Shown above are the representatives of Britain, France, Germany and Italy who yesterday decided the Sudetenland should be ceded to Germany. Without the agreement of the tiny republic, the four powers decided at Munich to cede Hitler the territory he has asked for. The conference yesterday was hailed as a last effort to preserve peace. A general European conflagration had threatened before because of Britain's and France's decision to come to the aid of Czechoslovakia in case Hitler's legions marched into the territory. Prime Minister Chamberlain shown at the left in the picture above conferred with Hitler about the Czech demands, but the hopes for peace fell through when the discussions were suspended.

Seeking Better Cheerleaders Special Committee Announces Tryouts At Stadium This Afternoon

A special committee on student pep yesterday announced a resolution designed to improve cheerleading at the University of Iowa.

An open competition for varsity and freshman cheerleaders will be held at 4:10 this afternoon in Iowa stadium for the purpose of selecting men for cheerleading positions, in accordance with the committee's recommendation.

The committee also recommended that Donald Mallett and Prof. E. G. Schroeder be made in executive committee to select and direct cheerleaders for 1938 and 1939.

Other recommendations include these:

That the athletic board make no awards except on the recommendation of the committee.

That Pi Epsilon Pi and other student organizations be advised of this action and be urged to submit a satisfactory plan for the general conduct of cheerleading, so that the committee may approve and recommend recognition of this plan by the board in control of athletics.

German Occupation Will Start; Czechs to Evacuate by Oct. 10; Britain, France Urge Assent

Mastny Present But Is Not Empowered To Accept Terms

By The Associated Press
MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 30 (Friday)—Heads of western Europe's four major powers early today signed an agreement they believed would prevent a European war by sealing the fate of Czechoslovakia.

The agreement reached by statesmen of Britain, France, Germany and Italy, provided for gradual occupation of parts of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten areas starting Saturday—the deadline Adolf Hitler set for acceptance in his ultimatum.

The no. 1 statesmen of the four powers—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain, Premier Edouard Daladier of France, Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Benito Mussolini—signed the accord after hours of debating the war threat for which most of Europe was preparing.

Not Accepted
Spokesmen said Czechoslovakia has not accepted the plan. Vojtech Mastny, Czechoslovak minister to Berlin who came here at the suggestion of the British, was closeted with Daladier and Chamberlain early today.

It was stated, however, Mastny had no power to accept for his government.

Daladier, returning to his hotel, said he and Chamberlain spent their time explaining to Mastny why they felt it necessary to accept the agreement.

No Assistance
An unimpeachable source said, however, that the action of Britain and France in making themselves "responsible for the steps necessary" to fulfill the agreement meant just this:

If the Czechoslovaks refuse to accept, France can not come to their aid in case of an attack and Britain, which is pledged only to support France, can not be drawn in.

Additional provisions of the agreement include:

(1)—Evacuation of the Sudetenland to be completed by Oct. 10, without damage to existing property there.

(2)—An international commission comprising representatives of the four powers, together with Czechoslovakia, to lay down details of the evacuation.

To Have Plebiscites
(3)—Plebiscites to be held in other areas of Czechoslovakia having German population.

(4)—The right of option granted for residents to move into or out of the areas to be ceded to Germany.

The four powers decided on another conference within three months to settle the question of Hungarian and Polish minorities in Czechoslovakia, if agreement is not reached between these parties in the meantime.

Four zones of preponderantly German population were marked for quick occupation by German troops by Oct. 10 and any remaining territory with preponderantly German population will be determined by the international commission for occupation also by that date.

To Be Occupied
The international commission will determine areas in which plebiscites are to be held and these areas, in the meantime, are to be occupied by international bodies.

The plebiscites will be patterned after that in the Saar region, which was shifted from international control back to Germany on Jan. 19, 1935.

The commission will fix the date for the plebiscites not later than the end of November.

The agreement provides for the release by the Czechoslovak government within four weeks of all Sudeten Germans from (See PARLEY, page 6)

Disappointment Fills Prague As Munich Conference Decide Fate of Nation Bound to Lose

POPE SPEAKS Asks World to Pray For Peace

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Sept. 29 (AP)—Pope Pius XI invited the world's faithful tonight to unite "in the most undaunted and insistent prayer for the preservation in justice and in charity of the peace."

The 81-year-old pontiff spoke in a pastoral message broadcast over an intercontinental hook-up from his private library in his summer palace at Castel Gandolfo.

He called for prayer to preserve peace at a time when he said "millions of men are living in dread because of the imminent danger of war and because of the threat of unexampled slaughter and ruin."

The concensus in Prague was that whatever was decided between the four-power leaders, there could be no doubt that Czechoslovakia would be the loser—either by diplomatic accord or by war.

For the first time, maps showing Adolf Hitler's demands beyond the Anglo-French partition proposal were placed on sale.

Citizens pointed to deep indentations on Moravian territory, including the city of Brunn, and remarked dispiritedly: "It pinches the country in two, leaving a nazi ring around Bohemia."

Many decided that Czechoslovakia's problem had become only a small part of the whole international question in Europe.

Lost Cause?
This meant for patriotic Czechoslovaks the possible submergence of their cause by France and England, in striving to stave off a general conflagration.

"It has probably all been settled," they said as the hours passed without word from Munich.

But their patriotism remained undiminished. They said they were eager still to defend their country.

Nervous tension after nights of citywide blackouts spread, but they obeyed orders and kept the capital completely calm.

Seek Boy Who Left Hospital
Robert Richardson, 14-year-old diabetic patient, escaped from his room in Children's hospital yesterday about 6 p.m. hospital authorities stated.

Iowa City police notified his mother at 105 Cherry street, Ottumwa and began a search immediately.

When last seen young Richardson was wearing white and blue striped overalls. He is five feet five inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, and has light brown hair.

His physical condition was not serious.

Dies of Arthritis
KIMBALLTON (AP)—Thomas Laursen, 11, died yesterday of arthritis less than two months after his mother died of the same disease.

Benes bowed his shoulders as he said, "Today we were rewarded for our faithfulness. There are a million Czechs living in that area Germany asks. It would be easier to die than to live in the kind of liberty they will be offered."

Washington was confident, from the beginning of the conference at Munich, that the leaders gathered there would find a formula to avert a general war.

Tornado Kills 27 at Charleston

More Than 200 Injured in One Minute Gale

Damage to Property Estimated Over 100,000 Dollars

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 29 (AP)—A raging tornado dipped furiously into Charleston early today, killing at least 27 persons, injuring between 200 and 300, and damaging hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property.

Hours after the destructive twister passed on, searchers dug into the ruins of wrecked buildings, and it was feared additional bodies would be recovered.

Hospitals listed 53 victims as seriously hurt, requiring confinement to bed. Others were given first aid for comparatively minor injuries and were discharged.

Blocked Streets
This historic city was thrown into confusion as the storm, which lasted scarcely more than a minute, broke down power and communication facilities, and blocked streets with uprooted trees, poles and dangerous live wires.

Two companies of national guardsmen were hastily mobilized to aid civilian authorities in handling the situation. They were later augmented by soldiers from nearby Port Moultrie and marines from the navy yard, instructed by President Roosevelt to make their services available.

In Washington the president directed the war and navy departments and the works progress administration to help all possible in the emergency.

Landmarks Damaged
Many of Charleston's landmarks, known to thousands of tourists who are attracted by them, were damaged. Included were St. Michael's Episcopal church, at Broad and Meeting streets, St. Phillip's church, a short distance away, both of which date to pre-revolutionary times, and the quaint little Huguenot church, only one of its denomination in the United States.

