'Genial Jim' Speaks For 5 Minutes At Train Here Today

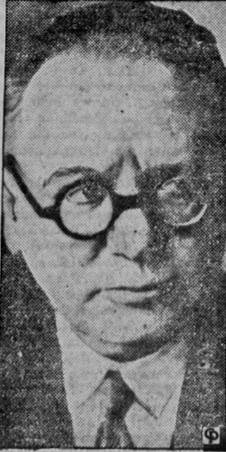

Forty-nine-year-old "Jim" Farley, the former gypsum salesman who is now a second-term member of President Roosevelt's cabinet and controls democratic patronage through two important political posts, will speak to Iowa Citizens for five minutes at noon today on the rear platform of his special train near the Rock Island depot.

James A. Farley Tells 1,000 Iowa Democrats That G.O.P. Will Not Win by Party's Split

DES MOINES, Sept. 9 (AP)—Roosevelt administration is waning. Postmaster - General James A. Farley tonight told 1,000 Iowa democrats that "the republican party never will slip back into power as a result of divided councils in the democratic ranks."

This map indicates why the Soviet Union is vitally interested in a "free" Mediterranean. Russian vessels from her Black sea ports have no other means of reaching the Atlantic except via this tortuous route to and through the Mediterranean.

Only contributions which can be used impartially at the discretion of the Red Cross for sufferers of any nationality will be accepted according to Grayson.

Local contributions should be mailed or given to Mr. Boss, 822 Rundell street.

Five Iowans were dead last night as the result of automobile accidents on the state's highways.

The dead: Mrs. Emma Smith, 72, Kalona. Mrs. Clare Mott Perrin, 42, Kalona, daughter of Mrs. Smith.

Paul Campe, 6, Camanche. Joseph Bailey, 19, Clinton. Edwin Schnede, 28, Wheatland.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Perrin were killed when the car in which they were riding collided headon with a truck on a bridge near Marengo last night.

The Campe boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Campe of Camanche, was struck yesterday while returning home from school.

Police said Harold Hopkins of Camanche, was the driver of the car. The accident occurred on route 67.

Bailey was killed when his motorcycle crashed into a truck on highway 136 a mile west of Clinton. Eyewitnesses said both vehicles were traveling east and the crash occurred when the truck attempted to turn left onto a side road.

Bailey, who was trying to pass, struck the truck and plunged into a ditch.

Schnede died in a Davenport hospital yesterday as the result of injuries suffered Wednesday when the car in which he was riding with four others plunged off a highway near Davenport after failing to make a turn.

None of the others riding with Schnede suffered serious injuries.

M. A. Conrad, 27, of Dallas suffered the loss of his left arm Thursday when a truck side-swiped his car near Knoxville.

The crash in which the Kalona women died occurred at 7:45 p.m. on the Bear creek bridge one-half mile west of Marengo.

Mrs. Britton, who suffered a fractured nose, broken ribs and shock, underwent an emergency operation here last night in Mercy hospital. Mrs. Britton is the mother of Mrs. Marcus Owen, 501 S. Dodge street.

The death car, traveling east on U. S. highway 6, was driven by Mrs. Perrin. The impact of the crash swung the light sedan completely around on the bridge.

The car was demolished. Mildred Englebert, Iowa county sheriff, pried open the wreckage with a crowbar. The body of Mrs. Smith was wedged under the dashboard. Her face was mutilated.

The body of her daughter, Mrs. Perrin, was hurled from the car and was found in the gutter of the bridge.

The truck driver, dazed, squirmed from the cab of his battered truck. Although limping, he protested that he was not hurt.

Mrs. Britton, after a brief examination by a Marengo doctor, was rushed by ambulance to Mercy hospital. Early today her condition was reported as fairly good.

Mrs. Smith has no survivors. Her daughter, Mrs. Perrin, is survived by her husband, Archie Perrin. The Perrins lived on a farm 10 miles southwest of Kalona near West Chester.

A. W. Britton, the injured woman's husband, was notified of the accident and friends drove him to Mercy hospital here.

The bodies were taken to the Cranford funeral home at Marengo and will be removed to Kalona today.

Piracy In The Mediterranean

DESPITE STRONG notes of protest from Russia to Italy, and pacific yet firm statements from Great Britain and France that such 17th century tactics would not be tolerated, submarine piracy in the Mediterranean has continued throughout the past month.

In the growing mass of charges and counter charges another crisis has been generated to join those which almost daily threaten the peace of the world. Now Great Britain and France have agreed with seven smaller powers to patrol the Mediterranean for the protection of peaceful shipping.

Whether the attacks will cease and whether the responsibility for them can ever be definitely placed upon the government of any country remain to be seen. What the whole series of incidents did do, and rather emphatically, was to prove that, despite all appearances to the contrary, the nations of Europe do not want to fight.

