellence.

Yet there is a difference between a politician and a statesman. They are as far apart as the poles in certain respects. A president needs to be a statesman. He needs to be a politician also, but he should not be a politician exclusively, without a modicum of statesmanship.

If ever there was a 100 per cent politician it is Farley.

He and his friends ought to know it—unless they are joking.

Mother Devises Chart
To Check on Triplets

LORAIN, Ohio (AP)—Being a triplet might be considered fun by some folks, but it's just a bore to Joy, Jean and Janet Mills, 11-year-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Mills.

"Too many people ask you your name too many times," says Joy. The mother of the blonde, blue-eyed girls says she, too, has had

Tuning In

Why have Shakespeare's plays in the Columbia cycle been a bore to everyone except scholars and Shakespeare hobbyists?

Because, for the average listener, it is too much of an effort to hear drama without seeing it. And the reason—radio must substitute sound for ancient theatrical devices such as scenery and curtains.

Then too, many don't know how to listen. Most persons are so accustomed to taking their listening in catch-as-catch-can doses that the prospect of sitting down for a full hour of nothing but radio drives them away. If they do tune in at all, they don't listen with the care which is necessary to shape their minds to the contours of the stage on which the radio characters walk.

Nevertheless, critics are hopeful that in time "radio-drama goes" will be just as numerous as "theater-drama goes."

The Shakespearean play to be presented tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock is the musical comedy, "As You Like It," in which screen's Frank Morgan will play the role of Jacques, the melancholy comedian.

As for NBC's cycle of modern drama placed in juxtaposition to CBS's cycle on Monday evenings at 7:30, it has been pronounced a huge success, leaving listeners eager for the next broadcast.

The O'Neill drama to be presented this week is "Where the Cross is Made," with Henry Hull, the Jeeter Lester of "Tobacco Road," taking the lead.

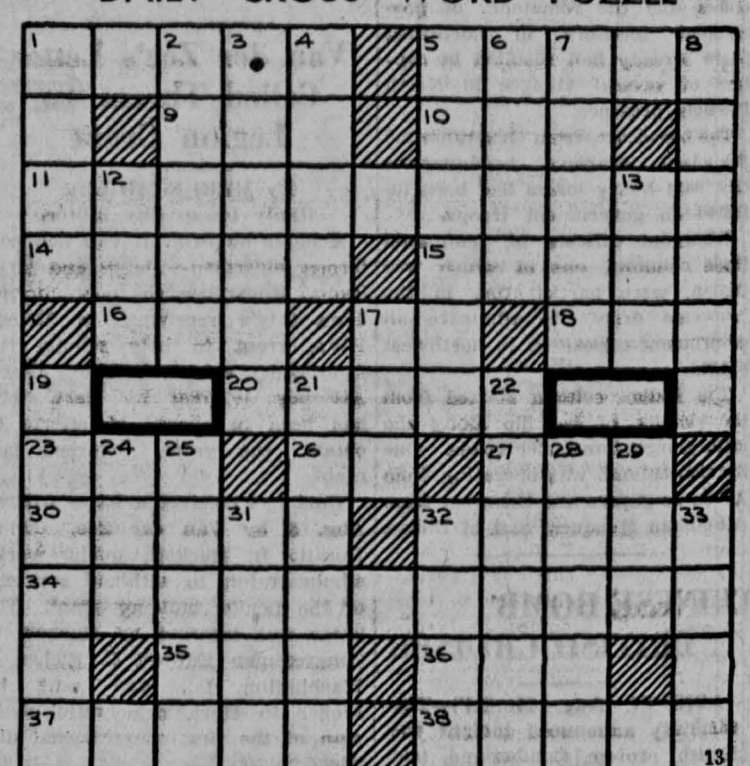

The third recent addition to radio drama, Columbia Workshop, is also enjoying wide popularity. Tonight's 5 o'clock dramatization will be John Galsworthy's "Escape" starring Orson Welles.

Looking Glass Reflections

By VERA SHELDON

CHILDREN—A PROBLEM
Self-consciousness in childhood may lead to the development of a chronically unadjusted personality. Braces worn on growing teeth and glasses for weak young eyes are often the source of much unhappiness to small girls who must endure them to be assured of beauty in later years.

