

Hungary Makes New Demands From Czechs

Sends Note To Urge Immediate Negotiations

Hungary Wants Her Claims for Minority Solved at Once

BUDAPEST, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Hungarian press agency announced tonight the government had presented Czechoslovakia a new note calling for immediate negotiations on Hungary's minority claims.

The announcement said the note also requested a guarantee that the negotiations would be conducted in "the right atmosphere."

It was explained this last request was made to assure a smooth, quick solution of Hungary's claims involving her 800,000 minority in the little republic.

Meanwhile Hungarian newspaper reports of "increased Czech terror" made Magyar blood temperatures rise.

A number of mass meetings throughout Hungary demanded immediate occupation of Czechoslovak territories to "extinguish this Czech-Bolshevik bloodhound."

Report Plundering
Some Hungarian newspapers reported that Czechoslovak legionnaires were beginning to burn and plunder Hungarian villages in southern Czechoslovakia.

Others said eight Hungarian-speaking recruits in the Czechoslovak army had been shot at Bratislava for military disobedience and four others made to dig their own graves before they were shot.

There was no indication, however, that the Czechoslovak army intended to leave the so-called purely Hungarian districts demanded by the Budapest government "unconditionally and immediately."

Reinforce Lines
It was noticed from the Hungarian side of the Danube that Prague's troops had reinforced their barbed wire lines, built anti-tank concrete walls on the highways and fortifications, and that trucks and freight cars brought additional war equipment to the frontier.

The press chief of the foreign office said that up to the time the new note was delivered in Prague, there had been no indication from the Czechoslovak government as to when it intended to start the negotiations.

He added that Hungary was ready to occupy the purely Hungarian minority district of Czechoslovakia should her claims be accepted by Czechoslovakia.

The Czechoslovak government last night notified Budapest of its desire for peaceful settlement of Hungary's claims involving her 800,000 minority in the little republic.

Urge Occupation
Even as this action came from Prague, Hungarian nazis and revisionists impatiently urged immediate occupation.

Conservative Hungarian statesmen said Premier Bela Imredy did not look favorably on this course, preferring to attempt a settlement by direct negotiations. If this failed, it was said he would submit the question to a new four-power conference as provided in the Munich accord.

The foreign office press chief said the government was convinced the Czechoslovak government would agree to start discussions within two or three days.

Conferee Heads
In some political circles it was believed the Hungarian minister of the interior, Count Paul Teleki, and the undersecretary of state for minority problems, Tibor Pataky, would head the Hungarian conferees.

Diplomatic quarters believed Hungary's procedure during the discussions — when and if they begin — would be to start with insistence of unconditional and immediate return of the Slovak area with predominantly Hungarian population.

The second point would be determination of a date on which a plebiscite should be held in other districts where there are Hungarians in lesser numbers.

The foreign office today produced a map with sections marked off showing the location of Magyars in the Slovak territory in 1910.

Hitler Enters in Triumphant March; Sudeten Nazis Cheer Wildly on His Path, Shouting 'We Thank Our Fuehrer!'

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
With the German army of occupation in Sudetenland, Oct. 3 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler rode victoriously into the Sudetenland today and proclaimed the region part of Germany with the pledge that "never again will this land be torn away from the Reich."

He entered the Sudetenland with his soldiers, airplanes, armored cars, and artillery. The populace, cheering wildly, strewed his path with flowers and shouted "we thank our fuehrer!"

The chancellor rode in triumph for 40 miles through zone three of the newly-acquired territory, completing the procession and returning to Germany at dusk. Tonight he went to Hof, not far west of Eger, to sleep in his special train. Tomorrow he will return to the Sudetenland to visit Graslitz, Bleistadt, Falkenau and Koenigsberg.

Hitler began the procession at 11:16 a.m. (4:15 a.m., C. S. T.), at Wildenau, half a mile from Asch, heart of the Sudetenland ceded to Germany by Czechoslovakia.

About three hours earlier, at 8:05 a.m., 2,000 soldiers of the German army under General Walther Von Reichenau began occupation of zone three, the Asch-Eger region of the new German acquisitions.

Green Attacks C.I.O.; Claims Red Objective

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 3 (AP)—William Green shook his fist today and caustically accused John L. Lewis of leading an industrial union movement that Lewis labeled 14 years ago as "one of the objectives of the communist international."

The president of the American Federation of Labor, opening its national convention, couched his keynote speech in bristling terms as he attacked the C. I. O. chairman.

Green shouted that Lewis in 1924 gave a senate committee a statement charging communists were attempting to gain control of the American Federation of Labor to reach an objective of "one big union."

"He is now engaged in leading a movement which has that very thing for its objective," Green said, amid the shouts of the delegates, assembled in Houston's coliseum.

Age Minimum Of 14 Possible For Newsboys

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Elisha Hanson, general counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers association, said today he would advise publishers to "get rid of" newsboys under 14 years of age, and to obtain proof of age for all minor employees.

Hanson made the statement after a committee of publishers had conferred with Katharine Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau.

He said that newspaper publishers in cities of 50,000 persons or more already had established a 14-year minimum under a "gentleman's agreement" made after the NRA was outlawed. He said, newspapers in cities of less than 50,000 had employed boys between 12 and 14 years of age.

"We are advising publishers now, irrespective of size of cities, to jack the low limit up to 14," Hanson said.

The attorney emphasized that the publishers discussed with Miss Lenroot merely the distribution of newspapers by minors, and said she gave them no indication of what the regulations would be under the new fair labor standards act.

Hanson said his advice would be made on the "presumption" that the law would permit employment of boys 14 to 16 years of age outside school hours, if no night work were involved.

Miss Lenroot said after the meeting that she was "not yet in a position to issue regulations or make any statements," but that orders would be issued before October 24, when the labor standards act becomes effective.

The new law will prohibit the shipment in interstate commerce of goods manufactured by children under 16, except where regulations are issued permitting such employment. Miss Lenroot said she did not think it probable that newspapers would be affected by provisions of the law which make it possible to prohibit employment of children 16 to 18 years, on the ground that their work is hazardous.

Hanson and a group of newspaper publishers also conferred today with Elmer F. Andrews, the wage-hour administrator.

Dictatorship In France?

Daladier to Demand Powers to Handle Financial Difficulties

PARIS, Oct. 3 (AP)—Political sources said tonight that Premier Edouard Daladier has decided to ask parliament for temporary semi-dictatorial authority to meet financial difficulties arising from the international crisis.

