Two More Deaths Bring Forest Fire Toll to 16

Several Missing In 50 Mile Area In Ontario

12 Among the Dead Were Members Of Brothers' Families

By The Associated Press Two more deaths late Tuesday brought to 16 the toll from the northern Minnesota and nearby Canadian brush and forest fires.

The latest victims were Maxine Labelle, 11, who died in a Fort Frances hospital; Joseph Dardis, 67, International Falls, Minn., who died of a heart attack while aiding in rescue work, and Benny Fulz, 25, whose body was found near his burned cabin in Dand township, Ont.

Twelve of the dead were members of the Frank, William and Noah Labelle families, living in Dand township, Province of Ontario. A Park Rapids, Minn., CCC boy was killed in the crash of two forestry service fire trucks and a fire fighter suffocated near International Falls.

The fire danger was diminished somewhat by overnight showers but a brisk south wind was again fanning flames, crowding fire lines manned by more than 3,000 men aided by airplanes.

Details of the Canadian woods tragedy were received by provincial police at Fort Frances. The three Labelle brothers' families tried to escape first by horse drawn rig and then afoot after burning trees blocked the road.

Frank Labelle directed the trapped group, including mostly small children to lie on their faces in the woods trail.

Those who did so, were saved but one of the mothers who was one-year old child in her arms, tried to outrun the flames. In the excitement, other children followed her.

"The thick smoke must have overcome them before they got very far," said Constable David Hamilton. "We found the bodies a few feet apart with the two mothers' bodies resting over the small babies as if they had tried to hide them from the flames."

Attempt to Kill British Governor Of Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Oct. 11 (AP)—An attempt to assassinate the British district governor of Jerusalem and another battle against Arab outposts marked the bitter dispute today among Arabs, Jews and British authorities attempting to restore order.

Four bombs were hurled at Edward Keith—Roach's auto from the old city walls in front of the Rockefeller museum.

Keith—Roach, governor since 1931, escaped injury as did occupants of two military escort cars and a police car which accompanied him.

Reinforcements of British troops were called out in northern Palestine to assist police in battling an Arab band near Mount Carmel where in biblical times Elijah offered sacrifices.

Throughout the night British forces engaged the band which was strengthened by the addition of many Arab villagers. Airforce planes were sent up to illumine the scene with parachute flares. Troops dispersed the Arabs at dawn, taking five prisoners and confiscating rifles and ammunition.

Consider Pension Report WASHINGTON (AP)— Social security board officials had under consideration yesterday a report prepared by their economic experts describing the variety of pension plans being proposed over the country as an "epidemic of rick-pot pension schemes."

Vandenberg Asks Two-Price System For Agriculture—Prices for American Consumption, and Unrestricted Surplus

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 11 (AP)—Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich) advocated tonight a two-price system for American agriculture — "an American price for American consumption and the world price for unrestricted surplus."

Vandenberg, who has been mentioned as a republican presidential possibility in 1940, said in an address prepared for a republican rally, the American farmer is entitled to "complete and non-competitive control" of the domestic consumption.

"The starting point, to deal with the farm problem, is less the size of the crop than the assurance that the portion intended for domestic consumption shall be sold

Students, Townspeople Will Make Chicago Trip Friday

Special Train Will Leave at 12:30 P.M.; Band Units to Go

The "Hawkeye Special" carrying hundreds of students and townspeople, will leave Iowa City at 12:30 p.m. Friday for Chicago and the Iowa - Chicago football game.

Sanctioned and supervised by University of Iowa authorities, the Chicago trip this week end is Iowa's official out-of-town game trip of the year.

The general arrangements for the trip are under the direction of Col. George F. N. Dailey, head of the department of military science and tactics.

The University of Iowa 120-piece band and various military organizations, including the nationally famous Scottish Highlanders, will be on board. Before game time Saturday they will have paraded through the Chicago loop, getting set for the super demonstration they'll present at the game that afternoon.

The round - trip fare for students and townspeople alike is $5.04. Those who take the special Friday noon will return upon any train of their choice, except the Rocket, Sunday. The special train, with the exception of the baggage cars carrying band equipment, will not return.

Students will stay at the Great Northern hotel in Chicago, which has been chartered as the official Iowa headquarters.

Tickets entitling students to special rates at the hotel are available at Iowa Union desk. Train tickets on the "Hawkeye Special" are available at Whetstone's drug store, Iowa Union and the Rock Island station.

Lindy Is Silent On Soviet Story

BERLIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, silent on bitter charges made against him by a group of prominent Soviet Russian aviators, arrived today by plane to attend the annual meeting of the Lillithal Society for Aerial Research.

The American airman declined to comment on the Soviet fliers' accusation that he belittled the Russian air force and thus encouraged Anglo-French capitulation to Adolf Hitler's demands for Czechoslovak territory.

Lindbergh and his wife were greeted by Lieut.-Col. Truman Smith, military attache of the United States embassy, who will be their host while in Berlin. (Eleven Soviet fliers published a letter in Moscow yesterday alleging that Lindbergh made "insolent anti-Soviet utterances" following a trip to the Soviet Union. The airman charged that Lindbergh stated before guests of Lady Astor, member of the British house of commons, that the Soviet air force was inefficient.

(Lady Astor said today there was "no truth" in the statement and that the Daily Worker, London communist newspaper, was responsible for the report. The Daily Herald, labor newspaper, quoted her as saying it was "a complete lie" that Lindbergh ever made "any sort of pronouncement about the Russian air force or about anything else during a dinner party at the house.")

Poor Teeth Cause Headaches Specialists Hear of New Remedies For Chronic Headache Troubles

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH Associated Press Science Writer WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Dr. James B. Costen of St. Louis is told a gathering of eye, ear and throat specialists today that many chronic headaches and some forms of deafness can be relieved by correcting dental defects.

Some headaches which seem to originate in sinus infections are actually due, he said, to pressure on nerves of the head from poor alignment of natural teeth or ill-fitting dental plates. Such pressure also may cause aching of the tongue and jaw spasms.

Plans for Scenic Trafficway Along Mississippi River To Be Aided by Federal Government

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—The United States, and a parkway along the river would provide a variety of outstanding scenery the year around as well as peacetime employment of everlasting value.

"It is particularly timely that we consider the project now in view of the practical completion of 26 locks and dams on the upper portion of the river," the memorandum continued. "These will create 26 lakes capable of navigation and great inducement for recreation."

"And we must eventually obtain scenic areas and conservation reservations enroute to serve the tourist trade." The five states on the eastern side of the river have joined their neighbors on the western side to promote the development of the parkway. And it was announced that instead of following the zig-zagging western shore the full distance, the road might swing across the river at various points.

"Historic" places along the river of waters will be a big factor in determining the final route of the "dream" highway.

Among those participating in today's conference were Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, Gov. Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas, Lieut. Gov. John K. Valentine of Iowa, J. Lester White, chairman of the Louisiana state planning commission, Rex Green, St. Paul, representing the governor of Minnesota, and heads of the Missouri, Arkansas and Iowa planning boards.

Dykstra Criticizes Students' Use Of Gambling Devices on Train

WISCONSIN President Discloses Result Of University Session MADISON, Wis., Oct. 11 (AP)—In the midst of an investigation by the attorney general's office, President Clarence A. Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin today issued a statement criticizing the use of gambling devices on the student special train to the Iowa football game last Saturday and pledging steps against "recurrence of another such incident."

While Assistant Attorney General Newell C. Boardman was conducting an inquiry to determine whether there was violation of Wisconsin law, President Dykstra disclosed the results of a conference he had with the university deans.

There were about 150 students aboard the football train to Iowa City, Dykstra said. "There were several cars chartered by others than students, among them one car in which slot machines and other gambling devices had been set up," he stated. "It seems also to be true that several students lost money on account of the operation of illegal gambling devices."

"State officers have agreed to cooperate with the university in every way possible to prevent any possible recurrence of another such incident." Sargent submits Safety Council's Next Offensive CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—Organized safety's great offensive, Railroad President Fred W. Sargent submitted today, would be launched against the human afflictions and imperfections inimical to individual and public welfare.

Sargent, head of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company, told the steam sections of the national safety council's silver jubilee convention the cause of accidents should be attacked at the source, "and that source in the largest percentage of cases is found in the human system itself."

"Indeed, I have satisfied myself," he continued, "that much of the unrest, and to some extent the unemployment in the land today, is due to physical causes, which if corrected would prove to be a great boon to the so-called more abundant life of the whole economic structure."

To combat mental lapses and physical incapacity in industry Sargent recommended that employers intensify their interest in what their employees do off duty as well as on duty.

