NAZIS WAGE BITTER WAR ON JEWS

Audience of 1,500 Hears Dresden Boys' Choir in Stirring Concert

By MERLE MILLER
More than 1,500 Iowa citizens who place art above politics heard the great and thrilling music at Iowa Union last night. The occasion was the local appearance of the Dresden Boys' choir.

the entire audience to its feet, that anthem with the line, "the land of the free, the home of the brave."
The 66 boys who sang, none of them younger than 10, none older than 19, stirred the music-loving audience several times during the all - German program of singing.

program was the perfect tonal rendition of Orlando di Lasso's exciting "Echo Song," for which the balcony of Iowa Union was a perfect setting.
That was the one number that the audience demanded repeated, and it was.
Otherwise the songs ranged from Johann Sebastian Bach to Mozart to Richard Wagner and Brahms.

All of them were sung without accompaniment, in the clear, bell-like voices of boys to whom singing must be as free and without effort as breathing.
As, to be sure, it must be. The boys are trained for choir-singing from the age of three, and always under the superb direction of Rudolph Mauersberger, whose hands seem to be quite as expressive as those of Toscanini.

Those who are not inveterate concert goers may have felt, as did this observer, that choir singing lacks the emotional thrill and excitement of a symphony.
But those who are lovers of fine vocal music must have felt gratitude to the school of fine arts and the concert course of the University of Iowa for bringing perhaps the finest organization of its kind in the world with a tradition that goes back to the year 1200. Since that time, through emperors, Bismarcks and Kaisers the Dresden boys have sung, and they will probably continue to do so for some time to come.

We here in Iowa City have it said so well on our own fine arts building. "Ars est longa," it points out. "Vita est brevis."

Of course, there may have been nazi propaganda in the songs, but this reporter didn't detect it.
He had failed to buy the 10-cent, German - English text. He, like most of the others, had come to hear the music—and was not sorry.

Mob Violence, Plunder Follow Official's Death

'Question of Jewry' Will Be Settled By 'Laws and Decrees'

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, Nov. 10 (AP)—The greatest wave of anti-Jewish violence since Adolf Hitler came to power in 1933 swept Nazi Germany today and Jews were threatened with new official measures against them.
Millions of dollars worth of Jewish property was destroyed by angry crowds. Jewish stores were looted. Synagogues were burned, dynamited or damaged in a dozen cities.
Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, calling for a halt in the demonstrations, declared that "the final answer to Jewry will be given in the form of laws or decrees."

It was a nation-wide day of vengeance for the death yesterday of Ernst Von Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris, who was shot Monday by a 17-year-old Jew, Herschel Grynszpan.

Smash Windows
Bands of youths roved the streets of Berlin and other cities from early morning on, smashing windows of Jewish shops. In many places crowds which gathered after daybreak pushed into the establishments and came out with loot. Most of Berlin's 1,000 Jewish stores were plundered.

At the height of the demonstration few police were seen. One detachment of police in the heart of Berlin was charged by a mob which pushed them aside and began plundering.

After more than 12 hours of violence, Goebbels appealed to the people to refrain from further demonstrations.

The appeal was issued at 4 p. m., but at first apparently had no effect in the west end of Berlin. Three hours later it was repeated by radio. Then police appeared on Koenigsstrasse, where a number of Jewish shops are situated, arrested 21 looters and cleared the street.

Indignation Justifiable
"The justifiable and understandable indignation of the German people over the cowardly Jewish murder of a German diplomat in Paris has resulted during the past night in extensive demonstration," Goebbels' appeal said.

"In numerous cities and communities of the Reich, acts of violence were committed against Jewish buildings and businesses."
"The entire population is now, however, strictly requested to desist immediately from all further demonstrations and actions of whatever nature against Jewdom. The final answer to Jewry will be given in the form of laws or decrees."

All Jews in Munich were told that they must leave the country within 48 hours, and many Jews feared that Goebbels' concluding statement was a threat that the Munich order would be made nationwide.

All of Vienna's 21 synagogues were reported burned, wrecked or damaged. Seven of Berlin's 20 synagogues were burned.

In Vienna, 22 Jews were said to have committed suicide.

Vatican Fights Fascist Decree
ROME, Nov. 10 (AP)—A Vatican news service said tonight the Holy See would protest a marriage restriction decreed today by the Italian cabinet to further the new fascist policy of aryanism.

The service said the restriction would be protested as "a violation of concordat"—the accord between the Italian government and the Vatican.

The Vatican objected, this source said, to article 1 of the new law prohibiting "marriage of an Italian citizen of the Aryan race with a person belonging to another race." The law says a marriage "in violation of this prohibition is null."

At the time the fascist grand council adopted the marriage policy enacted into law today, Vatican circles expressed concern because the measures foreshadowed by this policy appeared to them to conflict with the church's right to perform marriages.

Fascists have insisted that the government's racial policy is political and not religious.

Republicans Express Confidence Following Elections

'Veer to Right' Faces Leaders

81 Representatives, 8 Senators Swell Congress Minority

By The Associated Press

Prominent republicans, flushed by their party's victories at the polls, appeared last night to be getting ready to serve a virtual ultimatum on President Roosevelt in some such words as these: "Veer to the right, or face two years of stalemate in congress!"

They expressed confidence that, combined with democrats critical of many Roosevelt policies, they could block the president if he insisted on following a "leftward" course.

On the other hand, prominent new dealers were declaring that the election was not a repudiation of President Roosevelt's "liberal policies." Secretary of the Interior Ickes spoke of the possibility of Mr. Roosevelt's being drafted for a third term drive in the interests of continuing the new deal.

Meanwhile returns from Tuesday's balloting were all but complete. They showed that 81 republican votes had been added to that party's roster in the house, and eight in the senate. One house election remained in doubt.

In the Indiana senatorial race, which was so close that it was decided only yesterday, Senator Frederick Van Nuys, democrat, finally beat Raymond E. Willis. In Iowa, scene of another nip-and-tuck contest, Senator Guy M. Gillette, democrat, was the apparent winner over former Senator Lester Dickinson, republican.

In all, but without counting the uncertain elections, the republican party held 170 places in the house, out of a total membership of 435 and 23 seats in the senate of a total of 96. Thus a coalition of 48 anti - new deal democrats with the republican (See ELECTION page 6)

Spy Suspect Faces Prison

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—A doe-eyed German fraulein, on trial as a spy for Hitler's third reich, swore in federal court today that she unwittingly had become involved in espionage through a desire to taste New York night life.

The witness, Johanna ("Jenni") Hofmann, 26, red-haired former beauty salon operator on a German liner, is on trial with two co-defendants, Erich Glaser, 28, one-time U.S. army air corps private, and Otto Hermann Voss, 38, an airplane mechanic.

All face maximum sentences of 20 years in prison under the World War espionage act.

Miss Hofmann testified that she became friendly with Karl Schlueter, scar-faced "fuehrer" of the liner Europa's crew and alleged "contact" man of a spy ring, only because he promised to take her to a cabaret here while her ship was in port.

But invariably he defaulted on his promise, she said, after using her as a "decoy" accomplice on visits to other members of the ring.

Band to Lead Parade

Prof. Ladd To Speak Today

Iowa City Will Celebrate Armistice Day This Morning

Led by the university band, the annual American Legion Armistice day parade will form at 10:30 this morning at the Community building to march to the program which will begin at 10:45 on the east campus of the university.

An address by Prof. Mason Ladd of the college of law will be the feature of the program and will follow the minute of silence at 11 o'clock in honor of the dead war heroes.

Three short speeches will also be given. Attorney William R. Hart will speak on "The American Legion and Armistice Day," Mayor Myron J. Walker will speak on "Iowa City and Armistice Day," and Prof. Harry G. Barnes of the speech department will have "The University and Armistice Day" as his topic.

In case of unsettled weather the service will be held in Macbride auditorium, B. M. Ricketts, commander of the Roy L. Chopek Post No. 17 of the American Legion, announced.

State Senator Orders Secretary to Remove Pre-election Posters

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Nov. 10 (AP)—One state senator is going to make certain that the public won't see his name and photograph on weatherbeaten election campaign posters for months to come.

Thomas C. Desmond, reelected to the senate last Tuesday from the Orange-Sullivan counties district, today ordered a secretary to retrace the 1,000 miles he traveled before election and remove the posters he tacked on telephone poles, fences, etc.

How many? About 2,000, the secretary says.