Daladier came into office April 10 with decree powers which expired July 31. Demand for full powers has been the traditional way for French governments to face financial difficulties.

Sources close to the government said decree powers to be demanded by Daladier would extend until Jan. 1, 1939, giving him authority to take "all financial, economic and social measures which the present situation requires."

Confidence was expressed in these quarters that after obtaining a vote of confidence on its foreign policy with respect to Czechoslovakia and the four-power Munich conference, the government would also win a delegation of powers on this domestic issue.

Cabinet to Meet

Two cabinet meetings were called, the first tomorrow at 10 a.m., and the second at 11 a.m., with President Lebrun at the Elysee palace.

The cabinet has been called to meet tomorrow morning both to approve the report on the Czechoslovak crisis which the premier will make to parliament in extraordinary session in the afternoon, and to consider measures to relieve the financial strain caused by the war scare.

Among the steps Daladier planned, it was said in the lobbies of the chamber of deputies, was to demand decree powers, enabling him to effect some legislation without the usual parliamentary routine.

Request for such powers from parliament would depend on whether the rest of the cabinet approved the action. If it should come before the chamber it would cause bitter debate and possibly open a break in the people's front.

Leftists Opposed

The socialists and communists in the past have made it plain that they were opposed to such a move by the radical socialists, the premier's party.

Under the wave of popularity for Daladier, however, it was considered in political quarters that the premier might rally a new majority from the conservative ranks.

Full powers if granted would be used to broaden the government's borrowing powers to meet the cost of mobilization and other war preparedness measures, political sources said.

The state was reported to have reached almost the limit of loans without interest authorized by the bank of France. The present limit is 30,000,000,000 francs (about $810,000,000).

Witness Argues For Pay Cut

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—A. F. Cleveland, a railroad witness, told the president's fact-finding board today that government activities had contributed directly to the loss in revenues the carriers contend make necessary a 15 percent pay cut for their employees.

Testifying in support of the pay cut, Cleveland asserted that large government expenditures for development of hydro-electric power had cut coal consumption, with a resultant heavy decline in freight revenues. Cleveland is vice-president in charge of the traffic department of the Association of American Railroads.

Because of its expanding operations, Cleveland said, the government has become one of the largest tonnage shippers in the country. He said this decreased revenue because much freight formerly shipped at commercial rates now must be handled at half rates. (Land grant railroads may charge the government only half rate on hauls over land grant mileage.)

Rail revenues have declined, Cleveland continued, as air, water, motor truck shipping and travel and pipe line transportation has increased.

On the other hand, Charles M. Hay, counsel for 18 brotherhoods which have voted to strike rather than accept the pay cut, contended on cross-examination that poorly paid and dissatisfied workers would prove more damaging to the railroads in their competitive efforts than any other factor.

Summer Welles Discloses Inside Story of U. S. Intervention

Fact-Finding Board Listens to Rail Chiefs

J. Carter Fort, counsel for the Association of American Railroads, presents case of the employers before the three-man fact-finding board (left) in Washington, appointed to investigate conditions of the roads and recommend a compromise between employers and employees. Appointment of board delayed 60 days the voted strike and the threatened wage slash that provoked it. The board is composed of (l. to r.): Harry Mills, Chicago professor; Chief Justice Walter P. Stacey, of North Carolina supreme court, and Dean James M. Landis of Harvard law school.

Welles said that President Roosevelt's special appeal to Mussolini became known to the Italian government in substance before Il Duce's historic telephone call to Hitler, on the basis of which Hitler convoked the four-power conference in Munich.

Speaks on Network
Speaking over a national (NBC) radio network in the forum of the Washington Evening Star, Welles disclosed also that the United States had received "information of unquestioned authenticity" that 2 p.m. last Wednesday had been fixed for the entrance of the German armies into Czechoslovakia.

The undersecretary said, "There was no question but that Europe was on the brink of war." He added, "In all that your government has said and done during these last days, it was pursuing the course best calculated to aid in preserving peace and in ensuring the safety of this country."

Great Opportunity
The world now has a great opportunity, he said. "Today, perhaps more than at any time during the past two decades there is presented the opportunity for the establishment by the nations of the world of a new world order based upon justice and upon law."

Permanent peace, the speaker said, must be based on sanctity of the pledged word, non-intervention in the internal affairs of other countries, peaceful negotiation for the settlement of disputes, and respect by all nations for the just rights of others.

"If on such a basis as this there should now be brought to pass the solution of all of those tragic controversies which still fester in Europe and in the far east," he said, "and thereby make less probable the outbreak of new controversies in the future, the agony of spirit which countless men and women have suffered during these past few days will not have been in vain."

Welles Tells Story
News dispatches from Rome have stated that Ambassador Phillips presented President Roosevelt's appeal to Mussolini at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, which was four hours after Mussolini's telephone call to Hitler. However, Welles told the story as follows:

"Early in the afternoon of Sept. 27, the president sent through the American ambassador in Rome a personal and confidential appeal to the chief of the Italian government, informing him of the action which he had already taken in the interest of peace, and asking whether Signor Mussolini would not also extend his help in the continuation of efforts to arrive at an agreement upon the questions at issue by negotiation or by other pacific means rather than by resort to force."

"While this message was not formally placed in the hands of Signor Mussolini until 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the following day, the purport of the president's appeal was known to the Italian government about quarter before 10 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 28."

State department officials explained that at that hour the American counselor of embassy telephoned the foreign office in Rome, asked for an appointment for Ambassador Phillips, informed the foreign office of the president's appeal, which had just been received, and gave the purport of it. This information was passed on to the Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano, and through him to Mussolini.

German Guard Threatens 500 Czech Soldiers

By ROY POETER
FALKENAU, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 3 (AP)—A German SS advance guard surrounded an estimated 500 Czechoslovak soldiers today, threatened them with death by machine gun fire, and seized their arms and automobiles.

The advance guard moved in six hours in advance of the time agreed upon by the international military commission regulating occupation of the western Sudeten zone, Czechoslovakia declared.

The black-uniformed elite guardsmen released their prisoners only after a direct protest from Czechoslovak military authorities of the district.

Indignant Czechoslovak officials transmitted the news of the temporary imprisonment directly to Prague, and they were told from the capital that an official protest would be made both to Berlin and the international commission.

German officers concerned in the incident—which I witnessed in company with a Czechoslovak general staff officer—were a major and staff captain of the black-uniformed Schutzstaffel.

The incident came swiftly. The time agreed upon for evaluation of Falkenau had been set for 5 p.m. (10 a.m., CST).

