Kraschel Asks That Plant Be Kept Closed

Swift Packing Plant Closed Sept. 29; 165 Employees Discharged

DES MOINES, Nov. 9 (AP)—In a telegram to officials of Swift and company at Sioux City, Ia., Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel tonight asserted he expected them to "refrain from opening" their strike-bound packing plant tomorrow.

The governor said he had been informed by Adj. Gen. Charles H. Grahl that the company planned to reopen the plant at that time.

Swift and company executives, had no comment to make immediately on the governor's telegram.

"I am not convinced that good-faith negotiations have been sufficiently complete to justify this arbitrary action," the governor's telegram stated.

Governor Kraschel said he had received a letter from company officials Monday. In that letter, he said, the company listed 90 out of 165 discharged men that it is willing to re-hire.

The company's letter asked an immediate reply, the governor said, but he was unable to do that until he sent his telegram today.

The Swift C. I. O. local union at Sioux City struck Sept. 29 protesting the company's alleged refusal to meet the union's grievance committee. The company discharged 165 strikers.

Prof. Foerster States Liberal Education Lacking

Speaks at First In Baconian Lecture Series

Advocates System Of Junior Colleges Free Of Tuition Charges

"Liberal Education is in a dying state," Prof. Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters, declared last night as he opened the 1939 Baconian lecture series.

"The time is approaching when the state should consider establishing a system of regional junior colleges, easily accessible and free of tuition charges."

Professor Foerster advocated a new system of higher education. "If the question were asked, 'Have we the sort of education that will enable our institutions to withstand the shocks of the 20th century?' few could confidently answer yes, he said.

Colleges Not Liberal

"Education for liberty is, properly, liberal education, but our colleges, including the colleges of liberal arts in our universities, are no longer providing it.

"Those who advocate a wide departure from the permanent essentials of liberal education will generally be found upon analysis to be urging some sort of servile education."

"This type of servility flourished before the great depression and is now lingering on meaningless decadence. Wearily our universities go on adding more practical courses, more departments of so-called learning, more special curricula for special callings, more novel devices for helping lagards to learn a few skills and tricks of the trade, while they also talk, merely talk of education for citizenship, for leisure, for the development of personality, for the capacity to think."

'Man in Chains'

"Man was born free and everywhere he is in chains. He is not yet in chains in America nor will he be so long as we maintain the triple safeguards which we possess: our constitution, our christian religion and our liberal education."

"To preserve democracy, it will be necessary to combat various types of propaganda that imperil democracy, especially the propaganda of fascism and communism."

"The natural sciences and the humanities are the appropriate materials for liberal education in the modern world, and especially in democratic America because they offer the best means of training youth for life in a world of facts, of words and of images and thus of increasing the number of people who cannot readily be fooled."

"All signs indicate a growing determination on the part of America to educate its citizens to the age of 20 in a supreme effort to assure the stability of the nation and to facilitate the pursuit of happiness."

Farley Optimistic

NEW YORK, (AP)—James A. Farley, democratic national chairman, yesterday declared the country would "continue to vote democratic for many years to come."

Stock Market Booms

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market had its biggest day in a year and more yesterday.

They're Carrying the Flags of Political Victories

William F. Morrison (above) polled 5,024 to Leroy S. Mercer's 4,965 for a republican victory for state representative. Mercer said last night he may contest the count of the general election. Complete unofficial tabulations show that Mercer lost in Iowa City (See story page 8).

Republican Harold D. Evans, candidate for the district judgeship (above) mounted to the victor's seat over F. B. Olsen, his opponent. Unofficial returns show Evans with a lead of 852 votes in Johnson county. Republicans were generally successful in county and state offices in the midwest.

Complete unofficial tabulation of ballots from the first district show Attorney Thomas E. Martin victor over Judge James P. Gaffney by a wide margin of 12,794 votes. Martin's entrance into the house of representatives of the United States was co-incident with the state-wide republican tide.

Democratic Senator Guy M. Gillette's lead over his republican opponent, Lester J. Dickinson, in the Iowa senatorial race widened as last returns trickled in. With only three precincts unreported, Gillette had an unofficial lead of 1,872 votes over Dickinson to nearly conclude the nip and tuck battle.

Democratic Senator Guy M. Gillette's lead over his republican opponent, Lester J. Dickinson, in the Iowa senatorial race widened to night as the returns trickled in from the few scattered precincts previously unreported.

With only three precincts unreported, Gillette had an unofficial lead of 1,872 votes over Dickinson. Returns from 2,444 of the state's 2,447 precincts gave Gillette 410,248 and Dickinson 408,376.

The contest was one of the closest in Iowa history. The official result will not be known until the state canvass is completed some time after Nov. 28.

Meanwhile George A. Wilson, republican governor-elect of Iowa, held his 55,000 lead over Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel on the basis of returns from 2,424 precincts. Wilson collected 437,188 votes in the incomplete unofficial count while Kraschel had 381,909.

The republicans picked up three Iowa congressional seats in the general election to reduce the state's democratic representation in the national lower house to two members.

The congressional results follow:
First district, 236 precincts out of 245: Gaffney 31,824; Martin 43,511.
Second district, 215 precincts out of 217: Jacobsen 47,926; Mueller 46,391.
Third district, 247 precincts out of 249: Hayes 29,684; Gwynne 44,811.
Fourth district, 256 precincts out of 257: Bierman 44,429; Talle 47,534.
Fifth district, 322 precincts out of 322: Hollingshead, 43,228; Le Compte 50,312.
Sixth district, 218 precincts out of 218: Utterback 35,116; Dowell 50,191.
Seventh district, 311 precincts out of 311: Warin 37,681; Jensen 54,862.
Eighth district, 315 precincts out of 319: Eveland 29,670; Gilchrist 49,523.
Ninth district, 308 precincts out of 309: Harrington 45,713; Swanson 45,006.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace urged Iowans to support Senator Gillette and Governor Kraschel in two speeches by the cabinet official in his home state during the campaign. Observers said the "Wallace for president" movement in the 1940 democratic national convention would have benefited by a rousing democratic victory in Iowa this year.

The unofficial totals indicated that the Iowa turnout at the polls yesterday exceeded 800,000, the minimum vote-volume prediction in pre-election forecasts. The incomplete Gillette-Dickinson totals (See IOWA page 8)

Republican Gains Raise Hopes for '40 Campaign; Add 11 Governors, 77 Representatives, 8 Senators

Martin Defeats Gaffney Easily

Margin of 12,794 Is Beyond Expectations Of Party Leaders

Rising with the state-wide republican tide, Attorney Thomas E. Martin has been elected United States congressman over Judge James P. Gaffney, his democratic opponent, by a wide margin of 12,794 votes, according to complete unofficial tabulation of ballots from the first congressional district.

Martin's victory exceeded all expectations of party leaders, who had previously predicted a lead of about 5,000.

The republican nominee made a clean sweep of the district with the exception of two counties, Iowa and Johnson. Even in these counties the negative vote of approximately 2,400 was less than anticipated by pre-election estimates.

Unofficial returns awarded Martin a total of 46,262 for the whole first district as compared to Gaffney's 33,468 votes. Polling proved far heavier than expected regardless of inclement weather.

Attorney Martin, an alumnus of the University of Iowa, was drafted in 1937 for a second term for mayor of Iowa City but declined in favor of running for congress. In regard to the general election he remarked that his campaign had covered over 28,000 miles.

Opponent Judge Gaffney received the democratic nomination at a convention following the resignation of the incumbent Edward Eicher.

Republicans To Control Statehouse

By FRANK L. HUGHES
DES MOINES, Nov. 9 (AP)—Leading their victorious republican slate with large majorities, statehouse candidates for offices below governor swept into control today as only a few precincts remained to be counted in Iowa's off-year general election.

Mark G. Thornburg, former secretary of agriculture and now reelected to that office, topped the entire ticket with a majority of 98,136 votes.

Other republicans elected to statehouse jobs, who bested the head of the ticket by their majorities, were Miss Jessie M. Parker, who rode in as superintendent of public instruction with a comfortable 89,133 lead, and the new republican secretary of state, Earl G. Miller, who bested the democratic incumbent, Dr. Robert E. O'Brien, by 81,205 on the basis of nearly complete unofficial returns.

Dionne Quintuplets Lose Tonsils

Dr. Dafoe Remains in Background as Operations Are Performed

CALLANDER, Ont. Nov. 9 (Canadian Press)—The Dionne quintuplets, one by one, mistook an anesthetic mask for a plaything today, dozed off without a murmur and had their tonsils and adenoids snipped out.

Dr. C. H. Robson of Toronto, an anesthetist who has a way with children, permitted each of the little sisters to play with the mask.

