Harvest Time Means Delay, Danger For Motorists

HARVEST time lies just ahead, and the Grim Reaper, the Harvester of the highways, is sharpening his scythe in preparation for a bumper crop of highway fatalities.

The late summer months bring on an increasing number of crashes between automobile traffic and farm vehicles — accidents which could and should be avoided.

Whereas the fatalities for the first half of 1937 numbered only 218, the last half total was 353. The increase was due largely to the accidents connected with harvest season activities.

With so many of our country roads replaced by paved highways, it is almost a necessity for farm implements to travel with the automobile traffic. However, with a little cooperation on the part of the farmer and the car driver, a minimum of time can be lost while a maximum of safety is maintained.

In recent years, farmers riding atop their loaded wagons have developed a series of signals for the motorists who have to follow them. By means of these signals, he is able to warn the motorist if a car should be approaching from the opposite direction. This is just one example of the cooperation shown between the driver of the hayrack and the driver of the automobile—there are countless mutual benefits shown daily on the open road.

Next time you fret behind a loaded wagon, remember that the farmer on the wagon is helping you instead of hindering you and that courtesy of the road is one of the finest acts of a gentleman today.

This Changing World—Howard Hughes And Peace

LAST WEEK END, just after Howard Hughes made his nationwide broadcast, telling how he had flown around the world in three and one-half days, explaining what it means to transportation of the future, our radio station switched to San Francisco.

There President Roosevelt reiterated that the United States will join the other nations of the world in disarmament, that our government wants peace.

It struck us that the need for peace must be even more dramatic in a time when a man can one day fly over the plains and wilds of Asia, the next over the cities and towns of the United States.

And that very day it was announced an air line will start regular trans-Atlantic passenger flights this fall.

We, think, yes, the world does move on.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

(Penny Singleton, actress and writer, today does a stint for our Hollywood columnist, Robbin Coons, who is on vacation.)

By PENNY SINGLETON HOLLYWOOD—"Hi Harvey," I hail the policeman at 6:45 a.m. at the gate of the Warner Brothers lot as I trundle past in my Ford. "I'm writing a column for Robbin Coons. Got any ideas?"

"Say, with my contacts," he grins, "I can get good dough for my ideas."

"You're right about that, Harvey," I retort, "anybody who knows a star is an influential person in Hollywood, no fooling."

"Yeh," he goes on, "a man offered to buy me the most expensive car in Hollywood if I'd let him in to see the boss — had a thousand dollars in bills in his pocket to prove it, too. But I like my old flivver and my job too well, I guess."

Look at the thriving business conducted by the guides to Movie Stars' Homes. They advertise their tour at stations along Sunset Boulevard. Last night, my phone rings and a man's voice at the end of the line wants to speak to Bill Powell.

When I say he has the wrong number, he is so mad he nearly breaks the phone. "And I paid $15 for that number, too," he roars.

Just another one of the minor industries — selling movie stars' phone numbers — at a price. I know a masseuse who tells me she could retire if she'd accept the bribes she's offered for introductions to some of her star customers. In one week, a portrait painter offered originals of her whole family for Christmas presents for one introduction, and an interior decorator proposed to redecorate her whole house, if—

While I'm parking my car in the studio garage the mechanic tells me he's about to hire a bodyguard. "But why," I say, looking at his 200 pounds.

"There have been three guys hounding me for a week trying to get me to recommend their garage service to Pat O'Brien and Anita Louise. I'm about to go nuts. Their chauffeurs are having the same trouble. People are always trying to bribe them for introductions or gossip they can give to magazines and newspapers."

By the time I've had my cup of coffee and am in the hair dressing room, it's 7:15. I'm plunked down under the dryer with my hair on curlers and decide to look at some magazines on the nearest stand. They're dated 1903-1912 and marked "Research — Bette Davis." I realize that they're the check for authentic hair styles for Bette's next picture, "The Sisters," which is laid in the 1903 period.

The hairdresser sees me looking at the pictures and remarks, "That Bette is certainly popular. A little girl I know offered me ten bucks if I'd just let her come in and watch Bette have her hair dressed."

"Oooh, I think to myself the contact business again."

"Penny, Penny," booms a voice over the studio Public Address system. "Are you daydreaming? You're due on the set."

"Zowie," I think to myself, "that's a contact I'd better not forget."

Grave Problems Face Southern States—All Agree on This Statement ATLANTA, July 18 (AP)—Representative southern economists agreed today this section faces and must solve grave economic problems, although some differed with President Roosevelt's assertion that the south's situation is the nation's "No. 1 problem."

