F. D. R. Charges Attempt Made To Buy Defeat

Claims Reorganization Bill Foes Tried To 'Purchase' Votes

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — President Roosevelt's charge that unnamed persons tried to "purchase" defeat of his government reorganization bill by sending a flood of telegrams to senators stirred up a storm of protest today from senate opponents of the measure.

Gray-haired Senator Johnson (R-Cal), indignation ringing in his voice, asserted the president had "reflected" on all who voted against the bill.

"This shows on the part of the president a complex — a deep disrespect of the senate," he shouted. "It justifies every single word said here against the bill."

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) joined in the criticism of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks.

Senator Lewis (D-Ill) hastened to say he could not conceive that the president meant what some senators believed he meant.

Wheeler, saying he had received telegrams opposing the bill from the American Federation of Labor, the Railroad Brotherhoods, officials of the Veterans bureau in Montana and farm organizations, asked:

"Does the president mean that those organizations purchased the votes of United States senators?"

Johnson brought up charges, made during debate on the measure, that the administration had used pressure on some senators for a favorable vote, promising them state projects.

"Did the president mean that we could be purchased only by promises of projects in our particular states?" he asked.

Then Wheeler remarked that "certain projects" won administration approval while the reorganization bill was pending in the senate, Senator Minton (D-Ind) asked him to name some.

"There was one project in the state of Idaho, for $1,000,000," Wheeler replied.

Domestic Peace Seems Doomed

Czech Premier's Plans Are Ridiculed By Pro-Nazis

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, March 30 (AP) — Premier Milan Hodza's attempt to bring about domestic peace in Czechoslovakia through a "minority statute" to meet the just claims of each of the many nationalities composing the state will fail, if one may judge from the present tense atmosphere.

To harmonize the wishes and aspirations of Konrad Henlein's Sudeten (pro-Nazi) Germans with the national exigencies he conceived by the Czech government is like squaring the circle.

In the Sudeten camp where this correspondent conferred at length, Hodza's proposed "minority statute" was ridiculed.

"We want a real appeasement within the Czechoslovak state," a spokesman said, "but his cannot be done by merely qualifying existing minority laws as Hodza proposes."

Make Demands
"We demand first of all that communal elections shall be held. The last took place in 1930. They should take place every fifth year. Communal elections now would be a show-down as to who is who. Then after these elections have been held, let the country be re-districted according to language and nationality."

A high official of the Czech government said:
"We have lived side by side with the Germans for centuries and know that somehow we just must get along with each other. We are ready to give the Germans in our borders every cultural, linguistic and proportionate political representation. We expect, however, loyalty to our state. That loyalty, we fear is not always apparent."

50,000 Chinese Fight Savagely To Hold Newly-Gained Ground

Ten Miles of Railway Becomes Object Of Contention

SHANGHAI, March 31 (Thursday) (AP) — Ten miles of a narrow-gauge railroad today became one of the most bitterly contested battlefields of the Chinese-Japanese war.

Along that rail stretch, from Lincheng on the north — south Tientsin-Pukow line to Taiherchwang, only 20 miles north of the vital east-west Lunglei, some 50,000 Chinese fought savagely to hold a recently gained advantage.

Japanese dispatches admitted the three months' drive against the Lunglei area separating conquered portions of north and central China had met "stiff resistance."

Naval Bombing Plane Crashes at Sea Off Waianae; Fear Loss of Five Lives

HONOLULU, March 30 (AP)—A naval bombing plane crashed at sea today with a probable loss of five lives, lending a note of tragic realism to a great mock battle for the control of Hawaii.

Flying low in a heavy rain squall, the big twin engine fighter crashed off Waianae, on the northwest side of Oahu, principal island of the Hawaiian group.

Witnesses said the plane struck at tremendous speed. Seven men were aboard. Three of them apparently succeeded in climbing out on a wing of the partially submerged wreck.

One of these, Radioman G. J. Milles of Wilmette, Ill., swam 150 yards to shore. H. F. Bartz, aviation machinist's mate of Houston, Tex., was washed ashore unconscious and taken to a hospital. Officers said he would recover.

Aviation Cadet W. H. Lear, Navigation Pilot E. I. Windham and Radioman V. A. Luciana, who has relatives in Baltimore.

It was the second of the big long-range bombing planes to be lost at sea during the maneuvers and the fifth of its kind wrecked in Pacific naval operations this year, with an indicated total death toll of 24.

Senators said all were treated from one bottle which apparently had become contaminated. They expressed fear other patients also had been given injections from the same bottle, but had not determined how many.

The Orange county medical association, state board of health, American medical association and federal food and drug administration joined in an inquiry. Coroner Eugene Duckworth called a jury "of leading citizens" into session. Autopsies were ordered.

When the jury met tonight, however, Coroner Duckworth informed the jurors the undertaker had refused to wait for autopsies and already had embalmed the six bodies. Duckworth said he had instructed the hospitals to hold the bodies of any other victims if there should be additional deaths.

Dr. T. A. Neal of Orlando said the injections were administered from a bottle of fluid, called Ensol, at his clinic. He said 10,000 injections had been given through the clinic in two and a half years "with remarkable success and with no previous ill effects."

He said he believed the serum in the one bottle was contaminated.

House Upholds Inquiry Group

Votes TVA Inquiry; Resolution Returns To Senate

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The house voted overwhelmingly today for a congressional investigation of the Tennessee valley authority and private utility companies serving the TVA region.

Approval was given a senate resolution authorizing creation of an inquiry committee of five senators and five representatives. The measure went back to the senate, however, for action on amendments intended primarily to remove any restrictions on the scope of the investigation.

The big power and conservation development in the Tennessee river basin will be the first agency established by the Roosevelt administration to be subjected to a congressional inquiry.

Not once, in more than four hours of debate, did a member rise to oppose the investigation, although some phases of it were subjected to criticism.

Before the final vote, Republican Leader Snell was shouted down on a proposed amendment to remove private power companies from the field of inquiry.

The house also rejected an amendment by Representative Barin (R-N. Y.) to increase the investigating appropriation from $50,000 to $250,000. Chairman O'Connor (D-N. Y.) of the rules committee said he believed $50,000 would be adequate "to start with."

Insurgent Commanders Claim Capture of Lerida Is Certain

Yague's Troops Get Ahead By Encircling City

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), March 30 (AP)—Spanish insurgent commanders said tonight that the capture of Lerida, key city in the drive to Barcelona, was imminent despite stiff resistance of government forces.

The insurgents announced that Gen. Juan Yague's troops had arrived at the gates of Lerida and were encircling the historic city, virtually deserted by its civilian population.

Plants Blown Up
Dispatches said electric plants inside the city had been blown up by the government defenders and that a new defense line had been established 10 miles east of Lerida — from Balaguer to Borjas Blancas.

Insurgent patrols attempting to penetrate Lerida met fierce resistance from government forces barricaded inside the ancient walls.

Offense Rolls On
Despite government efforts to stiffen resistance in the Catalonian border region and a government counter-offensive in the mountain country west of Teruel, the insurgent offensive rolled steadily toward the Mediterranean.

Its object was to add Catalonia, Spain's northeastern corner, to insurgent-conquered northern and western Spain, and bring a quick end to the civil war.

Military observers believed General Yague's central army and the northern force moving eastward from Barbastro would concentrate on smashing government troops defending Lerida, the "gateway" to Barcelona, while the southern corps pushed due east through Gandesa toward Tarragona.

Tarragona, government military base and seaport 50 miles southeast of Lerida, is linked to that besieged city by a highway running through relatively open country.

Fred Snite Jr. to Celebrate 800 to Attend Charity Party in Observance Of Second Year in Iron Lung

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 30 (AP) — Fred B. Snite Jr., still smiling after two years in an iron lung, will observe tomorrow night the second anniversary of his confinement — with a gay charity party featuring a boxing show.

Young Snite invited 800 persons, including members of the exclusive committee of one hundred, to attend and contribute to Chinese charities. He was stricken with infantile paralysis while on a tour of China.

Snite's father said he had arranged the program mainly so the youth could see a sports event for the first time since he became ill.

Workmen erected a boxing ring and bleachers today among the palms in the Snite patio. In addition to five regular bouts, a Negro battle royal will end with the contestants diving into a flour barrel for half dollars.

Several night club entertainers will appear, with a male chorus from the University of Miami glee club and a drum and bugle corps.