The Czechoslovak army officers had ordered withdrawal of all forces of police and gendarmery at 11 a.m. (4 a.m., CST).

Regular troops, many of whom already had left, were instructed to evacuate two hours before the Germans were scheduled to arrive.

At approximately 10:40 a.m. the German major entered the town and walked into the office of Major Helvin, the Czechoslovak commander, and asked why the town was not already evacuated.

Major Helvin replied that the order of the commission carrying out the Munich conference plan of occupation specified 5 p.m. as the time for withdrawal.

The German major then delivered an ultimatum to "clear the town within ten minutes."

The Czechoslovak official gave no orders for immediate evacuation.

In the meantime SS units, armed with machine guns and bayoneted rifles and carrying hand grenades, advanced on the town's market place where most Czechoslovak troops were stationed.

The Germans set up their machine guns around the square.

Radio Speech Tells How U. S. Entered Crisis

State's Undersecretary Sets Up Principles For Permanent Peace

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Summer Welles, undersecretary of state, disclosed tonight the inside story of United States intervention in Europe's war crisis and declared that the "great underlying needs" now are world-wide agreements to limit armaments, abstain from bombing civilians and reconstruct economic prosperity.

Welles said that President Roosevelt's special appeal to Mussolini became known to the Italian government in substance before Il Duce's historic telephone call to Hitler, on the basis of which Hitler convoked the four-power conference in Munich.

Just Plain Silly

NOW, WE don't think it's a tendency toward "fascism" or "totalitarianism" or any "ism," for that matter. We do think it's extremely silly and in very bad taste.

We mean the ruling made late last week by the Federal Communications Commission, the seven-member organization supervising radio. That's the organization which decided to punish a lot of radio stations for having broadcast Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon" recently.

The reason? The words "damn," "hell" and "for God's sake" were used. The commission found them "obscene and indecent."

Maybe so, but does it really matter? Eugene O'Neill is one of our greatest playwrights; he's one of the greatest playwrights living anywhere. He has four times won the Pulitzer prize, and last year he was awarded the Nobel prize for his contribution to literature.

His plays are all real, dramatic and full of vitality. That occasionally they are also somewhat profane seems to us unimportant.

Great art is frequently a little unconventional. It may be that's why it's art.

If the FCC continues to make radio a namby-pamby, conventional instrument of "entertainment," that's all right. But it's not doing its duty by radio, which, after such shows as "The Fallen City" and "Behold, The Man," has shown real possibilities as an instrument of real artistic work.

And, incidentally, if either of the large networks plans any Shakespeare broadcasting, it had better consult the Federal Communications commission. There'll be trouble on the air.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Iowan: Is it not about time a new and open-minded attitude is taken by the general public, and especially the newspapers of our nation, in regard to the most vital and far-reaching piece of legislation that confronts the American people?

This proposed bill is known as "The General Welfare Act of 1937" or the "Townsend Philosophy of Government." This bill and proposed law was presented to congress Feb. 2, 1937, for a hearing and thorough discussion but instead has been smothered in committee ever since.

Is it not about time the voters should be informed as to what this bill will do for all, both rich and poor alike?

If food was as scarce as news pertaining to two of our most vital destroying features of our government, namely unemployment and the lack of money circulation, we would all perish from hunger. This nation is and has been staggering blindly along economic highways surfaced by men who know little or nothing about national economic diseases.

Our proposed bill is no longer a joke, nor can it be laughed away. It is here to stay. Our bill is a simple annuity insurance plan and the annuity to be spent each month, amounting to one and one-half billion dollars forced into the channels of trade, bringing back once more our 1929 peak of prosperity with business transactions amounting to twelve hundred billion dollars. The General Welfare Act will give all able-bodied men and women work and end depressions forever.

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK—Carl Erbe leaves shortly on one of the few remaining trips of interest which haven't been exhausted by tourists and travelers. This is the "inland passage" from New York to Florida, and he sets out Oct. 15 with two companions in a 60 foot auxiliary sailing yacht.

The trip south will require about three weeks, and on it they will explore little-known bays and coves, threading their way through a maze of small islands so little peopled that electricity is non-existent and the natives, a rural folk who live chiefly by fishing and trapping, still use kerosene lamps.

Erbe's departure this year is a little earlier than usual. He goes south in leisurely fashion, but once there his work will be out for him, because he handles Jack Dempsey's Miami restaurant, as well as the Patio and Colony clubs.

This means here that the Riviera, Ben Marden's place on the Palisades, is closed and deserted now, save for a ground crew and workmen who are putting in new equipment. The entire crew, from waiters and bartenders to chefs, and even Marden's private barber, are on their way south to open the Florida clubs. It's an annual custom with Marden to take his staffs south. Half the year they work in an atmosphere of waving palms and soft sea breezes; the remaining months they are stationed in New York.

Meanwhile, Erbe and two companions are putting that yacht in shipshape condition. If you walk into his Madison avenue office, today, you'll find him pouring over maps, making a careful check of the inland passage. Outside of back-train trips, it's the one remaining thriller left to travelers in this country. The trip is a long one, and not without its perils. Most of the travel must be done in day time, which means they'll tie up at quaint ports all the way down the coast. Night cruising is too dangerous—too many hidden reefs and shallows waiting to trap unwary pilots.

The route they'll take reads like a Randy McNally map salesman talking choctaw. They'll go "outside" around Sandy Hook and into Cape May, and from there the trail leads through the Delaware river, the Delaware and Chesapeake canals and on to Norfolk. At the Virginia port they go "inside" again through the Albemarle river, and through Currituck sound, the Allegheny river and Albemarle sound.

From the sound they follow the Pungo river canal and the Neus river, leaving that stream eventually for Vogue sound, after which they come to Indian river. They follow the Indian all the way to Miami.

It'll be quite a trip. They'll make it in a leisurely fashion. No hurry, of course. Long days of lazing in the sun, when there isn't work to be done, salt air and plenty of good wholesome grub.

It sounds like a swell jaunt. They asked me if I wanted to go along, but how can you spend three weeks on a boat tracing the inland passage and write a column about New York?

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—There's another one of those fellows in town. You can spot them every time—and just by watching the feminine contingent of the studios they work in. You can follow dreamy-eyed stenogs and mooning secretaries and designing starlets as they converge, under various pretexts, upon one sound stage. You can follow the ladies' eyes, in the studio restaurant, when the fellow walks in. And you know that the ladies are struck. It follows, in usually inevitable sequence, that millions of other ladies will be struck.

