Dating Bureau or After-Dinner Speech Is Just Part of Convention Fun

A younger edition of all conventions everywhere, the 15th annual DeMolay state convocation has brought nearly 300 boys to Iowa City this week for some work, much play, "convention business." Of course, "dating" has been an integral part of the activities. A dating bureau was established, and the usual requirements—"good dancer, good-looking and a good personality"—have been filled in 150 cases since Monday. Blondes, as always, lead the field two to one... Caught above are, left to right, Don Floyd, Bob Buckley, Joan Meardon, all Iowa Citizens, Ray Coburn of Sioux City, and Iowa City residents Nyle Jones, Bea Davis, Dick Cambridge, and Perry's Jack McKinnon... Of course, business comes in too. Conducting it are Frank S. Land of Kansas City, Mo., founder of DeMolay and member of its grand council, and Judge Hubert Utterback of Des Moines, state deputy, shown above center... Land, above right, spoke to 240 DeMolays at a banquet last night... Utterback will address the general assembly in the main chambers of the Masonic temple this morning at 9... Election and installation of state officers and selection of next year's convocation site will occupy the morning session today... Last night's highlights were the majority services and Chevalier degrees for 11 boys... Special recognition for "Dad" Fred Harvey of Perry was made at yesterday morning's session with the surprise presentation of a silver plaque. Other "dads"—they're chapter advisers—Fred Leigh of Davenport and Fred Coulter of Belle Plaine, both of whom were presented with cross of honor... So after tonight's banquet, this afternoon's athletic awards and the general "good-byes" some 300 boys will return tomorrow, early, to Tama, Sioux City and Des Moines and all the other Iowa towns until next year, next convention...

Guards Protect Countess' Son

Scotland Yard Watches After Woolworth Heiress Gets Kidnap Threat
LONDON, June 21 (AP)—Wealthy Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow was reported tonight by the Daily Mail to have "taken precautions" against a threat to kidnap her two-year-old son, Lance.
The report said Scotland Yard had ordered police to keep a special watch at all ports and airports for the arrival of "a suspected person" and had sent out photographs and a full description of the suspect.
The person presumably was coming from abroad to attempt to carry out the kidnap threat.
Neither the Woolworth heiress, who has lived in London nearly three years and last year renounced her American citizenship, nor her Danish husband, Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, could be reached for comment.
But the night watchman at their regal new Regent's park mansion, Winfield house, said he knew of "nothing unusual." It was reported guards around the mansion had been increased.

Coroner's Jury Finds No One To Blame in 'Olympian' Wreck

Find Three More Bodies, One 150 Miles From Custer Creek
MILES CITY, Mont., June 21 (AP)—A coroner's jury returned a verdict tonight holding no one to blame for the wreck of the Milwaukee railroad's "Olympian" train while weary searchers hacked their way through the twisted steel of a silt-filled sleeper in their hunt for additional victims or a tragedy that has listed 42 known dead or missing.
The body of another victim was found today floating in the Yellowstone river at Sidney, Mont., more than 130 miles downstream from Custer creek into which the train plunged through a flood-battered bridge early Sunday.
Railroad officials identified this body as that of P. F. Schultz, 63, of Ladd, Ill., a Milwaukee engineer riding as a passenger on the train.
Sheriff Edgar Taylor at Miles City reported a short time later that the bodies of an unidentified man and woman were found tonight in the Yellowstone river at Fallow, 47 miles east of Miles City.
With the three bodies recovered tonight, railroad officials listed 26 identified of 34 known victims. They named 16 as missing but said some of these probably were among the unidentified dead.

Educators and Child Problems—

Ready to begin a discussion of the needs of children in the community, Sanford Bates, (standing) executive director of Boys' Clubs of America in New York, N. Y., one of the world's foremost criminologists, calls the meeting to order in this cross section of the activities of the opening day of the 12th Iowa conference on child development and parent education. Prof. Clyde Hart of the university sociology department, (left) and Mrs. C. C. Collier of Spencer, president of the Iowa Congress of Parents and Teachers, were two of the discussion leaders who took part in