Lewis' Offer Has No Effect on Union Fight

Hungarian Troops Take Czech Towns; Government Appoints Committee of 10 To Settle Problems of 10,000 Refugees

PRAGUE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Hungarian troops today completed symbolic occupations of two former Czechoslovak border towns—Ipolyzag and Satoralja Ujhely—pending settlement of Hungary's territorial and minority demands.

The Prague government, meanwhile, wrestled with problems arising from German occupation of Sudetenland, particularly the presence in Czechoslovakia of 10,000 refugees from Sudetenland.

The Bohemian provincial government appointed a committee of 10 former residents of Sudetenland to investigate registration lists and determine which refugees could be sent back home without personal danger.

The registration of refugees proceeded under the orders of Bohemian Provincial President Karl Sabotka while the national government's plans for return of many refugees were held in abeyance.

More than 4,000 residents of Ipolyzag, near the border 50 miles north of Budapest, sang and danced to fiery Hungarian music as the Hungarian troops took over at 1:20 p.m. (6:20 a.m., C.S.T.) today.

The occupation of the Czechoslovak part of the border town of Satoralja Ujhely was completed last night. This town is 150 miles northeast of Budapest.

Hungarian troops had been arrayed at the border for forceful occupation, if necessary.

Power Break Stuns Business In 100 Towns

CEDAR RAPIDS, Oct. 11 (AP)—The power break forced a thirty-minute suspension of all electrically - dependent industrial and business operations in Cedar Rapids and 100 other eastern Iowa towns and cities in mid - afternoon today.

Caused by a turbine explosion, the breakdown stopped service over almost the entire system of the Iowa Electric Light and Power company.

The blast plunged the company's powerhouse into darkness and workmen were compelled to don gas masks as they groped through the smoke and steam-filled control room to repair the damage.

Earle Nichols, division manager for the company, said the loss, unestimated, was large. It was the most damaging breakdown in twenty years, he said.

All the city's industrial plants, not maintaining their own reserve supplies of electricity were affected. At the Quaker Oats plant, the entire operation was stopped and officials said six hours were required to clear conveyors of grain preliminary to starting anew.

Downtown Cedar Rapids was virtually paralyzed. Office workers were compelled to trudge up long flights of dark stairs as elevators failed. Theaters suspended operations as projection machines were rendered useless. The police radio system and a radio station were out of service.

In the Gazette plant, presses, teletypes and linotypes ceased their clatter. The circulation department speedily reorganized routes to reduce delivery delay.

Street cars and interurbans were stranded. At hotels, guests registered by candlelight.

The plan, as previously outlined, calls for a $790,000 serial bond issue by Stifel, Nicolaus and company. However, the bond issue house and their representatives of the city will select a competent and impartial engineer to estimate the value of the plant.

The cost of the election, providing it does not exceed $600, will be paid by the bond house as well as the cost of the proposed appraisal.

Green Brands C. I. O. Chief's Offer Fraud

A. F. of L. Delegates Will Give Reply At Federation Election

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—John L. Lewis' dramatic offer to step down from the chairmanship of the CIO — provided his arch enemy, William Green, would resign from the A.F. of L. presidency — appeared tonight to have brought labor's struggling factions no nearer to peace.

Green commented at Houston, Tex., that Lewis' offer was "an attempted fraud on the public." He added:

"It is obvious that even if he resigned as chairman of CIO he still would remain its dictator."

Green said at Houston, Tex., that the delegates to the federation's convention there would give the reply to the CIO chieftain. This was taken to refer to the coming A.F. of L. election, to be held Thursday or Friday. Green is unopposed for re-election.

Increases Bitterness The Lewis offer, made today at a press conference, seemed to have increased the bitterness which A.F. of L. leaders feel toward him.

"I doubt his sincerity," was the terse comment of Arthur O. Wharton, A.F. of L. vice president.

However, A. F. Whitney, who, as president of the Independent Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is a non-combatant in labor's civil war, predicted the war would end within a year because the "interests of labor and the public" demand it.

In connection with Lewis' statement, it was recalled here that he is president of the United Mine Workers, a powerful union in the CIO. Even if he resigned from the chairmanship of the CIO, he might still have great influence in it through his miners union.

"If there was anything of a 'longue-in-cheek' nature about his offer, it was not apparent, however, in his manner when he made it to newsmen he had called to his office."

No Solution? Grave of face, he called attention to news dispatches saying that the A.F. of L. convention adopted a report yesterday declaring there was no solution to the split in labor until Lewis either was deprived of his authority or voluntarily stepped aside.

Then he said: "There may be some virtue behind the suggestion of the federation that I personally retire from official participation in the matter. Obviously the CIO could function without the benefit of my services. The same suggestion would apply to Mr. Green. In any event, I think it is worth trying."

"I advise that I am willing to resign tomorrow, or any other day thereafter, as chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, if Mr. Green will simultaneously resign as president of the American Federation of Labor."

Peace Pact "It then may be possible for the remaining leaders of the CIO and the remaining leaders of the A.F. of L. to conclude a peace pact, in event the contribution made by Mr. Green and myself would be of some value."

"If the A.F. of L. convention wants to accept this suggestion, I will immediately, upon its acceptance, arrange to file my own resignation with the CIO."

Lewis' offer stirred wide interest in government circles, but no official would comment. President Roosevelt was asked at his press conference for some expression, but declined.

Three years ago next Saturday, Lewis, as president of the United Mine Workers, and the heads of seven other A.F. of L. unions decided to organize workers in industrial unions — a policy which the federation a few days before had rejected.

On Nov. 2, 1935, Lewis and the other seven union leaders announced the formation of the CIO. The federation subsequently expelled these unions. Lewis, asserting the CIO now had more than 4,000,000 workers, issued a call last week for a constitutional convention Nov. 14 in Pittsburgh.

New Water Plant Election to Be Asked

By MERLE MILLER (Daily Iowan City Editor) The agitation to call a special election for purchase of the Iowa Water Service company here will begin again this week, The Daily Iowan learned last night.

H. E. Smith, representative of a Chicago bonding company, has been in Iowa City this week and will return tomorrow. Petitions to call the election, requiring at least 25 property owners in each voting precinct, will begin circulating again.

The offer to sell the water company to the city for $790,000 was withdrawn last week, after Smith declared the election would recall "old troubles and reopen old wounds."

He now has a written affidavit from the executive council of the Municipal Ownership league, which campaigned for several years for a locally owned light and power company, that it will not take part in the power company election.

The MOL's promise is believed to be the main reason behind the decision to re-introduce the issue. The city, if the election carried, would purchase the company with three per cent revenue bonds, amortized over a period of 35 years.

The plan, as previously outlined, calls for a $790,000 serial bond issue by Stifel, Nicolaus and company. However, the bond issue house and their representatives of the city will select a competent and impartial engineer to estimate the value of the plant.

Pep And Insanity—There's a Difference

EVERY YEAR Iowa City's merchants spend several hundreds of dollars preparing for Homecoming, putting up decorations in the streets, preparing displays and generally planning a festive celebration.

And every year, for the last five at any rate, most of the decorations have been demolished long before the Saturday afternoon game begins.

Last week and was no exception. For Friday night university officials had planned a complete pep meeting on the west approach of Old Capitol.

Members of the football squad, the coaching staff, university alumni and others spoke, and cheerleaders led the some 8,000 rooters in cheering. The band played, and the meeting was ended.

Iowa boosters knew the Iowa team was to fight for them on Saturday, and the Iowa team knew Iowa fans were behind it.

That was enough for 7,800 of those attending. But not for the remaining 200. They, whoever they were—and whether they were university students or high school pupils is unimportant—tore through the Iowa City streets, pulled down Homecoming flags, demolished outside displays, broke several windows and ended by precipitating a minor riot.

Police had to be called; tear gas bombs had to be used, and several rioters were arrested.

Mostly all the trouble following the pep rally was "temporary insanity," psychologists call it the "mob spirit." They explain it by saying it is unthinking, emotional action.

They say it's the same kind of spirit that guides southern crowds to lynch, that caused Nazis in Germany last week to try to destroy the home of a Catholic priest. It is particularly evident, they conclude, among uneducated, ignorant people.

That's why to have, year after year, the recurrence of such actions here in Iowa City, one of the educational centers of the state, is disgraceful.

The Daily Iowan believes, along with the merchants of Iowa City and local citizens in general, that pep meetings can and should continue. They will if the minority who were responsible Friday night remember that education continues outside the classroom and that its practical applications have a good deal to do with intelligent action as well as thought.

This Is An International Incident

WHEN a great big country gets worried about one not so very big man and even makes an international situation out of him, the whole thing takes on a ludicrous air.

That's the way we look at the attempts to ban John Strachey, the British labor leader and alleged communist, from entering the United States.

