Embassy in Tokyo Denies Reporting Clipper Found Piles Up Lead Of 32,244 In Late Report

Navy Reported Clipper Near Douglas Reef

Japanese Radio Ship To Search For Plane At That Position

TOKYO, Aug. 7 (Sunday) (AP)—The Japanese navy today radioed the steamer Canberra, en route from Australia to Japan, to go by way of Douglas reef to look for the missing Hawaii Clipper.

The navy's announcement of the order said the United States embassy had reported the big plane found and asked aid. The embassy later denied this.

Douglas reef is just north of the route the clipper expected to follow from Guam to Manila when she took off July 28 with nine crew members and six passengers aboard.

Eugene H. Dooman, counselor of the American embassy, said the Pan-American airways had calculated the clipper might be in the vicinity of Douglas reef and had asked the embassy to request Japanese aid.

As a result, he said, he asked the Japanese navy if such help could be given and the navy radioed the Canberra Maru, which appeared to be the nearest vessel to the reef.

The navy's first announcement said definitely that the clipper had been found. A later announcement, however, said the information came from the United States embassy.

The embassy denial quickly ended a flurry of excitement which followed the reports.

Today, J. T. Trippe, president of the Pan American Airways system, said in New York that "We are regretfully forced to the assumption that the Hawaii Clipper, with all aboard, was lost at sea early in the afternoon of July 28."

The Hawaii Clipper was the third of three 4-engine, 3,800-horse-power flying boats designed by the Glenn L. Martin company of Baltimore, Md., and commissioned for trans-Pacific service.

One of the largest transport aircraft in service anywhere in the world, the clipper had a gross weight of 52,000 pounds, a length of 90 feet and wing span of 130 feet.

State Department Issues Statement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The state department issued the following statement tonight concerning the search for the missing Hawaii clipper:

"The state department this afternoon informed the American embassy at Tokyo that the Pan American airways believes the Hawaiian clipper may be in the vicinity of Parece Vela (Douglas Reef), 20 degrees 25 minutes north and 136 degrees and five minutes east, which is in the approximate area of probable drift and would greatly appreciate a search."

Newburn Will Study Abroad

Harry K. Newburn, director of the university secondary school, principal of University high school and associate professor of education at the University of Iowa, will leave today for England and Scotland on a three-month leave of absence from his duties here.

Mrs. Newburn will accompany her husband. They will sail Wednesday on the Queen Mary.

Principal Newburn will study secondary education and teacher training in England and Scotland, under the auspices of the Carnegie foundation.

The couple will return about the middle of November, when Principal Newburn will re-assume his duties at the university and University high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Kamby will live in the Newburn home while Principal and Mrs. Newburn are gone, caring for the Newburn children, Jacquelyn and Bobby.

ANOTHER 'HOPPER' German Plane Poised For Flight

BREMEN, Germany, Aug. 6 (AP)—Germany's latest, fastest and largest all-metal landplane, a 26-passenger, four-motored monoplane of the Condor type, stood in its Bremen airport hangar tonight poised for a non-stop flight to New York.

Its departure originally was set for Sunday morning, but was postponed, at least until Monday. Apparently delay arose in connection with the crew or cargo.

Preparations for the flight had been made in secrecy, and leaked out only after word came from Washington that the flight was about to be undertaken.

UAW Expels Three Officers

Fourth Suspended From Office For Three Months

DETROIT, Aug. 6 (AP)—The United Automobile Workers of America's executive board tonight removed from office and expelled from the C.I.O. union three of four suspended international vice-presidents. The fourth was suspended from office for three months.

Those given the most severe penalty possible under the union's constitution are Richard T. Frankenstein, Wyndham Mortimer and Ed Hall.

Walter N. Wells was suspended for three months dating from June 13, the day President Homer Martin suspended the four and also Secretary-Treasurer George F. Ades.

Ades was tried by the board first, alone, and removed from office and expelled from the U.A.W. a month ago.

Martin charged the five officers with conspiring to "disrupt" the union and turn it over to the communists.

The disciplined officers retaliated with charges that Martin's administration was dominated by Jay Lovestone, head of the independent communist labor league.

Martin was grim-faced as he slowly announced the verdict of the 18 members of the board who tried the officers. None of the defendants appeared before the board at the resumption of their trial today.

The U.A.W. president said Wells' penalty was lighter because he "never was identified with the so-called communist conspiracy."