That they are physically ready for battle there can be little doubt. The munitions bill for almost every country on the globe has for the last five years been bigger than any of them care to admit. Yet where before the last World War days such notes of state as have recently passed between Italy and Russia would have brought on war, swiftly and certainly, today they give the impression of merely crying "woof-woof" at each other.

Neither country cares for a full-fledged war just yet. Perhaps this exchange of warlike statements between the fascist and communist nations has been for the best. It has given Great Britain and France the chance to slip in between, saying "Gentlemen, gentlemen, while you are quarreling, we will take care of the situation in our own quiet way."

The question of who got the best in the war of words between Russia and Italy must go undecided, proving that a battle with words is just as decisive as a battle with arms in that respect.

No Time For Revenge

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT will soon be making a tour of the Pacific northwest. He will view some of the great public works projects his administration has created, will get in close touch with the nation's economic system and will feel, at least in part, the political pulse of the nation.

When he does, Franklin Roosevelt will find, no doubt, that he is still a very popular man in the United States. He will discover that if there were to be another election tomorrow, he would probably still receive the public's backing. To be sure, the political yes-men, a large part of any administration, will continue to surround him. But far better than most men in public office, President Roosevelt has, throughout his administration, kept the common touch.

The Institute of Public Opinion, which forecast his overwhelming reelection in 1936, has recently reported that Roosevelt is still top man so far as most of the American people are concerned. Most of the voters, the institute has found, continue to favor most of Roosevelt's program. However, this same poll has found a majority at the same time disapprove some of Roosevelt's policies, his borrowing-spending program and his unnatural court plan.

We believe that no small part of the president's continued success with the American people has been his ability as a realistic and forward-looking politician, to pass over his errors and not persist in pushing them forward when he finds his party and his people disapprove.

It is for this reason that we have not put much faith in certain reports that Roosevelt is going on his tour to "get" those democrats who revolted in the last congressional session. Those men who opposed the court plan favored practically every other part of the Roosevelt program.

Mr. Roosevelt is a good politician, one of the craftiest who has ever been the nation's chief executive. It would not be smart politics to take time off for revenge. If Roosevelt is to go ahead with those things the American people believed he would accomplish when he was reelected last year, he will have little time for "getting even."

CLIPPED From Other COLUMNS

STATE UNIVERSITY: MAYBE YOU have spent part of the summer in a university town of the middle western United States, and have felt the sudden hush that falls when, with the coming of dog days, summer school closes and the community catches its breath before the beginning of the fall semester.

Schoolteachers improving their academic standing, regular students making up lost work or seeking to shorten their years in college, foreign students and workers from other campuses; all the variegated horde that recently filled classrooms, boarding houses and dormitories, have crowded into trains, buses or automobiles, and departed.

"They've gone home to their families — and the families can have 'em," landladies murmur, heaving sighs of relief and luxuriating in the silence, unbroken now for a little while by the shrilling of the telephone in the hallway, the laughter and chatter of girls, the crash as some boy's bed slats, loosened by his mates, shatter the watches of the night.

The chimes of the carillon have ceased to ring out their weekly concert. The clatter of typewriters is stilled in the town. There is a slump in the local milk-shake market, and the campus candy shop is taking advantage of the lull to install a new, chromium-trimmed counter. The shoe-shine parlors are empty at midday; beauty operators are taking their vacations; taxicabs cruise disconsolately. Even the faculty members have gone away, to lake or mountain or seashore, leaving only ambitious Ph. D. candidates or research workers, and an attenuated staff of librarians, to carry on.

But they are gathering forces for the return—all those youngsters in middle western cities and villages and farm communities. Already the youthful hitch-hiker may be seen, his suitcase gaudy with labels flaunting mystic letters: M or I or K, O or W; symbols indicating that his sophistication is not so great as he would have us believe, although, to be sure, sophistication is not now the magic word it was a college generation or two ago.

The modern student, we are told, is a disillusioned echo of what we were before the World War set the decks to heaving under our feet. He is less turbulent than his immediate predecessors and less credulous than we older ones, and he knows what he wants. One need not be entirely convinced of this. Recently a sixteen-year-old freshman declared that the most important thing the future could hold for him was security. An earlier generation had such school day catchwords as beauty, romance, service, idealism, power, adventure; but security was not among them.

Perhaps, then, the college student of today is cast in a more sober mold than we were—well perhaps. But this same sixteen-year-old was given a chance to try out for his school paper, and promptly flung himself heart and mind into the work, quite neglecting the solid commercial course he had planned, although he must know that whatever life presents to the average newspaper man, conventional security has small part in it. Possibly he was mistaken in his analysis of his desires, or it may be that he prefers to carry his security about within himself rather than to have it invested in land and gear.

A housemother, fanning herself with her apron, says rather tartly, "I've seen them come and go for twenty years, and there's little to choose amongst them." But the season is advancing; her rooms are beginning to echo cavernously and last night's frost lit a flame in the maples and left a hint of football in the air. "Aye, but I'll be glad enough to see them come back, Giddy or no, they're fine young folk," she adds, turning her attention to paint and wall paper.