Mr. Strachey had a passport visa when he left England, and now it's been revoked.

Probably not much will happen if Mr. Strachey isn't allowed to make his lectures here, only our state department will look a little silly, internationally.

But we'll probably continue to publish John Strachey's books. That's different, although we can't quite see how.

Nicholas Murray Butler says democracy is suffering from paralysis of will power. We're inclined to doubt that just a little since the beginning of the well known purge.

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Actors and actresses speak their minds sometimes, even when married to one another, as witness this scene from the private lives of Charles Laughton and his wife, Elsa Lanchester.

It seems that Mr. Laughton is somewhat fat, as confessed by himself and also by his wife. Remark on this in a preface to his biography, which was written by Mrs. Laughton, Charles says:

"When I was rehearsing in 'On The Spot,' Edgar Wallace's play, in which I had to wear smart clothes and go about the stage kissing the women, I came home one night in a state of despair, sullen and nasty, and said to Elsa: 'I know they (the public) won't stand for this. I've got a face like an elephant's' and in this play I have to do the big sex act."

She turned on me like the proverbial tiger cat and whipped out: 'How dare you presume you are unattractive! Hold your shoulders back, keep your head up and smile, so that I can hold my head up with other women! Can you beat that? I owe her plenty.'

You will find this excerpt in the preface of "Charles Laughton and I," published by Harcourt Brace and while it is not, strictly speaking, a true biography of this distinguished British actor, it does give one an insight into the things that amuse Laughton off stage, some very readable anecdotes concerning his experiences in Hollywood, and the double-harness life he and his actress-wife lead, whether kicking around the sound stages of a film studio or playing Shakespeare at the Old Vic.

For instance, "On one night of the year when the moon is full, a strange thing happens on the Pacific coast. There are little fish called grunion that come up on the beach in great numbers on a moonlight night. They stand on their tails, twiddle around and go back to deep water. . . . One night when we were at the Thalbergs' house I saw Jean Harlow with a little fish in her hand. It was alive, and she put it into a bowl of flowers.

"I had an idea that it might be a grunion as they were about due. If so, I knew it would die in fresh water and I thought it had better go back to the sea. I took it out of the bowl of flower water and rushed into the garden and down on to the beach. Then I discovered that the beach was covered with grunion, and that people were catching them in their hands and in handkerchiefs.

"I had taken my shoes off and had my evening dress up around my knees. Knowing Charles would be wildly interested, I dashed back into the house, crying: 'The grunion are running! The grunion are running!' Nobody took any notice except Charles and Jeanette MacDonald. We all three ran out and paddled about in the water. The sea was so full of grunion that it seemed as if one's legs were being massaged by them. We did not try to catch any. We just watched them go up on the beach, twiddle around on their tails and slip back again."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This will be good news—and bad—for the parents of child prodigies who ought to be in pictures:

There's a producer who is turning over his entire studio to the production of "kid pictures," and nothing but.

"A little child shall feed them," said Sol Lesser today, looking around the lot where his staff of workers was making ready for another Tommy Kelly starrer called "Wings of Tomorrow."

He meant, however, several little children—but not too many, and therein lies the bad news. Because he says:

"The market for child stars has reached the saturation point in Hollywood today. There are enough. A child would have to be really different to get somewhere in pictures today against the competition already here. And I mean different.

"Every day we get letters from parents who claim that their own child is a second Shirley Temple, better than Jane Withers, a finer singer than Bobby Breen, tougher than Mickey Rooney, and so on. None of that interests us."

And what would interest him? Well, a letter like this might—just possibly—get an answer:

"Dear Mr. Lesser, In our house there is a brat. He is a moral bankrupt, a thief, disobedient, impudent, and I'm sure he'll come to no good. For all that, he has a personality that makes us love him, regardless. He will probably wind up in the electric chair, but we've been thinking he might as well earn a few shekels for our old age before he reaches the hot seat. If you want to take the risk, and give him a test, you're welcome. But understand, it's YOUR risk, and if he comes to see you he sure everything of value in your studio is nailed down."

Well, Lesser isn't looking for embryo gangsters, but you'll get the idea. He doesn't want carbon copies of kids already on the screen.

Lesser's been making pictures since that day, as a San Francisco film distributor, he was invited to make a commercial reel for a drugstore chain. He made it, and probably should be hanged, as the perpetrator of that current school of salesmanship which teaches salesmen not to let a customer get away until he's bought ten other articles in addition to the pack of cigarettes he really wanted. Anyway, that reel convinced him he was a producer, and he followed it up with a spot-news feature on the fall of the Barbary Coast and another starring Annette Kellerman, called "What Women Love."

Jackie Cooper in "Peck's Bad Boy" was one of his biggest hits and through the years the child stars consistently scored for Lesser.

That's why today he is concentrating on them exclusively. From now on, he will exploit Tommy Kelly, Bobby Breen, Ann Gillis and the little skater Irene Dare—in pictures with appeal for adults as well as children.

"You can't succeed with a picture that doesn't interest adults, no matter how many children you use," he said today.

And Lesser is one of the two producers in Hollywood who HAS to succeed. The other is Samuel Goldwyn. Those two are the only ones who gamble their own money on their pictures!

Germany is heading for a serious shortage of engineers which will amount to 18,000 men in 1939, according to publications. It is stated that this country needs annually 10,000 trained engineers which number, however, cannot be supplied. Only five years ago, 65,000 engineers were listed as unemployed.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Proposals by Senators James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, and Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, that President Roosevelt call an international conference in Washington to settle world frictions permanently, certainly will not meet with unanimous congressional approval when the lawmakers meet next. The president undoubtedly can, and maybe he will call such a conference regardless of congressional wishes. If the conference arrives at an agreement he can't make the United States a party to it without the senate's endorsement. That is to say, after the chief executive has done his part toward framing a treaty which suits him, it still remains for the senatorial body to o.k. it before it becomes effective to this country. However, the White House can negotiate preliminarily to its heart's content; it has to have no one's permission to go that far.

True, plenty of our solons object even to negotiations. Their reasoning is that negotiations, alone, despite possible subsequent senatorial rejection of the terms tentatively arrived at, embarrassingly semi-commit us to the senatorial rejected policies.

Illustratively, the senate turned down the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations plan, but to this day they bother us, because President Wilson had a hand in them 20 years ago.

All the same, if President Roosevelt sees fit to call a conference, there can be no stopping him.

How many isolationists? Just how many of our public men are out-and-out opposed to the old world discussions is problematic. Since the overseas strain became acute congress has been in recess, and their spokesmanship has been scattering.

We've heard from Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who doesn't want us to meddle in foreign affairs with a 10-foot pole, on the ground that, however sincerely we intend to do so in peace's cause, war is what it is pretty sure to lead us into. And we've heard from Senators Lewis and Burke, who believe this to be a good time to risk meddling.

Roughly speaking, I'd guess that old timers, like Senator Borah, are pessimistic, because they have an acute recollection of what our last meddling got us into.

On the opposite hand, some of our juniors, like Senator Burke, are more hopeful, not having so much experience.

In general I'd surmise that the pro-interference crowd in the next congress will be proportionately stronger than just after the last World war, because the oldsters, who realize how we were flim-flamed that time, are greatly thinned out, and the inexperienced youngsters are correspondingly more numerous. Such few oldsters as Senator Borah are left, but Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and his following are gone. And the inexperienced young optimists' "bloc" is more formidable.

Still, we'll know better when the next congress convenes.

Uncle Sam Always Gyped It is of record that Uncle Sam invariably has been gyped in international conferences.

We have had great statesmen, domestically speaking, wonderful businessmen, marvelous promoters of industry, excellent generals, labor leaders par excellence, grand thinkers in many lines—but our diplomacy has been awful.

Every time our amateur diplomats have come into competition with the rest of the world's professional diplomats—oh mercy!

The rule may not hold so good just now.

President Roosevelt is a pretty good internationalist. Secretary of State Cordell Hull is a very great one—politically and economically. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles is the equal of any European specialist. The rank and file of our staffs, however, can't be created in a hurry. Our Moleys and "Tommy-the-Corks" aren't very dependable.

Secretaries of States Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson botched their jobs. They promoted international conferences. It's hard not to be suspicious, from an American standpoint, of any international conference that we participate in.

Hunts Chicken Legs To Prove His Point

RACINE, Wis. (AP)—J. Wernasz has been hunting chicken legs to support his claim for payment on 25 chickens he said were destroyed by a pack of dogs.

He petitioned the county board of supervisors to pay for the birds and produced plenty of feathers as evidence, and also witnesses who saw the dogs run off with the loot. The board, refusing to accept feathers as sufficient evidence, suggested Wernasz bring in legs instead.