The operations were performed by Dr. D. E. S. Wishart, a Toronto specialist, while Papa and Mama Dionne waited against the contingency of blood transfusions in case of hemorrhage. The parents' blood had been found to be of the proper type, but the contingency never arose.

First came Marie into the improvised surgery, followed in turn by the others — Annette, Cecile, Yvonne and Emilie, now four and one-half years old.

A current of air was blown across the ether mask to prevent the children from "gagging," as they toyed with it. This somewhat slowed up the effects of the anesthetic.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the quintuplets since their birth, said they came through "in fine condition." He had remained in the background during the three and one-quarter hours required lest the quintuplets associate him with the occasion and come to fear him.

"The youngsters didn't know they were undergoing operations and they still don't," Dr. Dafoe said.

"They all said afterward they had difficulty talking, but none complained of sore throats."

Tom Again! Governor-elect May Pardon Mooney

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Nov. 9 (AP)—Tom Mooney rejoiced quietly in San Quentin prison tonight over the news that Governor-elect Culbert Olson would exercise the presumption of innocence in considering his application for a pardon.

"There is a song in my heart and a smile on my lips," Mooney said as he talked with his attorney, George T. Davis.

For 22 years Mooney has fought against his conviction of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day parade bombing in which 10 persons were killed and 40 injured.

Army Considers Limiting Flying To Young Men

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The death of another senior air corps officer in a flaming crash in a Washington residential street today gave fresh emphasis to an army proposal to limit flying to younger pilots.

Lt. Col. Leslie MacDill, 48, and Private Joseph G. Gloxner were killed only two months after Major Gen. Oscar Westover, air corps chief, died in a landing accident at Burbank, Calif. Westover was 53.

MacDill, piloting a combat plane on a routine flight, was believed to have turned back toward Bolling field, army air base here, when motor trouble developed. Witnesses saw his low flying plane skim a roof top and fall into Thirteenth street, a stone's throw from the field.

Flames enveloped the plane, which lit atop a parked automobile, and spread to four other cars.

Roosevelt Publicizes Andrews' Report on Wage Hour Law

HOOVER SPEAKS Says Republicans To 'Restore Faith'

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 9 (AP)—Herbert Hoover today said the republican party now is in a position to "restore faith in America."

The former president issued the following statement on yesterday's election:

"The returns indicate that a majority of the American people voted for governors, senators or congressmen, either republican or democrat, who are opposed to the new deal.

"This protest should enable the beginning of the end of this waste of public money, these policies of coercion, political corruption and undermining of representative government.

"The re-invigorated republican party is now in position to join effectively with the anti-new deal democracy to check these policies in the congress."

Places Number Of Workers Laid Off At 30,000 to 50,000

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt made public tonight a report from administrator Elmer F. Andrews placing at 30,000 to 50,000 the number of industrial workers laid off when the federal wage-hour law went into effect.

Andrews said many earlier reports "considerably exaggerated the difficulties experienced because of the new act." He added the actual lay-offs constitute less than one-half of one per cent of all gainful workers.

The president had no comment on election returns. When asked specifically whether the chief executive would have anything to say regarding democratic losses, Secretary Marvin McIntyre replied:

"He said there would be no comment. He said he was feeling very cheerful and everything is grand."

The president spent the morning at home and in the afternoon went for a 2-hour ride. He will leave here tomorrow afternoon for Washington to attend Armistice day ceremonies at Arlington National cemetery.

Andrew's report, based on reports from all states suggested that "when all readjustments are completed, total employment will have been increased rather than decreased as a result of the (Wage-Hour) act."

"Many of the lay-offs reported are not due primarily to the new act," he told the president.

The wage-hour law specifies a 25 cents an hour wage minimum and a maximum work week of 44 hours.

Democrats Also Have Triumphs

Retain New York; Add California, South Dakota Governors

By the Associated Press
Late election returns broadened the republican sweep last night to include gains of at least 77 house members and eight senators, along with 11 governors.

Two senate seats — in Iowa and Indiana — still were in doubt, and it appeared that a few hundred votes from outlying districts might settle both.

In Indiana, Sen. Frederick Van Nuys, democrat, was trailing Raymond Willis, republican newspaper editor.

With eight house seats still in doubt at midnight, the republicans had increased their roster to 166 members against the democrats' 259. The latter was 41 more than a majority. Two Wisconsin progressives also had been elected.

These senate and house gains were not sufficient to give the party control of either chamber, but they led to speculation in Washington over the probability that republicans and anti-administration democrats would combine against new deal measures.

The republican upswing also fired the expectations of party leaders for a successful 1940 presidential campaign.

But even these victories did not completely measure the extent of the republican advance. In several major contests which the republicans lost, their party (See G. O. P. page 8)

Robert A. Taft, Senator-Elect For Ohio, Interprets Election

CHICAGO, Nov. 9 (AP)—The an opportunity to build its state epochal republican sweep through the midwest was interpreted by one of the victors today as a protest against the "unreasonable regulation of industry and agriculture."

That judgment was rendered by Robert A. Taft, Ohio's new senator-elect, as virtually complete returns from yesterday's elections emphasized the decisive nature of republican triumphs in contests providing tests of sentiment on new deal policies in general and farm practices in particular.

Republicans won four senate seats, a net gain of three; six governorships, a net gain of five, and wrested at least 32 places in congress from the democratic side. The return to power in these important posts gave the party an opportunity to build its state organizations for 1940.

The republican upsurge in the midlands also projected two of its stalwarts — Taft and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan — toward the center of the presidential ring.

Also limned by the political lights were:

Gov. Frank Murphy's unsuccessful bid for re-election in Michigan despite the support of President Roosevelt. He lost to Frank D. Fitzgerald, republican, who advocated ending "industrial strife."

The unseating of new deal Senators Robert J. Bulkley in Ohio and F. Ryan Duffy in Wisconsin. Bulkley was ejected by Taft. Duffy was beaten by Alexander Wiley, republican foe of the Roosevelt administration.

Has a Word for It

THERE'S SO LITTLE encouraging news in the headlines these days that it's a genuine pleasure to find an occasional item that is really cheering.

But yesterday such an item appeared in the latest copy of The American Federationist, publication of the American Federation of Labor. The Federationists made a step in a direction The Daily Iowan has been urging for more than a year.

That, of course, is a step toward labor peace.

In an editorial in the Federationist, William L. Green, federation president, has written:

"There can be no question but that wage-earners throughout the country and the nation as a whole want a unified labor movement. The American Federation believes the difficulties in the way of unity are not unresolvable if there are sincere and disinterested efforts to make peace. Questions of overlapping jurisdictions, rights in union benefit systems, treasuries, etc., can be solved when the will to unity can prevail."

That's it exactly, Mr. Green. That's what The Daily Iowan has been saying all along.

American laborers, whether members of the Committee for Industrial Organization or the A. F. of L., whether working in San Francisco or Detroit, are all interested in common ends—higher wages, shorter hours, better working conditions.

By working for these goals at cross-purposes, labor suffers, the public suffers, and employers suffer. Labor leaders—both Mr. Green and John L. Lewis—should be intelligent enough to know that.

Washington observers may be right, then, in seeing in the editorial a promising tone, and in praising its moderation.

The next move is with John L. Lewis.

Uneasy Rests The Head That Wears The Crown

LAST SATURDAY, the law of averages caught up with several more of the unbeaten and untied football teams throughout the nation.

When Northwestern overturned the dope bucket and toppled mighty Minnesota a week before, the "experts" settled back firmly convinced that the upset of the season was a thing of the past.

Then last Saturday, powerful Pittsburgh, rated as the best team in the country, fell before the inspired play of Carnegie Tech. Syracuse broke a 14 year jinx and whipped Colgate, Wisconsin knocked Northwestern out of the conference leadership and Purdue emerged victorious over Ohio State.

Today, "experts" have taken their heads out of the ice packs, have put aside aspirin tablets and now look confidently toward the games this Saturday. With such games this week as Notre Dame-Minnesota, Northwestern-Michigan, Wisconsin-U.C.L.A., T.C.U.-Texas, S.M.U.-Arkansas, Southern California-Washington, Santa Clara-St. Mary's, and Iowa State-Kansas State on the gridiron docket, the boys who call 'em for the papers may have more grief in store for them.

While this state of affairs is definitely hard on the grid prognosticators, it is a boon for the bondholders on the stadium, the alumni, the students and the coaches. Every game every week is a potential upset, and the fans pay for the privilege of seeing the unexpected happen.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

FELICITATIONS FOR WHAT? THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT sent its felicitations and best wishes to the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The occasion was the celebration of the twenty-first anniversary of the dictatorship.