Germs May Cause Pink Eye; Simple Measures Cure It

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D. SOONER or later everyone has a pink eye or two. It's a joke to the friends, but not so funny to the owner.

Pink eye is inflammation of the external layer of the eyeball—the conjunctiva. This mucous membrane covers the eyeball and is reflected over the inside of the eye-lids. The inflammation is caused usually by infection with some sort of germ, but it may be caused by a chemical or by sunburn. The conjunctiva being a mucous membrane, discharges its outer cells when inflammation occurs—a catarrh—so that the acute cases are called carhal conjunctivitis.

In a way everyone should be grateful to the existence of conjunctivitis, for our present knowledge of eye diseases comes from the lull to install a new, chromium-trimmed counter. The shoe-shine parlors are empty at midday; beauty operators are taking their vacations; taxicabs cruise disconsolately. Even the faculty members have gone away, to lake or mountain or seashore, leaving only ambitious Ph. D. candidates or research workers, and an attenuated staff of librarians, to carry on.

SCREEN LIFE

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Operatic Helen Jepson's introduction to movie work was typically filled with annoyances. Miss Jepson, slim and comely, and Charles Kullman, also from the Met, were principals in the first and only scene of the first day of "Goldwyn Follies."

They were doing a scene from "La Traviata"—doing it over and over. The setting was beautiful, like Miss Jepson, whose dark blue evening gown was the most vivid spot of color on the stage. The other women and the background players all wore pastel shades, making it easier for the color camera to pick out the star.

Don't Act Like Stars: Kullman and Miss Jepson were singing with full orchestra. But things went wrong at least 10 times while I watched and listened, and the two singers would start anew. The lights went on and off time and again, being "saved" during waits. But neither Miss Jepson nor Kullman acted like an opera star. Both smiled, sat, and sang on order. For all I know they're still there, still meeting the thousand and one technical obstacles of moviemaking—but at least Goldwyn's $2,000,000 extravaganza has been launched.

Every picture about Annapolis has that scene wherein the up-into sterile boric acid solution. Cinders usually lodge in the upper lid, so that should be rolled back over the toothpick and if the cinder can be seen, deftly picked off on moistened cotton.

Others on the program will include Frank Crumit, who will be proprietor of the shop; Reed Kennedy, romantic baritone; Alice Cornett, petite sweet rhythm singer; the Song Shop quartet, the 22-voice glee club and 47-piece orchestra, all under the musical direction of Gustave Haenschen.

Bob Burns, presiding over the Kraft music hall on NBC during the vacation of Bing Crosby, is planning ceremonies appropriate to the observing of the 30th anniversary of the bazooka.

The original instrument, composed of two pieces of gas pipe and a whiskey funnel, cost 15 cents and was made in Van Buren, Ark., otherwise famous as Bob Burns' birthplace. The contrivance works on the principle of a trombone, only the music (?) goes out straight instead of round and round.

Scenes from "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" will be played by Warner Baxter and Loretta Young, two of the screen's most popular performers, when they appear as guest stars of "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network tonight from 7 to 8 o'clock.

Margaret Daum, young CBS soprano, who has just returned to New York, N.Y., after completing a summer engagement with the St. Louis Municipal opera company, will start a new series of weekly concerts over the WABC-Columbia network this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Major Edward Bowes and his amateur hour have been given a year's renewal by the sponsor effective next Thursday. The program will continue in the same spot.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist. WASHINGTON, D. C.—If he most as effectively as Czar Reed once bossed the house of representatives, or as "Uncle Joe" Cannon bossed it before he was overthrown. The legislation he favors he simply gavel through. If there is objection he ignores or squelches it. By indirection he bosses the representatives, too. Indeed, he talks a certain amount of "turkey" to President Roosevelt.

Even elderly as he is, the Texan is suggested quite frequently. Of course these suggestions are not to be taken seriously. Gagner will be 70 in November, 1940. It is unimaginable that a statesman of his years should be named as his party's White House candidate.

All the same, I surmise that the Lone Star veteran has ambitions in that direction. Naturally he must know that his chance is exceedingly slim. Still, "hope springs eternal in the human breast." Anyway, John N. doesn't say "pooh-pooh" when he is predictably mentioned.

Breaks Precedent: Garner has broken one precedent. He is the first vice-president who ever has had any political influence. Others (like Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge) have attained influence by being accidentally boosted into the presidency, but they were not vice-presidentially influential.

Garner is influential now. Without a senatorial vote, he recently has bossed the senate al-perclassmen twit the freshman and make him go through farcical antics for their amusement. "Hold 'em, Navy!" is no exception. We find John Howard giving elaborately serious commands to Lev Ayres, the freshman. The result will be Ayres' forced demonstration, with roly-poly Benny Baker as victim, of how a gentleman kisses a lady.

