Britain, France Draft Plan For Important International Parley

Nations Ready For Discussion Of Intervention

Eden To Preside Over Spanish Situation Conference

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Great Britain and France drafted a plan of joint action today for tomorrow's crucial non-intervention meeting over which Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden himself will preside in an effort to drive through an agreement to withdraw foreign volunteers from Spain's civil war.

Eden conferred at length with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Ambassador Charles Corbin on Franco-British policy for the international committee meeting.

A semi-official assertion from Rome that only 40,000 Italian troops were fighting with the Spanish insurgent armies projected a new element of strife into the negotiations by which France and Britain are trying to keep the war confined to Spain.

British and French authorities have expressed belief that there are at least 100,000 Italians serving under insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco and have urged a "token" withdrawal on that basis as a guarantee of good faith.

The Spanish embassy, commenting on the Rome report, stated the Valencia government had information there are "110,000 Italians in Spain."

The publication of the Italian figures in an organ of the official Sefani news agency was believed to show the basis on which Premier Mussolini wants to bargain in tomorrow's discussion of the actual number of withdrawals.

Informed quarters declared there was "no optimism" in regard to the success of the conference but felt that since Rome took the trouble to announce there were only 40,000 Italians with the insurgents, there was hope II Duce would agree to withdraw some of them.

Paper Attacks British Policy
An attack by II Duce's own Milan newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, on British policy in Palestine and the violence of semi-official Italian comment on former British Premier David Lloyd George for "exaggerating" the number of Italian volunteers in a speech Saturday also made the outlook gloomy for withdrawal efforts.

The clash of views between Britain and France on the one hand and Italy and Germany on the other on the principal points before the committee remained unmodified. Britain and France insist on withdrawal of a substantial number of volunteers before consideration of belligerent rights for the warring factions and on withdrawals in proportion to the total number now on each side and not in equal numbers.

Council Will Open Contractors' Bids For Center Tonight

Contractors' bids for the reconstruction of the old American Legion building into a modern community center will be opened by the city council at a special meeting at 7:30 tonight.

The contract will probably not be let immediately as the council may take several days to consider the alternate bids which will be submitted.

No contractors' bids submitted after 2 o'clock this afternoon can receive consideration at the meeting. The cost of the community center after reconstruction will not exceed $35,000. The community center bond issue was recently sold to the White-Phillips corporation of Davenport.

First Lady To Invite Wally To Take Part In 'Widow's Frolic'

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt indicated today she would be host to the Duchess of Windsor at the White House the night of December 11—providing the duke accepts his invitation to the newspapermen's annual gridiron banquet in Washington.

While the gridiron banquets, where the president, supreme court justices, senators and congressmen have fun poked at them by the news men, are being held it is customary for the deserted wives to gather at the annual "widow's frolic" at the White House.

There the women have their own show. Last year's included a skit on the romance of Wallis Warfield and the ex-king. They are expected to arrive in the United States November 12.

Legion Dinner Begins Drive

Post Holds Membership Drive Meeting At First Dinner

State Representative B. B. Hickenlooper of Cedar Rapids emphasized the "service and personal satisfaction of service" of American Legion members at a post membership drive dinner in Moose hall last night.

The dinner, conducted by Post Commander George Zeithamel, is the first of three dinner-meetings to be held this week. The captains of the 10 membership drive teams will report on the drive results tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. Final reports will be given at a dinner Friday night.

State Commander James F. Dolliver and District Commander W. L. Gee will speak at the dinner Friday night. The post's full quota—157 legionnaires—is expected to attend both of the dinners.

Wagner Leads Verbal Attack

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP)—The biggest labor spokesman of the democratic party of New York, united by the tug of old loyalties as it has not been for years in a municipal campaign, led a raid tonight upon the powerful labor front of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

U. S. Sen. Robert F. Wagner, author of the collective bargaining act, went to the front for Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the democratic mayoral nominee, in a speech prepared for a rally that sought to link his candidacy to the Roosevelt new deal.

Wagner's address, one of the most important to date in a complicated and bitter campaign, was designed to cut into the admittedly heavy union labor support behind the fusionist mayor, LaGuardia.

His tone and terms had been eagerly awaited by observers anxious to know whether the senator would appeal for Mahoney only as an old political friend—whether he merely would discharge a political and personal obligation.

He went much further. He described the LaGuardia groups as only a "temporary alliance of persons of conflicting philosophies and conflicting ambitions, united only in their desire to win an election."

Pleads Innocent
SOUTH PARIS, Me., (AP)—Paul Dwyer, 18, accused of killing a kindly elderly couple and taking their bodies on an aimless and macabre drive through several North Atlantic states, was arraigned, pleaded innocent and was held without bail for the grand jury.

Armored Train Invades North China Province

Farthest Advance Lies 250 Miles From Peiping

SHANGHAI, Oct. 19 (Tuesday) (AP)—The advance of the Japanese army down the two great railroads linking North China with the south has been slowed down, according to authoritative advices today from points along the southern banks of the Yellow river.

In the east, the Japanese threat to Tsinan, capital of Shantung province, was lessened when the column operating along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad withdrew 15 miles northward to Pingyuanhsien from Yuchengung where their line has been threatening the Chinese Tuhai river positions 30 miles from Tsinan.

A portion of the eastern forces was transferred to bolster the Japanese drive that is meeting stiff resistance 150 miles to the west on the Peiping to Hankow railroad.

Reports from North China yesterday said that an armored train had penetrated to Hantan, 35 miles in advance of the main Japanese forces at Shantefu and an equal distance from the Chinese base at Changtuei in Honan province. This would place the farthest Japanese advance 250 miles southwest of Peiping and only 15 miles from the Hopei-Honan province border.

North China Invaded
A Japanese military communique issued at Peiping said a Japanese armored train crossed the Honan province frontier at 4:30 a.m. Monday, invading the sixth province of North China.

The Peiping communique said the main body of the Japanese had advanced from Shuntufu to Kwangungfu, a distance of 30 miles, in the last 24 hours.

Chinese Defenses Pounded
At Shanghai, a major battle was being fought 10 miles north-west of the city in the sector between Tazang and Lihuang, where the Japanese were pounding the Chinese defenses.

In what was described as the severest single encounter of the two-month old conflict around Shanghai, Chinese authorities said 1,400 Chinese and 3,000 Japanese died fighting for the Chinese supply bases at Tazang. The Chinese commander, 27-year-old Col. Chin Ching-Wu, and his entire command were reported to have been wiped out in a 33-hour battle.

Bombing Campaign
Having failed to break the Chinese resistance in the Chapel sector on the northern border of the International Settlement in 57 days of continuous assault by land and air, the Japanese began a concerted bombing campaign against all Chinese communication lines and supply bases.

Foreign consular officials were understood to have urged their home governments make strong protests to the Chinese and Japanese governments on the danger of continued aerial fighting over the International Settlement. United States Consul General Clarence Eogauss was reported to have emphasized the danger repeatedly in dispatches to Washington and to Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Nanking.

To Pick Special Election Officials

Fifteen officials who will serve during the special high school bond issue election Nov. 4 will be selected by a school board committee at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

An election judge and two clerks will be selected for each of the city's five wards, Dr. George Maresh, board president, said.

Flag Shops Abound in Shanghai

One of Shanghai's many flag shops. Amid devastating gunfire, flag business is good. Each nationality flies its own flag—the Chinese to inspire patriotism, the other nationalities for protection.