Round Jug Acts As Magnifying Glass; Burns Seat Cover

When Loran Danielson, botany assistant, stepped into his automobile yesterday morning he received quite a shock. The seat was on fire!

After putting out the fire Danielson admitted that a round jar left on the seat in the sun caused the blaze. The sun's rays hitting the rounded glass acted as a magnifying glass.

Danielson was shopping for a seat cover yesterday afternoon.

Nobel Prizes Buck 3rd American To Win Award

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 10 (AP)—An American, Pearl Buck, author of "The Good Earth," and an Italian, Enrico Fermi of the University of Rome, discoverer of a new element, today won the 1938 Nobel prizes for literature and physics—$37,975 each.

The literature award went to Mrs. Buck for the novel on Chinese life, one of her several novels dealing with the China she came to know as the daughter of missionary parents.

Observers commented on the fact that "The Good Earth" was published in 1931 and Nobel prizes usually are restricted to works published in the year preceding each award. "The Good Earth" also won the 1932 Pulitzer prize.

Mrs. Buck, who now lives at Great Neck, N. Y., was born in 1892 at Hillsboro, W. Va. She is the third American to win the Nobel literature award. The others were Sinclair Lewis in 1930 and Eugene O'Neill in 1936.

It was announced that Fermi won the physics prize "as a reward for his discovery of new elementary radioactive substances engendered by irradiation of neutrons" and for the other research on reactions created by neutrons.

Fermi, 37 years old, has been a member of the Italian academy since 1929 and is the discoverer of an element called "No. 93"—uranium being No. 21. "No. 93" is said to be the heaviest known matter.

Fugitive Dead, Five Wounded In Gun Battle

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 10 (AP)—Six desperate convicts broke from the Tennessee penitentiary today amid a bloody gun battle that ranged along a thickly populated Nashville street and ended with five fugitives back in custody, wounded, the sixth dead and Deputy Warden C. C. Woods in grave condition.

Two sides of Woods, Assistant Deputy Warden Hub Sampson and Guard Elmo Green, who, like him, were forced to ride in a prison truck as hostages during the prisoners' wild dash, were less seriously injured. Four other guards were slightly hurt.

Guard John T. Strickland said he and Guards Ed Tabor, Dick Smith and Louis Tollett were lured separately into the prison band room by the convicts on the ruse that some prisoners were drinking shellac. The guards, he went on, were seized, their guns taken and then slashed with home made knives and beaten. The convicts then dashed to the deputy warden's office.

The armed prisoners took the officials captive, rushed outside, seized a truck being driven by a trust and made for the gate. There, officials said, the gatekeeper was held up and disarmed and forced to open the way under threat of death to the hostages.

Republican Victories Promise Co-ordinated State Government

Road Back? Pershing Asks Bigger U. S. Defenses

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—General John J. Pershing counseled the nation today, 20 years after he led the American armies to victory in the World War, to take "prompt and vigorous action" to reinforce its defenses.

"The situation in the world today is as menacing as at any critical time in history," the gray, but erect, commander of the A. E. F. said in an Armistice day statement.

"Let there be visited upon us the recent experience of England and France," he urged an "adequate," thoroughly trained and equipped army, supported by a mobilized industry.

"We are the natural protectors of the freedom of this hemisphere, and we can not escape our obligation," he declared.

Pershing's pronouncement, a rare expression of his views on public affairs, came on the eve of a nationwide observance of a day of peace which is overshadowed this year by reminders of war.

By an act of congress, the anniversary of the World War's ending is a national holiday for the first time. President Roosevelt, Pershing, as general of the armies, and representatives of a score of patriotic organizations will lay wreaths on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington national cemetery.

To meet what he described as the requirements of national defense "promptly and without excitement," General Pershing said, "is, in my opinion, the most important duty that confronts the American people on this twentieth anniversary of the armistice."

Sweeping Majority In House and Senate Hits Political Power

DES MOINES, Nov. 10 (AP)—Overwhelming republican victories in statehouse and legislative contests tonight promised co-ordinated state government procedure for the first time since the peak of the new deal.

Partly complete unofficial returns disclosed the republicans will hold 38 of the 50 Iowa state senate seats in the coming winter's legislative session and at least 75 and probably more than 85 of the 108 seats in the house.

With Governor-elect George A. Wilson heading the party's statehouse coterie of officials, the G. O. P. grip on Iowa's public affairs will be much more complete than that of the last two democratic administrations. Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel had a hostile senate and an evenly split house while Gov. Clyde L. Herring's 1935-37 administration was complicated by the frequent alliances of the 50 house republicans with insurgent democrats.

Further slight revisions in the complete unofficial totals in the Iowa senatorial race tonight left Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D), the apparent winner, 2,117 votes ahead of L. J. Dickinson, the republican nominee. The margin was within a few hundred votes of the Associated Press preliminary totals on the race late yesterday.

The adjusted totals, in nearly all cases resulting from changes made in the statistics by local election officials, gave: Gillette 412,791, Dickinson 410,674, Buresh (F.L.) 2,592, Hanke (Prog) 932, Bauserman (Prohi) 413.

Today's alterations included adjustments made in totals at Sioux City, Council Bluffs and Sumner. Dickinson picked up 200 votes in an error discovered in the Sumner tabulating. An exhaustive check of 57 county reports disclosed some minor (See STATE page 6)

Pres. Ataturk Of Turkey Dies

Premier Inonu Is Regarded as Most Probable Successor

ISTANBUL, Nov. 10 (AP)—Kamal Ataturk, who built and ruled modern Turkey with a clenched fist, died today at the age of 58.

There were unconfirmed reports that the Turkish president whom parliament named Ataturk—"Father of the Turks"—had left a political testament to guide his successor in his own rigid doctrine of westernization and nationalism.

No one expected Turkey's new leadership to turn in the immediate future from the domestic and foreign balance which Ataturk achieved for this nation, strategically situated between the east and the west.

Before Ataturk became gravely ill in mid-October, he was borrowing money for Turkey with little discrimination from both Britain and Germany, although his early struggle for power was tinged with bitter hatred for the influence of both.

The British and German foreign offices were known to have keen interest in his successor and the future course of Turkey.

The president of the national assembly, Abdul Halik Renda, assumed the interim presidency upon the passing of the ashen-faced "gray wolf." A government proclamation announced convocation of the assembly to elect a new chief executive.

General Imet Inonu, known as the "military bookkeeper," premier for 13 of the 15 years that Ataturk headed the state, was the most likely choice. A parliamentary group of the majority party decided to support Inonu, apparently assuring his election.

Ataturk once said of Inonu, "he is my conscience—he is always on the alert and finds out what is wrong and criticizes me."

Day and night eight physicians had helped Ataturk fight his illness in the great alabaster palace of Dolma Bagtche on the Bosphorus from which Ataturk had ejected the last sultan of the old Ottoman empire.

Regents Charge Communism At Univ. of Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 10 (AP)—The state board of regents said today it was convinced there has been, and is now, some communism and probably some fascist activity among the student body at the University of Kansas.

The report, submitted by Dr. H. L. Snyder and Ralph T. O'Neil, members of the board, made no recommendations.

The investigation was ordered by the board nearly a year ago, after the death of Don Henry, former student, who was killed while fighting with the loyalist army in Spain.

The committee reported to the board, however, it did not believe these un-American activities are present at the University of Kansas "to any greater degree than in other large universities."

He Who Thinks And Hunts Today May Live To Hunt Another Day

FATALITIES due to guns while hunting continue to be reported despite warnings and gun-handling educational articles appearing in almost every newspaper and publication.

The Conservation commission, State Department of Health, Iowa Safety council and other state departments interested in the public's safety have published numerous articles on the danger of guns and the proper methods of handling.

Reports of gun deaths and injuries continue to be received. The irony of these accidents enters the case when investigations reveal that most of the fatalities occur when the fire arms were being handled in violation of the rules for hunting stressed in these publications.

An investigation into the causes of most of the accidents reveals that gun accidents occur chiefly from pulling a loaded weapon barrel first from a boat or car or through a fence, pointing a loaded gun at a hunting companion, and not carrying a loaded gun in the right position when hunting with others.

Conservation authorities state that one way to reduce these hunting fatalities is for the hunter to remember that every gun is loaded whether or not it is and should be handled, pointed and carried with that thought in mind.

In other words, while it is great fun to hunt rabbits, ducks, pigeons and pheasants, it is not profitable to lose a leg or a life in the pursuit of sport.