Federals Hear Whitney Facts

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Richard Whitney, suspended Wall street broker, testified today that his brother, George Whitney, was "aghast" and "terribly disturbed" at learning he had been using securities of the stock exchange gratuitously last January that he go out of business.

Whitney previously had told of borrowing almost $3,000,000 on unsecured loans from his brother, George, a partner in J. P. Morgan and company.

Continuing his testimony before Irwin Kurtz, federal bankruptcy referee, Whitney told of borrowing hundreds of thousands of dollars from one bank to repay another. These loans, which ranged from $100,000 to $500,000 each, were secured by "high grade" collateral, were executed every few days over a period of four months.

U. S. Demands Compensation For Expropriated Oil Lands

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The United States called upon Mexico today to give "fair, assured and effective" compensation for American oil properties expropriated by the Mexican government.

Secretary of State Hull issued a statement acknowledging Mexico's right to expropriate the properties, but insisting on full compensation not only for the oil properties but also for some $80,000,000 worth of American farm lands seized in recent years.

The value of the oil properties has been estimated unofficially at more than $400,000,000. Thus Mexico may be called upon to pay something like $500,000,000 for all the property seized.

Hull's statement said the United States has "on numerous occasions and in the most friendly manner pointed out to the government of Mexico that, in accordance with every principle of international law, of comity between nations and of equity, the properties of its nationals, are required to be paid for by compensation representing fair, assured and effective value to the nationals from whose properties were taken."

Out of Step Senator Davis Attacks New Deal Policies

YORK, Pa., March 30 (AP)—Senator Davis (R-Pa) criticized tonight the administration's "reform psychology which has led the reformers to attempt to change every one and everything but themselves."

In a speech for the Foreman's club, he asserted "I never yet have heard a new dealer confess in full and open fashion that this administration has made any mistakes. I have heard them say that business men are rogues and rascals, that prices are too high and then that prices are too low, that tariff is too high, and that the government appropriations for relief are too small, that tax dodgers must be punished and much more."

"But I have yet to hear a genuine new dealer admit that the new deal has knocked the market down more sharply than at any time on record, that 20 billion dollars have been spent and no relief from unemployment yet in sight, or that the people of this country are in a greater state of fear and panic than at any time in the last quarter of a century."

Under questioning, Whitney said the financial condition of his firm was not generally known in "the street" until the day of the bankruptcy.

U. S. Demands Compensation For Expropriated Oil Lands

Insists Mexico Atone For Past Seizure Of Farm Lands

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The United States called upon Mexico today to give "fair, assured and effective" compensation for American oil properties expropriated by the Mexican government.

6 Persons Die; 78 Injured in Tornado

PEKIN, Ill., March 30 (AP)—A devastating tornado swept across central Illinois today, leaving at least six dead, 78 injured and extensive property damage in its wake.

The death-dealing winds whipped up the Illinois river valley between 4 and 5 p.m., accompanied by heavy rain, hail and a severe electrical storm.

Two hundred and fifty houses were wrecked by the twister. The fire station was demolished. The Chicago Northwestern railroad roundhouse, and depot were ruined and 150 box cars and passenger coaches were strewn along the tracks like match sticks.

A farmer was crushed in the wreckage of his barn near Astoria and another met death on a farm between Timewell and Mt. Sterling.

A swath a half mile wide was cut in south Pekin, nestled in the river valley five miles south of here.

Lotis A. Breeden, a resident of the village of 500 population, gave a graphic account of the disaster. He related:

"I was standing in the door of the community building when the sky suddenly got black. I noticed it was 4:10 p.m. It started to rain and hail. Then the wind started. The whole thing didn't seem to last long. "I ran for cover when the windows of the building were blown in. I was never so scared in my life. The first thing I saw when it was all over was that the railroad depot had been wrecked and the South Pekin school blown down."

Deputy Coroner Glenn Gumm of Peoria county, driving a quarter of a mile from South Pekin, saw the tornado strike the unsuspecting community.

"I saw the top story of a large building ripped into the air and carried away," he said. "Then I saw another building catch fire."

A Link With Other Nations

TODAY world history is being made in Europe. At the same time, it is being preserved, not through textbooks, but by the receiving and recording sets of the university's new phonetics laboratory.

As prominent figures in the European picture speak to their people, their messages, combined with the vigor of their intonation and delivery, are being stored away for the use of University of Iowa history students of the future.

This is only one of the many functions of the new laboratory opened recently in East Hall. Established primarily as an aid to language study, it is to be used in order that native peculiarities of a language may be sensed and acquired by students. In this capacity it will also be available to dramatic arts students interested in acquiring correct accents for use in their productions.

As a supplement to the work of students in these departments, the laboratory, the only one of its kind in America, is a definite advance in progressive education. Knowledge is often more easily and readily obtained if it is offered in some manner other than the textbook. This new feature of the university offers an adequate opportunity for this method of education to be practiced on the campus.

On top of this factor is the part the laboratory will play in making education interesting and vital, as well as practicable. Language and history sometimes tend to seem dead and forbidding to America's youth. However, when the student can connect himself with the language in its native environment and the history in its enactment, he can sense the living, vibrant qualities of both of them.

Offering advantages as well as inspiration to the student, this new laboratory is an evidence of the university's desire to make middle-western education progressive, real and comprehensive.

What Will Happen To Schuschnigg?

MOST disturbing news to come from Germany since her not-unexpected seizure of Austria is that which tells of frequently voiced demands by Nazi officials that Austrian ex-Chancellor Schuschnigg be tried for treason of some sort or other.

Even the jailing of world-famous Sigmund Freud, along with hundreds of other Austrian anti-Nazi and Jewish notables, does not have the significance which a trial of Schuschnigg may possess.

It is certain that if the Nazis are brazen enough to try Schuschnigg on a charge of "treason," they will also be brazen enough to sentence him to death—a circumstance which would do much to dispel the growing belief that Hitler's actions may, after all, be guided by a certain under-the-surface shrewdness which keeps him from committing any international outrages unless he is certain no retaliation will result.

So far the facts have been such as to support this kind of reasoning. The moves by which Hitler has violated nearly every kind of international agreement have been exceptionally well timed, and have only shocked a trembling world, not aroused it to action.

But to accuse a man of treason, as Schuschnigg is being accused, because he loved his country and struggled to keep it independent, and to try him on such trumped-up charges for nothing but sheer personal spite would show a lack of responsibility, a type of thinking that should warn the world that the Nazis have been lucky, not smart, in the past and that the future may well bring something different.

The Future—Bound in Glass

That the "classy" clothes of the near future will likewise be "glassy" clothes is the prediction of those who are familiar with current developments in the American glass industry. Fantastic as it may seem, glass-makers today are producing (out of yarn spun from threads of glass) fire-resisting fabrics "soft as cotton, sheer as silk, tough as canvas"; material which may be cut, sewn, woven or knitted into eminently practical garments as well as a wide variety of useful articles.

Already the unprocessed glass fibers, drawn 20 times finer than a human hair, are being used with amazing success and increasing popularity as chemical filters and as electrical insulation. In addition to being fire-resistant, glass fiber is proof against most acids, can withstand temperature four times as high as can ordinary cloth, and is vermin-proof and highly flexible. Countries such as Germany that formerly found it necessary to import asbestos for insular uses will now be able to use their own sand in producing glass fiber (by means of American-made machinery, of course) for this very same purpose.

Meanwhile, glass table cloths, curtains and awnings will serve to reduce fire hazard in theaters and on ships, say the glass-makers, and up-to-the-minute wearing apparel will be tailored of the same material. Houses built of glass bricks have already advanced beyond the experimental stage.

All the next generation needs to get along is, as always, plenty of sand.

SCIENCE AND THE DICTATORS

No true scientist thinks of himself or his country when he pursues his researches. Newton and Darwin were not concerned with benefiting England when they evolved their respective theories of gravitation and natural selection. The men who are now blasting atoms open in the most dramatic and powerful attempt ever made to discover the constitution of matter are not swayed by patriotism. In science alone are national hatreds and prejudices forgotten. Its votaries constitute a kind of democratic brotherhood with an unwritten constitution which needs no supreme court to construe it, and which all obey instinctively and joyously.