Also damaged was the Dock street theater, one of the country's oldest, which was restored last year by the WPA, the ancient city market building in Market street, and the historic city hall.

Colleges and schools escaped unscathed, but many of the fine old homes overlooking the famous Battery suffered shattered windows and damaged roof. Wealthy northerners own a large number of these homes.

Italians Joyful at Four-Power Accord

Fascists See Outcome at Munich as Victory for Mussolini

ROME, Sept. 29 (AP)—Joy reigned among Italians tonight as newspaper extras told them of the four-power Munich accord giving Germany Sudeten parts of Czechoslovakia.

Thousands of persons tore the newspapers from the hands of news vendors. Everywhere there were knots of excited citizens explaining, commenting and gesticulating over the news which meant to them one big thing—peace.

To fascists it was a victory for Premier Mussolini and Fascist Italy since the eleventh hour conference was held only after Il

Duce intervened with his Rome-Berlin axis partner to make a try for peace.

All day long papers had said that if the Munich meeting brought peace it would be through Il Duce's intervention.

The authoritative fascist commentator, Virginio Gayda, first told Italy of the agreement in a Munich dispatch to Il Giornale D'Italia.

He said the four-power agreement shatters "all the gloomy machinations of European war, already in action and about to explode, and restores to European peoples menaced by this monstrous plot a just and sure peace."

Gayda pointed out the accord was reached within a few hours of Mussolini's calling for such joint action.

"The figure of Mussolini as the savior of European peace looms gigantic today in the world's current history," he said.

"The Munich accord, which restores peace to the peoples, is also the result of the intimate harmony created between Italy and Germany with a more than ever vital and powerful (Rome-Berlin) axis," Gayda asserted.

U. S. Withholds Comment on Agreement

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Official Washington, awaiting formal information from diplomatic sources abroad, withheld comment tonight on the signing of the four-power agreement at Munich.

This capital had followed developments at Munich with absorbed interest while statesmen of Britain, France, Germany and Italy decided on the settlement of the Czechoslovakian question.

Late in the day, while the Munich conferees still were in session, a White House secretary announced that President Roosevelt had issued a call to prayer "for the continued peace of the world."

While administration officials and congress members generally refrained from any immediate comment, the brother of Czechoslovakia's president expressed sorrow at the "sacrifice" of his country.

Speaking to a "save Czechoslovakia" rally which had been arranged before the conferees met at Munich, Vojta Benes declared the agreement was "such a blow to

Promoter Loses Suit to Collect Damages From Doctor of Quints

CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (AP)—Promoter Ivan I. Spear lost out in federal court today in his attempt to collect $1,000,000 damages for alleged breach of a contract to exploit the Dionne quintuplets.

Judge John P. Barnes instructed the jury which began hearing the case Tuesday to find Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the quint's physician, and three other defendants not guilty of conspiracy to breach the contract on the ground evidence did not support that allegation.

The case ended without testimony by the defendants. At the close of testimony in behalf of Spear, defense counsel moved for a directed verdict. Judge Barnes gave his ruling after hearing the lawyers' arguments outside the presence of the jury.

It had been obvious for months that Dewey could have the nomination if he wanted it, the only earlier question having been whether he would accept because of the fact that he became district attorney only a year ago.

DES MOINES, Sept. 29 (AP)—The prohibition party late today filed a ticket of candidates for Iowa state offices in the general election Nov. 8.

The ticket was filed shortly before the deadline for filing papers for candidates and brought to five the number of political parties from which Iowa voters can select their officials.

Prohibition party candidates will be: United States senator, G. W. Bauserman, Des Moines; governor, J. A. Mitchell, Des Moines; lieutenant governor, W. M. Zimmerman, Chapin; secretary of state, E. E. Dudley, Des Moines; secretary of agriculture, O. L. Mossman, Ames; state treasurer, A. G. Peterson, Des Moines; state auditor, J. E. Lombard, Thornton; superintendent of public instruction, L. J. U. Smay, Correctionville, and commerce commissioner, William Mott, Iowa City, and Lou Foster, Ottumwa.

DEWEY TO RUN
On GOP Ticket For Governor
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP)—The republican state convention of pivotal New York nominated Thomas E. Dewey, Manhattan's 36-year-old district attorney, for governor by acclamation in a tumultuous demonstration today.

The delegates adopted a 19-plank platform which condemned "the alliance between the underworld and certain forms of politics," manifesting that the party, which has not controlled the state government since 1922, expected to rely heavily upon Dewey's record as a rackets prosecutor.

There also was a declaration that "the use of federal relief money for political purposes is a disgrace."

It had been obvious for months that Dewey could have the nomination if he wanted it, the only earlier question having been whether he would accept because of the fact that he became district attorney only a year ago.

He said that a few years ago

democracy that I do not believe democracy can last."

He said the four powers, which had failed to invite Czechoslovakia to sit in, asked of the country, "such a sacrifice that there is no parallel in history. This agreement reached by our allies is our humiliation, but whose shame? They call it peace, but what kind of peace and for how long?"

Many were weeping in the audience as Benes, a tall, delicate looking white haired man in a black coat, spoke.

A Note To John C. Metcalfe

MR. METCALFE, if you're really interested, you can probably get the Dies investigation committee, backed by the United States government, to pay your expenses for an Iowa City trip.

You might find it most invigorating. Unless we're wrong, you'd find a few nazis on the campus, probably more than three or four communists; maybe an anarchist or so. We know one or more of all these species.

And then, Mr. Metcalfe, having removed your long grey beard of disguise, you could make a statement to the press announcing your findings—just as you already have of the Iowa State college, Clark university and the Universities of Indiana, Kansas, Vermont and California campuses.

You wouldn't need any proof; we would just take your word for it. You haven't used any thus far. You'd probably find just as much to alarm you here in Iowa City as you'd find in any town or city in the United States where there's education going on.

Because, as we understand it, that's what education is, to make people think. For the time being, while they're in school, it doesn't matter so much what they think as long as they do.

That's why we feel rather certain you'd find a "subversive" activity or two right here. If you didn't, this would be a poor institution of learning.

But when you do, Mr. Metcalfe, and after you make your announcement, do you mind if we emit, along with almost everyone else, a simple but effective, PHOOEY?

An Akron manufacturer says Americans have saved $157,000,000 on tire improvements in the last 12 years. That's enough for a pretty good blowout.

We've been reading a lot about marathon golfers, but are unable to find any reports of a man playing 18 holes with his wife.

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The style forum for men this fall was like seeing whole pages of Esquire magazine come to life. It was held at the Waldorf, and for the occasion I wore my shiny blue serge, a new hat and a blue tie. Mr. William H. Weintraub, Esquire's publisher and the sponsor, saw nothing in my get-up to make him change his mind about what the well dressed man will wear this fall and winter. He proved, however, a cheery host as he led me through the salons where factual evidence of the latest dictates of the sartorial czars was on display.

Now let's approach the matter of trousers. If your slacks are correct they will be either tweed, twill, or velvet cord. And they will only be 16 inches at the cuff, "to facilitate walking in the woods." At the moment I'm four inches out of line, as a 20 inch cuff is absolutely necessary to minimize the length and breadth of my underpinning.

Rain suits—here's something a little out of the ordinary. You won't slip into a water-proof coat to foil the showers this year—you'll don a rain-proof suit. It looks just like any other suit, separate coat and trousers (I forgot to notice whether the pants have pleats or not). Equally recommended for town or country. Cravats... the newest thing in ties is the Bar Tie. It's straight and narrow, like the path you're supposed to walk, and they've made it narrow because that permits more of your shirt front to be seen. It seems one's shirt should be long, too, protruding an inch to an inch and a quarter beyond the coat sleeve.

