Typhoon Sweeps Philippines For Second Time This Week

MANILA, Nov. 19 (Friday) (AP)—A typhoon of tremendous destructive force, the second to hit the Philippines within a week, left a large area isolated today, and first scattered reports showed 10 deaths and indicated property damage in the millions of dollars.

Winds sweeping across the archipelago at 100 miles an hour gave the central islands their worst storm of the year. Six deaths were reported immediately on the island of Leyte, and four on Cebu island. Both places were in the storm's vortex.

The typhoon whirled out into the China sea about 140 miles southwest of here but the weather bureau said there still was the possibility that it would backslide toward Manila.

Mindoro and Panay, large islands in the east central portion of the archipelago, felt almost the full force of the storm. Hundreds were homeless in Cebu province, where wind and flood swept away many homes. Many were reported hard hit. Crews were said to need immediate help.

Mindoro apparently had its fiercest storm in many years. Ruined communication lines prevented gathering of information on casualties. Lines in northern Panay also were down.

Fear was expressed at Catbalogan, in Samar province, for the safety of many fishermen caught at sea in small boats.

The new storm struck the islands Wednesday while a large area to the north, in and around Manila, was surveying losses from a typhoon which swept seven provinces Nov. 11.

The earlier storm left 33 known dead, scores injured and upwards of 40,000 homeless. President Manuel Quezon proclaimed a state of emergency in two Tayabas province towns to prevent profiteering among refugees.

Rival Forces Claim Victory

China and Japan Each Say Their Forces Are Advancing

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18 (AP)—Chinese military leaders asserted tonight their forces had thrown the Japanese back in the center of China's Hindenburg line west of Shanghai, but Japanese spokesmen declared that line had been breached by smashing blows near its northern and southern extremities.

Chinese reports told of a strong counter offensive before Soochow, central keystone of the Chinese defense system, in which the Japanese were driven back toward Chensi, 16 miles east of Soochow.

But heavy assaults brought the Japanese literally to the gates of Changshu and Kashing, northern and southern strong points, respectively, of the Chinese defenses some 50 miles west of Shanghai.

A Japanese spokesman said Japanese shock troops had smashed through Chinese lines on Pusan creek north of Changshu and then turned southward to attack the city itself. Previously Japanese had been reported at the eastern walls of Changshu, 25 miles north of Soochow.

Japanese reports from the southern end of the 110-mile battlefront said one gate of Kashing, 35 miles southeast of Soochow, already had fallen and bitter fighting was in progress around that city of northern Chekiang province. Chinese, however, declared there was still heavy fighting at seven star bridge, four miles northeast of Kashing.

Civilian ministries of the Chinese government continued their withdrawal from Nanking to Hankow, Chungking, Changsha and Wuchang in the interior before the threat of Japanese advance to the capital itself.

The United States gunboats Luzon and Oahu were steaming down the Yangtze to stand by at Nanking. Ten Americans left Nanking by boat hoping to reach Shanghai in six days.

University Students Missing Four Days Sought by Rangers

MOSCOW, Idaho, Nov. 18 (AP)—Forest rangers sought three University of Idaho students in the rugged Clearwater region of Central Idaho today, four days after they were to have returned to the Pete King ranger station.

The ranger station reported today the three students started a hunting trip a week ago yesterday, with food enough to last only until last Sunday.

They were reported to be familiar with the country. Lucas and Briggs are upperclass forestry students and Aldecoa an education major.

China Moves Her Government From Nanking

View of Hankow

Fighting a desperate, back-to-the-wall fight to preserve her independence against Japan, China arranged to move her government from Nanking to Hankow, 300 miles farther inland. Members of the government, and the populace as well, moved out of Nanking in the face of Japanese advances. At the same time, ministries of foreign affairs, finance and public health transferred their records and personnel to Hankow.

A RUBBER LUNG New Device Replaces Iron Breather

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—A rubber lung to replace the iron lung in which Fred Snite Jr., infantile paralysis victim, has lived for 19 months, will be air expressed to him in Miami tomorrow, a representative of an Akron (General) rubber company, said today.

Snite, stricken in China, traveled back to his country and eventually to the luxurious home in Miami, encased in the iron lung, a device to force his breathing mechanically. His enclosure in the big device has resulted in his skin becoming supersensitive.

The fundamental principle calls for an apparatus which will only partly enclose the body, will rest lightly over the chest, and serve to expand and contract the paralyzed chest by alternation of air pressure and partial vacuum.

It was feared, however, that the pressure of such a device on Snite's supersensitive skin might cause trouble. So the rubber company applied a pad of sponge rubber, softest made, to the base of the apparatus.

Rhythm Rates Joe College Easy 'A'; Betty Co-Ed 'D'

OXFORD, Ohio, Nov. 18 (AP)—Betty Co-ed has rhythm, but take it from Dr. E. F. Patten, professor of psychology at Miami university, her big brother, Joe College, has almost twice as much.

Dr. Patten announced today the results of tests given to students to determine their musical possibilities.

The tests showed, he said, that while the women's score was a bare 39—or 11 points below an average struck on the basis of 10,000 similar studies throughout the United States—men students achieved a rating of 67.

200 Men Strike At Fisher Plant

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP)—A few hundred men whose sit-down strike in the Fisher body plant here closed two automotive factories employing 14,701 men, held their ground tonight and neither General Motors corporation nor the United Automobile Workers of America professed to know plans for peace negotiations.

Company officials said neither the Fisher plant nor the Pontiac motor company plant would reopen before Monday.

E. F. Fisher, general manager of the Fisher body division of General Motors, attributed the strike to a radical minority and described it as a flagrant and lawless violation of the agreement between General Motors corporation and the U.A.W.A.

The strike was the third in a General Motors plant since U.A.W. delegates last Sunday rejected a proposed new agreement with the corporation. Richard T. Frankenstein, assistant president of international union, said General Motors could have prevented all of this trouble by offering the union a sufficiently decent contract.

The strike began last night in the Fisher plant, a few hours after E. R. Leeder, plant manager, had insisted in conference with union representatives upon suspension of four men whom he described as instigators of a 12-hour strike that began Monday night.

Police Examine Career Of Slain Labor Leader

Seek Clue To Shooting Of P. J. Corcoran

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 18 (AP)—State and city crime officials studied tonight the 12-year career of Patrick J. Corcoran as a labor leader as they delved for a clue to his assassination last night.

They were spurred by orders of Gov. Elmer A. Benson and rewards totaling $11,000.

The 45-year-old Irishman, who began his union activity as a member of the switchmen's union and was chairman of the north central district drivers' school active in five states, was shot to death near his home last night.

Body Found Near Home

His body, a bullet in the brain, was found behind a house two doors from his home.

Neighbors, who told police they heard two shots, said they saw two men running down an alleyway near where the body was found. They were able to describe the fleeing men only as heavy set and dressed in tight-fitting clothing.

Other Threats

Complicating the investigation were telephoned threats against two other twin cities labor leaders. S. J. Jutten of St. Paul, business agent of the laundry, linen and dry cleaners union, local 319, said his wife had received a telephone call, apparently intended for him, from an unidentified person who said, two more are to go.

Jutten said Earl Martin, district organizer for a bridge and iron workers union, also had been threatened.

Minneapolis detectives, aided by operatives of the state crime bureau, hunted two men Patrick J. Corcoran Jr., told them had attacked the labor leader Sunday, and questioned an American Federation of Labor representative and a newspaper columnist.

'Sheer' Nonsense At Wash. University

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 18 (AP)—Silk stockings are for Washington university wall flowers until Japan removes her troops from China.

Hitting at Japanese silk imports, men of the American Student union, a campus group, organized a date boycott today against the girls in sheer hose. Co-ed members quickly voted to buy.

Scene of Double Murder Reconstructed By California Police at Wright Hearing

GLENDALE, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP)—The strange dawn scene at the luxurious Paul A. Wright home in which he assertedly told of killing his wife and best friend when he found them embracing was reconstructed by police today at Wright's preliminary hearing on a murder charge.

At some of the testimony Wright covered his face with his hands and his body shook.

Before the hearing Jerry Geisler, defense attorney, said Wright would not take the stand—that the full story would come out at his trial.

Caught 'Cheating'

In minute cross-examination counsel for Wright elicited testimony that Wright, an airport executive, told persons he had caught his pretty 28-year-old wife cheating. An autopsy surgeon testified three bullets which struck Mrs. Wright entered her back and three which pierced her companion, John B. Kimmel, 32, also an airport official, entered his body from the front.

Mrs. Wright and Kimmel were found in front of the Wrights' grand piano, police testified, with Mrs. Wright on the floor, with her head near the piano pedals. Harry Reed, police officer, testified Kimmel's left foot was on the piano keyboard and his clothing was disarranged.

Reed testified Wright was distraught after police arrived in response to his telephone summons and that his breath smelled strongly of alcohol. There were

British Industry Endorses Plan For American Trade Treaty

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—British industry tonight endorsed Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's announcement to the house of commons that negotiations were contemplated for an Anglo-American trade treaty.

Champions of preferential trade among units of the empire were disposed to make necessary sacrifices because of the wider political possibilities that might result from an economic link-up of English speaking countries.

British industry generally expected to profit under the reciprocal trade agreement although opposition was thought likely from farmers if the negotiations tend to make worse their already burdened position.