Roosevelt Requests Aid For The Needy

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared tonight local and private relief activities "must be increased" as federal help for the needy is curtailed in an effort to balance the budget and avoid higher taxes.

In a nationwide radio appeal from his Hyde Park home for "generous" support by the people in the annual community chest relief fund drive, he said the nation must not become "blinded by the welcome light of returning prosperity to the very real need that still exists for a considerable part of our population."

"The federal government with the return of prosperity," he added, "must more and more narrow the circle of its relief activities and reduce the amount of federal revenue to be expended in the amelioration of human want and distress in the various communities of our land."

"I say this because we all agree that unless federal taxes are to be greatly increased, the expenditures have to be brought within the existing tax receipts."

"Although federal government relief activities have to be curtailed, there must needs be no abatement of state, local and individual relief work. Indeed, local and private activities must be increased."

The president spoke on a program of the community mobilization for human needs. He was introduced by Charles F. Taft, organization chairman, who spoke after the president from the Carnegie Music hall in Pittsburgh where community chest leaders gathered to map the money campaign in 454 cities.

Nation Discusses Landon Chat

Political Observers Wonder What G.O.P. Head Will Say in Radio Talk

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Speculation ran rife in Washington tonight about former Governor Alf M. Landon's "radio mass meeting," a sort of equivalent for President Roosevelt's fireside chat technique. That the titular leader of the republican party will have a nation-wide audience tomorrow night, possibly including the president, goes without saying. His listeners will be eager to gauge the meaning of this unprecedented off-year move on the political chess board. Yet there is no hint, in Washington anyhow, as to what the 1936 republican presidential candidate has in mind to say.

To John D. M. Hamilton, republican national chairman, the Landon address appeared likely to be a rallying cry "to every republican and other voters, irrespective of party, who are opposed to the new deal." Yet the chairman's added statement that "the governor told me of his plans" for the broadcast in a telephone conversation last week does not suggest it is a national committee idea.

It may be Governor Landon hopes to still the reports of sharp difference between himself and former President Herbert Hoover over party strategy. It is also argued the Kansan wishes to point up party opposition to the legislative program mapped by Mr. Roosevelt in his recent fireside chat.

1940 Nomination
About the only agreement, or near agreement, among political onlookers here as to the Landon intentions, however, is that he is not apt to say anything which would disclose his attitude toward seeking another presidential nomination himself in 1940.

Crews to Finish Clearing Smash Wreckage Today

The wreckage caused by a head-on collision in the Rock Island railroad yard at 9 a.m. yesterday will probably be completely cleared away today, Frank E. Meacham, ticket agent, said last night.

The bulk of the derailed freight cars and the twisted steel rails was removed yesterday afternoon by a wrecker and crew from Silvis, Ill. Two Iowa City section crews will aid them in the work today.

The modern streamlined "Rocket," pride of the Rock Island lines, suffered its first delay on the Chicago-Des Moines run yesterday.

The "Rocket" arrived here at 9:20 a.m., 20 minutes after the collision and was unable to leave because of the blocked west main track until 9:50 a.m.

The streamliner hooked onto a pullman car which was standing on a siding in the yards and switched the car on to another track so the express could proceed.

Orie Shoning of Des Moines, fireman on the derailed freight sustained slight injuries when he leaped from the engine. He incurred a scalp wound, a slight concussion and a shoulder injury. He was released yesterday after treatment at Mercy hospital.

None of the other men who jumped when the collision appeared inevitable were injured.

Federal Men To Enter Ross Kidnap Case

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 (AP)—The kidnapers of Charles S. Ross today spurned an ultimatum to free their aged victim.

Twenty-four hours after his worry-worn wife publicly stated the retired manufacturer must be released or federal and state officers would swing into a relentless manhunt, the snatch gang made no overt move to comply.

Mrs. Ross set the deadline at 8 a.m. tomorrow. If he has not been returned by that time, she warned, law enforcement agencies will end their tacit truce and turn on the full force of their crime-cracking power.

Hour after hour the gray-haired wife, ill and under a physician's care, was the center of a drama of suspense being enacted in their comfortable North Side apartment. Ross has been missing 23 days. His absence approached a time record in modern kidnaping. Still, as the climactic hour fixed by Mrs. Ross herself grew near, there was little activity to break the tense quiet of her vigil.

A study of Mrs. Ross' appeal to the "seemingly heartless individuals" who abducted her 72-year-old husband on the night of Sept. 25 yielded these salient points:

1. An indication contact had been established.

2. A hint that ransom might have been paid and that the family had been double-crossed by its recipients.

3. That growing fear that Ross, suffering from a heart ailment, could not be delivered because he was dead.

At any rate, the state's attorney's police and federal agents under Earl J. Connelley prepared for a vigorous dead-or-alive hunt as time only compounded the mystery.

Plane Crash
COLONIA, N. J. (AP)—Two young air transport line mechanics' helpers fell in flames to their deaths as their private plane crashed here yesterday.

15 Men, 4 Women In Plane Smashed On High Utah Peak; See Little Chance for Rescue

United Air Liner 'All Smashed Up' Says Report; May Take 24 Hours To Reach Plane; Region Without Trails

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 18 — Nineteen persons probably crashed to their deaths when the United Airlines' palatial "mainliner" shot into a peak high in the Uinta mountains, air searchers said tonight.

"I don't see how anyone could be alive there," asserted Wesley Meyers, western Wyoming rancher, after a flight over the wreckage of the craft which carried 15 men and four women.

"We flew as close above the wreckage as we dared and could see not a sign of the 19 people it carried," said Carl Reynolds, Salt Lake City photographer. "The front of the plane is all smashed in and the wings are sheared off."

The ship was located from the air today in the high Uinta mountains on the Utah-Wyoming border after being missing more than 14 hours on its west-bound flight.

Worst Crash In History
If all were killed, the crash would be the worst in American airplane history. Largest previous plane-crash toll was that at Goodwin, Ark., Jan. 14, 1936, when 17 died.

Hurriedly organized ground crews from nearby settlements fought through dense wilderness to reach the wreckage, a task which might require 24 hours.

The plane crashed, United Air Lines officials said, on Chalk mountain about 26 miles south of Knight, Wyo., at an altitude of 10,000 feet. Searchers followed a rough wagon trail for miles and then started an ascent through mud and snow.

Several rescue crews set out by pack train and on foot for the ridge-top. Some were forced to return to Knight, Holiday Park, Utah, and other starting points, while others spent the night at remote ranch houses, ready to renew their climb at dawn.

Otis J. Pusey, Associated Press reporter and member of one of the crews spending the night at an isolated ranch, reported by telephone to Salt Lake City that the "going was extremely rough" and it was doubtful if any searchers would reach the wreck before tomorrow afternoon.

Four Women Aboard
Four women and 15 men were on board the huge "mainliner," one of the new and powerful Douglas planes of the United Air Lines when it left Cheyenne, Wyo., last night at 6:25 p.m. Mountain standard time (7:25 p.m. C.S.T.).

Pilot Earl D. Woodgerd, due in Salt Lake City at 8:42 p.m. M.S.T., reported at 8:16 p.m. M.S.T. over Rock Springs, Wyo., 175 miles east of Utah's capital: "Slightly rough. All o.k."