Tuning In with Lenore DeVries

Others on the program will include Frank Crumit, who will be proprietor of the shop; Reed Kennedy, romantic baritone; Alice Cornett, petite sweet rhythm singer; the Song Shop quartet, the 22-voice glee club and 47-piece orchestra, all under the musical direction of Gustave Haenschen.

New Yorker At Large

By GEORGE TUCKER. NEW YORK—An intended report on the contract bridge situation in New York must be postponed. Your correspondent has been fussed by too many silly incidents in the last 24 hours to permit a serious treatise on such a weighty matter.

To begin with, I was hurriedly shaving the other night, pausing between razor-strokes only long enough to arrest an occasional hemorrhage, when a page rang and slipped an important looking telegram beneath the door. "George," it said, "Am enroute to Chicago. Will see you Wednesday or Thursday, Maude."

All of which was very nice except for one thing—I don't know anybody named Maude. Personally, the only Maude I ever have heard of are Maude Adams, who doesn't know me, and a lady donkey that used to kick things around in the comic strips.

Later, still brooding over the incident, I attended a theater and was quietly smoking in the lobby when Erin O'Brien-Moore and a party of friends came in. "Hello, George," she called. "This made me feel very good, being recognized by a pretty like that."

A moment later she turned and seemed dumbfounded at finding me there. "Why, George, darling," she cried, "how are you?" "Maybe she didn't see me the first time, or was that another wire from Maude?"

One of the most picturesque restaurants in New York lures patrons with the weird and unusual pictures on its walls. There is a picture of a banquet scene beneath the sea, with all of the noted characters who were drowned telling their experiences and gouging themselves on good things to eat. Another shows a sweep of landscape, with lamb chops serving as clouds in the sky, lily pads, and cobble stones.

This is a small, out-of-the-way place not far from the water front and caters to sea-faring men who have a tooth for sea food. However, the proprietor is a landlubber. He has never had his foot in anything larger than a Hudson river ferry.

Tea and Crystal Shower Will Honor Alice Lampe Tomorrow

Mrs. John Thede Will Entertain For Bride-To-Be

Alice Lampe, whose wedding day is Oct. 2, will be the guest of honor tomorrow at a tea and crystal shower at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Beckman, 406 Reno street. Mrs. Beckman's daughter, Mrs. John Thede of Dixon, will be hostess at the party.

About 16 guests have been invited to tea between 5 and 7 p.m. Mrs. Thede will arrive in Iowa City this morning to entertain at the party and to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Beckman.

The guest of honor will become the bride of John B. Heidel of Cedar Rapids in an afternoon ceremony at the First Presbyterian church. She is the daughter of Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion, and was graduated from the university in 1934. She is a member of Delta Gamma sorority and was elected to Mortar Board, honorary senior women's organization.

Directors Will Attend Meeting

WSUI Heads Will Go To Conference At University of Illinois

Pearl Bennett Broxam, program director of station WSUI, and Carl Menzer, director of station WSUI, will attend an annual meeting of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters at the University of Illinois Monday and Tuesday.

Menzer, who is vice-president of the group, will conduct a round table Monday on "Is an Educational Network Technically Feasible?" He will also give a talk and demonstration on recording for radio.

Lois Miller Honored At Party Wednesday

Mrs. Albert Miller, 220 N. Duquette street, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening honoring Lois Miller, who will be married later this month to Harold Hartley of Kingfisher, Okla.

Others present at the party were Dr. Martha Spence, Helen Graef, Mrs. Roscoe Groves, Louise Axen, Mrs. Lloyd Miller, Lela Whittaker, Mrs. William Holub, Alice Borts, Mrs. John Cooper, Mrs. Glen Garrisher, Mrs. Mayme Axen, Mrs. J. Europe--Like Boat on Fire

Prof. Richard, Back From Trip, Describes Conditions Abroad

By MILDRED HOLLY (Daily Iowan Campus Editor)

"Europe, since the Russian revolution in 1917, has been like a boat on fire"—that is how Prof. Christian Richard of the school of religion describes European conditions today. Professor Richard has been on leave of absence since February doing research work in literary and art criticism in Europe and Hollywood.

On his trip he gathered material for a book and a new course in literary criticism and philosophy which he will offer this fall. He also attended the international conference on Higher Education in Paris as a delegate of the University of Iowa.

While the entire world is anxiously eyeing the Chinese-Japanese situation in the east, all of Europe is under a "definite strain" as a result, he believes. "Most of the countries of Europe impressed me as being extremely uncertain of the future," he asserted.

"Japan is, practically speaking, a great European influence. She is an important influence in America, too, but I think America can take care of herself," Professor Richard said.

"Only two classes of people exist in Europe today—communists and fascists. The surface distinctions of a few years ago—first, second and third classes—have lost their edge," he stated.

"A few countries seem to be

S.U.I. Dental College To Have New Entrance Requirements

New entrance requirements, requiring two years of work in an approved liberal arts college, go into effect in the University of Iowa college of dentistry this fall.