Those supplying their views accepted low income as the worst of the sectional ills and the root of most of the others. There was no such unanimity on causes and cures, although a majority said tariffs and regional freight rates should be reduced.

Dr. S. M. Derrick, University of South Carolina economist, made no direct reference to the president's statement but said "national prosperity is impossible... as long as you have an area as large as the southeast with low wealth and low income."

He suggested a five-point program which included downward revision of the tariff and "parity" for the south in freight rates.

Dean Edgar H. Johnson of the school of business administration of Emory university said "undoubtedly the high tariff works a hardship on the south" and favored a federal subsidy for education.

Truman C. Bigham, professor of economics at the University of Florida and president of the southern economic association, found the president's proposals "highly commendable" and advocated reduction of freight rates as the first step toward rehabilitation.

E. J. Eberling, professor of economics at Vanderbilt university, cited detailed data to establish the south's economic backwardness and concluded "to reorganize the present economy of the south." He added that the president's letter "will have served a very useful purpose if it stimulates further research."

Tuning In with Loren Hickerson

OODS AND ENDS My vote for the best of the late songs goes to "I Hadn't Anyone 'Till You."

And for pure radio enjoyment, there's nothing nicer than the late orchestras on any of the networks. From 11 p.m. until almost any hour, advertisement-free sustaining programs are mighty fine.

And our little aria, "The Flat Foot Floogie," has something, I've discovered, that makes it more or less interesting.

Which reminds us that its a frequent occurrence in the radio world to compose a song without rhyme or reason and see it go to the top on that merit alone. Take "The Music Goes Round and Round."

Maybe "The Floogie" will take us for another whirl like that!

Presenting... ONE COL MAT BURNS & ALLE Radio's wackiest pair, George Burns and Gracie Allen, heard at 6 o'clock on Mondays over WLW and the NBC network.

Just which one of the two is the stooze, nobody has ever bothered to figure out. If it's Gracie, George is the more popular for it.

For according to Billy House, co-star of the new CBS "Laugh Linker," successful comedians all let their stooges take the laughs.

Health Hints

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

When our still new knowledge of the vitamins was still newer, the idea became pretty general among practicing physicians that while it was necessary to see to it that certain vitamins were present in children's diets, the adult could pretty well get along without giving any thought to whether his diet had vitamins in it or not.

A well-balanced diet of any adult, they said, contained enough vitamins anyway. Children's diet needed the addition of vitamins C and D, which prevented respectively scurvy and rickets; this was proved by experience because on what seemed to be a well-balanced diet for a child, these diseases developed with great regularity.

Besides that, vitamins influence such things as growth and immunity, and hence are especially needed in childhood.

But there is a trend toward the idea that at least one vitamin is very necessary in adult life and middle age and that perhaps for some reason the adult does not get enough of it. And that for this reason it should be added to the diet in concentrated form.

The vitamin the adult needs is B. According to formal classifications there are two B's, but probably the adult needs both of them.

Vitamin B is being used to augment the diet in liver deficiency, in anemia, in gout, in arthritis, in some forms of heart trouble, for lack of stomach secretions, in neuritis and in loss of tone of the bowel.

It will be noticed that all of these conditions belong to what might be called the degenerative changes of middle age.

When one asks why there should be a Vitamin B deficiency in middle age, the answers are several. In the first place, the chief source of Vitamin B in the food is in yeast, whole wheat bread, cereals, liver and kidney—the concentration of the vitamin being in the order named. Now it is a matter of ordinary observation that in middle age people tend to give up eating cereal and bread and many dislike liver and kidneys so much they never eat them. So it is quite possible there is a normal dietary deficiency of the vitamins.

Stomach disorders will cut down the appetite, and in middle age the liver function falls off and as a consequence, the vitamin is not absorbed or utilized in the body.

A specific example of this lack of utilization of the vitamins is seen in drunkards, who may develop alcoholic neuritis, simply because they eat little and have an impaired digestion. If vitamin B concentrate is given them, even though they continue their alcoholic habits, the neuritis clears up.

Pittsburgh Turns Back Giants, 7-4

Wisconsin Expects Good Team

Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of eight articles that will appear in The Daily Iowan between now and the opening of the football season, dealing with Iowa's 1938 football opponents.

By SCOTTY FISHER Daily Iowan Sports Editor With eight starting members of last year's eleven returning for duty this fall, Wisconsin, Iowa's second opponent on the 1938 football schedule, figures to be definitely stronger than in 1937.

One of the leading end candidates for the 1938 Wisconsin eleven is James Dean of Madison. A junior this year, Dean played one year on the Navy team.