Wells incurred disfavor, Martin explained, because of his opposition to a group insurance plan for the union membership proposed by Martin.

Martin said Wells will be eligible to resume his vice-presidency Sept. 13.

The four vice-presidents spent most of the day with their attorney, Maurice Sugar, who had objected to the change in trial procedure adopted by the board.

Was Sought for Questioning

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—An ex-convict who was shot to death when he attempted to escape from Hot Springs, Ark., officers Thursday, had been sought for questioning in two of the southwest's major mysteries, Sheriff Chris Fox said here yesterday.

Union Looks To Further Negotiations

Sentner Lists More Charges Against Company for NLRB

TOLEDO, Ia.—Governor hits outside labor leaders in first public word since factory opening.

DES MOINES—Union plans negotiation meeting with company representatives.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 6 (AP)—An augmented board of CIO union strategy tonight looked to further conferences with company representatives for negotiations toward settlement in the Maytag labor controversy.

James J. Matles of New York city, director of organization for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, arrived here today to aid the Maytag local.

He and William Sentner, national vice-president from St. Louis, Mo., planned to meet at 4 p.m. tomorrow with company representatives and the local's executive council to continue negotiations.

Sentner, meanwhile, drew up additional charges against the Maytag company to add to those already being heard by a national labor relations board trial examiner here.

The charges, he said, included violation of the Wagner act by the discharge of 12 men the Iowa national guard military commission recommended be fired for unlawful activities.

The guardsmen continued to patrol Newton after opening the plant for production Thursday under martial law.

The factory was idle, as usual, today under provisions of the 40-hour week.

A. H. Taylor, plant superintendent, said operations Friday were "completely normal" and that 17 carloads of washing machines were shipped out.

Maj. Gen. Mathew A. Tinley, commanding the guardsmen in Newton, announced meanwhile that his military commission was studying the letters sent out to 275 workers Friday advising them they had been identified as sitdown strikers and that their cases would be investigated. The sitdowners held the plant from June 23 to July 1.

"Time has been insufficient," Gen. Tinley said, "to properly evaluate the letter to determine whether the action on the part of the company was, or was not, of an inflammatory nature."

Governor Kraschke, in his first public utterance since he issued the proclamation opening the plant, declared in a speech at Toledo, Ia., Friday against outside labor leaders and criticized the "adamant" attitude of the Maytag company.

Last-minute Campaign Photos of Barkley, Chandler

Senator Had Support Of President In Bitter Campaign

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 6 (AP)—Sen. Alben W. Barkley's lead on returns from today's democratic senatorial primary over Gov. A. B. Chandler was 32,244 at 11:30 p.m., central standard time tonight.

The report at this hour was from 3,106 of the state's 4,313 precincts. Eighty counties were complete. Kentucky has 120 counties.

Leads 7 Districts

The tabulation gave Barkley 208,804 and Chandler 176,560.

Senator Barkley was leading in seven of the nine congressional districts.

The first report from Jefferson (Louisville) county of 36 precincts gave Barkley 3,247 votes to 849 for Chandler. The counting in the county did not begin until after 9 p.m. (central standard time).

A check of the votes by districts showed Barkley leading in five of the nine congressional districts. In the sixth district, embracing Kentucky's famous bluegrass region, the vote was Chandler 20,120 and Barkley 19,994. Chandler had slight leads in the eighth and ninth districts in the mountainous region of eastern Kentucky. Barkley was ahead in the seventh district by a small margin.

Haswell Leads

In the republican senatorial primary John P. Haswell continued to pick up a lead over his four opponents. Haswell had the backing of the state administration. Haswell's vote was 6,694 on returns from 874 precincts in 38 counties.

In a national broadcast tonight from his home in Versailles Governor Chandler said "all the power of the federal government" had been used "to bring about my defeat."

"As you know the president came to Kentucky and made a speech against us," he said. "They ran the WPA from 33,000 to about 100,000."

In conclusion the governor said: "We've made a gallant campaign and still have a smile on our face and a song in our hearts."

Speaks Over Radio

A further check of the congressional district totals showed Senator Barkley had a substantial lead in western Kentucky. In the first district—his home—Barkley had 30,591 votes to 17,979 for Chandler. In the adjoining second, Barkley was ahead 34,997 to 26,237 for the governor.

Senator Barkley in a radio speech from Paducah said:

"My friends, I have very little to say, except that I'm delighted with what seems to be an overwhelming nomination to the United States senate."