Mr. Roosevelt cabled his congratulations to Mikhail Kalinin, the chairman of the All Union Central Executive committee at Moscow. Kalinin is a factotum serving as one of Mr. Stalin's shirtfronts. The reception at the Russian embassy at Washington was attended by many American officials, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, all extending their goodwill and wishing many happy returns.

Happy returns of just what? Upon what felicitous events and for what achievements do the officials of the United States extend their congratulations to the people of Russia through the government of that country? The occasion should be examined. It must be assumed that the American government finds that the Russian government has merited the goodwill and best wishes of the American people. Upon what record does that opinion rest?

Russia is governed by a Georgian despot whose career has been unparalleled in many hundred years of Asiatic cruelties. The Kremlin and imperial palaces in their day have harbored mad men and cruel and weak men. They have used despotism in the cruelest forms of human nature. The past never contained a man so murderous, ferocious, and conscienceless as Josef Stalin. To the dark practices of Russia's worst imperial sadists he has added his own refinements of atrocity supplementing the devices by which communist mass terror is inflicted upon helpless people.

The Russia revolution has been without parallel in European experience. The French revolution was a short lived terror, although it has remained stamped on history for its final crowning inhumanities. Its period was short and its innocent victims would be lost in the masses of the Russian dead. Any extenuations which could be offered for the excesses of the revolutionaries under Lenin when he precipitated the bolshevist seizure of power are lost when Stalin comes before the bar of world judgement.

Lenin's initial excuse would be the plea of self-preservation. His apologists could point to civil war, foreign intervention, and months of desperate conflict. The apologies are insufficient because within a few years the dominating sadism of the proletarian dictatorship, its savagery, deceptions, brutal injustices, and wholesale massacres were fixed upon it as a habit of life and a rule of authority and alienated every ill-fated idealist who first entertained a hope that a new and better order of human life was being made possible by this bloody Russian experiment.

Stalin's government for over ten years permits no apologies. There can be no extenuation offered for it. Its inhuman excesses have been those of the dominating ruler, who boasts that a democracy by the free will of all its population accepts the social, economic, and political rules of Russian life. Stalin has judicially murdered all the men who founded the soviet government of Russia except one. Trotsky, who escaped from the country. He has butchered the founders by judicial assassination. He was foolish enough in prostituting the Russian courts to open the printed records of the trials proving the falsifications and lies upon which he took the old bols' lives.

One need not weep for them. They had lived by the pistol and they died by it. These men, although they were the founders of Russia, the high officials, commissars, generals, admirals, and diplomats, and constituted the governing caste in the dictatorship, were few in number compared with the actual millions of unnamed Russians who have been killed, tormented, and driven to despair at the order of the barbarian who is Russia's despot.

There are a number of odious forms of government in the world today under which life is precarious and men slaves. But nothing in modern and few things in ancient history stand out so barbarously cruel and hopeless as the thing to which the American government has just extended its felicitations. A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I wanted to buy a red carnation this morning but as the florist fitted it into my lapel he said, "No charge, sir—courtesy of the house."

That was good business. From now on I'm going to buy all my flowers there. I don't buy many flowers, but those I do will come from him.

I like carnations, especially deep red ones. They are the only ornamentation I can wear. Sometimes I try to fold a handkerchief into my breast pocket so the corners show, but after a few minutes the jitters get me and I crush it out of sight. I'm not the type. It makes me feel too much like a square-rigger under full sail.

Nor can I wear a ring, or a tie-pin, or any of the trappings which most men seem able to fit easily into their scheme of dress. On me a ring is like a missing tooth. That goes for the tie-pin, and the handkerchief, and the rest. And so I yield them and all the others, the jeweled cigarette lighter and the fancy cases, to those of my fellow men who know how to use them. I do not. The boutonniere remains my only nod to foppery. I just can't seem to take to any other adornments.

But I do like a boutonniere. I think a fresh cut carnation has an invigorating effect on a man. It tones him up, like a new shoeshine, and makes him carry himself better. It squares his shoulders and lends his gait a sureness that is very pleasant while it lasts. I suppose you'd call this confidence. It certainly keeps your chin on an even keel when things get rough.

The lapel flower is very popular in New York. Some prefer a rose, but a majority cling to the carnation and the cornflower. George Jean Nathan, the critic, likes carnations, preferably red. Ned Stephenson, Broadway man of many trades and talents, insists on white, whether day or evening. George M. Cohan, the Yankee Doodle Kid; Jimmy Walker, ex-boy mayor; Sleepy Jim Crowley, Fordham football coach; S. Gregory Taylor, the hotel impresario; even gangling Sinclair Lewis, the author, all have their favorite florists where they pause some time during each day for a new-cut blossom for the lapel.

For women I think the gardenia is the loveliest of all flowers—that and its sister blossoms, the cape jessamine and the camellia. There is a fragrance to these flowers that haunts you. I love to see women wear them in their hair, especially the gardenias.

Gardenias in New York usually cost a dollar; but they are gorgeous. Orchids I have never cared for. Carnations are usually a dime. The chrysanthemums here are marvelous to behold, but I do not especially care for them in vases. It seems to me they belong only at football games. They look swell.

New York buys 20 carloads of cut flowers a day, and they are brought in from the gardens of Long Island, the south, and California. Once I saw a dancer with a beautiful strange flower in her hair, and someone told me it was a

MUSIC IN THE AIR

THE COUNTRY ... is beginning to get over its panic of a very short time ago, when a goodly number of its citizens were frightened out of their wits by the inimitable Orson Welles Mercury Theater production of the inimitable H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds."

And those of you who didn't hear the broadcast Oct. 30 can get a faint suggestion of just how those weak-hearted individuals who did, felt about it. Read the printed word account of the attack by the men from Mars in this week's radio Guide, just out.

It's written there, all in its startling reality, and you get half an idea as you read, just how ghastly that little radio bit was, presented as only Welles could present it.

Of course it goes without saying that Mercury Theater is well on its way to some thousands more listeners come Sunday night, when the young director and head-man calms down from his Halloween attitude and pitches into Dickens' "Pickworth Papers" at 7 p.m.

BUT RIGHT NOW... I'm interested in reprinting a few remarks from Radio Guide's "Panic," the item which reproduces the "War of the Worlds," almost in its entirety.

"Patrolman John Morrison was on duty at the switchboard in Bronx police headquarters when 'all the lines became busy at the same time.' Plugging in, Patrolman Morrison heard a man shouting 'They're bombing New Jersey!'"

"How do you know?" "I heard it on the radio! Then I went to the roof and I could see the smoke from the bombs, drifting toward New York. What shall I do?"

"I can see the fire from here!" screamed a Boston woman to a newspaper reporter. "I'm getting out of here! Everybody in the neighborhood is getting out of here!"

"The city power plant of Concrete, Wash., failed at the height of the broadcast, plunging the town into darkness. To the already terrified populace, this was final proof. Many of them fled into the surrounding hills, would not return to their homes until posse had been sent for them."

"A puzzled old lady called station KSL, Salt Lake City, for information. Told that the horrifying broadcast was only a piece of fiction, she said, 'Well, if it didn't do anything else, it made a lot of people pray.'"

In the midst of the script, the announcer commented: "You are listening to 'The War of the red hibiscus. I never forgot it. I think it is the only hibiscus I ever saw."

I don't know what started me on flowers. Maybe it's because the one I have is sort of droopy. It's a little black around the edges, and mused. Guess I'd better go out now and spend a dime.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Messrs. John Ford and Jack Benny, and Miss Shirley Temple, will please rise and take bows.

Have you bowed, Mr. Ford? Yes? Then let's talk about why. It's the way you directed "Submarine Patrol." It does you proud, sir.

When you break it down, "Submarine Patrol" is just a story about a little wooden sub-chaser doing its work in the late big war. The SC-599 is a chaser, and it chases. A chase, especially when you do it, and work in your usual suspense and action, is the stuff that made the movies great. You've got two great chases in "Submarine Patrol," both sizzlers. But you weren't satisfied. You had to put people like Warren Hymer and Slim Summerville and George E. Stone and J. Farrell MacDonald in the crew, and give them all lines and bits of business that make each one of them a bit of a star. You had to put Preston Foster in there as skipper, and just to show you how he felt Preston turned in his best work since you handled him in "The Informer."

You made it all revolve around a romance, or maybe it's the other way around. You made dimpled Richard Greene extremely likeable, and I think this new kid, Nancy Kelly, is going to be a star the more quickly because of your movie. She has spirit, and beauty, and she can act. Oh, you knew that? Well, it's good to see George Bancroft in a sizeable part again, and Henry Armetta has never been funnier—or Elisha Cook Jr., or Maxie Rosenbloom, for that matter.