Daniel Doherty Guest Speaker For Dedication

Afternoon Parade Will Begin Fete for Head of Group

A parade at 3:30 this afternoon, a banquet at 6:30 this evening and a state broadcast speech by the national commander of the American Legion—for whom the local celebration is named—will highlight the Daniel J. Doherty day activities here today. Several thousand persons will take part.
This afternoon's parade, directed by Will J. Hayek, a colonel, will begin at the Iowa City Community building, proceed west to Capitol street, north to Washington, east to Gilbert and back to the community building. Immediately following will be a short band concert in front of the building. A marching demonstration by junior units in the parade will follow.
Tonight's banquet—for which more than 600 tickets have been sold—will include short speeches by local and state Legion and Legion auxiliary officials, the broadcast of the Louis-Schmeling fight and a climactic speech by Doherty, the only one he will make in Iowa.
Doherty's speech will be broadcast over four Iowa radio stations and the Iowa Broadcasting company.
Also during the banquet this evening—the purpose of which is the dedication of the newly rebuilt community building—will be musical entertainment by local musicians.
District Judge Harold D. Evans, representing post commanders, will present a golden key to Mayor Myron J. Walker to signify transfer of ownership of the building from the legion post to the community.

Roosevelt Puts Name to Bill To Release Funds

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt's signature to the $3,750,000,000 lending-spending bill set administrative machinery in motion tonight to carry out the huge, new "pump-priming" program.
The public works administration indicated it would be only a matter of hours before it made its first allocations from the new funds. Other agencies announced they were set for action.
From the time the president announced the new lending-spending effort to turn the recession tide, all agencies have been drafting plans and considering projects so as to be ready for a quick start.
Mr. Roosevelt, announcing at Hyde Park, N. Y., that he had signed the bill, predicted to reporters that dirty would begin to fly on $350,000,000 of PWA projects within 60 days.
Secretary Harold L. Ickes, the PWA administrator, returning from a honeymoon abroad, will get back to his desk tomorrow to direct the public works program.
PWA received $965,000,000 of the huge outlay which President Roosevelt asked last April in a message telling congress that national conditions called "for action" through government aid "in increasing the nation's purchasing power and in stimulating business." It also was given authority to lend up to $400,000,000 from its revolving fund.
Biggest item in the bill, however, is $1,425,000,000 for work relief jobs under Harry Hopkins' works progress administration. Congress was told this would permit employment of up to 3,000,000 persons during the eight months starting July 1.

Lehman Would Enter Race For Copeland's Seat

ALBANY, N. Y., June 21 (AP)—New York's Democratic Gov. Herbert H. Lehman announced tonight he would accept the nomination to succeed the late United States Senator Royal S. Copeland "if my party desires me to be a candidate."
The governor's announcement came unexpectedly within a few hours after funeral services for New York's late senator who died Friday night in Washington.
It contained 25 words.

Quotation F. R. Thinks Business Isn't So Bad

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt, who seldom permits reporters to quote him directly, allowed them today to put in quotation marks the following:
"As somebody remarked the other day there have been a few raindrops coming from the heavens and possibly they will be followed with a much needed shower."
The remark was made in connection with his statement that business is not and has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be.
The quotation was a direct answer to a newsmen's question at the president's press conference as to whether business had scraped bottom in its downward trend.

Begin Spy Probes

BIARRITZ, France (AP)—Thousands of documents relating to French defenses on the Spanish frontier were seized by secret police yesterday as a prelude to what authorities called one of the biggest espionage investigations of many years.

Goebbels Gives Official Stamp To Jew Purge

BERLIN, June 21 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels tonight put the stamp of official approval on the new wave of nazi anti-Semitism and roused a crowd of 120,000 Berliners to hysterical cries of "Out with the Jews—out with the Jews."
Speaking at the annual summer solstice exercises at Olympic stadium Goebbels demanded, however, that the state party rather than "the street"—meaning mobs—attend to solution of the Jewish problem.
He said that thought he had "a full understanding of the fact the Berlin population is taking measures for its defense, I do not approve of the method."
"But it is a good thing we now know what concerns are Jewish," declared the small propaganda minister referring to the recent smearing of store-front with "Jew" in red paint.
"Just let the Jews clean their stores—now we know where their businesses are."
"We will see to it that legal measures are taken so that soon Jews will have gone altogether."
"As far as those remaining are concerned let them remember to keep out of the public view. They are beginning to be a nuisance..."