Shoes... I was delighted to learn that pointed toes are on the wane and that big square or round-toed shoes will be in vogue. That puts me about 10 years ahead of Esquire. An innovation will be a turf boot (ankle high) for country wear. This is designed for rough country. Evening wear... How do you think you will look in coral studs? And if your evening coat isn't double-breasted with side vents you aren't up to snuff.

Alpine note... If you ski, you couldn't find a smarter color scheme than rust with a white coat, black boots with red laces and a white Tyrolean hat. Bright blue is another good color for ski outfits. Note: the trend in men's styles this year indicates a back-to-the-land urge, the five-day week, the inexpensive motor car, and an increase in excellent roads. (I didn't think this up by myself; they told me it indicates this.)

I learned a lot of other things, and I had a good time. Most of the people I saw were merchants from various sections of the nation getting an eyeful of what they'll have to sell for a while. I also saw a lot of fashion thieves. They're artists making hurried sketches of the new styles which they will speed along to their employers. Some of

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Some people don't appreciate how remarkable they are. And Samuel Kayzer is one of them. That young man—he's 85—thinks it's bad business to let the folks know that he is, as age is figured, an old man. He's in business and he thinks the customers will figure a man who has lived 85 years is a little tired. So the last thing Samuel said, saying goodbye with a friendly pat on the shoulder that almost knocked me down the hill he lives on, was: "If you can skip the age, you know—"

Well, I didn't answer that, and I can't skip the age because I like to write about remarkable things and Samuel Kayzer is remarkable. There are lots of dramatic coaches in this town but I've never met any other who is 85 years old, looks a sturdy 60, and talks an aggressive 30.

Constitutionally, I dislike recipes for longevity. Like diets and cures for the blues, they are individual matters. Samuel Kayzer dismisses it with, "I just don't FEEL old." He also knows something about breathing. He picked that up—"oh, about 60 years ago," as he put it nonchalantly—and he has practiced it ever since. Takes a deep one, through the nostrils, and exhales it slowly through the mouth—with a noise like a subway train roaring down the track. Socially, of course, he omits the noise and, as far as I could tell, takes his ozone in the usual manner. He can keep up that sound effect for two minutes. "Develops the chest," he commented, lighting a cigarette.

Kayzer, until recently, was on the Metro payroll. He had come to the town, about eight years ago, at Howard Hughes's insistence that he should train Billie Dove for the talkies. He also, incidentally, took on Jean Harlow, a Hughes "discovery." Then Louis B. Mayer impounded him to work on the Metro stock company. To this he gave three days a week. Metro, like all the others, has undergone a paroxysm of economy. It looked like a good chance for our young octogenarian to rest a bit.

At one time, back in New York, Kayzer was solacing and coaching a group of more or less famous people that included Dorothy Gately, Fred Bickel, Lila Lee, Milton Sills, Agnes Ayres, Thomas Meighan, the writer Rex Beach, the songwriter Irving Berlin, and Bessie Love. Miss Gately became Ann Harding, Mr. Bickel became Fredric March, and Miss Lee, remaining Lila Lee, became famous. Incidentally, she's back under the Kayzer wing to try a comeback.

"What makes actors," he insisted, "is the instinct to appreciate the moods, thoughts, feelings of others. A good woman can play a bad woman better than a bad woman, and vice versa, if she has that dramatic instinct. Edward G. Robinson a very nice boy, sweet, gentle and mild, can play a gangster better than a real gangster—because he has that instinct. I believe poets, business geniuses, great warriors—and actors—are not made through mechanics or instruction. They're born with it. All an instructor can do is to try to guide it, bring it out, develop it."

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, who will be chairman of the House of Representatives' rules committee when the lawmakers meet at the beginning of next year, is one of the most likable old legislators on Capitol Hill. In order to be rules chairman he will have to be re-elected in November, to be sure. That he will be is a foregone conclusion, however. His Chicago district already has elected and re-elected him 16 times. In point of service he is senior to all 434 other representatives—the dean or patriarch of the House. He isn't so young in point of years, either—72. All accounts from the Windy City are to effect that he can't be beaten now by any conceivable streak of luck. He ought not to be, for that matter. I've known him ever since he was a municipal court judge in Chicago—for 12 years, before his home folks sent him to Washington.

He was an institution in that town—by common acceptance the fairest and most enlightened judge the place ever saw. True, he tried only little cases, but they were darned important to the little litigants he decided between. Curiously enough, both sides generally accepted his decisions as just.

He was a kind of Chicago Solomon, and graduated into congress on that basis. FOUND HIM O. K. On the "hill" (Capitol Hill) the Chicagoan was regarded as something of an eccentric for quite awhile, but gradually the idea began to soak into his fellow solons' minds that he was the "goods."

As he gained semi-seniority there started talk of him (the Democrats being then in a majority) for the representational speakership. His handicap was that his English is rather foreign. The representative was born in Czechoslovakia—a region considerably advertised of late. He arrived in the United States far on enough in life to have his tongue attuned to the old world accent. His language is scholarly, but distinguishable from native American.

The point was raised against him that a Speaker of the House of Representatives ought not to have a "foreign accent." I think he'd have had a good speakership prospects if it hadn't been for that. It wouldn't have prejudiced me, but I believe it counted, and I imagine it discouraged Sabath himself. He's a modest man, too—uninclined to push his cause.

Nevertheless, the Illinois congressman, once appointed to the representatives' rule committee, rose gradually, by right of in-

THE EUROPEAN CRISIS is due for an airing over WBSU, Iowa's own leading educational station, beginning at 7 o'clock tonight, when the panel and open forum discussion on that topic is presented from the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Prof. Herbert Feigl of the philosophy department, himself an Austrian and a graduate of the University of Vienna, is one of the speakers.

Another is Prof. Howard Bowen of the economics department, who returned recently from a year in England, France and Germany. Prof. C. W. de Kiewit of the history department will also participate in the panel discussion.

Following the discussion, members of the audience will participate in an open forum.

It's a wonderful opportunity for all of us to hear a worthwhile and authoritative discussion of a crisis which may mean another world war, and which therefore fundamentally affects the United States.

TWO TEAMS of traditional enemies—five editors and five press agents—will meet on Paul Wing's Emergence spelling bee from 4:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday over the NBC-Red network.

Their forerunners on the bee, including sailors, farmers, dress models, barbers and manicurists, have appeared in the studio in costume, just to keep keyed up.

And this little spelling bee is really an entertaining piece of radio broadcasting. The answers are pretty funny sometimes, like the recent speller who had dreaded, DREAGHPHUL.

What costumes the press agents and editors will wear is a question; perhaps the publicity counselors will come equipped with gift cigars, bribe beverages and ingratiating smiles, while the editors wear green eyeshades, fat blue pencils and snarls.

Paul Wing is keeping a strict watch on the press agents to prevent them from grabbing too em-

The show that had a humble beginning on a street corner in Houston, Texas, Vox Pop will start its seventh year on the air with Graham McNamee—as the program's regular announcer.

Tomorrow's broadcast will be the 307th weekly appearance of the program.

A DECADE AGO

...two musicians in Paul Whiteman's orchestra—Pianist Frank Signorelli and Violinist Matt Malneck—wrote a selection called "A Blues Serenade." The young vocalist in the Whiteman band, at the time, accompanied the two tunesmiths around Tin Pan Alley demonstrating the ditty for music publishers.

Recently, Bing Crosby met Malneck, who had been working in the Hollywood film and radio studios.

"Whatever happened to that ditty we used to knock ourselves out on?" inquired Crosby.

"It's probably gathering heavy dust on some publisher's shelf," replied Malneck.