He who thinks and hunts today may live to hunt another day.

No More Peace

It would be beautiful this morning to write the usual thoughts, the ones all newspaper editors write on Armistice day mornings, to recall the brave men who died for their country in the great World War, to say that they have not died in vain.

Those would be fine words, beautiful thoughts—but untrue. We suspect, to the contrary, that those millions who died from 1914-18, some of them from our own campus, died in vain.

They died in a war to end all wars. And we stand now on the brink of the second World War. They died to save the world for democracy. And there is less democracy in the world today than there was when they began.

So let us, instead, be realistic this morning. Let us also be skeptical. We know now what we suspected in late September, that the "peace for our time" of which Neville Chamberlain spoke so hopefully after Munich is no more than a very temporary postponement of the inevitable.

We know too that the democracies of the world are weaker than ever before; we know that in the far east, in central Europe and at the Mediterranean, the forces of fascism and nazism are in power.

And we know that Herr Goebbels has written, "I cannot conceive of an ordered society in which there would be no war." And we know that if Duce has written in Italy that, "war is the most glorious affirmation of mankind."

We are aware that Adolf Hitler himself has written part of the picture of the future. He has said that "not until the confines of the Reich include every single German and all are certain of being able to be nourished, can there be a moral right for Germany to acquire territory abroad, whilst her people are in need."

"The plough will then be the sword, and the coming world's daily bread will be watered by the tears of war."

That voice of impending doom is not one of the "idle" Hitler promises; it comes from the Bible of the Nazi party itself, Hitler's own "Mein Kampf."

To bring every German into Germany and to furnish them nourishment cannot be accomplished without bloodshed. We may as well be realistic.

Men are certain to die; blood is sure to be shed. And we may be among them. So this morning, it's a sorry picture we present. But a true one.

And we have no pet, optimistic suggestion. We can only say, as wise men always have, that the day may come when international cooperation will be a reality and when civilization will have reached that point where intelligence and not force will rule the world.

And we can only repeat those words that we like to remember on days like this, words from Ernest Toller's "No More Peace."

St. Francis, the apostle of peace, is speaking to Napoleon, the apostle of war.

"Peace on earth?" he asks. "When will that time come?"

When the clever stop talking and the wise begin to act."

Remember that today, and it will have been worthwhile having had an Armistice day here in America.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

BEWARE OF ASSUMING TOO MUCH

The magnitude of the republican victories, considered all together, piles up as reports come in.

Not even a study of the "kind" of republicans elected, as advised in advance by some new deal spokesmen, greatly discounts the showing. The blunt fact is that some quite "liberal" republicans did very well—for instance, Dewey in New York, Stassen in Minnesota, Reed in Kansas—but that also some republicans who made no particular profession of being "liberal" did right well, too. For instance, Taft of Ohio.

But one thing in common, as to nearly all the conspicuous accumulators of votes for republicanism, is that they are new men, not identified with the "ancient regime," not very reasonably subject to the political charge that they want to return the country to the "good old days" of Coolidge and Harding.

As a matter of fact, the president himself tried to pin that tag on Dewey in New York state, in his famous speech about "The first essential of doing the job well" being "the wish to see the job done at all." But the tag didn't stick. Dewey was new.

He was not associated with the times of 1932, of now receding memory. He declared he was not in favor of repealing all the New Deal reforms. And not even the president could persuade the voters that, because Dewey ran on the G.O.P. ticket, he necessarily must want to repeal all reforms.

Looking ahead to 1940, which is what everyone is doing, the enormous advantage of putting forward fresh faces cannot be over-stressed.

Moreover, despite some confusing indications in this 1938 pendulum-swing, the greatest mistake the republican party could make would be to get excessively optimistic as a result, and to conclude that in 1940 all it need do is to ride the pendulum the rest of the way.

The Register ventures, two years ahead of time, the prophecy that if the republican party lets itself be overcome by nostalgia for pre-new deal days, if it seems to intend turning the calendar back by simply wiping out such things as securities exchange control, the collective bargaining principle, the program of social security, the policy of giving genuine support (not just lip service) to agricultural equality, and so on, it will get another trimming in 1940, one that might end its days.

In all probability, the country is somewhat fed up with bold strokes of social reform. It needs time for digestion of reforms already made or begun. There is a possible opportunity for the republican party to take over the job of administering the new deal. That in substance is what any party that dispossessed the democrats in 1940 at Washington would have to do, anyhow.

The country may be weary of King Stork, who gave them too much excitement.

But it is not ready for King Log, who does nothing but float.

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I wouldn't recommend Sixth avenue to everybody, but I think you'd like it. It's dirty, but it's different. It crawls in squalor all the way through midtown and then takes a sudden turn for the better and ends in elegance far up at Central Park.

I like it because you can find practically anything you want. If it's a peacemaker, junkish nature—I mean old magazines, curio, back copies of foreign newspapers, greasy smells, Irish motion pictures—you get the idea.

There's a fiddler's shop where a man makes violins and bows. Next to him is a greasy spoon restaurant with breast-of-lamb luncheons for 20 cents and hash-with-egg for 15 cents. A few steps further is a cinema house featuring "The Rose of Tralee." You can find Kipling's novels in Spanish, and "art" magazines and cheap portraits of every description. The nudes really take over the place. "Nude Raking Autumn Leaves" "Nude Drinking From Gourd" "Nude Climbing a Picket Fence" "Nude Tossing Pebbles Into a Stream."

Magazines with strange foreign titles feature body lines of smartly uniformed German officers. Under a pile of dusty Greek newspapers I found our old friend Peter Arno—or rather one of his books. The man who tried to sell it to me also had a nice pearl stickpin which he would relinquish for only $6. Fortunately I didn't have $6.

He also had a trick pack of cigarettes made especially for people who are always bumming cigarettes. When a bummer says "Gimme a cigarette" you hand him this pack, and the cigarette he takes out has the word "Chizler" written on it. That's supposed to be pretty devastating. He wanted only 40 cents for it. Fortunately I didn't have 40 cents.

Just as I was about to move on a woman came in and recognized an acquaintance. "Hello, Ella," she said. "Did you know my daughter died? She died in Toronto. We took her to Detroit, and then we came back here. All our people are buried in Detroit."

Outside a sign said JOBS and under it were a lot of cards. A long queue of men was filing past the cards, reading them. One of them read: "Wanted, Janitor—20-family apartment, $25 month and four rooms." Another said: "Chief wanted—good pay." A third said: "Middle-aged couple to maintain family place—apply within."

You begin to catch on about Sixth avenue, eh? A truck rumbles past and on it is the legend: "Yat Gaw Min—Noodle Manufacturer." A sign in a window says "El Duelo de los Sexos," but it isn't a peep show or a burlesque. It's just something between paper covers that some Spanish author thought up.

Then a man comes out of a shop door and bumps into someone he knows. "Eddie," he cries. "Well, where in the world have you been hiding—in jail?" Eddie looks startled. He says: "Must you yell it to everybody?"

WASHINGTON WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Washington is the worst town in the country for automobile accidents. It is so bad that it even elicited a well recently from a cabinet member—Secretary of Commerce Roger. Roper, to be sure, was not speaking exclusively of conditions in the capital; he mentioned the problem as of national proportions. There are few evils, he said, that there don't seem to be possible remedies for. However, he confessed that the auto slaughter apparently is impossible to put an end to—or so much as modify. Just why the commerce department should be especially concerned in the matter I don't know. It is, though. Not long ago it issued a report to the effect that, somewhere in the United States, a flivver tragedy occurs once in every 15 minutes, on an average.

Washington Toll Heavy Anyway, Washington has more than its fair proportion of them. It isn't hard to understand the reason, if you're familiar with the capital. The normal American city is cut up by a lot of north and south, east and west streets, crossing one another at right and left angles. Their intersections are fearful hazards certainly, but there's a bit of sense to them. Washington not only has this criss-cross arrangement of its thoroughfares but also a multiplicity of diagonal avenues, involving a web, every here and there, of eight strands, diverging in as many different directions. At the center of each of these foci is a cute little park, usually with a statue in the middle of it, and with a circle of street, swishing off eight ways, all round-about it.

These circles look cute, but getting across or around one of them is near-suicide. Major l'Enfant, the Frenchman who planned Washington in George Washington's day, perpetrated this homicidal arrangement. Perhaps there were extenuating circumstances then. In the major era there was only horse-drawn urban transportation. And a horse had sense and decency enough to dodge collision and to spare pedestrians if possible.