Chamberlain's announcement came after 18 months of negotiations between Britain and America and Britain and the dominions.

glasses of liquor on the radio and a third-filled fifth of scotch in the kitchen, Reed said.

Reed said Wright telephoned his father in Milwaukee and said: "Father, there has been a terrible tragedy at our house. I have killed Evelyn. It turned out just as you said it would. I caught her cheating. You'll stand by me, won't you, father?"

Wright also told the negro maid at his home virtually the same thing while officers were at the house, Reed said.

The officer testified that when he and Patrolman R. W. Trowbridge responded to Wright's telephone call, he came a block away from home to meet them and was standing there frantically waving his hands.

"I've Shot My Wife"

"He grabbed my arm and asked me why I was so long getting there and said, 'My God, I've shot my wife and my friend,'" testified Reed.

Officer Reed told in detail of the position of the bodies. At one time he said Wright, while Kimmel was still alive, exclaimed:

"Get that moaning out of here, I can't stand it."

Mrs. Wright died soon after the shooting and Kimmel eight hours later.

Reed was examined closely about bullet holes found in the piano bench and keyboard and in a window near the piano, as well as empty shells found in the piano, the drinks and ash trays.

From the start, Britain was faced with the troublesome task of compensating the dominions for modification of their preferential treatment in the British market that was bound to come under an Anglo-American pact.

Trade circles were not certain all difficulties had been overcome, particularly those raised by Australia, recently a strong commercial rival of the United States.

It was pointed out, however, Australia might be induced to abandon her objections because of Anglo-American cooperation in the far east.

Tax Revision Demand Cuts Senate Filibuster Against Anti-Lynching

Dinner Honors New Members Of Union Board

The members of Union board were inducted and presented keys of membership at a formal dinner ceremony in Iowa Union last night. Prof. Rufus H. Fitzgerald, director of the Union, presided at the induction and presented the keys.

Prof. Forest C. Ensign of the college of education was guest speaker and was made an honorary member of the board. Herman Schmidt, A4 of Davenport, president of Union Board, presented the key of membership.

Professor Ensign is secretary of the board of trustees of the Iowa Memorial Union corporation and was one of the leaders of the movement to build the popular campus rendezvous.

The members of the board who were presented keys were: Robert Beebe, L3 of Ottumwa; Staten Browning, G of Iowa City; Parker Hughes, M4 of Des Moines; Deana Krantman, A3 of Marshalltown; Harriet Ludens, A3 of Morison, Ill.

Marjorie Moburg, P3 of Geneseo, Ill.; Ernest Mohr, E4 of Waterloo; Don Rosenfeld, L1 of Council Bluffs; Mr. Schmidt; Ruth Walker, A4 of Des Moines; and Betty Lou Voigt, C4 of Iowa City. Guests at the dinner besides the board were Professor and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Professor and Mrs. Ensign, and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rehder.

Geary Arrest Ends Hunt For Escaped Gang

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP)—A traffic patrolman's visit to a parking lot shanty squarely in the middle of downtown Syracuse to capture Percy (Angel Face) Geary ended today a feverish three day hunt for three members of the O'Connell kidnap gang who escaped from the Onondaga county penitentiary.

Patrolman Tom Lewis, acting on a tip supplied by Casper Mirra, 20, a parking lot attendant, walked up to a shanty on the lot with drawn gun and captured a weary, hungry outlaw who three days before held up five penitentiary guards in a carefully timed jail break plot.

An hour and a half previously, federal agents had left for Albany with John Oley and Harold Crowley, Geary's companions in the escape, who were captured 24 hours before in a cheap rooming house only a block and a half away from the parking lot.

Geary, injured when he leaped from a second floor window to miss capture with his mates by a matter of seconds, hobbled the block and a half to a warehouse often frequented by tramps across the street from the parking lot.

Mirra told police that he called to Geary to come on over and get warm; I've got a stove in here. He said Geary limped over and entered the shack, remaining there for 24 hours, while Mirra obtained food and discussed the jail break.

Police quoted Mirra as saying: "He told me he was a hobo. I told him he could sleep in my shack overnight. I brought him some sandwiches from home because he said he was hungry and broke and couldn't walk very well."

Puts On Best Suit; Dynamites Self

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP)—Dock Detrick, 65, put on his best suit, placed eight sticks of dynamite under his head and touched off the fuse. Undersheriff Rea Pyle said today.

The blast blew off his head and wrecked the kitchen of the Angus Green ranch home, where he worked.

Pyle said Detrick served 10 years in prison for a slaying and often brooded over what he considered an unjust penalty.

Both Houses of Congress Idle While Energized Business Faces Legislative Assemblies

Women Are Best Talkers? Southern Senators Spiel Spontaneously

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The senate has seen many filibusters, but it takes an anti-lynching bill to set the walls resounding with time-killing oratory and keep them resounding for days without end.

For it is a senate axiom, that a dozen or 15 men working carefully together can keep a filibuster going indefinitely; that is unless the opposition can muster two-thirds of the membership and impose the cloture rule.

While filibusters against most other bills have eventually been beaten, fights conducted by senators from the south have been uniformly successful in preventing a vote on anti-lynching legislation.

Most other filibusters, however, have been confined to one or two members, who inevitably talked themselves out. But in doing so, they established some records.

Senator Smoot of Utah spoke continuously for 11 hours and 35 minutes against a shipping bill in 1935.

Senator Burton of Ohio talked 12 hours and 10 minutes against a rivers and harbors bill in 1914. He wore a house coat and slippers.

Senator Faulkner of West Virginia denounced the force bill for 13 hours in 1891.

Senator Jones of Washington spoke 13 hours and 55 minutes against a shipping bill in 1918.

Senator Allen of Nebraska talked 14 hours on the silver purchase clause in 1893.

Senator Long of Louisiana spoke 14 hours in opposing a banking bill in 1935.

The endurance record for one man oratory was established by the elder Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin with an 18-hour address against the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill in 1908.

School Heads Resent Charges

DES MOINES, Nov. 18 (AP)—Des Moines public school officials today took issue with District Judge John J. Halloran, who blamed a modern theory of morality being taught in the schools for the plight of Warren Bianco, 17.

The high school student, confessed murderer of Marvin Crane, 30-year-old filling station attendant, was sentenced to life imprisonment for his crime today.

The modern theory, cited by Judge Halloran, is that morals are without divine sanctions, that they change from time to time and morality is largely an individual matter.

Right is right, Judge Halloran said, and wrong is wrong—yesterday, today and forever.

Public school authorities denied that divine sanctions for morality are destroyed in the schools. Officials of Drake university included with the public school in the blanket indictment, said Drake professors are teaching that divine moral sanctions do exist.

Judge Halloran said from the bench, this young man is undoubtedly the product of the modern school of thought which has become prevalent during the last few years.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—A seemingly inexorable demand for tax revision to energize business arose today from both houses of congress while the legislative machinery continued to idle.

Abruptly, the plea cut into the senate's persisting filibuster against anti-lynching legislation. It produced a short, sharp discussion and a warning from Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the finance committee that reductions in one tax schedule must be offset by increases in another, so that no loss of revenue might result.

The house, whiling away another day with a series of vehement, of unrelated speeches, heard republican members take up the cry. One of them, Eaton of New Jersey, insisted congress stop twiddling its thumbs in idle bewilderment and meet the menacing conditions of the hour.

Meanwhile, there were signs of progress in preparation of a farm bill, first item on the Roosevelt special session program.

Chairman Smith (D-S.C.) of the senate agriculture committee announced an agreement upon an ever normal granary bill, fashioned after the administration pattern, except that more compulsory crop control may be imposed for cotton.

A house subcommittee decided to propose marketing quotas for wheat, subject to a referendum of the farmers involved, and a 20-cent processing tax. The full committee on agriculture, however, remained widely divided on the best method of attacking the problem.

Leaders hope as soon as a farm bill is perfected by either committee, the present period of confusion and delay will be mitigated. The senate is ready to shelve the lynching dispute and house to abandon its rambling discussions whenever the crop control measure is brought in.

In addition, the house has pending a petition intended to tree the wage and hour bill, also on the administration program, from the grasp of the rules committee and bring it up for debate. A total of 218 signatures are necessary. Some 125 legislators had signed today.

In the senate, Bailey (D-N.C.) talked against the anti-lynching bill, asserted the undistributed profits tax could be repealed without the necessity of imposing a sales tax or broadening the basis of the income tax. But, to obtain repeal, he said he would be willing to go to one, or the other, and would vote for both in order to balance the budget of the United States.

'Third Time's The Charm,' Believes Duchess' Ex-Hubby

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Kirk Raffray became the bride today of Ernest A. Simpson, the divorced husband of her childhood chum, the Duchess of Windsor.

Raised in Baltimore society like the former Wallis Warfield, who after her divorce from the London ship broker married England's abdicated king, Edward VIII, Mrs. Raffray motored to nearby Fairfield with Simpson for the wedding.

Mrs. Raffray, who last week obtained a Reno divorce from Jacques A. L. Raffray, New York broker, gave her age as 41 in the application for the marriage license and said the marriage was her second.

Simpson listed the marriage as his third and said he was 40 years old. It was through the woman he married today he met years ago the Baltimore belle, who earlier this year became the bride of the Duke of Windsor.

University Students Prove Themselves

QUETLY, ENTIRELY unpublicized by the newspapers of the state first to headline the recent unfounded accusations of campus "immorality," the university this week has been the scene of its most successful financial drive in several years.