So you might as well meet Carl Esmond now. He won't be available for world-wide feminine ogling until "Dawn Patrol" is released, but it's in the cards that he will be ogled. Carl, a tall husky blond gent who looks like Bob Montgomery, full-face, and like Franchot Tone, profile, has just a bit in "Dawn Patrol." He's the captured German flier who drinks and banters with Errol Flynn, David Niven and the others in a long key sequence. Already he's been tested for the lead opposite Betty Davis in "Dark Victory" and for the role of Maximilian with Davis and Muni in "The Phantom Crown."

Esmond is 31, a native of Vienna. He speaks English well enough when he has memorized his lines, acceptably even when he's just talking. He came to Hollywood because Louis B. Mayer, who saw him as Prince Albert in the London production of "Victoria Regina," couldn't wait to get him here.

Mayer wanted Esmond for the lead in "The Great Waltz." Esmond maneuvered out of his stage contract ahead of time, caught fast boats and trains to Hollywood—and did exactly nothing for six months. (One of his companions-in-waiting at Metro was Hedy Lamarr.)

His real name is Willy Eichberger. He changed it in London because too many fans addressed him as Willy Iceberg. In some cities of Europe his films played competition to each other. He would be billed as Carl Esmond at one theater and as Willy Eichberg at another. Sometimes fans were confused to discover that the two names applied to the same six-foot-three of broad-shouldered actor.

True, the wireless already was theoretically in operation. However, at that period, the wireless service was too jumbled to amount to anything. I handled thousands of words of it, that weren't intelligible. There was no radio, that one ating, lively interest in people and things American—especially, I gathered, the cooking. He likes it. Modest, too. Admirer Paul Muni, his fellow-townsmen, extremely—but hasn't met him yet. He plays a German war ace in the movie—but he can't abide air travel. He's unmarried—but there's a fiancée in Vienna.

When producers of English films doubted his ability to speak the language, Esmond would send them a recording of his voice—without explaining how long and carefully he had rehearsed. Although he hails from Vienna, it is pleasant to report that he is lacking in that characteristic he-lebeled "continental charm." He's friendly, though, with an ingrati-

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART WASHINGTON, D. C.—Representative Martin Dies made a laughing stock of his congressional committee on investigation of un-American activities when he allowed it to be placed in the position of classing Shirley Temple among instigators of communism's development throughout the United States. The Texas legislator is on perfectly good ground, however, in his prediction that war's outbreak in Europe will be followed by a regular rampage of propaganda to drag Uncle Sam into the conflict. Dies says he has "reliable information" to this effect. He doesn't need to have any special "information." Everyone with a lick of sense knows that overseas propaganda will be rampant here with the very beginning of foreign hostilities. There doubtless is a lot of it already. The Texan's account is that the old world is prepared to spend "millions" to influence us. It's more than likely.

The only thing that makes the Lone Star statesman's forecast sound rather foolish is its assumption that Martin has any "information" which isn't common knowledge. Repeating 1914? It will be a propagandistic repetition of the last war. Dies asserts. Repetition? It will be an improvement, for the propagandists will have the benefit of the last war's experience to guide them. All of that war's propagandists are not dead yet. I myself propagandized for Uncle Sam in South America in 1917-18. Does anyone suppose that I wouldn't be a more effective propagandist now, with the background of such an education?

Congressman Dies speaks as if a propagandist were a criminal. Not necessarily. A European propagandist, trying to get us into a European war, is a criminal—I endorse that. But I, as a propagandist, trying to get the Argentine republic into the last war, on our side, and our associates' side, was a patriotic Yankee. I drew pay (a bit smallish) from Washington for my work. Our embassies and legations and consulates were most friendly to me.

Foreign propagandizing was more difficult then than it is now. Germany, for example, was crippled from the first, because the British cut the German cable, while keeping their own and France's going. Consequently they were able to flood the U. S. A. with stories of Germany's Belgian atrocities with Germany almost completely muzzled, as to the Fatherland's war fiction. True, the wireless already was theoretically in operation. However, at that period, the wireless service was too jumbled to amount to anything. I handled thousands of words of it, that weren't intelligible. There was no radio, that one

According to Congressman Dies, Russia is especially well prepared to flood the U. S. A. with its war dope—particularly communistic dope. I have some doubts about its efficacy. Germany, at the last war's outbreak, was pretty well primed with American propaganda, but it didn't "take" overly well in this country, regardless of communication complications—because Germany evidently didn't comprehend our psychology.

I'd guess that Russia wouldn't understand us either. Congressman Dies' notion is that American columnists will be subsidized. I don't believe it. My personal experience is that I'm "panned" by rightist editors as a leftist and by leftist editors as a rightist, on the same "story." If I'm not impartial, where do I get off? I'm dependent on my job to suit both temperaments. I want to keep it—and I'm, in my small way, a columnist.

Let's keep an eye on this program. NEVERTHELESS! Andre Kostelanetz has conducted many concert works on the air and is known for his classical interpretations, nevertheless his recent Brunswick recording of "Bugle Call Rag," one of jazz-dance's all-time favorites, is being hailed as hot rhythm by dance fans. Peter Van Steeden, orchestra leader on the Fred Allen show, says there's no use trying to be funny once you've worked with someone like Fred, nevertheless, Van Steeden's own friends, despite his insistence to the contrary, will tell you about the maestro's sly, quiet wit. P. S. Would some of my friends' wit were more shy and quiet.

Alice Frost, star of CBS' "Big Sister," is known to radio fans as an ace "emoter" in serious, subtle dramatic roles. Nevertheless, she was a hit on the Broadway stage last year in "The Shoemaker's Holiday," a rowdy, lusty Elizabethan farce. Amanda Snow, NBC's "Voice in the Old Village Choir," is known to radio fans as an interpreter of beloved hymns. Nevertheless, she once stopped a nightclub show by singing a semi-classical number to an audience accustomed to nothing but hot jazz and blues torch ballads. Helene Dumas of the "Jane Arden" cast, played hockey from school one day "just to go for a walk downtown." Nevertheless, she wandered into a theatrical office and was given her first acting job. She left school and has been on the stage and on the air since. A GRUESOME bit of work was that broadcast not so long ago on which Mrs. Franklin Pierce McCall, wife of the kidnapper of the Cash baby in Florida, appeared. Mrs. McCall, whose husband is now facing the death chair, presented a vivid moral lesson from real life, when, for the first time, she told from her own viewpoint the cumulative effect of her husband's action. There was something rather sordid about that broadcast. I wonder if it perhaps may do a bit of good. One never knows. A FIREWALKER, a preacher who sees through the eyes of a dead parishioner; a woman mayor and a young married couple who live on $16 a week and like it, will be among those to appear on Gabriel Heatter's "We, the People" broadcast over the Columbia network at 8 o'clock tonight. The Rev. U. E. Harding of Portland, Ore., had suffered for 40 years from partial lack of sight until a woman in his congregation willed him her eyes. He comes to "We, the People" to tell of the grafting process which was performed immediately after her death, and has proved entirely successful. The firewalker, Charles S. Ramsey of Thursday Island in the South sea, is one of the few Englishmen to learn this astounding feat. Ramsey, whose job it is to swim the mail out to passing vessels unable to dock because of the surf, will inform listeners of little-known native rites in which he has participated. And Ellsworth, Kan., is a city free from debt. Its mayor, Clara Williford, will explain how that was accomplished, and tell of her fame as pork and sauerkraut cook. Versatile person!