"It has been a hard fight—one that I did not think I'd have to make. But in a sense it was a blessing in disguise. It gave me an opportunity to meet more people than ever before in my political history."

"To all persons who supported me, I extend my heartfelt gratitude; and to those who opposed me, now that the battle is over, I hope we will close ranks and make a victory in November larger than any in the state's history."

Election Near, Ohio Faces Investigation

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 6 (AP)—The oft-investigated democratic administration of Gov. Martin L. Davey faced a federal inquiry of old age pension law violations tonight almost on the eve of Ohio's Tuesday's primary election.

Davey, seeking a third term nomination is opposed by Charles Sawyer, national democratic committeeman, whose forces have charged administration workers were "intimidating" old age pensioners to vote for Davey.

The social security board set off a new blast in a bombastic campaign today with announcement in Washington it might cut off old age pension funds for Ohio because of alleged political activities of Davey and H. J. Berrold, state pension division chief.

It ordered an immediate investigation of charges Davey and Berrold sought to influence pension recipients' votes. The state and federal government share equally the cost of pensions for 110,542 persons in Ohio.

Letters were sent to pensioners with their checks recalling Davey's part in securing pension fund increases, the board said. It declared this was "contrary to the purposes of the social security act and of the laws of Ohio."

Davey attributed the investigation to a "desperate eleventh hour effort of our political enemies."

He challenged the board to find anything "that could be used as a thin excuse to cut off federal allotments for old age pensions."

The governor said the board's representatives had commended the operation of the Ohio system.

Death Takes 'Charlie Chan' Screen Star Warner Oland Dies in Sweden Of Bronchial Pneumonia

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 6 (AP)—Warner Oland, the Charlie Chan who escaped a thousand terrible deaths on the screen, died of bronchial pneumonia today in his native Sweden.

When the 57-year old star of the stage and screen died, his estranged wife, the former Edith Shearn of the stage, was preparing for a hurried trip from here to his bedside.

The end came in a Stockholm, Sweden, hospital.

Mrs. Oland was so overcome by the news that she cancelled reservations on airplanes and steamers, made five days ago when she first learned of her husband's illness. She received word only yesterday that his condition was critical.

Harrison Ryon, the widow's attorney, said Oland would be buried in the little Swedish town of Umeo, his birthplace, as he requested.

Oland's departure to Sweden more than a month ago was almost as mysterious as were the movements of Author Earl Derr Biggers' famous detective that he portrayed.

He had reached a separate maintenance agreement with his wife after her suit filed a year ago, and patched up differences with his Hollywood studio, which temporarily suspended him after an unannounced departure from the set.

Battles Rage As Diplomats Talk Peace

YUKI, Korea (Near the Siberian Border), Aug. 7 (Sunday) (AP)—A Japanese communique said today Soviet Russian troops staged a night attack on disputed Changkufeng hill but were repulsed with heavy losses.

The communique said three Soviet regiments began advancing shortly before dusk Saturday, accompanied by many tanks.

They charged Japanese positions and by midnight were repulsed after severe hand-to-hand fighting, the communique said.

Japanese reported today that about 100 Soviet airplanes were involved in yesterday's invasion of Korean territory.

In addition to two Soviet planes said to have been downed by anti-aircraft fire, four heavy Russian guns were said to have been silenced by retaliatory Japanese shelling.

While Japan's undeclared border conflict with Soviet Russia raged unabated on the Siberian frontier diplomats of the two powers tried to bring peace out of their still widely divergent viewpoints.

(The military situation was believed to have taken a grave turn with Japanese retaliation expected.)

Domei—Japanese news agency—reported the Japanese ambassador to Moscow, Mamoru Shigemitsu, had received fresh instructions to proceed with diplomatic negotiations sticking to lines already laid down in conferences with Soviet foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff.

Japan first suggested mutual troop withdrawals from the danger zone pending demarcation of the frontier between Siberia and Japanese-supported Manchoukuo.

Continued Upturn in Business Reported by Analysts of Nation

Wise Men Demo Belittles G.O.P. Chicago Session

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Charles Michelson, the democratic party's publicity director, said today that the only result of the republican program committee's meeting at Chicago was to show that "the minority party hasn't the slightest idea where it is going or how it shall get to any destination."

He added in a statement to the press that the five day's session "of the hundred G. O. P. wise men" produced only a report that the nation faced a breakdown of its economic system and disintegration of "responsible and effective government."