Crosby told his former bandmate that he would like to make a phonograph recording of the tune, which he did. The record is now his best seller.

That represents, my friends, the change, the fickleness of the general public's tastes in music... who knows, perhaps 50 years from now they'll discover some new song, like "A Tisket A Tasket," that will stand reviving.

P. S. The song could really stand some reviving now! If it could be changed into some new, fairly melodic form, the Hit Parade might recuperate.

and wins, he still won't retain his chairmanship of the 76th Congress' rules committee.

Maybe We've Been Sending Missionaries to the Wrong Place

Health Hints By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Food undergoes its most profound digestive changes in the small intestine. Here it comes into contact with the secretion from the pancreas. This is the most powerful of the digestive secretions, and is capable of digesting any form of foodstuff—protein, starch and fat.

The pancreas lies in the upper abdomen—a long, narrow gland which empties its secretion into the first part of the intestine, just outside the end of the stomach. This secretion then meets and mixes with the food immediately as it leaves the stomach. It is quite abundant, amounting to about a quart a day. The mechanism of the secretion reveals one of those remarkable little adjustments of which living organisms are all compact. The stomach contents are acid. As they are ejected in small squirts, they impinge on the wall of the duodenum (the first part of the intestine). It was found that an acid brought into contact with the duodenal mucosa would cause a prompt secretion of pancreatic juice. This is due to the formation of a substance called secretin, formed by the action of acid on the secretions from the duodenum. When absorbed this secretin acts on the pancreas to promote its secretion. Thus as soon as food from the stomach gets up the intestine, the mechanism is set up to cause the pancreatic digestive juices to pour out to meet it. It is one of those beautiful interlocking adjustments which make the study of physiology so fascinating.

The pancreatic secretion contains most powerful digestive enzymes in the whole tract. There are three or four which break down protein food such as meat, eggs, etc. This is accomplished in an alkaline, or feebly acid medium, and completes the work of stomach digestion.

Another pancreatic enzyme, amylase, converts starchy food to simple forms and acts much as does the ptyalin in the salivary secretion. Finally the pancreas furnishes an enzyme which digests fats—lipase. This is the only place in the digestive system where fats are digested. The simultaneous action of all these enzymes—converting every kind of food into forms that the body can use—should convince any one of the non-nonsense on which one of the present popular dietary fads is based, the idea that we should not eat protein and starchy food at the same time. Considering the central importance of the role of the pancreas in digestion, it is well that it is subject to few diseases and those very rare. It is true that acute and chronic pancreatitis occur, but I have passed over 30 years in the practice of medicine without seeing any more than half a dozen examples of both put together. The other large gland which empties a secretion (bile) into the duodenum at this point—the liver—is not primarily a digestive gland. But the bile does help the pancreatic secretion in digesting fats. Much of the pleasure and desire for food which we get comes from this smooth digestion of fats. An eminent surgeon told me that after he had a gallbladder operation, for a while no bile escaped into his intestine. He was melancholy and miserable. And he vividly described the surge of joy that came over him when the function was re-established, and bile once more poured forth to join the pancreas.

Add To Lead Over Pirates

'Iron Man' Lee Hurls in Win

By EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (AP)—On the strong right arm of Bill "Iron Man" Lee, the fighting Chicago Cubs rode to a crushing 10 to 1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today for a sweep of the three game series and a game and one-half lead in the National league pennant battle.

Wild
The husky Chicago righthander, pitching for a fourth time in as many days, set the Pirates down with only seven hits. Their lone run came as the result of four straight passes in the third inning. From the first inning, in which the rampant Cubs scored three runs largely through the wildness of Russ Bauers, Chicago took command—then surged on to a tenth straight victory in a seemingly unstoppable march to the championship.

Running Wild
The Cubs, nine games out of first place five weeks ago and winners over the Pirates in close, dramatic contests Tuesday and Wednesday, took their bats and made today's game a rout. Ten lusty hits off four Pirate hurlers, backed up by a brilliant defense, gave the Cubs victory, their 20th in their last 23 games.

A throng of 42,628 saw the Bruins collect three runs in the first inning on a hit, three walks and a sacrifice. After the Bucs scored their single run in the third, the Cubs pushed two more scores over in the fourth on hits by Rip Collins, Bill Jurgens, Stan Hack and Frank Demaree.

They picked up three more markers in the fifth on as many hits and one of three Pittsburgh errors. One of the most damaging blows was Lee's line double to left which drove in two of the tallies. In the eighth Chicago scored its final two runs on a single hit as John Rizzo made the second of his two miscues and Arky Vaughan contributed another boot.

Bauers, who issued four walks, was relieved by Ed Brandt in the second. Brandt held forth until Cy Blanton took over at the start of the fifth. In the sixth, after Woody Jensen batted for Blanton, Mace Brown took over the mound duties. He held the Cubs to two runs and two hits in the remaining three innings.

Hartnett Hurt
The Pirates had two on with two out in the ninth when Lee ended the game by fanning Rizzo, the Buc slugger, for a brilliant finish. It was in this inning, and on a pitch to Rizzo, that Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs was struck by a foul tip and had to leave the field. The flesh was torn from the third finger of Hartnett's right hand and the husky pilot was not expected to be in action tomorrow in the Cub opener against the St. Louis Cardinals.

After trouncing Pittsburgh a fifth straight time this season, the Cubs wind up the season with three games with the Cardinals as the sinking Pirates are scheduled to encounter the Cincinnati Reds four times in the final three days of the campaign.

BITS about Sports

By J. DENNIS SULLIVAN

With each day's football practice it becomes increasingly apparent that Coach Tubbs will not tolerate lackadaisical play by any member of the squad.

Players are shifted in and out of positions with startling rapidity. Meritorious play warrants a shift toward the top while sloppy play, just as quickly, calls for an abrupt demotion.

Each and every member of the team is called on to produce every day, not once a week or when he feels in the mood.

So far, there have been few occasions to crack down on anybody for not trying. That's a healthy situation, a situation that may make Iowa a formidable foe of future opponents.

Every once in a while the sporting world is shocked into a rave over the performance of some individual or an athletic team that captures its fancy with a great exhibition.

At the present time—I think all will agree—the Chicago Cubs are providing that exhibition. Their magnificent comeback has captured the fancy of sporting gentry everywhere—with the possible exception of that in Pittsburgh.

The danger of a general European war faded into the background as the Cubs faced the Pirates. Hitler, and his cohorts, seemed a minor thing as compared with the great exhibition Dean was giving on the mound. Hartnett, with his screaming drive into the left field bleachers, helped those hysterical 40,000 people forget there was such a person as Mussolini—a very threatening Mussolini.

What a commentary on conditions in the old world as compared with those in the new. Let's all hope that our preoccupation continues to be "Fan 'em, Dizzy!"

A new custom is in the process of becoming a tradition on the Iowa campus. The "I" club has decided that members must wear their sweater one day a week—Friday. It's a good idea. Most worked hard enough to earn it, why not wear it?

Old rivals will get together once more this afternoon when the Irish of St. Pat's tangle with U-High's gridgers, on the University of Iowa's freshman practice field at 3:30 o'clock.

Both teams finished final preparations for the game with light workouts yesterday afternoon. Kicking, passing and final check up on plays occupied the time of both coaches as they sent their respective charges through their final drills.

St. Pat's will start the same lineup which lost a close game to West Chester a week ago. Early in the week there were indications that Father Ryan would insert several new faces in the Irish line, but much improvement in the play of the regulars caused him to change his mind.