With hardly an exception among the groups canvassed so far, students have contributed almost 100 per cent. The average student, usually reluctant to depart with money that will not mean an immediate good time, has given about $2 to the drive. And most surprising of all is the fact that the money will be used for a purpose in which many maintain that students have little interest—religious activities.

Moreover, every organization on the campus—student, and faculty alike—has supported the present financial canvass, and this morning it is assured that Iowa's religious activities will be continued for another year at least.

The present drive means more than that, however. It means that students are realizing the importance of such projects as the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A., freshman conferences, freshman vespers, orientation groups, the peace plebiscite, deputation crews and the international relations commission, all under the direction of the religious activities office.

During its seven years on the campus, the religious activities board has been supported by funds made available by John D. Rockefeller Jr., now exhausted. The University of Iowa students who have contributed to the campaign to keep this worthy activity in existence are to be congratulated.

It's all very well to talk about the injustice of the widespread misunderstanding of modern college students, but when collegians dig deep into their pockets for such a campaign, that proves the allegations are wrong.

In Defense of The Worldwide Wallflower

FOR SOME TIME we have had people in the country who maintained that the United States should take a more active part in world affairs, that she should abandon her policy of isolation. These individuals believe that we, as a nation, should affiliate ourselves with the League of Nations, the World Court, or some similar group. As a nation we have also been the constant target of criticism from certain European powers, most notably Britain and France. These powers continually clamor for our cooperation. From both within and without our policy has been subject to animadversion.

The present Japanese affair and Nine Power conference promises to settle this question for once and for all. America finally has agreed to get into the game, and in support of this agreement she has sent a delegation to Brussels. America has fulfilled her part of the bargain. She has done what these internal critics as well as Britain and France have asked—she has agreed to cooperate. Yes, America has agreed to cooperate, only to find that those who howled the most for this complicity are not willing to join in themselves. Britain and France are holding back.

This action on the part of Britain and France is very significant. It forces their true attitude on the matter of cooperation out into the open. It shows that their real motive cannot be the furthering of the best interests of the world in general, they should be willing to pull together if it were the case. It reveals that the aid of the United States was not sought for world good, or these nations would avail themselves of our assistance. The truth of the matter is that these countries will cooperate only when it is to their own advantage; but the world benefit argument is only to attract help from America.

The present situation well illustrates this. Both France and England are willing to combine in action toward Italy, but neither will apply this same action against Japan. The cause of this can easily be seen. If France and England act against Japan, they must transfer some of their forces from the Mediterranean and place them in Asiatic waters. This both nations are afraid to do because of Italy. England has not moved one battleship from the Mediterranean for a good long time.

When these two nations think that cooperation will injure their interests, they won't play ball regardless of what their assistance might mean to the world. But when their interests are in danger they lose no time in tying them up with the principles of world good and asking our support.

By this stage of the foreign relations "day-in-the-woods" even the most rabid proponent of American participation in the international wiener roast must realize that our entrance would virtually make us the wiener.

Several times in the last month we have, through our state department, stretched our arms across the sea and proffered our hand; each time it has been refused. Europe has had its opportunity to show its true colors; the blame no longer rest with us. Oh, certainly!—they have been willing to have us try to settle things, but never have they offered to back us up as they have always wanted us to back them up. The best thing we can do is to withdraw our extended arm and put our hands in our pocket.

Some may call America a wallflower, but the wallflower at the international ball has more fun in the long run and harbors a much less painful hangover in the morning.

VENETIAN SENATORS

Splendor is the fitting apparel of greatness. Lovers of beauty who recall the drabber days when an American statesman was usually encased in the statesman's frock coat of customary length and blackness are gladdened by the specially bright coloration with which so many of our senators did honor to the special session and decorated the august chamber. There is something hieratic and Byzantine about the senate. From Byzantium was descended the gorgeousness of the great Venetian painters. One must regret that they had no such subjects as are found in Washington. If Iris is still at her old job she must have smiled proudly Monday at the bright creatures that reflected her.

Is it a masked ball? Is it a Christmas pantomime with colored lights? The spectator's eye aches with loveliness. Here is Bilbo, the Mississippi rapier, scabbarded "in a periwinkle-blue shirt and Mediterranean mauve tie." There is Majority Leader Barkley, leading himself with a "silken piece of shamrock green around his neck." There is Minority Leader McNary, his tie "as red as a Kentucky cardinal." Yonder is McNary's colleague, Logan, his neck all bound around with a "wine-red model." Always progressive, Mr. La Follette exhibits a cravat "of bright burgundy." Mark the two Kansans, Capper and McGill, in "red" and "blood-red" respectively. Sheppard of Texas, now the mourner and long the head nurse of prohibition, symbolizes his tragedy in "a black and red choker."

This abundant red has no sinister communist connotation. Red symbolizes patriotism, valor, love of country and constituents. Russell of Georgia, a younger, brighter form, remembers the purple stripe on a Roman senator's toga. He knows that purple is the badge of loyalty, royalty and love of truth, particularly on the stump. Yet to the looker-on in Venice he seems a strange, exotic fowl, a bird of paradise. He wears "purple tie against a deep purple shirt all housed beneath an emerald green suit."

The neckcloth of Townsend of Delaware is of heaven's own hue, consummate and ineffable, true Republican blue. Last and most here is James Hamilton Lewis, the chameleon brilliant of Chicago, glittering from a thousand facets. He has forsaken the arts of his brethren and outdone them all. He has dimmed and restrained himself. A gondola in this fleet of Cleopatra's galleys, he displays "a flowing black Windsor against a pearly double-breasted vest." A brave show, senators of Venice; and we thank you.

BETTER TIE A STRING TO HIS FINGER

Annual Physical Examination Will Help To Prevent Cancer

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D. The prevention of breast cancer in women very largely comes down to an annual physical examination in those women who are just over the child bearing period—approximately the age of 40. It has been shown that the greatest risk a woman runs, if a small lump in her breast proves to be cancer, is about 25 per cent, provided she is one of those who has the lump examined promptly or has it discovered in an annual physical examination. The ignorant woman who delays largely because of her ignorance, not fear, has a very much smaller chance of cure. Probably the most widespread idea about prevention of cancer concerns the belief that women have that an injury of the breast will result in cancer. There is not really very much evidence for this, and nearly all women are subjected to bumps in elevators or street cars. I imagine there is some truth in the idea that after a woman has one of these bumps on her breast, she may examine it and find that there is a lump present, and that this accounts for the idea that the injuries cause cancer. The fact is that the lump was there before, but was not noticed. It may be a good thing for any woman to have a bump bad enough to cause her to make a careful examination. Remember that in the early stages cancer of the breast is very seldom painful and does not call attention to itself in that way. It must be remembered that very few lumps or masses in the breast are real cancer; most of them are chronic inflammation, and even with a decided lump that can be easily felt, it is estimated that in 85 per cent of these no operation or X-ray or radium irradiation will be necessary.

Tuning In with Margie Fastenot

When NBC's True Story Court of Human Relations program goes on the air tonight at 8:30, Robert P. Lane, director of the New York welfare council, will leave the forum discussions that follow the dramatizations. Lane is past director of the Junior Red Cross and former professor of sociology at Dartmouth college. He selects each week a new "jury" of people from all walks of life to comprise his forum.

Loretta Lee will do a guest appearance tonight and a week from tonight while Frances Langford is on vacation making personal appearances in theaters.

Mary Jane Walsh, Mutual network's pretty "Singing Cinderella" who made her debut over the air as the star of a new network series recently, also scored a personal triumph as "The Judge's Girl" in the new George M. Cohan smash hit, "I'd Rather Be Right," which opened in New York last Tuesday. According to Sidney Whipple, dramatic critic of the New York World-Telegram, Mary Jane, whose program is heard Fridays at 6 p.m. over WGN, "stole the show with her personality, singing and dancing."

The distinction of being the only clergyman on a sponsored radio program goes to Dr. Karl Reiland, who is heard in inspirational talks over the NBC-Blue network on Fridays from 6:15 to 6:30. Like Broadway producers trying out their shows before bringing them to Broadway, Dr. Reiland's sponsors tried him out over an Atlanta broadcasting station for eight weeks last spring and signed him on the strength of the public response to his talks.

Tonight's Pontiac Varsity show goes on the air at 8 o'clock over the NBC-Blue network with the scene of activities laid at the University of Indiana. Performers on the show will consist entirely of local talent.

Wilbur Hatch's early training as an accountant has helped the "Song Time" maestro in his CBS work. Hatch assists his band musicians in figuring their income tax during off-mike moments, and also pitches in to give the network auditing department an occasional helping hand.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

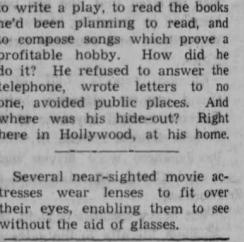

HOLLYWOOD—Here's a new note on the educational influence of the movies. A school teacher (not in Hollywood) was faced with a disturbing phenomenon. Seemed every time one of her pupils went to the blackboard there was tense interest among the others, and frequently the reciting child suddenly sat on the floor amid general glee. Being a good disciplinarian, the schoolmarm got to the bottom of things immediately, learned the children were engaged in a continuous game called Parkyakarkus—"if any kid forgets to keep his fingers crossed," as one explained, "he's gotta park-his-karkus—right there!"