TUNING IN

By Loren Hickerson

MUSICAL CONTRIBUTIONS from the far corners of the earth are included in Mark Weber's schedule of "International Nights," arranged now through the month of December. The unusual program began last Monday, when Weber and his orchestra played music of old Mexico. Last night they presented contributions from the musical lore of Poland, and next Monday, Ireland airs will highlight the program.

It would seem to be a splendid opportunity to become acquainted with the musical styles throughout the world... for the sake of knowledge and enjoyment. Among the nations to be represented on the show in the next two months are Cuba, India, Scotland, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Canada, Scandinavia... on Nov. 21, American Thanksgiving music will be the word... on Dec. 19, Christmas in Chicago, and Dec. 26 will see a musical Happy New Year from around the world.

THE HAND OF DESTINY

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE BODY obtains its all-essential oxygen from the oxygen of the air. A load of air is pumped in and out of the lungs about 18 times a minute, day and night, from birth to death. When this air reaches the final thin walled termini of the lungs—the alveoli—it is separated from a great layer of massed blood only by the thinnest membrane. The oxygen diffuses through this membrane by the selective action of the blood and from thence is carried to the tissues.

Physiologists make a distinction between internal respiration and external respiration. Internal respiration is the gaseous exchange that occurs in the internal tissues, such as the muscles. External respiration is the movements of the chest and the exchange in the alveoli of the lungs. In internal respiration, the red blood corpuscles are the storehouse of oxygen, but the oxygen that is diffused to the tissues is carried in the plasma or liquid medium of the blood in which the corpuscles float. When the plasma supply gets low, the corpuscles, as warehouses, give up their extra supply. Then by processes too complicated to attempt to detail here, the blood takes up the waste product, carbon dioxide, from the tissues.

When the blood goes out from the lungs, it has an oxygen tension of 90 mm. and a carbon dioxide tension of 40 mm. When it returns by way of the veins, it has an oxygen tension of 40 mm. and a carbon dioxide tension of 46 mm. The act of external respiration is accomplished by the movements of the ribs and diaphragm. The ribs are raised by a large number of muscles in the chest and neck. At the same time that the ribs go up, the diaphragm goes down, which creates an extra space amounting to about four quarts of air, if strained to its maximum capacity, and one to two quarts at ordinary breathing. These muscles are under the control of our wills. It is true we breathe regularly without thinking about it, but we can slow or increase the rate as we wish (within limits). But breathing should be described as automatic rather than involuntary. To accomplish this adjustment, there is a complicated set of nerve centers and nerve fibers going to the centers of these muscle innervations in the spinal cord or lower nerve centers. It is easy to see that the control is largely chemical. When carbon dioxide accumulates in the blood, it stimulates the respiratory center, which increases the breathing rate, washing carbon dioxide out and raising the content of oxygen.

When I was starting out in medicine, it was a familiar sight to see the anaesthetist, at the end of a surgical operation, give the patient a whiff of oxygen to revive him. Now they give a few breaths of carbon dioxide so he will revive himself. In conditions where, for some reason, oxygen is lacking in the tissues—as carbon monoxide poisoning, bronchitis, heart failure and pneumonia—it is well known that oxygen can be administered directly into the lungs in an increased amount. The oxygen content of the air is only about 20. When for mechanical reasons, as in pneumonia, the absorbing surface of the lung is reduced, we can raise this to 40 or 60.

300,000 Chicagoans Declare Holiday; Turn Out to Greet Cubs After Triumphant Return

Hartnett Hero To Cheering Throng; Grimm Passed Up

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP) — A roaring reception by thousands of cheering Chicagoans keyed Manager Gabby Hartnett and his Cubs today for their world's series warfare against the New York Yankees opening Wednesday.

Fresh from their amazing drive to the National league championship, the team rode through the downtown district in a triumphant half-mile long parade.

Some 300,000 citizens declared an impromptu holiday and turned out to greet the idols of the hour as they were borne through blizzards of confetti in open cars. Hartnett was, of course, the No. 1 hero to the cheering throng. A broad smile spread over his tomato red face as he waved both hands to the people who shouted from the sidewalks and windows of skyscrapers in crowded La Salle street at the city hall entrance, scene of the official reception.

To every one who got close enough to pump his big hand Hartnett could only say: "Hell, this is swell."

When the procession through the crowd lined downtown street reached the city hall, players were led to an open platform to receive congratulations of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. Each of the Cub players was introduced and spoke to the crowd through microphones.

The Cubs, before motoring downtown to receive their official reception, met to decide upon the division of their world series spoils and passed up the man who managed them through 81 games this year and through five and one-half previous seasons—Charley Grimm. Twenty-five full shares were voted and the 26th share was split three ways. A purse of $4,090 was voted to be divided between nine rookie players and clubhouse attaches.

With Hartnett following managerial custom and remaining outside the clubhouse, the 21 players who have been with the club all season argued in secret session for 55 minutes. Capt. Billy Herman was in charge.

As the meeting broke up Herman read off the reward. "How about the ex-manager," he was asked. "It was voted on," he tactfully replied.

Why no share was voted to Grimm is certain to become a subject of controversy but those close to the players believe it was mainly due to the fact that he did not come down from his broadcaster's booth in St. Louis Saturday to congratulate them when they won the pennant. Today, however, he sent a laudatory message to Hartnett. It was read at Mayor Kelly's welcoming reception.

Considerable argument must have preceded the voting, decided by simple majority, for the meeting was one of the longest of its kind.