End of Spain's War in Sight

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—The prospect of curbing or even ending Spain's destructive civil war became more promising tonight than at any time since the first shot was fired July 18, 1936.
Nine major European powers, ending a long deadlock, agreed at a non-intervention subcommittee meeting on steps to remove foreign fighters from the conflict.
Friday the subcommittee will meet again to discuss the cost of the nonintervention plan and a full session of the 27-nation group is to be held shortly to approve the complete scheme.
Britain sought aid of France and Italy, whose sympathies are with opposite sides in the conflict, to obtain a lull in hostilities while evacuation commissions could operate.
In the house of commons British Prime Minister Chamberlain indicated an armistice was the only practical way to end international difficulties which had arisen from the war.
He declared Britain would try "from time to time" to see whether there was favorable prospects of success and "when the times come we shall be only too glad to offer our services, either alone or in conjunction with others, in bringing this lamentable conflict to an end."

Governor Benson Leads Opponent In Minnesota Primary

MINNEAPOLIS, June 21 (AP)—Gov. Elmer A. Benson tonight pulled into a slightly increasing lead over Hjalmar Petersen on the farmer-labor ticket in the state primary election as more than three-fourths of the returns were tabulated.
Benson had a lead of 9,202 from returns of 3,058 or 3,739 precincts. The vote was Benson 183,775; Petersen 174,573.

Sanford Bates, Criminologist, Speaks About Delinquency at Child Welfare Conference Here

"When we talk about the crimes of our children, we'd better think about the crimes we commit against them," warned Sanford Bates, noted criminologist, as he spoke last night at the final session of the first day's activities of the 12th annual child welfare conference.
Asserting that boys "will never go wrong," if they can gratify a desire for recognition, get an occasional thrill, enjoy friendships on their own level and have a reasonable amount of power, success and security, Bates dealt mainly with comparisons of normal children and delinquents.
Health has a direct bearing on child conduct, he pointed out. A study of 1,511 convicts in New Jersey reveals that the greatest majority of the group were treated the same as the rest of their families in childhood; that the greatest majority associated with other "problem children" during their early days; and that the families of the greatest majority tried to keep their children out of trouble.
Higher intellect is, in general, not consistent with delinquency, Bates revealed; neither is feeble-mindedness a symptom of delinquency. Vocational guidance courses are helpful, he revealed, since statistics show that those who had such courses were happier, less troublesome and made more money than those who didn't. Studies reveal that inferiority in personality, a dislike for school, neurological disturbances and excess attendance at movies are all noticeable in delinquents.
But delinquency rises, Bates revealed, from a wholesome desire for adventure and other traits which are not undesirable in themselves. "Why is it," he queried, "that the traits that are pointed out to be pre-delinquent traits are so desirable?"
Returning again to causes listed by New Jersey criminals for their delinquency in early life, Bates revealed that criminals listed policemen, judges, institutions and schools as forces which "did them the most wrong." They listed bad companions, desire for luxuries and the need for necessities as causes leading to their delinquency, and they blamed poverty, bad companions and unemployment as deeper causes for their wrongdoing.
"Boys need the power of a good example," Bates concluded. "The greatest building we are going to do in the next generation is going to be the building of boys."

Short Cut Millions Drop Down To Thousands

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The government's three-million-dollar income tax case against the estate of Andrew W. Mellon simmered down to a $668,000 settlement today.
The agreement brought to an end four years of litigation involving such delicate legal points as the value of art treasures which once hung in the palaces of the Russian czars and the worth of a share of McClellin-Marshall corporation stock in 1913.
The case, too, saw the former secretary of the treasury accused and cleared of charges that he attempted to defraud the government in drawing up his income tax returns for 1931 at a time when, as head of the treasury department, he was the nation's chief tax collector.

Hear Maytag's Case in Newton

NEWTON, Ia., June 21 (AP)—A hearing on a petition of the Maytag Washing Machine company for a temporary injunction against Newton CIO union employees and other defendants was held here this afternoon.
The company is seeking an injunction to restrain the defendants from interference with the regular operation of the business. John Connolly Jr., Des Moines attorney for the union, withdrew from the case after District Judge Frank Bechly overruled a motion to transfer the proceedings to federal court in Des Moines.
Connolly said a petition to remove the case will be filed in federal court.

Court Prevents Attack on Ernst

NEWARK, N. J., June 21 (AP)—Presentation of charges that Mayor Frank Hague abrogated free speech and assemblage in Jersey City ended in federal court today with the mayor seeking in vain to make another attack on CIO Counsel Morris L. Ernst.