I liked the way you worked in those sentimental strains, Mr. Ford. You don't recall? Well, the scenes of the splinter-boat putting out to sea, with the mugs aboard thinking thoughts as they pass that old Manhattan skyline duty-bound. I liked your whole movie, in fact, sir.

Just one little bow, Shirley, and then home to your spinach. "Just Around the Corner," little girl, there's a career as a grown-up actress waiting for you. "Just Around the Corner" is one of your best movies, certainly your best in many a hundred miles of celluloid.

They've given you a smart little story, full of laughs, and Director Irving Cummings has given you wider rein than your talents usually receive. The tomboy in you comes out, young lady, and it's to the good. I've a hunch there's many a tired business man, however rich, who'd like to have you give a benefit for him.

You had plenty of help, Shirley. Cummings, first, and then the romantic support of Charlie Farrell and Amanda Duff, who is new, nice and pretty. I liked your teammate, Bennie Bartlett, and of course Joan Davis and Bert Lahr, and crusty old Claude Gillingwater, Bill Robinson and the rest. "Just Around the Corner," thanks to the lot of you, is very much worth seeing.

Ready, Mr. Benny? Just one bow, please—and who asked you anything about flavors? Oh, you don't need a reason to take a bow? You just do, regardless? Okay, sir. But without you "Artists and Models Abroad" wouldn't be much more than an average musical. Yeah, I know Joan Bennett's pretty, and the Yacht Club Boys sing, and Charley Grapewin and Mary Boland are great. But it's you, my shrinking violet, that make it all click. With you, even that display of outlandish dresses and stuff by the best designers is funny—but maybe it wasn't intended to be. Yes, I think it's mainly your show—but a swell one.

The decline in Britain's export trade has caused the government to institute a vigorous investigation into the causes.

The total number of radio receiving licenses, issued by the London post office, in force at the end of September was 8,758,000, an increase of 410,810 during the year.

Scrimmaging in spite of a muddy field, the Iowa City Little Hawks completed preparations for the invasion of the Albia Demons tomorrow night in what had been scheduled as the last game of the season for both teams. It will be the last game for Albia but the Hawks must face the Davenport Blue Devils in the game that was postponed from last week.

Apostoli, Corbett Winner Will Be Champion

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP) — The state athletic commission decided today to recognize the winner of the Nov. 18 fight here between Fred Apostoli and Young Corbett III as middleweight boxing champion.

At the same time, the commissioners stipulated that winner must post a forfeit of $2,000 guaranteeing the defense of his title against Solly Krieger of Brooklyn by Jan. 30.

Krieger's manager, Hymie Caplin, said nothing doing, and pointed out volubly that his boy already was middleweight champion, since he beat Al Hostak, the former N.B.A. titleholder, in Seattle last week.

"My champ wants the customary six months rest before he defends his title," Caplin demonstrated. "I've already lined up three heavyweight matches for him."

While it was settling things, the commission also decided that Al Gainer and Tiger Jack Fox would meet in the first of a three-cornered elimination series for the light-heavyweight title, the winner to fight Melio Bettina for the crown.

According to all indications Shrader field will be wet and sloppy for the game, thus eliminating most of the pass plays. This will be an advantage for Albia as it has rarely resorted to passes in piling up its undefeated record this year.

The Demons, coming to Iowa City with the Southern Iowa conference crown safely tucked away under their belts, boast of a strong line and a tough backfield made up of brawn and speed. Outstanding in the Red and Blue line is Palmer, all - state tackle prospect. The Demon tackle should give "Knobby" Walsh, Red and White right end, a busy evening and force the Little Hawk end to use every trick he knows to keep the invading tackle from spoiling Iowa City plays.

Upsets Feared In Week's Grid Schedule

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP) — A few well-placed upsets, of the variety that marked last week's program, could throw a series of money wrenches into the machinery of football's major conferences this Friday and Saturday.

Tennessee and Southern California, as shining examples, stand at the head of the Southeastern and Pacific coast leagues, the Volunteers with four victories and no defeats, the Trojans with five. Yet a combination of a surprise Vanderbilt triumph over Tennessee and victories for Georgia and Alabama over Tulane and Georgia Tech suddenly would lift Georgia into first place, move Vandy into a third-place tie with "Bama."

Similarly, if Washington should upset Southern Cal Saturday while California beats Oregon, the Trojans and the Bears would be right back where they were before their meeting last Saturday and the chance to go into the Rose Bowl.

Texas Christian, in the process of piling up seven straight victories, which boosted it to No. 1 place in national ranking this week, won three Southwest conference games. That put the Horned Frogs on top of the heap, but they still have three conference battles to play and while they will be heavy favorites over battered Texas Saturday, behind that loom dates with Rice and Southern Methodist both, only one game off T.C.U.'s pace at the current writing.

The Western conference is in the midst of such a scramble that the top six teams are virtually on an equal footing. A Michigan victory over Northwestern would put the revived Wolverines along-side first-place Minnesota and Wisconsin, both engaged outside the conference this week; a Wildcat triumph would lift them a notch ahead of Michigan and victory for Ohio State over Illinois would breathe renewed life into the "Buckeyes" hopes of taking down top honors for the season.

The situation in the Rocky Mountain Big Seven is equally complex. Utah, with two victories and two ties, is barely ahead of Brigham Young and Colorado. Should Utah lose to Colorado, there would be a tie for first place.

Tony's Dough Says He Will Stop Louis if Joe Will Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) — Fat Tony Galento — the man the National Boxing association says is America's ranking heavyweight challenger — juggled a fat roll of bills to the capital today to bet he can knock out Champion Joe Louis.

Meeting with Harvey L. Miller, first vice-president of the N.B.A., Galento offered what he described as $10,000, but failed to arrange one important detail—a fight with Louis.

"I'll knock him out in two rounds," boomed the ponderous Galento.

"When?" asked a newsman. "That's what I want to know!" yelled the fat fighter. "Anyhow, my money's up."

"As far as I know," said Miller, "this is the first time since the days of Corbett and Sullivan that a boxer has offered to bet that kind of money on himself to knock out the champion."

All Galento has to do now is to get Louis to fight him, find somebody to bet him, agree to the betting odds, and make sure that Joe beats John Henry Lewis in their coming scrap.

A newsman wanted to know if Galento would train seriously if he gets a match with the champion. "Sure," he said, "I'm serious now."

"Will you give up beer?" "No," growled Galento, who boasts that he trains on suds. "That is, I won't give up beer until two days before the fight."

Watching the money-posting was Galento's manager, Joe Jacobs, and his lawyer, Charles E. Ford of Washington.

Slammin' Sam Paces Field In Golf Tournament With 136

By FERD BROWNING
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Belleair, Fla., tied with 70 today, W. Va., Nov. 9 (AP) — A second day spurge of sub-par golf that grouped big timers and comparative newcomers in a mad scramble setting found Sam Snead with 136 tonight, a bare stroke ahead of a closely bunched crowd of dangerous contenders.

Henry Picard, who mechanically fooled Snead's chance-taking trail, ended up with a 69, one under par, that gave him 137, one back of the Slammer.

Snead, putting for birdies and missing five out of six daring attempts might have been far under his two below par 68 with luck.

Huot Fades
Jules Huot, 127-pound former Canadian open champion from Quebec, who amazed the gallery yesterday with brilliant putting for a four under par 66, saw his greens game go sour and took a par 72.

His 138 total put him in a group with Ky Laffoon, Chicago, who duplicated yesterday's 69 and 24-year-old Chandler Harper from Portsmouth, Va., who shot 70 today.

Harry Cooper remained in a spot that was easy striking distance for his methodical play, carding a 69, one under yesterday for 139, where Billy Burke of

Consistent
Three consistent golfers, Dick Metz, Lake Forest, Ill., Stanley Horne, Ottawa, and Bob Dunkelberger, High Point, N. C., tied up a stroke back at 142, and Jimmy Thomson, the Shawnee, Pa., flash, shot a 71 to land alongside A. C. Giles, New York amateur, who carded a 68 today in the 143 bracket.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., was tied with eight others at 144 with Tommy Armour and Lawson Little a stroke back. Jimmy Hines carded a 75 to drop to 148.

Sixty golfers qualified for the final 36 holes of competition tomorrow with 153 good enough.

On and Off The Field
It would be a good idea if the freshman football players would become better acquainted with the varsity players. Get to know these men personally. After all fellows, next year you will be playing with them and if anything will breed team spirit, familiarity will I am sure.

It seems like Coach Bresnahan has installed some of his personal habits of study and research in his track men. The reserve library is cluttered up every night will all kinds of track men. Yes, coeducation is a wonderful thing.

Just to remind you that November the 19th, is "I" Men's Day. Orders for Balloons, which are the official decoration of the day, may be given to any "I" man.

