ELECTION TO MEASURE NEW DEAL

Brisk Political Fight Foreseen for All Offices Here

Heavy Rain, Late Snowfalls Hinder Voting

Chairmen Announce Free Transportation Available to Voters

The heavy rain and snow falls of the past two days are expected to greatly reduce the voting in all rural precincts in Johnson county today.

In many districts the wet weather has rendered country roads practically impassable. However, both republican and democratic workers have arranged for the transportation of voters to the polls. Chairmen of both parties have announced that all Iowa City voters desiring transportation to the polls should call their party headquarters.

Although Johnson county has, with the exception of the election of Harding in 1920, voted consistently democratic since the Civil war, political leaders expect a brisk fight between the opposing parties for all offices.

Of particular interest will be the race for congressman between Attorney Thomas E. Martin and Judge James P. Geffney. Following the past week of intensive campaigning both candidates are expected to total a high vote at the polls.

Another close battle is anticipated between Attorney Harold W. Vestermark and Attorney E. A. Baldwin as they run for county attorney. Vestermark, the incumbent, nosed Baldwin out of the position at the last election.

Many voters believe that the outcome of the gubernatorial contest will be based on the action taken by Governor Nelson G. Kraschel in regard to the past industrial crises that have occurred in Iowa. While his support is considered strong, an army of opponents is looking forward to the election of George A. Wilson, republican candidate.

In Iowa City the polls will be open from 7 o'clock this morning to 8 o'clock tonight. Other precincts in the county will open their polls one hour later.

Polling places for Iowa City are as follows: First ward, first precinct, courthouse; second precinct, Engineering building, corner of Washington and Capitol streets.

Second ward, first precinct, city hall; second precinct, Reichardt's pavilion, at City park.

Third ward, C. S. P. S. hall, 524 N. Jefferson street.

Fourth ward, first precinct, former Alert Hose house, 204 N. Gilbert street; second precinct, Iowa City Community building, Gilbert and College streets.

Fifth ward, first precinct, Iowa City Bottling works, 525 S. Gilbert street; second precinct, Vilhauer's garage, 813 7th avenue.

Rail and Labor Representatives Meet to Draft New Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Representatives of rail management and labor sat down at a conference table once more today to tackle the job of drafting a legislative program of rehabilitation and relief for the nation's ailing railroads.

The three railroad representatives and three labor officials appointed by President Roosevelt to make legislative proposals discussed the subjects to be considered and the form of the report they will present to the president.

Both Carl R. Gray, vice chairman of the Union Pacific's board, and George Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, reported they would have nothing to say publicly about the subject matter until they reported to Mr. Roosevelt.

Gray and E. E. Norris, president of the Southern railway, predicted the group would complete its work before the new congress convened in January, but Harrison was not so optimistic.

Circus' Labor Troubles Settled

'Big Show to Hit Road Next Spring,' Says John Ringling North

ATLANTA, Nov. 7 (AP)—John Ringling North, president of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey, announced tonight the circus' labor troubles were "settled" and the "big show" definitely would hit the road next spring "bigger and better than ever—and air-conditioned."

The youthful head of the Goliath of the outdoor show world confirmed rumors he had reached a tentative agreement with William Green, American Federation of Labor president, to reopen the show which was closed last June 22 after employees balked at a 25 per cent wage cut.

"I talked with Mr. Green and Matthew Woll (A. F. of L. vice president) at the A. F. of L. convention in Houston," North said. "We reached an amicable agreement. Details will be worked out and contracts drawn when I confer with him again in New York about Dec. 1."

In an interview in his car attached to the Al G. Barnes-Seils Floto circus (another Ringling enterprise now using some of the "big show's" acts), North spoke enthusiastically of his plans to modernize the old business with "plenty of color, theatrical lighting effects—and air conditioning."

Eclipse of Moon Seen as Sun Shines; Airline Passengers Watch Despite Rain

By The Associated Press An eclipse of the moon while the sun still shown was witnessed in many parts of the United States yesterday evening.

In some portions, notably the southern seaboard and the mid-west, clouds and rain obscured the phenomenon from watchers on the ground, but airplane passengers obtained a remarkable view.

Along the Atlantic coast, the moon rose, in partial eclipse, at 3:43 p.m., (CST), just seven minutes before sunset. Although such an eclipse is caused by the shadow of the earth passing over the moon, scientists explained it was possible before sunset because of the refraction of light in the earth's atmosphere.

In the east, the eclipse became total just five minutes before the sun set at 3:40 p.m. The total eclipse ended at 5:07 p.m. The moon left the umbra, the black earth shadow, at 6:12 p.m., and passed out of the penumbra, the hazy shadow, at 7:14 p.m.

Royalty May Meet in Paris As Step Toward Reconciliation

VOTER FAVORED Fair Skies Forecast By Weather Man

By The Associated Press The weather man's predictions generally favored the voter in today's elections.

Fair skies but cool temperatures were forecast for many sections of the nation.

"Very good weather," said the forecaster for the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain states. He added, however, there might be some scattered showers and snow flurries near the Canadian border.

Down in Dixie, the official prognosticator thought the weather would be on the cool side. Rains were predicted for some sections.

Continued mild temperatures were forecast for much of the east. In Iowa, freezing weather might harden some rain-soaked roads over which the farm vote moves, the forecaster said.

Complaints Not Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—Complaints against employers for violating the minimum wage and maximum hour requirements for the fair labor standards act will be held confidential, the wage-hour administration said yesterday.

President Roosevelt selected the committee several months ago. Other members are M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania; B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, and D. B. Robertson, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The committee's first meeting ended when Harrison objected to discussing a legislative program while the railroads' proposal to reduce wages 15 per cent was pending. After the president's emergency fact finding board suggested recently that the reduction proposal be abandoned, the carriers withdrew notices of the wage cut and both sides agreed to resume the legislative discussions.

Mr. Roosevelt told Harrison and J. J. Pelly, president of the Association of American Railroads, a week ago that he would try to get congress to enact a remedial program at the next session.

Storm Blamed For 5 Highway Deaths in West

Ice Coated Highways Threaten Election In Western States

DENVER, Nov. 7 (AP)—Skies cleared and temperatures climbed today in the wake of winter's first broad onslaught from the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi river.

In several western states ice and slush highway coatings threatened to curtail general election voting tomorrow. The storm was blamed for three highway deaths in Texas, one in Wyoming and one in Colorado.

In southeastern Colorado's Peterson canon country, mounted search parties hunted for Harold L. Mercer, 38, of Pueblo, who was separated from hunting companions Sunday.

After blanketing the Rocky mountain region and most of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas with snow, the storm moved eastward today across Missouri, where light snow still fell in western counties.

In contrast to sub-zero temperatures in Colorado and New Mexico mountain areas, New York City experienced its warmest Nov. 7 in history with a 75-degree maximum. The previous high temperature for the day was 68 degrees, recorded in 1925.

Leadville, Col., two miles above sea level, reported a morning of six degrees below zero. Estancia, east of Albuquerque, N. M., recorded an unofficial 8 below. Trinidad, Col., reported 5 below and the minimum atop Pikes peak was 10 below.

Snowplows in northern New Mexico opened drifts which marooned five bus passengers and 35 motorists last night. State highway officials said no cases of suffering from exposure were reported. Ten inches of snow fell at Santa Fe, New Mexico's capital.

In Texas and Oklahoma snow and heavy rains broke a drought in many farm and range counties.

Young Refugee Held by Police

Claims Vengeance As Motive for Shooting Embassy Secretary

PARIS, Nov. 7 (AP)—A 17-year old Polish Jewish refugee from Germany attempted to assassinate Ernst Vom Rath, secretary of the German embassy, today because he said he wanted to avenge Polish Jews driven out of Germany.

Vom Rath, shot twice by the youth in his embassy office, lay in a critical condition in a hospital tonight. A bullet was removed from his right shoulder but another remained lodged in his abdomen.

His assailant gave the name of Herschel Grynszpan, formerly of Hanover, Germany. Embassy attaches caught him after the shooting and turned him over to French police.

A German embassy spokesman charged that the youth was "excited by Jews in France" but Grynszpan insisted during police questioning that he acted alone to avenge Polish Jews driven out of Germany.

Detectives said they learned that the Grynszpan family, including the father, mother, sisters and brothers, had come to France when they were ousted from Germany but were unable to find a home.

The authorities on August 15, refused to renew Herschel's permit to live in this country. He told police he left the home of an uncle residing here and lived in Paris parks and under bridges of the Seine river.

Detectives said his parents last week were refused permission to remain in France and went with the remainder of the family to Poland where they began living in an abandoned railroad freight car across from the German frontier.

Thousands of other Polish Jews have been living across the frontier after their deportation October 28-29 from Germany. German authorities rounded up Polish Jews suddenly in advance of the deadline set in a Polish law requiring revalidation of passports but halted their drive October 29, pending Polish-German negotiations.