By their failure to vote Grimm a share the Cubs put themselves open to criticism, as in 1932 when they failed to give anything from the post season pot of gold to Rogers Hornsby, who was succeeded as manager by Grimm in mid-season. At that time the Cubs also voted to give Mark Koenig, who was a vital factor in the flag drive, a half share. The Yankees made capital of this, giving the Bruins a sound verbal lashing, calling them "cheapskates" and "chiselers" from the dugout.

Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, was surprised at the decision of the players to exclude Grimm. "I believe it was a trifle short sighted on the part of the boys," he said. "However, it is strictly a question for them to decide. Grimm has done very well financially, the Cubs not only paid him for his time as manager but also up to the end of the year."

BITS

about Sports

By J. DENNIS SULLIVAN

Good hard tackling and competent blocking continues to be conspicuous for its absence as the Hawkeyes prepare to meet a team that played under wraps and still beat an improved Marquette eleven, 27 to 0. Marked improvement must be shown in this department if Iowa is to give the Badgers a run for honors in the Homecoming tussle.

Vince Gavre, Bill Schmitz, Roy Bellin and Howie Weiss, who comprise the starting Wisconsin backfield, will have to be hit early, hard and often if they are to be kept bottled up.

So far, few of the boys have given any indication that they can or will smack a ball carrier down with anything approaching finality. It will be just too bad if that wishy washy sort of attitude is carried into the Wisconsin game, as the lads from the lake state have a disgraceable habit of tackling with devastating certainty.

Lou Strode, a comparative newcomer from the coast, shoved himself into the middle of the heavyweight picture last night by belting "Gunner" Barlund, a fair to middlin' battler, with the many and various sleep producing wallops peculiar to the fight profession and succeeded in reducing the "gunner" to the impotent status of a "dud."

The California youngster—demonstrating the fineness of a butcher with a meat cleaver—hacked and cut Barlund into submission in the early seconds of the seventh round. Perhaps he's another "white hope," I hope not.

Gabby Hartnett's Cubs—the present wonder of the athletic world—certainly have a man sized job on their hands. Stopping the Yankees—without too many casualties from batted balls—is a task that isn't to be taken lightly.

However, the Cubs—provided they get the same kind of pitching as was the case in the closing weeks of the pennant race—can cause the beer suds entry no little anguish, and may beat them. Those of you who scoff at the suggestion of the mighty Ruppert organization bowing in defeat before the Chicagoans, might do well to remember that Budge lost a tennis match the other day. If Budge can blow a tennis match, anything can happen. As a matter of fact, anything probably will happen, and I for one, hope it doesn't happen to the Cubs.

Hawkllets Prep For Franklin; Stress Defense

Excusing his regulars from hard drill, Coach Herb Cormack stressed defensive work last night in an attempt to find the best formation to stop the running plays of Franklin high school and the shifty running of Eddy, the Cedar Rapids school's speedy backfield man in particular.

The first string lineup was pitted against the second string using the Franklin formations with Ozzie Martin filling Eddy's spot. The second string had little luck against the faster, heavier first string. During the first part of the practice Cormack gave his charges a severe tongue lashing for bad play that at times was apparent in the Clinton game.

Michigan Wins Opening Game for Crisler, 14 to 0

University of Michigan served warning on the Big Ten by winning the first game of the season, 14 to 0, over its traditional rival, Michigan State. The Wolverine displayed a strong running attack, with Harmon and Kromer starring. Kromer (No. 33) is pictured ripping off a gain around State's left end in the second period. It was Michigan's first game under its new coach, Fritz Crisler.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Tony Gradisnik, 154-pound Milwaukeean, was advanced to the regular left halfback berth on the Wisconsin varsity yesterday as Coach Harry Stuhldreher began preparations for the Iowa City invasion next Saturday. Lynn Hovland, left guard, will be out of scrimmages this week because of a kick in the side received in the Marquette game. Bob Weigandt, senior end who finished last season as a regular, ran signals today after being out a week with a torn knee muscle.

Intra-Conference Games Dominate Card This Week

Southwestern Tilts Expected To Draw Well

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—The southwest conference, which features the wide-open type of football that is sure box-office in any of the country's stadia, will contribute more heavily than any other sector to the coming week end's small but high-grade list of inter-sectional gridiron warfare.

Four Texas elevens will be playing in as many sections. On Friday night Texas Christian and its passing star, Davey O'Brien, will meet Pop Warner's Temple Owls at Philadelphia, while Southern Methodist will face a weak Marquette team under the arc lights at Chicago.

Saturday Dick Todd, who may develop into one of the year's star ball carriers, will lead his Texas Aggies into San Francisco in an attempt to rope Santa Clara's Broncos, riding high as a result of their crushing defeat of Stanford. Saturday night Louisiana State will be at home to Rice, which has hopes of retaining its southwest conference title but will have to get Ernie Lain and Ollie Cordill moving faster than they did against Oklahoma to do so.

Besides L. S. U., two other southern elevens also are booked for inter-sectional dates. Duke will go north to Buffalo for a clash with Colgate, a team that should improve as the season goes along. Georgia Tech will play host, but probably won't enjoy it, to Coach Elmer Layden and some of the 80-odd Notre Dames who helped work out that 52-0 shellacking of Kansas.

Intra-conference battles dominate the week end card from coast to coast. Starting in the east and its informal ivy league, Cornell, having hurdled Colgate with comparative ease, will go to Cambridge to face Harvard, upset by Brown; highly touted Dartmouth, which may turn out to be one of 1938's most overrated elevens, will get its first major test against Princeton, and Yale will meet Penn in Philadelphia.

The 'Professor' Is With Us Again Relating His Sad Tales of Woe

By PAUL MICKELSON
CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—Gaby Hartnett and his wild-eyed Cubs tried to crash the Monday morning alibi and crying class for football coaches today but the cagey old professor, here for a bit of sport in the world series, chased them out, passed liberal doses of smelling salts to Jimmy Kitts of Rice and rapped for order.

Professor: The situation is getting worse. Already I'm getting hard of hearing. Well, well, look who's sniffing the salts! Our old pals from Nebraska, Rice, Yale, Stanford, Slippery Rock, Evansville and even good old Spearfish, Jimmy, is it true what the papers have been saying about Rice?

Jimmy Kitts, Rice: Professor, sometimes literacy is a very bad thing. Newspapers and magazines pumped us too high. The boys did too much reading about how good they were. The licking did us good. Now we can forget about that Rose Bowl and get back into the southwest conference race. Oklahoma? They can handle themselves in any company.