A little consideration given to her appearance will help the growing girl over the awkward age. If she has straight, unruly hair a soft permanent wave with lovely fluffy curls will be especially helpful in overcoming self-consciousness. With improved machineless methods a permanent wave need not be tiring to the tiny patron. If she is allowed to help by handing supplies to the operator and sip a chocolate soda in between steps, the small girl will find the process an amusing pastime.

Short bobs are advisable for youngsters. They are usually more becoming and certainly more comfortable. Hanging curls of the Shirley Temple type are popular with them. Such curls are easily made by winding the hair over the finger. The curl must be started at the middle joint and spiraled down to the fingertip, using a comb or brush to keep the hair smooth. This hairdress is adaptable only for children with quite heavy hair.

Bows, large and small, may be worn by the growing miss. Bangs are becoming to the small face, but if her face is full, her hair will be more attractive combed off the forehead.

Curls forming a soft frame for the face and partially covering the bows make glasses less noticeable.

Walter Duranty's Novel Treats Russian Outbreak Impartially

Coldly Brutal Story Of Revolution Told With Frank Realism

"ONE LIFE, ONE KOPECK," by Walter Duranty. (Simon and Schuster, 1937, $2.50.)

Since 1917 hundreds of books have been written about the Russian revolution. They tell of the old-world glamour of the czar's court, fascinatingly wicked Rasputin, or of the deplorable want of pre-revolutionary peasantry.

Only a half image may be reflected from any one of these. The czar's court was brilliant—and a breeding place for corruption. Rasputin, a picturesque and dangerous "saint," was, after all, one among millions of persons embroiled in this great class struggle. And the peasants, oppressed for centuries by their overlords, struck back sometimes with horrible brutality.

Chaotic Country
Last week another novel of revolutionary Russia was published—"One Life, One Kopeck," by Walter Duranty. It is the story of a peasant, Ivan Petrovich Petrov, and of a chaotic country. As nearly as any human writing can be, Duranty's book is without bias. He treats only the Bolshevik movement, but without condemning or lauding it.

Duranty is qualified to write such a book. Moscow correspondent of the New York Times since 1920, he has an understanding of Russia that few foreigners have achieved. He speaks the language, has won the friendship of many Soviet leaders, and has covered every important story from Russia since he has been there. Before that he served as a correspondent on the Western Front during the war, so that his battle descriptions have unquestionable authenticity.

Objective Attitude
After maintaining for 20 years the objective attitude newspaper men have to display toward public affairs, Duranty is able to approach the difficult subject of the revolution with a minimum of prejudice. "One Life, One Kopeck" is a vigorous, frank narrative of action based on an old saying, translated "Life is a little kopeck," or "Life is not worth a rap." Ivan, the central character, was first conscious of class injustice when at the age of 15 he was exiled to Siberia because he hit a gendarme while trying to protect his master in a brawl.

First Murder
He escaped from the convict colony by stabbing his commandant. That was the first man Ivan had killed. Later he was to kill many others until even he asked himself, "What's wrong with me? How can I be so cruel?" After his escape he met a Bolshevik organizer who was to change the direction of Ivan's life. Bitter against gendarmes and the injustice they represented, the peasant boy enlisted in "the cause." From that time his life belonged to the party. He joined the army to learn the discipline of arms and to better plan for revolt. He became a worker in a munitions factory to learn how to enlist sympathy of the working classes. And when the clash finally arrived, Ivan organized the workers and the peasants and led the Bolshevik troops.

Brutal Details
In numerous well-sketched scenes, Duranty pictures Russia—the group of maddened peasants who tortured an old countess because she was of the upper classes; the sailor who coldly threw three superior officers overboard because they mistreated him; workers fearing to express discontent because of the watchful eyes of the police spies.

Ivan gave his life to the party, but he reserved a part of it for love. He was intimate with many women, and two influenced him deeply. Hilda rescued him after his escape from the convict camp; their love was a brother-sister affection. Nina, the daughter of his old master, loved him but hated his political work. Ivan sacrificed his affection for her because of his fellow-conspirator's words: "If you love any girl, it means you're disloyal. You must have one motive only, to serve the revolution."