Veteran Irish Basketball Team Set for Season
Basketball gained the spotlight at St. Patrick's with Coach Father Ryan's announcement that practice for the cage sport will begin early next week. Only one man will be missing from last year's team which won six and lost ten.

Seven veterans will be back to act as a nucleus around which Coach Ryan hopes to build a fast breaking aggregation. Serving their third year on the hardwood court, Bradley and Love held the list of returning men. Sophomore hotshots Miller and Black also are awaiting the opening practice. Other veterans include Rohner, Jack Fitzpatrick, and Glenn Fitzpatrick. Demary is the only missing member of last year's five.

Coach Ryan, who will be serving his fifth season as basketball mentor, is hoping for revenge for several of last year's losses, and a team of experienced men should go far in helping him fulfill his hopes. The coach especially wants to make up for last season's two beatings by St. Pat's local rival, St. Mary's.

Fifteen games have been scheduled for the Irish by Ryan with the possibility that a return tilt with Parnell may be added later. Of the 15, nine are home games, and six are scheduled on foreign floors.

Dec. 6—Parnell, here
Dec. 9—Immaculate Conception (Cedar Rapids), there

Iowa Squad Runs Through Final Lengthy Grid Drill

Down The Sports Trail

By PAUL MICKELSON
NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP) — Putting two and two together — and getting four:

Failure of major league club owners to employ big name managers, managers to fill recent vacancies is the healthiest baseball sign since the horse-hide nabobs hired tough, old Kenesaw Mountain Landis as their Pied Piper and told him to get rid of the rats. The new — and surprising development — means the owners are sick of ballyhoo. Instead, like the cash customers, they want more results and fewer spring headlines.

No Rebuilding
Possibly, too, it all means the ultimate end of the time-worn "rebuilding process" by which club owners swap a couple of bum ball players for a single bum, and then hire a new manager. Fans don't fall for that stuff any more. They may come out for a game or two, see the old story and never come back.

Every one of the new managers should do well. Not one of them is glamorous enough to pull in more than a dozen extra customers on opening day. All will fall quickly or succeed steadily, and the game should improve.

The new trend of hiring master minds also points to a record-breaking business on the player market next month in New York and New Orleans. The minors have lots of talent to peddle despite the wide-spread farm chains. At present, Cleveland promises to do the most business. Manager Oscar Vitt is ready to put all but four of his players on the market. Pittsburgh, realizing a change now is necessary for some of the heart-broken Pirates after what happened last September, also is reported ready to shoot the works.

Criticism. This week's blast against college football by a national magazine is old stuff. Universities and colleges are fully aware of the bad points of big business football. Not one in 100 will let a boy go to school if all he can do is to play football. There are occasional exceptions. There'll always be. Notre Dame is a fine example of what big universities are doing in football. For a period, Notre Dame may have been guilty of doing too much for "the boys." Today, it's one of the most straight-laced institutions in the land. Yet, players still go to Notre Dame and the team is undefeated.

Balazs Replaces Niles at Full For Indiana Tilt

Despite a soggy practice field which made footing rather uncertain, the Hawkeyes managed to get in a last lengthy workout for their engagement with Indiana's often defeated Hoosiers, Saturday.

Jerry Niles, after a brief turn at fullback, was moved up into the line where it is expected he will perform against Bo McMillan's outfit.

Frank Balazs, although favoring his injured leg, is in fair enough shape and will probably start in Saturday's contest.

A drill against Indiana pass plays, admittedly potent, occupied much of the session. With the return to active duty of Joe Nicholson, the Hoosiers will doubtless shoot the works against the Iowans in a bid to break into the win column.

In five games, the Indiana squad has completed 42 of 108 passes, the greatest number of any midwestern team, with Nicholson connecting for 44 per cent of his tries.

Comparative figures for the Hawkeyes and the Hoosiers, including the first five games but not last Saturday's affairs, show that Iowa has gained an average of 137 yards per game by rushing to Indiana's 73.

The tough Hoosier defense, however, has limited foes to an average of 124 yards, while the Hawkeyes have yielded 172. In pass defense, Indiana tops the Iowans, allowing the foes to complete 30 per cent, while Iowa was pierced for 37 per cent.

In the matter of punting, Nile Kinnick's 41.2 average for five games rates him the second slot in the Big Ten. His passing is of sufficiently good quality to earn him fourth spot in this department.

Touchballers Struggle In Mud; One Game

Playing on a field of mud and water, Lower B defeated Lower D 18 to 12 in the only game played in the Quadrangle touch-football league. Upper C, Upper B, and Lower A will open on forfeits. Lower D scored in the opening minutes on a pass from Knight to Bruckner, but Lower B came back strong to tie the count with Sprague carrying the ball over from the three yard line. The victors took to the air to count their second touchdown, Boysen tossing to Tucker for the final score of the first half.

Upper B came back in the second half and combined passes with running plays to push over their final score.

In a vain attempt to catch the victors, Lower D took to the air lanes with Knight doing the passing. Although they did not gain a tie, Lower D managed to count again on a long pass from Knight to Bruckner.

Yesterday's victory for Lower B gives them a clean slate with five victories and no defeats. Upper B likewise has yet to be beaten.

Men Try Hand at Culinary Art

Vanilla cup cakes 'n' chocolate frosting! Sounds good, doesn't it? That's the "curriculum" planned for this week's session of the men's cooking class of the Wesley Foundation which will meet Friday at the student center at 8 p.m.

Organized this year, the class is composed only of men students who plan their own program, mix their recipes, cook them, eat the results—and wash the dishes. The group is a division of the Foundation's hobby groups, which will also meet Friday night to make Christmas gifts and cards and other handcraft projects.

All Methodist men students are invited to come and cook. All Methodist students are welcome on hobby nights. These groups will meet on the first and third Fridays of every month until Christmas.

Famous Dresden Boys' Choir to Appear in Union Tonight

Group to Sing Program Of German Music

Faculty Members Will Be Hosts To Renowned Artists

The famous Dresden boys choir, from the Church of the Holy Cross in Germany, will appear in concert at 8:15 tonight in the main lounge of Iowa Union under the direction of Prof. Rudolph Mauersberger.

Most of the program will be sung in the German language, ranging from music by Antonio Sandellus, who lived from 1517 to 1580, through compositions by Hans Leo Hasler, and Bach, to music by composers of the present century such as Kurt, Thomas and Gunter Raphael.

A textbook will be provided at nominal cost which will include a condensed history of the famous choir, together with the German text and English translation of each number on the program.

Prof. Erich Funke, head of the German department, has charge of the housing of the 66 boys, their director and five chaperons who make up the Dresden boys choir. The housing has been arranged in the homes of members of the German department, the school of fine arts and other staff members.

Inasmuch as none of the boys in the choir speak English, they will be taken in a group to Iowa Union when they arrive on the 3:18 train this afternoon. They will remain at the Union until after the concert, when the various staff members will act as their hosts.

The members of the group will leave on the 12:45 train tomorrow noon. The ages of the youthful artists are from 10 to 18. This is the second United States tour of the group, which was lauded throughout the nation on its first appearance in 1935.

After a year's intensive training and with some 400 hours of flying to his credit, he is now under orders to do active duty in the United States fleet.

Mahan reported at Pensacola from the St. Louis, Mo., elimination base. Just a year and three days after the date of his admittance to the naval base, he was detached and ordered to Coco Solo, C. Z., Oct. 26.

Exhibitions Arranged Through University Art Department To Display Prominent Drawings

Italian Renaissance Facsimiles Will Be November Selection

The work of artists of national and international prominence are included in the schedule of exhibitions arranged by the university art department for the remainder of the 1938-39 season.

Headlining the list of attractions are such names as Archipenko, Waldo Peirce, Max Beckmann, and Eliot O'Hara. Each of the fields of painting, drawing, sculpture, etching, and photography will be represented by one, and, in some cases, several exhibitions.

For the month of November the exhibition lounge will house a selected group of facsimile reproductions of drawings mainly by Italian artists of the Early and High Renaissance. From Nov. 11 to Nov. 28, "War Etchings by Goya and Dix" may be seen in the auditorium.

Fifty prints have been selected by the Museum of Modern art from Goya's famous series "The Disasters of War" and Otto Dix's portfolio "Der Krieg" (The War). Goya's record of horrors of the Peninsular wars of the 19th century are contrasted with Dix's nightmarish impressions of the World War.

Twenty-five of the finest drawings from the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern art come Nov. 25 to remain until Dec. 19. Matisse's "Girl in Feathered Hat," a nude by Odilon Redon, "Dancers" by Picasso, are representative of the artists of France, bolstered by drawings by Gaudier-Brzeka and Modigliani.