BARSTOW, Cal. (AP)—Experiments in growing cotton on the Mojave desert have been declared a success by P. N. Dieringer. His 10-acre tract has produced grade A quality of fairly long staple and he expects to make a profit of $40 to $45 an acre.

TUNING IN By Loren Hickerson

JOHN BARRYMORE who's been making some really fine (and funny) movies recently is the headliner on tonight's "Texaco Star Theater" broadcast. Noah Beery will also be on hand.

Barrymore and Beery, as visiting guest stars, join the regular program troupe, headed by Adolphe Menjou, Una Merkel, Charlie Ruggles, vocalists Jane Froman and Kenny Baker, David Broekman's orchestra and members of the Max Reinhardt Workshop.

The two guest stars will appear in a presentation of "The Jest," and they'll be aided by regulars in the cast and members of the Workshop. The broadcast is heard over CBS at 8:30 tonight.

A SISTER'S CHOICE . . . between love and duty . . . the story of a police net that combed 11 states and 100 cities . . . of the ending of David Shaffer's crime career, will be told when "Gang Busters" reveals "the facts behind the facts" of the Shaffer case at 7 o'clock tonight over CBS.

Shaffer turned to crime when he failed to get a steady job in the coal mines near his home in Pennsylvania. He looted the cash-register of a local store, was caught and sent to jail for a year.

Released, he soon joined two other ex-convicts and participated in a daring series of night-club and tavern robberies in various parts of Pennsylvania.

When police were hot on the trail of these bandits, the trio split up and Shaffer headed back for his home alone. He arrived to find police waiting for him, led by his sister who hoped to save him from committing more serious crimes than were already chalked up against him.

In the shooting that followed, one of Shaffer's bullets hit a policeman, another struck his sister . . .

IT CAN BE DONE . . . tonight will present Elsie Voight, who traveled around the world in spite of poverty and managed to be present during important international events.

The feminine "soldier of fortune" will have her adventures dramatized and will be interviewed.

HOBBY LOBBY . . . which comes on the air at 7:30 tonight over the NBC-Red network, will feature sands that bark and sing, whatever that means.

The featured hobbyist is Homer A. Davis, who has spent a lifetime collecting 820 specimens of sand from different parts of the world. Represented in the collection are sands that actually "bark" and "sing" as well as those of every conceivable hue and color.

Ghost Town Made Historical Landmark

SACRAMENTO, Cal. (AP)—The ghost town of "Rough and Ready," which once proclaimed itself an independent republic, has been approved as a state historical landmark.

Settled in the 1849 gold rush, the town once seceded from the union and declared itself "The Great Republic of Rough and Ready." Later fire, drought and exhaustion of the gold mines brought its history to a close.

Health Hints By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Blood tests are made for various conditions. The blood is a highly complex sort of fluid, performs many functions and contains many kinds of bodies. Tests for these substances have attained a very high degree of efficiency, and diagnosis can be made with great certainty.

People speak with great certainty of the fact that their blood is acid and apparently are entirely unaware of the fact that the biochemist can tell exactly to a fraction how acid it is and what acids are present which causes the condition. The acidulous one would find in most instances that the blood was not acid at all. The blood is as nearly neutral as it is possible to be in this world, and it preserves its neutrality by many devious devices. If it should become very acid or very alkaline, a very serious condition follows.

For Immune Bodies Other tests of the blood are for immune bodies, as for the immune bodies of typhoid fever by the Widal test, and the Wasserman test, of which so much has been made lately. These tests are very ingenious. The Widal test, for instance, depends on the fact that after typhoid bacilli have lived in the body for a while, the blood develops what are known as agglutinins. The typhoid bacillus is mobile and, under the microscope in a drop of water, darts all around with great rapidity. The agglutinins slow them down and clump them together. The microscopists can add a drop of a suspected typhoid patient's blood to a water drop full of typhoid bacilli and draw conclusions from whether they continue to dance around or stop and huddle together.

Questions From Readers N. E.: "Some of my friends and I have been having some arguments lately about whether you need more salt in summer than in winter. Is it true that too much salt causes hardening of the arteries and Bright's disease?"

Answer: The cause of heat stroke is probably loss of salt through perspiration, and the prevention of the peculiar muscle spasms of men who work in very overheated places is to administer salt and water. So it would appear logical to eat more salt in summer. In my opinion, the taking of salt has nothing to do with hardening of the arteries or Bright's disease.

Injury to Keep Balazs From Chicago Game

Star Suffers Torn Cartilage

Union to Play Hillcresters In Football Game

Frank Balazs, senior fullback and Iowa's most potent scoring threat, will be on the sideline for another two weeks, it was learned yesterday after his injury was examined at University hospital. It is feared that a cartilage is torn in his knee.

His absence from the lineup in the Chicago game will make the task of getting back into the winning column a difficult one indeed as the Maroons are quite a bit tougher than the score of the Michigan game would indicate. Russell Busk, wee quarterback who specializes in run back punts, was still with the first string team yesterday evening as the squad engaged in a long session.

Mike Enich, who was cast in the role of center for the greater part of Monday's drill, was back in familiar territory yesterday, spending most of the time in the backfield after a brief workout in the pivot spot.

The early part of the program was devoted to blocking and tackling, which showed up weak in the Wisconsin game. The freshmen then were brought in and gave the varsity an idea of how Chicago runs through its flanker plays. There was little contact work, the coaches being satisfied with the first stringers getting the feel of the play.

It seems definite, after yesterday's workout, that Coach Tubbs is determined to speed the attack for the Maroon game. The slow motion offense in the Wisconsin game is probably responsible for the changes that have moved Busk into the backfield along with Niles, Kinnick and McLain, ball carriers that can lug the pigskin with something approximating fleetness.

In the game Saturday, the Hawkeyes will face an inexperienced line, but a backfield composed of veterans who can and will play the game. Capt. Lew Hamity is a threat every time he gets his hands on the ball. Against Michigan, he tossed a pass that was good for 80-yards and a touchdown. John Davenport, Cedar Rapids, was on the receiving end of the heave. Davenport, it will be remembered, is Big Ten dash champion. That sort of competition is tough for any team in the country. Needless to say, the Hawkeyes can ill afford to feel that they have a push over in the Chicago contest.

Blues' Mentor Places Stress On Aerial Game

In an attempt to strengthen his team before its second conference game Friday at Monticello, Coach Brechler sent his warriors through a long workout yesterday afternoon.

To augment the U-High attack, Brechler dished out several new plays and before the afternoon session had been concluded the Blues had completely mastered their new formations. In an attempt to bolster the pass attack, the locals were sent through an intense passing drill with Burns throwing passes to Co - Capt. Krogh, Rarick, McAllister and Hightshoe. It was the inability of these men to catch Burns' long accurate passes that cost them several good scoring opportunities in the West Liberty game. Morgan, the U-High punter, was given some special instruction on kicking in hopes that he would not duplicate last week's performance.

Gridders In Action Again

Purdue-Fordham And Wisconsin-Pitt Top Saturday's Program

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Aided by such contributing factors as California's return to competition in its own class, the first major games of the season for Navy, Fordham, Holy Cross and Carnegie Tech, and a line-up of formidable opposition for such gridders, powers as Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame and Alabama, this Saturday's mid-October football program stacks up as one of the best of the season.

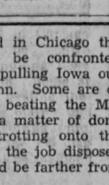

Fordham - Purdue
Fordham, in its clash with Purdue, and Carnegie Tech and Holy Cross, in their meeting at Pittsburgh, should provide two of the east's better dog fights.

Minnesota - Notre Dame
Minnesota, Notre Dame and Alabama, held surprisingly well by Purdue, Georgia Tech and North Carolina State in their last starts, are heading for more trouble, the Gophers against a Michigan club that has been coming faster every Saturday and certainly will be pointed for this objective, Notre Dame against Illinois, and 'Bama against Major Bob Neyland's Tennessee Volunteers.

Pitt's task of the week is to overcome Wisconsin, which was good enough to beat Iowa by three touchdowns and still give its regulars a chance to rest up for this assignment. It would seem poor policy, however, to bet against the Panthers.

BITS about Sports

By J. DENNIS SULLIVAN

This week end in Chicago the Hawkeyes will be confronted with the job of pulling Iowa out of the loss column. Some are of the opinion that beating the Maroons is merely a matter of donning uniforms, trotting onto the field and getting the job disposed of. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Beating Chicago one week — though it be by a top-heavy score — does not necessarily mean that the trick can be repeated the following week. Coach Clark Shaughnessy is much too cagey for that sort of thing. His teams have upset the dope on more than one occasion, and can be depended on to come through with a startling victory at the most unexpected moments.