Three minutes later Woodgerd said he was flying through broken clouds at an altitude of 10,000 feet, west of Rock Springs. This was the last report from the plane.

In charge of the ship with Woodgerd were co-pilot John Adams, 27, of Denver, and 23-year-old hostess Leah Derr of Salt Lake City.

The passengers: Louis Cleaver, Portland, Ore., United Air co-pilot not on duty. George Ferreira, Cheyenne, company mechanic. Mrs. Phyllis Ferreira, his wife. Ralph McKeown, 27, Glendale, Calif., company employe. Charles D. Renout, Washington, D. C., former company district traffic manager. Mrs. Campbell Pritchett, society woman, formerly of the Washington, D. C., Star editorial staff. William Pischel, 65, Salt Lake City attorney.

D. A. McMillan, 61, Murray, Utah, bank president. Mrs. J. A. Hammer, Cleveland, Ohio. John Conboy, Cleveland, company employe. W. J. Hart, Sharon, Pa. Charles S. Jamison, 45, Denver, head of the Jamison Produce Co. C. L. Jensen, 27, San Francisco.

Dr. Louis Gross, New York heart specialist. William Pitt, 31, and James Pergola, 37, news editor and cameraman, respectively, for the Pathe News, Inc., New York City. Bergesen Finds Wreckage
Pilot Bob Bergesen, flying out of Cheyenne, discovered the wreckage about 10 a.m. Half a dozen planes had been scanning the terrain between Rock Springs and Salt Lake City since dawn.

City Districted For Community Chest Canvass
In preparation for the community chest campaign which begins Oct. 25, the residential area of the city will be divided into eight districts to facilitate the solicitation of prospects, according to Attorney Thomas E. Martin, campaign director.

He explained that by concentrating the prospect list of each solicitor in a relatively small area it is hoped there will be less duplication and also less possibility of overlooking prospects.

Condonement Corrected

THE WORLD sighs with relief as it learns that the Vatican corrects the press statement of Oct. 14 and declares that it does not condone Japan's attitude in the far eastern conflict.

The Holy See wishes to have communism eradicated in commendable. But when the world was informed that the Pope was in favor of Japan's method of combating such a system in China it gasped in surprise.

Such procedure would certainly be a throw-back on Christian doctrines of either Catholic or Protestant interpretations. Christianity has always stood for combating evil with brotherly love and enlightenment. Bloodshed has no place in world enlightenment.

It is the Christian ideal which motivates the nations of the earth to seek a means of settling disputes by peaceful methods. Although at times that ideal seems lost in the welter of human weakness, nevertheless it still stands as the goal toward which the nations strive.

Many Questions To Be Answered

IT IS becoming apparent that one of the biggest questions before the country in the next few months will be the administration's proposal for seven regional areas to be planned and developed somewhat, if not fully, after the manner of the TVA.

How closely each project would resemble that of the Tennessee valley will be indicated when bills are introduced at the forthcoming session of congress. But on any count it is a tremendous undertaking that is proposed.

The report has just come from Washington that government departments are seriously in conflict over this program, largely for jurisdictional reasons. The country, however, is concerned for reasons of a broader nature.

The general nature of the developments proposed was suggested in the administration report submitted to congress last spring and in the president's fireside chat last week. Among them are soil protection and reforestation, flood prevention, electric power production for more general use, irrigation, navigation and the like.

The idea would be coordination and planning in a "more business-like" manner and the exercise of "greater foresight than we use today." It is said that projects would be originated by the people "within the local regions," but that congress would have the final word of authorization "within the budget."

Evidently more light is needed on a program of such scope and expense. Is there to be a nationwide extension of the costly and still questionable TVA experiment? Are new farm lands to be opened on a similar basis? Are needless dams to be built and power produced at costs in excess of those of private production? Are justifiable dam, channel and related projects to be placed in the experienced hands of army engineers or to be left in the hands of some new and inexperienced agency?

These are only a few of the questions that will require scrutiny with utmost caution any whereas Congress will need to program of this character. Certainly it is no problem to be settled within the few weeks of a special session when there are four or five others of equal magnitude.

Trouble In Palestine

Continued skirmishes between Arabs and Jews in recent weeks show that the British have not yet solved the question of how to make two definitely antagonistic races live in harmony with each other.

Since the World war, Palestine has been under a British protectorate, granted by the League of Nations. The British have had a thankless task. Palestine, to both Arabs and Jews, is a holy land. The Jews have mistrusted the Arabs, while the Arabs have looked askance at the flood of Jewish exiles, driven from other countries, which is pouring into Palestine.

Here is apparently the last major struggle to be caused by religion—the issue which in the middle ages, more than either politics or economics, was responsible for the world's conflicts. It is a struggle which, if it does not cease, must end in bitter control for the British over Palestine, something neither Britain nor the inhabitants of Palestine desire.

A plan proposed recently whereby Jews and Arabs would each control a section of the country, with a British-controlled "buffer state" between, was rejected. It appears that Britain will have to treat both sides like naughty children, gently, but with a purpose, if the land where "the Prince of Peace" was born and lived is not to be further torn by internal strife.

The Hayden planetarium in New York now forecasts the end of the world. Hmhmhm, looks like direct competition to the front page headlines emanating from Europe.

One pleasant result of the current candid camera craze is that it has cut down considerably the number of people who pick their teeth in public.

SOMEWHERE ON a thick cake of ice in the Arctic ocean, is Russia's polar expedition, intent on studying the progress of winter's reign at the top of the world. Somewhere too, "with every chance for eventual rescue," according to Vilhjalmur Stefansson is the third Soviet plane to reach this region in a jump from Moscow to the American west coast. Meanwhile at 30 points in Russia's far north, stations have been established transmitting daily weather reports to specialists in the Soviet Academy of Natural Science.

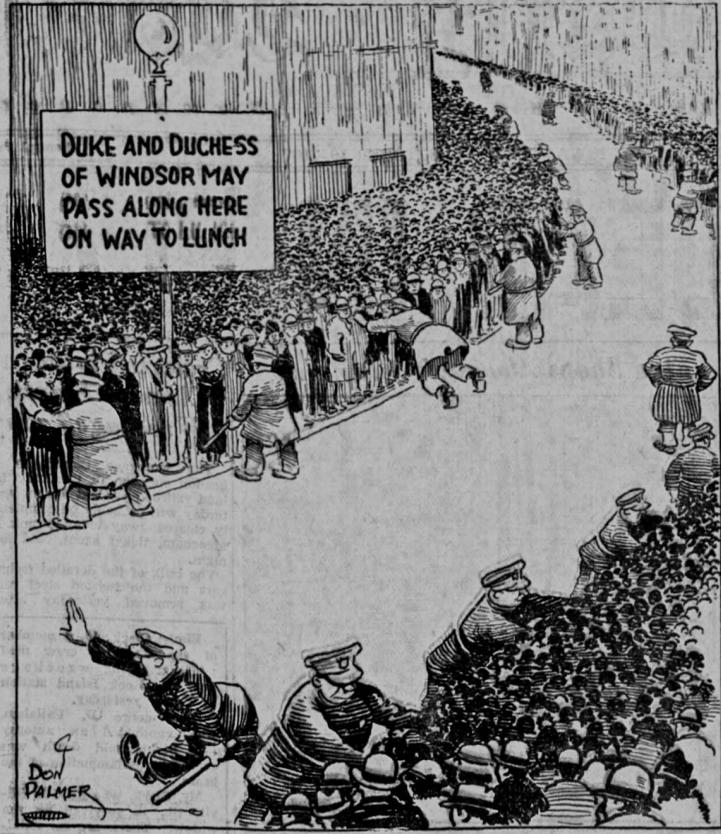

Explorations seeking to ascertain the rich natural resources, direction of ocean currents, fish migrations, ice formations and "tank" farming possibilities are being accomplished. Without doubt, Soviet Russia is today foremost among nations in Arctic exploration and research, carrying on a vast experiment impossible of achievement by predecessors. Through proclamation, claim is laid to nearly half the region, including all land and sea within a triangle whose base is the northern fringe of the U. S. S. R. and whose sides are imaginary lines drawn from easternmost and westernmost Arctic coastlines to meet at the pole. Within this area, several hitherto unknown islands have already been discovered.