Lake Macbride—Where Lad and Dad Can Enjoy Plentiful Fishing

ALTHOUGH it has been just a week since the finishing season opened in Iowa, southern Iowa's fishing paradise, Lake Macbride, has already served thousands of anglers.

Once noted for its beauty and scenic qualities as well as for its swimming, picnicking and boating facilities, Lake Macbride now ranks as one of the leading "fishin' holes" in the state.

There was a time when it was not necessary to seek out a fishing preserve for an afternoon's sport — in the good old days of willow poles and bent pin hooks when every stream was a potential fish preserve. Today, however, pollution and illegal fishing methods coupled with game hogs and poachers have held their sway so long that many of the streams will not support even minnows.

To remedy this situation and give the members of the younger generation a chance to enjoy some of the thrills their dads enjoyed, the state of Iowa in cooperation with the conservation groups and public spirited citizens has constructed fish and game reserves like Lake Macbride.

It makes little difference today whether you are a sunburned freckle-faced little kid in overalls with your bamboo pole and cheap reel and line or a more fortunate olderster with an expensive rod, artificial bait and the other luxuries which go with fishing enjoyment. The fish are willing and ready and the rest depends on you.

Today, Lake Macbride is teeming with fish, enough to keep it well-stocked. In a body of water the size of Lake Macbride, with everything as perfect as can be for the preservation and multiplication of fish, the only thing that can lead to the destruction of this paradise is the fishermen themselves. If the finny tribes disappear from this delightful spot, if Lake Macbride turns into just another fished out preserve, it will be a mark against Iowa sportsmen.

Illicit seining, blasting, spearing and snagging may take their toll of the potential "catch," but anglers who consistently take more than the legal limit of fish hurt the sport of others just as much as the sneaking poacher. Lake Macbride is a sportsmen's paradise today. It will continue to be a sportsmen's paradise as long as true sportsmen enjoy themselves there.

An Ancient Parable Is Revised

REMEMBER that old parable about the man who walked into a dungeon, heard the clinking of chains behind him and thought he was locked in? Well, the man remained in the dungeon for many years, crying and wailing and bemoaning his fate. One day he got a marvelous idea. He just stood up and walked out of the dungeon.

We mention that very childish story here because it reminds us of some industrialists, most of whom evidently haven't finished the fable yet.

'The Educated Are Responsible'—For Democracy

MRS. MARGARET CULKIN BANNING recently wrote an essay, "The Educated Are Responsible." It was Mrs. Banning's point that the educated and the educators of America and the rest of the world are responsible for the future.

We mention that now in connection with the announcement last week that 55 famed American educators and scientists have written to some 500 United States college presidents offering them the pick of refugee scholars from Germany, Italy and France and Spain.

The proposal was that colleges give refuge to students fleeing the fascist countries "because they believe in democracy." These students will be chosen, according to the letters, "because of their belief in democracy."

We hope American educators will take up the challenge to "save democracy." If it is to be saved, and if it's worth saving, we're inclined to agree with Mrs. Banning that "The Educated Are Responsible."

Junior says the reason he flopped in geography was he figured, with all the goings on in Europe and Asia this summer, when school resumed next fall he'd have to study it all over again.

Another Example Of Etiquette Oriental

BEING a modern nation, Japan isn't bothered to declare war against China. No smart nation does any more. There's all the possibility of automatic neutrality laws, possible sanctions against aggressors, questions of belligerent rights and rights of blockade. All these make "real" war unsavory. So that little "skittle" going on between China and Japan is just "minor trouble."

We remind you of this because last week the Chinese embassy sent a smart sharp note to the Japanese foreign office. It seems Japan has used "underhanded methods" in inspiring demonstrations against the government. The Chinese reminded Japan it was still obliged to protect Chinese lives and property in JAPAN.

Broadway, England, we read, is a quaint, charming hamlet. That may be but we doubt whether it has as many yokels as Broadway, New York.

A NEW DUTCH MASTER The sporting world is getting cross-eyed trying to give due and fitting attention to two boys well inside the hall of fame, whose startling performances in different fields have come along almost simultaneously. One is that of Ralph Guldahl, the new king of American golf. June 11 he won the National Open for the second consecutive year, and fresh from that triumph he went to St. Louis and took the West-Open for the third consecutive time.