"Nowhere in the report," said Michelson, "is there any suggestion as to how the alleged breakdown of the economic system is to be averted or the disintegration of government is to be checked."

The democratic spokesman predicted that when republicans adopt a platform at their 1940 convention "it will not enlighten the people of this country as to the aims, purposes and principles of the minority outfit any more than does the statement" issued by the group at Chicago. He continued:

"Why should they expect the people to believe that with Mr. Hoover again in the White House, or Mr. Landon, or Senator Vandenberg... the country would get any better deal than they gave it before?"

Stock Market Shows Staying Power After Soaring in June

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Analysts who scanned the nation's business this week found it good.

As in recent weeks, they discovered no spectacular items of improvement, but rather a gradual accumulation of forces.

Two facts stood out. The steel industry, normally dull at this season, showed more strength. Consumers goods industries—which produce things people use and replace—held gains stubbornly in some lines and moved forward in others.

Showing improvement along with the steel industry were the railroads and the power producers. Automobile makers, preparing to turn out new models, throttled production down to a new low for 1938.

Although muggy August weather dulled the edge of trade in some sections, most regions reported a resumption of moderate gains.

When the stock market soared in the middle of June, it caught many business experts off guard. Some thought it a flash in the pan, a few had explanations for the climb, but most said they would wait and see if it showed staying power. So far, it has.

Once more this week, while demand quickened for pivotal steels, coppers, motors and store shares, analysts heralded higher prices as harbingers of better days to come.

Proposed Restoring of Two-thirds Rule May Be Weapon to Fight Roosevelt Third Term

By JOHN W. HENDERSON
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—A proposal to restore the two-thirds rule in the 1940 democratic convention may become a rallying point for anti-administration democrats if President Roosevelt stands for a third term.

A group of southern politicians is already calculating the chances of winning enough northern support in 1940 to restore the rule, which once gave the "solid south" an effective veto power in party councils.

This same group formed a bloc in the last congress against some of the president's legislative proposals.

Under the two-third rule, scrapped in 1932 when Mr. Roosevelt was nominated, no candidate could win the democratic presidential nomination without a two-thirds convention vote. The south had more than a third of the delegates and thus could withhold the nomination from anyone it opposed. Without the rule, which often threw democratic conventions into a deadlock for weeks at a time, a simple majority has the power to choose the party's candidate.

If anti-Roosevelt forces could muster a majority in favor of the two-thirds regulation in 1940, they would capture a potent weapon with which to fight any third-term drive. The rule would enable a third of the convention to prevent renomination of the president.

Russia Agrees by Treaty To Increase Purchases From U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The United States and Soviet Russia renewed today a commercial agreement in which the Soviets expressed the intention of increasing their purchases of American goods beyond a minimum of $40,000,000 a year.

This minimum was exceeded in the first nine months of the year covered by the previous agreement, which expired yesterday. In this period—the latest for which figures are available—and American imports of Russian goods were $17,561,000.

The renewal was effected through an exchange of notes at Moscow between Alexander C. Kirk, the American charge d'affaires, and Maxim Litvinoff, foreign affairs commissar.

In return for the guaranteed Soviet purchases, this government gives Russian imports benefits of the tariff and other concessions in the reciprocal trade treaties already signed with 17 nations.

In extending the agreement the United States made a reservation, however, regarding imports of Soviet coal, which are limited to 400,000 tons annually.

This Talk About the World's Dishonesty

Evidence to support the theory that honesty is on the upturn may not be very promising, we'll admit; but in certain moods we think it can be found.

George M. Rentschler of Springfield, Ill., asked the state to take back $1,500 which he estimated he didn't earn as an investigator for the state treasurer's office.

Judge William P. Woods of the Corporation Court at Alexandria, Va., told the city council he doesn't want a $500 salary increase to which he is legally entitled.

And an unidentified man dropped $29 in nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars in the lobby of a Chicago bank.

If nobody minds, then we'll have a quiet, little beam when they talk about this "dishonest" world, if nobody minds.

We Think It's a Bouquet For S. U. I.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that two University of Iowa professors are soon to leave, one of them today, on leaves of absence from the university.

One of them is Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education. The other is Principal Harry K. Newburn of University high school, who is also an associate professor in the college of education.

Dean Packer will leave in a week or more for the Philippine islands, where, with President E. C. Elliott of Purdue university, he will serve as an advisor on the educational program in the Philippines.

Principal Newburn will study secondary education and teacher training in Scotland and England for three months, under the auspices of the Carnegie foundation.