Opening its Mississippi Valley conference play, Iowa City high school will face a severe test on Shrader field tonight in its game with the powerful Clinton eleven. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Clinton will bring a veteran, heavy eleven to Iowa City tonight in an attempt to win its first game of the season, as they lost their season's opener to East Moline last week.

Injuries have dampened the spirits at the Red and White stronghold. Both Jack Fetig, guard, and Ken Walsh, end, have sore ankles and will not start tonight's game but they will see action during the contest. Ted Lewis, Iowa City's powerful half, has a bruised nose but it will not keep him from tonight's encounter.

Last night's practice was given over to signal drills and pass defense. Coach Cormack has been trying several combinations to replace his injured linemen. "Dusty" Maher has seen action at end while Putnam, Beck and Heacock have been alternating at the guard and tackle posts during the week. Heacock will probably start but Beck, who still has a weak wrist, will see action when needed.

Cormack has taught his charges new plays and formations for tonight's game. In addition to the single wing used in previous games, the Hawks will employ a "T" formation in tonight's battle. These two formations and their intricate shifts readily lend themselves to surprise and tricky plays.

"I" Club Makes Friday "Sweater Day" For Clique

All "I" men will henceforth wear "I" sweaters at least one day each week as they roam the campus, according to a recent decision of the "I" club. Friday was the day designated by the athletes.

The club will hold a meeting at the fieldhouse tonight at 7:15 for the purpose of appointing committees to handle a number of projects the club has in mind. Important among the projects is an "I" men's library which will be located at the fieldhouse. Donations of textbooks will be solicited.

Red Sox Put Clincher On Second Place

BOSTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Drubbing the Washington Senators, 13 to 5, the Boston Red Sox today mathematically clinched second place in the American league.

This is the highest the club has finished since 1917 and 1918, when Ed Barrow, now with the New York Yankees, piloted them home second and first, respectively.

Pinky Higgins batted in seven runs and Ben Chapman four as part of a 12-hit attack on Pete Appleton and Monte Weaver. Meanwhile, Fritz Ostermueller won his thirteenth game—three more than he ever has won before—holding Washington to nine hits.

Four of these came in the ninth inning when Osty, enjoying a 13-1 lead, started lobbing the ball over the plate and the Senators made four runs. The victory enabled the Sox to clinch their season's series with Washington. Boston has won 12 games to the Senators' nine, with the final of the set scheduled for

New Yorkers Have Best Three-Man Throwing Outfield in Baseball Today

(This is the second of a series comparing the prospective opponents in the forthcoming world series.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Somehow, no matter from what angle you stand off and look at next week's world series, the Yankees always seem to come out on top in any department.

They top either of their possible rivals, the Pirates and Cubs, in at least three infield positions. And in the outfield they hold just as much of an edge. You point out that Joe DiMaggio is in a hitting slump, that twinkle-toes George Selkirk is "brittle" and that Tommy Henrich is only a sophomore with considerable to learn. You add that Johnny Rizzo is giving the pirates a right-hand hitter with more extra base power than they've ever packed before, that Frank Demaree is starting to roll again for the Cubs, and that Carl Reynolds is staging a fine comeback.

Newsom Pounded As Tigers Win From Brownies

DETROIT, Sept. 29 (AP)—Tommy Bridges won his 13th game of the season as the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns, 6-2, today in their final home appearance.

The Tigers raked Buck Newsom, who went the route for St. Louis, for 11 hits, but Hank Greenberg, aiming for Babe Ruth's home run record, failed to add to his 58 total. A single to left, two pop-ups and a fly to center was Greenberg's record for the afternoon. Bridges struck out seven and walked two, holding the Browns scoreless until two were out in the eighth when he fed home run balls to Buster Mills and George McQuinn. Greenberg's chances to tie or beat Ruth's 60-homer mark now rest in a three-game series starting Saturday at Cleveland.

Pettit Still On Injured List As Hunt Goes On

Sullivan and Moore Tubbs' Selection In Lengthy Drill

The near frantic search for a pair of capable ends to bolster the Iowa defense continued with unabated vigor yesterday as Coach Tubbs tried everybody but himself in the positions.

Carl Sullivan, a sophomore halfback, along with Joe Moore, a third stringer, continued to hold the inside track on the assignments.

The only glaring weakness on the team, and causing the coaching staff many moments of anguish when they recall how the Bruin backs raced down the field when the vulnerable spot became apparent, Tubbs has declared the posts vacant until some pair of huskies prove otherwise.

Several freshman backs, after two days of practice, were called in to display what they have learned of the Wisconsin style of play. Judging from the manner in which the varsity mistreated them, they have a great deal to learn. After several attempts to smash through the varsity line they were sent back to their comrades and the comparative safety of the frosh practice field.

Ken Pettit—who many think will solve one half of the end problem—is still handicapped with a hand injury. It is likely that the cast will not be removed from the injured member until two or three days before the Homecoming game.

Ray Murphy, Jerry Niles and Jack Eicherly continued to perform in an impressive manner yesterday. All are making a strong bid for the honor of starting the Homecoming game. Additional improvement, and one or more of them may be in there for the opening kickoff.

Beezer Regains Batting Lead In National

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29 (AP)—Johnny Vander Meer got into some tight spots today but held the St. Louis Cardinals to seven hits and won his 14th victory, 7 to 4, for the Cincinnati Reds.

Vander Meer walked a total of six men, forcing in one run, and struck out only one, Johnny Mize, Cards first baseman. Ernie Lombardi, Reds catcher, recaptured the National league batting leadership from Mize, getting a double and single while Mize went hitless. Percentages were Lombardi .3382, Mize .3359.

The Cards threw four pitchers into the game—Max Lanier, Max Macon, Paul Dean and Clyde Shoun—apparently wanting none too tired to take part in the series opening tomorrow with the Cubs.

Phillies Fold In Giant Attack; Out Hits Four Bagger

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Before the smallest crowd of the season at the Polo Grounds—1,198—the Giants took an easy 9 to 2 decision from the Phillies today behind the eight-hit pitching of Cliff Melton.

Mel Ott's 34th homer of the year, with a mate on base, sparked a three-run rally in the first inning, and then they batted around in the fourth to shove their other six runs over. Mickey Haslin, with three singles, and Jo Jo Moore with two singles and three runs batted in led the New York attack.

Stuhldreher Moans
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Coach Harry Stuhldreher professed to be not overly enthusiastic over his Wisconsin eleven yesterday as it began tapering off for the opener with Marquette here tomorrow. Stuhldreher admitted the team looked good—because of brand new uniforms—but complained the timing was off.

Stuhldreher stood pat on a starting lineup of nine veterans and two sophomores. Freshmen demonstrated Marquette plays and the varsity went through a signal drill.

Dodgers And Bees Divide

BROOKLYN, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Dodgers and Boston Bees split a doubleheader today, the Bees taking the opener, 2-1, and Brooklyn coming back for an 8-6 victory in the nightcap.

Deacon Danny MacFayden pitched a nine-hitter in the opener and was returned the winner when doubles by Tony Cuccinello and Elbie Fletcher and Hal Warstler's single accounted for Boston's two runs in the second inning.

The Dodgers climbed Lou Fette for eight runs in the second inning of the nightcap and coasted in. Dolph Camilli hit his 23rd homer of the year during the big rally. Vince DiMaggio hit a homer for the Bees before darkness ended the game in the seventh.

Cleveland Wins; Weatherly Homers To Pace Attack

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29 (AP)—Roy Weatherly, the powerful little outfielder who took over Earl Averill's chores in center field late in the season while the veteran Indian went to right field, hoisted the first ball pitched to him over the wall in the tenth inning today to give Cleveland a 9-8 victory over Chicago.