No student will be admitted unless he has had at least 60 hours of work in liberal arts. He must have attained an average mark of "C" in these studies.

This requirement is in line with the recommendation of the curriculum survey committee of the American Association of Dental Schools. It was approved by the association two years ago and was to become effective at the beginning of the 1937-38 session.

Prior to this fall, students were admitted to dentistry if they had 30 semester hours of liberal arts work, attaining a minimum scholarship average of midway between "C" and "D."

FOOTBALL PRACTICE STARTS TODAY

Coach Irl Tubbs Sends Another 'Dark Horse' Eleven Into Big 10 Conference Football Title Race

By JOHN MOONEY Daily Iowan Sports Editor The Western conference football derby with all its pomp and pageantry, its triumphs and defeats, its drama and comedy, formally goes "to the post" this morning with Iowa's Irl Tubbs expecting 60 candidates to report.

Iowa, of late years a perennial "dark horse" in these conference "handicaps," looks like a 100-1 shot to win the race, 75-1 chance to place, and a 50-1 shot to show. These odds are on the basis of pari-mutuels or "three way parlay" betting; it's all the same to Coach Tubbs.

Team Has Power Tubbs, riding his first entry in the Big Ten classic, will be jockeying a powerful steed, but is expected to be practically left at the post unless unforeseen speed and drive develop.

At a late hour yesterday, 47 men had signified their willingness to "back" Tubbs by checking out the necessary equipment. The remaining 13 are expected to go through this procedure before the 9 o'clock practice this morning.

How Fast Forward? After reading up on the various dope sheets and listening diligently to the various "experts," it looks as if it will be hard to push Iowa rearward—the question now stands, how fast can Iowa move forward?

As assistants, Tubbs will employ Pat Boland and Ernie Nevers, two former stars in this form of sport, and the inimitable Bill Frey as trainer.

Limber Up Today Realizing that this race will not be over in a few minutes or even days, the Iowa mentor will concentrate on limbering up exercises, the loosening of tight muscles, and probably a short running and kicking drill today, postponing scrimmage until next week.

Those checking out equipment included: Nile Kinnick, Omaha; Bill Humphrey, Des Moines; Russell Busk, Clinton; Mark Baker, Burlington; Matt Miletich, Chariton; Bill Miletich, Chariton; Ed McLain, Chicago; Bob Allen, Chicago; William Mangold, Sioux City.

Charles Brady Charles Brady, Mason City; Dean Krouch, Lake View; Jack Wheaton, Des Moines; Bush Lamb, Newton; John Phillips, Des Moines; Wilbur Nead, Gilman; Glenn Olson, Colo.; Shipley Parrott, Michigan City, Ind.; Eugene Knutson, Eagle Grove; Carl Vergamini, Council Bluffs; Homer Harris, Seattle, Wash.; Jack Eichler, Holstein; Don Ludemann, Appleton; Emil Klumpar, Cedar Rapids; Chester Poluga, Martins Ferry, Ohio; Dick Anderson, Yankton, S. Duke Appears to Be Class Of South's Football Conferences

By KENNETH GREGORY ATLANTA, Sept. 9 (AP)—A preview of Dixie's 1937 pigskin panorama from a ringside seat along the sports trail:

Duke stands out in the Southern football conference (Virginia, Maryland and the Carolinas) like a ward admiral in a rodeo race.

Tennessee's Team In the Southeastern (deep south) conference, observers figure Tennessee as the team-of-the-hour.

The first to deny all are those veteran rivals and gridiron masters, William Wallace Wade and Robert Reese Neyland, but to the presupposing football followers Duke and Tennessee may be playing for the mythical southern championship when they clash Oct. 9.

Knocked Out of Trip Around North Carolina a belief still lingers that Tennessee volunteers knocked Duke's Blue Devils out of a trip to the Rose Bowl when Thomas (Red) Harp, a lightweight sophomore, ran some 70 yards for a touchdown in the last two minutes to turn defeat into a 15 to 13 victory last fall.

Duke has been champion of the 16-team Southern conference for two years hand-running. The limb should not even sag on a prediction it will repeat. Tennessee, however, faces several potential threats in the Southeastern.

Gridiron sages of the deep south, where legalized scholarships now are beginning to bear dividends, usually speak of championship prospects in terms of groups.

Tennessee, of course, ranks unanimously in the top flight. Along with the Volunteers, the list includes Louisiana State, which, like Duke, has won two championships in a row, Alabama's crimson tide, Georgia Tech and Mississippi State.

Challengers The most serious challenges to Duke's supremacy in the Southern loop apparently will come from North Carolina, Virginia Military Institute and Clemson. But even the departure of All-America ace Parker doesn't leave the gate open for any one but the Blue Devils—barring upsets.

Soft-speaking Chet Wynne, University of Kentucky pilot, sized up the Southeastern situation in this way: "How are you going to get them out of there?" He explained "them" meant Alabama, Tennessee and Louisiana State, three teams that have dominated the group since it was formed in 1933. Only in 1934 was there a break, when Tulane won the crown.