Interesting short: Pete Smith's essay on "Radium." Leave It To Errol: Inevitable item from the "Robin Hood" location: "With a bow and arrow, Errol Flynn, Warner Brothers star, killed a 25-pound wildcat in the woods near Chico, Calif." Why are they having a peace conference, anyway, now that the redoubtable Errol has mastered the bow and arrow and could settle all those foreign messes single-handed?

Today's quotation: Rose Strader (of "The Last Gangster") surveys the question of casual romance and career:—"An actress more than woman in any other profession always has to look her best. She cannot if she is emotionally upset!" (Miss Strader is a newcomer in Hollywood, apparently unfamiliar with the truism that no movie actress becomes too emotionally upset to look her best for the news cameras.)

Hiding Out At Home: Joseph Calleja has been in getting away from it all. Calleja had a six-months' vacation recently, and wanted to be alone, except for a quick trip to New York. He managed it. For six months he found uninterrupted leisure to write a play, to read the books he'd been planning to read, and to compose songs which prove a profitable hobby. How did he do it? He refused to answer the telephone, wrote letters to no one, avoided public places. And where was his hide-out? Right here in Hollywood, at his home.

Several near-sighted movie actresses wear lenses to fit over their eyes, enabling them to see without the aid of glasses.

By GEORGE TUCKER: NEW YORK—A stage manager of one of the opera companies tells of two of his divas who are carrying on a feud with one another. It appears that one of his warblers, in a flirtatious mood, carried off the boy friend of the other.

The jilted one immediately favored her more successful confrere with a blistering dressing-down, calling her 50 different kinds of Judas and warning her to keep out of her path thereafter. It was a ringing denunciation, replete with acrimonious invective and leaving the atmosphere quite decidedly sulphurous and blue.

Finally she ended on a note which was a masterpiece of rebellious whimsy: "And you can find someone else to lend your curling irons to after this, too!" she screamed.

William Brady: William A. Brady, one of the veteran and more successful producers hereabouts, received a lot of enthusiastic comment after his talk on the radio the other night. The husband of Grace George, whose career has been as checkered as his, related many exciting moments in his theatrical and sporting hey-day, such as the time he presented Helen Hayes in a play one night and managed the late Jim Corbett in a prize fight the next.

However, as he humorously recalled, his most thrilling achievement came at the age of nine. Devoted to the theater even at that age, he was seated in "peanut heaven," which means the upper balcony, one night, and from that distance succeeded in throwing a marble through the bass drum in the orchestra pit. That, he says, gave him his greatest thrill.

John Golden: It isn't generally known that John Golden, another eminent producer with a fund of anecdotal reminiscences that would startle even Bob Burns, has plied the trade of a brick layer in his career. Yet, it is true. In addition to accepting packages from Irish hod carriers, he has been a lawyer, a song writer, an inventor and a comic-strip artist.

The term, "to Bowdlerize," meaning to censor or cut out, comes from a squeamish editor named Bowdler who flourished in the early 19th century.

Mentor Chooses Team From Hawk Foes This Season

Honoring three members of his all-star team, Coach Irl Tubbs yesterday announced his 1937 All-Big Ten gridiron outfit, the players being selected only from teams that the Iowa mentor has seen in action this year. The Hawkeyes named were Nile Kinnick, sophomore quarterback, and Bob Lannon and Dick Anderson, both seniors. All three are being mentioned prominently on all-star selections in the middle west, as well as nationally.

The eight remaining members of the all-star team are King of Minnesota, end; Schreyer of Purdue and Siegel of Michigan, tackles; Weld of Minnesota and Sirtosky of Indiana, guards; Van Every of Minnesota and Brock of Purdue, halfbacks, and Weiss of Wisconsin, fullback.

King, captain of the Gopher eleven, has been one of the outstanding wingmen of the nation this season. In the Iowa-Minnesota game, with his team trailing 10-0 midway in the second quarter, he caught a forward pass from Van Every and, in the same motion, turned and lateraled to Dwight Reed, who scored on a perfectly executed play to give the Norsemen their first touchdown.

Both Schreyer and Siegel proved to be tough to move when Iowa attempted to penetrate the forward wall of Purdue or Michigan. At the guard positions, Weld and Sirtosky played consistently well against Iowa, Sirtosky in particular being a thorn in the side of the Hawkeyes in Indiana's 3-0 victory last Saturday.

In Iowa's Homecoming struggle with Minnesota at Iowa City, the much-heralded battle for individual honors between Kinnick and Van Every, both sophomore sensations, more than came up to expectations. Van Every did all the passing, kicking, and a large share of the ball carrying for the Gophers in their 35-10 triumph.

Brock of Purdue did a majority of ground - gaining for the Boilermakers in their 13-0 conquest of Iowa and Weiss, Badger back, was very instrumental in Wisconsin's 13-6 victory over the Old Gold with his hard-driving style of play.

Fraternity Pledge Basketball Season Gets Under Way

Fraternity pledge basketball opened its season last night at the fieldhouse with six games being played. Alderice led his Sigma Phi Epsilon teammates to a narrow 14 to 13 victory over the Phi Delta Theta neophytes in a close and hard-fought game. Haack was outstanding for the losers.

Other games found Phi Epsilon Phi victorious over Beta Theta Pi, 15-12; Alpha Sigma Phi triumphing over Pi Kappa Alpha, 32 to 11; Kappa Psi outscoring Sigma Chi, 22 to 6; Delta Upsilon downing Phi Kappa Sigma, 40 to 8, and Theta Xi winning from Alpha Tau Omega by an 11 to 5 margin. Sigma Nu won on a forfeit from Triangle.

In a Class A game, Phi Epsilon Kappa romped over Gamma Eta Gamma, 31 to 4 and Sigma Nu won on a forfeit from Delta Tau Delta.

In two scheduled touch football games, Sigma Chi won on a forfeit from Phi Kappa Sigma and Phi Kappa Psi also won on a forfeit when their Sigma Phi Epsilon opponents failed to show up. A game between Beta Theta Pi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon was postponed indefinitely. Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Epsilon Phi played their game Wednesday, one day ahead of the scheduled date, with the Phi Ep's winning 14-13.

'Slickers' Fans Invent Ways To Crash Gate

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18 (AP) — Stanford and California meet in their annual big game Saturday — with a Rose Bowl bid the likely prize — so in less publicized fields officials are sharpening their wits for the usual bunch of football slickers.

Handling of the game details is Stanford's responsibility this year. Among the nearly 90,000 fans, Graduate Manager Al R. Masters conjectures, will mingle enough unwelcome gyp artists to fill two jails of college-town dimensions.

Aside from handling more than 20,000 automobiles and the seating of enough people to populate a fair-sized city, Masters must get ready for such possible eventualities as these of other years:

Once while a front man engaged a ticket seller in a heated argument three confederates sawed a hole in the booth, reached in and swiped 600 tickets. Co-operation of purchasers enabled the authorities to capture the four culprits.

A student ticket taker once admitted a fellow who flashed a sheriff's badge, or so it was stamped. Fifteen other deputy sheriffs walked through the gate in quick succession. The original sheriff had merely passed his badge through the fence to the others.

Before the board of athletic control members developed the suspicious mind, a racketeer often acquired an arm band similar to that worn by a gateman. Approaching a ticket taker he would inform him he was wanted at the office and that the newcomer had been sent to substitute.

The new gateman collected ducats, until he had a handful, then vanished to sell them at a bargain price.

The most spectacular gate crashing stunt at Stanford was contributed a few seasons back by the fellow who swiped a vaulting pole, headed for the tennis iron fence on the run and soared over with a yard to spare.

Red And White Cagers Driving For 1st Game

Williamsburg Provides Opposition for City High Tuesday

Attempting to whip his cagers into shape for the nerve-racking schedule which will find four strong teams opposing the Little Hawks in the first 11 days, Coach Frances Merten is working the City High squad at top speed.

Facing Williamsburg, Muscatine, Lone Tree and Davenport in little more than a week, the Red and White quintet will have its hands full. Lone Tree is especially powerful this year and should furnish plenty of competition to prime the Mertenmen for their first league game with Davenport.

Coach Merten is concentrating on speedy floor play for the current campaign, necessitating clever ball-handling. Consequently, the five men making up the present practice are those that have been practicing on the City High floor throughout the grid season.

First String
Norris Wheeler, George Covert, Warren Burger, Wayne Putnam and John Lemons performed as first-stringers last night. Captain Wayne Putnam promises to be the defensive demon of the Little Hawk aggregation, combining his ability to snare rebounds off the backboard with an uneasy ability to break up enemy offensive drives.

Still nursing his injured back, Russell Hirt watched from the sidelines along with Bob Buckley and Junior Heacock, also on the injury list.

The freshman-sophomore division of the Red and White institution is coming along rapidly under the tutelage of Coach Herb Cormack. With more time in which to prepare for their opening game, the younger basketers are still working for smoother, more accurate ball-handling. Cormack's first choice in yesterday's session put Lillick, Laughlin, McNamara, Parker and King on the first team. The junior Hawklets play their first engagement at Muscatine next Friday.

Alabama Bars Way
Alabama, of course, not only stands ready to offer a brisk rebuttal to any arrangements in Vanderbilt's favor, but hopes to put emphasis upon the Tide's own post-season prospects with touchdowns.