It seems significant to us that two of our own professors should be chosen to carry out important functions in widely separated points on the globe.

The significance lies in the fact that apparently Iowa's instructors are recognized for their ability far beyond the realms of the university, Iowa City and the state.

And we call attention to the fact that with the recognition of the ability of Iowa instructors by other institutions, there is always the danger that in other sections of the country there may be positions open for these men which pay more money.

It's the old question again, from a slightly new angle. Dare the state of Iowa take further chances at losing instructors who are nationally recognized for their ability because of underpaying them, as the past three years, we fear, will bear witness?

University Calendar: Monday, August 8; Friday, August 26. Independent Study Unit begins. Summer Session ends.

General Notices

Independent Study Unit: The three-week independent study unit is designed only for such students as are registered this summer in the graduate college, in case it appears to them, and the departments in which they may wish to register, practicable to undertake a definite study project, not exceeding three semester hours.

ther systematic study is directed to the availability of correspondence courses.

Doubleless any such student can enroll for such a correspondence course immediately after the close of the present session, Aug. 8, and at least make a substantial start upon the completion of such a course prior to the opening of the new university year, Sept. 27, if he contemplates registering at that time as a resident student.

And, this being Sunday, you'll be expecting to hear a straight three hours of splendid entertainment beginning at 6 o'clock on the NBC-Red network.

The program to which I refer are Charlie McCarthy, Manhattan Merry-Go-Round, Frank Munn's Bayer Asperin program, Horace Heidt and his brigadiers and the University of Chicago roundtable.

Included in those programs is all the diversified and enjoyable entertainment one could wish for a happy Sunday evening.

SWING SCORES A HIT: In Chicago, where Benny Goodman, the swing king (I like that) returned to entrance his home town with a concert of swing music.

The concert was lauded by all of Chicago's music critics, the session that Goodman and his boys staged caused the ordinarily sedate audience to go wild and the echoes were still thundering the next morning in the form of lavish praise in Chicago newspapers.

Are Nail Polishes Harmful? Many Persons Want to Know

LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., phosphate, butyl stearate, camphor or resin.

Many of these have possible irritating effects on the skin or drying and crumbling effects on the nail. From the acetates mentioned, acetic acid may be formed and to this has been ascribed the nail injury, consisting of brittleness and cracking.

Castello in his book on diseases of the fingernails, writing of fragile and brittle nails, says that "the cause in some cases is excessive and too frequent manicuring. The constant use of colored enamels and ethyl acetate or acetone to dissolve them produces the excessive dryness and consequently the nails lose their elasticity. Cuticle removers, which consist of solutions of potassium hydrate, are also contributing factors."

Lacquer removers can also be toxic to certain people.

HEADLINES... in the radio programs of today...

John Galsworthy's dynamic tale of a doctor just released from prison and his reaction to the world outside, will be dramatized and broadcast by the WPA federal theater radio division in "Their Greatest Stories" series of the Mutual system and Canadian network at 3:30 today.

"Late... 299" is the name of the story, and its tale of an English doctor, after three years in prison for trying to help someone, who emerges from his association with hardened criminals, distrustful of humanity—mindful of his late number, "299."

Listen to the skillful portrayal of the after-prison life of the doctor with his wife and children, resentful of his return.

Dave Elman's Hobby Lobby will present a man whose hobby is preserving flowers at 5 o'clock over NBC-Red.

That was all. "If I Were King" was finished, slightly under schedule. There were goodbyes and thank-yous all around. Colman vanished. So did Princess Deedee the latter, I learned, having just earned $550 for those two speeches. Colman earned considerably more for his one word. But you ought to see them earn it on a full day.

"I don't know when I've been so glad to see a picture finished," Lloyd volunteered en route to the commissary for lunch. "And I don't know when I've been so tired."

There were Lloyd, his young associate producer Lou Smith; Lance Heath, who gets depressed when he's assigned to other units than Lloyd's; and myself. All of us knew Lloyd, blue-eyed, black-browed Scotsman, had gone ahead with the picture when he should have been in bed. Had a bad leg injury several weeks back. So all of us felt sorry for him—until he began on his vacation plans. Little Norwegian boat, 28 days at sea, reading, sleeping, eating, resting. Sympathy? We were green-eyed.

But he'll have to stay here on the picture until September. I gave a little so-sorry talk.