Dodgers Defeat Carl Hubbell But Lose 2nd Game

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—The pace-making New York Giants cushioned the defeat of their southpaw ace—Carl Hubbell, by shelling the Brooklyn Dodgers, 9 to 2, in the second half of a double header today.

The even break, while the Cubs were losing to St. Louis increased the Giants' lead to three full games in the National League pennant chase.

Football Squad, Visiting 'T' Men, Athletic Board, Local Clubmen, Alumni, And Pressmen To Meet

Serving the dual purpose of welcoming the 1937 football season and the new members of the University of Iowa athletic staff, the "key" dinner of the sixth annual Iowa football day will occur in the lounge of Iowa Union tonight at 6:30 p.m.

This "kick-off" affair, one of 106 in 96 Iowa counties, probably will have an attendance of over 300 persons. Both men and women are welcome to attend.

Local Groups Help Local organizations have co-operated in the affair. Groups which will sit at special tables are Lions, Kiwanians, Rotarians, members of the Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and American Legion.

Other tables will be set up for representatives of the press, the 20 visiting "T" men who will be in Iowa City to reorganize the "T" club, and for persons not affiliated with any group.

Sixty Players Some 60 football players will be seated directly below the speakers' table. After dinner and before the radio broadcasts, each player will be introduced by Coach Irl Tubbs.

Informal introductions and impromptu talks will fill the time between the end of the dinner and the beginning of the radio broadcast at 8:45 p.m. E. G. Schroeder, director of athletics, will introduce the members of his staff, some of the visiting letter men will be presented, as will leaders of the various civic groups.

Singing Group singing will be one of the features of the affair, with song leaders from the civic groups in charge. This will occur between courses as well as after the dinner.

The radio program will be broadcast by seven stations between 8:45 and 9 p.m. The master of ceremonies, Prof. Bruce E. Mahan of the alumni office and extension division, will introduce Coach Irl Tubbs, Pat Boland, Ernie Nevers, E. G. Schroeder, Glenn Devine, and Clyde Charlton who will present short talks.

Six football men each will respond to a question. The players are Capt. Homer Harris, Albert Schenk, Nile Kinnick, Jack Eichler, Frank Gallagher, and Floyd DeFeer. Visiting radio announcers who will say a few words will include Starr Yelland of WMT and Bill Brown of WHO, both Iowa graduates and former WSUI sports announcers.

Among the radio stations which will carry the program are WSUI, Iowa City; WOC, Davenport; WMT, Cedar Rapids and Waterloo; and KRNT, Des Moines. WHO of Des Moines will make a transcription and broadcast that at 9:30 p.m.

Jack Mahr, reporter who covered St. Pat's athletics last year, dropped in, fresh from the lakes and woods of northern Minnesota. Also Jack Drees, varsity basketball center, breezed in, also returning to the hum-drum of school after an enjoyable summer in Coach Rollie Williams' Boys camp in the northlands.

Last but not least, Jack Mahr, known as The Daily Iowan Statistician (for sports at least) dropped in to leave his "picks" in the leading conferences this year. These are not ours; only Jack's. Maybe some night when we feel that we have "jacks or better" we'll "open" and divulge our personal picks for the conference winners.

JACK MAHR PICKS—Big Ten conference—Minnesota Middle-West—Michigan State Far West—U.S.C. or California Big Six conference—Missouri or Nebraska Missouri Valley conference—Drake East—Pittsburgh is the team to beat Southeastern conference—LSU or Alabama Southwest conference—Texas A & M or Arkansas Southern conference—Duke North Central—North Dakota

Mahr also named Pittsburgh to play Southern California in the Rose Bowl invitational battle New Year's Day.

Charley Ruffing, Carl Hubbell Lead Winning Pitchers

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—With Lon Warneke's 17th victory of the season today, eight pitchers remained in the running with a chance to break into the 20-game winning group in the big leagues this season.

Of these, Charley Ruffing of the Yankees and Carl Hubbell of the Giants, with 18 victories each, lead the way.

Local Cavalry Horses Placed In Quarantine

To Inoculate 17 Animals Against Sleeping Sickness

To guard against sleeping sickness prevalent in the state, 17 horses of Troop I of the 113th Iowa National Guard regiment here will be inoculated, Lieut. Elmer Hay said last night. The horses are quarantined in the cavalry stables now.

Lieutenant Hay said the inoculation would be today or tomorrow. The cavalry unit will also inoculate the replacement of 15 horses when they arrive soon. The cavalry unit will consist then of 32 mounts.

Cavalry units at Council Bluffs, Ottumwa, Burlington, Washington and Des Moines have also been quarantined. The animals are kept in darkened stables and sprayed regularly to keep off flies and mosquitoes, said to be carriers of the disease.