Many episodes are not pleasant reading. But war and brutality are not pleasant, and Duranty does not attempt to sugar-coat them. He has written a powerful book by faithfully recording what he believes to be true in terse and vivid words.

Petty Minds McIntyre Novel Tells Harsh Story

"FERMENT" by John T. McIntyre. (Farrar and Rinehart, 1937, $2.50.) John McIntyre is 65 years old, and he has been writing plays and novels for 27 of them. What he has written has, for the most part, been mediocre, well-written, unimportant.

But last year McIntyre startled everyone—probably including himself—by publishing a novel, "Steps Going Down," which won first place as the United States contender in the All-Nations Prize-Novel competition. Judged to be typical of America's most successful literary effort by some, others found it harsh, overdrawn and exceedingly ugly.

In his new novel McIntyre is as pessimistic as before but tells a neater, more brittle story. His characters glow with the breath of the unhealthy life they live. When a reader completes the book, he will probably feel a sense of faint nausea which may or may not mean that McIntyre has succeeded in writing a great novel.

Goes Along
Center of the involved plot is a handsome, curly-haired, intelligent youth named Steve Brown, who gets along well enough with everyone—everyone, that is, except the fast-growing group from which he has attempted to borrow money. Steve's business is a little indefinite so far as his family is concerned, but he himself knows he is a spotter on street cars for a second-rate detective agency. When his employer finally branches into the strike-breaking racket, Steve goes along.

Strike breaking is not the easy job that Steve imagined it would be. He meets people who start strikes so that they can break them; people with mean, petty minds who can kill and laugh at the same time.

Steve starts slipping, but he won't admit it—even to himself. He goes right on making big plans, telling his sweetheart Maggie of the fine wedding trip they'll have, laughing his way through trouble.

He Thinks So
But when Steve is accused of taking $1,500 from his drunken boss and when his hard-working, plodding brother tries to put up the money from the union funds which he guards as treasurer, Steve loses his job. His sweetheart and his brother's $1,500. But he still believes he is a great fellow, the victim of his surroundings.

There's little inspiration in McIntyre's plot. There's little to love in the characters he draws; there's much to hate in the situations he paints. But few will deny what he says is true, that his harsh, double-crossing world is a part of America and a not-too-small part at that.

Bengals Collect 40 Hits Including 8 Homers In Route

DETROIT, Aug. 14 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers mopped up a double-header with St. Louis today, slaying five Brownie pitchers for 40 hits which included eight home runs. Elden Auker, who pitched four-hit ball to win the first game, 16 to 1, hit circuit clouts in successive innings as did Charlie Gehring in the second, which the Tigers won 20 to 7. The twin victories gave the Tigers undisputed possession of second place in the American league race.

Yankees Obtain Ivy Paul Andrews From Tribe On Waivers

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14 (AP)—

The New York Yankees, seeking to bolster their faltering pitching staff, today obtained Ivy Paul Andrews, veteran right-hander, from the Cleveland Indians on waivers. To make room for him on the roster, the Yanks released Spurgeon Chandler, rookie flinger, to their international league farm at Newark. It was Chandler's second trip back to Newark this year. Andrews is making a return trip to the Yanks, with whom he broke into major league ball back in 1929. He was sent down to the minors after that, and returned to the Yanks in 1931, going to the Boston Red Sox in 1932, the St. Louis Browns in 1934, and to the Indians after last season in the trade by which the Tribe gave up Bill Knickerbocker, Joe Vosmik and Oral Hildebrand for Lyn Lary, Jule Solters and Andrews.

Andrews, who is 39, has won 43 and lost 50 games during his six years in the majors. So far this season, he has won three and lost four, and is the only pitcher to hold a shutout victory over the Yanks.

The Yanks obtained Andrews as their pitching situation, weak all year, became acute. Only three pitchers have lasted nine innings in the Yanks' last 11 games. With Monte Pearson still ailing and Chandler still suffering from a sore arm that necessitated his shift to Newark again, only Red Ruffing and Lefty Gomez are dependable starters, with Johnny Murphy and Blubber Malone doing yeoman work on relief.