The sporting superlative which might be exhausted upon this performance must be split and a full share of them must go to Pitcher Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds, who on Wednesday pitched his second consecutive no-hit, no-run game, the first against the Boston Bees and the second against the Brooklyn Dodgers, eighteen innings of pitching in which no National league batter facing him could get a hit.

In the second game, with this great baseball distinction awaiting the 23 year old rookie pitcher, there was a ninth inning climax which was as extraordinary in its setting as the performance was to be in its execution. With one out, Vander Meer filled the bases with three passes. A semi-hysterical crowd waited as the next two batsmen faced the 'delivery, and when both were retired some of the spectators needed a doctor.

Ohio is treating the event properly. The state senate has passed an appropriate resolution "in tribute to the newly crowned king of the baseball world," and it has been suggested that a statue of the young man replace a memorial to ex-President James A. Garfield in a downtown Cincinnati park. That might seem to be an unnecessary supplanting, however much Ohio desires to set up a testimonial in granite and brass so that a generation a thousand years from now may know of the masterpiece of this young Dutch master. Doubtless there is room for both Garfield and Vander Meer — the boy of the township and the boy of the diamond.

Swiss Nation Ready to 'Die to a Man' in Defense Of Her Little Territory Says Foreign Minister Motta

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ JR. GENEVA (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — Little Switzerland has warned Adolf Hitler unofficially he would have to fight for every inch of the Swiss territory some of his nazis have included in ambitious maps of expanding Germany.

"There is no Swiss language," says Giuseppe Motta, Switzerland's foreign minister, "but seven centuries of independence have fused us into a liberty-loving people who will die to a man to defend our territory."

(French, German, Italian and Romansh are Switzerland's national languages. Romansh, the romance dialects spoken in southeastern Switzerland, was raised to that status last July.)

The Swiss used to laugh at the nazi maps which include the larger part of Switzerland and her 3,000,000 German speaking citizens inside "Germany's lands."

Since remilitarization of the Rhineland, annexation of Austria and the pressure Berlin has brought against Czechoslovakia, however, they have stopped laughing.

About three-quarters of the Swiss population speaks German, but time and again in national elections this portion has shown that the bond of language does not temper their love of a free Switzerland.

By referendum and direct elections, the Swiss consistently have given support by huge majorities to a government which has dissolved nazi organizations and propaganda agencies.

The worst blow of all to Pan-Germanic hopes in Switzerland came in the spring of 1938 with an order classing nazi and communist propaganda as equally undesirable in Switzerland.

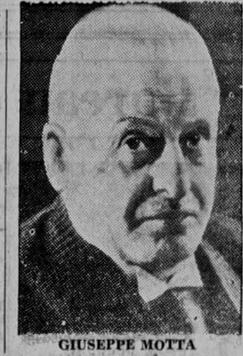

"Wake up, Berlin!" said the Berner German language newspaper Der Bund in a front page editorial that kept the paper out of Germany. "Nazis must realize that their dream of incorporating German-speaking Switzerland into the reich is ridiculous. We are Swiss and Swiss we will remain to the last man."

Unlike many of the little states in the world, Switzerland puts little faith in the promises of foreign nations to guard her independence.

The Swiss have much faith, however, in their own arms. Every able-bodied Swiss male from 20 to 48 years of age, inclusive, has a gun in his room and is always ready for action.

Every Swiss over the national militia age limit has a place in the noncombatant rear guard. "The day foreign troops cross our frontiers," the Swiss foreign minister said at Geneva recently, "Switzerland becomes a nation of soldiers. We are the guardians of the Alps. We can and will defend our fatherland."

Is It Worth It, Kidnaper, to Sacrifice Your Life, Freedom and Happiness for a Few Extra Dollars?

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Wait a minute, kidnaper!

Who or where you are, there is no way of telling, but police statistics and the laws of chance say you are there and are planning the next abduction.

You are a man today. Tomorrow you may be a hunted beast. Why do you risk the change?

For money, you say?

That is what Franklin McCall said. The Franklin McCall is about to die for stealing little Jimmy Cash at Princeton, Fla. "I wanted the money for my wife," Franklin said. He got the money — $10,000, more than he ever had seen in his life before. Ten thousand dollars ransom, but how much was Franklin able to spend before they caught him? Just five dollars.

Five dollars for 12 days of harried existence, 12 days of pricking conscience and 12 nights when dead little Jimmy's face might appear in the darkness any time. Five dollars for a little boy's life.