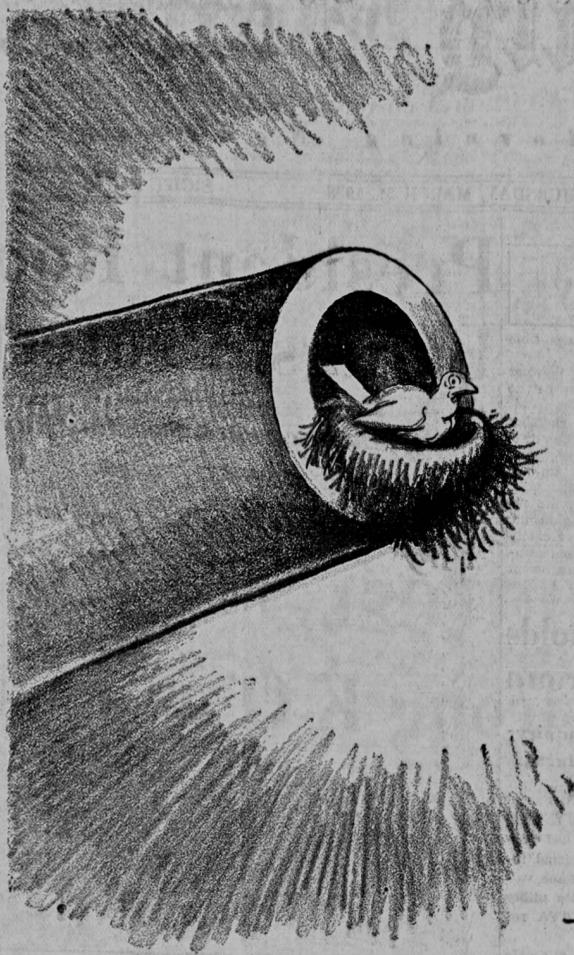

Now comes the annual report of the Rockefeller Foundation to cast a shadow over this once bright picture of international cooperation. Usually a record of achievement and hope, the report reflects the despair with which many of us regard the condition of totalitarian Europe. Because of the Foundation's international character it was manifestly impossible to name countries in which science is either stagnating or actually retrograding.

Out of the universities of Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan no young men are emerging fit to receive and pass on the torch that has been kept alight for the centuries that have elapsed since Galileo and Newton gave science its great impetus. And this applies both to the natural and the social sciences. It is indeed "profitless" to spend money on research in a totalitarian state if scientists and scholars are shackled because their findings may clash with the ideology of the ruling dictator. Not in two thousand years have governments exercised so complete a control of human thinking and behavior as in these black years.

Mr. Fostick does not say so, but it is plain enough that totalitarian countries are not likely to receive more Rockefeller money for research after present commitments have been fulfilled. Democracies should profit by a failure to encourage what Mr. Fostick aptly calls "the search for truth by eager and skeptical minds." Never has it been possible to identify a discovery nationally—to say, merely by looking at it, that it was made by an Englishman, a German, an Italian. But it may yet be possible to infer a century hence that a scientific discovery of our unfortunate time must have been made in a democratic country merely from its far-reaching character, its sweep, its influence on philosophy, the arts, and the human outlook in general. For science as we know it cannot flourish in any but a free environment.

Alcoholic Beverages Potentially Fattening Says Dr. Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Persons on a reduction diet want to reduce the easy way, but if they stick on the diet they will not have to have recourse to magic. They all want to know certain things:

Alcoholic beverages: All alcoholic beverages are potentially fattening. Beer contains about 18 grams of carbohydrate a bottle, or 70 calories. Alcohol itself has a fuel value of 210 calories an ounce. A Dry Martini cocktail has 131 calories; an ordinary highball 150 calories; a glass of Sherry wine about 38 calories.

Exercise: It is not necessary to take exercise in order to augment a reducing diet. The diets we are giving furnish only about 700 to 1,000 calories a day, which is under the needs of an average adult body at ordinary activity. Exercise will help a little bit in reducing, but when it is remembered that it has been calculated that it requires only about 2,000 calories for a person of 150 pounds weight to climb Pike's Peak, it can be seen that exercise actually does not reduce by itself. It has the added disadvantage that it creates an appetite, which is already a plague to the reducer.

Catharsis: Dr. Guelpa of Paris advised active saline catharsis every day for reduction. Catharsis does not remove any fat, but Dr. Guelpa defended his recommendation on two grounds; first, it removes desire for food, and, second, it hastens the discharge of toxins. Experience, however, has shown that the cathartic method of reduction does not work in practice.

Diet for Friday (Fast Day) BREAKFAST: Grapefruit, black coffee.

DINNER: Vegetable soup (celery, cabbage, string beans and tomatoes with water, onion and salt); one serving of whitefish, flounder, cod, pompano or sole (all lean fish); sliced cucumber salad, black coffee.

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Milton Shubert and John Golden will not thank me for airing these private little didoes of their. But I am convinced they should be told because (a) they denote unselfishness, which is alien to Broadway, (b) they concern sums of money advanced which the men never expected to get back, and (c) they are about free men and free souls, who are not subservient to the almighty dollar. Shubert is a producer through which much of Broadway's entertainment is distilled. Not long ago a manuscript bobbed up that attracted his attention. It was not a good script; mechanically, it was much awry. But he liked the way the author wrote, and he decided the fellow needed more than anything else to familiarize himself with the theater. Sent to Plays So he sent for him. "No, I haven't seen very many plays," he admitted. "They cost money; I haven't much left over for entertainment." "Well," Shubert told him, "this play is no good, but you can write, and I think what you need is to learn the mechanics of the theater. And so I am going to send you to every play in town and to every opening for the rest of the season."

Different Angle John Golden's story is from a different angle, although it adds up the same way. A stranger walked into his office and told him he wanted to write a book. But the economic pressure was too much for him—it had him worried and down. Would Mr. Golden help him? Well, Golden had never seen the man. But he inquired about his habits, and he looked at part of the manuscript which the fellow had with him. "Come see me tomorrow," Golden said, and hurried out to lunch. Next day the young man returned to find a gruff Golden glaring at him from behind his desk. "Sit down," he said. "I've been thinking about you. In the South of France you can live for $15 or $20 a week. And it's quiet there and restful. Here's a steamship ticket and $500, and now I've got to go out. So long."

All this happened some time ago. However, it hasn't been so many months since the young man walked into Golden's office and placed $500 on the desk, in cash. He doesn't want his name or his book mentioned, and so it is withheld. But he never could have scored a bulls-eye without a friendly boost from John Golden.

HOLLYWOOD—The taboos that hang heavily over movie production grow steadily. In its task of pleasing everybody and offending none, Hollywood is finding it more and more difficult to make pictures the way it would like to make them. Practically heartbroken in his own picturesque way was Director William Wellman the other day. "For five years I've wanted to kill off an actor in this way," he said, "and I finally got it into the script of 'Men With Wings.' Fred MacMurray's an aviator, taken prisoner in Spain. He's facing a firing squad, right before his waiting grave, and he's given a chance to say his last words. He looks up at the sky, says, 'There's one thing I'd like to know—just what is this war all about?'" But Wellman's pet scene is out of the picture. Spain—one side or the other—might take offense. Or some of the people elsewhere who are "interested" in Spain. New Prexy Has Plans The Motion Picture Relief Fund has a new president—Jean Hersholt—and a new set-up under jurisdiction of Actors, Writers and Directors guilds. The fund, to help those within the industry down on their luck, has been operating with insufficient money, and Hersholt's first step will be a scheme to more than double the present intake. Clients of the fund will remain anonymous as before. The names of some of them—once great stars—would be startling if revealed. Movie sounds the microphone never picks up: the exploding of a theory; the dropping of an option; the breaking of a heart. Musical Cycle Waning It's happening again: the general soft-pedaling of the term "musical" applied to film productions. The studios are swinging quickly away from the vogue which dominated their output these past several years.

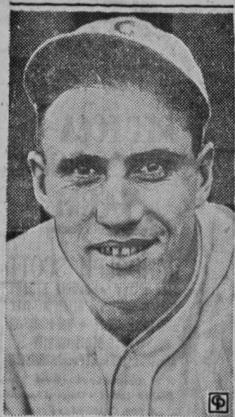

Know Your MAJOR LEAGUERS

PHILLIES Jimmy Wilson

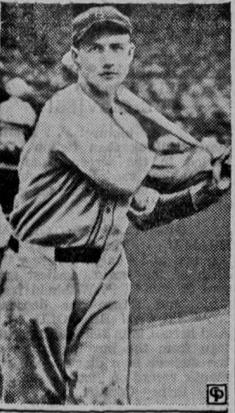

On Jimmy Wilson's shoulders falls the hard task of piloting the Philadelphia club of the national league this year in the senior loop pennant race which gets under way next month. Wilson, who shares the catching duties with Earl Grace for the Phils, is 37 years old, stands 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds. He bats and throws right handed. The lowly Phils have won only one National league pennant, that coming in 1915. They lost the World Series to the Boston Red Sox, four games to one.