ROCKET TO VISIT IOWA CITY TODAY

Iowa City's first glimpse of the streamlined Rock Island "Rocket" will be at 3:10 this afternoon when the three-car speedster passes through the city en route to Chicago from Omaha.

Van der Zee--

city council) intend to kill the electric project, it seems only fair to me that PWA should require them to guarantee to reimburse PWA for the $28,000 given to the city and if they refuse to do that, PWA is certainly not warranted in approving the city's application for a grant of $29,000 for the community building," Van der Zee's letter asserted.

When Van der Zee was a member of the city council, until he and the other members of the MOL council were defeated in March, he had approved the application filed late in 1935 for the community hall grant.

Unless the grant is received in the next few weeks, however, the $35,000 bond issue will be the only money available for work on the building, it was said last night by city officials. Most of the bond issue will be necessary for repairing the building.

When told by newspaper men that his letter had been made public, Van der Zee last night declared that "this is just what I expected. Obviously, the whole thing is an attempt on the part of Hart and Elcher to smear me."

"Since they haven't been able to obtain the grant themselves, they're trying to find someone to pin the blame on, and I'm the goat," the political science professor said.

Dewey Enters New York Race; Sees Tammany, Crime Allied

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP)—Charging "an alliance of long standing between crime and certain elements of Tammany hall," Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey tonight announced he would accept the republican designation for New York county district attorney in the forthcoming city election.

His decision to join the ticket headed by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia came after weeks of pressure from fusion-republican circles, climaxed by the last-minute withdrawal last night of Irving Ben Cooper, previous republican entry for the district attorney's office.

Dewey, successful prosecutor of big-time racketeers, said he was convinced his two-year drive on organized crime as special deputy district attorney could best be pursued by "a completely reorganized and effective district attorney's office."

"As a result of the work of investigation," Dewey said in a formal statement, "it has become clear to me there is an alliance of long standing between crime and certain elements of Tammany Hall."