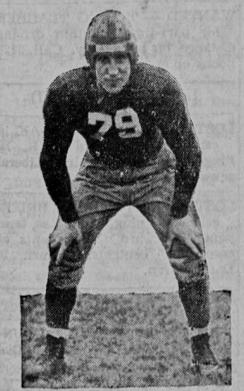

Gordon Gile of Shorewood, Wis., (above), is a likely looking sophomore who will be pushing the four returning lettermen at the end hard in an attempt to win a starting assignment.

Good Year Stuhlreher, leading his squad in a climb from the lower regions of the Big Ten standings, experienced a successful season last year, his second at Madison, when the Badgers lost only to Pittsburgh's mighty Panthers, Minnesota's Big Ten champs, and Northwestern. The team is expected to be better this year but the schedule is also stiffer with Indiana and U. C. L. A. replacing Chicago and South Dakota State.

1937 Results Wisconsin 32; South Dakota State 0 Wisconsin 12; Marquette 0 Wisconsin 27; Chicago 0 Wisconsin 13; Iowa 6 Wisconsin 0; Pittsburgh 21 Wisconsin 6; Northwestern 14 Wisconsin 7; Purdue 7 Wisconsin 6; Minnesota 13

maned by John Doyle, (who may be shifted to center), Lynn Howland and John O'Brien from the 1937 team, in addition to William Davies, a minor letterwinner. Pressing them will be five husky ex-fros—Richard Embick, Carl Faust, Nicholas Jacque, Robert Holloway and Baptiste Mazza.

Candidates for the pivot position will be John Murray, a regular last year, and Orville Fisher, a minor letterwinner in 1937. Possible Lineup A possible first-string line will consist of Moeller and Weigandt at the ends, Garrott and Brodhagen at the tackles, Howland and Holloway at the guards and Murray at center, with a second eleven made up of Gile and Dean at the ends, Eckl and Tornow at Weiss and Schmitz Weiss will be remembered by Iowa fans for his powerful drives through the line although it was the slippery-hipped Schmitz that turned the tide against Iowa last year when he entered the game. A possible backfield lineup for 1938 will find Gavre at quarterback, Schmitz at left half, Bellin at right half and Weiss at fullback.

In the line, 12 letter-winning stalwarts will form a strong nucleus for Stuhlreher's front wall next year. The ends will be plentiful with John Loehrke, Ralph Moeller, James Riordan and Bob Weigandt all back but they will be pushed hard by Gordon Gile of Shorewood, up from the frosh and James Dean, a junior who played one year on the Navy team.

Tackles At the tackles, Albert Dorsch, Robert Eckl and Eugene Brodhagen will be back from last year's varsity, along with Abraham Soref and Berton Conley who won minor letters. Chief competition furnished by new men will come from Sophomore Elmer Tornow and William Garrott, who made a basketball letter at Wisconsin in 1938, and who will be playing his first football. Although new at the game, he has shown a great deal of ability and is expected to break into the starting lineup.

The guard positions will be

Swift Stars In Relief Role

Rizzo's Three-Run Homer Helps Pirates Retain League Lead

PITTSBURGH, July 18 (AP)—Effective relief work by Bill Swift saved the day for the Pirates as they whipped the New York Giants today, 7 to 4, and thus took a half-game lead over the New Yorkers in the tight National league race.

Sent away to a three run lead—on Johnny Rizzo's third inning homer run with two on base, the Pirates slugged Dick Coffman for five hits and four more runs in the seventh, then needed Swift's best efforts to hold off Giant threats in the last two frames.

BITS about Sports

By SCOTTY FISHER

Eric Wilson issued his midsummer prospectus on the 1938 Iowa football team yesterday. It looks as though the secret of the Hawkeyes' success or failure lies in the line. Ten backs from last year's varsity are returning as against nine linemen. Sophomores will play a prominent part in Coach Irl Tubbs' scheme. Most unfortified spot is center, left vacant by Dick Anderson. Sophomores will have to fill the pivot position. Leading candidates are Bruno Andruska of Chicago and Jack Edling of Moorhead, Minn.

Big Henry Luebbe, over-sized tackle who broke his ankle after playing one game for the Old Gold last year, was in town over the week end. Doctors at University hospital pronounced his leg O. K. and Henry expects to be back this fall. His presence in the lineup can make a lot of difference in that forward wall. Backfield material is plentiful with several heralded sophomores coming up. Mike Enich, who backs up a line the way it should be backed up, should really go places. I hope Al Schenk will be in good shape this year. Injuries kept him out during all of last season but he looked mighty good as a sophomore in 1936. Frank Balazs should have a good year during the latter part of last year the big Chicago fullback was hitting the line like a ton of bricks. Capt. Jack Eicherly should prove to be a fine leader. In the spring intrasquad game he played with more fire and dash than he had ever shown.