"Not at all," Frank insisted. "The hard part's finished. No more worrying about people getting hurt in sword play and mob scenes. No more tension, all of us straining to get each scene right. All we have left now is to cut it, put it together, synchro-rize the music—and then take it somewhere for the sneak preview. That's the night I'm going to sweat. That's the night I'm going to tear my fingernails out, while the audience makes up its mind!"

"Got a next one picked out?" I asked.

"Lou's been handing me a lot of scripts to read, but I don't trust myself when I'm this tired. Temptation to pick an easy one is too great. And the easy ones don't often make the best ones."

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—I've just witnessed Frank Lloyd's biggest moment in nine weeks. I saw him shoot the final scene of "If I Were King."

The producer-director sat beside the camera. At the other side stood Ronald Colman, a beardless Francois Villon in a comfortable modern suit. Before the camera stood Frances Dee, dark hair flowing, white robes flowing—a medieval French princess ready for a close-up.

"I know," said Frances, "what would make them fight."

"What?" said Colman's off-stage voice.

"They would fight if they were hungry—those fat generals and their men, forever stuffing themselves with food and drink. Pigs, all of them!"

The Tennessee row was purely political.

Gov. Gordon Browning had his own preferences as to candidates in the recent democratic primaries. What he calls the "Crump-McKellar machine" had preferences violently conflicting with Browning's. The machine (assuming that there is one) dominates Shelby county, which principally is Memphis. Shelby is a very populous county—probably populous enough to swing that state except in the event of a perfect landslide. Browning's idea was to throw militia into Shelby to guarantee a fair primary count there, as per his interpretation.

The machine (again assuming that there is one) got a federal court injunction against the governor's invasion of Shelby by his militia. The court order also called for the recruiting of a sufficient force of special United States deputy marshals to KEEP the militia out.

Well as to the militia the governor finally backed down, but it was only at the last minute.

If he had not backed down there was every prospect of a knock-down-and-drag-out fight between Tennessee's state militia and an army of federal deputy marshals—which would have been a heck of a spectacle, wouldn't it? And it was averted.

Industrial-Labor

The Iowa situation has not been so much political as industrial.

There was a strike in the Hawkeye commonwealth. Gov. N. G. Kraschel ordered state troops into the disturbed area to keep order.

Then along came representatives of National Labor Relations board and started hearings. The governor soon took the position that these hearings were prolonging the trouble and directed his militia commander to put a stop to them.

This substantially was telling the investigators for a federal agency to get to hades out of his state—or else his state soldiery would attend to them.

Well, that rumpus, too, has been flimsily patched up, but certainly it resembled a state-federal conflict of jurisdictions while it lasted.

It had its political as well as its industrial aspects, moreover. That is to say, it had no aspect of a democratic-republican clash, but it had its aspect as a "pro" and "anti" new deal clash. The NLRB

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The federal government and the governments of two separate states have come pretty near to actual physical clashes in the last few days.

The two states were not united, as the southern states were in the 1860's.

Nevertheless, quite an exciting situation is created when the authorities of an individual state warn the authorities of the United States to keep out of that state's local affairs, or, in effect, take the consequences. For two states to do it at once is all the more exciting.

The states, as we know, were Tennessee and Iowa.

At the same time Pennsylvania was verging on something like "civil war," but that particular threat was intra-state in character; not friction between the state itself and Uncle Samuel.

Political

The Tennessee row was purely political.

Gov. Gordon Browning had his own preferences as to candidates in the recent democratic primaries. What he calls the "Crump-McKellar machine" had preferences violently conflicting with Browning's. The machine (assuming that there is one) dominates Shelby county, which principally is Memphis. Shelby is a very populous county—probably populous enough to swing that state except in the event of a perfect landslide. Browning's idea was to throw militia into Shelby to guarantee a fair primary count there, as per his interpretation.

The machine (again assuming that there is one) got a federal court injunction against the governor's invasion of Shelby by his militia. The court order also called for the recruiting of a sufficient force of special United States deputy marshals to KEEP the militia out.

Well as to the militia the governor finally backed down, but it was only at the last minute.

If he had not backed down there was every prospect of a knock-down-and-drag-out fight between Tennessee's state militia and an army of federal deputy marshals—which would have been a heck of a spectacle, wouldn't it? And it was averted.

A New Yorker at Large

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you are roaming the town with nothing particular to do you might look in on that 70-year-old Negro sailor who is running a museum in a cellar off Columbus Circle. It has a sign which says "Captain Charley's Private Museum for Intelligent People" and in it you will find bric-a-brac collected from all over the world.