Coach Tubbs seems to be the most quoted person in the world these days. This is all very puzzling as the recitent Tubbs very seldom utters anything of a quotable nature.

An afternoon paper, Des Moines, ran a lengthy story to the effect that Tubbs would resign rather than let the "wolves" apply the pressure in the event he failed to come up with a winning team.

This came as a complete surprise to the coach who denied having said anything to that effect. "If that's true — and I don't believe there is any reason to suppose that Tubbs would deny it if he had actually said it — it seems that some person, or group of persons, has taken quite a responsibility upon themselves.

The Iowa mentor was more amused than angered by the story. He explained that it was very poor taste to choose him as the middle man in what was obviously a wire service fight for the latest in athletic developments here at the University of Iowa. If there must be a struggle for news emanating from Iowa City, it would seem that those responsible could be just a bit more accurate.

Gabby Hartnett would do away with the team that so recently finished the season in a thrilling fight to win the National league pennant. Wonder how much Gabby's job would be worth today were it not for those self-same players who put him in velvet by copping the flag?

While it must have been a disappointment not to have won a single series game, how much more disappointing would it have been had the Cubs failed to win the flag at all?

Seems rather ridiculous to be popping off about discarding the very players who made it possible for him to clinch a very lucrative job. It's a good thing Billy Herman—who is coming in for more than his share of criticism — was hitting for the Cubs this past season rather than against them.

Cormack Toils At Offensive

Juggling his lineup to get greater offensive power, Coach Herb Cormack last night drilled his Little Hawk gridders in razzle-dazzle plays intended to score with lightning-like thrusts.

Throwing over his policy of developing a strong defensive team, Cormack concentrated on offense last night in an attempt to mold a high scoring machine at the Red and White stronghold.

On his first string Cormack had Crumley and Walsh at ends, Putnam and Hirt at tackles, Fetig and Mueller at guards and Wright at center. Teaming up in the backfield were Junior Heacock, Bob Buckley, Joe McGinnis and Ted McLaughlin. The addition of Heacock and Buckley puts three good passers in the Little Hawk backfield.

"Dusty" Maher, Bob Beck and Caywood reported for practice but did not suit up. Herman Miller, the powerhouse of the Iowa City backfield, did not report. Ted Lewis and Jay Walden played in the second string backfield.

Coach Amoson sent his sophomore gridders through long signal drills before ordering hard scrimmage in preparation for their first game at Cedar Rapids Saturday. Running plays were stressed last night.

Bill Lenhart, Dan Rhule or Big Monte Merkel may get the call to fill the tackle post left vacant by Mike Sihalank's leg injury. John Burge or Steve Renko may have to take over for Dave Shirk, end, who has a bad hand.

Tough on Rice in Southwest

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 11 (AP)—One dull day last summer Coach Red Dawson of Tulane slipped into New York and confided to sports writers that Rice Institute, come the fall, would commit manslaughter on the gridiron and emerge as national champions.

No later than the next edition time Mr. Dawson's words were in big, black type and the word was noised around generally that Rice, with its invincible Ernie Lain, was "in." Sports writers and magazine authors didn't leisurely come down to investigate Mr. Dawson's tip—they flew by transport plane.

Oklahoma, a team that had whipped Rice in '37 but only, of course, because Ernie Lain wasn't in the lineup, came to town and beat Rice, Lain and Ollie Cordill notwithstanding. 7-6. Consternation, as they say, reigned.

Quiet, youngish Coach Jimmy Kitts said simply: "Oklahoma had a fine football team — better than Rice today. My team has been pumped up by newspaper and magazine publicity to the point where it was tough getting them fired up for a game. We're back from the Rose Bowl now and will play in the Southwest conference."

The next man who may come up with a fine ball club is old Bob Quinn of the Boston Bees, baseball's "rag man." Quinn never got much help, either.

Gabby Hartnett's ultimatum that he'll break up the Cubs was expected. The club for years has been unsettled principally because players thought they should be manager. One of them is Billy Herman. Billy unquestionably is a fine ball player, but his play this season put him as far from the managership as Rogers Hornsby. The status of Tony Lazzeri should be interesting. The best guess is Tony will stay but chances are he's wished many times he hadn't cut Oscar Vitt off short when Oscar offered him the Cleveland coaching job last winter. Incidentally, Hornsby's $10,000 a year for managing Baltimore is not a minor league high. Chuck Dressen, ex-Cincinnati, received 10 grand for managing Nashville last year.

Big Ten Briefs

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—A long scrimmage with the freshmen that ended under the floodlights, started the University of Chicago's heavy work today for the Iowa game Saturday, and what Coach Clark Shaughnessy hopes will be the Maroons first conference victory since 1936. Solly Sherman was shifted to half back and Bob Meyer, who did some signal calling against Michigan last Saturday, took over quarterback in today's drill.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 11 (AP)—Coach Mal Edward of Purdue, still set against giving up the offensive through Minnesota, held his players to one first down last Saturday, put regulars through an hour's scrimmage against freshmen today to polish their attack for their game with Fordham next Saturday.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 11 (AP)—Coach Bo McMillin, trying to replace 12 injured players, shook up his Indiana university football team today. McMillin said the team needed a defensive halfback, a good punter and more reserve strength at center.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 11 (AP)—The entire left side of the University of Wisconsin line was excused from heavy scrimmage work today when the gridders complained of an assortment of minor injuries ranging from stiff muscles to bruises.

One of the two Cedar Rapids schools, Wilson or Roosevelt, will drop from the top of the conference. Both schools still are undefeated in conference competition, and will meet in a game Friday night. Franklin high is hoped to defeat Dubuque on Thursday night in a game that Franklin hails as a revenge tilt. Dubuque was the only Iowa team to defeat Franklin in 1937.

West Waterloo will probably be tested in a game at Clinton. They have come through four hard games, Davenport, Ft. Dodge, Franklin and Mason City, with only one win but are expected to be stronger than Clinton. Iowa City lost last week's game to Franklin high but has hopes of defeating McKinley this week end. Eddy of Franklin showed too much running strength for Iowa City and made Franklin look like a real tie contender. East Waterloo meets Austin, Minn., while Davenport plays St. Ambrose academy.

Amused
Sitting shirt-sleeved at his desk, the young multi-millionaire smiled at the reaction to Hartnett's impetuous statement that "only four of the Cubs were sure of their jobs." Hartnett had named them—Stanley Hack, Clay Bryant, Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean.

"Gabby dropped in today to explain that," Wrigley said. "He was worried over the stress the newspapers put on it. I told him I could understand how everybody might feel that was the thing that might be done."

No Demos
"A wholesale shakeup is ridiculous, of course. There is no sense in trading players just to have slipped a trifle from their peak for one season."

"That's why we're going to wait a few weeks before doing anything. I don't think we will have any difficulty getting together on terms for Hartnett. The contract, however, will be only for one year. None of ours are ever for any more."

Wrigley declared he was more interested in developing his own players than in buying other teams' stars.

"I'm still against the farm clubs. I have found that working agreements aren't practical," he explained. "But I believe that we will be able to work out something better than that, a sort of cooperative ownership of minor league clubs. I am a firm believer in cooperative enterprises. For years I have been trying to learn how to run a business without paying salaries, by part ownership instead. That will beat, I believe, working agreements where you scramble around like a bucket of worms, or farm clubs where the owner has no local interest whatsoever."

Wrigley said he believes a bigger problem than getting players was to keep those he has inspired.

"What I would like to buy or develop is a formula to keep a team inspired," he said. "If we had only played against the Yankees the way we played against Pittsburgh the week before, we might have made the series go a couple of games further anyway."

Regarding Lazzeri, whom Wrigley signed last year to add spirit to the team, he said: "If he wants to be affiliated with the organization next year, I'd say he could although in what capacity I do not know."

Wrigley Tells Five Point Plan

Cubs to Put Older Players on Block As Bait in Trades

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—In a determined effort to make a real championship team out of the Chicago Cubs, Philip K. Wrigley owner of the team, today revealed a six point program for the rebuilding of his club.

The program is:
1—The contract to be offered Manager Gabby Hartnett will be for one year. Veteran players, rather than younger men, will be used as trading material but the "finger" has not been put on any player.

2—A system of cooperative ownership of minor league clubs is planned to fortify the Cub's weak supply of young talent.

3—Tony Lazzeri, if he wants it, will have a place with the organization in 1939 though not necessarily with the Cubs proper.

4—Dizzy Dean remains a strong hope for 1939 although no special winter program except rest has been prescribed.

5—Although physical limitations prevent a wholesale shake-up, every possible effort to strengthen the club will be made.