But the automobilist? Oh, murder! Well, Washington officialdom is all torn up by its auto death rate. A hot campaign is being waged to improve the situation. How? By curbing the autoists? No! It's to be done by penalizing pedestrians. The idea is that a pedestrian obstructs traffic.

In my youth a pedestrian had the right of way across the street. It was taken for granted that he didn't want to be run over. Now the assumption is that he's a nuisance, and the burden of the proof is on him to show that he didn't delay some buzz-wagon.

Secretary Roper's theory is that automatic regulation ought to be nationalized; it's confusing to autoists to have one schedule of rules

The other man is suddenly and horribly embarrassed. "Gee, kid, I didn't know. I was only fooling, honest I was."

That's the way it goes. That's Sixth avenue. It's 40 solid blocks of brick-arc, fish hooks, steam shovels, elevated trains, and taxicabs.

Roper, to be sure, was not speaking exclusively of conditions in the capital; he mentioned the problem as of national proportions. There are few evils, he said, that there don't seem to be possible remedies for. However, he confessed that the auto slaughter apparently is impossible to put an end to—or so much as modify. Just why the commerce department should be especially concerned in the matter I don't know. It is, though. Not long ago it issued a report to the effect that, somewhere in the United States, a flivver tragedy occurs once in every 15 minutes, on an average.

Washington Toll Heavy Anyway, Washington has more than its fair proportion of them. It isn't hard to understand the reason, if you're familiar with the capital. The normal American city is cut up by a lot of north and south, east and west streets, crossing one another at right and left angles. Their intersections are fearful hazards certainly, but there's a bit of sense to them. Washington not only has this criss-cross arrangement of its thoroughfares but also a multiplicity of diagonal avenues, involving a web, every here and there, of eight strands, diverging in as many different directions. At the center of each of these foci is a cute little park, usually with a statue in the middle of it, and with a circle of street, swishing off eight ways, all round-about it.

These circles look cute, but getting across or around one of them is near-suicide. Major l'Enfant, the Frenchman who planned Washington in George Washington's day, perpetrated this homicidal arrangement. Perhaps there were extenuating circumstances then. In the major era there was only horse-drawn urban transportation. And a horse had sense and decency enough to dodge collision and to spare pedestrians if possible.

But the automobilist? Oh, murder! Well, Washington officialdom is all torn up by its auto death rate. A hot campaign is being waged to improve the situation. How? By curbing the autoists? No! It's to be done by penalizing pedestrians. The idea is that a pedestrian obstructs traffic.

In my youth a pedestrian had the right of way across the street. It was taken for granted that he didn't want to be run over. Now the assumption is that he's a nuisance, and the burden of the proof is on him to show that he didn't delay some buzz-wagon.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—Something's got to be done about it.

The movies are making newspapering too goldarned attractive. Any youngster who knows his movie reporter knows he's a sucker not to be in the "game."

So the competition will be terrific. The unglamorous, plodding oldsters will have to step out. I don't wanna step out. I say something's got to be done.

According to the movies, any youngster—girl or boy—is a sucker not to be a reporter. The boys, job-hunting, all learn from the screen that reporters, nine times out of ten, will marry the richest girl in the world. To make it worse, the girl with the dough is pretty sure to be (a) Loretta Young or (b) Joan Crawford or (c) Bette Davis or (d) Virginia Bruce or (e) Claudette Colbert.

For added inducement, the boys learn from the movies that reporters always are privileged to tell their managing editors to (a) go to hell, and (b) go to hell again.

For the girls now, it's different. Almost anything can happen to a movie gal reporter. The important thing, of course, is that she invariably meets nice young men. If not Errol Flynn or Gable, she is fairly certain to smite the heart of Pat O'Brien, Michael Whalen, Barton MacLane or Cesar Romero. The nice young man may be a rival reporter, but occasionally he'll be the richest man in the world.

In the movies, too, a girl reporter is always turned out so neatly in wardrobe and coiffure that you know she makes a whopping salary. You never know how she does it, but Claire Trevor's sob sisters seldom wear the same outfit twice. Gloria Stuart's scoop-hunters are smartly attired on all occasions, and Glenda Farrell's Torchy Blane takes no back seat in fashion either.

Most girls can go through life without running smack into a plot, but never your gal reporter in the movies. Every trip through Chinatown, every stroll past a deserted warehouse or along a foggy wharf, is fraught with peril and a scoop. The girl not only survives the former and cops the latter, but achieves both ends without ruffling her hair or mussing her natty clothes.

The girl reporters, too, are unhandicapped by ethical considerations. They can cheat, lie, steal—see Claire Trevor in "Five of a Kind"—and they can get ridiculously indignant when the rival sheet beats them at all games. They can borrow nickles from unsuspecting rivals—see Torchy Blane—to phone in their scoops, and they can marry the victim—see Rosalind Russell in "Four's a Crowd"—to get the "inside story." Whether that's better than marrying the victim to provide a home for a Dead End Kid—see Joan Blondell in "Love Bites Man"—is merely a matter of opinion.

There's one hope, however. In "Dodge City" Olivia de Havilland is a reporter. She writes society items—this is 1872—and she has to wear a corset. But even this movie unfortunate gets Errol Flynn. Even this girl reporter meets so many interesting people.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It may not exactly fit the picture of the dignified professor, but it solves the parking problem. That's what Dr. George James Cox thinks about the gasoline scooter on which he rides to work at the art department of the University of California at Los Angeles every morning. The car is four feet long, is painted green and white, and makes 100 miles on a gallon of gas.

Diet fads are popular in Hollywood because there is an unwritten law against presenting the chin as a double feature.

The reasons why England and France do not want war are apparent if you study the plane facts.

IOWA CITY, Ia. (AP)—Just because a baby reaches for things with his left hand is no sign he will go through life as a left-handed person.

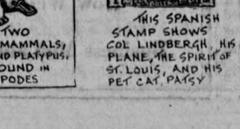

Dr. Ruth K. Lederer announced this after making a study for her doctors' degree at the University of Iowa. She found that an equal number of infants showed right- and left-handedness between six and 11 months of age.

Changes in hand preference occurred most frequently in the first year and right-handedness predominated in the second.

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Modern medical science, especially in its chemical researches, has developed very exact methods of kidney diagnosis. But the results must be interpreted with wisdom and experience.

In the first place, as we explained in an early article this week, the cells of the kidney may be out of commission so that they do not remove all of the waste products which it is their business to remove from the blood. In that case, those products accumulate in the blood. Modern chemistry has developed very exact methods of recognizing these quantitatively so that the exact amounts present can be determined. If they are in excess of normal, it is known that the kidney is not doing its full work and adjustments in diet can be made to suit its lowered functional capacity.

Aids in Diagnosis The study of the patient's whole body—the blood pressure, the heart, the retina of the eye— aids in assessing the patient's true condition. The blood vessels in the back of the eye have been found to undergo almost the same changes, simultaneously, as the vessels in the kidneys, so that a true picture of their condition can be reached by viewing the eye with the ophthalmoscope. Dye tests for kidney function are very useful. The kidney in health is able to pick up certain dyes from the blood and excrete them 100 per cent in a short time. A dye which can easily be recognized is injected into the vein of the arm, and all the urine is collected for two hours. If 90 per cent of the dye is collected in this time, the kidneys are considered normal. I have not said anything as yet about the examination of the urine itself. This was the only method known for the diagnosis of kidney complaints half a century ago, and while it does yield valuable re-

William Decker Will Head Senior Commerce Class

The senior class of the college of commerce elected William J. Decker of St. Louis, Mo., class president yesterday.

Other officers elected were Paul Lee of Letts, vice-president; Margaret Joiner of Maquoketa, secretary, and Elmer Bratten of Waterloo, treasurer.

In the junior commerce class election yesterday, James George of Dubuque was elected president, Henry Eichacker of Homestead, vice-president, and Gertrude Holcomb of Cedar Rapids, both secretary and treasurer.

Teachers Will Convene Here

3 More Speakers Appointed for Annual Language Meeting

Appointment of three additional speakers for the University of Iowa's annual conference of classical language teachers next month has been announced by Prof. Roy C. Flickinger, head of the department.

The conference is scheduled for Dec. 2 and 3.

Prof. Axel Boethius of the University of Goteburg, Sweden, will lecture on "The Architecture of Imperial Rome" and also will speak on "Roman Art."