Student 'Army' Called Greatest American Asset

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Dr. William Mather Lewis said today that "America's greatest asset" was its student "army" of more than 30,000,000 enrolled in schools, colleges and universities.

He spoke over the radio (NBC-blue) at the opening of American educational week sponsored by the National Education association, the United States Bureau of Education and the American Legion.

Dr. Lewis, president of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., said the nation's student body was "learning to apply the lessons of the past to the problems of the future so that civilization may advance in an orderly, peaceful and intelligent way."

Slippery Streets—Crash

Off-Year Election Considered To Be Unusually Important

To be elected: 35 United States senators; 432 members of the house of representatives; 32 governors; many lesser state officials.

To do the electing: it is estimated 54,324,930 persons are eligible and 40,000,000 actually will vote.

The voting units: about 122,000 in 47 states (Maine voters elected in September).

By The Associated Press Some 40,000,000 Americans—more or less—will vote today in an "off year" election which is considered of unusual importance because it may, and many think it will:

1. Afford an up-to-date idea of how much support the public is giving the new deal.

2. Make or break various political figures who have been under discussion as prime presidential possibilities.

3. Profoundly affect the whole future of governmental policy.

The polls will be open in every state, except Maine which voted two months ago. At issue will be 32 governorships, 35 places in the senate, 432 seats in the house, a host of lesser offices, and state constitutional amendments and initiative proposals. Bad weather was predicted last night for many sections of the country.

On the eve of the election, John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the republican national committee, centered attention upon an issue which, next to that of the new deal itself, was perhaps given most prominence by republican campaign speakers.

He charged that "steps were being taken to coerce those on relief rolls" to vote for new deal candidates. It "is perfectly obvious," he said in a statement, that "the new deal's chief reliance is the belief that it can count on relief workers as a bloc supporting new deal candidates."

To supplement the evidence already at hand of coercion of relief workers, he said he was wiring all his state chairmen to keep a close watch and preserve all evidence of such activities, for submission to a congressional investigation.

"In order to assure adequate relief for all in distress and to protect relief beneficiaries in their right to vote as they please, republicans are determined to have sweeping investigation in next congress," his telegram said.

"Object is to punish all politicians and relief supervisors who bring pressure on relief workers."

Meanwhile, Chairman James A. Farley of the democratic national committee prepared a radio address predicting a democratic victory, and asserting that it "must be so decisive as to leave no doubt in anybody's mind that the country's faith in Franklin D. Roosevelt is as great as ever."

He added: "President Roosevelt will be endorsed again. The United States senate and the house of representatives will be overwhelmingly democratic, as they are now. We will see a few new faces in the halls of congress, but the political complexion will not be materially different. The governmental policies which stayed the Hoover panic and started commerce and industry on the upgrade will be braced and perfected and the work of restoration will go right on. It may be hampered and delayed occasionally by the expedients of the small anti-administration groups but the good work will go on just the same."

High leaders in both parties expressed belief the republicans would make some gains, but differed on their extent. For example, some republicans predicted the democrats would lose a half dozen or so senate seats and 75 to 80 places in the house.

Ridiculing these claims, some democrats set their party's possible losses at 25 seats in the house, two or three senators and two or three governors.

CELEBRATION

Bolshevist Revolution Anniversary

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP)—A pageant of Soviet Russian armed power, acclaimed as ever ready for any eventuality, rolled across Red square today in celebration of the 21st anniversary of the bolshevist revolution.

Demonstrations were held throughout the Soviet union but the greatest occurred in Moscow before the eyes of dignitaries including Joseph Stalin, smoking his pipe atop the tomb of Nikolai Lenin, leader of the revolution.

Tens of thousands of soldiers, several hundred tanks and 300 war planes passed in review before the men on the tomb and guests in tribunes at either side.

Searchers Find Indiana Student In Rock Tunnel

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP)—Miss Mary E. Mellinger, 21, of Indianapolis, Indiana university junior, told her roommate today she was kidnapped last Saturday, taken to an abandoned stone quarry six miles southwest of here, but was unharmed during a 25 1-2 hour absence.

The roommate, Miss Jean Hanna of Hagerstown, Ind., said the young woman could give no motive for the kidnaping. Miss Mellinger was found shortly before last midnight in a rock tunnel after several hundred townspeople, officers and students started an intensive search.

Richard Russell, student, was attracted to the rock tunnel last night by Miss Mellinger's moans. Police Chief Claude Meyers took her to a hospital, where Dr. Charles Holland said she was suffering from exposure, but there was no evidence of an attack.

From his office, Sifton issued this comment: "The article referred to by Mr. Matthews was written for a publication and an organization which was organized to oppose imperialist war and fascism and included many other individuals who were not and are not communists but who were opposed to these two evils."

Matthews told the committee that in the early 1930's he was connected with 28 communist united front organizations. He said he ended these activities gradually because of an "ethical revulsion" against the communist movement. The witness testified: "That he had been associated with Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist and president of the American Newspaper Guild, in "at least five communist united fronts."

Matthews Tells Committee Of Un-American Article by Sifton

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—House investigators heard today that Paul Sifton, an assistant to Elmer F. Andrews, the wage-hour administrator, once wrote an article urging readers to tell capitalists that "the whole capitalist shell game can sink and be damned."

J. B. Matthews, self-styled former leader of numerous communist united front organizations in this country, told the committee on un-American activities that Sifton had contributed the article to the first issue of "Fight," a publication of the American League Against War and Fascism. He testified the article had this to say with reference to capitalists:

"Tell them you know that they know they're sunk unless they can start a war to make their $200,000,000,000 in debts look better than a trainload of waste paper. Tell them and their fancy pieces of paper and the whole capitalist shell game can sink and be damned."

It's the Humanitarian Thing to Do

WHEN STATISTICS show half the nation's population is without adequate medical care, that should mean the problem is worth consideration.

So whatever happens in today's election, the problem of a "new deal" in medical aid is certain to be considered during the next session of congress.

The American Medical Association will, of course, oppose any kind of socialized medicine as it has consistently in the past. Yet even the association must have noticed some advance in sentiment because, after opposing all group hospitalization insurance plans, it has decreed that prepaid hospitalization is acceptable as long as it does not include actual medical care.

The association's position will, quite likely, extend still further in the next few months.

This month's Fortune magazine, reporting on the steady gain of "socialized sentiment," declares: "The average U.S. doctor finds himself in the position of favoring many government services that are wholly 'socialized' in that they are supported out of public funds, and he knows that if they were cut off his own life would be harder and the lives of his patients less secure. These socialized services account for more than a fifth of the total national health bill."

But this same doctor is likely to think of government interference as a "menace." He is likely to think the British doctor, for example, dislikes the British insurance system, almost solely because the A.M.A. has lead him to believe that is true.

The facts are quite different. Fortune further reports that half of all the doctors in England voluntarily serve on insurance panels, receive quarterly payments from the government for their services and are satisfied with the system as it operates practically.

Significantly, too, the British Medical association fought the plan when it was first proposed in 1911. Now the same B.M.A. is proposing extensions.

It would seem, then, that those who can should see that humanitarianism will take the place of a growing commercialism of medicine in some quarters.

The future, then, looks brighter—brighter for those who are humanitarian.

(P.S. For if you're interested in what doctors can be—and, fortunately, often are—we refer you to A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel")—either as a novel or as a movie.)

Come On, Be Friendly

ONE OF THE most widely discussed issues at present in international circles, and one concerning the United States and England is the question of Secretary Hull's program of trade agreements.

Since the recent fascist gains in Europe, grave doubts as to the further success of such a policy have been expressed. Many of these have come from those who all along have doubted the wisdom of such a plan, but not all are of this nature.

The question is not whether such a plan will fail but that it must not fail. The price of failure today is too great for the world to face.

With all the difficulties of international relationships that are constantly menaced by the specter of individual national needs, we must consider what such a course would mean. Instead of widening and richer trade channels and agreements, we would be faced with internal struggles and rivalry in an effort to make the maximum use of our resources.

Secondly, instead of friendly, profitable arrangements with other powers to pave the way for friendly arbitration in all matters arising from mutual interests in peace and settlements, we would be facing a group of nations with each on the defensive economically and, consequently, politically.

These are two considerations America faces in this moment of indecision and uncertainty. We can't afford to let them fail!

At the Bottom—And Working Up

TODAY is election day! That means adults of the United States will go to the polls to vote into office the men they believe most fitted for each position. It is to the common advantage of all to be careful of the man put into any public office.

From the ranks in the lower offices, eventually comes the candidates for higher offices. Even presidential candidates are potentially in the making all along the line at every general election.

Voters would do well to stress this sequence today. All public offices are important, especially in terms of the American plan of political promotion.