Bus Terminal To Be Opened

Station Accommodates 22 Buses of Four Companies Daily

Iowa City's new Union Bus Terminal, which opens tomorrow, will handle 22 buses daily when they stop here on their runs.

The station, located at 213 E. College street in the business district, was constructed by Reuben Swartzlander and leased to the Interstate Transit lines.

The Union Pacific stages, the M. C. Foster lines and the Jackson lines will also use the terminal.

Lighting passengers will be protected from inclement weather by an overhanging canopy on the west side of the one-story brick building.

The interior consists of waiting and rest rooms and ticket and information booths.

Mayor Walker Asks Citizens To Sign Letters

Mayor Myron J. Walker has requested that all Iowa Citizens writing to him and other city officials lend force to their letters by signing their names and addresses.

"It is impossible to comply with requests or investigate complaints," Mayor Walker said, "if we do not know who the resident is or where he lives."

A typical unsigned letter received at the city hall states: "I am at a loss to know what to do. There are a lot of children in our neighborhood, and they insist on coming in our backyard to play ball. While doing so, they run over our garden and flowers and make a lot of noise. What can be done? When asked to stop off, they insult us."

"This letter," Mayor Walker said, "is signed merely 'Citizen.' It is impossible for us to take cognizance of any communication unless the writer identifies himself."

University Alumnus To Be Interred In Arizona Monday

Funeral service for Anthony Van Wagenen, 87, a distinguished alumnus of the University of Iowa, who died Tuesday in Long Beach, Cal., will be in Casa Grande, Ariz., Monday.

A former federal district judge in Iowa and international authority on government ownership of railroads, Van Wagenen was an early graduate of the college of law, receiving a degree sometime in the 80's. His wife, the late Gertrude Lewis Van Wagenen, was a former Iowa Citian.

He served as judge of the fourth Iowa district from 1892 to 1895 and as United States attorney for the northern district by appointment of President Woodrow Wilson from 1931 to 1931.

A daughter, G. Van Wagenen Failey, lecturer in the Yale university medical school, and a son, Anthony Jr., Casa Grande city attorney, are also University of Iowa graduates.

LOCAL THEATER BLAZE CAUSES LITTLE DAMAGE

Firemen extinguished a fire caused by a generator burnout in the cooling system of the Englert theater at 3 p.m. yesterday. The system is located under an alley in the rear of the theater.

No damage resulted from the fire, Al Davis, manager, said, and theater-goers were unaware of the incident.

AROUND THE TOWN

Day Book of An Iowa Citian

There's probably not another Iowa Citian who belongs to more of the town's clubs and societies than Gus Pusateri who, I'm told, on the average attends at least one meeting every other day.

And the legless endurance swimmer has nothing on County Attorney Harold Vestermarck, who is as expert an aquatic as anyone about.

I don't think there's a group about any more interested in the university's football prospects than the town's professional men — its doctors and lawyers. . . Attorney Ingalls Swisher never missed a home game for more than eight years. . . And the town's business men run a close second. . . Restaurateur Roland Smith seldom misses a skirmish — and neither does Clothier Harry Bremer.

And one of the town's best tennis enthusiasts is Lawyer Samuel Whiting, who boasts that, despite a game leg, he can worry any local racket-wielder and beat any but the best. . . He frequently beats one of his sons more than a quarter of a century younger.

High rankers among the town's golfers seem to be Mayor Myron J. Walker, Attorney George Koser and George Frohwein. . . Almost any afternoon one of the three can be seen brushing up on his score on the Country club course.

Any number of those you can mention constantly impress you with their languid slowness, but few impress on first sight with their energetic enthusiasm. . . I think University theater's Dorothea Carlson and Iowa Union's Kate Smith have more perpetual enthusiasm than anyone I know.

Any number of local observers have mentioned the sudden Des Moines campaign to clean up gambling and bootlegging that have gone on there for years. . . Seems no one was much worried about it until a newspaper reporter was knocked out in one questionable barroom. . . Then the barrage broke, and recent visitors to the state's capital declare it's now as dry as Kansas.

And although as yet Roosevelt has given no public indication of a special session of congress this fall, Rep. Edward C. Eicher has told Iowa Citians there is no doubt but that congressmen will be back in the capital in November to enact farm legislation. . . At the same time Iowa's Senator Guy M. Gillette declares with equal vehemence that there will be no special session. . . Both aver they have the "inside" dope.

And probably Iowa City's most prolific speech-maker is Charley Chansky, who has been doing it longer than most can remember and who can, they say, give a 15-minute speech on anything at all with a 10-minute notice.

Best of the over-the-coffee cup wisters is Attorney William R. Hart while Attorney Ed Baldwin leads, I think, for the Rabelaisian wit. . . Attorney Kenneth Dunlop frequently comes out with a pun that can be ranked with Dorothy Parker's best.

One of the town's most non-chalant organizations is the Spinach club, composed of local business and professional men. . . They are supposed to eat just spinach, but usually they decide on something that looks appetizing and, almost always, have a full menu before they are through.