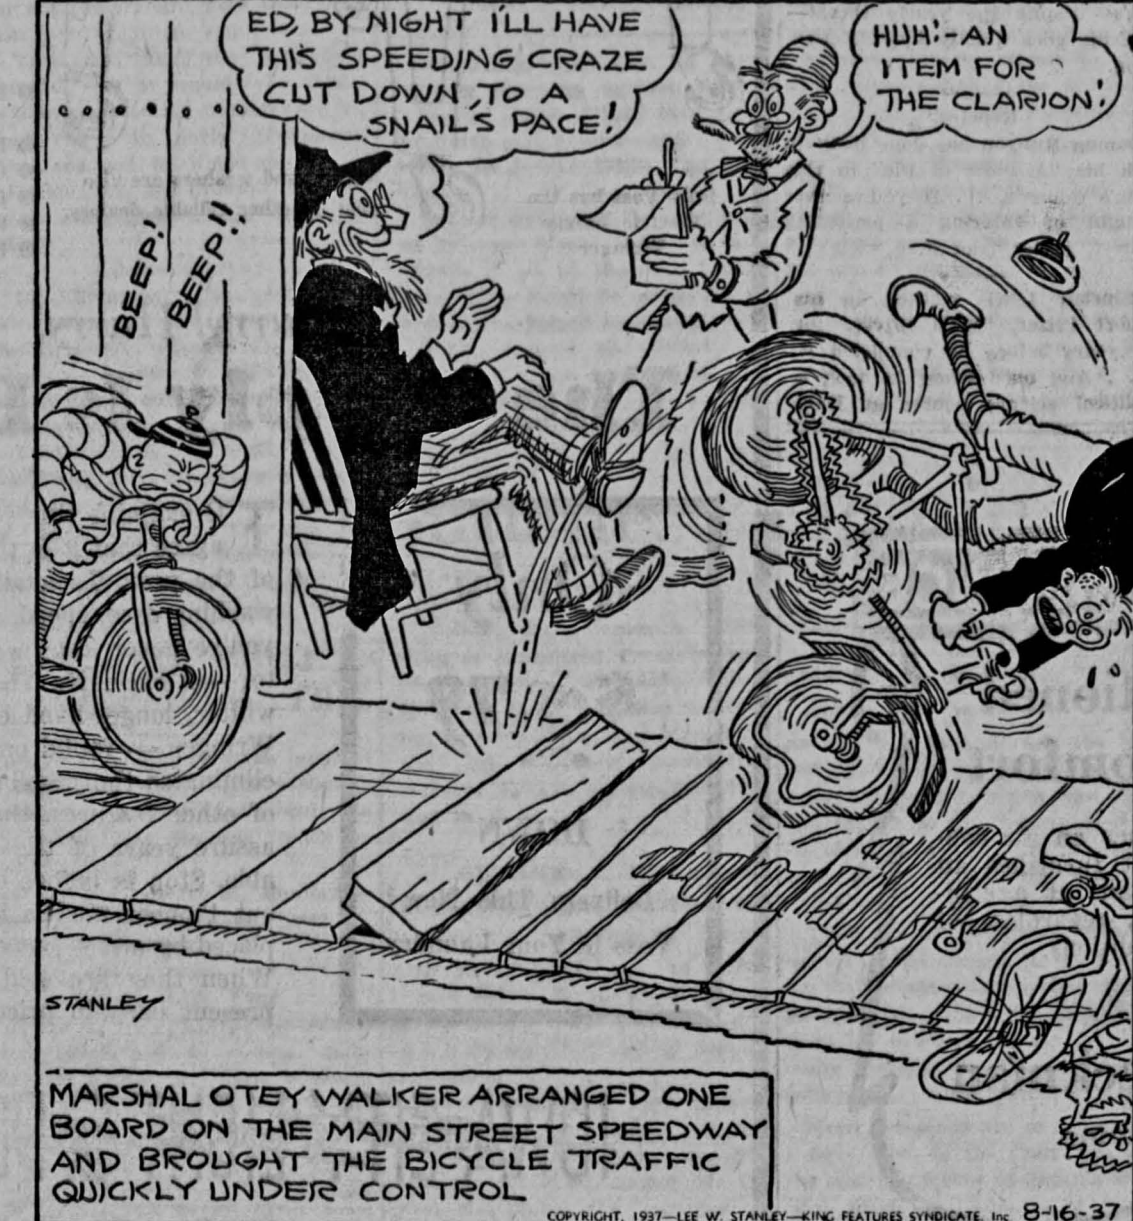

"For 20 years Tammany Hall has controlled criminal prosecution in this county and for 20 years the power of the criminal underworld has grown. This alliance must be broken."

"I am happy to enter the struggle for good government at the side of Mayor LaGuardia, whose whole-hearted support and encouragement in the work I have been conducting has always been of the greatest importance."

Gardner Says County To Have 100 Per Cent Normal Crop

County Agent Predicts Full Bins for Fall

Expects Good Yield, Barring Inclement Weather Conditions

Johnson county will have a 100 per cent normal corn and small grain crop this year, and most farmers will have overflowing cribs and bins this fall—something new after the adverse conditions of the past few years, County Agent Emmett C. Gardner declared yesterday.

Moisture conditions have been ideal so far in spite of a wet spring, Gardner continued. Barring high wind, hail or a hard, early frost, large corn yields seem assured in this county, he declared.

Small grains are now nearly all threshed, and in some places the yield has doubled over last year's poor showing.

Prices on all grain should remain at current low levels, and if present high prices on beef and pigs hold until fall, most stock farmers should pocket a sizable profit, the county agent surmised.

Sees Bumper Crop And Bumper Fair

DES MOINES, Aug. 14 (AP)—A. R. Corey, secretary of the Iowa state fair board, today predicted a "bumper crop" would produce a "bumper" state fair this year.

"Big crops and a big state fair are synonymous," Corey declared. "If we don't go far beyond the 350,000 attendance mark this year, I will be obliged to admit that I am not a good forecaster."

The exposition opens Aug. 27 for an eight day run.

Large Dairy Show
Corey said one of the largest dairy shows in the fair's history was predicted in the early entries, with 300 animals already entered in the Jersey show. The general cattle show, he said, exclusive of 4-H club entries, will total 1,421 animals, making it one of the largest events of its kind in the country this summer.