From the University of Chicago will come Prof. Henry W. Prescott, to speak on "History and Romance," while a Chicago lawyer will talk on "Why the Classics?"

The conference is one section of the language and literature meeting which includes divisions for teachers of English, German, French and Spanish.

Several hundred teachers will attend.

Mixed Volleyball Tournament Will Begin Tuesday

Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Phi, East-lawn and Kappa Alpha Theta were out in front in the women's intramural volleyball tournament today after the preliminary games ended last night.

Kappa Alpha Theta defeated Sigma Delta Tau in both games last night, first by a score of 35 to 15 and then 28 to 18. The winners of Tuesday's games will play the winners of Wednesday's games next Thursday night.

The mixed volleyball tournament, for men and women, will start Tuesday.

Production of electricity in Great Britain for the year ended March, 1938, was a record at 23,349 million units, an increase of 2,480 million units on the previous year's figures.

When They Turn the Tables On the Men, They Do It Right

University Women To Escort Men At Spinsters Spree

From corsages to cab fare, from intermission cokes to after-the-dance snacks, university men will be in the receiving end tonight when Iowa women play hostesses and pay the bills at the annual Spinsters Spree from 9 to 12 o'clock in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Emily Post's correct etiquette will be upset as the fair sex call for their dates, escort them to the party—and finance the affair, while Bernie Cummins and his orchestra provide music for the dancers.

Highlight of the evening will be the presentation of the university's four most eligible bachelors. The presentation will be made by Barbara Mueller, A4 of Davenport, chairman of the committee in charge. The four were chosen from candidates selected by various campus women's groups.

Chaperoning the party will be Prof. and Mrs. J. Van der Zee, Prof. and Mrs. H. J. Thornton, Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Joliet, and Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Smith.

Women will wear floor-length, informal dresses to the dance, while the masculine honorees will come attired informally.

Bill Goenne, M1 of Davenport, Nu Sigma Nu, will appear at the party in a simple dark blue suit, white shirt and a tie medium blue in color. He will be escorted by Miss Mueller.

A convert to the popular "brushed-up" style of head dress is Charles Carr, A1 of Newton, Delta Upsilon. A black chalk-stripe suit, white shirt and green plaid tie will make up his attire. Green socks and oxford shoes complete his accessories. Mr. Carr will be accompanied by Velma Berlau of Newton.

The fashionable blue-green color of Kenneth Lemon's three-button single-breasted suit will be complemented by a white shirt and a blue and white striped tie. Mr. Lemon, M4 of Crawfordville, Phi Beta Pi, will be dancing with Marjorie Alberti, A2 of Council Bluffs.

From the Manse, Clifford Perkins, A2 of Maxwell, will go partying with Katherine Armstrong, A2 of Milan, Ill. With his black business suit he will wear a white shirt with a red stripe, a red tie and a plain white handkerchief.

Bill Trigg, E4 of Hedrick, from the Gables, will wear a white shirt, light blue tie, black shoes and socks with his dark blue suit, Mary Shepherd, P1 of Volga City, will serve as his escort.

Sigma Phi Epsilon's Reginald Davis, A1 of Sioux Falls, S. D., will be attired in a green tweed single-breasted suit. His shirt will be white, and with it he will wear a yellow and black tie. Lillian Helbe, A1 of Bettendorf, will take Mr. Davis.

Blue-green is the shade chosen by Maynard Dix, E4 of Cedar Falls, for his diagonal weave, double-breasted suit. This Theta Tau member, who will go dancing with Ruth Ann McMahon, A3 of West Liberty, has decided upon a white shirt and a maroon and green striped tie for accessories.

From the Theta Xi house Bill Cody, A1 of Denver, Col., will attend the affair with La Von Hodgen, A1 of Kingsley. With his dark green, diagonal weave, single-breasted, three-button suit, Mr. Cody will wear a white shirt and a red and brown tie.

Harriet Carl, A2 of Elkhardt, Ind., will escort Triangle's Jim Taylor, E3 of Cedar Rapids. A blue striped tie and white shirt are his choice for wear with his medium blue pin-striped double-breasted suit.

A dark blue double-breasted suit, white shirt and red tie are the choices made by Jefferson House's Ed Neveln, A1 of Walnut. Mary Hulverson, C3 of Elkader, will serve as his escort.

Grey herringbone weave made double-breasted with a sport back is the style of suit which Bruce Irwin, A1 of Sac City, Whetstone house, will wear. A white shirt and maroon tie will be worn with this suit. Mr. Irwin will be accompanied by Fern Nelson, A3 of Hillsboro.

Kenneth Bastian, A3 of Ft. Dodge, Beta Theta Pi, will wear a green suit, a red tie and a brown and green striped shirt, when he goes partying with Ann Winslow, A2 of Cedar Rapids.

Bob Knoeppler, A3 of Sioux City, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, will be attired in a brown pin stripe, double-breasted suit, a green shirt and a red tie. He will go dancing with Sallie Taylor, A3 of Joliet, Ill.

Dancing with Lola Folsom, A3 of Muscatine, will be Arthur Howe, A3 of Muscatine, Sigma Chi. Dark blue invisible check tie is the material of the double-breasted business suit which he will wear. A white shirt and blue and red tie complete his attire.

Kenneth Jones, C3 of Iowa City, Sigma Nu, has chosen a dark purple pin stripe double-breasted suit. With it he will wear a light tan shirt and an orange tie, when he goes party-ward with Marjorie Tighe, A2 of Keokuk.

Phi Kappa Sigma's Richard Witt, A2 of Shell Rock, will wear a dark blue, pin stripe, three-button, single-breasted suit with a white shirt and blue striped tie. Mildred Jensen, A2 of Council Bluffs, will accompany him.

A single-breasted grey wool suit, a white shirt and a mixed red tie are to be worn by Phi Rho Sigma's Henry Hamilton, M2 of Oak Park, Ill. Virginia Sidwell, A4 of Iowa City, will be his partner for the evening.

Rheta Miller, A4 of Bethlehem, Pa., will escort John McKinstry, A1 of Washington, Ia., Pi Kappa Alpha, to the dance. Mr. McKinstry will wear a blue-green double-breasted suit with a diagonal stripe. His tie will match his suit, and his shirt will be white.

Dark blue, double-breasted tweed suit, white shirt, blue and red plaid tie are the selections made by Tom Flath, D4 of Stanley, N. D., Delta Sigma Delta, who will go dancing with Mary Lou Kather, P4 of Williston, N. D.

Jim Eighmey, A3 of Clear Lake, Delta Tau Delta, will wear a green diagonal weave, three-button single-breasted suit, a grey shirt and a brown tie, when he goes dancing with Jane Kistner, A4 of Waterloo, tonight.

A black pin stripe, double-breasted suit, white shirt and red tie will be worn by Jim Hoak, C3 of Des Moines, Phi Kappa Psi. Ruth Irons, A1 of Mason City, will serve as his escort.

Courtney Kline, A2 of La Porte City, Phi Gamma Delta, has selected a dark ink bottle green diagonal weave, double-breasted suit, a white shirt, and a dark green pin-striped tie to wear when he "trips the light fantastic" with Betty Lee Roeser, A3 of Ft. Madison.

The popular three-button single-breasted style is the choice of Sid Hoganson, A3 of Livermore, Delta Chi, who will wear a brown diagonal weave suit accented by a pin stripe. White is the color which he has selected for his shirt and brown and tan for his tie. Kay Cushing, C4 of Downs, Kan., is escorting Mr. Hoganson.

From the Phi Epsilon Pi house, Harry Elmets, A1 of Des Moines, will go partying with Marcella Donnan of Rochester, Minn. With his single-breasted three-button green diagonal stripe suit, he will wear a green chalk stripe shirt and green botany tie.

Catherine Ann Bradley, A2 of Newton, will escort James Wray, A2 of Oskaloosa, Alpha Sigma Phi, to the spree. He will be attired in a brown tweed suit made in the single-breasted three-button style. A dark green tie and white shirt will complete his garb.

Alpha Kappa Kappa's Robert Baker, M3 of Davenport, will wear a brown pin stripe suit, made double-breasted, a brown shirt and a red tie, when Betty Nissen, A3 of Cedar Rapids, takes him dancing tonight.

Chocolate brown is the shade which James Dudley, G of Fifty Lakes, Minn., has selected for his double-breasted suit. His brown shirt has a white stiff collar and his brown tie a neat red stripe. This Alpha Chi Sigma member will be escorted by Verona Lambert, A3 of Sigourney.