The White Sox collected five hits for five runs in the eighth to take a good-sized lead, but the Indians came back to score three times in their half of the eighth and again in the ninth to tie the score. The Indians dropped definitely out of the running for second place when Brown won from Washington, clinching the position.

$100 Budget, When Distributed Wisely, Will Give Home Glamorous Appeal

With leaves turning scarlet and gold and the zesty tang of autumn in the air, it's time to think about a new wardrobe for the home. If you are clever you will budget your home's wardrobe just as you do your own. Divide a $100 budget wisely between your living room, dining room and bedroom and you will be able to work wonders in giving your rooms glamour and charm.

For the living room concentrate on new drapes and a new cover for your divan or favorite easy chair, a new coffee table and a mirror to give the room a feeling of spaciousness. For the dining room invest in something new for the table and give thought to your windows. In the bedroom make your bed cover and dressing table the first consideration.

If you are lucky enough to have one of the new plate glass picture windows in your living or dining room, dramatize it with curtains of one of the rough textured materials with a homespun feeling, eliminating glass curtains and thus bringing out-of-doors vistas into your room, as illustrated in the large photograph. Chair and lounge stool have been treated to covers of a harmonizing material. Such covers can be made at home if you are clever with your sewing machine.

The smartest of the new coffee tables have mirror tops of plate glass, the one in the inset having the simple modified modern lines that grow increasingly popular with the cabinet makers.

For your dining room try a set of the new mirror mats, which are a glamour item that will brighten any table and still be within reach of a modest budget. Pictured is a place mat in the new peach colored mirror glass.

Tennesseans Deplore 'Horse and Buggy Laws'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A group of Tennessee legal experts has started a movement for reform of what they call a state system of procedural law belonging to the horse and buggy days.

"Today the trial of a law suit is often more of a battle of wits between opposing counsel, with the judge as referee," says Dean Henry B. Witham of the University of Tennessee law school.

"Much of the trouble lies in the fact that methods of procedure in our courts have become crystallized and technical to such an extent that real justice is overlooked."

The Perfect Combination Quink PLUS the Parker Vacumatic Pen

Even the Finest Fountain Pen Performs Far Better

When Filled with this Modern Ink . . . A Marvelous Creation!

Created by Parker to guard pens from pen-clogging inks . . . Ends 69% of the fountain pen troubles Never watery or gummy. And it dries on PAPER 31% quicker than average, due to stepped-up penetration. Yet Quink costs no more than ordinary inks—small bottles, 15c and 25c.

If you use an ordinary pen, you need Quink even more than does a Parker Pen owner to keep it in writing condition. If you use a Parker Pen, you'll be thrilled and surprised by the way it performs when filled with Quink. For until we created Quink and the Parker Vacumatic Pen, there never was a really scientific writing combination.

Those who can afford the best will not rest until they have them both. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wis.

Parker Quink

There is not—and never has been—any other pen designed to handle all kinds of inks—good and bad—as well as the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic. One reason is that this modern invention has no rubber ink sac, no lever filler, no piston pump. It is filled by a simple diaphragm, sealed in the top, where ink can never touch or decompose its working parts.

And its patented television barrel lets you SEE the level of ink at all times—see when to refill.

This pedigreed beauty of laminated Pearl and Jet is everywhere acknowledged to be the grandest pen ever created. Yet even this Guaranteed Mechanically Perfect pen can be plugged up by the grit and gum in ordinary writing inks.

Hence to guard the celebrated Parker Pens from pen-clogging inks, Parker experts developed this utterly new kind of writing ink—called Quink—an ink that actually cleans any pen as it writes.

This is done by a secret ingredient, wholly harmless. It dissolves the gum and other troublesome particles left in your pen by ordinary inks. It makes your pen a self-cleaner—cleans as it writes.

Parker Quink is full-bodied, rich, and brilliant.

Eyes That See Not—

Without the assistance that only eyes can offer, Shirley Porter, A2 of Humboldt, this week started his second year as a University of Iowa student. Although totally blind for the past 18 years, Porter has no difficulty in carrying on almost as active and interesting a life as any student on the campus. For 12 years a student in the school for the blind at Vinton, Porter expects to enter the college of law. Shown here at his typewriter, the 19-year-old scholar prepares his next day's assignments.

Seeing Isn't Everything! Blindness Fails to Ban Sophomore From University of Iowa Activities

By LOREN HICKERSON Daily Iowan Campus Editor

You may have spotted him on the campus during the past year or so. More probably you haven't. Because there's nothing about his appearance that would tell you, as you meet him on his way to class, that he's totally blind. He carries no cane; his walk is as steady as though seeing eyes were guiding him.

He's A2 now, and headed for big things. Soon he'll enter the college of law, along with the dozens of others who'll enter the college of law, and between him and the others there'll be only the difference that for the past 18 years of the 19 years of his life he hasn't been able to see. He's Shirley Porter, A2 of Humboldt.

Six feet tall, blond and Danish through and through, with his second year English, German, public discussion and debate, political science and economics, he's every inch a University of Iowa student. One might think that a life of blindness is one of dullness. Porter does not find it so. He spends his days in the normal university activities of classes and study, in playing the piano, in eating, reading, laughing and sleeping—as normal as any A2 on the campus.

Until last year, Porter attended the school for the blind at Vinton. Seven years of grade school there, plus four of high school, equipped him as completely for a university career as any other school in the state. During six of those 12 years he played violin in the widely recognized orchestra from the school. Years before he came to the campus as a student, he sat with his classmates on Iowa Union's music festival platform and received the ovations of crowds which preceded almost yearly ratings of "superior."

Now his musical activity is chiefly at the piano. He's even played in dance bands and thoroughly enjoyed it. Much of his time is devoted to reading, of course in braille. Each month he receives his special copy of "Readers Digest," the only contemporary magazine published in braille form. Every few weeks he gets copies of books from circulation libraries. He likes anything from Darwin's "Origin of Species" to Sherlock Holmes. The biggest job to date has been Dumas' "Count of Monte Cristo"—21 volumes in braille. An ordinary book transposed into the language of the blind requires from two to 16 volumes. How does he study? His roommate takes care of that. Each night they cover subjects together. "Mart" reads the assignments, and Porter absorbs them with him. "Mart" is Martin Prussner, A2 of Hubbard, who saw Porter through registration and is assisting in getting his semester classrooms straightened out, after which he'll carry on himself. Porter's a good friend of all the boys who stay at the private home in which he's lived since the second semester of last year. The first semester he lived at the Quadrangle, then he moved to the H. L. Moon home, 124 N. Clinton street. There he's been, except for the past summer.

Although newspapers are of no use to him, Porter greatly appreciates his radio. He's the house's authority on the central European situation, but in addition, radio offers a never-ending source of entertainment for him. He's up on his toes on the present world's series race; likes to hear a good football game—he's even played the game himself. Although he seldom ventures into the heart of the downtown district, Porter has no difficulty in finding his way about. He eats next door to his home, crosses streets as surely as anyone, follows sidewalks directly, guided by the swaying of the trees overhead and the minor sounds which resound from the buildings he passes—things we'd never notice. His 17 hours of work this semester bother him not at all. He's never had any difficulty in having time to get his studying done. His grade point average for last year was 3.43, and there's already talk among the boys in the house of dividing this semester's average among a few of the others.

There'll be no 8 o'clocks for Porter this year. His brain, he says, just doesn't seem to click that early in the morning. But you'll see him on his way to 9 o'clocks, with his books under his arm and his special note board, with its braille alphabet, with which he takes notes during lectures. Porter never troubles himself about not being able to see. His philosophy embodies a world of busy work and play and study that's just as real and interesting as visibility could make it. His blindness is a handicap? Perhaps. But Porter is still very, very much A2 of Humboldt.