Is it worth it, kidnaper? You can get away with the money, even if someone else failed, you think?

That is what John Henry Seadlund thought. The John Henry Seadlund who is about to die for abducting Charles S. Ross in Chicago.

Seadlund wanted the money for a good time. He got the money — $50,000. But how much fun did he have with it before they caught him?

He had the fun of watching federal agents dig up $47,027 from where he had hidden it. He had the fun of seeing $3,000 of it stolen from his automobile in a New York repair shop. He had the fun of adding these two amounts and knowing he lost $27 on the deal.

Lost $27 — of his own money — for 15 days of trying to hide a helpless old man in the cruel north woods.

Twenty-seven dollars for widowing an old lady. Twenty-seven dollars, out of his own pocket, for a quick trip to eternity.

What Would You Do? Suppose you did get away with the ransom, kidnaper, what would you do with it before they caught up with you (they have caught up with all but three of 117 kidnappers) and put you to death?

Look what Verne Sankey did with it. Verne got $60,000 for kidnaping Charles Boettcher of Denver, Colo. There was $10,000 to $12,000 left when he saw the end of the trail and hanged himself. He lost most if not all of the rest gambling in Chicago's grain pits.

But you, kidnaper? You say you have a system?

They Had System "Machine Gun" Kelly's gang had a system. It was to sell ransom money to brokers — $100 worth for $10 or some such arrangement — and hide the rest. That didn't leave much to spend, and the little that was spent always turned into a clue for the federal agents.

Of the $200,000 the gang collected for kidnaping Charles F. Urschel, $124,000 was recovered. Even if you figure the difference as clear profit, it isn't very much to divide among such a big bunch of cronies. And it wasn't all clear profit by any means, for there had to be "cuts" for lawyers ($10,000 went to a single attorney) and money changers; for guns and ammunition and hide-outs; for automobiles and gasoline and the many other things a criminal must have for constant flight.

Looks Big Now It looks big now, kidnaper, that ransom money does, but once you get it, it is tough stuff to get rid of.

Harmon Waley burned $4,000 of the $200,000 he got from the parents of George Weyerhaeuser, in Tacoma—burned it because he could see no other way out. And when the money was burned there was no way out anyhow.

What good is money, kidnaper, if you must hide it in fruit jars as the Kelly gang did; or in tin cans, as Waley and his partner, William Mahan, did; or fritter it away in gambling, as "Ma" Barker and her pals did after the snatching of William Hamm at St. Paul?

Races Around Country Even Thomas Robinson Jr. who spent all but $2,360 of the $50,000 he got in the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll in Louisville, could spend it in no better way than racing back and forth across the country like a madman. He dared not stop to enjoy life. He dared not even dress as a man, but had to wear women's clothes. He worked harder to spend that cash than he would have worked in an honest job, and in the end he reached only the rock of Alcatraz.

The law, which you break, kidnaper, is not always able to protect you.

They lynched Thomas Thurmond and John M. Holmes, kidnaper, for the abduction of Brooke Hart at San Jose. Thurmond and Holmes demanded $40,000 ransom. They got nothing—but death!

Slowly but surely soil erosion is causing the good black earth of these United States to disappear. Soon we may not have enough mud left for an old-time rabble rousing political campaign.

Workmen in Paris, France, tearing down an old house found a fortune in gold pieces in a wall. But there are a lot of Parisian burglars who wish they hadn't been so lazy.

Clendening Explains How Your Skin Reacts Under Sun's Rays

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D. Sun bathing, which should be in full swing in a week or two, is undoubtedly of benefit to health if performed sensibly, but in order to get the full benefits out of it, an understanding of the anatomy and physiology of the skin and the action of the sun's rays is desirable.

The skin consists of a layer of tough horny cells in which there are no blood vessels. The nourishment of this layer comes entirely from below, where there is abundant blood supply, as well as fat, hair follicles, lymph, sweat glands.

The upper layer, if we could separate it entirely, would be found dry and crackly like a piece of cellophane. It is kept moist and lubricated by the secretions of the glands which pour out on its surface.

It is translucent and allows the sun's rays to seep through it, affecting the blood and fat beneath.