(Editor's Note: The Daily Iowan below includes some of the press comment from other newspapers concerning appearances of the Dresden Boys choir, which will appear in the main lounge of Iowa Union Thursday at 8:15 p.m.)

Dr. Rudolph Mauersberger, conductor of the world-famous Dresden Boys choir, is a wizard in his field. And the choral pride of Dresden, a medium-sized choir of boys with angelic voices, heard in concert at Orchestra hall last evening, proved to be the finest European boys' choir ever to appear before American audiences. They will be heard again next Tuesday evening in the University of Chicago's Rockefeller Memorial Chapel.

The unforced pure tone-balance and quality, musical background and discipline displayed by this organization is magnificent. The purest form of coloratura timbre to be found in the world was revealed in the unearthly tone of the soprano section, and the contratenor, tenor and basso-cantato sections blended beautifully.

Chicago Herald and Examiner

The concert of the Boys' Choir of the Holy Cross in Clothier Memorial last Saturday was one of the outstanding musical events to which the College community has been treated. The rigorous training these 66 boys have been given by their conductor, Rudolph Mauersberger, has produced a marvelous technique of singing rarely found in a capella boys' choirs. They sang in eight parts, with excellent diction, and in even passages of quick runs each note was distinct and well intoned.

Swarthmore Phoenix

Last night the choir was again a marvel of technical perfection and sang with a precision unsurpassed by any American group of vocalists. Its inimitable rendition of Orlando di Lasso's "Echo Song," a number that had to be repeated, and its technical attainment as evidenced in Bach's difficult and lengthy "Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied," which included writing for double chorus and fugue, were worthy of special mention.

Philadelphia Inquirer

The polyphonic style of Bach's "Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied" was set forth with a beauty born of the ease with which the boys executed the intricacies of the intertwining voices and sustained the rhythmic continuity.

Buffalo Evening News

Without slighting the superb work of the boys themselves, special mention should be made of their director, Rudolph Mauersberger, whose sense of rhythmic phrasing is exceptional. To him must go a large share of the credit for their outstanding gifts for delicate accentuation, subtle nuance and continuity of line which make for the highest type of choral singing. Noteworthy also is the reed-like vocal quality he draws from his group as opposed to the extremely pure, flute-like tone heard in most boy choirs. This one carries basses and tenors which enlarge the range, though, being youthful the basses are not very deep and the general effect is therefore always one of rather high pitch.

PIECE BY PIECE!

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Henny Youngman reports a cross-section of the Oriental viewpoint concerning the China war thusly: "I found myself at Ruby Foo's for dinner and vaguely troubled about something. It took me a long time to realize what it was. Then it suddenly occurred to me that the service was terrible. I hailed the headwaiter and demanded, 'What's the matter with those waiters? They're huddled over there in a corner and not paying attention to anything I tell them.' "The headwaiter shrugged and shook his head sadly. 'They have,' he replied, 'big disapproval over Chiang Kai-shek's strategy in Yangtze River Valley campaign.'"

Continuing our Oriental discourse, we should mention those attractive menu covers discovered on a recent visit to the Terrace Room in the Hotel New Yorker. Each has a striking picture in color and each details some Oriental belief. These are labeled "superstitions." I borrowed a waiter's pencil and made a note of them. The one nearest at hand had to do with the Chinese. On the printed legend was: "The Chinese are said to eat tangerines on holidays to appease and ward off evil spirits." That is all. The Chinese have a strange genius for abruptly beginning and closing any thought.

I asked the waiter to hand me another menu and this one was devoted to the Nile country. "The ancient Egyptians," it said, "believed that worshipping the humble cabbage would insure an abundant life." I wanted to look at a lot more of them, but there wasn't time. I had to make a belated break for the theater, and so I broke... but I'll be back... I want to make a record of a lot more superstitions.

Arthur Murray thinks the rumba has a potential rival in the new (N. Y.) samba, which is the national dance of Brazil. It is said to be graceful and exhilarating. One thing dancers are bound to like about it is that occasionally you just stop, look at each other, and hold hands. It isn't as simple as it sounds, however. There are any number of graceful but intricate figures to betray unwary plodders. But it's a pretty thing to see, and as Monsieur Murray suggests, just difficult enough to be exciting. Historic note: this dance was invented way back in 1823 by Don Chalisa, a musician in the court of Don Pedro, first emperor of Brazil. He was unhappily married and invented the dance seeking an opportunity to gaze into the eyes and hold the hands of his true love, a lady whose heart was pledged to another.

More and more producers are realizing that, to succeed, plays must bring themselves up to the daily headlines. One of the sure hits currently playing is Robert Sherwood's honest study of Abraham Lincoln's middle years. The things Lincoln said are as applicable today as then. That is one

MUSIC IN THE AIR

By Harold Kirshenblit

As usual, the week end in radio was brightened with a full quota of good music, after the accustomed rather barren week. Toscanini played, the Radio City music hall choir sang, and Robert Viroval, the talented young Hungarian violinist virtuosoed becomingly.

The latter event was of particular interest to us here in Iowa City, since, as everybody must be aware by now, Viroval is due here as the second artist in the current concert course series. His playing with the philharmonic-symphony last Sunday left no doubt of his stature as an artist, and we look forward in eager anticipation to his appearance here.

A new group has arisen, now, to torment the jitterbugs. They call themselves the United Hot Clubs of America, Inc., and claim to be composed of the serious lovers of hot jazz, "who existed before and will remain long after the death of the present swing fad."

It is difficult to make out just what the particular distinction of this new group is, for their advisory board consists of such outstanding authorities on swing as Benny Goodman, Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Dorothy Baker (author of "Young Man With a Horn"), Paul Whiteman, Tommy Dorsey, Gene Krupa, and Louis Armstrong—all big names, revered by "hot jazz lovers" and jitterbugs alike.

"To aid its chapters in studying and appreciating the collective and also improvisation which, they feel, constitutes America's sole distinctive contribution to music, the United Hot clubs has created a large circulating library of swing records and has arranged with music stores in many cities to provide new wax releases at reduced prices for club members. Prominent band leaders and musicians will address club meetings during their tours."

Apparently the only objection is to the various forms of dancing and body-waving which has come to be synonymous with swing fans. But please show me the real, live alligator who can listen impassively to a jam session. If there is one, he's a member of a new species.

Swing clubs are nothing new; young people have been buying swing records and sitting around in uncomfortable basements to listen to them for as long as swing has existed as such. But my knowledge, this is the first national organization of its kind, and I say more power to it. Only I wish they'd clarify their ideas about swing and hot jazz, so that people who don't understand such subtleties would find them easier to digest. (Me, for example.)

The United Hot clubs informs us that chapters have been formed at reason why Lincoln, whether you like it or not, will always be the dominant figure in American history. The things he said are deathless. They are as timely as tomorrow's headlines.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Bette Davis remains our best reason for wishing there were more stars like her.

The way she works, for one thing. There's so little hocus-pocus about it that you might think she were tackling another row of buttons at the button factory or plugging in to do the dishes after a party.

Bette's new one, "Dark Victory," is no cheerful piece. It's steeped in heavy drama of the sort that Bette has made her specialty. Maybe there's a cheerful philosophical note in it somewhere—there has to be—but its subject is a girl who learns she has but ten months to live, and what she does with those ten months.

Production started on a closed stage. So Bette, too, was getting that way? Another Garbo? Heck, no! The stage was closed for Edmund Goulding. He's the director.

The other day the scene was that in which Bette discovers, by accident, Dr. George Brent's diagnosis of her case. He has left it among his papers, little suspecting that Bette's on the prowl. She comes in gaily, starts tidying up, and then, all of a sudden, there it is, with her name on it. She reads it, and it hits her between the eyes.

Well, that is what is known in these parts as a BIG SCENE. If you know your movie actresses, you know that most of them are going to take a big scene BIG. Garbo and Hepburn, of course, would take it behind closed doors; Luise Rainer would "live with it" for hours, maybe days, before she'd expose her sensitive reactions to the camera. Joan Crawford would dream around the set, with emotion-stirring music on her phonograph, to get in the mood.

All of which is quite all right. Maybe it's necessary. I happen to like B. Davis's system better. She's standing in for the rehearsal, and she's looking mighty cute in a fur-trimmed dress and fur hat. Her hair is "up"—whoa, that's funny. Wasn't she the gal who said she never would? Wasn't she the one who said she'd had enough of that style during "The Sisters"?

She comes over to smoke a cigarette while they get the scene ready. How come, lady? "Oh, it's just for this one costume," she alibis quickly. "After all, a hat like this can't be worn with a bob."

And obviously, it can't. "I cut my hair short—I'm not a Gibson girl any more," she adds. "Have you heard what the Screen Actors Guild is doing? Making up samples of actors' hair for sale at the World's fair. They'll have plenty of mine—it came below my shoulders after 'The Sisters.' Perc Westmore has been saving samples of everybody's. They'll put it up in little charm cases. Excuse me..."