There is little doubt that colonization of the north is the ultimate objective, establishing the Soviets as rulers of the Arctic. But whether such an activity is worth the effort expended is to be questioned. Despite Professor Schmidt's excellent radiogrammed information from the pole, the reports of other northern stations and the fact that our temperate zone storms are really born in the far north, weather men assert that such work is of little value without a more extensive chain of stations. As for farming, the United States finds such activity profitable in Alaska, due to the warming effect of the north Pacific current, but of all the sea-coast in Russia and Siberia, even Kamchatka is not so blessed. As for the need of Arctic colonization to care for population increases, such a thought is a crossing of distant bridges, for the population of the entire world could be gathered in an area the size of Texas allowing about a tenth of an acre to every man.

All of which would narrow down Russia's hope for gain in the Arctic to two distinct fields—metallic and military. There are without doubt, rich ore deposits to be uncovered and exploited, but military observers point out the tremendous advantage to the U. S. S. R. of a northern passage to world markets in the advent of international disputes bottling up usual European and Pacific trade routes.

CALLING ALL TRAFFIC SQUADS

What Can Be Done To Make Football Not So Dangerous?

Football stands at the top of dangerous games. It is over four times as dangerous as professional wrestling, by actual statistics taken year by year. Anybody who has seen modern professional wrestling should get a little inkling of what that means. There are ten times more injuries in football than in basketball.

Returning punts accounts for 10 per cent of all injuries; end around and off tackle for 22 per cent; line plays for 8 per cent; 65 per cent of all injuries occur between the 20-yard line and the end line—in spite of the fact that only 30 per cent of all plays are called in this zone.

Forty-two percent of all injuries were suffered by the blocker; 5 per cent occurred in pile-ups; 15 per cent were suffered by the player tackled, and 11 per cent were the result of players being kicked.

Large Part Preventable: A large part of this is preventable. Most of it occurs in young boys who are on teams inadequately trained and coached, who are taught nothing about protecting themselves, and who are too young to play such a game anyhow.

Very few teams, except college teams, have adequate medical attendance. Coaches, rubbers and trainers, in general, are so cocksure with a lot of misinformation that they have accumulated in their careers, that they are dangerous advisers about injuries. When coaches have a good player or star player, they are utterly without conscience as to whether he has been injured or when he is fatigued. Most secondary school teams don't even have the advice of trainers and rubbers.

Something can be done in the way of changing the rules of the game. The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association recommended return of the post to the goal line and increase of value of the field goal to 4 points. As I said above, 65 per cent of high school injuries occur within the 20-yard line.

The only dictator we can stand is Kemal Ataturk of Turkey. He rarely makes a speech, seldom threatens anyone and doesn't think he looks like a movie star in a military uniform.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — William Anthony McGuire is a movie producer now, but he must always have had the soul of one. Those stories of his from the days when he was writing Ziegfeld's show—he's film-producing "Rosalie" now—are always cropping up. There was the time he was being sued—one of the times—and was dodging process servers. One day he was trapped. A girl, a very pretty girl, stood on his doorstep, in her hand the fatal papers. McGuire thought fast, ventured: "My, my, you ought to be on the stage. Ever thought of it?" "I've always wanted to," she said. "Well," and he cinched his case, "I'll make a bargain with you. You go in the next Ziegfeld show, and right now you forget that subpoena."

Proving that McGuire keeps a bargain, she was a glorified girl for two years. Butler Was Swapped: The penthouse of the pretender to wealth, George Murphy (in the movie, "You're a Sweetheart") is what Universal artist John Otterson Jr., calls his first opportunity to splurge. He has splurged, effectively, through an elegant suite of five rooms and garden.

This was the setting of a scene in which David Butler, from 20th Century, was directing Alice Faye, also from 20th. "How come?" "Well," said Dave, "the U lent Alice Brady in return for Alice Faye, and swapped a story property for me. That makes me low man in the deal." The story property, however, was "Danger—Love at Work"—and it may be a hit, which ought to elevate Butler's morale.

Ronald Got Socked: "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," is the title of the movie in which Ronald Sinclair (formerly Ed Hould of Australia) has taken the role which normally would have been reserved for embattled Freddie Bartholomew. There was a scene in which it appeared that thoroughbreds might get socked, with or without tears. Ronald had to get socked, ostensibly in the eye, by Mickey Rooney. Ronnie didn't know the technique of a successfully movie sock. He had to leave it entirely up to Rooney, who of course knows how to hit painlessly.

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By ERIN O'BRIEN-MOORE

(The star of stage, screen and radio. Currently the immortal Nana in the film, "The Life of Emile Zola," knocks off a column for George Tucker.) NEW YORK — To the average New Yorker, who usually is someone born in Minneapolis or Fort Worth or Seattle, it is only when you go away for a time from this town of Broadway and Greenwich Village that you realize that you are a New Yorker and become almost overwhelmingly homesick for its tall buildings, hurrying crowds and noisy streets. It need only my recent stay of three years making pictures in Hollywood, barely a stone's throw from the house where I was born in Los Angeles, to convince me that the word "home" now means New York to me.

When you come here very young and you grow up with New York like that, there is a strong attachment that grows between you and the city that nothing seems able to break. Sean O'Casey, the Irish playwright, once told me that he liked New York because it was so much like Ireland. Then reconsidering, he admitted that New York hasn't the slightest resemblance to Ireland, except for its very Irish policemen, but he supposed that it was because New York had become as sentimental to him as his own home in Ireland.

I'll confess that I love the beauty and climate of my real home, California, but like almost all out-of-towners who come here the meaning of "home in the heart" comes to mean New York. From the days when I played experimental dramas in the tiny theaters of Greenwich Village to the nights I came up to Broadway to play in "Street Scene" there grew an affection in me for New York that gradually was making it really mean home. Three years ago I left Broadway and went back to my native California, believing that there meant home to me. I stayed on and on in one picture role after the other, but always there was that definite homesickness to hear the rumble and feel the speed of New York.

Gloom Heavy On City High Practice Field

Cormack and Merten Revise Lineup Of Little Hawks

An atmosphere of gloom hung over Shrader Field last night as the Little Hawks began preparation for the encounter with McKinley high at Cedar Rapids Thursday night. After the setback suffered at the hands of Franklin's Thunderbolts last week, Coaches Herb Cormack and Francis Merten have shown their dissatisfaction with a complete revision of the Red and White personnel.