I'd put high on my list of the town's efficient secretaries the one of Attorney Ingalls Swisher, Mrs. Bradley Rust of the chamber of commerce and Addie Schaff, who is District Judge Harold D. Evans' court reporter.

And most impressive of the judges is Judge James P. Gaffney, who looks the part of one of the bewigged English justices. . . And one of the town's most energetic lawyers is Attorney Arthur Leff, who is also the smallest.

THREE BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Three building permits were issued yesterday by Acting City Engineer Harold Monk. Charles F. Benda, 1133 Hotz avenue, will construct a garage; and Jacob Glassman, 1603 Muscatine avenue, will enclose the porch of his residence. H. L. Hands, 414 Iowa avenue, will alter the kitchen in his home.

Postmaster-General James A. Farley, Campaign Manager

James A. Farley, who will address Iowa Citians at noon at the Rock Island railroad depot, is shown above in five typical moods. Farley's 21 years in the political arena range from the city clerkship of a rural New York town to a second-term post in President Roosevelt's cabinet. Farley's cabinet appointments were the reward for managing President Roosevelt's two successful national political campaigns. The husky chairman of the democratic national committee was prominent politically in New York state before entering the national scene. In addition to the new deal campaigns, Farley distinguished himself in Gov. Alfred E. Smith's unsuccessful presidential race in 1928. Governor Smith appointed Farley as New York state boxing commissioner in 1922 and he held that post for 11 years. Farley was a bookkeeper before becoming a salesman and sales-manager for a gypsum corporation. In addition to his rigorous political tasks, Farley manages an eastern contracting corporation.

Farley--

In 1932, had spent three and a half years working behind the political scenes, analyzing the situation and coordinating the "doubtful vote" of each of the major parties into the smashing 1936 democratic victory.

He was qualified, as the democratic campaign manager who had surveyed the probable voting tendencies, to make the then-hazardous predictions.

No doubt he drew upon his life-long political experience in managing Roosevelt's campaign. When barely 23, Farley was town clerk of rural Stony Point, N. Y., the town of his birth. He held that post for seven years, until he was 30.

Elected to the state legislature at Albany, he became associated with Governor Alfred E. Smith. Farley was appointed chairman of the New York state boxing commission in 1922 and for 11 years ran boxing in New York with an iron hand.

As secretary of the New York state democratic committee, Farley helped secure the presidential nomination of Governor Smith at the 1928 Houston, Tex., national convention.

However, after Smith's defeat in the rapid 1928 race, Farley became closely associated with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and started a one-man campaign to secure the nomination of his favorite at the 1932 democratic convention in Chicago.

In the summer of 1931, Farley traveled 30,000 miles speaking to hundreds of thousands and converting them to Roosevelt's cause.

Veteran politicians labeled Farley an "amateur" in politics, but they were sadly mistaken. Farley smashed every attempt of the "Stop Roosevelt" movement when they hindered his plans. He saw Roosevelt nominated after a strenuous 1932 convention battle.

Drawing from his athletic promotion knowledge, Farley has staged the majority of Roosevelt's campaign speeches both in the 1932 and 1936 campaigns in the huge athletic arenas of America.

But Farley, a small-town boy himself, regards the rural vote of prime importance in national elections. Where past presidential

Iowa City Feels First 90 Degree Weather in 4 Days

The first 90-degree temperature here in the past four days was recorded at 3 p.m. yesterday by municipal airport weathermen.

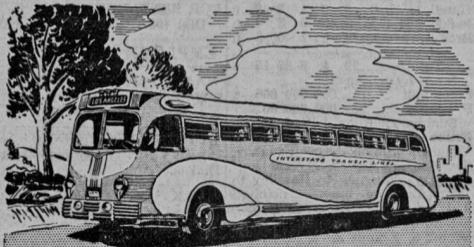

The weather, which has kept Iowa City comparatively cool with daytime temperatures ranging in the 70's and 80's, yesterday grew warmer as the mercury notched upward approximately 10 degrees.

The temperature was in the low 50's during the early morning but soared to the 80-degree mark before 10 a.m. The thermometer registered 88 degrees and above for almost six hours preceding 5 p.m.

5 Iowa Citizens Fined by Judge

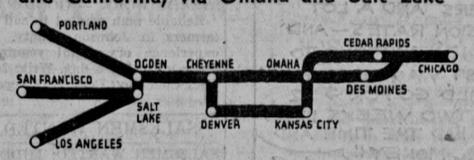

Police Judge Burke Carson fined five Iowa Citians $1 apiece yesterday for overtime parking. A $10 bond, posted by Harold Goltite on an intoxication charge, was forfeited when Goltite failed to appear in police court.

Ernest Anderson, charged with intoxication, was fined $3 and costs. The five fined for overtime parking were Mary Selback, T. A. Tennyson and drivers for the Burkett Updegraff Motor company, the Randall Implement company and the Connell company.