Members of the committee who are in charge of arrangements include besides Miss Mueller, Louise Seeburger, A2 of Des Moines; Susan Runner, A3 of Iowa City; Ruth Subotnik, A3 of Cedar Rapids; Charlene Saggau, A3 of Denison; Corrie Shrauger, A3 of Atlantic, Betty Osnowitz, A3 of Sioux City; Peggy Reagan, A4 of Pt. Arthur, Tex.; Helen Bliss, A4 of Mt. Airy; Jane Norman, A4 of Keokuk, and Josephine Sidwell, A3 of Iowa City.

HOSTESS HINTS

Before winter has really begun we are thinking of ways and means to add some "spring" to our meal planning. Fruit salads and other dishes using winter fruits are the solution to the problem. So why not use November as the month when "spring" comes into your kitchen and meal planning?

Valencia Salad
6 oranges
1-3 cup banana slices
1-3 cup raisins
1-4 cup mayonnaise

Peel oranges and cut in slices. Arrange slices on individual lettuce-covered salad plates. Marinate apple and banana in orange juice from one orange. (This prevents discoloration.) Combine these fruits with raisins and mayonnaise. Place a mound of this mixture in the center of the orange slices. Top with additional mayonnaise and three raisins.

Valencia Mold
1 tablespoon gelatin
1-2 cups orange juice
1-2 cup sugar
1-2 cup evaporated milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Squeeze oranges to yield one and one-half cups of juice. Soak gelatin in one-fourth cup orange juice and dissolve over hot water. Combine remaining one and one-fourth cups orange juice with sugar. Add gelatin and set in cold place about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally to help dissolve sugar. Chill milk thoroughly and then whip until stiff. Add lemon juice, then fold in the orange-gelatin mixture. Pour into mold to set. Before serving, garnish top of mold with orange sections. Eight servings.

Defensive Battle Seen in Hoosier, Hawkeye Encounter

With a chance to bring their season's Big Ten record to an even 500, Iowa's Hawkeyes leave for Bloomington, Ind., this morning where tomorrow they clash with Bo McMillin's Hoosiers.

A final drill was engaged in by the squad yesterday, a drill that was brief but intensive.

During the course of the session Bob Allen, regular guard, and Charles Tollefson, reserve tackle, suffered knee injuries, but not of a nature serious enough to keep them from making the trip into Indiana.

The Hoosiers' potent aerial attack in mind, Tubbs devoted much of the time to perfecting a defense against this style of play.

The Iowa-Indiana tilt, though it will decide nothing so far as the upper bracket in the Big Ten is concerned, will have a definite importance to members of the Hawkeye squad as it will determine whether or not this team is to have the best record compiled since 1933.

An even break — two wins, two losses and a tie — together with a possible sixth place, depending upon outcomes of other games, will be the reward if the Hawkeyes can defeat the Hoosiers.

Neither team will enter the game with anything in the way of a potent scoring threat. This condition isn't a new one as the same thing has held true in other years and in other games in which the two squads have engaged. Only 46 points have been scored by both teams the last six times the Hawks and Hoosiers have met.

However, Indiana boasts a defense which has held such high geared scoring machines as Ohio State and Wisconsin to six point margins.

The Squad Roster:
Ends — Prasse, Smith, Evans, Pettit, Norgaard, Moore.
Tackles — Brady, Allen, Tollefson, Irvine, Nead, Enich.
Guards — Kelly, Vergamini, Martin, ToSaw, Snider, Conrad.
Centers — Niles, Andruska, McCambridge.

Backs — Eicherly, Kinnick, Olson, Murphy, Schenk, Busk, Huebner, McKinnon, Balazs, McLain, Dean, Blandin.

Veteran Returns
SOUTH BEND, Ind., (AP)—Mario Tonelli, senior Notre Dame fullback hurt in a football game October 22 returned to action yesterday as Coach Elmer Layden's Irish brushed up on their offense for the game with Minnesota's Gophers here tomorrow. Tonelli's return strengthened a backfield weakened by the loss of Bennie Sheridan, halfback hurt Wednesday.

Long Trip
LAWRENCE, Kas., (AP)—The University of Kansas football team left yesterday for its longest trip of the season—to meet George Washington university at Washington, D. C., tomorrow.

Hawket Predominance Due to Consistent, Courageous Play

Naming seven members of the powerful Little Hawk eleven and four from the flashy U-Hi club, The Daily Iowan announces its All-City eleven this morning. The All-City lineup includes: Clarence Crumley, City Hi, at left end; Scotty Larew, U-Hi, left tackle; Stu Mueller, City Hi, left guard; Dave Wright, City Hi, center; Edwin Brender, U-Hi, right guard; Jack Hirt, City Hi, right tackle; Kenneth Walsh, City Hi, right end. In the backfield are Joe McGinnis, City Hi, quarterback; Herman Miller, City Hi, half; Duane Carson, U-Hi, half, and Ed Burns, U-Hi, at full.

Placed on The Daily Iowan second team are Miller, St. Pat's, and Krogh, U-Hi, ends; Morgan, U-Hi, and Dailey, St. Pat's, tackles; White, City Hi and Bye, U-Hi, guards; Parker, City Hi, center. Backfield men included Buckley, City Hi, quarter; McLaughlin, City Hi, and Hightshoe, U-Hi, halves, and Lewis, City Hi, at full.

These lads won their right for places on The Daily Iowan All-City teams by hard and courageous work throughout the season. They played consistent ball. But for the most part they did not have an easy time of it, being pushed all the way by many other outstanding Iowa City prep stars.

The powerful Red and White football machine of City Hi naturally pulled down the greatest number of places on the All-City team. Coach Herb Cormack is a stickler for fundamentals and his boys are all good blockers and tacklers. Dave Wright and Jack Hirt, outstanding members of the Hawket line, should get several mentions on all-state teams.

U-Hi placed four men on the first string. U-Hi has had a successful season this year but have not met the competition that City Hi has. St. Pat's hapless eleven places two men on the second eleven.

The All-City team and the places on The Daily Iowan team: CLARENCE CRUMLEY, left end on the City Hi eleven won All-City honors by his outstanding offensive and defensive play. He played a consistently good game all year and should get some mention on the All-Mississippi Valley conference team. He is an accurate tackler and a vicious blocker. He will play his last game next week.

SCOTT LAREW, senior, the fast and hardest charging man on the U-Hi squad. His speed and alertness made him a standout in every game. On offense he opened many holes through which the Blues' backs ran for good gains.

STU MUELLER, big and good natured, he used his size to a great advantage for the Little Hawks. He was hard to move out of the way on defense and pulled out to lead the interference on many offensive plays. He is surprisingly fast and a good tackler.

DAVE WRIGHT, great Red and White center, won the All-City berth easily. Should get several mentions on all-state and all conference teams. Dependable and rugged, he has yet to make a bad pass this season. Playing tackle or end on defense, Dave is one of the main cogs of that powerful Hawket line through which no team has been able to push a score.

EDWIN BRENDER, senior, one of the smartest guards ever to wear the Blue uniform. On offense he led the interference. His speed and exceptional blocking ability were great assets to the U-Hi eleven. Backed up the line on defense.

JACK HIRT, known as "Crackerjack" because of his good play, is one of the best tackles ever developed at the Red and White stronghold. He is one of Iowa City's best candidates for the all-state team. Fast and rugged, Jack hits 'em hard from the first to the last, never letting up. He was effective in stopping Ira Lund of Clinton, Al Eddy of Franklin and other outstanding backfield stars. A junior and much can be expected of him next year.

Stagg Comes Back to Midway After Six Year Absence

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 (AP)—Athletic Director T. N. Metcalf of Chicago and a score of "C" men, winners of Maroon athletic awards, won't agree with the old-timers who believe football in the old days was better than it is now.

"I've seen football from its infancy," he said, "and there isn't any doubt that teams generally are better now. Coaching is better, more high school teams are playing better ball and both attack and defense are better than they used to be. The game still is coming along—and its a great game, isn't it?"

Three and Three
Stagg's team has won three and lost as many games this season, capturing its last two contests impressively from Nevada and Fresno State. The Maroons have lost four, tied one and won once this year.

Mrs. Stagg, described by the veteran coach as "a better cook than I'll ever be," didn't make the trip.

"Where is she?" said Stagg with a grin. "Oh, she's scouting Chicago State college for me. We met them after Chicago."