Vanderbilt's record so far has been marred only by defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech, which, incidentally, would have been in the bowl picture itself if it had beaten Alabama last week. Triumph over the Tide next week certainly would have the effect of offsetting the one blot on the Commodore slate, in addition to which it has been demonstrated an all-winning record is not a prerequisite to Rose Bowl selection, even though it may be preferred.

Among the precedents is Columbia which won the 1934 bid from Stanford, as well as the ball game, in spite of an early season defeat by Princeton. Last year Pittsburg got the call after being tied by Fordham and beaten by Duquesne. Pitt, in fact, was a surprise choice.

Pitt Looms Up Again
Notwithstanding latest coast reports indicating its reluctance to invite Pittsburg again, it is difficult to see how the Rose Bowl champions can be overlooked if they dispose of Penn State this week and Duke next.

Fordham, likewise unbeaten and with a record of holding Pitt scoreless for three successive years, will rate close to the top in any bowl calculations if the Rams beat St. Mary's and New York university.

California is on record as preferring to meet a team which has about the same viewpoint, academically and athletically but it remains to be seen whether the Golden Bears, if victorious over Stanford this Saturday, make their policy stick. Inferentially it is a slap at high-pressure football methods, such as both Pitt and Fordham have exploited, although the Panthers publicly have proclaimed a de-emphasis policy from now on.

There appears no doubt the west coast would prefer to invite Yale or Dartmouth, unbeaten Ivy league leaders, to the Rose Bowl, but they are definitely out of the picture under the terms of a specific agreement barring post-season games, no matter where staged or under whose auspices. The Big Ten has long had a similar policy, thus automatically reducing the potential field of bowl prospects.

Earl Caddock, Mat Champion During War Days, Visits Son
Famous Wrestler Was A Training Partner Of Mike Howard

As the fieldhouse bustled with activity yesterday — the auto show, the Hawkeye gridders last minute preparations for Nebraska, basketball, militarists, gymnasts, pugilists, fencers and wrestlers — few of the athletes realized that there was a former champion of the world among them.

Earl C. Caddock, of Omaha, Neb., former heavyweight wrestling champ, was in town visiting his son Earl Jr., 216 E. Fairchild street for two days, so he dropped over to the wrestling arena for a chat with his old training partner, Mike Howard, Hawkeye wrestling coach.

They are old friends, these two, their association dating back to the Great War days when Howard spent many months training Caddock for his world championship bout with Joe Stecker of Nebraska. Mr. Caddock won that bout and he and Mike never lost track of each other since.

Vanderbilt Eyes Rose Bowl

Commodores Battle Alabama Tomorrow For Supremacy in South

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP) — Not the least intriguing of the potential solutions to college football's post-season bowl problems, affecting both New Orleans and Pasadena, is the possibility Vanderbilt will come up with the winning answer Thanksgiving day.

More immediate tasks confront three schools currently most prominent in the discussion — California, Pittsburgh and Fordham — but it's worth noting the Vanderbilt Commodores have just about as much at stake as has unbeaten-untied Alabama in their crucial holiday battle at Nashville next week.

Victory for Vanderbilt over the Crimson Tide, a prospect by no means remote on the basis of their comparative performances, would produce these interesting facts or fancies:

At Least A Tie
(A) Assure the Commodores at least a tie for the southeastern conference title, with either Louisiana State or Alabama or both, on the basis of games won and lost. (Note: Vanderbilt beat L.S.U., 7 to 6).

(B) Qualify Vanderbilt to receive invitations to both the Sugar and Rose Bowls.

(C) Give the Pacific coast's Rose Bowl nominee, whether California or Stanford, an alternative choice, if Pittsburgh or Fordham falters in the stretch; or an outside chance, if there's any real basis to reports the west coast now prefers vintage Ivy to poison ivy.

(D) Make possible a return Sugar Bowl match between Louisiana State and Santa Clara, if Vanderbilt actually wins the call to Pasadena.

Alabama, of course, not only stands ready to offer a brisk rebuttal to any arrangements in Vanderbilt's favor, but hopes to put emphasis upon the Tide's own post-season prospects with touchdowns.

Vanderbilt's record so far has been marred only by defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech, which, incidentally, would have

Comedy Diving To Be Featured In Water Show

Swimming and Water Sport Fans Always Look Forward to the Diving when they witness an aquatic meet, and so each year the powers that control the Dolphin show, the water carnival extravaganza put on by the Dolphin fraternity annually, inject into the program a number of comedy and high diving acts which spectators will remember.

These dives are performed from two different heights by members of the varsity and freshman swimming squads, the degree of difficulty of the various dives ranging from 1.1 to 2.2.

This year the men will work from the 10-foot board and the 35-foot platform nestled high in the rafters above the pool.

High Dives
Some of the dives that will be executed from the high platform include a jackknife, half gainer, half twist, one and one-half forward flips with a half twist, a swan dive and plain front dive.

Comedy diving by four men will be shown from the 10-foot board, featuring John Stark, Ed Callihan, Bob Winter and J. Harold Sears. This quartet has worked up an impersonation of the Marx brothers, and added the fourth member in the somewhat mysterious capacity of queen. After the divers ascend the ladder and are above the water, "Spring Dance," a musical composition, will be played and the comedy antics will begin.

Divers who will perform from the high platform include Frank Brandon, Bill Stipe, Wilson Fall, John Stark and possibly one or two other squad members.

John Stark, and possibly one other diver, will work from the 10-foot board. Five required and five optional dives are on the schedule for the 10-foot board.

Johns Hopkins Has Night School Men On Football Team
BALTIMORE, Nov. 18 (AP) — The football amateurs of Johns Hopkins university's de-emphasized eleven laughed today at the question of eligibility of two night school substitutes on the team that plays for fun before fans who do not pay.

"I get a chuckle over the question being raised," said Dr. Wilson Shaffer, athletics director. "They're perfectly eligible. It's not unusual for some of our boys to have night classes."

The two, Don Bueck, reserve back, and Harry Moore, substitute center, are senior candidates for engineering degrees.

Dr. Shaffer said the system begun this year, under which Johns Hopkins helps no athletes, charges no admission, accepts no guarantees and pays none, has brought better crowds and the team has won three of its five games.

"It shows colleges which de-emphasize and play in their own class can win. We'll continue playing in that class and win half and lose half, which is about what a team should do."

But Valentine Lent, coach of St. John's, Annapolis, which meets Johns Hopkins here Nov. 28 — for them — the season's big game declared:

"I am not making a protest. I simply asked if the Hopkins athletic authorities had changed their policy and were playing night school students. According to the intercollegiate code a student must take at least 12 semester hours a week in a day school to be eligible. Hopkins apparently has changed its policy. Now that I understand what it is, I am satisfied."

Hollywood Author Praises Beauty Of Girls Who Live In Tall Corn State

"Through these portals pass the most beautiful girls in the world," a Hollywood author said yesterday as he nodded toward buildings on the university campus.

Major von Rhau, playwright and scenario writer, exclaimed that "I've seen more feminine beauty during two days in Iowa than my past two years in Hollywood."

"If I had my way, all the Hollywood trash would be thrown out of the motion picture studios, and Iowa girls would be imported," he said.

"In Hollywood, we expect the girls to be beautiful," Major von Rhau, who is a former member of the U.S. diplomatic service, said. "Too many of them are scrawny, poroxidized creatures, though."

"Why, two days ago, when I first entered this state, the difference was at once noticeable," he related. Major von Rhau said that it "all dawned upon him in Davenport."

The writer is collaborating with John Colton, another scenario writer and playwright, on a Broadway drama for a fall Broadway production.

Major von Rhau, who wrote "To the Victor," "The Green Husar," and "After Kings," is also known as a biographer of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He is also writing a volume on Gen. Raphael Trujillo, president of the Dominican republic, and is an editor of the National Encyclopedia of American Biography.

Major von Rhau's "To the Victor" has been translated into German, French and Danish and has sold more than 100,000 copies.

His collaborator, Colton, has written the scenarios for various Greta Garbo and Jean Harlow vehicles, including "China Seas" and "Mata Hari."

Major von Rhau said he is planning to write a story about the University of Iowa soon, and the mention of the campus' beautiful girls may possibly result in a mad rush by Hollywood talent scouts for Iowa City.

Co-eds To 'Foot The Bill' This Evening At Spinster's Spree

Dating Procedure Will Be Reversed At Dance Tonight

Because turn about is fair play, university women will entertain tonight at the Spinster's Spree, performing from corsage to cab fare the duties of the perfect host. Joe Sanders, "the ole left-hander," will play for dancing from 9 to 12 o'clock in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

During intermission tea will be served on the balcony to chaperons and committee members.

The high spot of the evening will be the presentation of Iowa's three most eligible bachelors. The answers to the campus maidens' prayers have been chosen from nominations submitted by the sororities and dormitories. Their identity will be revealed by Master of Ceremonies Sanders.

Although the party will be informal, women will appear in long dresses. Their dates, however, will be permitted to wear business suits. Because tonight belongs to Him, His sartorial splendor instead of Her's fills the next few paragraphs.

Escorted by Mary Spalding, A4 of Waverly, will be William Ladage, A2 of Bettendorf, Sigma Phi Epsilon, who will wear a double-breasted gray herringbone suit. His necktie will be of light blue silk, and he will wear a white shirt.