Prof. F. Zuill To Lecture Association

Prof. Frances Zuill of the home economics department will speak in Cedar Rapids today on the "Improvement of Home Economics" before the northeast Teachers' association. The address is scheduled at 2 p.m.

offers a never-ending source of entertainment for him.

He's up on his toes on the present world's series race; likes to hear a good football game—he's even played the game himself.

Although he seldom ventures into the heart of the downtown district, Porter has no difficulty in finding his way about. He eats next door to his home, crosses streets as surely as anyone, follows sidewalks directly, guided by the swaying of the trees overhead and the minor sounds which resound from the buildings he passes—things we'd never notice.

His 17 hours of work this semester bother him not at all. He's never had any difficulty in having time to get his studying done. His grade point average for last year was 3.43, and there's already talk among the boys in the house of dividing this semester's average among a few of the others.

There'll be no 8 o'clocks for Porter this year. His brain, he says, just doesn't seem to click that early in the morning.

But you'll see him on his way to 9 o'clocks, with his books under his arm and his special note board, with its braille alphabet, with which he takes notes during lectures.

His blindness is a handicap? Perhaps. But Porter is still very, very much A2 of Humboldt.

NLRB Examiner Advises Paper Reemploy 5 Men

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29 (AP)—George E. Kennedy, examiner for the national labor relations board, today recommended that the board require the Hollywood Citizen-News to reemploy five members of the American Newspaper Guild it had discharged and others who struck in sympathy last May.

The strike was settled six weeks ago, with the provision that discharged or striking employees return to work pending the final outcome of the case. They received no back pay, however, and the examiner recommended it be paid them.

The newspaper claimed it discharged the five editorial and business department employees for economic reasons, but the guild contended it was because of their union activities.

Kennedy found the newspaper management had not bargained in good faith with the guild and recommended it be ordered to do so. Harlan G. Palmer, Citizen-News publisher, said: "We are prepared to carry the matter to the courts."

The City of Munich—Where a Nation Was Divided

Shown above is a view of the city of Munich where four European diplomats met yesterday to decide the outcome of the Czech-

German crisis. Hitler, Mussolini, Daladier and Chamberlain sat around a conference table yesterday to form the four power pact which gave Germany permission to occupy the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia. In the above view is shown the city at the time when Hitler spoke to 100,000 in 1933 on the 10th anniversary of the "Putsch" that failed.

Parley--

military and police forces. Sudeten political prisoners also are to be liberated within that period.

Britain and France agreed to join in an international guarantee of new Czechoslovak boundaries as provided for in the original Anglo-French partition plan.

When the Polish and Hungarian minority questions have been settled, Germany and Italy also are to give guarantees to Czechoslovakia against unprovoked aggression.

The question of guarantees and Hungarian-Polish minorities claims are covered in annexes to the agreement on the Sudeten, cession and plebiscites.

The agreement made no mention of whether Czechoslovakia had accepted the proposals. The resigned Czechoslovak government of Premier Milan Hodza heretofore accepted the initial Anglo-French proposal at the prodding of those two governments.

The official announcement did not state what "international bodies" would occupy the regions not recognized as wholly German pending the plebiscites. It was believed, however, they would be police forces sent in by the four signatories to the agreement, or by small military detachments.

Chamberlain returned to his hotel in the early morning hours visibly happy over the results of the historic four-power parley.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany and Premier Daladier came into their hotels, one by one smiling broadly.

Goering and a group of his aids came down later for a quiet beer party to celebrate the agreement.

There were no maps furnished to show the four Sudeten zones which the Czechoslovaks are supposed to begin to evacuate and Germany to occupy Oct. 1. A British spokesman said, however, they were roughly as follows:

Zone one takes in Krumau, along the Czechoslovak-Austrian German border. This is the smallest of the four.

Zone two includes Asch, Eger, Karlovy Vary (Karlsbad) and Marienbad.

Zone three is along the Silesian border.

Zone four is along the Saxon border.

How deep these zones go into Czechoslovakia was not explained.

Premier Mussolini was understood to have left Munich almost immediately after the conference broke up.

Munich residents broke through a line of guards into the darkened streets to cheer II Duce's car.

Chamberlain planned to leave this afternoon after a long rest from the peace efforts which he started at Berchtesgaden Sept. 15 and saw to fruition here today.

The time of Daladier's departure was not disclosed.

Wanted to Know If He'd Been Divorced

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The county judge's office received a letter addressed to "Judge Domestic Relations court" which read, in part: "I would like to know if there has been a woman by the name of [redacted] got a divorce from [redacted] with is me. . . . Please let me know about it if so or not."

Letter Arrives— But 29 Years Late

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Dr. A. C. Fawcett, dentist, has received the New Year's greeting card the late Dr. Frank Robinson of Chippewa Falls, Wis., sent him Dec. 30, 1910.

No one knows where the card has been all this time, Dr. Robinson has been dead 20 years.

Bender Seeks Photo Equipment To Modernize City Police Dept.

Chief Explains New System Would Make Records More Complete

Police Chief W. H. Bender last night submitted to the city council a requisition for outfitting the police department with photographic equipment.

At a cost of $142, the initial equipment will be another step toward modernizing and improving the efficiency of the police force, explained Chief Bender.

In the past all photographic work for the police station has been done by private concerns. The chief said that by employing the new system a more complete rogues gallery and finger print file could be maintained.

Officers in charge of the proposed department would be Lawrence Ham and Ed Ruppert, the latter having had almost nine years experience in university X-ray laboratories.

The council last night passed an order for a new vertical antennae tower for the police station. The new tower is to be erected in front of the building at a cost of $40. It was stated that the old aerial is inefficient because of excess interference.

CHAPTER 28

THE WORLD ended for Judy as Ronald followed Abbey into the den. She breathed, she walked, she smiled, she wasn't dead. She might even be able to cry—

That conference in the den meant only one thing to Judy. Mr. Boland was being informed of Abbey's change of heart.

"Judy! We came mainly to see you!" It was Craig who greeted her in the great drawing room a few seconds later.

Craig! She had thought her heart was cruelly hurt because of him such a brief time ago. It hadn't been like this, though. Yet she had had far more reason to be wounded then. This time she had practically none. Was she always to go on, her heart being kicked like a football, until it gave up and rolled off the field?

Mary was with Craig. She wore a long tight black skirt and a jeweled jacket. Her hair, parted in the middle and coiled low on her neck, made her resemble a Madonna.

Mary was lucky. She loved a man and he loved her.

Judy heard a voice greeting guests and knew that it must belong to her. She smiled. It was a mechanical voice, like a toy, that you wound up and forgot until it ran down.

Marjorie came in a heavy white crepe dress that was lavishly dotted with old gold coins and gold slippers and cape.

She closed her eyes, for just a moment, as she walked through the door. Soon now she would see Count Phillippe. Any moment she would be confronted with visible evidence that there had been a month by a blue sea, when a silver wind blew softly, and gondolas wove their mystic way through the water lanes of Venice. She would know for all time she had not dreamed it.

That moment at the boat had been so brief. Count Phillippe had seemed different. But now—now he would be his gay, charming tender self . . . the self he had been when he told her he loved her, before she knew that he was on a heart-breaking crusade—

Judy saw Marjorie and came to meet her, and Marjorie adjusted the twin mask of Judy's smile.

Inner . . . place cards painted by a distinguished artist, torn to bits by nervous fingers, or seared with cigaret flame by a careless few. Course after course of priceless food. Small Santa Clauses frolicking on the ices that concluded the meal.