She is back on the set, and the scene is on. She trips gaily into Dr. Brent's office, goes through her gay dialogue, rustles through the papers and suddenly stares. Little by little, the idea strikes home. You can see it in the tenseness of her figure, in her face, in her eyes. She takes it BIG.

And I think, in fact, she couldn't take it BIGGER behind closed doors. She couldn't do it BETTER with six symphonies playing. She couldn't do it more movingly if she spent hours working into the mood, living with the Part, and Boring the Tar out of everybody on the stage.

The Gilbert and Sullivan fans who have not yet reported to headquarters can come out of hiding, now. We are not alone! My grapevine tells me that records of Gilbert and Sullivan music, over at Schaeffer hall, are deeply grooved, and there are at least five confirmed G & S bugs galivanting around loose over there. Which is very encouraging, to say the least.

Star Astronomy Student Can't See Stars

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Margaret Langenderfer of Toledo, 24, has been blind since birth but she makes her best grades in astronomy at Ohio State university.

She has been making better-than-average grades in her other studies, holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Toledo and teaches American history at the state school for the blind.

Was in Right School But Wrong Class

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—For six weeks a Topeka high school student sat in his history class and wondered when the review of last year's work would end. Finally he asked Teacher Amy Swenson.

He discovered it wasn't a review class; he had been sitting all that time in a History Three class when he should have been upstairs in History Five.

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The kidneys have a very rich blood supply. Every drop of blood in the body passes through them every few minutes. It has been estimated that 600 quarts of blood a day pass through them (some say 1,000 to 1,500 quarts). There is a total of six quarts of blood in the body, so even at the lowest estimate all the blood goes through the kidneys 100 times a day. This blood carries with it all the poisons and by-products of the body's activity and the kidney removes a number of these. It does so largely in little tufts of blood vessels that branch out from the kidney arteries like bunches of grapes on the vine. These tufts are called glomeruli. The glomeruli are coiled in order to expose as much surface area as possible to the blood, just as a radiator is coiled so as to expose as much heating surface in a small space. It has been estimated that there are 4,500,000 glomeruli in each kidney, and that if their surface area were spread out, it would be equivalent to 67 square feet, the surface area of a small room. We must consider then that the blood spreads out in a thin film, 67 feet square, over a surface especially designed to remove certain substances from it. To facilitate this, the blood moves very slowly in the kidney glomeruli, at the rate of about 18 inches an hour. Each Has Tubule From each glomerulus a fine tubule extends, coils on itself and finally empties into the pelvis of the kidney, whence the urine flows down the ureters into the bladder. These tubules also have a function in body excretion, and they, too, are coiled in order to obtain the maximum surface in the minimum space. It has been estimated that if the kidney tubules were all stretched out they would form a channel 280 miles long. And all this in the space of organs about the size of your two closed fists. The glomeruli and kidney tubule form a unit, as we have said, for the removal of certain waste products from the blood, and these flow off in the form of urine. Like Factory Track If we could use our imagination again, we might conceive of this long tubule as being like a track, such as you see in a motor factory, with busy workers on each side, each doing his bit to build up, not an automobile this time, but a complete drop of urine. The workers are the kidney cells, each trained to do his special job. The cells in the glomerulus remove water, and also the waste products of nitrogen metabolism, urea, uric acid, creatinine, creatin, etc. But the glomerular cells are over-busy and remove useful substances also—sugar, salts and amino-acids—and some of the workers down below in the tubules have to correct this and put back water and food products into the blood stream. What happens when these workers become sick and the mechanism goes wild, we will discuss tomorrow.

City High Grid Tilt Postponed

Bad Weather Again Jinxes Homecoming

Hawlets Prepare For Encounter With Albia Demons

A heavy snowfall plus a wet and muddy field forced the second postponement of Iowa City high school's Homecoming game with the Davenport Blue Devils. A date has not been selected for the game but if played, it will be Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday of next week Assistant Coach Francis Merten said last night. The game had been postponed until last night from Friday night because of a wet field. An all-day rain had soaked the field and made it too muddy for play. A steady rain Sunday prevented the field from drying and early yesterday morning snow began to fall and continued until late in the evening.

The snow and muddy field also prevented any practice for the Little Hawks in preparation for their game with Albia Friday night. Instead Coach Cormack called his boys together for a skull session and excused them from any hard work.

Albia has had it pretty much its own way in the Southern Iowa conference this year. The Demons, under the direction of Coaches Jack Patterson and Francis Harbison, have one of the strongest teams in the history of their institution.

The Demons have a strong running attack built around such able backs as Roland Kolling, John Dudley, Joe Nucko, John Mattis, Stevenson and Hartzell. Albia has a strong line composed of many able performers.

With an additional week of rest, the Little Hawks will be all set for the Albia invasion. But should the weather continue to force cancellation of practice sessions, the Red and White boys may be a bit stale.

Hoosier's Passing Potent, Vogel Says; Nicholson is Good

Indiana's pass attack, stunted all season by various breaks, may blossom out as a touchdown producer on any Saturday, so the University of Iowa football team this week is devoting attention to defensive measures for the game at Bloomington.

Otto Vogel, who scouted the Hoosiers, declared that they completed 10 of 24 passes against Boston college, yet failed to score and that with Joe Nicholson, who did not play last week, back as hurler the Hoosiers will be doubly dangerous.

Runners Dangerous Acting upon the information of Scout Vogel, Coach Irl Tubbs will chart a defense for the Indiana running game. Vogel said that Ed Clasen, Vincent Oliver and Harold Hirsch are dangerous running backs and that Nicholson can run as well as pass.

Dr. W. W. Hayne, team physician, said that the Iowans are in good shape despite the battering Minnesota game. Chet Poluga, who did a nice job at center, was bumped hard but will be ready for more action. Frank Balazs was used briefly and since his bad knee received no more ill-treatment he should be ready to cut loose against Indiana.

Hoosiers Lose Close Ones Indiana's record of five defeats and a tie in six games is not fooling the Iowans, although the Hoosiers have scored only eight points and were shut out four times. Ohio State and Wisconsin won, 6-0. Illinois took a 12-2 game, Kansas State won 13-6, Boston college 14-0, and Nebraska was held to a scoreless tie.

Iowa scouts have reported that Indiana outplayed the opposition in several of the games but have had few of the breaks this season. Hawkeys have considerable respect for the tough Indiana defense who has allowed no more than two touchdowns in any game and an average of 8 1/2 points.

Yeager Orders Light Practice for Ames AMES, Nov. 7 (AP) — Coach Jim Yeager said today he would order only light practice schedules for his Iowa State college Cyclones this week, fearing that heavy practice would be conducive to stale-

The Cyclone regulars went through a light exercise today, while reserves drilled inside as snow covered the practice field.

Trainers reported Boswell's ankle would mend in time for Saturday's game with Kansas State at Manhattan. They also said Wilder may be able to start after being out of the Drake game because of a groin injury.

On and Off The Field

Notes From Minnesota

The Mysterious Hollenbeck who is currently featured by a night club in Minneapolis is none other than the Hollenbeck who played with the University of Iowa in 1906. He was at that time the only man who ever stopped Jim Thorpe, the galloping redskin of the Carlisle Indian school.

Among the "Stowaways" on the Pullman cars which carried the Iowa team from Minneapolis to Des Moines was Paul Adamajursky who was listed two years ago by Harry Kipke as the best freshman football player at Michigan. Paul traveled all the way from Chicago to Minneapolis to see his friend, Frank Balazs, play.

One of the plays of the Iowa-Minnesota game brought together two of the outstanding fullbacks in the Big Ten when Frank Balazs and Frank Buhler locked horns. Buhler who was on the offensive ran into Big Frank and it seemed like the stands shook from the shock. You guessed it, Frank stopped him. But Frank was not always there to stop him.

Eddie Galaher, sports commentator for WCCO in Minneapolis was certainly impressed with the Iowa line play in the first part of the Minnesota game. He was justified in his opinion, too, as the Iowa line did look good.

The score of the game was not a good measurement of the contest as anyone who saw the game will tell you. Remember Minnesota did not score in the first quarter and that is when all of the Minnesota regulars were in there.

"Alibi Artists" Harangue Of Professor Browns Name

By PAUL MICKELSON
NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—The old professor's Monday morning class resembled a grand, noisy political rally today. Nominated for every office on every ticket was Big Bill the Biffer Kern, whose Carnegie Techs felled Jock Sutherland's frankenstein.

The old prof got a bit gay himself by showing the boys how to do the lambeth walk. Then he remembered his dignity, called off the shenanigans and got the pigskin alibi artists down to their customary business.