Of soft worsted material is the blue suit of Jack Law, A2 of Waterloo. White collar and cuffs contrast with his blue striped shirt and blue woolen necktie. An Alpha Tau Omega, he will attend the party with Mary Doubleday of Nashville, Tenn.

Dressed in "my best bib and tucker" will be Ray Walters, A4 of Rockford, Ill. The "best bib and tucker" is a free swing double-breasted suit of a dark blue-black color with a white-collared blue shirt and blue necktie. Beverly Hunter, A1 of Rockford, Ill., will accompany Quadrangle's Ray.

Margaret Joiner, C3 of Maquoketa, will take Al Sorenson, C3 of Ames, one of the eligible bachelor candidates, to the party. Personifying what the well-dressed man should wear will be this Sigma Chi, dressed in a double-breasted Cambridge gray suit with a chalk-colored pin stripe. He will wear a white shirt and blue necktie.

A collegiate plaid necktie and pocket handkerchief will complement the dark blue double-breasted suit of Chandler Griffin, A2 of Winton, Beta Theta Pi. Joanna Huttenlocher, A1 of Des Moines, will "root the bill" for him.

At the party from the Phi Kappa Psi house will be David Foezler, A2 of Iowa City. His double-breasted blue suit has a belted black. His shirt will be white and his necktie blue-striped. He will attend the party with Mary Carolyn Kuever of Iowa City.

An almond-brown shirt and a lateral - striped brown tie will match the brown pin - striped suit of John Kelley, A4 of Emmetsburg. A member of Phi Delta Theta, he will do dancing with Evelyn Mitchell, A2 of Emmetsburg.

Ned Poyneer, U of Cedar Rapids and the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house, will appear at the party with Betty Styer, A3 of Peoria, Ill. "A dark blue job" is his choice of attire.

Brown will predominate in the outfit of William Dewey, A1 of Morris, Ill., Delta Chi. His double-breasted suit is brown, matching his shirt and necktie. Jeanne Cox, A1 of Cantril, will escort him.

Phi Gamma Delta's John Simmons, A2 of Osceola, will wear a single-breasted gray herringbone suit with a light blue check running through it. The suit has a belted back and patch pockets. He will wear a blue tie, white shirt and a blue handkerchief in his pocket. Mr. Simmons will be escorted by Nanette Workman, A2 of Keosauqua.

Clare Walker, A1 of Davenport, will accompany Charles Paul, Alpha Sigma Phi, A2 of Wilton Junction. Mr. Paul will wear a double-breasted dark blue pin-stripe suit. His white shirt will be accented by a cross-check tie of gray, blue and yellow.

Dancing with Helen Banger, A2 of Chicago, will be Sigma Nu's Ray Murphy, A2 of Des Moines, attired in a brown double-breasted suit. He will wear a green necktie and a brown and green striped shirt.

John Rogers, Delta Tau Delta, A2 of Coon Rapids, will be dressed in a double-breasted blue suit, a red necktie and white shirt. Dorothy Ochsner, A2 of Ft. Madison, will be his escort.

Accompanied by Catharine Niles, A2 of Anamosa, will be Robert Sorg, Phi Kappa Sigma, P3 of Tripoli. Mr. Sorg will wear a brown double - breasted suit and a brown shirt, green necktie and green handkerchief.

Delta Upsilon's Van Saunders, P2 of Minot, N. D., will go dancing with Lois Sample, P2 of Iowa City. Van will be dressed in a dark blue worsted suit. A dark

Hayek Brands Contract Illegal And Fraudulent

Attorney Will J. Hayek yesterday filed an amended answer to the original petition in the litigation in the suit brought against the city by the Burns and McConnell Engineering company of Kansas City. Attorneys Hayek and Robert L. Larson represent the city in the suit.

In his amended answer, Attorney Hayek contends the contract was fraudulently procured and was illegal. He says that the contract which the previous city administration made with the engineering firm did not receive notice that the contract was to be made.

The engineering concern is asking judgment in the amount of $11,534.60 which it claims the city owes for engineering services performed in connection with preparing plans for a municipal light plant and distribution system here.

The Iowa City board of adjustment yesterday authorized City Inspector Harold J. Monk to issue a building permit to Dr. E. J. Amish to construct a six-room duplex at the corner of Lucas and Burlington streets.

Regard Hitler Above Critics

De Kiewiet Tells How Germans View Leader In Lecture

"The reason for the strange lack of criticism of Hitler in Germany today is due to the fact that he is regarded, not as a man, but as a supreme being above criticism," Prof. Cornelius W. de Kiewiet of the history department declared last night in an informal talk to the German club in the Iowa Union cafeteria.

"That criticism which is present," he stated, "is directed at the underlings rather than at the dictator himself."

The great sacrifices Germany is making for her reintegration are very evident, he said. She is physically and economically incapable of meeting the necessary requirements of her people. The subsequent burden being put upon the people is increasing. They are being offered inferior materials at the same if not higher prices than before.

Without attempting to read into everything he saw in Germany, Professor de Kiewiet enjoyed the warm humanity which lies beneath the dictatorship. "There is much in the temperament of a nation which one can appreciate without dwelling on those aspects which are unlikable," he said.

The talk was centered around interesting anecdotes of his visit in Germany this summer rather than an attempt to analyze the situation there. "For," he said, "in the short space of two weeks, one is able to gather only bits of the complete jig-saw puzzle."

The officers of the club for the year were announced. They are George Schulz-Behrend, G of Elmton, N. Y., president; Louise Miller, A3 of Amara, secretary, and Milton Zigel, G of Ft. Wayne, Ind., treasurer.

Following the talk by Professor de Kiewiet, there was a movie showing various handwork trades such as lace making, bead work, wooden toys, and musical instruments and views of the country.

Chief of Police W. H. Bender Asks Motorists To Use Chains

With a wet snow blanketing the city and ice forming where the snow had melted, Chief of Police W. H. Bender last night warned motorists to use tire chains for greater safety and to cut down the winter's accident toll.

"In snow or icy weather," declared Chief Bender, "police traffic officials and safety engineers agree that tire chains provide the most positive safety. Even with chains drivers should be extra careful at this time because some less cautious person may not be prepared for safe driving."

The chief also recommended these precautions for motorists: Keep your windshield free from sleet and rain that will turn to ice and obscure vision. Apply brakes before you ordinarily would in dry weather. Travel at less than moderate rate of speed. Don't attempt to drive without chains.

Take curves slowly and don't try to pass cars ahead of you. Give the pedestrian ample time to cross the street. These safety measures were advised by Chief Bender for pedestrians.

Walk slowly and carefully. A fall may incapacitate you for weeks. Don't rely on the ability of all motorists to stop. If he makes no effort to give you free passage, don't try to beat him across the street. Hold onto railings when mounting or dismounting steps.

Romantic Life of Railroad Historian Told in Palimpsest Released Today

A tall gray-haired man, walks with a firm step into his Schaeffer hall office filled with the documents of the "romance of the first continental railroad."

The time-worn papers, representing the fascinating financial story of the Credit Mobilier and one of the most remarkable collections of source material relating to railroad history in America, tell the story of man's life.

That man is Levi O. Leonard, collector - historian, whose life story is written in the November issue of the Palimpsest released today.

Mr. Leonard, whose father was formerly professor of mathematics and astronomy at the university, began his college work at the age of six when his father used to take him to his classes in Old Capitol, then the only building on the campus.

"After two years of 'auditing' his father's courses, Mr. Leonard entered the primary school in the mechanics academy... In 1871 he entered the state university..." the article states. He attended for only two years because of eye trouble for which rest was prescribed.

Snowfall Ends After 12 Hours

A three-inch blanket of snow and 21 - degrees - below - normal temperatures yesterday combined to give Iowa Citizens their first touch of the coming winter.

The snow fell for 12 hours and stopped at 3 p.m. The dry snow, amounting to .14 of an inch moisture, made sidewalks slippery, but no serious accidents were reported.

The temperature varied only six degrees during the day, with a high of 26 between noon and 3 p.m., and a low of 20 at 7 a.m., according to hydraulics laboratory observers.

The high mark was 21 degrees below normal, weathermen said. Iowa City's moisture during the year is 3.93 inches below normal, they said.

Chief of Police Demands Report On All Wrecks

"Motorists must report accidents in which they are involved," Chief of Police W. H. Bender stated yesterday.

The state law requires that any accident in which a personal injury is received or damage to both cars amounts to $25 must be reported either to the police department or to the sheriff's office. Chief Bender pointed out that this required not only those accidents which occur in the cities, but also those which happen in the country are to be reported.

He added that the willful failure of a motorist to report an accident which the state law requires to be reported makes him liable to a fine of not less than $50 and costs.

Administrators For 2 Estates Appointed In Court Yesterday

Judge Harold D. Evans appointed the administrators for two estates in Johnson county district court yesterday.

Mildred Tuttle was appointed administratrix of the Martha M. Weymer estate with bond fixed at $100, and A. M. Atkin was declared administrator of the Levi Fountain estate with the bond set at $3,000.

Through all 5 of these various occupations, he remained a collector. Much of his time was spent in the building of the Union Pacific railroad; all the time he was gathering material and background for a history of the railroad.

Now he can look back on his collections, and a new goal comes to view - the making of a record of the history of railroads in the western United States.

The accumulation and writing of these records has been done through the cooperation of the State Historical society, which realized the value of his collection.