Chuck Klein

Chuck Klein has been hitting the ball hard in exhibition games this year and will carry most of the Phil's batting punch when the regular season gets underway. Last year the outfielder had a batting average of .325. His lifetime average for 10 years in the majors is .340. Klein bats left handed and throws right handed. He was sold to the Cubs several years ago but was traded back to the Phillies after two years.

Bucky Walters

Bucky Walters will see a lot of action from the pitching mound this year. Walters is a reformed infielder, having played third base before Manager Wilson started using him as a hurler. Walters last year pitched in 37 games, winning 14 while losing 15. He ended the season with an earned run average of 4.76 for each nine inning game.

Bowler Rolls 717

CHICAGO, (AP) — A masterful 717 in singles competition yesterday by Joe Flieger of Chicago, served the dual purpose of placing him second in both the individuals and the all-events standing in the American bowling congress.

Past new planes will carry passengers from London to Paris in an hour this summer. The trip at present takes two hours and a quarter.

Mickelson Picks Giants to Repeat in National League

By PAUL MICKELSON
NEW ORLEANS, La., March 30 (AP) — Even if it is a "minor" outfit, the National league promises to come right back with another real big league flag race this summer with the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs setting the pace from flagfall to finish.

Like him or not, you've got to hand the oil and postes to Colonel William Harold Terry as a baseball manager. To this corner, his current edition of the Giants looks the strongest in five years and should beat the Cubs to wire after a blistering race with St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, Cincinnati (ah! fond memories!) and Philadelphia bringing up the rear in that order.

So, it looks like the old, old story — a third straight subway series between the Giants and Yankees who seem to be a cinch in their American league pasture where they eat on both sides of the fence. Another world series between the Giants and Yanks might be a sickening affair but such seems to be the probable musical score for October.

To a reformed prognosticator who has sworn to do his duty this year this is how the National league lineup looks with the hospitals almost empty and the boys ready to hit the trail:

NEW YORK: The Colonel again has his trump card — the best pitching staff in baseball. In Carl Hubbell, Cliff Melton and a marvelously improved Harry Gumbert he has a trio which can be depended upon to win almost every time they start. More than that Hal Schumacher looks like his old self again while Bill Lohrman, husky rookie up from Baltimore, seems to be the real goods. And with Mel Ott on third and Jim Rippe, Jo-Jo Moore and Hank Leiber comprising the outfield there should be enough power especially now that First Baseman Jack McCarthy is knocking down fences.

CHICAGO: The Cubs rate to have plenty of power and speed but their pitchers are as doubtful as Chicago weather. They've got some of the most promising rookies up this year in Infielder Steve Mesner and Outfielders Jim "Big Train" Asbell and Coaker Triplett but they still have to prove their mettle. Don't get this wrong. They'll be very hard to beat but the more experienced Giants with their pitching should do the trick.

ST. LOUIS: Great bunch of rookies and a reformed Dizzy Dean but hardly enough yet. The hitting should be the most murderous in the league but the defense, built up with misfits, and the pitching doesn't look good enough.

BOSTON: The Bees should be one of the steadiest clubs in the league with fine pitching, a splendid defense, but not enough hitting. They seem to have more than a good chance to crash first division for the first time since 1934.

PITTSBURGH: Disintegration seems to be written all over the

- Bitter Fight
- Going Up!
- Two Classes

There's a strange atmosphere in the fieldhouse these days. No more does the innocent bystander hear the friendly chatter between the members of the track team as they go through their paces in preparation for the coming outdoor campaign. The men run around the track with their lips tightly compressed. Even the best of jokes fails to bring so much as a smile to their faces. Grim determination, indeed fanatic determination, shows plainly on cin-

The cause for these unusual actions is not hard to discover if one can worm his way into the confidence of any of the cinder artists. The trouble all started last week when it was announced that two picked teams would run an exhibition mile relay race in the state high school indoor track and field meet Saturday. When the teams were picked the members of the two quartets started throwing friendly banter about as to their comparative strength.

The situation went from bad to worse to tragic and has now assumed all the aspects of a major war.

Here is an example. Bush Lamb and Johnny Graves, who will run on opposite teams, bet a small sum (one banana sundae) on the outcome of the race. Strong blasts of sarcasm fanned the blaze of anger to a white heat.

Says Graves—"No hurdler ever beat me in the 440 yet. I'll beat that Lamb guy by 20 yards."

Says Lamb—"Why Graves just got out of a sick bed. I can beat him when he's in the best of health, but when he's ready to fall to pieces anyway—poo poo."

And that is the way the fight goes on. Running on one team are Lamb, Ernie Grosser, co-captain Jimmy Lyle and Carl Teufel. On the other team are Graves, Fred Teufel, Ed McCollister and Milton Billig. Boards of strategy have been mapping out a campaign, each determined to outfox the other. In what order the men will race has not yet been announced. It probably won't be, either, until just before the race. The only thing for sure is that Lamb and Graves will run the same leg and you can take it from this corner — that is going to be one fine race.

Marathoner?

When Ernie Grosser came here as a freshman three years ago, he had aspirations to be a 220-yard sprint man. During his freshman competition he developed into the best quartermiler of the yearling crop so he changed his plans a bit. A sore leg kept him out of action last year but when he was able to work out he spent long hours mastering the longer hurdle races.

This year he shifted up to the half mile and turned in some fine performances, winning points for the Hawkeyes in that event in the Iowa-Chicago dual meet. Last week in the state quadrangular meet Ernie ran in the mile team race. At that rate he should be a strong contender for a place on the United States contingent to the 1940 Olympics as a marathon runner.

Congestion

Coaches who bring their track teams to the high school meet Saturday may be asked to vote on a proposal to split the annual affair into a class A and class B meet next year, it was learned yesterday.

This action is brought about by the heavy entries in this year's meet. More than 50 schools will be in the affair and at least 50 preliminaries will have to be run off Saturday afternoon and evening to determine the finalists for the 14 events in the meet.

Over 500 high school athletes have been entered in the meet and the congestion will crowd the annual show. Drawings in some of the events will be held Friday afternoon to straighten the matter out somewhat.

Add to that the 150 high school swimming stars who will be in Iowa City for the Y. M. C. A. meet in the Iowa pool and you have a goodly number of prospective Hawkeye athletes.

Pinehurst Golf Stars Advance

PINEHURST, N. C., March 30 (AP)—Favored players marched easily today into the quarter-finals of the north and south golf tournament for women. Six of the eight third round matches were decided by scores of 5 and 4 or better.

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, the defending champion and holder of the National title, eliminated Mrs. William Hamilton Jr., of Philadelphia, 5 and 4.

Intra-Squad Contest Rained Out

Lengthy Drill on Base-Sliding Replaces Scheduled Tilt For Hawkeye Baseball Candidates

Donning football pants, Coach Otto Vogel's University of Iowa baseball squad took advantage of the slippery grass yesterday and went through a long drill on the fine art of sliding. The scheduled Regular-Yannigan practice game was called off because of the rain.

After the lengthy sliding drill Vogel put an infield together and conducted a lesson in base-running and tagging of the base-runners. For the second straight night the infield that will probably start the Bradley game tomorrow was not intact, several of the regulars being absent.

Names Squad Tonight
Coach Vogel said yesterday that he will not name the squad that will leave in the morning for Peoria, Ill., until late tonight. On the basis of his choices in the intra-squad games so far this season, it is highly probable that five lettermen will start the first game of the season tomorrow.

Elmer Bratten, veteran left-handed first baseman, will probably be at first. Bratten's

The Bradley Tech Engineers opened their baseball season yesterday by dropping a hard-fought, 1-0, decision to the University of Illinois diamondmen. Iowa plays a two-game series with the Engineers this weekend.

consistent hitting and steady play at the initial bag in early season drills makes him look like an up-and-coming ball player.

Erwin Prasse, sophomore second baseman, although not hitting any too good until late, will probably get the edge over Vic Belger, a minor letter winner last year.