He reported 743 entries in the horse show as of Saturday, compared with 713 last year. Nearly 200 fancy horses have been entered in the harness and saddle shows. Swine entries total 2,202 head as against 1,985 last year, Corey said, while the sheep show totals 1,031 animals against 1,026 in 1936.

Auto Races
Final entertainment programs for the fair were also announced today. Auto races will be held during the afternoon programs, Aug. 27, 28 and 29. Horse races will be afternoon features, Aug. 30, 31, Sept. 1 and 2. The major afternoon event Aug. 29 will be an airplane crashing into a house. The program will be part of the fair's "safety day."

The rodeo will be held the first three nights of the fair, with vaudeville the last four nights. Horse shows will also take place the last four nights. Scandinavian day will be Sept. 1.

Policeman Reminisces

Garrett Byrne Has Twirled His Stick For 12 Long Years

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles dealing with members of the Iowa City police department.)

Garrett P. Byrne, the "old man" of the Iowa City police force, has twirled a night stick for a dozen years—12 years packed with the thrills and adventures of a police officer.

Since Oct. 30, 1925, Byrne has served with the Iowa City police department. The 61-year-old patrolman, reclining in an easy chair at his home last night, gazed thoughtfully at the ceiling.

PREPARE RECORD CROP

It was a record threshing yesterday at Mrs. Amelia Hertz's farm near Solon, and similar news comes from threshing all over Johnson county. Crops this year, in almost every case, will average 60 to 70 per cent better than last year's drought crops.

Every Pilot on Route Knows Runyon

Radio Operator at Airport Sends Weather Facts to Planes

Every pilot on the Chicago-Cheyenne flight knows Bland Runyon.

Runyon since December has been radio-telephone operator for the Iowa City office of the United Air Lines—and every pilot of every airplane passing over or stopping in Iowa City, communicates with Runyon before doing so.

How does Runyon describe his job? Thrilling? "No," he replied. Exciting, then? "No," again. "I guess I'd just call it interesting. In a small office like Iowa City, the radio job is really just a rather insignificant part of the work."

Surrounded by maps, charts, graphs, teletype machines and radio equipment, Runyon's work is to relay weather and flying information to the pilots overhead. It's important information, he said, but routine work.

Speaking of the movie versions of airline radio operators, he asserted "It's all hokey! I get excited, of course, but for different reasons. Rather, I get rushed—that would describe it better than excited—because I have to relay information and stay at the radio until the ship is on the ground. Then I have to help get the mail off, passengers on and off, cargo loaded, tickets sold, the ship serviced and a lot of other things—including seeing that the building is clean and the field mowed."

Chief requirement for his sort of job, Runyon declared, is that the applicant hold a second class radio-telephone operator's license. "Most of us have some sort of as he recalled his first murder case—the one which he says was his greatest "thrill" experience. It was a matter of a Negro killing another Negro, Byrne recollected. "It was over a 90-cent crap game. Two Negroes got into an argument about the gambling, and one of them cut the other one up with an axe."

Just like that, Byrne told the tale. Nothing pompous or condescending about him. He takes his job seriously, calmly and contentedly.

"The most distasteful job a policeman has to perform is that of going into a house and dragging someone out of it," he said. "We get jobs like that every once in a while. You never know what to expect."

Again, he recalled the capture of a notorious alcohol runner. After shooting over the bootlegger's head and chasing him for blocks, Byrne finally caught up with him in an alley and forced him to surrender without further struggle.

He agreed with the statement made by Police Chief William Bender, that criminals are smarter today than in by-gone times.

"But," he asserted, "the police force has better equipment, more men and is better trained to handle the situation today." The public is more willing to cooperate with the police department than formerly, he added.

As a rule, he said, students afford little trouble—that is, as a rule. "But they get out of place once in a while, just as do the rest of the people," he said.

Mrs. Byrne? She approves of her husband's occupation. Asked whether she would rather have her husband be a member of another profession, were the considerations equal, she unhesitatingly replied in a firm negative.

'TALKING TO THE SKIES'

college education, too," he said. "It's practically impossible to get the job without a college education. It's important, too, because we constantly study meteorology—the study of the weather."