The Hawkleys went about their chores minus the services of Eldon Parizek, an outstanding member of the team, who will probably line up for the kickoff Thursday. However Joe McGinnis has been promoted to first string quarterback in an effort to provide an improved selection of running plays. McGinnis will aid DeWayne Justice in the aerial attack. A ray of sun came through the clouds as Ted McKinnick, out with an injury for two weeks, rejoined the team for active duty. Ted will be used as the fifth man in Coach Cormack's backfield and will also handle the tailback post on some occasions.

Hod Shots

By G. K. HODENFIELD

It's a crying shame that there are no better arrangements for the broadcast of the Iowa football games played on foreign fields. During both the Washington and Wisconsin games it was hard to tell who had the ball where at any time during the game.

It will be a long time before Hawkeye fans over the state forget the announcing of 'Dutch' Reagan, who deserted the microphone for the more prosperous field of the silver screen. Since his departure there has been no one who has proven himself capable of handling a big time sports broadcast. Typical of the announcing Saturday was the account given of Kinnick's long return of Weiss' punt in the first quarter. "Kinnick takes the ball past his own 40, the 45, the 50, the 45, and he's down on his own 42." Sounds fishy to me.

I've waited a long time for the first appearance of Reagan at a local theater and yesterday I was not disappointed. "Dutch", although not quite at home at his new role as an actor, stole the show with his handsome smile and soothing voice. The show doesn't hold much in the way of a plot but Reagan carries it along in fine style with his well-announcing scenes. Iowa fans could use another like him.

Reagan, incidentally, is a real Iowa fan and is well known on the campus. Last year he was here for the opening practice sessions and stayed at one of the campus fraternities. One of his favorite pastimes was playing 'burn-out' with Zud Schammel, former All-American guard. And he wasn't a novice with a pigskin, either.

There seems to be some argument about the legality of the pass by which Wisconsin scored their first touchdown Saturday. There is a rule that the offensive team cannot block a defensive player after the ball passes the line of scrimmage until the ball is caught. Pictures taken at Madison show that Kinnick was blocked out of the play, while he might have knocked down the pass or intercepted it. Correct me if I'm wrong.

Frosh Gridders Defeat Varsity Reserves, 12-7

Intensive Drills For Tilt With Michigan To Begin Today

Another casualty was added to the injured list of the University of Iowa football squad yesterday when Dick Chambers, reserve fullback, suffered a dislocated shoulder in a scrimmage against the freshman team. It is possible that Chambers also chipped a bone on his elbow.

Chamber's injury bring the total to three. Glen Olson and Buzz Dean are also on the sidelines, Olson with a bruised instep, and Dean with several pulled ligaments in his leg. Both men were injured in the Wisconsin game last Saturday.

Coach Irl Tubbs excused most of his regulars yesterday before sending his team against the frosh. The freshmen eleven took advantage of the fact with a 12 to 7 victory over the reserves in a session that lasted till it was too dark to see.

Niles Scores Twice
Jerry Niles of Clinton scored both of the freshmen touchdowns the first after catching a pass from Mike Enich, and the second on a 40 yard dash with a recovered freshman fumble. Jens Nordgaard missed both tries for the extra point.

The varsity touchdown was scored by Fred Lindenmeyer, who recovered a freshman fumble and ran 30 yards for the marker. Bush Lamb kicked the extra point.

Regulars Excused
Capt. Homer Harris, Bob Lannon, Erwin Prasse, Frank Gallagher, Chuck Brady, Bob Allen, Dick Anderson, Jack Eicherly and Nile Kinnick were excused from the drill along with Dean and Olson, the injured members of the starting lineup in the Badger game.

Today the Iowa coaches will start intensive drills in preparation for the Michigan game here Saturday. It will be the first appearance of a Wolverine team on an Iowa field since 1923, when Harry Kipke, now coach, kicked a punt that was touched by Iowa linemen and recovered by a Wolverine man for a touchdown. Kipke also booted the field goal that helped beat Iowa, 9-2.

Quad Football Champs Win Second Game

Upper A, defending champions of the Quad football tournament, showed signs of being a heavy contender for the title again this year by winning their second game of the season yesterday, defeating Upper C 13 to 0.

The victors opened their attack in the first half when Jim Ramsey snatched a pass thrown by Bob Knapp and went over for the score. Tommy Lind heaved a pass to Russ Murphy, end on the winning aggregation, for the second marker in the second half. Martin Stiller kicked the extra point to complete the scoring.

Upper C gained a great deal of yardage through Upper A's line in the second half but were unable to score when in scoring territory. The passing of the winners was the feature of the game with Lind, Knapp and Ramsey heaving them from all angles. Murphy, Owen Overholt, and Joe Waldhelm starred in the line for the defending champs.

Harry Skow and Vern Blaha looked good for the losers with Skow doing an impressive job of passing. George Sudmack and Dean Holdiman played exceptionally good ball on the line for Upper C.

The scheduled game between Lower A and Lower C was won by Lower A on a forfeit. Tomorrow Lower A and Lower D will meet and Upper C and Upper D.

Face-Shaving Operation
BOULDER, Colo., (AP) — Colorado university's football field has had its face lifted. By having the goal posts shifted one section to the north, Walter B. Franklin, manager of athletics, has moved the gridiron 30 feet from its former location. The alteration was made to eliminate general admission seats at the north end of the field and place the playing field in front of these seats.

Manse Opens Dormitory Touch Football Season With Triumph Over Jefferson

Prying the lid off the co-op touch football season yesterday, a determined Jefferson team threw a scare into the favored Manse eight, before losing the overtime verdict on a margin of first downs, after the regular period had ended in a 6-6 deadlock.

After a scoreless first quarter, Thierry ripped through the left side of the Jefferson line for a touchdown from the five yard mark.

After repeatedly carrying the battle into Manse territory in the second half, with less than three minutes left to play, Kennedy climaxed Jefferson's offensive with a wide end run for a marker. Jefferson also missed the conversion.

With seconds to go in the overtime period and deep in Manse territory, the losers muffed several scoring opportunities before losing the ball on downs. Manse then took the ball on their 1 yard line, and completed two passes for two successive first downs which gave them the edge.

Lettow, Jefferson manager, said that the game would be protested because of lack of game equipment.

Tony Lazzeri To Meet With Cubs' Owner

Former Yankee Star To Come to Chicago For Conference

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 (AP)—Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, said tonight Tony Lazzeri, recently given his unconditional release by the New York Yankees, has accepted an invitation to come to Chicago for a conference relative to his signing with the Chicago National League team.

Wrigley declined to say whether the former Yankee star, now at his home in San Francisco, would be offered the club management in 1939, Manager Charlie Grimm already being under contract for next season. It is believed, however, that Wrigley feels his team needs the aggressiveness that marked Lazzeri's long and brilliant connection with the world champions.

Lazzeri telephoned Cub officials today, promising to return and listen to their proposition, but did not say when he would arrive. Wrigley said Lazzeri is fully aware that he is not slated for the management—at this time.

Lazzeri has admitted that he has been approached with a managerial proposition and the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Browns

Sprinter Reports To Strengthen Hawkeye Swimming Squad

Edward O'Connor, promising sophomore sprinter who hails from Roosevelt high in Des Moines, augmented Coach David Armbruster's varsity swimming squad when he reported for practice yesterday.