Andy Kantor, a big, fast sophomore, has been holding down the shortstop position in great style all season, while Capt. Eddie Kadell will see action at third base. Kadell's experience will probably give him the starting call over Jim George, a flashy sophomore who threatens to find a place in the Hawkeye infield.

Catcher Unknown
The starting catcher for the Bradley contest still remains in doubt. On the basis of selection and performance so far this season, Charles McClenahan, junior veteran, and Nile Kinnick, sophomore three-sport man, appear to be leading the field.

Two veterans, Bill Vogt and Art Manush, will very likely get the outer garden call along with Bill Kelly, sophomore grid star. All of the above outfielders have shown improvement in hitting during the last week.

Nine Hurlers
The list of pitchers on the Iowa squad includes: Ken Reid, Hal Haub, Howard Miller, Fred Hohenhorst, Matt Faber, Jim Cook, Bob Speedy, Keith Wymore and James Knipe.

City High Will Not Enter Team

Coach Francis Merten of City high indicated last night that he would not enter any of his track candidates in the state meet Saturday at the fieldhouse. Most of the men have not had enough experience and their records are not quite equal to state-wide competition.

DeWayne Justice netted the only points of the Little Hawks in the Mississippi Valley meet. The locals got a belated start in track this season, and most of the men have not been practicing long enough due to the Red and White's basketball season, prolonged because they won the sectional tournament.

Louis Batters Spar Mates In Wind-Up Drill

CHICAGO, March 30 (AP) — Champion Joe Louis gave three spar mates a terrific "bombing" today as he wound up heavy work in preparation for his heavyweight title bout at the stadium Friday night with Harry Thomas, the burly Minnesotan.

Before 400 spectators, Louis went six rounds in a manner which had onlookers predicting an early finish to the 15-round engagement, regarded as a "tuneup" for Joe's scheduled bout next summer with Max Schmeling.

Apparently irked by jibes tossed at him as he eased through previous drills, the Brown Bomber tore into his opponent with a vengeance. Using only a left hook, Louis smashed George Williams against the ropes and then caught him with another left which had the Chicago Negro out cold.

His next two sparring partners fared no better. Tom Jones of Chicago caught left and rights which had him helpless and George Nicholson of Yonkers, N. Y., took a neat lacing from start to finish.

The impression persisted that Louis will not toy with the hard punching but wild swinging Thomas, who has shown he can absorb punishment.

"Ah! he take no chances," said Joe as he lunged around before his drill, nattily attired in brown topcoat, hat and trousers, pale blue sports shirt with a maroon "bandana" tie and pale green sports coat. "He's strong, Ah know that, and Ah'll finish him soon's Ah can."

51 Schools Entered to Compete in State High School Track Meet Saturday

Five hundred and six performers representing 51 schools, the largest entry list ever to register for the state indoor high school track meet, will display their ability Saturday afternoon and evening in the Iowa fieldhouse.

Of the 506 individual competitors there will be only one returning athlete in the field that won an event in last year's classic.

Dubuque high's star half miler, Barsalou, who registered the fastest time in any section of the event will again be on hand.

The largest number of entrants to ever have enrolled for the meet before this year was in 1935 when 48 schools and 450 athletes participated.

Last year's attendance included 43 schools with 27 of them placing in the meet. This year's meet promises to make it tough for all competing teams as the 300 possible points will be greatly divided because of the great number of performers. Track observers have stated that besides being the largest meet in state history that Saturday's carnival will be one of the biggest in the middlewest. Davenport, runnerup, and East Des Moines, winner, of last year's meet, are expected to wage a battle again this year to determine the first place winner. Last year the two schools staged a heated battle that needed the final event on the program to decide who would come out on top.

Action will continue, except for an hour and a half at dinner time, from 2:30 in the afternoon until 10:30 Saturday night. Afternoon preliminaries include the 50-yard and 60-yard high and low hurdles, shot put and broad jump. Finals will be in the pole vault, 440-yard dash, with points in two sections, and the mile relay. About 40 races will be run off in the afternoon races and 30 on the evening program.

Additional entries Wednesday included Wilson of Cedar Rapids, 17; East Waterloo, 10; West Branch 8; Albia and West Waterloo five each.

Seven Final Bouts Yesterday In All-University Mat Tourney Conclude Intramural Wrestling

Wallace Decisions Beyer For Title in Heavy Division

All - university wrestling came to a close yesterday when championships were awarded to seven men at the field house. Five of the bouts were won by falls, the rest going to decisions.

Championships were evenly divided between the fraternity, Quad and dormitory leagues with two crowns going to each division and one going to the Town league.

The surprise match of the day came in the heavyweight class when Wallace of Whetstone house maintained an advantage over Beyer of Phi Delta Theta. Although Beyer outweighed Wallace he could not put his massive weight to any advantage. Wallace displayed some clever headwork by putting his agility to its best use and keeping away from the heavy arms of his opponent after gaining an early time advantage.

Peavey Wins Two
Sam Peavey, Gables representative, did double duty, wrestling two men in the course of the afternoon and winning both contests. Although his first match with Muhl of Delta Tau Delta went the full six minutes there was no doubt of the outcome with Peavey staying on top during the entire fracas. In his second match with Lundberg of the Quad he threw his fresher opponent in the last half minute of wrestling.

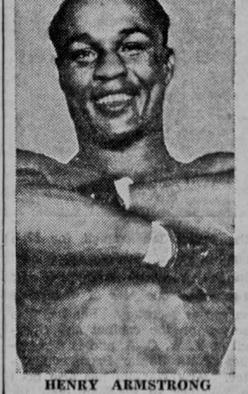

Louis George from the Quad scored the quickest victory of the afternoon, pinning Darwin Mayberry of Wilson house in 2:42.

McMahon Wins
Charles McMahon in the Quad league had a fairly close tussle with John Cunnick of Sigma Chi. McMahon was on top most of the way and won the decision.

Bob Tompkin, Pi Kappa Alpha, threw Harold Halpern of the Quad in 4:03. Tompkin was on the losing end of the fray for two minutes until he came from underneath to pin his man with a key-lock.

A wrist-lock converted into a key-lock also won the match for

State Y.M.C.A. Swimmers Will Compete Here

Some 150 swimmers and divers, from nine-year-olds to former college stars, will compete for state Y.M.C.A. championships in the University of Iowa's pool Saturday afternoon.

From eight to 10 teams will be represented in the finals with each of the 30 events to have the champion and runner-up from three district meets of last weekend in competition.

For the first time the swimming meet and the state high school indoor track and field meet have been scheduled for the same day and it will mean the greatest assemblage of athletes which has ever occurred in the fieldhouse. With the 500 track men, the total will go over the 650 mark.

With 30 events on the program, swimmers and divers will compete in four divisions according to age. Among the cities which will be represented are Des Moines, Waterloo, Ottumwa, Newton, Davenport, Burlington, Clinton and Marshalltown.

Golfers Ready For Opening Of Southern Meet

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30 (AP) —Leaders of American golf took warmup swings today for the Augusta national tournament, the all-star show featuring the only competitive appearance of Robert Tyre Jones Jr., ex-emperor of the fairways.

In none of the four past tournaments has Jones, who retired after his "grand slam" in 1930, come closer than a tie for 13th in competition that brings together a host of champions, past and present, and ranking stars of the winter parade.

As in previous years, Jones has managed to signalize a threat with pre-tournament sub-par rounds, but "putting jitters" and lack of hardness to competitive golf overtook him in actual play.

The Atlanta lawyer went out today and shot himself a nice 70, two under par, to rank well up with any who took advantage of the perfect weather.

The tournament, starting Friday, marks the end of the "winter trail" for golf's salaried legions and, after four of the events had been handicapped by very bad weather, it appeared the 1938 show might be favored by a break in conditions.

Negro Champ Stops Veteran In Fifth Round

Californian Flattens Foe For 30th Straight Triumph

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Henry Armstrong, the brown bolt of dynamite from Los Angeles, who holds the world's featherweight title, made another excursion into the lightweight ranks tonight and knocked out Lew Feldman, Brooklyn veteran, in the fifth round of their ten round bout in the New York Hippodrome.

Feldman, a veteran of the fist wars, who has fought three world's champions in his day, had lost two previous engagements by technical knockouts but had never been actually counted out until he ran into Armstrong tonight.