Sitting shirt-sleeved at his desk, the young multi-millionaire smiled at the reaction to Hartnett's impetuous statement that "only four of the Cubs were sure of their jobs." Hartnett had named them—Stanley Hack, Clay Bryant, Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean.

"A wholesale shakeup is ridiculous, of course. There is no sense in trading players just to have slipped a trifle from their peak for one season."

"That's why we're going to wait a few weeks before doing anything. I don't think we will have any difficulty getting together on terms for Hartnett. The contract, however, will be only for one year. None of ours are ever for any more."

Wrigley declared he was more interested in developing his own players than in buying other teams' stars.

"I'm still against the farm clubs. I have found that working agreements aren't practical," he explained. "But I believe that we will be able to work out something better than that, a sort of cooperative ownership of minor league clubs. I am a firm believer in cooperative enterprises. For years I have been trying to learn how to run a business without paying salaries, by part ownership instead. That will beat, I believe, working agreements where you scramble around like a bucket of worms, or farm clubs where the owner has no local interest whatsoever."

Wrigley said he believes a bigger problem than getting players was to keep those he has inspired.

"What I would like to buy or develop is a formula to keep a team inspired," he said. "If we had only played against the Yankees the way we played against Pittsburgh the week before, we might have made the series go a couple of games further anyway."

Regarding Lazzeri, whom Wrigley signed last year to add spirit to the team, he said: "If he wants to be affiliated with the organization next year, I'd say he could although in what capacity I do not know."

Reason for Child's Temper Given By Child Psychologist

HOSTESS HINTS

Hostess Hints

With the coming of crisp fall days the family begins to change from the popular salads of every type they have enjoyed throughout the summer and meat becomes more popular as the main dish.

Whether you are willing to spend some time in preparation or hurry in at 5:30 from a shopping trip, you can have balanced hearty meals with distinctive flavor by the proper meat dish.

Perhaps some new way to serve meat is what you need to keep from getting into a meal routine. Here are some suggestions that will find favor in your family.

Veal Steaks in Sour Cream
Veal steak
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lard
1-2 cup sour cream
Salt and pepper
Paprika

Have the veal steak cut one inch thick and into pieces suitable for serving. Roll in flour and brown nicely on both sides in the lard. Add sour cream. Season with salt, pepper and the paprika. Cover tightly and cook in a moderate oven (30 degrees F.) until the veal is done, 45 to 50 minutes.

Individual Ham Loaves
1 1-2 pound ground smoked ham
1 pound ground fresh pork
1 cup bread crumbs
2 eggs
1 1-2 cups milk
1-8 teaspoon pepper

Have the smoked ham and the fresh pork ground together. Combine with the bread crumbs, and moisten with the slightly beaten eggs and the milk. Season and pack into greased muffin tins or custard cups. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until done, 45 minutes to an hour. Serve with pineapple slices which have been browned in ham drippings and decorated with maraschino cherries and crisp parsley. Here is a meat recipe with a foreign flavor. Serve this with Parmesan cheese in true Italian style.

Italian Meat Balls
1 1-2 pound ground meat
1 cup bread crumbs
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon green pepper
1 egg, beaten
3 tablespoons bacon fat
2 cups tomatoes
Salt and pepper
Combine the ground meat with the chopped onion, green pepper, salt, pepper and bread crumbs which have been moistened with water. Add slightly beaten egg and shape into round balls about one inch in diameter. Brown in bacon fat. Add tomatoes, cover and let cook until the balls are done. Serve on spaghetti.

Guns Roar Dramatics Workshop Will Go on Air

The shriek of cannons will break the calmness of WSUI's radio voice tonight.

But the noise which pierces the stillness is merely the University of Iowa's experimental workshop in dramatics going on the air. This evening an original drama, "Bombers" by Donald Sturges, graduate student in the dramatic arts department, will be presented.

"Bombers" is under the supervision of Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger, director of the radio broadcasting division of the dramatic arts department. This play is concerned with the men who direct the forces of aggression in any European war and with a man whose ideals appeared to rob him of both military glory and civic virtue.

The players taking part in this drama are Milo L. Green, Frank South and Marold Glaspey, students in the dramatic arts department. Sound effects are controlled by Ray Heinen and Harold Nelson.

This production is one of a number of tentative programs to feature the unusual in radio script technique under the supervision of Professor Harshbarger.

Man 71 Years Old Is Messenger Boy

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A call for a telegraph messenger "boy" here sometimes brings a 71-year-old man. He's Chris Ott, who has been in the delivery department of a telegraph company since 1917.

Records show he delivers more telegrams and travels farther daily than his younger associates, but his deliveries are all made within an area of a few blocks. He carries an average of 100 messages daily into business offices of the downtown district.

Hogs Can Come Back —But for Winter Only

MT. CARMEL, Ill. (AP)—Police authorities have informed Mt. Carmel citizens they may bring their hogs back to town on Nov. 1 for the winter.

Hogs were banished last spring when hot weather brought out neighborhood complaints about odors.

Hawaii that too much public works money was being spent there on defense matters while municipal improvements suffered.

The president indicated he thought the present ratio would have to be continued, in view of the authorized program and the world situation, about which he made no further comment.

Large Increase In Defense Budget Seen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—A large increase in the 1939 national defense budget was foreseen today by President Roosevelt who explained that the navy alone needs $150,000,000 more next year to start new warships already authorized by congress.

Such an increase would bring the nation's annual arms budget up to within striking distance of a billion and a half dollars, or more than twice as much as national defense was costing only a decade ago. The total, however, still is far under the $1,744,000,000 spent in post-war 1920 before naval disarmament set in and wartime expenses were slashed.

The 1938 appropriations for the war and navy departments finally reached $1,322,047,452, which included direct and deficiency appropriations, and public works allotments.

The president said today that at least $150,000,000 must be provided the navy next year to start construction of new ships which have been authorized by congress, but for which the money has not yet been appropriated.

The navy received $619,033,244 this year, while the war department was given $703,024,208 for its entire program, including civil functions such as river, harbor and flood control work.

The president's remarks came in connection with a recent complaint by Governor Poindexter of proportions, and public works allotments.

Young Republicans Make Plans

Discuss Coming Election Plans

To Acquaint Younger Voters With County And State Offices

Chairman Clarence Redman called a meeting of the young republicans central committee at the republican headquarters in the Jefferson hotel last night.

The committee, composed of 10 members, discussed organization plans for the Nov. 8 election.

Referring to the policy of the Johnson county young republicans Mr. Redman stated:

"We intend to sponsor the younger voters in their registration and to acquaint them with the various offices and candidates of the county, state and national governments."

Other speakers at the assembly were James Remley, student chairman; Clinton Moyer, executive committee member, and M. D. Sandy, committeeman. They outlined plans for the registration of absentee student voters and the organization of young business men.

Chairman Redman announced that the next meeting will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m. in room 503 of the Jefferson hotel for the purpose of hearing reports on the progress made in the wards and precincts of Johnson county. All young republicans are invited.

Armistice Day Celebration To Be City-Wide

As Armistice day will be celebrated as a legal holiday for the first time this year, members of the Roy L. Choepke post of the American Legion await answers to their general appeal for a city-wide observance of the holiday.

The post asked the business men of Iowa City, the university and the Iowa City public schools to aid in observance of the day.

The post made the request through a resolution adopted at their last regular meeting. At this meeting they also voted to back the Iowa City Memorial Day association in its drive to erect a platform in Oakland cemetery for the benefit of future Memorial day programs.

'It's Tops--If You Can Take It'

Only 12% of Applicants Graduate From Uncle Sam's Flying School

By NORMAN FROILAND

"It's tops -- if you can take it." At least that's Lieut. Marian Malcolm's opinion of the training required for service in Uncle Sam's flying army.

Lieutenant Malcolm, 1934 university of Iowa graduate and now an instructor at the government flying school at Randolph Field, Tex., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Malcolm, 725 W. Washington street.

"Only 12 per cent of the applicants for admission to Randolph are ever graduated," he explained. Three out of every four persons intending to enter the school are eliminated before reaching San Antonio. Then only half of those who have what it takes to graduate.

Physical and mental proficiency are demanded. Because of the rigid standards maintained, Malcolm contends that the army fliers are "the cream of the crop."

Having several thousand flying hours to his credit, Lieutenant Malcolm advises any young man interested in aviation to investigate Randolph field -- "where you'll either learn to fly or be sent back home to plow corn."

A college education, according to Malcolm, is almost essential if one wishes to make army flying his profession. Although only two years of college or equivalent are required, it is advisable to have a

Request Funds

WASHINGTON, D. C. (ACP)—The Dies committee which is investigating un-American activities will probably pry into the operations of left-wing student groups and youth organizations, if its request for increased funds is granted by congress.