It is this upper layer, however, that gets sunburned. The "burn" is like any other burn, and destroys the cells. The lower layer responds to the destruction by bringing more blood to the part — that is, furnishing more nourishment to replace the destruction. That is what causes the red skin of sunburn. If the burn is mild, the very top layer of cells is destroyed, the dead cells drop off. This is the "peel" of sunburn. If the burn is deep, all the cells of the upper layer are destroyed in spots and the lymph from the lower layer of the skin fills in these damaged places, and that is the blister of sunburn.

Tan begins when the pigment cells of the skin begin to move in. The pigment of the skin resides in the lower layer of the skin. In very dark people and Negroes it may invade the lowest layer of the upper part. Pigment varies in different people and is increased or decreased according to circumstances. One circumstance which we are studying is the exposure to sun. The pigment increases and moves around, probably carried by blood, because if a piece of skin from a lighter part of the body is grafted on an exposed part, it turns darker.

MERLE MILLER

Home Thoughts From Abroad GRINNELL, Ia. (Special) — There's more in the Newton walk-out strike than meets the eye. The NLRB may get a crack at it. Meanwhile, it's rumored, company officials weren't sorry when the workers struck—did, in fact, invite it.

And the minister who invited Englishman Arnold-Foster resigned, quite unexpectedly. He didn't know it himself.

Warning! I've never seen it, but I like to remember the sign they tell me hangs somewhere between the second and third floors of Mercy hospital. "Don't worry," it warns, "It may never happen."

SARONILITES: Dean Baldwin's straw hats. ... Ed Kay's noticeably distinguished hair. ... Charlie Sanders' pin-striped suits. ... Prof. Shambaugh's brown tweeds, maroon ties. ... Bruce and Mrs. Mahan when they're both attired in white.

Prof. Lapp To Speak Tonight

Disintegration of Matter Will Be Topic Of Lecture

"The Disintegration of Matter," one of the most interesting and least understood of physics phenomena, will be the topic of a second of a series of popular physics lectures by Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department at 7 this evening in the auditorium of the physics building.

The lecture will deal with the spontaneous disintegration of matter, first discovered in 1896. Since that date, Professor Lapp points out, attempts have been made to control disintegration, but only very recently has any sort of control been effected.

Professor Lapp will discuss both natural and artificial disintegration of matter in his lecture, and will illustrate with a large number of slides. A large alpha ray track apparatus, whereby the track left by disintegrating radium in hydrogen may be seen, will be used as a demonstration of the phenomena which Professor Lapp will discuss.

The opening lecture last week dealt with facts concerning the air about us. The series will be continued next week with a consideration of "Waves and Their Ways."

Dr. Bose Tells Of Merging Of 2 Civilizations

The gradual coming together of two civilizations, the Eastern and the Western, through centuries of growing economic and political interdependence, was discussed yesterday by Dr. Sudhira Bose, lecturer in the political science department, in the second of a summer series of campus lectures dealing with Oriental contributions to the modern world.

"The chief obstacle to a better understanding between the East and the West," said Dr. Bose, "is the unconscious assumption of superiority—that the East has everything to learn from the West and little or nothing to give in return. This assumption of superiority is three-fold: racial, religious and industrial."

"In the matter of industrial progress, the West is undoubtedly the leader at the moment. But that material efficiency equates moral and spiritual superiority is never clear to anyone in the East."

"Are the Occidental peoples basically superior to those of the Orient? If the test of arms be considered as the yard stick, Asians appear to have been the superior race and leaders of the world more often and for much longer periods than the Europeans."

Dr. Bose reviewed the historical significance of past periods of dominance, both by the East and West, pointing out that from the 5th century B. C., when Greece was overrun by the Persians, down to the 18th century, the East ruled Europe for longer periods of time than the Europeans did Asia.

The speaker considered the decline of the most recent European domination, which began with the Russo-Japanese war in 1904, and asserted that "today the Orient is stirring again."

Born in Clemansville, Wis., in 1887, Hooton received his B.A. degree from Lawrence college in Appleton, Wis., and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Lawrence college in 1933.

He was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford university, where he received a diploma in anthropology. He was an instructor in that science at Harvard from 1913 to 1921, an assistant professor until 1927, an associate professor until 1930, and a professor since that time.

Hooton is a fellow in the Royal Anthropological institute and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and is a member of the American Anthropological association, the American Folk-lore society, the American Genetic association, the American Philosophical society, the American Society of Naturalists and other organizations.