In the American group, William Zorach has a "Portrait of Yase Kuniyoshi," Georgia O'Keefe, Charles Sheeler, Alexander Brook, Walt Kuhn, and Bernard Korf are others who are well known to the art public.

Through December, "Photographs of Egypt" will be displayed in the exhibition lounge. A collection of approximately 50 unusually fine, large photographs by Prof. Hamann of Marburg university give a comprehensive idea of the character of the country and its ancient art.

With the beginning of the new year, an exhibition of student work from the Chouinard Art institute, Los Angeles, will be opened in the auditorium. It closes Jan. 27. From Jan. 8 to 31, opportunity will be offered to see examples by some of America's foremost watercolor artists in the seventh annual of Eliot O'Hara's gallery at Goose Rocks Beach, Me. There is only the need to mention some of the names to indicate the rich variety of this show. Guy Pene Du Bois, Lyonel Feininger, George Gross, Charles Hopkinson, Agden Pleissner, Millard Sheets, John Whorf, and Charles Woodbury.

An exhibition that promises to be of unusual interest is that of Alexander Archipenko scheduled for the month of February. It includes not only his sculpture, but 15 paintings, 23 drawings, and 80 photographs that give a clear idea of his different research in sculpture during the last 30 years.

Archipenko always has been a leader and a revolutionary in art. He was associated with the Cubist painters in their break with accepted modes in art in 1911. His experiments have involved also unique combinations of painting and sculpture.

Concurrently with Archipenko, paintings by Max Beckmann are to be hung on the walls of the auditorium. C. J. Bulliet, in the "Significant Moderns" said of this painter: "For those who gag at the strong meat of George Grosz and Otto Dix, there is Max Beckmann. Beckmann, starting his art life as an academician, went through impressionism and emerged, during the World War, as an expressionist. Into each of his successive phases he trailed clouds of glory from the former."

Thirty oil paintings, 25 watercolors, and eight lithographs make up a "one-man-show" by Waldo Peirce, that will occupy the exhibition lounge during March. Peirce and his work have been the subject recently of extensive articles in Life and Esquire magazines. W. S. Dooley in the Boston Transcript, dubbed him "A New England Moses" whose work "seems destined to crack the nut of preciosity that has kept the fine meat of contemporary New England art from being appreciated elsewhere."

Three exhibitions are in store for the month of April. From the Rehn gallery in New York will come paintings and lithographs by 18 American contemporary artists, including works by Burchfield, Brook, Carrol, Hopper, Magrawite, Marsh, McFee, and Speiche.

At the same time watercolors by Eliot O'Hara will be on view in Iowa Union. O'Hara is the author of "Watercolor Fares Forth," a book explaining the technique and expressive qualities of watercolor. In the summer he conducts the O'Hara Watercolor school at Goose Rocks Beach.

The Iowa state high school art exhibition will be held from April 12 to 30 in conjunction with the state high school art conference April 21 and 22.

The student salon, an annual exhibition of art by university students and sponsored by the Student Art guild is scheduled tentatively for April 23 to May 6 at Iowa Union, although this date is subject to change. Tentative also is an exhibition by alumni of the university art department, May 1 to 20.

"Fifty Examples of Fine Writing" will be shown May 7 to 21 in the auditorium. This is an exhibit of richly decorated illuminated Thousand Years of Calligraphy—700-1700 A.D.

The final event of the season will be showing of paintings and sculpture by the Iowa Art guild, May 20 to June 15, arranged especially for Commencement week.

About Ready Palimpsest Will Soon Be on Press

The Palimpsest magazine for November, edited by Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh and containing articles written by members of the State Historical society, is almost ready for the press.

This month's table of contents will include the following: "The Penknife Quarrel" by Jack Johnson, research fellow in the political science department; "Jesse B. Browne" by Florence Green, A4 of Red Oak; "William H. Wallace" by Mr. Johnson; "The First Iowa Land Sales" by Jacob A. Swisher, research associate of the State Historical society, and "Commonplace Calendar" by Prof. John Briggs of the political science department.

It is rarely that an undergraduate student writes for the Palimpsest, but Miss Green is an exception to the general rule. She is a past winner in the annual "brain derby" here.

Holiday Recesses Will Be Same As Last Year's

The holiday situation at the University of Iowa is exactly the same as it was last year—a single day's recess for Thanksgiving and 17½ days for Christmas and New Years.

A recess has never been granted at the university for Armistice day, so the students will attend classes tomorrow as usual. Because only the day itself, Nov. 24, is granted for Thanksgiving recess, few students will be able to eat dinner at the parental table, unless they live close to Iowa City. Penalties are exacted for failure to attend classes on Friday following Thanksgiving.

Christmas recess, equalling the longest on record, begins Friday, Dec. 16, at noon and ends Tuesday, Jan. 3, at 8 a.m., according to official announcement.

Mouse Causes Blackout

FREDONIA, Kan. (AP)—Startled by an impromptu "blackout" that left the whole town without a light, A. Conrad, light plant engineer, began checking the switchboard. He discovered an electrocuted mouse that had attempted to crawl across a switch and had shorted the entire light system.

Vocational Guidance Series To Begin Today; Dean Kay Speaks

Dean Kay to Speak

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts will open a series of vocational guidance forums at 4 o'clock this afternoon in room 221A, Schaeffer hall. The series, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., will bring outstanding faculty members of the university to speak to students about the vocations they will enter. Dean Kay will speak on "Qualities of Leadership" of the things employers look for in their search for employees.

Y. M. C. A.-Sponsored Project to Aid In Vocational Choices

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts will speak at 4 o'clock today in room 221A, Schaeffer hall, at the first of a series of vocational guidance forums sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. Dean Kay will speak on "The Qualities of Leadership." The series will be continued each Thursday throughout the year. Dean Ewen M. MacEwen of the college of medicine will speak next week.

Based upon the realization that a large percentage of the individuals in any student body are uncertain about their post-college activities, the series is designed to acquaint students with the requirements of individual vocations as an aid to more profitable preparation.

Vocational aptitude tests for individual students have been prepared in conjunction with the project by Dean Dewey B. Stuit of the psychology department.

Undergraduates may make individual arrangements to take these tests. They are an invaluable aid to the determination of the requirements of specific professions and as tests to reveal ability of the student along the lines of that vocation.

Keep Young New Styles Require Care of Throat

With strapless evening gowns and low cut necklines for afternoon wear definitely established for the next few months, meticulous care of the neck and throat is essential to that "cared-for" look which is so important this season.

The neck needs especially vigilant care to ward off the signs of age and keep that firm streamlined look which takes years from the face.

Looking over a few of the important precepts which are indispensable to the beauty of neck and shoulders we find first of all the neck should be treated to a thorough cleansing and a good application of nourishing cream every night. Both the cleansing and nourishing cream should be worked into the neck and throat carefully and with gentle movements, particularly if the skin is fine grained and thin and thus inclined to crepiness. It is best to pat in the nourishing cream, using the tips of the fingers and a light quick touch.

A tried routine to follow is this. Cleanse the neck carefully with a good penetrating cream. After the cream has been wiped away with soft tissues, wet a towel in warm but not hot water, and wrap it around the throat for a few minutes. Remove and using the towel wipe away any cleansing cream that remains. Then, using a firm but not hard patting motion, work in as much nourishing cream as the skin will absorb. Wipe away the excess cream and finish off with a non-alcoholic skin lotion.

If the neck and shoulder are still tanned and darkened from summer suns, substitute a bleaching lotion for the skin tonic but be sure the lotion is not too astringent and not a strong bleach to dry out the skin.

Four billion gallons of water are used daily in the steel industry when operations are at capacity, or four times the daily consumption of water in New York City.

Pre-School To Iowa U.

Allen Leff, 3, Tries It Too Early; Gets Lost in the Process

By GLADYS SUTTON Direct from pre-school to the university was the route little three-year-old Allen Leff was taking yesterday morning, when he was found by three university students.

Allen lost his way after leaving pre-school and was looking for his "daddy," Hermine Brandt, C4 of West Liberty, seeing Allen's distress, tried to find out his name and where he lived.

"Is your name Bill?" inquired Miss Brandt.

"Yes," ventured Allen tearfully. "Or is it Jimmy?" she asked.

Again he answered "yes" somewhat dubiously, still wanting to get to his "daddy." Maisie Laugel, A4 of Breda and Erna Levens, C4 of Olin, also tried to find out where he lived, but with no better success.

At noon the girls were just ready to take Allen to the police station for assistance, when his father, Attorney Arthur Leff of 327 N. Lee street found him. Attorney Leff, relieved to find his son unharmed, thanked the girls for taking care of him. He inferred that Allen probably would wait a while before entering the university.