Charges of communism and other subversive doctrines have been volunteered against some of these organizations, as well as data in support of the charges. However, no witnesses will be called and no formal investigation of the charges will be made during the current sessions of the committee.

Lack of funds has forced the Dies committee to restrict the scope of its investigations and with pressing demands for inquiry into other movements, it has postponed its search into the activities of youth organizations.

The youth leaders will probably be called before the committee later, if funds are forthcoming to continue its work.

Men No Sissies!

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (ACP)—After five years of experimenting with courses on marriage problems, Syracuse university this fall established one of the first full-credit classes in the subject.

But, though 80 per cent of the men voted in a student referendum in favor of the course, not a single male registered for the new class.

Men, not afraid of marriage or the discussion of it, are afraid of registering in a home economics department course, officials believe, for it is in that division that the subject is offered.

Failures Studied

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (ACP)—A new attack on the problem of what causes personal failure or success has been launched by Harvard university with the establishment of a long-time study of "the forces that have produced normal young men."

Under the direction of Dr. A. V. Bock, head of the hygiene department, the investigation will deal with the heredity, constitution, family, school life and other elements pertaining to the make-up of the individual.

Aid Discouraged

NEW YORK, N. Y. (ACP)—A dark picture of the average college's chance of gaining grants from philanthropic institutions has been painted by Dr. E. V. Hollis, who has just completed an exhaustive study on the subject for a Columbia university doctor's degree.

There are at least 700 colleges who have little hope of ever getting aid from any of the big foundations, he has found.

Dr. Hollis points out that three-fourths of all grants to higher ed-

Honored—20 Years After

Benjamin Pagliaro (right), of the famous "Lost Battalion," of the World war, is shown receiving three medals, the Verdun; Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel, from Maj. Albert G. Cudebec, of the U. S. Army. The medals were bestowed by the French government for valor in an advance during which Pagliaro made an hour-and-a-half, 100-yard crawl under gun fire to get water.

Education in this country have been given to only 20 universities and the other one-fourth are contributions to 310 institutions. He sees a decided trend towards concentrating financial assistance to institutions that foundation trustees believe can use money towards permanent educational development.

The University of Chicago, receiver of much Rockefeller money, has been given nearly 14 per cent of all foundation grants. Others in order of their foundation assistance are: Carnegie Institute of Technology, John's Hopkins, Columbia, Vanderbilt, Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Duke, California Institute of Technology, Washington university, University of Rochester, Princeton, Peabody college, Tulane, University of Iowa, Stanford, University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore, New York university. Other colleges received the remaining 25 per cent.

The author estimates that roughly $680,000,000 has been spent in higher education by foundations, of which the Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations have been the largest contributors.

Coach Pays $$$

It's news when a man bites a dog, but it's supernews when a football coach has to pay to see his own team in action. But that's exactly what happened at the University of Scranton when Coaches Davies and Jones were stopped at the gate for no gain until they paid through the window.

Drama Critics

Dartmouth college is a man's school, and of course their plays must feature all-male casts—and thereby hangs a tale.

Studiously considering the advantages to be derived from buying a Players' season ticket book, two members of the still very "green" freshman class were seen observing the billboard in front of Robinson hall the other day. Before parting with their five almighties they wanted to be sure of getting their money's worth.

After contemplating for a while, the smarter one of the two pointed an accusing finger at the female lead in last year's show. "Hub," said he, "Rotten makeup. He doesn't even look like a woman."

Japanese Army Cuts Hankow RR Connection

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12 (Wednesday) (AP)—The Japanese forces in China were reported to have cut the northern railway communication with Hankow today, and simultaneously to have landed troops in south China in preparation for a drive on Canton, China's last big coastal city.

The Japanese army and navy in a joint communique officially announced their combined forces made a landing "somewhere in south China early this morning." No details were given, but usually reliable sources in Hongkong stated the landing was made at Hachung, in Bias bay, a few miles north of Hongkong and about 20 miles east of the Kowloon-Canton railway.

Almost simultaneously Domei (Japanese news agency) announced from the front that Japanese troops long pushing westward north of the Yangtze finally had captured Sinyang, Peiping-Hankow railway town 100 miles north of Hankow and a key objective of the central China drive.

Significance of the two reported maneuvers lay in the fact that a landing in south China long had been expected to coincide with the final assault against Hankow.

The Japanese were reported to have captured Sinyang in a surprise attack from nearby Wulien.

Capture of the vitally important town would definitely sever the Peiping-Hankow railway, previously reported cut south of Sinyang by an advance guard, and cut off Hankow's communication with the Chinese communist army stronghold at Sian in Shensi province.

It would place the Japanese in a strong position for a final thrust southward against Hankow.

The landing in South China was made after the mainland and nearby Bias bay islands were shelled heavily. A report at Hongkong Monday said at least 35,000 men were aboard 17 Japanese transport ships in the bay awaiting orders to land.

Allah To Be Praised In Canadian Church

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP)—The mezzuzin's call soon will be heard from the minaret of a Mohammedan mosque here, as Islam's first place of worship in Canada is opened. The structure will have a dome like its counterpart in Arabia.

One concession to Canada's climate will be made. Removal of overshoes or rubbers will be sufficient for entering the mosque. In warmer regions the shoes are removed.

AFRAID TO MARRY

CHAPTER 38
JUDY THOUGHT quickly as that strange voice said to her over the speaking tube, "Is this Abbey Boland?"

If she said that it was, she might learn something. On the other hand she might involve Ronald.

Instinctively she whispered. All whispers sounded alike. "What do you want?"

"You're asking me?" the voice said. "Ready to shell out?" She gasped, utterly lost as to her answer.

The man continued: "I'm talking plenty if you don't!" Judy's next words slipped down the speaking tube without conscious volition: "Haven't you done it already?"

The man suddenly grew alarmed. The difference in voice texture penetrated although Judy had clung to her whisper.

"Isn't this Abbey?" the man asked. "Who is it?" She spoke clearly in her own voice. "I think you have the wrong apartment. There aren't any Abbeys or Ronalds around here."

The man might watch the apartment now, or he might think Ronald had rented it for an hour the night before. She could not help that. One thing she knew. There was a man who had something to say. Why? What was his secret? How was Abbey involved?

She went to the window and peered through the draperies. The man was coming down the steps. She caught sight of a bright green fedora and a large plaid checked coat. He glanced up once or twice. She could not distinguish his features at that distance in the night.

She tried to memorize the quick way the man walked, his head a trifle preceding his body. He was short and slight.

When she came down to go to the theater, there was no one in sight but the limousine of people who waited for her.

Before leaving she tried to call Ronald. He was not at home, and the office telephone echoed in his empty study. Between acts at the play, she tried again.

The show was an opening. It was a gala night. White ermines, minks and jewels were abundant in the audience. One actress wore a costume that Judy had helped Cordelli design. None of this interested her tonight.

During intermissions she searched the people in the lobby. She did not see Ronald's red head. She wondered if Abbey had come. It would be like her to insist on attending this premiere.

Just as the audience was filing back before the third act curtain rose, Judy spied Abbey. She was with a young man, a stranger. She was laughing lightly.

So she had come. She could play while Ronald, whom she professed to love, was working alone somewhere, trying to save his name. Such a violent distaste shook Judy that she felt ill. Her hands were cold and her face was hot as the play went on.

The actors said lines she did not hear. The people applauded scenes she did not see. She declined to go on to a night club with the party, and finally induced them to let her go home alone in a taxicab instead of giving their chauffeur the trouble of taking her downtown.

She didn't go home. She gave the driver Ronald's address. He would have to come in sometime. She would wait.

He was not in so she drew her mink coat—she had been able to remove it from storage a month ago—around her shoulders and sat on the lower step of the hall in the dim light of the one feeble lamp. She was almost asleep when she heard a key in the latch.

Her heart beat rapidly and she looked up eagerly. She had no thought that Ronald might find her presence unusual or amusing. He might be in danger. She had news that he should have.

It wasn't Ronald who came in.

It was an elderly man who asked her if she had been locked out and suggested that he call the janitor for her. She smiled as she shook her head.

"I'm waiting for a friend." The man went upstairs in a small lift under the stairway and she was alone again. The clock on a tower somewhere chimed 12 times.

On the last stroke Ronald came. His face was so drawn, his eyes so worried, his chin so stern, she drew in her breath. Then he saw her and his eyes widened.

"Judy, has anything happened? Are you in trouble?" Now that he was here, now that he was all right and she could touch him, her worries seemed foolish.

She wanted to see his apartment, had wanted to for a long time. But she knew he could not ask her up now. It would have been all right. Others did it. But Ronald was in the limelight, the spotlight of scandal was probing into his conduct.