There are lion skin capes made from the pelts of lions killed in Ethiopia, and shackles that are alleged to have been struck from the legs of a captured naval prisoner aboard the Spanish warship Maria Teresa, at Manila. There are stuffed reptiles and birds, and piles of dried fish. In one corner you will observe a silken gown stripped from a beheaded Chinese priest during the Boxer uprising.

Near at hand is a carved wooden bench which was used as a chopping block for 40 African tribal chiefs who had their heads chopped off.

Captain Charley first opened his museum in Harlem but he didn't like it up there. He says too many petty thieves kept lifting his stuff, and bothering him. So he moved to that cellar near Columbus Circle, and he likes that very much.

This museum is great stuff, he believes, and he is preparing to do something really big when the Fair opens.

"I know everybody and everybody knows me," he tells you. "I've got letters from naval commanders and theatrical producers. I was in the navy 16 years. Here is a rhinoceros horn given me by Teddy Roosevelt. I used to be captain of a barge handling munitions, and I was in the Battle of Manila bay. I was decorated for rescue work when the Titanic sank. I was on the S.S. Carpathia then. And here's a sharpshooter's medal I won when I was on the S.S. Johnstown. Me, sure I'm lucky. Everybody knows me. I was born with a silver spoon in my mouth."

Charley has other medals too but he admits they are only "lodge buttons." Among his souvenirs is a battered tin bucket which he swears was Al Smith's dinner pail when he worked at the Fulton fish market.

Charley's greatest moment came when he discovered thousands of dollars in an old church. The church was abandoned, and a torrential downpour cracked the walls of the church, revealing the glittering heap of gold. This was in the Philippines, and the Captain says he lived handsomely three years on his share of the discovered booty.

"Sure, I knew everybody," he goes on. "I knew O. Henry when I worked at the Caledonia hotel. And Diamond Jim Brady used to tip me lavishly all the time. I know Jimmy Walker. Here is an interesting arrangement of newspaper clippings, depicting the rise and fall of his political fortunes.

"But I'm waiting for the Fair to open. I've got a thousand dollars worth of jumping lizards, and I'm going to clean up a fortune. That'll be the third fortune I've had. I've lost the other two. But when I get this one I'm going home. I'm going back to Boston where I was born and where my daddy was born before me."

THE WORLD AT SMALL

Alert lookers'll catch J. Himman Jr., in the Life series on Newton, as seemingly an unbiased account as I've seen.

And "Dutch" Reagen fans'll catch his voice over the radio set in "Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse."

The show's grand satire on polysyllabic psychologists (and all of them are).

And I'd agree with NBC's non-broadcast of the John Ward suicide, a nauseating incident at best—and followed by journalistic gutter-rubbing as to pictures.

Yesterday's mail brought a fat envelope from Washington, full of pal-to-pal gossip, predicting a European war by Aug. 13. (The state department's expecting it) ... Allegedly it'll start in Czechoslovakia, will switch to Spain, the German border.

"Don't be surprised at how weak the British will be," it warns. ... Probably pure fantasy—but interesting chit-chat at that ...

And Iowa Citizens should be reading the World's Greatest's news rag these days, particularly the I. C. editorial letters. ... They're interesting.

Wrong Number

I red-faced reporter a second Washington letter, answering inquiries about the "late" Dr. Edward Nika, who's unknown in Point Barrow, Alaska, wasn't before the senate investigating committee, has been inquired about from "other leading cities."

Someone said it. ... Newspaper men and New Yorkers are the world's most credulous people, he said.

OVERHEARD: "You're wearing your food well these days."

I'm short-eyed still, remembering a mighty novel I perused two hours before I write. ... "Paved With Good Intentions," it's called, by Dorothy McCleary. ... Everyone who's marrying these weeks on a shoe-string should read it. ... It's what happens when there's love but no money.

When they mention D. Corrigan these days, I'm reminded of a story every admirer should read. ... James Thurder wrote it: "Greatest Man in the World" ... It's the tale of a simple mechanic who makes a trans-ocean hop, to everyone's surprise, including his own. ... It was written seven years ago ...

(And after viewing the Irishman in the news reels I'm convinced he's either the greatest is a new deal setup; Governor Kraschel seems out of sympathy with it.

charmer or greatest fool who ever broke print ...)