ROMANCE

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, with the aid of her mother-in-law, rents a cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, in preparation for the launching of a unique business venture. Bob Towne, football end and campus hero, and some of the other students, are arrested by the new sign in front of the Davis cottage announcing a "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE." Sara Sue explains her Cottage Plan to a group of students and finds them greatly interested. Bob Towne even asks HER for a date. Against her better judgment, Sara Sue goes dancing with Senator Towne. She enjoys the evening, but as he leaves he kisses her impetuously. When an insignificant-looking freshman, Worthington Gurley, calls in her club, Sara Sue is amused and interested. That evening a girl in a car stops in front of her house and insults the pretty widow.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 6
EAGLE-EYED Calculus Jones had seen the car of the queer visitor, of course, and he identified it instantly. He came from the warm kitchen where Cleopatra was baking cookies, and opened the front door to re-admit Sara Sue. Calculus liked to double as butler when the mood hit him.

"That Miss Peaches Pomeroy's car, wasn't it, ma'am?" Calculus probed gently.

Sara Sue turned to him, eyes narrowing.

"Yes! Yes, Calculus. I couldn't imagine! But—it must be. Is she kind of tall? Dark eyes? Lips a trifle pouty? Very—pretty?"

"Yes'm. That Miss Peaches. repoted like that."

"Uhm. Thanks, Calculus."

The colored man retired again to his kitchen nook, and Sara Sue went to her room. Indignation had flared heavily in her for a few seconds. Indignation and curiosity. Nobody had insulted Sara Sue Davis like that since—well, never, in her memory. Who in the world was it, and why? But Calculus had known.

The incident upset her momentarily more than she realized. She knew she had done nothing to occasion such an attack, in so offensive a manner. But she had had inklings of Miss Pomeroy's character from here and there, even though this was her first meeting with the campus beauty. Come to think of it, she identified Peaches now by remembering her portrait in last year's Campanile, the Rice yearbook. Peaches had made the beauty pages.

Well, Geraldine Pomeroy wasn't the first shrew who had been beautiful; and a clear conscience is an excellent panacea. Sara Sue quite sensibly went to bed. She was tired. She expected to "think about things" for at least an hour. In five minutes she was breathing deeply and in five minutes more Cleopatra awakened her.

"Lawdy goodness, Miss Sue, ain't you got no duties, ma'am?" The fat Negress giggled. "Hit's goin' on 10 o'clock ma'am. Git up! I'm there and eat you some breakfast."

Twelve hours around the clock! It was indeed shameless, Sara Sue admitted. But then—the rain had maintained constant lullaby. Indeed, it was still dashing against her windows, although the sky was lighter than it had been yesterday afternoon.

Only a few students called that day. Bob Towne telephoned, four times. Worthington Gurley telephoned, then sent a telegram pleading for a date to take her to the first freshman dance. Most of the time, though, Sara Sue spent in making over an old dress, and in bossing Calculus at painting some yard chairs stored in her attic. "It won't rain forever, contrary to appearances," she had assured him.

Nevertheless, her assurances seemed invalid. Harris county Texas, of which Houston is county seat, happens to have more range cattle in it than any other county in America, and the easterner's traditional misconception of the region is a high, arid, semi-desert, with many cactus plants, sand dunes and steer skulls bleaching in the Texas sunshine.

Actually Harris county is semitropical in verdure. The coastal plain there has the magnificent altitude of 50 feet, not 5,000. The football season sometimes is all drenched with rain. The grass and the vines and the shrubbery and the flowers all grow in such profusion as to make Houston one of the prettiest cities in the southwest, and the Spanish moss, moisture loving, drapes in great pendant-like festoons from the trees on the Rice Institute campus. Buffalo Bayou at Houston flows more water than many a more dignified "river" between Dallas and San Diego.

So when the rain proved that it meant to keep on, nobody was surprised, and Houstonians soon resumed their normal routine. By the second day people were ignoring the storm, which kept on that day and the next, and the next.

Registration for Rice classes, however, occupied the students full time during this interim. There is always a wrangling and a conferring about study-schedules and such during those few opening days. From 4 to 6 p.m. Coach Jimmy Britt kept his men in the great field house, giving them intense physical workouts and "skull practice" even though they could not practice on the gridiron; Rice field is so drained that it will dry in a few hours, he knew, and so he had no worry.

Quite a few callers came to Sara Sue's cottage during the rainy days, and quite a few took membership in her Cottage Plan, or club, or whatever. A definite name for the establishment seemed not to have materialized yet, but no matter. Sara Sue's personality, and her cheery home with its big fireplace, and her eternal supply of cookies and coffee and tea, and the novelty of her idea, brought the young collegians in. One long house party. Sara Sue enjoyed it most of all. She liked to feel a part of Rice life. Especially did she enjoy the college talk.

"—the goofiest new professors, one in math with a mile-long degree and bow legs and—

"—Dr. Lovett's looking older, don't you think? And—

"—she said she wouldn't take the silly old biology even if she did need the credits, but Mr. McCann smiled—you know how sweet he is—and told her that—

"—but if Rice can win championships two years in a row it'll be the first time in conference history, which'll make—

"—the darlinest dress, my dear! A bluff-colored material cut kinda like a dirdl but with—

"—rain just ruins a wave, and the first dance Friday, and—

"For Rice's honor, Rice's glorie-e-e-e.

We will fight on,
We will be fight-ing
When this day is done
And when-the-dawn-comes-we-will-still
Be fighting on, Rice,
For the gray and blu-u-u-u-e,
We'll all be loy-al,
To Rice be tru-u-u-u-e!

Sara Sue loved the college songs. She loved "For Rice's honor" especially. She learned to sing it with the rest of them. She learned the famous "Yea Rice" and the scrappy "Rooti-ti-toot" yells. She heard the impromptu music and cheering in her living room almost ever hour. It was all so grand, she told herself. She played the piano for them often. Sometimes Calculus sang comic songs, danced Negro solo numbers. Even Cleopatra occasionally favored with a high soprano—its timbre unlike that of any other race in the world. Mother Davis hovered motherly in the background, herself happy at the gaiety. How marvelous is youth, she thought.

Classes began at Rice, despite the rain, and the fall semester was well along on its routine when Sara Sue took time out on her fourth evening to check her records, count her funds, and sort of recapitulate her business, mentally speaking. The process involved some work. The last students had departed at 10 p.m., and at 11 p.m. she discovered that she had sold exactly 99 memberships! That excited her a trifle.

Ninety-nine customers for her Cottage Plan. She had agreed to accept just 100, no more. It would be all she could handle. She remembered vividly Customer No. 1. A handsome senior, Bob Towne, who instantly thought he had fallen in love with her! She wondered, smiling, who Customer No. 100 would be.

She closed and locked her desk then, and undressed for her bath. The storm would break soon, she knew, and there would be parties to arrange, groups to chaperone, all manner of duties. She must get her rest, never neglect health.

Now it was good to be quiet and alone for the remainder of the night.

She was just stepping one foot tentatively into her tub of hot bath water when her front door chimed rang.

"Oh, goodness!" she muttered. She thought to ignore it. But the chimes sounded again, and then again. Some insistent student; a thoughtless freshman, likely.

She threw a pretty blue-and-lace negligee around herself in a heavy silk robe—stepped into mules with pom poms on them, and went to the door.

First, though, she turned on the porch light, and peeped through her tiny door glass. It revealed a man's legs, definitely bowed, protruding from under a green umbrella.

Says City Furnishes Us Our Manners; But Farm Our Character

WASHINGTON (AP)—At last! An old saw is proved to be true by research.

The nation resources committee, in a long analysis of the relations between cities and rural communities in the United States, concludes:

"There is some truth in the notion that manners originate in cities, character in the country.

"The influence of urban ways... is an obvious and cumulative force in American civilization. At the same time, inheritance and personality patterns formed in early childhood exert a profound influence on the character and qualities of a nation, and these forces are focused with special intensity in rural areas where reproduction rates are highest.

Mercer, Loser by 59 Votes, May Contest Morrison's Election

Republicans Win 7 of 8 County Positions to Rout Democrats

Political Thought In County Seems To Be On Conservative Side

Defeated by a slim majority of only 59 votes, Leroy S. Mercer, democratic candidate for state representative, may contest the count of the general election with his opponent William F. Morrison, he said last night.

Mercer polled 4,965 votes as compared with Morrison's total of 5,024. Complete unofficial tabulations show that while the democratic candidate lost in Iowa City 2,511 to 3,054 he won in the outlying Johnson county precincts by a margin of 484 ballots.

Defying past democratic tendencies, Johnson county elected republicans to seven out of eight contested positions. In general, returns indicate political thought seems to be curving with the national trend to conservatism.