Swimming Squad Rounding Into Good Condition

With the recovery of Al Armbruster from an attack of influenza and the replacement of a broken diving board, the Iowa swimming squad and its equipment are again at nearly full force, lacking only the presence of Carl Ahlgren and Francis Heydt to make the roster complete.

Ahlgren, promising sophomore distance swimmer from Des Moines, went to the hospital yesterday for a minor operation. He is expected to be ready to go before the season starts. Heydt, who has also been laid up with a minor ailment, will return to practice next week. Outside of Ahlgren and Heydt, the squad is in good condition, according to Coach Dave Armbruster.

Touching Scene
There was a touching scene as the United States Lawn Tennis association kissed Budge and the Davis cup goodbye. President Holcombe Ward joined Pate in wishing Budge every happiness.

Close
"I guess it will be close," he mused. "We went at it outdoors a couple of years ago. He won two sets and I won two and then we stopped when we were two-all in the fifth set. However, I expect he'll knock a lot of them right by me when we first start playing indoors."

50 Matches
Budge and Vines will play approximately 50 matches this winter. Harris said, touching most important cities. If the proceeds are great enough, Budge might make more than the $75,000. He has a percentage privilege. Later, the defaulting world amateur king will make a similar tour against Fred Perry.

Little Hawks, Albia Set For Battle Tonight
With a drying field, the Iowa City high school Hawketts last night awaited the invasion of Albia, the undefeated champions of the southern league. The game will start at 7:45 p.m. on Shrader field.

Budge Does the Expected And Signs to Play Pro Tennis

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—would not affect Budge's ranking as the national No. 1 amateur for 1938. He is similarly ranked in Australia, France and in the unofficial "world first 10" prepared by Wallis Myers of England.

Walter Pate, captain of the American Davis cup team, announced Budge already had 25,000 in his pants pocket, representing the initial payment. Promoter Jack Harris agreed to pay the 23-year-old redhead 25,000 additional slugs March 1, and the final 25,000 at the close of the tour.

Those who watched Don vade through the world's other top amateurs with almost laughable ease last season doubt that Vines will be able to hold him once Budge gets the hang of the in-cede game. Vines and Perry, incidentally, made only about $17,000 apiece last season, Harris revealed, which indicates that the pro-game was badly in need of the new blood Budge will supply.

Football Deaths Show Another Sharp Decline

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 10 (AP)—Football fatalities in high school, college, sandlot and athletic club games show a decrease for the second straight year, according to a preliminary report issued today by Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of Purdue university, who makes an annual survey of gridiron vital statistics for the American Football Coaches association and the N. C. A. A.

Fourteen deaths directly attributable to football and five indirectly due to football have been recorded through Nov. 7. Last year, for the same period, there were 16 deaths for which football was directly responsible.

Of the 14 fatalities, only one was reported from the colleges, that of Martin B. Morrow, 21-year old player for Morgan Park junior college in Chicago. Morrow died Nov. 5 of a cerebral hemorrhage, which, with skull fractures and internal injuries, was found by Dr. Eastwood to be one of the chief causes of death.

Seven fatalities were reported from high schools, four from sandlots and two from athletic clubs. Of the indirect fatalities, there were two each from the colleges and high schools and one from athletic clubs. Pneumonia, septicaemia, dilated heart and asphyxiation accounted for these deaths.

The seven high school deaths directly due to football were a drop of four from the same period in 1937; the four sandlot deaths were one more than last year; there were athletic club fatalities last year as this season, while there were no college deaths for this period in 1937.

'We're Up To Stay'—Crisler

ANN ARBOR, Mich., (AP)—When Herbert Orrin (Pitt) Crisler stepped off a train here last spring, after accepting a job as head football coach at the University of Michigan, he commented:

"I've had enough of 'here today and there tomorrow.' This is my last move. My constitution can't stand any more changes."

Today the taciturn Crisler is Michigan's man-of-the-hour. In the short space of a few weeks Michigan's forces, after four years of groping in the gridiron wilderness, have entered a thunderous bid for new recognition as a football power.

Snead Wins In Open Tourney

Veteran Golfer Wins First Prize Again

'Swingin' Sam' Makes Comeback In Final Stages

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 10 (AP) — Firing a spectacular 32 on the final nine holes, Sam Snead came through late today with a seven under par 273 for the 72-hole White Sulphur open golf tournament to win the first prize in the $3,000 event by two strokes over Ky Laffoon of Chicago.

It was a courageous, heart-warming comeback that added $700 to Snead's tournament earnings for a $18,272 total this year, after he had slipped to two over par on the first nine in the final round. He wound up with a 68, two under par and one lower than his morning round.

Comeback
Laffoon, with steady, errorless golf that kept him under par on every round, led Snead by a stroke as the final nine began. But the hard-working westerner couldn't match the slamming home pro's pace thereafter.

Tied for third were Johnny Bulla, chunky young Chicagoan, Billy Burke of Belleair, Fla., and Sammy Byrd, the former New York Yankee outfielder of Philadelphia, with 277s.

Snead came up to the 18th hole this morning with the situation well in hand and shooting for a 66 that would have put him four strokes ahead of Laffoon and Bulla, who shot sensational golf during the morning round to come within striking distance.

Tough Goal
Snead's test shot on the 140-yard hole was about 25 feet from the pin and his first putt was two feet off, but his putt rimmed the cup and rolled off two inches to one side. Snead pecked at the ball one handed as he walked by and it clicked twice against the over par five for the hole.

On the 535-yard 12th Sam's second shot hit the pole and dropped within inches of the cup and Sam dropped it for an eagle three, then birdied the 14th and 17th.

Laffoon who carded 69-69-68-69-275 for $450 second money was the only other player to crack par every trip. Burke, Byrd and Bulla took $283.33 each.

Under Par
Jimmy Thomson's final day spurge of 65-70 rounds gave the Shawnee, Pa., pro a two under par 278 good for $180 and Ed Dudley of Philadelphia zipped a 69 over on his final round to tie Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., with $150 rewarding their 279s.

Dick Metz of Lake Forest, Ill., fired a 67 on the morning round today to get into the race and shared $220 with 24-year-old Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., unattached pro on their 280s.

Pivot Post In Doubt as Hawk Cagers Drill

With forward and guard positions apparently well fortified, but with a big question mark still hanging above the all-important pivot post, the Hawkeye cage squad ended another week's practice last night.

Although the center position will be strengthened by the presence, after the football season, of Dick Evans, it is here that the strength of the Iowa team seems most doubtful, as none of the three centers available has had a great deal of experience. Charles Plett and Kenneth Bastian, the other two pivot men, are both improving, but it is possible that Coach Rollie Williams may shift Angelo Anapol, a flashy sophomore forward, or Fred Hohenhorst, one of last year's guards, to center in an effort to add to the team's scoring power. Last night, in the absence of Bastian, Bob Jenkins was shifted from a guard post to work against Plett. However, Jenkins also lacks the experience necessary to make him a scoring threat against Big Ten competition.

At the forwards, Anapol and Captain Benny Stephens appear certain to get the call, unless one of them is displaced by the return of Nile Kinick.

The guard posts, though, are far from settled yet. Besides two veterans of last year's team, Hohenhorst and Joe Murray, a pair of sophomores who have been doing good work on the floor in addition to hitting the hoop consistently. Last night a third sophomore, Louis Selzer of Passaic, New Jersey, was also receiving attention. Later the

Picking 'Em

How and Why In Big Ten Games

By JACK MAHR

Daily Iowan Sports Writer

Indiana-Iowa—My pick is Indiana. The Hoosiers have been playing good ball all year, but the breaks have been against them. Bo McMillin always has at least one major victory chalked up every year and it looks like this is the game. They outplayed Ohio State and Boston College, but were on the short end both times. It should be a close battle, but playing on the home grounds the Hoosiers.

Minnesota-Notre Dame — The Golden Gophers to get revenge on the fighting Irish. The Gophers will be the underdogs in this battle, but that is when the Gophers play their best ball. The Minnesotans will be in good physical shape for this game. Moore and Buhler should chalk up much yardage.

Michigan-Northwestern — The coin says Michigan. Michigan will be playing on their home grounds, before a packed stadium. That battle with Wisconsin last week will slow up the Northwestern attack considerably. Michigan by seven points, this one might go wide open.

Illinois-Ohio State — The Buckeyes to bounce back after a hard struggle. The Bucks will be crippled, but they have enough reserves to come through.