It was the 30th straight triumph for the sensational Californian, 28 of them by knockouts. Since January 1, 1937 only Aldo Spoldi, the Italian, and Baby Arizmendi, from Mexico have been able to go the distance with Henry.

Feldman was on the canvas twice tonight before he finally went there to stay in the fifth. Late in the opening round, Armstrong connected with a left to the stomach that sent the New Yorker reeling through the ropes. The referee had counted six before Lew pulled himself back into the ring and he took three more counts on his knee for a total of nine.

Nice Weather Scribes Agree on Only One Thing

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP) —Only item our southpaw baseball scouts seems to agree upon is that Dixie weather has been finest in years. . . . So good, in fact, that several club managers worry about their players being "over-trained." . . . New Orleans' Bill Keefe joins the chorus by wondering "what sort of competition the National league can furnish if the Giants win the 1938 pennant" . . . he adds: "Baseball is a mighty funny thing. . . . No one has yet been able to explain how the Boston Braves beat a team so powerful as the Athletics four games in a row (1914)." . . . Explanation: George (Svengali) Stallings, manager of "miracle" men, hypnotized 'A's.

Q. And A. Dept: How can Henry Armstrong avoid defending welter title (147 pounds) if he wins from Barney Ross and when he fights Lou Ambers for lightweight crown (135 pounds)? . . . A. Only by defying all known defending all known ring pre-erig precedent. . . . Where will Joe Louis-Max Schmeling fight be held? . . . A. In Yankee stadium, night of Wednesday, June 22. . . . How do you rate American league setup this year? . . . A. Like Snow White and the seven dwarfs. . . .

Top individual attractions of winter sports season, as viewed from Madison Square Garden sidelines: Sonja Henie, Hank Luisetti, and Henry Armstrong. . . . Most profitable indoor sports, per show in order: professional fights, ice carnivals, track meets, college basketball and pro hockey. . . . Garden has pocketed more money from boxing, since lessening promotion to Mike Jacobs, than it did operating ring shows on its own.

Pageant at Church Displays Shawls From Many Countries

Shawls from over the world were shown at the "Century of Shawls" pageant yesterday at the Methodist church. Mrs. C. W. Keyser, narrator, described each shawl as it appeared on the program. Mrs. Maud Whedon Smith was the accompanist. The "Century of Shawls" was written by Mrs. Alda P. Hartley of West Branch.

A Cashmere shawl from India, shown first, was so fine and soft that it could be drawn through a finger ring. The first part of the program was of sentimental shawls, beginning with the baby's shawl and representing each stage of life to grandmotherhood.

The second part of the program showed shawls of many lands. They were from each large country in Europe, as well as the American Indian.

After the program there was a tea and shawl display in the basement of the church. The shawls there were not modeled in the program.

In the following paragraphs The Daily Iowan presents an article written by Mrs. Keyser in connection with the pageant. By MRS. C. W. KEYSER Gifts for the "officer's lady" led to the popularity of shawls in midlady's wardrobe for almost 100 years. During the period when French and English armies were contending in Egypt, many an "officer's lady" back home received beautiful Indian, Persian or Turkish shawl as a gift.

About 1820 an enterprising manufacturer of Scotland began making imitations of the beautiful Oriental shawls in the town of Paisley. The first "Paisley" shawls, as we know them by their size and special designs, were done by needle-embroidery. Later they were made by actually weaving in the pattern. In 1834 the shawl had become so popular that the output of Paisley shawls alone amounted to $5,000,000.

Every woman coveted a Paisley shawl if she could not own a real Oriental one. The Queen and ladies of nobility loaned to the manufacturer their choicest specimens for models of design and soon, in response to popular demand, an inexpensive "printed" Paisley was offered on the market.

It was said the factory girl bought a gay shawl on credit, wore it Sunday, put it in pawn Monday morning and took it out again Saturday night for another Sunday's wear until she had wasted money that would have bought her a good wardrobe. (An interesting by-product of the shawl-print industry is the gaudy bandana handkerchief.)

Paisley Shawls During the reign of Queen Victoria the popularity of Paisleys began to wane. The Queen made personal efforts to keep alive the fashion and stimulate trade, but because of periodic economic depressions and midlady's desire for a change, Paisley shawls were no longer popular by 1880.

The town of Paisley would have been permanently bankrupt had it not been for the rise of the thread industry. Real Paisley shawls are more numerous today in Europe and America than Cashmere shawls, but each year they are becoming more scarce. No longer are they used commonly as a wrap, but are exhibited as rare and beautiful wall coverings.

The Cashmere shawl, which is also made of wool, is a much older product of the Orient. Unlike the Paisley, the texture and quality of the true Cashmere could not be easily imitated. True Cashmere shawls came from the Vale of Kashmir in Tibet. They are made from the wool of a certain species of goat native to the high mountain regions of the province of Kashmir.

Cashmere Prices Cashmere shawls range in price from $20 to $5,000. A pair of best grade sold for $15,000. The Cashmere shawls of the late King Edward of England are the finest public collection now in existence outside of India. Although France was the first to make Cashmere shawls fashionable and had innumerable factories to imitate them, there are but few Cashmere shawls in the museums today.

Even in the province of Kashmir today, most of its output is rather commonplace needlework in silk and cotton. Anyone who owns a true Cashmere shawl has a valuable work of art. The one owned by Mrs. Milford E. Barnes, 211 Myrtle avenue, and brought by her from the Vale of Kashmir, was exhibited at the "Century of Shawls" yesterday at the Methodist church.

Although shawls are still an important part of woman's wardrobe in many countries, most of the shawls, especially the silk one and those heavily embroidered, are made in China. Colors, designs and distinctive characteristics are cleverly designed to suit the tastes of the vivacious Spanish "senorita," the stolid Italian peasant or a royal East Indian princess. Many "native" shawls offered the eager tourist at exorbitant prices have been imported from China and are not true products of the country,

Meier to Tell Study Results

Will Announce Findings Of 10 Year Talent Survey

Prof. Norman C. Meier of the psychology department will announce the results of his 10-year studies on artistic talent when he appears as guest speaker of the southeast central section of the American Association of University Women at Louisville, Ky., April 29 and 30.

The results of investigations into the nature and variability of artistic talent, its emergence in the child, and how the appreciation of the good citizenship bureau, described the university play production festival in an article in the April issue of the Woman's Home Companion.

Mrs. Richardson wrote that during the festival there were conferences on every branch of the theatrical art from painting scenery to voice production. "Best of all," she added, "every afternoon and evening of the three day festival three or more short plays were presented by as many little-theater groups from Iowa cities and towns."

The article concluded saying, "The influence of the festival is beyond calculation, and that among the fine arts, none grips the imagination of youth and quickens its desire to participate as does the drama with its age-old longing to make believe and impersonate."

Hold Annual Program Here June 21, 22, 23

Guidance of the child will be the central theme of the 12th annual conference on child development and parent education here June 21, 22 and 23.

Although the program is not yet completed, some of the topics will include behavior problems, parent influence and recreational activities. Lectures will be given and groups will meet at round table sessions for informal discussions under the leadership of visiting experts.

Dean George D. Stoddard, director of the Iowa child welfare research station, announced yesterday that nearly 20 conference speakers will appear on the program. Some of the visiting speakers already named are Sanford Bates, executive director of the Boy's Clubs of America, Inc.; Dr. William Bristow, general secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Dr. Ruth Brickner of the advisory service of the Child Study association of America, and Dr. Ernest Osborne of Columbia university.

Cooperating in the conference are the University of Iowa, Iowa state council for child study and parent education, Iowa State college, and State Teachers college.

Some of the problems will remain incompletely solved because funds are not available for carrying them further, and some are not as adequately studied as might be desired, but the investigations as a whole represent the best answers now available," Professor Meier said.

The investigations were financed by grants totaling $50,000 from the Spelman Fund and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Martha C. Enochs, regional director of the American Association of University Women, was in Iowa City recently to make arrangements for Professor Meier's lectures.

Play Festival Described For April Magazine

"One of the country's most important conferences for adult theater groups" — this is the way Anna Steese Richardson, director of the good citizenship bureau, described the university play production festival in an article in the April issue of the Woman's Home Companion.

Mrs. Richardson wrote that during the festival there were conferences on every branch of the theatrical art from painting scenery to voice production. "Best of all," she added, "every afternoon and evening of the three day festival three or more short plays were presented by as many little-theater groups from Iowa cities and towns."