O'Connor, who won a freshman numeral in the sprints last year, will strengthen the squad in one of its present weaknesses, lack of capable dash men. Bob Allen, varsity letterman, and now playing on the university football team, will report following the grid season.

Varsity squad members took a number of physical capacity tests yesterday afternoon at the pool. Lung capacity, and strength of the various body muscles were checked in a series of tests with apparatus designed for that purpose.

No actual swimming has been done yet, but Coach Armbruster indicated that some of the boys will commence workouts in the pool before long.

Hints to Aid Housewives Suggestions To Aid Color and Variety To Tasks in Home

That household nuisance—mildew—can be avoided if damp articles are never placed in clothes hamper. Dry all clothing and household linen thoroughly. Don't let it collect in damp basements, dark closets or other spots that are likely to be damp.

Mix seasonings in a large salt shaker. That will make it much more convenient to sprinkle them over foods broiled in outdoor fireplaces. Salt, pepper, paprika, celery and onion salts and chopped parsley make a good combination.

When tall candles don't fit their holders, dip the bases into hot water and quickly press them into holders. Hold them there firmly until they become embedded in the holder.

more convenient than hooks for towels. They may be fastened to a kitchen door.

A generous-sized shoe bag hung on the inside of the downstairs hall closet can serve for storing many articles—caps, mittens, rubbers, small brooms, hat brushes, etc.

Keep plenty of cleansing tissue in the bathroom. It will save much wear and tear on the towels—especially when the men folks learn to use it for wiping off razors and the women for removing lipstick.

To darken minor scratches on mahogany, maple or walnut furniture rub them with butter applied on a clean cloth. Then polish them with another soft, clean cloth.

Dainty individual molds of ice cream may be made by putting chocolate candy bars and pouring part of the melted chocolate into paper baking cups. Tilt the cups to coat the sides and bottoms and then quickly fill them with ice cream.

Let the molds stay in the freezing tray of the mechanical refrigerator or in a mold buried in salt and ice for about an hour. Discard the cups before serving time.

Serve a chilled mixture of spiced peaches and seedless grapes, sweetened with maple syrup or strained honey as the first course of a meal.

Sprinkle honeydew and cantaloupe balls with lime juice. The result is a tasty combination to be served as appetizer or dessert.

Looking Glass Reflections

By VERA SHELDON

New fall clothes call for coiffures to complement them for the busy office girl who demands both smartness and simplicity in her hair arrangement.

Most practical of coiffures for the business girl are those double duty modes which can be worn directly from the office to an evening date.

A curl sweeping upward on each side of the right side part relieves the severity of a style created by Nina Roberts of the United Artists studios. A single role starting at the tip of the ears follows around the head, dipping low in back to outline a perfectly smooth crown.

Neatly attractive for daytime wear, this coiffure can be given a formal air by the addition of a nosegay behind reverse curls.

The "Tailleur" designed by Clyde Kelley of Chicago is characterized by its sleek finish. In this style the hair is brushed back at the temples and then brought forward in a phantom wave. The ends are finished in a single row of ringlets. One deep wave on the left side, with a shadow wave on the other to balance it, merges into a smooth crown at the back.

The striking simplicity of this coiffure makes it appropriate for any occasion. Creating an air of dignity during office hours, it lends sophistication to the same lady in formal dress.

"Frivolity for Formals" is a mode designed especially for girls who must greet the morning after with hair that can be rapidly arranged. From a center part the hair is swept back into two short rows of ringlets which form a tiara-like background for a cluster of rail flowers.

The hair on each side is smoothed away from the temples into vertical waves bordered by a double row of ringlets. Shadow waves cover half the crown, the rest remaining smooth for contrast. The coiffure may be easily combed into soft rolls for daytime wear.

Another hair-do that should gain popularity with the practical-minded girl is "Around the Clock," created by J. W. Robinson of Antoine salon, Los Angeles, Cal. Large flat rolls around the face border an unwaved crown and fall into a low arrangement of cluster curls at the nape of the neck line.

G-Man To The Rescue J. Edgar Hoover Saves Secretary Perkins From Unaware Embarrassment

WASHINGTON — There are times when J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, would rather not eavesdrop, though he has done plenty of listening-in on his job.

He stopped recently in the lobby of a hotel here to look over a display of crime-detection instruments. On view was an apparatus that fitted neatly into a suitcase. Its function was to pick up and make a record of voices.

Hoover asked for a demonstration. The obliging salesman turned on the switch, then pointed to the main dining room.

"Now," he explained, "this is catching the conversation of those two women at the table next to the palm. I have a pick-up hidden in the center palm and—"

Just then Hoover's face purpled, he snapped off the switch and exploded: "Young man, that woman is black on whom we are eavesdropping is Secretary of Labor Perkins."

The army's best composer is, of all people, that brusque taskmaster, Maj. Gen. Edward Markham, chief of army engineers. Some of his best songs were written for West Point.

Melissa, the small blonde daughter of Secretary of War Woodring, listened bright-eyed to the talk of the grown-ups who had come to tea. Someone mentioned the rumor that Woodring is slated to become governor-general of the Philippines.

"And how would you like Manila?" a guest asked Melissa. "Just plain Manila?" the wide-eyed youngster queried. "No chocolate on it?"

In Alexandria, Va., Mrs. John L. Lewis has just won a labor battle of her own.

The wife of the CIO leader shops at a chain grocery in the neighborhood. One day the popular young manager was shifted without notice to a smaller store. There was a lot of complaining by his customers, but no one did anything, except Mrs. Lewis.

She instructed her chauffeur to bring the grocer to the Lewis home.

"Do you want that store back?" she asked the young man. "Very much," he told her. The next day he was back. Mrs. Lewis had called Washing-

Technical
According to a scout who signs himself J. J. B., there are two books in a certain part of University libraries with the authors Wright and Wrong. One is "Caricature History of the Georges" by Wright, the other "History of England" by Wrong.

Peddlers
I'm wondering if something could be done about the dozen or more youngsters who every Sunday evening take advantage of the fact that fraternity and sorority houses aren't serving suppers and wander into the upper floors of the houses selling their wares. Too often a fugitive lurks in the near background, and too many of the rooms are left unlocked.

Minor Racket
Perhaps I'm wrong in thinking the practice has reached the stages of a minor racket, but it seems to me all forms of peddling—whether by 4 or 40 year-olds—should be either regulated or abolished. And I personally favor the latter.

Again I'm reminded how simple it is to sweep the sidewalks of soggy, corn-flake-like leaves—and how few persons seem to get around to it.

And I haven't heard anyone who saw Wisconsin's campus Saturday who'd think of trading it for our own.

In one fraternity house in the Wisconsin campus Saturday there were 11 Iowa men, came time for the noon round-table-sing and not one of the Iowans could get beyond the first four lines of "On, Iowa."

Seems to me knowing Iowa's school songs should be required before a degree is given.

Sensitive
A girl I knew last summer sent a note back stage to see first-stage lady Katharine Cornell and was granted a brief moment's chat with the lady. This year a junior, the girl had planned not to return to the campus this fall. "Get your degree; get all the art, the music, the history, the culture, you can, my dear," the great-uncle advised. "An actress is one whose consciousness of beauty is more highly developed than that of an ordinary person."

And, in passing, I think Pi Phi Madge Jones has one of the pleasant campus voices.

"Security," according to Darius, the Persian, "is the beginning of the end."