"Sweet William" Professor: Where do we go from here? Too bad Mr. Kern isn't running for sheriff of Allegheny county tomorrow. 'Cause Big Bad Bill is Sweet William now. How did you do it, son?

Bill Kern, Carnegie Tech: Professor, my boys primed for Pitt all season. They all were in there pitching. We're all happy. Of course, I'm sorry it happened to Jock.

Professor: Yes, I can see your tears. Jock, did Goldberg's injury make the difference Saturday?

He Wouldn't Say Jock Sutherland, Pittsburg: I wouldn't want to say that, professor. He's a very capable player, but just wasn't in shape. He wanted to go back in the last quarter but I wouldn't let him. Breaks helped some but they still had the better team. Tech played more alert, harder - driving football than we did.

Professor: Not only did Frankenstein get licked but so did Dracula. Now those Jones boys...

Howard Jones, Southern California: Oh, I wasn't too surprised because we beat California, professor. A swell team there but the whole Trojan team was better. I guess Granny Lansdell proved he was a great quarterback eh?

Proud Stub Allison, California: I'm proud of my boys even if they did lose. We couldn't get going. Professor, somebody's got to lose and Southern Cal sure was in there pitching.

Professor: I hope you boys notice what my alma mammy, Wisconsin, did Saturday. It's well nigh on to 26 years since we hogged that Big Ten title. The good old days are back—ah, I do hope so.

Harry Stuhlreher, Wisconsin: We beat Northwestern but it's hard to believe. I can't believe...

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern: The game bears out what I suspected all along, professor. We have a fair team, which was good enough to beat Minnesota but has trouble against a fast team with good passing. This fellow Weiss of Wisconsin is about the best fullback in the business.

Plenty Good Professor: Vic, how good is T. C. U.?

Vic Hurst, Tulsa: Best team T. C. U. ever had, professor, and I look for them to go undefeated. Our kids gave everything they had but it wasn't enough.

Dutch Meyer, T. C. U.: Tulsa always gives us all it's got. The game was one of the toughest of the year for us, hard and clean. We were a bit lucky to cash in with two touchdowns in the first period when we had the wind advantage. That Tulsa back, Morris White, was great.

Plentiful Professor: I saw Notre Dame against Navy. Elmer's got more backs than an employment agency.

Elmer Layden, Notre Dame: When Navy started throwing all those passes, I was tickled silly because my boys showed they could face a situation and think their way out. It rained footballs on us.

Irl Tubbs, Iowa: So did Minnesota, professor. Minnesota's got a great team, better than Purdue, but if we had played like we did against those Boiler-makers (a scoreless tie) we wouldn't have taken such a licking.

He's Good Bernie Bierman, Minnesota: Shucks, professor, we just went in there and played ball. Ever see a fullback like that Balazs? He drives harder than anybody we've come up against.

Professor: They tell me all the innkeepers in Syracuse are in hospitals after that wild celebration Saturday. We need more order.

Ossie Solem, Syracuse: It was worth a celebration to chase that 14-year old Colgate hoodoo. I don't want any posies, professor. They belong to the boys, to my assistants and to Ribs Baysinger and Roy Simmons, who had Colgate scouted so thoroughly our boys never were fooled.

Broken Jinx Andy Kerr, Colgate: At last the jinx is broken but I'm glad it was done by a team of real fighters coached by a nice, fine mentor as Ossie. The combination was too much but we'll be back.

Professor: You should know, Pop. How good is Holy Cross?

Pop Warner, Holy Cross beat us, 33-0. We tied Boston college at 26-all. But Holy Cross is no better than Boston college.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, Holy Cross: We'll have to do much better against Brown.

Real Club Bo McMillin, Indiana: I think Boston college has a real ball club, too. It compares favorably with any midwestern teams we've met this fall.

Professor: That should be a great game between Boston C. and Holy Cross.

New Pilot Ex-Manager Of Toledo

Will Work Hard With Youngsters On Fundamentals

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7 (AP)—With square jawed Fred Haney, the new manager of the St. Louis Browns, it is "the little things" that count.

So his first stab at building up one of the weakest teams in the American league will be to prevent the "little mistakes from which big blunders are made" — like the costly bobbles which have cropped out like rash so frequently in Brownie teams of recent years.

When asked about his ideas for lifting the club from its traditional low position, the ex-Toledo pilot said:

"It appears to me that the job is to start at the beginning. I have long contended ball games are not won or lost so much by the big things as by the little ones."

Fundamentals "I don't believe the young fellows coming up today have been trained correctly in the fundamentals of bunting, sliding and base running. So I am going to work hard on those things, especially with the youngsters."

Base Runner Haney, who is 40 years old, got into baseball as an aftermath of the World war and gained a reputation as a base runner. He played on a navy team at San Pedro, Cal., and after the war it was "either go into the shipyards or baseball."

He played with numerous minor league teams before making the grade with the Detroit Tigers under Ty Cobb. He played every position in the infield, and came to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929 as a first baseman.

One Year Contract Signed to a one year contract today — no mention of salary was made — Haney comes to the Browns after two mediocre seasons with the Mudhens as the fourth field general the St. Louis Americans have had since the present management took over at the end of the 1936 season. The others were Rogers Hornsby, Jim Bottomley and Gabby Street.

With his selection and the appointment of Ray Blades as manager of the Cards, all major league managerial vacancies for next year have been filled.

Besides Haney and Blades, who comes up from Rochester, Doc Prothro, boosted from Little Rock to the Phillies, is the third minor league manager promoted into the big time for next season.

Suspend Frat Touchballer

The rules governing intramural athletics are somewhat different than the ethics of love and war, it was discovered last night by members of the Delta Tau Delta touchball team.

In a game recently played between the Deltas and Sigma Nu, the Deltas came off with an easy victory. However, it was discovered later that one of the conquerors had been wearing football shoes in the battle, and as the rules state definitely that players are not supposed to wear cleated shoes, the boys from Sigma Nu protested.

When the protest was presented last night at a meeting of the interfraternity athletic council, it was decided that the victory should be declared null and void and the game replayed. In addition, the player who wore the outlawed equipment has been suspended from future competition in interfraternity touchball.

Announce Complete Hawkeye Cage Schedule for 1938-39

First Home Game To Be Played On New Year's Eve

With the signing of St. Louis university for the nineteenth game, the University of Iowa cage schedule for the 1938-39 season is complete and will consist of seven non-conference and 12 conference games.

The St. Louis team will meet the Hawkeys here on December 31 in the first home game Iowa has ever played on New Year's Eve. The addition of this game leaves the Hawks with a string of 11 battles at home as against eleven in enemy territory. Six of the home games are with conference foes, while five of the non-conference on the schedule will be played in the Iowa field house.

Dec. 3—Carleton at Iowa City.
Dec. 9—Monmouth at Iowa City.
Dec. 12—Washington (St. Louis) at Iowa City.
Dec. 17—Butler at Indianapolis.
Dec. 19—De Paul at Chicago.
Dec. 31—St. Louis U. at Iowa City.

Jan. 7—Wisconsin at Madison.
Jan. 9—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
Jan. 14—Purdue at Iowa City.
Jan. 16—Chicago at Iowa City.
Jan. 21—Michigan at Iowa City.
Jan. 30—South Dakota at Iowa City.

Feb. 4—Northwestern at Iowa City.
Feb. 6—Illinois at Urbana.
Feb. 11—Indiana at Iowa City.
Feb. 18—Ohio State at Columbus.
Feb. 20—Indiana at Bloomington.
Feb. 27—Northwestern at Iowa City.

March 6—Minnesota at Iowa City.

Michigan Prepares ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan, glimpsing a possible share in the Big Ten title, got down to hard work immediately today for Saturday's Northwestern game by running through a dummy scrimmage and an offensive drill. Archie Kodros, who missed the Pennsylvania game because of an injury, was back at first string center and ready for play against the Wildcats.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Purdue's football team, with two weeks ahead to get ready for its yearly game with Indiana skipped practice today. Coach Mal Elward showed his men moving pictures of their 12 to 0 victory over Ohio State. Jim Maloney, 162-pound senior guard, suffered a broken arm in the game. The classic contest with Indiana Nov. 19 will close the season for both teams.

High Schools Invited High school football squads throughout the state have been invited to attend the Iowa-Nebraska football game here on Nov. 19 as the guests of the University of Iowa Athletic board E. G. "Dad" Schroeder announced yesterday.

Six Veterans On Hand For Swim Team

Faced with the task of building up a swimming team capable of giving fight to teams such as Michigan and Northwestern, Coach Dave Armbruster has but six major letter winners for the nucleus of this year's squad.

The loss of such swimmers as Bob Allen, Bob Christians, Arny Christen, Bob Reed and John Stark left big gaps in the Iowa squad which in many cases will have to be filled by sophomores and a few swimmers from last year's team.