Tom Stidham Oklahoma: I feel just like Gabby Hartnett. Listen, professor, I'll take that big, nice tackle Jess Hines as one of the best.

Ernie Lain Rice star: Pardon my intrusion, professor, but I'm looking for that Oklahoma end. What's his name? Nobody could get him out.

Professor: Tut, tut, his name is Woody Young, but I'm worried about Minnesota and Pittsburgh.

Biff Jones Nebraska: Don't worry about Minnesota, professor. A great power team—smart, too. They sure can put on the pressure.

Pop Warner, Temple: And don't worry about Pitt. Professor, Pitt has the best team I ever saw. I mean it, but if Sturges (Temple tackle) hadn't broken his leg, why..."

The Yanks Are Comin', And 'General' Lee'll Meet 'Em

Cub Fans Confident Of Bill's Ability To Beat the Bombers

By EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Yankees are coming—and Chicago Cub fans are banking on "General" Lee to mow 'em down. . . . There's a Civil war twist to the hopes of Cub supporters as Gabby Hartnett's valiant prep prepares for the invasion Wednesday of the Ruppert rifles from New York. . . . Seventy-five years or so ago another Gen. Lee, Robert E., covered himself with glory on southern battlefields, and out at north-side Wrigley field Wednesday or Thursday, loyal Chicago fans are convinced "General" Bill Lee will righthand the Bronx bombers into submission.

"Hells Bells"
It should be quite a battle. . . . During today's hilarious welcome for the Cubs, a publicity man for a Chicago fight club edged his way through the mob which milled around the diamond heroes at city hall. . . . "How about coming out to see our card tonight, Gabby," he yelled. . . . To which the red-faced Hartnett bellowed: "Hells bells, we got a fight coming up at Wrigley field. . . . Come out and see us do some swinging. . . ."

Bill Green Runs Ends for Long Gains Against Vets

Coach Tubbs called on his freshman footballers yesterday to give the varsity an idea of what to expect when the Badgers trot onto the field Saturday to meet the Old Gold in the historic Homecoming contest.

On the whole, the first stringers were fairly successful in piling up the fresh running attack. However, Bill Green—first year running back from Newton—served a warning note that Iowa's ends are still incapable of coping with a fast sweep around the flanks by tearing off two eminently successful gallops deep into varsity territory.

Some of the tenseness, evident in numerous drills since the Hawks' return from the coast, was missed as the team members assumed a jocular attitude toward the battle with the freshmen.

They lost some of their holiday spirit, however, when it became apparent that the yearlings—notwithstanding the fact that they had but a few days to prepare Wisconsin plays—were capable of taking care of the situation with a fair degree of finesse.

Jim Walker, a large Negro tackle from South Bend, Ind., put on a one man show in the opening moments of the drill by nailing the varsity ball carriers with monotonous regularity. He may go a long way in solving one half of the tackle situation next year.

Frank Balazs, injured fullback, who has been carrying the brunt of the Iowa attack thus far, was not in uniform. There is a possibility that he may get into the Homecoming game but how well he will be able to perform with his injured knee is a matter of speculation.

Nile Kinnick's injured ankle is responding slowly to treatment, but probably will be in good shape in plenty of time for the battle.

West Liberty Tough, Says Coach Brechler

After thoroughly scouting West Liberty, Coach Paul Brechler issued a warning to his U-High warriors of the power and speed they will encounter when they journey to West Liberty Friday. Brechler was much impressed with the speed and power of the West Liberty running attack—an attack that rolled up a 20-8 victory over a veteran Winfield eleven.

In preparation for Friday's tilt, Brechler drove his gridders through a light workout yesterday, but plans a lengthy scrimmage for today and Wednesday. He hopes to start practically the same team that turned back St. Pat's 20-0 last Friday. If any of the reserves show considerable improvement, they will be awarded a starting position.

tled down for his long wait with campchair and four blankets. . . . Tony Lazzari, Jack Russell and Carl Reynolds, all former American leaguers, form a special board of strategy against the Yanks. . . .

Nature Extends Herself!

It wasn't a balloon that Howard Bailey, A3 of Iowa City, saw! Neither was it a white rock. It was a puff - ball! More than a foot in diameter, with a weight of more than six pounds, Bailey almost regretted he toted it back to town—three miles. The fungus was presented to Prof. George Martin of the botany department yesterday afternoon, and he's pictured here with it.

They're Big Around Here University of Iowa Student Discovers Overgrown Puff-ball

By DICK OLSON A large puff-ball (scientists call it "Galvatia Gigantea"), measuring one foot in diameter and weighing six and a half pounds, was found about four miles north of Iowa City Saturday morning by Howard Bailey, A3 of Iowa City.

Bailey presented the large fungus to Prof. G. W. Martin of the botany department yesterday afternoon for use in the botany laboratories of the university, or elsewhere. Professor Martin said he would present it to the biology department of Iowa City high school if that department desired it.

Remarkd Bailey: "From a distance it looked like a large rock, but as I approached it I thought it was a large white balloon. It was pure white and perfectly round. I carried it about three miles, and believe me, six and a half pounds is no exaggeration!"

According to Professor Martin, the puff-ball is unusually large. He added, however, that the largest calvatia gigantea on record was four feet and five inches in diameter.

This type of puff-ball is edible in its early stage, but is unfit as a food after the inside turns yellow.

Homecoming Badges to Be Sold on Campus Starting Today

Sales Contest To Commence This Morning

Three Sororities To Compete This Year During Homecoming

It begins at 7 o'clock this morning!

For at that time, the members of three University of Iowa sororities—Alpha Xi Delta, Chi Omega and Alpha Delta Pi—will swoop upon students and townspeople alike with the familiar query: "Have you your Homecoming badge?"

Carrying paper bags and pockets full of the emblems, which sell for only ten cents and which pay substantial Homecoming expenses, the girls will compete this week for the honor of selling the greatest number of badges for their particular group.

Last year Chi Omega sorority won the sales contest. During the 14 years of the badge sale, more than 229,000 of the emblems have been sold.

With the contest extending until game time Saturday, Dean Rudolph A. Kuever of the college of pharmacy, chairman of the badge committee, has designated a fitting slogan for the sale: "A badge for every student and for every member of every family in Iowa City."

"The wearing of this Homecoming badge," says Dean Kuever, "gives every one in Iowa City an opportunity to contribute to the welcoming of guests to the university and the city and to have a part in the biggest celebration that is held during the year."