It's been my observation that most campus secretaries are harder to know, more conscious of their importance than are the men themselves.

Preview
And on a recent night to preview RKO's "Stage Door," which I'm betting will bring Katharine Hepburn to the place she occupied after "Morning Glory." My personal vote, too, to Ginger Rogers for the best comedy performance I've seen in weeks.

Add Determination Examples:
A chap I know is carrying eight hours of difficult class work, jabs 12 hours daily, seven days a week in a local restaurant and manages to get by on three hours sleep nightly. Also his grade point is among the higher.

And one fellow who, on the other hand, made too low a grade average to be readmitted to the university this fall—and who wasn't working—has a $150 a week job as salesman for one of the big car manufacturers.

Third Grade Class Has Radio Program On Friday Afternoon
Third grade class at University elementary school has a radio program each Friday afternoon. Last Friday Charles Lenthe acted as announcer; and the program included the song "Dixie" by Norma Thornton; a poem, "Two Kittens," by Louise Lindquist; a song, "Swiss Shepherd," by Jane Wylie.

Residents of Johnson County Pay $79,253 State Income Tax

Johnson county residents have paid a total of $79,253 in state income tax this year, it was announced yesterday by the state board of assessment.

Nearly half of the total—$34,253—was paid by persons with incomes of more than $5,000 yearly; persons with incomes of $4,000 to $5,000 paid a total of $8,994; those with $3,000 to $4,000 incomes, $9,919; from $2,000 to $3,000, $14,299; $1,000 to $2,000 incomes, $9,927, and those earning less than $1,000—$1,316.

The board's report disclosed that 6,513 state business executives paid an average of $124 to lead all economic groups with physicians, lawyers and undertakers following in order.

Housewives paid an average tax of $50, but only 1,621 of the state's 635,000 housewives had incomes large enough to figure in the report.

An average of $36 paid by osteopaths and chiropractors.

The earnings of clergymen, who paid an average of $10.33, were lower than those of tradesmen, railroad employees and school teachers.

State income taxes collectible on last year's earnings showed an increase of 30 per cent over the 1936 total, the report showed.

Pennsylvania permits citizens to manufacture only 200 gallons of wine in their homes annually.

Red and White Launches Drive For Subscribers

Marvin Chapman, business manager of the Red and White, announced the subscription goal of the Iowa City high school annual as 500 at an assembly last Wednesday.

Advertising the annual, the staff presented a short skit which took place in the I.M.A. Nutt asylum for the insane, showing the pupils of the school 15 years from now driven insane by studies.

Committees have been appointed from each class to take subscriptions during the drive. The success of the committees is recorded daily on the race track posted outside the Red and White office.

On the race track are four racers representing the four classes and showing how near their quota they have approached. Yesterday the senior class had overtaken the juniors, who held an early advantage.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Seeking a marital respite, Jerry Warriner tells his wife, Lucy, that he is making a business trip to Florida. Instead, he spends the week in town playing poker with his old gang. When the week is up Jerry goes to the athletic club to get a quick tan under the sun lamp. Frank Randall accuses him of "putting one over" on Lucy. Jerry denies this, saying that he was merely fed up with routine and wanted to have a fling. He couldn't have it with Lucy, he says, because she is so quiet and proper. Jerry and Frank pick up some friends and drop in on Lucy for a surprise cocktail party to celebrate Jerry's "homecoming." Lucy isn't there but she returns soon with Armand Levelle, her handsome voice teacher. On the way home from a dance the night before she explains, their car broke down and they had to spend the night in an inn until the car could be repaired. Jerry accepts the story calmly while the guests are there but when he and Lucy are alone he demands an explanation. She insists that she has told the simple truth, that she is innocent of any wrongdoing. Jerry refuses to believe her and Lucy, at last, discloses that she knows Jerry's "old man" in Florida. In fact, she knows that most of his recent "trips" had been fakes. They battle until Lucy announces that she's through. She is going to divorce Jerry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Chapter Two

The only hitch in the Warriner divorce proceedings came after the interlocutory decree had been granted. Jerry wanted the custody of their wire-haired dog, "Mr. Smith," and Lucy was just as insistent that she be awarded the dog. The judge allowed the dog to make his own selection. Lucy won, but on a foul for when they placed Mr. Smith equidistant from Lucy and Jerry, Lucy squeaked a rubber toy that the dog played with and he romped over to her.

Jerry was outraged by her perjury but the court was adamant. Mr. Smith went to Lucy.

In the days that followed Lucy tried to accustom herself to her new mode of life. Her Aunt Patsy, a cynical and acidulous lady with more than her share of worldly wisdom and biting humor, came to live with Lucy but within a month they were both thoroughly bored with each other's company. Aunt Patsy, who had come to the city from her country cabin, wanted to go places and do things.

"I do wish you'd stop moping around this apartment," she snapped. "The only excitement we've had around here was when Jerry tried to break in on a steal Mr. Smith a week ago."

"I'm sorry you're so bored," Lucy sighed. "But where can two women go without an escort?"

"The night club," the Y. M. C. A., Aunt Patsy suggested. "We don't do a thing but eat, sleep and look at each other. And even then I get the worst break. My face, at least, is cheerful. Lucy picked up her life, some excitement. Let's go to a theater tonight and then drop in at a night club or two afterwards."

"But we can't," Lucy protested. "Why not?" Patsy demanded.

"No escorts."

"Humph! Unless there's a new law, I don't need an escort to get a drink." Aunt Patsy snorted and went down to the bar and talk with Joe Bartender or no bartender, he's a man — and maybe he knocks off early. She stalked out of the room.

Aunt Patsy found good hunting down at the bar and she rapidly struck up an acquaintance with a personable young man who was sipping a solitary Martini. For a time she was flattered by the young man's attentions but she soon discovered the reason for his gallantry.

"I wonder if you'd do me a favor?" he asked. "I wonder if you'd tell me who that beautiful girl is who lives with you? She has a dog and she —"

Patsy dropped her flirtatious coyness. "That's Lucy. She's my niece," she announced flatly. "The dog is no relation."

"I've admired her for days," the young man announced. "She's beautiful."

"Oh, Lucy's just a little homebody," Patsy confided.

"Well, you just introduce me to her. I'll make her snap out of being a homebody," he said. "I've been dying to find someone to do the night clubs with me. I haven't been any place or seen anything."

Aunt Patsy brightened up. "Young man," she said, "you're the answer to my prayers. Come along." She took his arm and led him to the elevators. In a moment they were in Lucy's apartment.

"Lucy," Patsy beamed, "this is Daniel. Leeson, a very dear old friend of mine. Mr. Leeson, this is my niece. Her name is Mrs. Warriner."

When the introductions were over Patsy continued, "Mr. Leeson is a neighbor of ours," she said. "Lives across the hall with his mother. They're from Oklahoma and Daniel would take it as being right friendly of us if we'd show him some of the bright spots."

Patsy ignored Lucy's protests and they were making ready to leave when they were interrupted by the doorbell. It was Jerry and Aunt Patsy greeted him enthusiastically. Lucy was cool and distant.

"Hello," she said. "What is it you want?"

Jerry produced a formidable looking paper from his pocket and handed it to Lucy.

"What is it?" she asked.

"It's a court order," he announced triumphantly, "permitting me to see Mr. Smith for two hours each week. See? I'm allowed to take the dog walking, riding, motor boating or anything I please. The order says I can visit him and entertain him in any manner that does not endanger life or limb."