Two crack divers, John Stark and Arny Christen, were lost by graduation and men to take their places will be hard to find. However, Coach Armbruster reports that Benjamin Brandon, an understudy last season is coming along nicely and with more practice can easily develop into a decided asset to the team.

A bright spot in the picture is the return of Ray Walters to the Hawkeye roster. Forced to leave school on account of illness last year, Ray was elected captain by his mates last spring and is scheduled to lead the team this season.

Twenty-one men reported for the first formal workout last night but the number is expected to swell when the next workout is called tomorrow.

Gopher Holiday

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota's football squad had its customary Monday holiday from practice but Coach Bernie Bierman called his players to the lecture room and Scout Dallas Ward told them of the danger that lies ahead from a potent Notre Dame team. Ward told the Gophers that the Fighting Irish would be just that next Saturday, and that Minnesota must play an improved brand of football to defeat the Notre Dame eleven.

Lewis Versus Louis

Here are Joe Lewis, contender, and John Henry Jones, contender for Joe's heavyweight crown at the office of Mike Jacobs after signing for their scheduled fight at Madison Square Garden Jan. 27. The fight will be the first heavyweight championship encounter between Negroes since Jack Johnson fought Jim Sison in Paris in 1913. It will be the first all-Negro title fight ever held here in the United States. John Henry is recognized as the light-heavyweight champion in every state except New York at present.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP) — Minus four regulars who were injured in Saturday's defeat by Purdue, the Ohio State football squad worked on ground plays today in preparation for Illinois.

Jimmy Strausbaugh, Alex Schoenham, Frank Zadworney and Pete Gales all were taking lamp treatments for injuries.

Lighter Buckeye backs were used today, with Forrest Fordham and Tommy Welbaum dominating the running attack against a reserve line. Mike Kabela and Jimmy Sexton tossed the relatively few passes.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Coach Bo McMillin of Indiana university charged to "inexperience" today his football team's failure to score on Boston college Saturday. Boston won, 14 to 0. Hoosier gridmen who took part in the game were excused from practice today. Don Werdine, reserve center from Michigan City, suffered an ankle injury Saturday. McMillin said he would not play next Saturday against Iowa.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 7 (AP) — Deserting the sleet and cold of the practice field, the University of Wisconsin football team worked out today in the more California-like weather of the field house as Coach Harry Stuhlreher began practices for the coast game with U.C.L.A.

The Uelans' "wide open" attack was reviewed by the first three elevens. Stuhlreher's squad came through the Northwestern upset in goo shape. Ralph Moeller, end, and Tony Gradisnik, halfback, sustained hip bruises which will not keep them from action Saturday. The Badgers leave for the west coast Wednesday.

First Formal All-University Party Nov. 18

Band Will Introduce Junket Tea Dance As Added Feature

Frankie Masters, the "Hello, hello, hello" orchestra leader of swing fame, will bring his band here Nov. 18 to officially open the formal dancing season at the Sophomore Cotillion. This is the first of the four university formal parties for which hours for women are extended to 1:30 o'clock.

Frankie Masters' orchestra broadcasts every Wednesday evening on the Edgar Guest program and his theme song, "A Sweet Dream of You," is among the better known theme songs.

He first organized an orchestra when he was attending the University of Indiana, where he was a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. Giving up his idea to become a banker, he organized another band and played on a round-the-world engagement. Returning to the United States he organized still another unit and was featured on vaudeville stages for six years. After playing in all parts of this country the Frankie Masters orchestra is coming here after a week's engagement at the Chicago theater in Chicago.

An added feature for the Sophomore Cotillion will be an informal dance in the afternoon from 4 to 5:30 known as a Junket. Students will come from classes in sweaters and skirts and informal attire to swing to Frankie Masters' rhythm. The same ticket will admit students to both dances. Bring two dates or one—if you wish—your "swing" date and your "dream" date, for you're welcome.

Featured with Master's band is lovely Marian Frances, vocalist. Miss Frances, before joining Masters, was on such radio programs as "Sing and Swing," "Bon Voyage" and Harold Stokes and his WGN dance orchestra.

Sophomores who are members of the party committee include Jayne McGovern, A2 of Iowa City; Beth Jane Richards, A2 of Des Moines; Louise Seeburger, A2 of Des Moines; Beverly Barnes, A2 of Sioux Falls, S. D.; Rosana Shomler, A2 of Cedar Rapids; Margaret Kuttler, A2 of Davenport; Richard Witt, A2 of Shell Rock; Courtney Kline, A2 of La Porte City; Warren Randall, A2 of Miles City, Mont.; Edward Burman, E2 of Waverly; and Irwin Lage, P2 of Gladbrook.

2 Alumni Wed Thursday In West Branch

Dr. C. Nemmers, V. A. Schneider To Reside in Guttenberg

Virginia Ellen Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Schneider of West Branch, became the bride of Dr. Clarence J. Nemmers of Guttenberg last Thursday morning in the rectory of St. Patrick's church. The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. Patrick O'Reilly in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends.

The bride was attired in a blue crepe gown. Over this was worn a blue velvet jacket embroidered in gold. Her hat was a black off-the-face model and her accessories were black.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception and luncheon was given at the home of the bride's parents near West Branch. Hostesses included the bridegroom's sister, Josephine Nemmers of La Motte, Eleanor Telsow of Bennett and Mrs. Stanley Eickhorn of Wyoming.

Dr. Nemmers was graduated from the university school of dentistry and is practicing at Guttenberg. He is a member of Delta Sigma Delta fraternity. Mrs. Nemmers was graduated from Tipton junior college and the university, where she is a member of Kappa Phi sorority.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Guttenberg.

Presentation of "Tovarich" to Open University Theater Series

Russian Play Will Be Given Four Times

Characterized as Hit of Two Continents, New York, London

University theater will present the first of five performances of "Tovarich," the play which is opening the theater season, tonight at 8 o'clock in the theater building.

"Tovarich" will be repeated Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, as well as at a Saturday matinee at 2 p.m. designed especially for school children and cut-of-town play-goers.

Directing the production is Prof. Vance Morton of the dramatic arts department.

Is Humorous Tale
"Tovarich," which means "Comrade," is the humorous tale of the adventures of a Russian ex-gand duchess and her husband, an ex-prince, who accept jobs as butler and housemaid in a wealthy Paris banker's home.

The action revolves around a four-billion franc bank account, which was given in trust to the prince to be held for the royal family of Russia. The money is sought in turn by the French and Russian governments, as well as private individuals interested in so large a sum.

The play, characterized as the "hit of two continents," ran for many performances in Paris, London and New York. Written by a French playwright, Jacques Deval, it was translated into English by Robert E. Sherwood, the author of such well-known dramas as "Idiot's Delight."

Leading Roles
Mary Elizabeth Winbigler, U of Iowa City, and Jean Westrum, A3 of Glendale, Cal., are cast in the leading role—that of the grand Duchess Tatiana. Appearing as Prince Mikail will be Joseph Free, G of Clayton, Ohio.

The banker who employs the royal couple will be played by James E. Waery, A4 of Iowa City, and his wife will be portrayed by Louise Rietz, G of Morgantown, W. Va.

Mary K. Waldron, A3 of Milwaukee, Ore., will take the part of Olga, a French spy.

The employer's son and daughter will be interpreted by Leonard P. Marshall, A3 of Carthage, Ill., and Catherine Cobb, A3 of Marshalltown.

Ellis Plays Count
Other characters in the play are Max Ellis, G of Ft. Madison, as Count Feodor Brekenski; Sherman Paul, A1 of Lakewood, Ohio, as Chauffourier - Dubieff; Stanley K. Hamilton, A3 of Wichita, Kan., as Martelleau; Ruth Henningsen, A3 of Cedar Rapids, as Louise.

Walter D. Rouzer Jr., A2 of Kansas City, Mo., as the concierge; Helen Force, G of Howard, Kan., as Madame Van Dubieff; and Robert Frederick, G of Sparta, Wis., as Commissar Gorotchenko.

Committees Of Y. W. C. A. To Have Meetings
The Y. W. C. A. cabinet will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Y. W. C. A. conference room in Iowa Union.

The freshman discussion groups will meet tomorrow and Thursday at 7 p.m. in the conference room.

Mildred Maplethorpe, A4 of Toledo, chairman, will be in charge of the Girl Reserves' committee meeting Thursday at 4 p.m. in the conference room.

The campus topics discussion group met yesterday at 4 p.m. in the conference room. Helen Reich, pan-hellenic advisor, and Barbara Mueller, A4 of Davenport, president of U. W. A., were special guests. Ida Prouty, A4 of Council Bluffs, chairman, led the discussion on "University Social Life and Student Government."

Betty Lu Pryor, A3 of Burlington, and Patricia Slezzer, A2 of Freeport, Ill., assisted in the discussion.