Jack Johnson, a graduate assistant in the political science department, has been assisting Mr. Leonard in his studies and is the author of the Palimpsest's account of the railroad historian's life.

easy and rapid change, the stranger in the community is no longer noticeable," Professor Perkins said.

Gangsters have resorted to various devices in trying to throw experts off their track, but in this they have failed. The case of John Dillinger's acid-marked fingers and the alias he used were not effective when the fingerprint expert started his check, Professor Perkins pointed out. Other means, such as the use of smaller cartridges to mislead the ballistic expert have also failed, Professor Perkins declared.

Gertrude K. Bouck Wins Divorce Suit; $7 Weekly Alimony

Gertrude K. Bouck was granted a divorce from George H. Bouck by Judge Harold D. Evans in Johnson county district court yesterday. Cruel and inhuman treatment provided the grounds for the action.

Science Leads Way In Future Crime Battles

"The new battle lines in the war on crime will be found in the test tube, under the microscope, in the camera and ultraviolet ray and by many methods such as the peace officer's school," Prof. Rollin M. Perkins of the college of law asserted last night in a Baconian lecture in Old Capitol.

We may look forward to the time when every large university will have a crime detection bureau and will give special courses in crime detection, Professor Perkins prophesied.

"Peace officers will belong to that profession for which they will have to have a license just as doctors of medicine are required to have one today," Professor Perkins said. "This presents a challenge which the people of the state can not overlook."

In the last few years the problem of the peace officer has increased 100 fold with the advent of airplanes and other modes of travel which facilitate rapid changes in the population of the communities. As a result of this

WHAT HAS HAPPENED THUS FAR:
Nina Asara, beautiful young Spanish singer, is commissioned to go to the French city of Bayonne and find out what designs Napoleon Bonaparte has on the Spanish government. Don Diego, a handsome Spanish courtier, rescues her on the way from brigands. She feels herself drawn toward him, but discovers him when he follows her to Bayonne, so that she may carry on uninterrupted a flirtation with Major de Rougemont, first aide-camp of Bonaparte.

Chapter Four

Before she could keep her rendezvous with Major de Rougemont, Nina knew she should have the carrier pigeons ready. If she could find out anything about Napoleon's designs on the Spanish king, not a instant must be lost in rushing the news across the border.

In the picturesque little marketplace was the vendor whom she had been instructed to seek out. Moving between rows of donkeys, peddlers, beggars and bright scarlet flowers, Nina made her way to his side. The word "Vittoria" brought a quick gleam of understanding. Quietly he passed over a pair of bright-eyed birds, while he whispered:

"The king will reach Vittoria tonight."

Nina's pulse quickened. She had little time to lose. If Ferdinand was to be stopped from crossing the border, immediate evidence of his treachery was necessary. In a few hours she hoped to know the truth.

As she crossed the square, passing a little hat stand, Nina saw a familiar figure outlined in the bright light. Don Diego was still here... and it was not by accident he had been waiting nearby.

Nina hadn't the heart to pass by without some word of recognition. Despite the risk she paused, and smiled.

"Am I forgiven?" asked Don Diego, his own eyes twinkling in return.

"Yes, but I can't see you - until we return to Spain," said Nina.

For Don Diego, however, one word of encouragement was enough to get superhuman energies in motion. He refused to be sidetracked by talking Nina by the arm, started out to see some of the sights of Bayonne.

At last they reached the sloping bank of the river, which went through the city. Buying some chestnuts from a roving vendor, they began to feed them to the greedy ducks. In a careless moment Don Diego put out his hand too close to one of the latter, and pulled it away with a comic howl. Nina began to laugh at the expression on his face.

"Haven't you any heart?" he asked, in mock indignation.

"Did it hurt?" asked Nina.

"Of course it did. There's no feeling there at all."

Nina took his hand in hers, and began to rub the fingers. For once, being safe in their little retreat, she was thinking of the pleasure of the moment, and not of the patriotic mission that hung over her head.

"When you forget to be on guard," whispered Don Diego, "your eyes are soft. You do love me a little, don't you?"

There was no need for Nina to answer. Her face told the story. Outwardly Don Diego pressed her to him. He kissed her again and again.

"Tell me that you love me," he demanded.

"I love you," she said, eyes half closed.

From overhead came the clumping sound of horses' hoofs. A cavalier was passing. They looked up.

"It was Napoleon, the Empress Josephine seated beside him. Beside the royal coach rode Major de Rougemont and a host of other aides."

Brought to her senses with a cruel jolt by sight of the ruler whom she felt to be her country's worst enemy, Nina leaped to her feet. It was almost noon. She must hurry.

"I have an engagement," she cried out. "I'd almost forgotten."

"You can't run away now -" pleaded Don Diego.

"Please, she begged, "I can't explain now. Just take this." She tore off her locket and gave it to him.

"I do love you. Just believe in me!" Headless of his further entreaties, she rushed away. Don Diego stood staring, a hurt look in his eyes.

When Nina reached the Major's rooms, he was all apologies. An emergency order had come through. He must set out for Spain at once. It was the matter of the international conference they had mentioned before. And their departure was postponed a few days.

Nina, playing every move with masterful care, contrived to make him feel that she could not bear to leave. While he sent the orderly out for his despatches, she sat down at the piano and began to hum a sentimental refrain. The Major, adjusting his dress uniform, was immensely flattered at thought of the conquest he had made.

Nina apparently absorbed in the listless mood of the song, was a tumult of excitement within. This was the crisis. If she let him get away, without finding out just why Napoleon was sending him to King Ferdinand, all was lost.

As she finished singing, he stood over her, drawn by her loveliness. "You know so many provocative songs!" he said.

"Do you like them?" she asked softly.

"I like everything about you," the Major replied. "Your voice... your hair... your lips. All I can think of is that I want to take you in my arms."

"Then perhaps I'd better go," Nina said teasingly.

The Major bent lower, speaking intimately, softly.

"If you knew how I'd looked forward to this day, I thought... tomorrow she'll be here... in this room. We'll have luncheon together. We'll be alone..."

"It could have been nice," Nina agreed.

"It will be nice," he corrected her, passionately.

"I hope so. But sometimes... when a mood is broken..."

"Don't say that Nina," he pleaded. "You're making it so difficult for me to leave."

There was a knock at the door. The Major looked up, annoyed. He frowned, knowing he must leave. The Major opened the door, revealing a young aide. In the aide's hand were two despatches. He saluted, presenting them to his superior. The Major accepted them rather reluctantly.

"Anything else sir?" the aide asked.

"My escort; are they ready?"

"They're coming up the street now, sir."

"Thank you," and left. Slowly the Major closed the door. He turned to Nina. She had moved over beside the window, where his despatch case and hat lay on the table.

"That means you have to leave now!" Nina asked.

"Yes." The Major picked up his despatch case. Just as he was about to put the papers into it, Nina took it from him. To the Major, the gesture implied that she was reluctant to have him start so soon.

"Let me do that," she suggested, engagingly.

With a smile, he handed it to her. She stood in front of him so that his back was to the light that streamed in from the window. Putting the strap of the despatch case over his head, she adjusted it on his shoulder, meantime smiling at him. He watched her, enthralled at her lovely nearness, as her arms went around his neck. Adjusting the case, she turned to put her despatches in their proper place. Still smiling, she took them from him. He watched her adoringly, flattered by the attention. As she opened the case, she looked at them and made a way face.

"These things! I ought to hate them," she said naively. "They're the things that's really coming between us, aren't they?"

She moved still closer to him, looking up into his face, her lips near his. Overwhelmed, oblivious for the moment of anything but her and her tantalizing proximity, he held her close to him.

"Nothing can come between us, Nina," he whispered. "We'll be here together... in this room, three days from now. Promise me that."

"I promise," Nina said softly.

He kissed her passionately. Nina's arms went around him. As he leaned down, kissing her again and again, she lifted the papers in her hand behind his back, holding them up against the strong light. From outside came the sound of horses' hooves on cobblestones as the Major's escort drew up before the house. Panicked, Nina held the papers against the sunlight. Through one of them she saw, all too clearly, the words:

"Order of Arrest."

Over 1,000 See Final Showing Of Auto Exhibit At Fieldhouse

Weather Conditions Fail To Interfere With Big Attendance

Approximately 1,300 persons attended the final auto showing at the fieldhouse last night despite icy thoroughfares and a biting cold wind from the northwest. The feature stage attraction was a style show by Willard's apparel shop.

The total attendance for the three-day show is estimated at 3,400. Thursday night registered the peak with 1,500 attending.

This was the fourth annual auto show to be staged in Iowa City. It is sponsored each year by the local Lions club.

Girl Models Steal Show

Feminine Costumes Attract Attention At Local Auto Show

By SUSAN RUNNER

Feminine streamlines stole the show from the cars last night (but then, don't they always?) as 19 of Iowa City's prettiest girls modeled costumes for every occasion at the Lions' club auto show.

Marion Cornell, A3 of Milwaukee, Wis., displayed what the well-dressed equestrienne will wear this season. Miss Cornell wore a riding outfit of brown checked coat and brown jodhpurs. A brown vest, yellow shirt and brown felt hat completed the costume.

Wintry winds may blow, but any girl will feel snug and warm in a snow suit, especially one as smart as the suit modeled by Harriet Grimes. The grey, hip-length, fitted jacket had a red hood and trimming. Black ski trousers and red and black mittens harmonized with the jacket.