"What is it?" she asked.

"Mr. Smith, who had heard Jerry's voice, came bounding into the room and jumped into Jerry's arms.

"I suppose you've come to take him bicycling?" Lucy asked.

"In this rain? Field catch his death of cold. I've come to visit with him and entertain him," Jerry looked down at the barking dog in his arms. "Come on over here, boy. We'll be out of everybod's way."

Leeson, who had been standing awkwardly during all this, coughed significantly.

"Oh, Jerry," Aunt Patsy said, "this is Mr. Leeson. Daniel this is Mr. Warriner, Lucy's husband for about sixty more days. Both men nodded.

"Mr. Leeson has just come from Oklahoma," Patsy offered.

"That's lucky," Jerry said.

"Oklahoma," said Jerry. Leeson laughed but stopped abruptly, not certain whether he was being kidded. Jerry and Mr. Smith retired to a corner of the room to play and Lucy, Aunt Patsy and Leeson tried to pick up their conversation. They found it difficult for, in their romping, Jerry and Mr. Smith overturned a table, sending a lamp crashing to the floor.

"I'll replace that Jerry announced solemnly.

In a moment another table had been overturned and then a chair. This was too much for Aunt Patsy who seeing that Jerry and the dog were having all the fun, deserted Lucy and Daniel and joined Jerry and Mr. Smith. The romping went on with a vengeance then and Lucy quickly despaired of entertaining Leeson.

"I'll tell you what," Jerry said to Lucy, "let's play hide-and-go-seek."

Lucy jumped to her feet angrily. "And I'll tell you what," she said to Leeson, "rain or no rain let's go out of here. How about it, Patsy?"

"Huh?" Patsy looked up, surprised. "Oh, you go ahead. We're having too much fun."

Lucy picked up her wrap and Daniel, elated to have her alone, led her to the door.

That was the beginning of many meetings for them. Together they visited night clubs, saw shows, took long drives to nearby inns for dinners and lunches. At breakfast one morning, about ten days later, Lucy announced definitely that she and Daniel were engaged. Patsy was not at all pleased with the news.

"Know what rebound is?" she asked. "That business of trying to get over one love by bouncing into love with someone else? It's fine except the rebound is rarely the real thing — like a mirage. In short my dear, it's the bunk."

Lucy bridled angrily. Secretly, she knew that Aunt Patsy was right but she refused to admit it. "I tell you I'm serious about Dan Leeson," she insisted, her voice rising shrilly. "He's fine. And Jerry doesn't mean a thing to me. I don't love him and probably never did."

Lucy picked up her wrap and Daniel, elated to have her alone, led her to the door.

Aunt Patsy stared at Lucy without a word. Tears welled into Lucy's eyes. "I'm sure I never loved him," she repeated almost hysterically. "And now I hate him. I hate Jerry Warriner and I — I like Dan Leeson very, very much. I hope he's just mad about me for I think he's the finest man I ever met."

Aunt Patsy continued to look at Lucy. "The coat is burning," she announced calmly.

Medical Association Warns Public Of Drug, Apparent Cause of Eight Deaths

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 (AP)—The American Medical association warned publicly today of a drug preparation which the association said apparently caused eight deaths in Tulsa, Okla., and which had been widely distributed elsewhere.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of American Medical association, released "for the protection of the public" an editorial soon to be published in the journal, attributing the deaths to elixir of sulfanilamide.

Dr. Fishbein said the preparation in question was only recently placed on the market by one firm and that 375 shipments had been made to drug stores throughout the country. These shipments, he said, were being recalled.

Dr. Fishbein explained sulfanilamide is a "very valuable" new drug used principally in treatment of streptococcus infections, meningitis and gonorrhea, but can have dangerous effects when used in improper quantities and without a doctor's advice.

Many medical supply houses distribute the drug, usually in tablet form, he said. It is sold in drug stores, Dr. Fishbein explained, either with or without physician's prescription.

"Eight out of ten persons who have been given a proprietary elixir of sulfanilamide died recently in Tulsa, Okla., from anuria which apparently resulted directly from poisoning by this elixir," the editorial said. "One of the remaining two patients has recovered and the prognosis for the other one is not considered favorable."

1,816 Instruct Permits Issued

Applicants for Licenses Learn Driving On Public Roads

DES MOINES, Oct. 18 (AP)—The state motor vehicle department has issued 1,816 "instruction permits" since July 1 for persons learning how to drive an automobile, Chief License Examiner Ed Murray said today.

Instruction permits are issued to persons who are considered qualified to use the highways except for lack of instructions.

Applicants for the instruction must pass the vision test and the written examination on the laws and rules of the road.

Under the terms of the permit, the beginner must be accompanied in the front seat by an instructor who has a regular driver's license and is "fully competent" to operate an automobile.

Murray said that before the new motor vehicle law was enacted there was no legal way for a person more than 15 to learn how to drive, except on private property.

Straus Named Housing Chief

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt set in motion the federal government's vast new low-cost housing and slum clearance program by appointing Nathan Straus of New York City, administrator.

Straus, long a student of housing problems in the New York metropolitan area, will take over his new $10,000 post Wednesday after a conference at the White House with the president and Secretary Ickes.

His title will be administrator of the United States Housing Authority, a division created in the Wagner-Steagall act under Ickes' interior department.

He will have control of a long range program aimed at elimination of big city slums and provision of low-rent homes and apartments for the poorer classes.

With more than half a billion dollars at his disposal in the next four or five years, Straus will

Charles P. Taft Calls For The Increase in Community Chests

Points Out Delinquency Brought About By Unaided Need

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18 (AP)—Charles P. Taft, national chairman of the community mobilization for human needs, called upon the nation tonight to be a "good neighbor in initiating community chest drives in approximately 400 cities."

Taft followed President Roosevelt on a coast to coast radio broadcast in the interest of the mobilization originating in Pittsburgh's Carnegie music hall. The president spoke over a direct hookup from his Hyde Park home.

"If it is difficult to believe in the community losses that come because suffering is not relieved," said Taft, "it is even harder to realize the losses that come because the youth agencies are not given a chance to build character into boys' and girls' activities. When those failures of ours are turned into criminal statistics, we can shout about more and better police, but that is like quarantine after the epidemic starts."

Adding that a "lot of people" would agree with what he had said but would reply to a request for help with the recommendation that the government—national, state or local—do it, the son of the late President Taft, asserted:

"The answer to that is that government must and will do its share, but being neighborly is not its share. That is our job..."

Pittsburgh's reorganized symphony orchestra made its debut on the radio program under the direction of Dr. Otto Klemperer, guest conductor.

For Coal Users Only

This is not a "scare" message but just a plain statement of facts.

The government has set up the "Bituminous Coal Commission" under the Guffey Act (passed by the last Congress) to aid the coal industry in obtaining a better net revenue. This means "Higher prices" under government sanction. It is expected these new prices will be put out sometime this month.

The railroads are so short of good order cars that many mines are today operating only part time due to car shortage.

Union labor works only 35 hours a week. Outlaw strikes but short working time has already reduced supply so that at this early season point it is very hard to get shipments on many kinds of coal.

The thrifty householder will fill his bin NOW and not run risk of higher prices and delayed deliveries.

No one will freeze to death—but coal in the bin is an asset.