Literary Works
Among his literary works are "Ancient Inhabitants of the Canary Islands," which appeared in 1925, "The Indians of Pecos," 1930, and "Up from the Ape," which appeared the following year. He is editor of "Harvard African Studies."

Will Durant, noted philosopher and lecturer, opened the summer series of lectures last week with a discussion of "The World Conflict" last Friday and a round table on "The Problems of Philosophy" Saturday morning.

Other leaders in educational and religious fields will continue the series through the summer.

Allen to Direct Second Forum

To Lead Discussion On Pressure Groups, Congress

Prof. Ethan Allen of the political science department will be the leader of the second of the university's summer series of campus forum programs, which will convene at 3:10 this afternoon in the campus course library on the third floor of Schaeffer hall.

Change

This afternoon's campus forum, and other meetings this week, will be held in the campus course library on the third floor of Schaeffer hall, since Old Capitol chambers are headquarters for other conference activities.

Professor Allen will direct a discussion of "Pressure Groups and Congress" at the forum, at which Prof. Kirk H. Porter of the political science department will act as chairman. The forum meetings are held in conjunction with Professor Porter's class in forum technique.

Our political organizations and defects in our representative system of government are responsible for existing pressure groups, Professor Allen points out. Our modern organization of pressure groups has come about through experience with such groups during the World War, the rise of propaganda and the development of advertising in its various forms.

Pressure groups are used, Professor Allen explains, as a means for a more or less continuous reflexion of public opinion, and such groups are to be regarded as a more or less favorable modification of our representative system of government.

Following the procedure of the opening forum last week, Professor Allen will devote some 30 minutes to the presentation of the subject, after which discussion from the floor will continue the forum.

The forums are designed to be interesting to all who desire a practical knowledge of contemporary affairs, and in particular to those engaged in public school work who may be affiliated with such activity.

Child Study Conference Opens; More Than 500 Registered As Bates Begins Lecture Series

Attendance Expected To Pass 1,000 Mark This Year

A banner day of lectures and round table discussions, covering many of the phases of the general conference theme, launched the 12th annual conference on child development and parent education on the university campus yesterday.

More than 500 persons had registered at conference headquarters early last night, with fully as many more expected to swell the attendance this year to well above the 1,000 mark.

Stewart Speaks

Crowded chambers in Old Capitol faced each of the conference speakers yesterday as the conference sessions began. Following a greeting by Prof. G. W. Stewart, head of the physics department, who spoke in the absence of President Eugene A. Gilmore, Sanford Bates of New York, noted criminologist and director of Boys' Clubs of America, opened the conference with a lecture on "Your Town and Your Child." Dr. Lois Barclay Murphy of Sarah Lawrence college in Bronxville, N. Y., concluded the morning session with a discussion of "Behavior Problems of the Normal Child."

Two round tables, conducted by the morning speakers, composed the afternoon session, and a discourse on "Why Children Go Wrong," and a program of sound films under the supervision of Prof. Ralph H. Ojemann, concluded the day's activities in the chemistry auditorium.

As the second day of the conference dawned, the theme changes to "Culture Impacts Upon the Child."

Guests Lecture

Three guest lecturers will share places on today's program. William H. Bristow, general secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Washington, D. C., opens the morning session in the chemistry auditorium at 9:30 with an address on "The Role of Parents and Teachers in Guiding Children." He will be followed at 10:15 this morning by Regina Flannery of the anthropology department of Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C., who will speak on "How Tribal Customs Affect Child Behavior."

'Brazen Rascals' Steal Bicycles In Police Yard

A miniature "crime wave" occurring in their own front yard had police perplexed yesterday. Their problem was to keep the wrong boys from riding away on bicycles left in front of the police station while their owners attended a movie.

During the evening bicycles belonging to Jack Fetig, 918 Iowa avenue, and Frank Chervinka, 1125 East Church street, left at the station for safekeeping, were ridden away — but not by their owners.

Police said they had agreed to the use of the police station yard for a parking lot for bicycles, but that they couldn't check them in and out to make sure the right owner rode them away.

They recommended the owners lock their bicycles, even if they were leaving them in front of the jail.

The majority of the establishments have been inspected twice, Commissioner Paulus said, some minor undesirable conditions having been corrected after the first inspection.

The health commissioner said that all establishments have cooperated to the fullest extent in establishing sanitary conditions at their places of business.