The goals and program committee met yesterday at 4 p.m. in the women's lounge in Iowa Union.

There was also a meeting of house representatives with the publicity committee of Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the conference room.

McLeod, of Hydraulics Institute, Tells Of Oil Interceptor in Wis. Bulletin

Arthur M. McLeod, instructor in the institute of hydraulics research at the University of Iowa, has authored a bulletin recently issued by the University of Wisconsin engineering experiment station.

The bulletin which is called "The Grease Interceptor," is the first of its kind to be compiled and includes recommended standard tests and desirable features of design and operation.

The problem of preventing grease and oil from entering the sewer system with resulting clogging of laterals and mains and disposal difficulties at treatment plants, has long been handled by individual communities without the benefit of scientific investigation. The bulletin written by McLeod is the result of extensive tests on more than 50 manufactured grease interceptors to determine the principles of effective grease removal as applied to interceptor design.

The investigation reported in the bulletin was carried out in the hydraulic and sanitary laboratory of the University of Wisconsin under the direction of F. M. Dawson, former chairman of the department, and present dean of the college of engineering at the University of Iowa, and A. A. Kalinske of the mechanical engineering department.

Writes Song Former Iowa Student 'Makes Good'

The University of Iowa's "idea alum" (that's what he's called now) has embarked on a new adventure! He hopes to have his first popular song published.

Wilton J. Lutwack, or just "Willy" to most people, graduated from the university with a B. A. and a certificate in journalism last June. He's now employed by the Sheaffer Pen company in Ft. Madison.

Willy, who hails from Buffalo, N. Y., earned most of his way through school with his novel advertising ideas, which are being used by colleges and universities throughout the country. He was the originator of the hitch-hiker's thumb card.

But his latest achievement is "Melancholy Melody" which Willy describes as "sort of lan-

Election Process To Be Changed

Member of Phi Beta Kappa Senate will be elected by a new method beginning in 1940. At that time each district will be entitled to a senator residing in its area.

Letters of information on this matter are being sent to the chapters and associations of the north central district by Prof. Roy G. Flickinger, head of the classical languages department of the university and chairman of the district.

The north central district comprises 16 chapters and several alumni associations in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin.

A New York publishing house has heard the ditty and its appearance in the music world is expected sometime in the spring.

Willy was outstanding during his years on the campus here for his new and unusual devices to sell things. During his stay here he managed a student program at a local theater, putting on a stage show each week. He was student service manager for a cafe, played in a campus dance band and sold printing in the form of dance programs, announcements and invitations for a local printing company.

Still remembered is the night he rode a white horse up Old Capitol steps during a pep meeting and handed an "Iowa Fights" flag to President E. A. Gilmore.

First Come, First Served...

It was the night before Spinsters Spree tickets went on sale — and here's how Wilma Kelley (left), A2 of Davenport, and Jane Ehret (right), A1 of Sioux City, made certain there wouldn't be an S. R. O. sign hanging out when their turn came before Ticket Seller Leo Druckman of Iowa Union. The girls, among the first of the sleepy-eyed female "escorts" to arrive, caught a few winks of sleep before the tickets were placed on sale at 8 a.m. yesterday. From Miss Ehret's expression they gather that they must have been having sweet dreams about the informal party Friday night at which Bernie Cummins and his orchestra will play. The informal affair at which U. W. A. entertains annually will be from 9 until 12 p.m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

SUI Alumnus Wed at Cottage

October 29 Nuptials Of Young, Anderson In Waterloo Divulged

Announcement has been made of the recent marriage of Imelda Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson of Waterloo, to Richard H. Young, son of J. Arthur Young, also of Waterloo.

The J. Arthur Young cottage on the Cedar river was the scene of the ceremony on Oct. 29. Eight couples were present for the service. Mrs. Young attended the Iowa State Teachers college, where she was affiliated with Alpha Beta Gamma sorority. Since then she has been employed in the advertising department of the Waterloo Daily Courier.

Mr. Young attended the University of Colorado at Boulder for three years and was graduated from the University of Iowa, where he is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. The couple will make their home in Waterloo, where Mr. Young is associated with his father and brothers in the Young Coal company.

HOSTESS HINTS

With the coming of cooler weather we find the old fashioned but always delicious cottage pudding type of dessert returning to favor. With the right sauce almost any dessert will be a success. Here are a few examples of what you can do in the way of combining flavor and different fruits which, besides being delicious, add color and health to the menu.

Cherry Bounce
Canned cherries (about three cups)
Granulated sugar
Cinnamon
1-2 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons flour
Biscuit dough
Put cherries in a baking dish. Sprinkle a generous amount of granulated sugar mixed with flour and a little cinnamon over the top. Add the orange juice. Cover with rounds of dough cut from the biscuit dough and bake for 25 minutes. Serve warm.

Fritters are another variation and among the simplest to make. All you have to do is add cherries, apricots, pineapple, peaches, rhubarb, oranges or bananas to your fritter batter. Serve them hot, dusted with brown sugar and dipped into fruit sauce or stewed fruit.

Turnovers With Hard Sauce
1 cup dried apricots
2 cups lukewarm water
1-3 cup granulated sugar
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
5 tablespoons shortening
3-4 cup milk.
Soak apricots in water for two hours. Drain and add sugar. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and two tablespoons of sugar. Add shortening and mix in thoroughly with a fork. Add liquid to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured board and toss lightly until outside looks smooth. Roll the dough out an eighth of an inch thick and cut in four rounds or squares. Put a spoonful of apricots in the center of each. Fold over and press edges together with a fork. Prick top with a fork and place on baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (435 degrees F.) for about 25 minutes. Serve with peanut butter hard sauce.

Peanut Hard Sauce
1-2 cup butter
2 tablespoons peanut butter
1 cup confectioners sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup cream or rich milk.
Cream butter until very light. Add peanut butter. Add sugar slowly beating until thoroughly blended and creamy. Add salt and cream or milk.

Triangle Club To Meet With Wives

ROMANCE IN A COTTAGE

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, with the aid of her mother-in-law, rents a cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, in preparation for the launching of a unique business venture. Bob Towne, football end and campus hero, and some of the other students, are arrested by the new sign in front of the Davis cottage announcing a "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE." Sara Sue explains her Cottage Plan to a group of students and finds them greatly interested. Bob Towne even asks HER for a date.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 4

"NOW IF things aren't already in a mess!" Sara Sue Davis told herself severely. The first group of collegians had come and gone, nearly 40 of them, and she had signed up 18 members in her Cottage Plan. Moreover, the very first one, Number 1 on her receipt book, was the president of the student body, the most popular man on the Rice campus, she had learned. Big Bob Towne, football star end. With his enthusiasm for a precedent, she should prosper as hoped. But—

That very Number 1 customer had also proved to be problem Number 1. She, Sara Sue Davis, Inc., had advertised Counsel in Romance. Customer Number 1 had immediately paid up, then asked for counsel. His first request was to take Sara Sue herself to a downtown show.

"I cannot permit it, mother," Sara Sue stated vehemently over their supper sandwiches that evening. "I shall telephone him he can't come. I must not mix up in the campus social life, I must direct it instead! Don't you see?"

Mother Davis had not argued the point, nor indeed offered any comment at all. She was just being a tolerant foil for Sara Sue's argument with herself. A wise mother-in-law, who was really more than that now.

Nevertheless, as with most arguments, this one had two sides. Perhaps being seen with Bob Towne would add to her own popularity and prestige, the girl reasoned. After all, she had to be accepted by the students, had to be "in" with them, she realized, or she could never hope to hold their confidence nor their patronage.

She was kept busy from 6 p.m. until almost 8 o'clock anyway, by other students who were coming in. It seemed as if her musical door chimes were constantly ringing. News of her venture had spread over the school—nowhere does news get around faster than on a college campus—and visitors were coming. Sara Sue signed up eight new members in those two hours, collecting in advance. Even the editor of The Thresher joined, and promptly arranged a Monday night party in her cottage for his staff, ordering refreshments and paying for them. Sara Sue was delighted. In the rush she forgot all about cancelling her date with Bob Towne, until the door rang at 8:05 and there he was!

"Oh!" She looked up at him. He was a model of cleanliness. His face positively shone—from shaving as well as from his smile. His newest suit was immaculate. And he held flowers.

"I thought we might dance somewhere, for a little bit," he explained. "But I can't stay late. Football training. I must be in bed at 11 o'clock. Positively. Jimmy Britt? Oh, sure. Coach Britt. Well—"

"May I come in?" "Oh surely, Mr. Towne! I am the awfulest thing! Come in, I didn't mean to—I was thoughtful!"

She had meant to explain why she couldn't go with him, but now he had her doubly at a disadvantage. First, he had made his date quickly, unexpectedly. Then she had been too busy (and too unsure of herself) to cancel it. Finally he had come so graciously, and caught her being impolite, and—

"I'm not dressed for a dance," she smiled, suddenly deciding, "but I can change in a moment."