In the contest for county attorney Harold W. Vestermark was re-elected over E. A. Baldwin by the comfortable sum of 205 votes. Baldwin, however, proved stronger outside the city.

Republican Harold D. Evans mounted to the district judgeship over F. E. Olsen with a definite lead of 852 votes in Johnson county.

Although ahead for a major part of the county treasurer race, M. Frank Sullivan was defeated by W. E. Smith when the final Iowa City returns had been tabulated with county reports. Sullivan received 4,406 and Smith 5,632.

In accordance with his record as leading local democratic vote-getter, Don McComas once again was re-elected to the sheriff's office. A heavy vote of 6,865 went to McComas as undisputed proof of his popularity.

Contrary to past political records, two republicans were selected for the 1939 and 1940 terms for board supervisors. Receiving majorities in both city and county precincts Earl F. Webster and Glenn Hope won over their democratic contestants C. W. Lacinia and Dan J. Peters.

There was comparatively little activity at headquarters, the business division being the only group to report.

Court to Open November 21st

Tomorrow Is Last Day to File New Term Court Cases

Tomorrow is the last day to file cases for the November term of court which opens Nov. 21, according to R. Neilson Miller, clerk of the district court.

The clerk's office will remain open tomorrow to handle last minute filing, even though it is a national holiday. Petitions must be filed 10 days before the next term of court.

Vance Carlton, employed by the Horrabin Contracting company of Iowa City, is being sued by John R. Cornwall of Iowa City for $365 and costs, in a petition filed yesterday.

In his petition, Cornwall states that on Sept. 27 Carlton crossed a highway in his truck without giving proper signals, causing Cornwall to wreck his car and injure himself.

Two petitions for divorce were filed for the November court. Guy E. Walker of Iowa City seeks a divorce from Mae Walker on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. His petition was filed by Attorney Ingalls Swisher.

E. V. Anderson of Iowa City filed a divorce petition against Valeria Anderson, charging cruel and inhuman treatment. Attorney Swisher is the counsel for the plaintiff.

Traffic School Will Have First Meet Tonight

Will Discuss Traffic Laws; Glen Eves Will Talk on Safety

The first traffic school of the season, postponed last week because of unsettled weather, will be held tonight at 7:30 in the council chambers of the city hall. Everyone who drives a car is urged to be present, Police Judge Burke N. Carson, who will preside at the meeting, and Patrolman Laurence Ham announced.

Glen Eves, a local authority on modern safety devices, will speak on "Care and Safety in Driving." Traffic laws which tend to confuse the average driver will be explained.

Pre-Christmas Parade Plans Are in Making

Plans for the second annual pre-Christmas parade in Iowa City will be made at 9:30 this morning at the chamber of commerce headquarters in the Jefferson hotel, according to H. S. Ivie, general chairman of the affair.

Problems confronting the group will be publicity for the event, paraded routing, distributing of posters, deciding how to pick local participants in the parade, and the handling of traffic and spectators.

The parade is scheduled for Nov. 26.

aggregate 796,345 with 56 precincts still out. Minor party candidates are expected to boost the final total well above the 800,000 mark.

Whatever happens in the senatorial contest, Senator Clyde L. Herring will be titular head of the Iowa democratic party after Jan. 1. With the congressional delegation down to two democrats and with republicans occupying the statehouse, the senator will be one of the party's midwest kingpins, a position which he naturally will share with Senator Gillette if the latter wins.

The republican victory yesterday will restore, after a six-year interruption, the joint G.O.P. control of the state government and the county courthouses. The democrats won statewide victories in 1932, 1934 and 1936 but never succeeded in dislodging the republicans from their courthouse citadels.

Worst blow dealt the Iowa democrats was the defeat of Governor Kraschel, out of whose office stems a substantial share of the 9,600 jobs on the Iowa state payroll.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

THE POWER AND THE GLORY

If I were to speak on Armistice day (and as yet no one's asked me), I'd not say the usual things. . . I wouldn't even mention brave men who died in the first World war. . . Or those who are about to die in the second. . .

I'd be realistic, though. I'd present the "Student's Side of Peace." . . And I think I'd mention a problem that's important to me. . . I'd talk about compulsory R. O. T. C. . .

I'd laugh when they mentioned "making the world safe for democracy." . . I'd mention undemocracy in campuses of colleges and universities the nation over. . .

I'd recall that it's now in its 76th year, nationally, this institution called R. O. T. C. . . And I'd question its validity. . .

I'd tell them that I'm a journalism student (with combined courses in radio), and I'd say that the military courses contain nothing of any worth to me in my profession. . . I'd say, frankly, that the three hours weekly are a waste of time. . . I'd repeat I'm old enough to know my own mind. . .

And I'd wonder if military has any part in a liberal education. . . And I'd object, along with my parents, to paying taxes for any state institution that requires me (and how many others,) to toe a line I don't want. . .

And if there were a militarist in the crowd he'd start questioning me. . . He'd hecklingly point to the Morrill Land-Grant College act of 1862. . .

And I'd point to Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota, all without COMPULSORY military drill. . . And each obtaining its federal grant as usual. . .

They Float Bottles To Learn Ocean's Drift

LA JOLLA, Cal. (AP)—Of 6,000 bottles set adrift at the Scripps determine the direction of ocean currents, some 200 have been recovered. Even this number has been helpful in charting the drifts of Pacific waters, scientists reported.

F. R. Tibby, research assistant, believes that most of the still missing bottles have been carried far out to sea and will be heard from later.

I'd say that the act only says that military training be "offered" at land-grant colleges. . . That doesn't mention the word compulsory. . .

Then they'd bring up the old one about PREPAREDNESS. . . And I'd bring up the old one about officers for a war. . . I'd just laugh and say, "Do you mean a REAL war?" . . . Then I'd take them over to our own fieldhouse, if they wanted to go. . . They probably wouldn't. . .

If the two years of basic training is enough for WAR, then why advanced courses at all? . . . And if it has to be compulsory, why do the advanced courses always fill up so rapidly and have waiting lists? (I quote the militarists here). . .

They tell me I won't get a degree if I don't take it. . . Maybe not if I do. . . But I, somehow, don't think I'll mind so much. . . The education won't all be on the sheepskin. . .

But they won't, and I won't. . . I'll just go on believing that a university is not founded to train men for fighting. . . It is for an education and that has something to do with thought. . . And I'm thinking when I say I'm against it—with reasons why. . .

And if the day comes when they start thinking about it, the educators, I'll be perfectly willing to say it's right that those who want to take it can. . . My only opposition is to the compulsory feature of it. . .

But I'll not be called on to make an Armistice day speech. . . I'm not the type. . . I tell the truth. . .

Would Send Owners To Dog Pounds

GARY, Ind. (AP)—Some dog owners should be impounded instead of their pets, in the opinion of Will Judy, canine authority. "You are God to your dog and should never punish him when you are angry," Judy said when suggesting that there are men who do not deserve to own dogs.

displayed much more strength than in recent years. Against the republican triumphs, there were offsets. One of these was a narrow democratic victory in the all-important state of New York, which retained Herbert H. Lehman, democrat, in the governor's chair.

In addition the democrats took California, which has had a republican governor for many years, and replaced the republican governor of North Dakota with one of their own party. They also placed a democrat in the governor's chair in Maryland, previously held by a republican.

But while the democrats and the new deal lost much, they had much to lose. The results left the party securely in control of both house and senate, although the republican gains vastly increased the potential effectiveness of a coalition of republicans and anti-new deal democrats.

Prof. S. Bush Gives Speech About Europe

The European situation was the theme of a speech given by Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the Romance languages department, at the meeting of the Lions club yesterday noon in Reich's pine room.

Professor Bush is going to take place in Europe within the next 50 years and at the end of that time the United States and Russia will be the dominant powers of the world.

STERLING, Col. (AP)—Seventeen cowboys discovered that 70 buffaloes can cause plenty of trouble in a roundup.

The cowboys attempted to drive the buffalo herd from the Sherwin ranch, seven miles from here, to a Sterling packing plant. Thirty-five of the animals were to be cut from the herd for a buyer.

The buffaloes declined to cross modern highways and balked at fording the Platte river. When the herd arrived in Sterling less than half of the animals remained. The others displayed rugged individualism and had scattered, singly, across the prairie. It was a day's job to round them up again.

Firemen Get Their Business in Spurts

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP)—Business had been slack at the La Grange firehouse. There hadn't been an alarm since May 2.

Then, the other day, the public works department notified citizens to rake up their leaves so city trucks could haul them away. The trucks started out but could not keep up with small boys lighting matches.

La Grange firemen answered more than 50 alarms in two days, 20 of them within an hour and a half.