Station WSUI Will Receive New Equipment

$94,500 Available For Construction of New Radio Educational Unit

A $45,000 PWA grant, to supplement $49,500 in state funds which were appropriated last week to the university by the legislative interim committee, has been allocated to the University of Iowa for its new radio educational program. Announcement of the grant was made yesterday by R. A. Radford, regional public works administrator at Omaha.

The money will be used in the construction of a radio education unit adjoining the engineering building. According to the terms of the grant, work must begin before Jan. 1. The new building will be the center of all radio educational activities of the university. Included will be new studios, classrooms, a workshop and assembly room.

Part of the $94,500 will also be used for the purchase of a new transmitter for station WSUI. The transmitter may be located outside the city limits. Directional antennae are also included in the improvement program.

The university station officials have made application with the federal communications commission for an increased daytime power of 5,000 watts. At present the station is operating on 1,000 watts.

S.U.I. Theater To Give 'Stage Door' Tonight

The curtain of University theater will rise at 8 o'clock tonight on the first of three performances of "Stage Door."

A cast of 32, most of them graduate students, will present the three performances.

The play, a Broadway success a few seasons ago, was given five performances here last year in the drawing room theater, but the limited seating capacity enabled less than 300 persons to see it.

Its setting the theatrical Footlights club of New York City, "Stage Door" deals with the problems of the girls who stay there.

Will Vote Monday on New Paving for Iowa City Streets

Property Owners Object To Proposed City Improvements

Maintain Additional Assessments Will Be Heavy Tax Burden

Voting on the proposed plans to pave several city streets will be held next Monday, it was decided last night after hearings were held by the city council.

Owners whose properties are on streets to be paved objected vigorously, maintaining it would be too great a burden.

Petitioners from the Center, Bloomington and Reno street section said that "it is hard enough for us to make ends meet now, without being burdened by additional assessments."

George D. Koser, speaking for the owners in the College street district, declared paving would not be of "special benefit to business on that street."

"It would be nice," he said, "but we can see no reason for paving at this time."

In regard to the section on Linn street, from Washington to Burlington street, all private property owners, except the Standard Oil company objected to the pavings.

Owners in the Iowa avenue area, with the exception of the university, also objected to the proposed plans of paving Iowa avenue from Clinton to Gilbert streets on the same grounds as others.

No written objection was made regarding the remainder of the areas where plans had been made for paving.

Residents of the Black Spring circle district requested the changes be made in specifications of the paving.

Voting on the proposed rehabilitation of the streets could not be completed last night because of the absence of two councilmen. A 60 per cent vote of the entire council is required to override a protest.

The objections have been referred to a committee including Councilmen Phelps, Reilly and Means, who will meet with the city engineer.

Kiwanis Club Will Entertain

Instead of the regular noon luncheon today, members of the Iowa City Kiwanis club will entertain at 6 o'clock this evening on the front porch of the country club.

Wives and guests will be present at the meeting this evening. No special program has been planned.

All druggists, their families and friends in any of the five counties have been invited.

A basket picnic dinner will be served at the City park at 1 p.m., followed by games and prizes in the afternoon. Golf at the Finkbine course will be played starting at 8 a.m.

A meeting of the Johnson County Wildlife Conservation club has been announced for tonight by H. E. McPherson, president. The 8 o'clock meeting will be in the City hall.

Bose to Speak This Afternoon

"The Challenge of Turkey" will be the theme of Dr. Sindhira Bose at 3:10 this afternoon, as he presents the weekly campus lecture on Oriental contributions to civilization.

The political science lecturer will speak in the house chamber of Old Capitol.

The speaker will view Turkey, long the "sick man" of Europe, as she is today. He will discuss a five-point fundamental program of revolution there, involving republicanism, secularism, nationalism, modernism of agriculture and industry, and a program of controlled economy.

Kemal Ataturk, who created the Turkish republic, is regarded, Dr. Bose points out, as a "new dealer before Roosevelt."

He will consider Ataturk in comparison with Roosevelt and his famous contemporaries in Europe and Asia, speaking especially of his political and sociological philosophy.

Stage Set For Trans-Atlantic Flight by Pavana

Captain Alex Pavana

View of Pavana's transatlantic plane

Here is Captain Alex Pavana, noted aviator and stunt flyer, as he readied his streamlined plane at Detroit preparatory to taking off on a transatlantic flight. Pavana hopes to fly direct to Bucharest, capital of Rumania. Pavana is a member of the Rumanian Royal Air Force and has an impressive aviation record. His flying has been one of the features of the national air races for several years. The tentative route which Pavana plans to follow will take him over a distance of about 5,000 miles by the northern route.