"Please don't. It's all right. We'll go to a quiet, informal place. The Southerner Blue room is good. Or we can still go to the early movies if you prefer. I have three hours."

"All right. I really ought to stay and attend to business. Mother is out, and customers are coming. Look."

True enough, half a dozen more young men were crossing toward her cottage from the dormitory gate. Bob and she knew they were interested, as was all the student body that had arrived so far. At this instant Bob caught a glimpse of Calculus Jones dusting in Sara Sue's dining room. "You, Calculus!" he called. "Yassuh, Mistuh Bob!" The colored man came grinning. "Lawdy, you sho do dress up, suh. You lookin' fo' Miss Peaches?" Calculus ordinarily didn't commit such blunders, but he was unaware of Bob's newest move in society. Bob Towne and Peaches Pomeroy had been seen together constantly for two years now. Calculus' assumption was a natural one.

The darkey's perceptions were keen, however. He caught instantly the gleam in Bob's eyes. "Oh, me, I done do somethin'!" he muttered, retreating. But Bob was in no mood for anger.

"Can you and Cleopatra hold down the cottage while I take Sara Sue to a dance, Calculus?" The colored man's eyes widened. He hadn't thought of that, hadn't thought of possible romance between Sara Sue and Bob. But suddenly the idea struck him as something entirely perfect, and his promises were attended by broad grins and much enthusiasm. He would, indeed, take charge of the cottage until Miss Sara Sue returned. (Quite incidentally, he would see to it that everybody he contacted learned the latest campus news—that popular Bob Towne was now courting the new widow Davis. Of such was the essence of life, to Calculus Jones.)

Bob Towne had rented a car for the evening. He proved such a good driver and such a good companion that Sara Sue relaxed quite noticeably and enjoyed herself. She had been keyed up for three or four days anyway. And she had accepted no companionship of this sort for a long, long time. Suddenly she laughed.

"Joke?" Bob asked. "No, I was just thinking—this is the first date I have had in five years!"

He knew her history now. Knew the tragedy that had touched her life four years ago. "And you can laugh happily now. Fine!" He said it seriously, gently. "I really am enjoying myself, Mr. Towne. I needed this." He took her to the Southerner hotel for an hour. But the orchestra was overdoing the fad of being swifty, and they went for a ride again, out toward Houston Heights. Autumn had begun to hint of its approach in south Texas and the air was invigorating. They drove out a country road. They talked and talked, and rode some more, fast but not too fast, and then a cow ambled from a brush patch and caught the front of Bob's rented car with her hip.

Nothing tragic happened, save to the cow.

She was injured, and had to be killed after Bob had reported to the farmhouse nearby. Then Bob wanted to go east when the right wheel headed west. Their disagreement required a tow car, and attendant delay.

The excitement broke down any reserve of strangeness between the boy and girl so that by midnight they were conversing more freely than ever, and she was calling him by his first name. And, in any event, Bob Towne was an easy man to get acquainted with.

At a quarter of one—almost two hours past Bob's bedtime—they arrived in a taxicab back at Sara Sue's cottage.

"Well!" she breathed. "It has been a whirlwind evening!" "I'm sorry again. And thankful you weren't hurt."

"We were lucky. And since nobody was hurt, it was really a fine time. I enjoyed the dancing, and the ride. You're a lot of fun, Bob."

"Thanks, Sara Sue. And—"

"And what? Hadn't you better hurry to bed? The football coach will be put out."

Bob laughed at her. He was holding both her hands now, on her front entry porch. He looked down at her, smiling, drinking in her fresh young beauty.

"Nobody would ever know you were a widow," he whispered.

All at once he stopped and kissed her, full on the lips. Then ran to his taxicab and was whisked away.

She watched the taxi tail light turn into the gate toward the Rice dormitories, and stood there another full minute considering the strange emotions that had encompassed her.

When she finally went inside, she knew, for sure, that she really was a widow after all. Even a somewhat "mature" one.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

FROM YEAR TO YEAR

—An Old Columnist Shows His Letters—

Every day there's one, sometimes two. . . Sometimes it's a suggestion. . . More often a note of appreciation. . . But there are others among them. . .

Usually, he files them away, the columnist. . . They're under the general title of "pan" mail. . . A few he can't ignore. . .

Such as the one, "Your mother must feel bad, at nights when she thinks about her child, I mean."

Or the one. . . "There are nice people in the world. . . Never meet any?"

And quite often he's convinced that, after all, he's a poor one at self-expression. . .

The story of the Jewish boy starting to college was a typical example. . . He thought it obvious how he felt, that the morning girl who shunned the boy had no place in any intellectual society. . . Yet he received half-a-dozen letters accusing him of anti-Semitism; one merely had "Heil Hitler" scratched across the top.

He thought, too, that he'd express himself about politics and music and that they don't mix, never have, never can. . . (And did you hear Deems Taylor on that subject Sunday afternoon?) But last Saturday his mail contained a simple, unsigned note from a "Business Man." It contained a picture of Herr Hitler with the note "Heil Miller."

The Religious Emphasis letter was meant to praise what seemed to him a noble attempt. . . But there were mailed derisions. . . "Why don't you clean your mind up?" asked one. . .

Then, yesterday, came this clever one. . . Authored by one who calls herself Alma Louise Atherton. . . I'm reprinting it here, in part, because it's clever, vitriolic and true (?). . . Typical. . .

"Six weeks of accumulated vitriol," it begins, "have to escape for the double-edged reason of leaving the writer unpenit, and sparing the same self-destruction of spontaneous combustion. . .

"Our grandiose columnist is laboring under the delusion of being a reformist. . . He believes in nothing, and advocates it vehemently. . . He takes apart every campus organization, cog by cog, and knows not how to put it back together. . .

"Instead he leaves it in atoms, or so he believes, and seems to think that the greatest results are accomplished by everybody working for his own undefined ends in complete disorganization. . .

"Yes, he practices what he preaches. . . He hates his alleged friends and treats his enemies like a barroom cuspidor. . . He reduces every reasonable prominent or able campusite to the lowest common denominator, multiplies by the Miller constant of zero, and gets a negative. . .

"To him all sorority and fraternity campusites are gilded morons; the rest of the campus are just ungilded. . . Is it asking too much for him to remember that any student movement, be it Men's Week or Religious Em-

Service For Local Citizen To Be Delayed

Funeral arrangements for Evan Rowland, 84, who died at his home, 110 Lusk avenue, yesterday noon, remain indefinite pending word from his only surviving son, Harry J. Rowland of Roswell, N. M.

Mr. Rowland, sheriff of Johnson county for 18 years, was born in Ebensburg, Pa., July 25, 1854. He came to Iowa City in 1878 and married Ruth Tudor here Feb. 27, 1881.

Besides his son survivors include his widow; two grandchildren, Ruth and John Killen, and a brother, Ike, of Iowa City. A daughter, May Killen, passed away five years ago.

The remains will be at the Hohenschuh mortuary until funeral arrangements are completed.

Mrs. Chandler Rites to Be In Franklin Grove

The body of Mrs. Edna L. Chandler, 37, 1130 E. Washington street, who died at a local hospital Sunday morning, will be taken to Franklin Grove, Ill., today for services and burial tomorrow afternoon.

Funeral services for Mrs. Chandler were held here yesterday at 3:30 p.m. at the Oathout funeral chapel.

Mrs. Chandler was born in Portsmouth, Ohio, on Nov. 17, 1900. Shortly after her marriage to Leon Chandler May 15, 1932, she moved to Iowa City.

THE GUN-TOTER OF ROSY RIDGE

by FRANK G. DICKINSON
Assistant Professor of Economics, University of Illinois

BEWARE THE OLD FOLKS' VOTE!

"Let's go after the young people's vote!" say politicians. Or labor. Or the liberals. But are they guessing right? Professor Dickinson points out that soon one-fourth of all American voters will be old enough to draw pensions; one-half will be past fifty. He pictures a coming shift in voting power, reveals why shrewd demagogues have started the climb onto the pension band wagon. See page 29.

People in Missouri talked about Tipton Tadlock in hushed voices. He had killed five men before he was seventeen. He'd lived hard, and trouble always traveled behind him. Now, after years of wandering and mystery, he returns to his home town, runs headlong into love—and two men who seek his life.

If you read "The Romance of Rosy Ridge," you know this author's gift of writing; and you'll find uncommon interest in this new tale of romantic adventure.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

THE moment I saw Hortense, I said to myself "THIS IS WAR!"

Hortense was the Type. Marvelous amber red hair. Curls. A cutey-wootey. It was sickening how the fellows all fell for her. "She's got what it takes, all right," I allowed. "We all have," said Carol, "but Hortense knows how to use it." Read how the boys went for—