Richard F. Gates, G of Iowa of the city and to have a part in graphic and plastic arts department, won the 1938 prize of $10 for designing the best of 25 badges submitted. Gates' badge design includes the pictures of alumni of the classes of 1911 and 1912, greeting one another on the campus. The words: "Iowa Homecoming, October 8, 1938" appear upon the badge.

Since the sale of the official Homecoming insignia began in 1925, the badges have each year met such Homecoming expenses as smokers, receptions, the corn monument, decorations for university buildings, stunts, lighting equipment and entertainment.

A contribution from the badge fund will help defray expenses of sending the University of Iowa band to the Iowa - Chicago game Oct. 15. Contributions are made toward a variety of other worthwhile causes.

Already requests have come from alumni from widely separated points in the United States, requesting that badges be sent them for the Homecoming season.

Captains of the three sorority groups who will begin this morning's sale of the Homecoming badge are Betty Coffin, A2 of Farmington, Alpha Xi Delta; Gwen Tudor, A3 of Olin, Alpha Delta Pi, and Alice Erickson, C4 of Roland, Chi Omega.

The Sale Begins in Town—

Alice Erickson, C4 of Roland, the Chi Omega captain of the Homecoming badge sales campaign, was not to be outdone in the sale of badges to the city and campus "first citizens." While Betty Coffin, A2 of Farmington, captain of the Alpha Xi Delta group, was presenting a badge

The Alpha Xi Deltas Begin—

Betty Coffin, A2 of Farmington, captain of the Alpha Xi Delta "salesgirls" who will handle the sale of the Homecoming badge for their group beginning this morning, started the season off with a bang for her house when she succeeded, (and very agreeably, too) in "pinning" President Eugene A. Gilmore for the Homecoming season. The badge sale will extend until Saturday, when Iowa meets Wisconsin in the Homecoming fray.

'Homecoming Badge?'

Activity was the keynote at the Alpha Delta Pi house last night, as Gwen Tudor, A3 of Olin, (center) issued last minute instructions to members of her clan concerning today's launching of the Homecoming badge sale. With badges liberally sprinkling the floor, the counting, arranging and last-minute preparations preceded by only nine hours the beginning of a competitive sales campaign with members of Chi Omega and Alpha Xi Delta sororities, with the honor of selling the greatest number of badges before Saturday at stake. Marian Belgarde, A3 of Independence, left, and Bette Anderson, A2 of Clinton, right, are but two of the Alpha Delta Pi group who'll participate.

Homecoming Starts Friday

It was only two weeks ago that the advent of thousands of students transformed Iowa City from a community drowsing in late-summer doldrums to a bustling city of youth.

Now, earlier than ever before, hundreds of alumni who once were young themselves on the same campus will return for the university's 27th Homecoming.

A golf tournament will attract the early-comers Friday morning and throngs of others will be here for the mass meeting, receptions, and Homecoming party of that evening. High point of the program is the Wisconsin-Iowa football game Saturday afternoon.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

THIS IS DEMOCRACY

It happens every once in a while . . . I pick up a book, start reading it, and come to with a start, the book finished . . . It happened Sunday night at 8 p.m.

The book, and you too'll have finished it in 45 minutes, is Thomas Mann's "The Coming Victory of Democracy." . . . I wish everyone could read it . . . In fact, seems to me, at $1 a copy, the government has done worse than to buy a copy for all the men, women and children about . . .

More money has been spent foolishly (Even by the G. O. P.)

Thomas Mann, you see, is the greatest living novelist, also he's a man who exiled himself from the nazis . . . And this is the story he tells Americans . . .

"Throughout the world," he thinks, "it's become precarious to take democracy for granted—even in America."

And he warns that it won't last, not unless men eat regularly, sleep comfortably and have a home for their families . . .

To make democracy work, Dr. Mann believes, the old idea of freedom must be somewhat revised. He believes there must be a reform of freedom . . . The old laissez-faire freedom, the idea of government keeping hands off and "letting nature take its course" must be somewhat revised.

Nature, unfortunately and too often, takes the wrong course . . .

"The reform I have in mind," he writes, "must be a social reform. Only in this way can democracy take the wind out of the sails of fascism and also of Bolshevism and overcome the merely temporary and deceptive advantages which the charm of novelty gives the dictatorship."

Fascism, he agrees, is fun for awhile . . . But the smile is too soon gone . . .

"Passive" liberals are or should be—dead . . . Democracy must not be permitted to succumb for lack of modernization.

Freedom must be refreshed from an economic point of view . . . The most democratic people are those who eat regularly.

If democracy wishes to make its moral superiority over fascism effective, "it must adopt in the economic as well as the spiritual domain as much of the socialistic morality as the times make imperative and indispensable . . ."

He admits that nazism is more efficient . . . Maybe more temporarily effective . . .

"But," he adds, "the happiness, the freedom, even the life of the individual count for nothing . . . He is a citizen of the state and nothing else, an atom of the nation that embodies the state."

And Mann doesn't quote it, but I will—from John Gunther . . . Mussolini was defining the ideals of fascism when he said, "War alone brings up to its highest tension all human energy and puts the story of nobility on the people who have the courage to meet it."

Oh, it goes on for 57 pages . . . Maybe you're not interested . . . Maybe I should return to the trivial . . . Tomorrow I will . . .

But, this morning, it seems a little important . . . These mornings, any day, it becomes increasingly important . . .

I can't tell you why, except to quote two definitions and cite a personal instance . . .

Mann's defined democracy . . . And I like it . . .

"Democracy is that form of government and of society which is inspired above every other with the feeling and consciousness of the dignity of man."

I like it better, for example, than the one Il Duce himself has given of fascism . . . "Fascism denies that the majority, by the simple fact that it is a majority, can direct human society; it denies that numbers alone can govern by means of a periodical consultation and it reasserts above all, the lasting, the never-ending inequality of man."

And this instance too, a personal one . . . While I was in Germany, they were singing a song, the nazi young ones, eight to 11 . . . I don't understand a word of German, but they translated it for me . . . As nearly as I could find out it means, "We spit at freedom."

I haven't a word to say for myself this morning . . .

WILL THIS MAN BE OUR NEXT PRESIDENT?

WILL it be Missouri's mullah, but shrewd and able, Senator Bennett Clark? He has never forgotten that his famous father, Champ Clark, had the nomination snatched from him at the eleventh hour. His nomination would pay off an old score that still rankles in Missouri. Here's a telling picture of the thick-fisted politico who may be running for President in 1940.