Marjorie had given one swift glance at the count and looked away, trying to disguise the emotions on her face.

"Ah, Marjorie, it is good to find you again," he was saying, but she did not stay to listen. Her head was swimming dizzily.

Judy observed Marjorie's quick withdrawal, and thought about it a time or two during the dinner. But there was so much to do . . . Ronald, Ronald, why did you come? Why did you make me dream again?

The dinner ended. The other guests arrived. The swing band, that would send its tuneful melodies as high as the cloudland where the angels once sang, came too.

The party moved to the swimming pool and the game room beyond. Silver trees stood everywhere, a silver moon shone through the frosty boughs that were a canopy for the ceiling. Stars twinkled, miniature sleds, big enough to hold two, made seats.

The swimming pool had been frozen. Here presently the most famous skater of the age would perform, and then all the guests who wished would glide on the green glass surface to the ring of their skates, or, if they didn't skate, use the ballroom floor upstairs, the game room next door. Skating shoes were abundantly provided.

Gaiety was king of the evening. If you laughed, if you talked, if you laughed again, no one would notice that your heart was breaking—breaking up like real snow and ice, not this artificial stuff that had been banked everywhere.

When Ronald came to Judy, chose two pairs of skates, one for her and one for himself, and fastened them on, she said no word. Not until they were on the ice's surface did he smile down at her.

"Like it?" The old warmth was in his tone.

"Now I do." Surely she could take one minute's happiness.

"But before?"

"It's not real."

"Ah, Judy, you're learning fast." (So fast that maybe I'll pass you, Ronald. Aren't you forgetting the rules you gave me—courage, sacrifice, strength?)

He spoke slowly. "What do you think of the count?"

"He's amusing. Why?"

"Do you think he really loves Abbey?"

Judy was looking away, into the bower where the musicians sent their provocative strains higher and higher, as she heard the question.

"Neither the count nor Miss Boland like to entertain me with secrets. But when a man wants money and a girl wants a title—or aren't you good at arithmetic, Ronald?"

(So, Ronald, if you want her, you may have her. Don't give up. Persist. Only you're real and she's moonbeams and glamor and sham. Don't you see?)

Her eyes searched among the skaters and dancers. She did not see that blue dress which gathered all silver lights to itself and flung them away glorified. The gold head was not smiling proudly, as though it challenged the silver stuff to defeat it.

Ronald said: "Judy, can Abbey rely on your help if she needs it? She may not ask it. She may have to."

His voice was curiously pleading. Oh, it was a Merry, Merry Christmas!

"Abbey is all right. She's so young," Ronald tried to explain.

"One month younger than I am," Judy supplied, and a dimple flashed.

Ronald smiled, too. "I mean in wisdom, judgment—that sort of thing. She's never had a worry heavier than a handful of pink confetti until now."

"And now?"

Maybe he would confide in her. Then she wouldn't send her thoughts back and forth between two opinions, like a shuttle train. He loved Abbey—he didn't love Abbey.

Judy's silver sandals had low, sturdy heels. Her warm brown eyes were steady and bright. Her curls and her eyebrows and her mouth flew gaily upward. She was small, but there was a sense of durability there.

It was this which Ronald sensed and on which he leaned. But she did not know it. She knew only that he donned armor to fight for another girl.

Craig came, skating alone, and held out his hands. She glided away with him, smiling at Ronald, not even saying goodby.

(Here is Craig—Craig who once was dear to me. Because he was, I'll say light words to him for a little while, too. Goodby, Ronald. Oh, you can count on me. It's my job, isn't it? Whatever we do, we Rogers see things through.)

Marjorie found Ronald staring at Judy with a puzzled frown on his good-looking face.

"What did I do?" he asked. "I might be someone to whom she paid a quarter, summer before last, for mowing the lawn if New York had lawns. I thought she would want to help me—forget it, Marjorie!"

Music—slow, fast, daring, sweetly syncopated. Laughter. Chatter.

The rooms were too warm, and Judy picked up a velvet cape that was part of her frock, and stepped outside on the terrace. The moon was a great tinsel ornament for somebody's evergreen tree, and the stars were caught in a network. She breathed deeply. She walked down the terrace.

She stopped quickly. A girl was standing against the wall. She moved out of the shadow just as Judy appeared. A man who had been with her turned and disappeared. The girl was Abbey. Judy didn't see the man.

Maybe it was the Count. Perhaps it was Ronald.

Abbey banished that first supposition. Her slim fingers gripped Judy's arm. "Promise me you'll not mention this to Count Phillippe! Promise!"

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

FROM A WORD MACHINE

I've been, as is my usual way, kindly and tolerant toward Iowa Union's music room because I think it's a great institution... I think it's a necessary part of our campus; I hope it will always be with us...

All of which leads up to the fact that there'll be some changes made — if the music room's to continue as a success... The present one's too small, too narrow and too crowded... The acoustics are the world's worst, and with the playing machine turned to its lowest notch the music's far from its best...

Maybe smoking's not important, but I'm inclined to believe it has a place for those of us who listen... You can't smoke in the present room...

And then, being very personal and possibly unkind, I'm still convinced there's a place for improvement in personnel... I think a lover of music attracts other lovers of music...

I happen to like good music, when there's time... And my own observations have been backed, not by the masses, but by a congregate of the one per cent who also do and who go occasionally to listen...

I think Iowa Union's big enough and the music room important enough to have some changes made...

The Clyde Hart's're living in a trailer (but only until the new house is completed)...

Bob Waples has reached London now—and'll sail Oct. 8, but Fellow Phi Psi Chuck West had his German-boat passage cancelled... Until the smoke's cleared friends hold their respective breaths...

Sammy Sloan, the most of the best of the English department, has only a B.A., while most of the grad assistants are Ph.D.'s... Only proving again, of course, that educationally personality is more important than degrees...

After a year in Germany Ed Gunberg isn't as worried about Hitler's rest of us... "Probably he was necessary," Gunberg says... "I'd call him a benevolent despot."

By arriving two minutes late Cap'n Jack Eicherly missed the chance of posing with Celebrie Joan Crawford at M-G-M... She was on set, and the planned publicity shot would have cost $1,000 minutely...

No Gas

You can't buy a gas mask in Iowa City; a scout tried... But a certain hardware store'll refer to the Johnston-McNulty company of Chicago where a "guaranteed" mask can be purchased for $15... Only you'll have to run into Chi to get it... Jim Farley doesn't think the things should be sent through the mail...

The musicians' union sets a $55 minimum for a decent-sized campus band, and the bands, because it's nice work if you can get it, set a minimum of $65 or $75 for a night... Which is why so many radio-phonographs are being sold these days...

These prices ignoring, of course, the cut some social

COUNCIL GLEANINGS

A petition appealing for the repair of the Community building roof was submitted to the council last night by E. F. Mueller, C. F. Ramsey, R. N. Lorenz, W. R. Hart and J. A. Swisher. It was decided that City Clerk Grover Watson should write to an unbiased Cedar Rapids roofing firm regarding the price of inspecting the roof.

Regarding the paving of Court street to Fourth street, the council approved a plan to file a petition with the city clerk awaiting the next WPA grant.

Since today is the deadline for present WPA grants, there is not time for immediate action.

A tire contract for refitting the police squad car was awarded to the Firestone Tire company, which submitted the lowest bid.

Applications for positions at the municipal sewage disposal plant were approved for Robert D. Mott, superintendent, and William Morrison, laborer.

Patrolman Lawrence Ham was selected to attend the Northwestern traffic school for a course in modern traffic methods and highway safety. The school opening Oct. 17, is considered the finest of its kind in this country. It is held at Northwestern university.