22,600 Iowans Enrolled In Vocational Education Classes

DES MOINES, Aug. 14 (AP)—More Iowans than ever seek to know how to "do things," the annual report of P. E. Moore, director of the board for vocational education, indicated today.

The total enrollment of all types of vocational schools and classes organized under provisions of the national vocational education act was 22,628 in Iowa during the fiscal year just ended. This figure exceeded the 1936 enrollment by 2,614.

The enrollees were grouped as follows: agricultural education, 11,892; homemaking education, 5,681; trade and industrial education, 5,055.

Fifty-three percent of these persons were young people or adults enrolled in part-time or evening school classes. A total of 234 different adult vocational classes were maintained in 119 cities and towns, Moore said.

Some type of vocational training was offered in 170 Iowa communities during the past year. Vocational agriculture work was conducted in 128 high schools. Eighty-three districts maintained vocational homemaking departments and industrial training was offered in 22 larger school systems.

Federal vocational education funds spent in Iowa last year

Furthermore, she declared, she never worries about her policeman-husband.

Which, coming from the feminine half of a happily married couple, is just another way of expressing her confidence in his ability to take care of himself.

Valentine
Lient-Gov. John K. Valentine—who nearly drifted out of the university's college of law because he wasn't much interested at the time—is in the bag to be Iowa's next governor, those high in the political circles tell me. Valentine is the most popular man in the state house these days, they're saying.

Discoverer
Playwright Paul Green, who is just now turning out what will be the best contemporary dramas, tells me he owes his success to Prof. Norman Foerster. When Foerster was at the University of North Carolina, he announced in class one day that the seniors had decided to do a play at commencement and were holding a contest for original scripts. Foerster advised Green to try his hand; he did and won. After that Green devoted his entire time to the theater.

Schism
And a note in yesterday's mail from a pal in Washington, D.C., who reports that so deep is the schism in the democratic party that some of the conservative democrats refuse to lunch in the same restaurants as the Roosevelt liberals. They say a move is already under foot for new dealers to leave the democratic banner, form a third party. May be called the "new deal" party, reports are.

Election
And, although the months before the 1938 election stretch endlessly ahead, one local attorney has confided he will be in the race for congress—barring unexpected developments. It'll not be his first race for public office, nor, if he wins, his first successful one.

A scout reports Life magazine will picture the university's hospital in an issue soon. A staff photog is scheduled to arrive this week to take the shots.

Therapy
Every year or other something comes along that threatens to replace medicine as the human curative. Latest threat, I'm told, has taken hold in northern Iowa, Wisconsin, comes from Germany. Known as "natural therapy," the idea of treatment is quiet, right living.

Given a sick one from any cause, its protagonists declare it heals the unhealthiest, give examples. There's even a "natural therapy" hospital in Milwaukee, and there the railroads report unusual success. Main trouble with medicine, the followers will tell you, is that it counteracts one poison with another. Only natural herbs are used in the new treatment. Sounds logical, of course, but somehow—despite the yearly threat—medicine goes quietly but effectively on.

COUNTY AGENT NAMES JUDGES FOR 4-H SHOW

Judges for all events of the Johnson county 4-H club show were announced yesterday by County Agent Emmett C. Gardner.

Exhibits for home project achievement day will be judged by Mrs. N. May Larson, assistant state home demonstration agent leader from Iowa State college. 4-H girls' booths are to be judged by Mrs. Florence Bakke, former state leader of the girls' 4-H club.

Ernest Wright, field secretary of the Iowa State Dairy association, will select winners in the dairy classes, and W. F. LaGrange, professor of animal husbandry at Iowa State college, will have the responsibility of judging five classes —society horse show, draft colts, baby beef, lambs and pigs. Poultry classes will be judged by W. M. Vernon of the extension service of Iowa State college.

Fraternity President Will Go To Chicago

Leo A. Hoegh of Chariton, president of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity district embracing Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa, will leave shortly for Chicago, where he will attend the biennial conference of the national and district officers of Pi Kappa Alpha Aug. 21 and 22. Hoegh, a graduate of the University of Iowa, will represent the Iowa State college, University of Iowa, University of Minnesota and University of Wisconsin chapters.