Louise Vanderlinden modeled a striking blue satin pajama ensemble. The double-breasted outer coat was fitted at the waist and flared, repeating the flare of the inner, shorter coat. They were worn over full trousers.

Going south for the winter? Then you'll want the white silk cruise model that Margaret O'Connor wore. The dress was two-piece with a full-pleated skirt. Embroidery in blue on the belt, patch pockets and collar accented the white silk.

Alice McCollister, A2 of Iowa City, wore a stunning rust and beige rabbit wool dress. The hip-length jacket was of beige with chic horizontal banding to match the rust-colored skirt.

Cellophane trimming is the newest thing, as Katherine Kraft, A4 of Des Moines, demonstrated by modeling an old gold silk dress with a bolero jacket. Cellophane accented the sleeves and formed the revers of the jacket.

Among the sumptuous fur coats that were shown was a smart brown Canadian beaver coat in a box design, modeled by Betty Prochnow, A2 of Davenport.

Black Persian lamb is always at the peak of style these days, and Miss O'Connor displayed an especially becoming model. The coat was fitted at the waist with a snug belt to accentuate the flare of the skirt. Full sleeves and a turned-up collar added their note of chic.

In a final dash of splendor the style show closed with a display of evening dresses and wraps.

Virginia Morris, A1 of Des Moines, wore a hyacinth blue satin gown with a cerise margot velvet flower and sash. Her wrap was a hip-length model of black martin.

Mrs. Stewart E. Wilson wore an unusual jacketed restaurant suit of black satin with velvet and net open-work trimming on the bodice of the dress. The only accent was an emerald and rhinestone clip at the V-neck.

Black chiffon over pink satin is a breathtaking combination. Helen Ries, A2 of Iowa City, wore a formal of these materials built on Grecian lines with a shirred bodice. A clip at each corner of the square neckline added a final smart touch. The wrap was a black velvet cape.

The effectiveness of quilted red velvet for an evening cape was illustrated by Ruth Ludwison. She wore the cape over a black net gown trimmed with a matching red flower.

Schott Reports Theft of Car

While Earl Schott was attending the Lions club auto show in the fieldhouse, his car, parked in the lot south of the building, was stolen between 8 and 9 p.m. yesterday.

Schott's car is a 1929 Buick sedan. The body is blue with black fenders. The car bore 1937 Iowa license plates 52-4028. The report of the theft was broadcast over Iowa City police radio station KAWP and the Iowa state police network.

Paul Robeson has decided to abandon the concert stage.

AROUND THE TOWN

Skeptical

A brief note in yesterday's mail reporting, reticently enough, that one of the screen's most talented feminine stars has a brother who's a senior medic here. . . "I cannot give names," the note reports, "because neither the brother nor sister wish it to become known—each thinking it would detract from the other's career." . . . I'm skeptical, but it's a good story.

And today I'm off for Lincoln and tomorrow's tustle, with my own bet being for as near a tie as Iowa has seen this year. . . If the winds are blowing rightly, there's a chance for victory, seems to me.

Modest

Modesty must surely be a quality of greatness. . . J. B. Priestley reported to me he would rather have written Willa Cather's "A Lost Lady" than any book that's come out since the World War, a period that encompasses his own "The Good Companions."

His first article, the author reported, was published in a London newspaper when he was 16, and he celebrated the occasion by getting very "drunk" on a bad five-cent cigar. . .

Of all the remarks passed in our tete-a-tete, none interested me more than Priestley's reasons for the apparent lack of good art in Europe these days. . .

In literature, in painting, in acting, in any of the fine arts, the real masterpieces are being turned out by men either older or younger than himself—43, Priestley said. . . Those who would have been producing these days were killed in the World War. . .

Take a million of a country's finest young men, physically and mentally, and you haven't much left he pointed out. . . And the situation is the same all over Europe. . .

"Yet," he declared, "they're getting ready to do it all over again. We never learn anything except by doing it. I can tell you another war may end the world, but you'll still go into fight and find out for yourself."

Awakening!

I'm told Professor Ensign had an unhappy awakening about college students on Monday. . . Seems Ensign called Iowa Union regards a ticket for the Priestley lecture, but the desk woman misunderstood, thought he was calling about a Spinsters Spree duet and reported, "They're going fast. You'd better hurry down and get one. There won't be any left in an hour."

So Professor Ensign flew from his office, down the union hill, thinking pleasant thoughts about the higher standards of university students. . . On the way he met Prof. Baldwin Maxwell who, hearing the tale, hurried with him. . .

When the two got to the door, found the long line of co-eds waiting tickets, Ensign decided, in a mellow mood, to forgive all his

Art Sheppard Queries Iowa Citizens at Auto Show

Art Sheppard, WMT radio announcer, (above) was one of the main attractions at the Iowa City Lions club's fourth annual automobile show which closed a successful three-night performance last night. Sheppard, a popular radio "question man" went through his routine Wednesday night when approximately 1,500 persons attended. He is shown here asking Iowa Citizens questions which were broadcast over the public address system in the fieldhouse.

Today With WSUI

What does the foggy city of London look like to an Englishman? Norman Felton, U of England, will give a glimpse of English life when he is interviewed by Derelle Atkinson, A3 of Des Moines, on the Through the Airlines program this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Leading the Parade of Events tonight at 8 o'clock will be a dramatization of the rescue of the crew of Tzeny Chandris, Greek freighter which sank off the coast of Cape Hatteras this week. Under the direction of Wayne Crew, A4 of Des Moines, 15 students will present the review of the news of the week.

Arthur Connelly, A2 of Moline, Ill., bass, will present tonight's students who skipped their early classes to obtain a lecture ticket, and Maxwell agreed. . .

The shock of finding the lecture tickets untouched and that the girls were awaiting dance admissions is still bothering Professor Ensign, I hear. . .

Seemed to me it was a brilliant Roosevelt coup to have Jim Farley's men distribute the unemployment blanks. . . Farley probably has made more men for more jobs than any man in the administration. . .

It's a little embarrassing for the republicans, of course, but Farley already knew they don't have jobs. . .

There's just one thing hopeful in the present international mess—the bombings, the killing and all. . . The newsreel and news shots of the Chinese bombings in China take so much of the glamour out of the whole proceedings. . . Will the thrill of it all be as great when the soldier discovers he's just out to bomb a noon-day crowd of shoppers or a few old men who are trying to hurry away from it all?

Stewarts Hosts To Siegs Here This Week End

President and Mrs. Lee Paul Sieg of the University of Washington, Seattle, will be house-guests of Prof. G. W. and Dr. Zella White Stewart, 1010 Woodlawn this week end.

President Sieg was formerly a professor in the physics department here and later became professor of physics and dean of the liberal arts college and the graduate school of the University of Pittsburgh.

They will be entertained by President and Mrs. Eugene A. Gilmore at a luncheon tomorrow. Professor and Dr. Stewart will entertain President and Mrs. Sieg at a formal dinner tomorrow evening at Iowa Union. Old friends of President and Mrs. Sieg will be guests at the dinner party.

A tea will be given for Mrs. Sieg at Dr. Stewart's home tomorrow afternoon. President and Mrs. Sieg are both alumni of the university. President Sieg was inaugurated President of the University of Washington in 1934.

Senior R. O. T. C. Officers Induct Junior Cadets

Junior officers were welcomed into advanced R.O.T.C. by senior officers at the annual induction ceremony under the auspices of the Cadet Officers club in Iowa Union last night.

The candidates for honorary cadet colonel were also presented to the officers. They are Betty Braverman, A4 of Iowa City; James Savery, A4 of Atlantic; Adele Anderson, A4 of Honey Creek, and Madge Jones, A4 of Cedar Rapids. Advanced military students will elect the university woman who will be presented at the Military Ball in January.

Charles Probst, A4 of Belmond, presented the challenge to junior officers. The acceptance was given with a pledge by Donald Neider, C3 of Iowa City. The junior officers were installed and took the oath of allegiance to the flag. Faculty speakers at the ceremony were Col. George F. N. Dailey, professor of military sci-

District Judge Rules Against Seizing Money

Judge Harold D. Evans, upon the motion of County Attorney Harold Vestermark in Johnson County district court, yesterday dismissed the information filed by the county attorney to confiscate $159.98 taken from Dennis O'Brien and Francis Pooler following their arrest last spring by Cedar Rapids police.

The money, allegedly taken in an Iowa City country club burglary, has been in the possession of Sheriff Don C. McComas, who today turned the sum over to the clerk of court.

In dismissing the information, Judge Evans ordered the clerk of court to pay Attorney D. C. Nolan, representing O'Brien, $49.63, the amount taken from O'Brien at the time of his arrest. Attorney F. Murphy was authorized to receive $110.95 from the clerk as Pooler's representative. Both O'Brien and Pooler are now serving sentences in Illinois.

Iowa Debaters Participate in 2 No-Decision Meets

Two University of Iowa debaters participated in two non-decision debates this week, according to an Associated Press report from Chicago last night.

In a debate with University of Chicago men yesterday morning, Addison Hickman, A4 of Council Bluffs, and Clair Henderlider, A2 of Onawa, argued with Benum Fox and Luther Bird Ell, both Chicago university students.

Wednesday night the Iowa men participated in a practice debate at Northwestern university. The question in both debates was, "Resolved that the several states should adopt the unicameral system of legislation."