The article concluded saying, "The influence of the festival is beyond calculation, and that among the fine arts, none grips the imagination of youth and quickens its desire to participate as does the drama with its age-old longing to make believe and impersonate."

Does home need a "face lifting"?

Sometimes homes, like people, are taken for granted and signs of weariness go unnoticed. Homes, too, need beauty treatments. They come out of them renewed, refreshed, stimulating once more to all who meet them.

Early Spring is the time to plan the "face lifting" of the rooms in which you live. Carefully planned, a little money now can go far. Fortunately, authentic news of the latest, the best designed, the most economical in home furnishings and accessories is printed for you day after day on these pages. National manufacturer and local merchant advertise to help you.

President of Chapter HI, P.E.O.

Active in club work is Mrs. L. B. Higley, pictured in her home at 714 Iowa avenue, who has recently been elected president of Chapter HI of P.E.O. She has been a charter member of her chapter since its founding in Iowa City about six years ago. Since that time she has served as treasurer of the organization.

P.E.O. is not Mrs. Higley's only interest, for she finds time for work on the Community chest drives and for church work. She and Dr. Higley are now serving as presidents of the Mr. and Mrs. club of the Presbyterian church.

A member of University club, Mrs. Higley has been actively interested in the foreign student group and for the last few years has given much time to it.

"I have no particular hobbies," she said, "but I do read a great deal and I enjoy ping-pong."

In addition to her other activities Mrs. Higley finds time to make her home a pleasant place for Dr. Higley and their two sons, Wayne, 6, and Bruce, 9. Both boys are students at the University Elementary school.

So They Say . . .

Were your state property taxes higher or lower this year? "They were higher for me this year, but I have some new farm machinery. On the whole they were not too high, though." — Jerry Donda, farmer, Oxford.

Was it easier to pay your taxes this year than last year? "It has been harder for us this year than last. That's why we waited 'till the last minute to pay them." — Mrs. Albert Hardy, housewife, Cedar Rapids.

Did you wait until two days before the deadline last year? "No, I paid them much earlier last year. It isn't because I don't have the money this year. I have been too busy, that's all." — F. D. Reyhons, merchant, Oxford.

What do you think of homestead exemptions? "They are a fine thing, I believe. They do a lot to equalize the tax burden. My taxes were higher this year but the homestead exemption reduced it a good deal. They have aided many people." — J. M. Bradley, merchant, 525 Iowa avenue, Iowa City.

Do you think most people were satisfied with their tax bill this year? "Everybody I have talked with seemed to be satisfied. My taxes were about the same and with the household exemption they were a lot lower. They were O.K. with me." — T. L. Kessman, farmer, Lone Tree.

"Do you or your husband usually pay the taxes? "Neither of us relish the job, but I've paid them the last two years. Of course, he furnished the money." — Mrs. Mary Leech, farmwife, Swisher.

Do farmers and town dwellers receive the same benefits from the homestead exemptions? "No, they don't, in my estimation. On a large farm like mine, I receive only the same amount of exemption as a person in town owning a small lot. It should be equalized more to aid the farmers." — Van Alexander, farmer, Oxford.

Did you make a special trip downtown to pay the taxes? "Yes, I did. I thought it was about time they were getting paid." — Mrs. Allen Tester, 228 Woolf avenue, housewife, Iowa City.

Keeps Tab of 30,000 Alumni

Checking Keeps Up-to-date Records of S. U. I.'s Shifting Graduate Body

By MARGARET COULSON

How would you keep track of some thirty thousand Iowa alumni who had scattered to all parts of the world? How would you organize your material to answer all manner of inquiries about them? How would you find hundreds of people of whom you had had no trace for years?

Those are the questions Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, executive secretary of the alumni association, and his assistants have to answer, for 36,894 degrees have been granted by the University of Iowa in the 91 years of its existence, and the alumni office keeps a complete, correct, usable record of this ever increasing and constantly shifting alumni body.

How? Once a month each alumni is mailed the University of Iowa News Bulletin. The bulletin is addressed from an addressograph plates in the university mailing room, and, if not delivered, is returned to the mailing room. In this way the records are checked every 30 days.

On return of a news bulletin the card of that alumnus, on file in the alumni office, is marked with a red tab and the hunt begins. A first-class letter is sent to the same address on the assumption that a forwarding address was left and that first class mail will reach him. The return of forwarding addresses on the first month's notice is about 35 per cent. The cards of alumni whose forwarding addresses were not returned, are marked with yellow tabs and another first class letter is sent out.

Second month's return also averages about 35 per cent. The third month, the search begins in earnest. Cards are sent to parents and friends requesting the address. In this way, the alumni office achieves its aim of keeping "lost alumni" down to two per cent of the total.

At the present almost 600 changes are made per month. During "spare time," employees search for the whereabouts of "lost alumni."

On Jan. 1, 1938, the university had a record of 36,894 degrees granted; of this number, 4,671 persons hold more than one degree, 3,726 are dead; 1,000 are on the "permanently lost" list and approximately 1,500 on the "transient list." This leaves an active mailing list of 25,507 which is the circulation of the news bulletin.

After information regarding the alumni is received, it is another problem to create a system by which this material is easily available.

Cross Trial Will Go to Jury Today After Closing Arguments

Coralville Man Charged With Driving While Intoxicated

The trial of Sidney Cross Jr., Coralville, on a charge of driving while intoxicated will go to the jury today after County Attorney Harold W. Vestermark and Attorney W. F. Murphy, counsel for the defense, made their closing arguments. Both sides rested their cases yesterday afternoon.

The first defense witness yesterday was Joseph Fober, a Hills garage man. He testified that Cross and his father each drank one glass of beer in Droll's tavern in Hills between 4:30 and 5 p.m. Jan. 1, the day Cross was arrested at his home.

Patrolman Laurance Ham testified that he and Patrolman Ben A. Hauber apprehended Cross on highway 218 near the airport, accompanied by his father. Cross was pursued, but not taken into custody until Cross reached his home in Coralville.

The witness explained that Cross said he was hurrying home to attend to a personal matter.

Mrs. Sidney Cross Jr. was called after seven character witnesses had testified. She said her husband and his father went to work in Hills early the morning of Jan. 1 and did not return to Coralville until after 5 p.m. She said:

"He had been ill. The night before he took a cathartic. When I first saw him that afternoon, I had heard the commotion, but did not see him fall. Patrolman Ham was standing over him.

"My little dog ran out and attempted to bite the policeman. My husband got up and tried to say something to me while I was catching the dog. Ham struck my husband on the head behind the left ear. After getting him to the gate, the policeman threw my husband over the fence. He was very pale because he was sick."

County Attorney Vestermark, cross-examining Mrs. Cross, asked if she didn't attempt to pull her husband into the house. She replied, "I didn't touch my husband during the whole fight."

The next defense witness was Dr. Augustus Sinning of Iowa City. He said there was a little over a teaspoonful of alcohol in an ordinary pint of beer, and one pint bottle would not make a man intoxicated.

Leonard Cross, the defendant's father, followed Dr. Sinning. He said his son had not been able to work on the house they were building in Hills on the afternoon of Jan. 1 because he was ill. He testified:

"I didn't see the police car until we were home. Sidney got out of the car and went to the door. He had just reached the door when Ham grabbed him and hit him on the head with his club.

"After Ham threw Sidney across the fence, Sidney grabbed hold of it. The policemen struck his hand with their clubs. When we got to the police station his hand was bloody, and the skin was off on his head where he had been hit."

When cross-examined by the county attorney, the elder Cross admitted that charges of being intoxicated upon a public highway and intoxication were still pending against him in police court.

The defendant took the stand on his own behalf. His testimony corroborated that of his wife and father concerning the fight between himself and Patrolmen Ham and Hauber.

"I didn't know the police were following me because they made no attempt to stop me," the defendant said. When he reached the place where he told about the police striking his hand, Attorney Murphy directed Cross to show the scars on his hand to the jury.

At the conclusion of the defendant's testimony, Attorney Murphy announced that the defense rested.

The character witnesses presented by the defense were Edward Fairchild, Rush Dennis, Lynn Taylor, George Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fairchild and John Wiencke, all of Coralville. Each testified that Cross had a good reputation for temperance.