Today marks the opening of the second half of the playground season, and total registration includes about 700 children. City-wide attendance stands at 6,800.

A series of special events has been planned for the second half of the summer, including an inter-playground track and field meet, bicycle races and novelty contests, a Family Night program and a final demonstration and craft exhibit.

Future of Our Government In Doubt - Dykstra

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 18 (AP)—Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, declared in an address here today that representative government "is in the balance and unless the situation is solved safely and sanely the whole future is in doubt."

"Dictatorships live on distemper," he asserted. "A sound educational program calling for freedom and individual security hand in hand is the only absolute guarantee for both."

Corrigan--

good job of flying and it means something to aviation.

The news of the flight to Ireland with the crudest of implements just about knocked Hughes galleys west today but he recovered, fumbled for words and gasped: "It's very, very remarkable."

Corrigan's flight, like Lindbergh's, was made on a shoe-string; but whereas Lindbergh had the financial backing of prominent St. Louisans, Corrigan—so far as anyone knows—put together only his own savings and mechanical ability for probably the most amazing overseas flight in history.

On arrival here July 9, he figured he'd sleep in a hangar to save expense, but a friend took him home and provided for him. Corrigan ate sparingly, as usual.

Hairless and with tousled hair, he is somewhat like Lindbergh in many respects, especially in speech. Both flew alone without radio or modern navigating aids. They depended on "dead reckoning" and didn't miss. Neither had passport visas, neither had more than small change, neither carried much food; their planes are similar in type but of different make, have about the same speed and cruising range and made about the same speed across the Atlantic.

Lindbergh was 25 when he made his great hop, Corrigan is 31.

When Lindbergh landed in Paris 11 years ago, the amazed world gave him the inept name of "Lucky."

And Corrigan is lucky, too. Lucky that another Irishman is the head of the federal bureau of air commerce, certain to be lenient over an unauthorized trans-Atlantic flight on what he calls "a great day for the Irish."

Bender Names Oliver White to Succeed Dean E. Lewis in Police Department

Oliver A. White, 324 N. Lucas street, has been named by Police Chief W. H. Bender to succeed Dean E. Lewis, originally appointed to serve in the department.

Stating in a letter to the local civil service commission that he has accepted a position with a local insurance office, Lewis asked that his name be removed from the eligible list for policemen.

The civil service commission notified Chief Bender of the acceptance of Lewis' resignation, and the second appointment for the vacancy was then made. White ranked among the top candidates in the examination, Bender said.

White was graduated from Tama high school and took one year's post-graduate work at the school. He is 33 years old and is married. He has been employed as a salesman for a national organization for the last nine years.

White will start work Wednesday morning, Bender said. He will probably be assigned to the day shift for two or three weeks and then be transferred to the night shift for regular duty.

Marie--

ter of Czar Alexander II of Russia.

The queen will be buried at the palace of Kurtea de Argesch, 80 miles from Bucharest, next to her husband.

Center of a long series of personal tragedies, Queen Marie nevertheless always maintained a gracious, smiling front.

These tragedies included the assassination of numerous relatives in Russia during the revolution, the death of her husband, the divorces of Carol from Princess Helen of Greece and of her daughter Princess Elizabeth from the present King George of Greece, Carol's renunciation of rights to the throne before his father died, and the assassination of her son-in-law, Xander of Yugoslavia, at Marseille in 1934.

During Britain's stirring abdication crisis in December, 1936, Queen Marie defended King Edward VIII in his course, and a few days before his abdication counseled England to "rely" on Edward.

War veterans especially were grieved at the sad news. When she visited the trenches and hospitals regularly during the World war they called her the "good and beautiful mother."

King Carol spent 15 minutes praying in the room where his mother died. He emerged looking grave and haggard.

Six months "grand mourning" was ordered for the royal court and the army.

The queen's testament will be opened tomorrow in the presence of the royal family and members of the cabinet.

A special train will bring the body to Bucharest Wednesday accompanied by the family and high government officials.

The funeral was expected to be held Sunday.

Loyalists Build Hurried Forts

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish frontier), July 18 (AP)—Spanish government militiamen labored today on hasty fortifications before Viver in an effort to stem the insurgent tide rolling toward Valencia in the third year of the civil war.

Viver, 34 miles north northwest of Valencia, is on the Teruel-Mediterranean highway approximately 25 miles northwest of Sagunto.

Gen. Jose Miaja, government commander, ordered new defenses on Ragudo hill, less than two miles northwest of Viver, following the smashing of government lines during the week end.