Besides there was Abbey. "Let's go across the street and have some coffee," he said. When they were seated: "Something happened, Judy. Want to tell me about it now?"

She related the evening's experience with the man in the green hat. Ronald's face was amazed.

"Are you sure you had the right man?" he asked. "When you looked down, Judy, wasn't there anyone else in sight? Think!"

She shook her head. "No one. I ran to the window right away and looked all around. The man couldn't have gone down the steps. I'm sure of it."

"And he seemed to know Abbey?" She nodded. Ronald shook his head. "Judy, I'm as mystified as you are."

"Then it isn't the party you had arranged to meet." "No, he's tall and dresses conservatively."

Judy spoke impulsively, placing one slim hand on Ronald's arm, and scarcely noting that he covered it with strong fingers that held it fast. "Ronald, someone is framing you. Have you any idea who it is?"

He nodded. "I can't prove it, though. I can't prove anything." He smiled and released her hand. "The man I blame is the tall one with the dark clothes—the one your caller wasn't."

"Is there any way that you can find out about the jurors being fixed?" Judy insisted. "Were they lying? Did someone really do it and blame you?"

He gave a tired laugh. "Someone did it, Judy honey, and the jurors think I'm guilty. They're scared for they took the bribes. Why someone would bribe them, and say I did it, I can't fathom, unless the man had a purpose of his own and used me as bait. Maybe he didn't expect it to get out and meant no personal harm to me."

"On the other hand, if it's the tall bozo I've been talking about, he wanted to hurt me. But I can't prove a thing. Besides, I can't understand why he went to all of that trouble."

They rode downtown to Judy's apartment. The avenue was nearly deserted. Now and then the rumbling of an elevated train carried across the block. The fog-horn blew with dim, mechanical precision for the night had grown misty.

At her door Ronald held Judy's hands. Then he stooped and kissed her quickly on the lips. "Thank you, Judy. You're grand."

She went inside but she stumbled, for her eyes were blurred by a screen of tears. Once Ronald had kissed madly, possessively, longingly.

Tonight he had kissed her kindly—for gratitude!

Antenna for City Police Radio Station Will Be Erected Soon

Better Reception Is Chief Purpose, Says Sergeant Beranek

Construction of the 100 foot antenna for the Iowa City police radio station, KAWP, is nearing completion and will probably be erected the latter part of this week, according to Sergt. H. F. Beranek, who is supervising the work.

The antenna is a wooden structure of two by one-half inch boards, which now needs only another coat of paint to be complete. The lattice work required four gross of screws, giving some idea of its magnitude.

Better reception is the chief purpose of the antenna, according to Sergt. Beranek. KAWP has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for an additional 50 watt power, which would double its present total. The tower will be erected in the front yard of the police station.

Two of Six Cases Discharged Without Payment of Fines

The Iowa City police department enjoyed a comparatively quiet day yesterday as only six cases were listed on the docket, two of which were discharged without fines.

Bernard McCarty and Martin Aaron, both of Iowa City, were each fined $3 and costs for speeding. Joseph Sentinelly of Iowa City was assessed $1 and costs for failure to stop at an arterial highway, and Mrs. W. F. Merriam of Iowa City was fined $1 for parking overtime.

DeVere Maxon, student, was arrested as a noise nuisance but was dismissed when he pleaded that the disturbance was the fault of his car. Kartherine Neuzel of Iowa City was charged with double parking, but her case was also dismissed.

Remember Way Back When?

Modern Methods of Fire Fighting To Be Demonstrated Tonight

The fire demonstration at the city hall tonight at 7 o'clock will be a far cry from the old volunteer days of the past.

Elder residents of Iowa City will recall the time when they tumbled from warm beds to answer the clang of the fire alarm bell in the city hall tower. Hose carts had to be trundled to the blaze and water pumped from the nearest corner cistern with the help of wheezing hand pumps. But the end was usually the same; the fire won.

Those, too, were the days when Chief Lou Messner's 1902 team of volunteers won the running championship at the state trials in Sioux City. Reserving an everlasting page in local fire annals, Edward D. Titcomb, became recognized as champion speed cuppler of the entire United States. The department was definitely on the map.

Probably only the old-timers will truly realize the progress made in fire-fighting when Chief J. J. Clark's two platoons go into action tonight. It will be quite a different scene.

Carried on under powerful floodlights the demonstration will include many phases of modern methods.

Boy Scouts Have Worthy Aims

Membership of City's Boy Scout Council 8,000 in Last 17 Years

More than 8,000 men and boys have been members of the Iowa City Boy Scout council since its organization 17 years ago, according to Owen B. Thiel, local Scout executive, who has served here since June, 1936.

This year more than 600 men and boys will have been in the local movement, including troop leaders, district and council members, scouts and cubs.

The program of the Boy Scouts of America is filled with activities which help a Scout to become a better boy. When he becomes a Scout he promises that "On my honor I will do my best, to do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout law. To help other people at all times and to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

A 12-year-old boy makes this promise and then sets about trying to do his best to live up to it. With the 12 points of the Scout law and this promise to guide him through life he will not go far wrong.

Activities of the Scout program are planned to assist the Scout to put into practice in his daily life the principles of this oath and law. He learns:

First, to take care of injured persons through the practice of first aid individually and in his troop.

Second, to prepare himself to assist other people by training himself to always be on the look-out for those in need.

Third, to live agreeably with other people by going on hikes and in camp.

Fourth, to cooperate with his fellows through the contests and games in his troop meetings and on hikes.

Fifth, fair play in all of his activities and that while he may lose in a contest he is still a winner for having equipped himself to compete as well as he did.

Briefly, he learns by actually doing the things about which he is to learn and not by reading about it in a book.

A Scout becomes a good citizen through the practice in his daily life of the Scout slogan "Do a Good Turn Daily," ever on the look-out to be of service to others. He is taught through the "doing" method to assist in time of need.

Each year the local Scouts conduct an old toy campaign, with the cooperation of a local theater. More than 600 toys were collected last year and turned over to other agencies for distribution at

Scout Executive Thiel

Christmas. During Thanksgiving time local Scouts assisted the groups in distribution of food and cooperated with a local theater in the collection of food stuffs for the less fortunate.

Scouts stand ready at all times to be of service to the community, assisting the local patriotic organizations at Memorial day and other ceremonies. Hundreds of hours of service are rendered each year to these organizations and the community. A Scout can not take pay for rendering this service, and the boy will become a better citizen for having had the opportunity to be of service to others.

The local organization maintains an office at 119 1/2 E. College street from which the administration of the program is carried on. Local troops are meeting under the supervision of institutions who supply the leadership. As the program is a supplementary one to that of the home, church and school, it must be carried on by these agencies.

The aims and purposes of the movement are to develop character and to train for citizenship. Much of this is done through contact with men who have seen the vision and are willing to spend some of their time in training boys to be the right kind of men. These men believe "that to live in lives that come after us is not to die."

The local organization carries on its work from contributions made to the community chest campaign, and it is only from its continued support that the leaders of tomorrow can be made.

St. Mary's School News

Biographies of the St. Mary's class of '39 will be presented in a series of 20 articles, the first of which starts today. Publication of such articles has long been the custom of former senior groups, and in view of the interest and entertainment created, such publication will be continued.

Ada Andrews, more familiarly known to friends as "Adie," was born on a farm near Burlington where she resided for seven years. At a small rural school, nearby, she completed her work in the primary year.

The Andrews have changed their residence three times since then, living first in Davenport, where Miss Andrews took three more years of her schooling and then on a farm near Morse, where she finished her grammar school education.

Four years ago Miss Andrews entered St. Mary's as a freshman, and since then has been active in the girl's glee club, the G.A.A., and this fall she was elected treasurer of the senior class.

Senior students of the school were allowed to listen to the World Series broadcast last week during their free hours, an opportunity, judging by the enthusiasm shown, that was sincerely appreciated.

Sophomore boys and girls also had the privilege of listening to the broadcast of the first game on Wednesday.

Margaret Seemuth, St. Mary's reporter, also announces the following grade school news:

Five eighth grade pupils received a rating of "A" in an English achievement test: Melvin Smith, Ginita Kessler, David Ivey, Laurence Soens, and James Wright.

Patsy Suellep and Marian Olive were the only two who received "A" in an arithmetic test given to the seventh grade. Joseph Alberhasky and Marian Alwine also received a rating of "A" in a seventh grade history test.

Grade school gym classes met for the first time last Friday under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Reid.

Fifth and sixth grade pupils are planning posters for fire prevention week, and several periods during this week will be devoted to short talks by the children on fire prevention.