City Council to Consider Increase in Sewage Disposal Rate

Proposal Goes Before Council For Discussion

Ordinance Proposes $4,500 be Placed Yearly in Fund

A suggested schedule of increased sewage disposal rates will be presented to the city council at its regular meeting tomorrow night, according to City Attorney Robert Larson, who is drafting the ordinance.

The proposed rates would provide for a flat monthly charge of 30 cents per patron plus 7 1-2 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used, with a discount of 10 cents if payment is made by the 15th of the month. The ordinance would provide that the amount of $4,500 be placed in a reserve fund each year to take care of emergencies.

The council committee on waterworks and sewer with other city officials has for some time considered means of increasing the income of the sewage disposal department. The present rate of 7 1-2 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used, established when the plant was put into operation in 1935, does not provide enough revenue to cover the expense of the plant business office and to set up a reserve fund required to protect the plant against emergencies.

Full discussion of the problem is expected at the meeting tomorrow night. A different schedule may finally be adopted to assure the necessary income. The amount of money that will be placed in the reserve fund has been discussed by city officials and a committee representing the university, since the university pays 40 per cent of the total cost of operating the disposal plant. Further conferences are expected to work out a figure agreeable to both parties, an amount probably in the neighborhood of the proposed $4,500.

It is estimated that the present average monthly bill for sewage disposal paid by Iowa Citizens is 80 cents a month.

Disclose Eight Frosh Winners In Law Trials

Eight freshman law students have qualified for the junior law club arguments next year by winning first or second places in four of the series of first-year trials yesterday and Tuesday.

In the trial heard last night first place was awarded to Vette Kell of Marengo and second place to Thomas Birch of Marcus. The students argued hypothetical cases before a court conducted by senior law students. Wilbur Dull of Greenfield presided as chief justice with Paul Hellwege of Boone and Jay Watson of Daventry, associate judges.

William Wing of Van Wert was judged first and John Joynet of Le Mars second in yesterday afternoon's trials. James Remy of Anamosa acted as chief justice of the court with Arthur Coffman of Hawarden and William Mockridge of Clinton, associate judges.

In the first trial Tuesday Donald Rosenfeld of Council Bluffs won first place and Glenn Dull of Cherokee second place. The decision was given by Edwin McMillan, chief justice, and Beryl Goodenow of Battle Creek and Allen Denny of Des Moines, associate judges.

Paul Kreithe Jr. of Burt placed first and Carl Freyman of Le Mars second place in the second trial Tuesday. William Moershel of Homestead acted as chief justice with Jack Hoffman of Le Mars and W. Howard Smith of Cedar Rapids, associate judges.

The arguments are under the supervision of Prof. Mason Ladd of the college of law with Robert Beebe of Ottumwa and Donald Boddicker of Newhall, both senior law students, assisting him. The last two trials of the series will be heard today.

Forsen Assists Taxpayers

Shown above is Charles R. Forsen, 213 1-2 E. College street, formerly of Rockwell City. He assists Iowa Citizens in filing their state income tax reports. Those who have not filed their state income tax reports should contact him.

Nice Job Tax Collector Finds Work Pleasing

By MAXINE REAMS

"The income tax business really isn't as bad as most people think it is," said Charles R. Forsen, field auditor for the income tax division of the state board of assessment and review. "Most people have the idea that the income tax collector has to go around with a club and beat people over the head to get them to pay their income tax, but it really isn't that way. Most of my contacts are pleasant and friendly."

Most of the persons with whom Mr. Forsen comes in contact are neither violently opposed to paying the tax, nor are they bubbling over with enthusiasm to get rid of their money. For the most part, they are amiable and readily accept suggestions and corrections in their returns.

"Ironic as it may seem," he observed, "those people who have the largest incomes are the ones who look the farthest for exemptions. The statement we hear most around this office is 'I'd be glad to pay a tax if I had an income.'"

Have Difficulty

In spite of the fact that directions for filling out the return are printed on every form, most people have difficulty in making out their reports correctly, he said.

The main reason for this is that reports only have to be filed once a year, and it's easy to forget the little things between times.

"Handing in an income tax return seems to be one of those things that everyone always leaves until the very last possible minute," Mr. Forsen stated, "and the office is swamped for over a week before the deadline."

Human Nature

"You can learn a lot about human nature in the income tax business, too," he said. "I remember one instance that happened a few years ago in another section of the state. I was interviewing a high-salaried insurance company president.

"The interview proved to be a great disappointment. He not only disapproved of the income tax as it was being administered, but proceeded to tell me how he thought it should be done.

"In his opinion all persons, from the newsboy on the street to those in high positions should pay the same per capita income tax. The selfishness of the idea gave me a fairly good index to his character. But not all contacts prove as disillusioning as that one."

Interest on Bonds

Although income from interest on bonds or dividends from stock are perhaps the hardest to check on, this is offset to a large degree by the cooperation of certain companies who file in the main office of the board of assessment

AROUND THE TOWN

With TOM JOHNSON

Southern Style

A letter yesterday from my Arkansas correspondent served to remind me that spring arrives earlier down south than it does here.

If you're interested in courtin', clinchin' and marryin' as it's done below the Mason-Dixon line, read on.

I don't know why the writer, a transplanted Iowan, a college graduate, acquired that method of writing, but most expatriate sectionalists do.

For a change of viewpoint, though, proceed.

Dear Tom:

Being a Yankee and reared up North, I used to hear a lot about Southern gals, exclusive as they are in mannerisms and justly deserving being called pretty.

If you're like a good share of the other bucks from up your way, you'll probably take a right smart 'o' interest in a knowin' how to court one.

And while I ain't much a hand at courtin' or had a right smart 'o' experience at it, I have picked up a good deal of advice.

To commence with, Southern gals are like all the rest, in that they were made to be loved—not understood.

And while writing love letters full of tenderness and poetry may be all right while she is away to college, one good clinch when she comes home will go a lot further than anything toward gettin' the job done.

Anytime you clinch her, she's all ready forgot her A.B.C.'s, let alone a whole book of dad-gum poetry. And as I said afore—it'll fairly get the job done. I mean get it done.

As the fella said, there's a time and place for most everything, so when the opportunity arrives, just fairly let all this clinchin' take place. I mean, make her think that no clinchin' has never took place 'till now. Show her all the forms from A-1 to Z-95.

But, don't keep at this here clinchin' all night. It's a good plan that when bed-time comes to just fly up and go to roost.

Of course, Southerners will surprise you with their tolerance and broadmindedness, and while you may be a Casanova among the women-folk, it really is the better policy to court only one at the time—that is, if you don't want to get your business messed up sho nuf.

Then, too—while being parsimonious has its good points and a Southern gal isn't hard to please I would suggest that you try and have enough loose change in your jeans to buy a coca-cola and put a few nickels in the nickelodean. But never try to have enough money to get married on. . . Well, you can try, I guess, but I jes reckon you never will save much 'till you get a good wife to do it fer ya.

Whenever you're in a mind to let in, just take her out for a hike in the woods some sunny spring day when the forest is an enchanting array of gay spring colors.

Dogwoods, red buds, buttercups, violets, spring beautys and all the rest of the wild flowers will be in full bloom—

And as you wander aimlessly along and come to a branch, just look for a footlog that crosses over where the stream is nice and deep. Then as you ease on across, just stop in the middle to watch the fish—whereupon her curiosity will be aroused and she will more than likely come out at your suggestion and sit down.

Right here is where a few clinches ought to help matters along. . . (I mean good clinches) . . . and when you got the situation well in hand, just pop the question—having of course warned her that if she says No, off the log she goes into the creek.

And if she says No—I mean pitch her off of there. If the answer is Yes, use clinch form B-26.

Of course, you next got to ease the proposition onto her old man some how. A good way is to go up for dinner some Sunday. Put on your "go in to meetin'" clothes and be sure to find out what he thinks of the Cotton Bill before you make any comments.

Directly when you see him go to take Ol' Bess and a few other nags down for a watering, just ease down after him and let him know about all this business and happenings that are fixen to take place.

If he doesn't sic ol' Ring to run you off right then and there, he'll probably study a while and drawl, "Well-l-l, I ain't never made a marriage and I ain't never broke one, but I'd rather Sue'd finish school first."

To make sure, you might ask, "Well, you ain't a mind to stop us if we were to go ahead and do it?"

"No! I reckon not!"

So, Tom, I guess that's 'bout all that needs to be done—except to just draw back and marry the gal.

Your ol' pal,
Doc.