There was brief silence in the news room this night, silence and expectation ... The wires reported, briefly, that all Hawaiian Clipper passengers might be yet alive. ... It'd have been one of the great news stories of time ... (Still may be a great fiction tale) ...

My vote for political-comment-of-the-week must surely go to that ace of Puerto Rico, Don Jose, who, leaving a Washington hospital after an appendicitis operation said he had "plenty of tripe left" to fight the "pig-dog" Puerto Rican assassins who, during his absence, had attempted to kill Governor Blanton Winship with their "shoot-guns" ...

"If I could speak the English by the books, I would blow their nose, by damn I am," commented Don Jose, and quite appropriately ... I'd advise a few of those Chicago gents whose making speeches these days to take a correspondence course with Don Jose, who certainly can spit a mouthful ...

Prophecy

The Chicago Tribune lead editorial tomorrow morning will concern the Barkley overwhelm, will declare, in vehement holiness, "You can't beat Santa Claus and graft"—or words to that original effect ...

An educational do-without is Nicholas Murray Butler from whose active lips drop pearls of nothingness intelligently ...

Earle McGill's "Devil and Daniel Webster" radio show last night topped the summer drama series, for me. ... And I'm cherishing Brammer Carlson as one theaterite who's the stuff for aheading ...

A scout whispers Frank Burns wears the largest shoe-size of anyone about.

It takes the fingers of both hands to number the faculty ocean-jumpers this summer. ... My unfinancial wagers that the White House man won't be back in 1940 are scattered but numerous ...

And isn't Iowa ripe for a militant third party these weeks? ... What ever happened to Smith Brookhart? ... Wouldn't an Iowa LaPollette be fun—and potent?

(And my vote for the chummiest campus group 'd be cast for the Iowa Union group) ...

Walt Whitman asked it. ... "Do I contradict myself?" he asked. ... "Then I contradict myself," he replied.

Corrigan Officially Welcomed by the Mayor

With his brother Harry, center, looking on, air hero Douglas Corrigan shakes hands with Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia at city hall in New York as the mayor officially welcomes him.

Shor'n 'Tis a Lucky Irishman He Is!

Even Torrential Rain Stops for Corrigan, Begins After He Leaves

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—Still wearing his oil-smeared brown leather jacket, Douglas Corrigan forgot his slight chest injury today and motored to Camp Smith at Peekskill, N. Y., to review the "Fighting Irish" of the famous old 69th infantry regiment.

The 31-year-old aviator, who set his compass for California and landed in Dublin, Ireland, in his $900 "old crate" was escorted by Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell, commander of the New York state national guard; Col. Joseph A. S. Mundy, 27th division staff chief; and Col. Alexander E. Anderson, commander of the 165th infantry, which was known as the "Fighting 69th" of World war days.

Corrigan reached the review field 25 minutes late—and the Irish luck which spirited his plane safely across the Atlantic served him again. Had he been on time, he would have arrived in the midst of a torrential rain. The weather cleared and, just as he finished the review, the skies again blackened and dropped another deluge.

After the review, he returned to New York to rest a bit before attending a testimonial dinner (at the Hotel Astor) sponsored by the Dublin society of New York. Fifty-seven Irish organizations were represented at the affair.

The flier today received a telephone call from Mayor LaGuardia who expressed regret at Corrigan's chest injury and invited him to be his guest again when he returns Thursday from visits to Boston, Newark, Baltimore and Washington, D. C.

"I feel great," Corrigan said, rubbing his taped chest with exploratory caution, "and I'm not going to have any X-rays made."

Somehow in the crush of wild-cheering thousands during yesterday's parade and reception Corrigan suffered his injury, diagnosed as a torn cartilage.

After leaving New York en route west, except for receptions in Milwaukee, St. Louis, San Antonio, Galveston, Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Francisco and the Cleveland air races, he has practically no commitments at all.

As for the future: "I have no plans, except to fly."

City Council Gets Opinion of Murtagh On Paving Program

The city council Friday night received an opinion from C. B. Murtagh, state comptroller, regarding the proposed paving program in the Black Springs circle area.

The communication stated: "If the park board has accepted the tract and desires to use it for park purposes and is willing to finance their share of the expense, it may be possible for them to pay for it from their general fund, providing they can spend the money."

"However, you state the tract is not desirable for a park, so we are inclined to believe it is a problem of the city council, and whatever expense or deficiency is incurred will have to be paid from the city improvement fund. It cannot be legally paid from the park board fund even though there are excess receipts in the fund."