Wisconsin-U. C. L. A. — This game probably will be the closest in Big Ten play this week. Wisconsin, the victor over the Wildcats last week, looks like the choice here. Of course the long trip will slow them down some. The U. C. L. A. Bruins are improving every week and might knock the Badgers for a loop.

Chicago-Col. (Pacific) — Chicago to win their second game of the year. Chicago looks too good for the little band of boys from the Pacific coast. There is, however, a chance for an upset, but not very likely.

On and Off The Field

The track season isn't too far off now as anybody can see who visits the fieldhouse these afternoons. Merrill Harkness is practicing his discus throwing.

One of the candidates for the Minnesota basketball team this year will be a boy named Young. His brother Jewell set the pace in the Big Ten scoring race last year. If this Minnesota lad can do only half as good he will be a whizz.

Now that one of the Teufel twins is wearing a bandage over one eye we can tell them apart. Oh yeah, which one is wearing it? Is it Carl or is it Fred?

Big Ten Briefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 10 (AP) — Ohio State university's football team hustled through a ground drill today with Jimmy Strausbaugh, sophomore halfback leading the way. Quarterback Mike Kabealo and Frank Zadworney, right half, were featured in the running attack while Jimmy Sexton and Bill Bullock took charge of the passing. Thirty five members of the squad will leave tomorrow morning for the game with Illinois Saturday.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 10 (AP) — Halfback Lou Brock punted a football 81 yards out of bounds on the six yard line in a Purdue scrimmage today as the Boiler-makers practiced for their game with Indiana here November 19. Coach Mal Elvards said he had scheduled hard workouts the rest of this week and the first of next to be followed by short tapering-off sessions.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 10 (AP) — A passing attack by Northwestern against Michigan was indicated clearly today when Coach Lynn Waldort put the Wildcats through a long aerial drill and announced the squads' best receivers, Ted Grefe and Bob Daly, would start against the Wolverines.

Greve and Daly will replace regulars Tom Eby and Captain back court situation will be further complicated by the return of Erwin Prasse.

After the practice last night, Williams announced that the squad will drill on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights next week, and that he would probably add a Saturday morning session to the week's schedule. Daily practice will begin the following week.

BITS about Sports

By J. DENNIS SULLIVAN

Mr. Toney Galento—a portly gentleman, who divides his time between overseeing his beer dispensing establishment and engaging in an occasional fistic duel—has expressed his willingness—even downright anxiousness—to get Mr. Louis, lightning-fisted heavyweight champion of the world, into the ring to settle the question of who's the better man.

Now Mr. Galento seems to be a fine fellow. Other than taking an occasional drink—most people do—nothing in the way of a serious charge has ever been brought to bear on his reputation.

That being the case, granting he is a fine fellow, why isn't he content to let it ride at that and snub Mr. Louis. As a matter of fact it might be a good idea if he forgot there was such a person as Mr. Louis—if it's at all possible for one in the fight game to forget such a matter.

Mr. Galento is doubtless a good second-rater. But good second-raters have no business in the same ring with Mr. Louis when Mr. Louis feels like performing an operation, and judging from results, he usually feels that way.

Reports from the east have it that Mr. Galento is so certain of his ability to outscramble the champ that he's ready to bet a sizeable sum of money on the outcome of the bout—if and when. That seems to be a rather foolish manner of disposing of any loose change he might have laying around. He's a cinch to hit the deck at the precise moment Mr. Louis feels disposed to place him there—if they fight.

A win tomorrow over McMillan's Hoosiers would give the Hawkeyes a 500 rating in Big Ten play. That would be rather noteworthy as the 1933 edition was the last team to rate as well. However, the Iowa brigade is given the short end of odds in what betting has been placed on the game.

Although the swimming season is still in the distant future, the word from those who follow closely the deeds of Iowa mermen is that this year's team is to be a "dinger." Armbruster is anything but laconic about the squad's chances, but he seems to have what it takes.

Panthers Drill

CHICAGO, (AP) — Pittsburgh's Panthers en route to Lincoln for their game with Nebraska tomorrow, snapped through a light and secret drill at the University of Chicago's Stag field yesterday. Dr. Joek Sutherland's orders to bar all spectators from the workout were enforced rigidly. The team continued its strip after the drill.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 (AP) — Chicago's Coach Clark Shaughnessy lamented today that his team "doesn't have a chance" against College of the Pacific, coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg, Maroon mentor for 41 years.

Shaughnessy's comment came as the Maroons brushed up their running attack in a light workout which found Jim Cassels, former reserve center, taking over sophomore Dave Weidman's left tackle post. Cassels will start against the westerners Saturday.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 10 (AP) — New plays shared a place with drill on pass defense, punting and place kicking today as Michigan prepared for Northwestern's invasion of Ann Arbor Saturday.

Except for Captain Fred Janke, left tackle, who is a casualty, the Wolverines were in good shape. Don Seigel moved across the line to Janke's place and Bill Smith filled in at right tackle.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10 (AP) — The return of Larry Buhler and Marty Christiansen, the Gophers line-wrecking fullbacks, to practice after a day's absence was a cheerful note in the Minnesota camp today as the squad went through its last hard drill in preparation for Notre Dame. Buhler had been out of action two days with a head cold and Christiansen missed Wednesday's practice with an infected toe. Their return brings the Gopher squad to full strength.

was given the nod at the right end post. He and Crumley are two of the better ends ever to wear the Red and White uniform. Their play reminds Little Hawk fans of the days of Jens "Sea-cow" Norgaard and "Able Al" Miller. "Knobby" is a great defensive man, very little yardage being made around his end this year. He turned in end runs to the tackle with regularity. He is a senior.

JOE MCGINNIS, clever Little Hawk backfield ace, has the strongest claim for the quarterback post. Besides calling signals from whatever position he played on the Cornsack eleven, he was the best punter in the Mississippi Valley conference and one of the better passers. In addition he is a great blocker and can run when the occasion demands. A good defensive man. A senior.

"HAMMERING HERMAN MILLER gets the halfback post but only after being forced to play his best by the Little Hawks other half—Ted Lewis. The two were the most powerful backfield men to wear the Red and White uniform. "Hammering Herman" won his name after plowing through Mt. Vernon for nearly 150 yards in 10 tries. A great defensive man and one of the better line backers in the state, Miller never played a poor game and his presence was a distinct threat at all times. Herman rarely misses a try for point after touchdown or field goal. His record is as impressive as Norgaard's. Playing his last game next week.

ED BURNS, senior fullback, known to team mates as "Big Ed." Burns was the spark of the U-Hi team, a great passer, blocker and punter. Ed's outstanding achievements include his completing 12 of 15 passes against Monticello, six of the entire season Burns had only two passes intercepted by opponents. Burns was used to back up the line where he usually spilled the opposing backs before they could get under way.

DUANE CARSON, senior halfback, one of the best backs ever to wear a U-Hi uniform. Duane, by virtue of his speed and shifty running, was the most feared back on the Blues' squad. His ability to side step would-be tacklers together with swiftness afoot made him the leading U-Hi scorer. Duane's pet scoring play was the lateral pass combination — Burns to Carson.

Iowa State Goes Through Drill For Crucial Game
AMES, Nov. 10 (AP) — Iowa State college gridgers scammed through a fast, hard scrimmage today, concentrating on pass offense and defense in preparation for their crucial game with Kansas State at Manhattan Saturday.

Injured Boswell and Wilder were still on the sidelines, but Coach Jim Yeager said Boswell would start Saturday and Wilder would be used if in condition.

Meanwhile Griswold retained the backfield berth, with B15s scrimmaging in Boswell's position.

Soap-Boxers Say Their Piece; St. Ambrose Record Is Praised by Backer

By PAUL MICKELSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) — The old professor's soap box, dedicated to the voice of the peepul, got soaked with stinging oratory this week. Pittsburgh's defeat by Carnegie Tech opened the speech-making flood gates.

"Just thought I'd wait until Pitt got it in the neck before sounding off." is the way many letters began. Some were kind to the experts, some very critical, and a few were downright mean. It seems to the professor that several hundred thousand fans were deliriously happy because the mighty Panther got caged, proving a football reputation is a very dangerous possession. Chances are Pitt has 10 times as many admirers today as a week ago because it proved a human team that could be licked.

Excerpts
From the speech of the soap boxers, excluding the Pitt blasts:
John Roach, Johnson City, Tenn.: "We 'uns down south still think Tennessee could give any team in the nation plenty of hell, because they've never opened up on anyone so far. Probably everyone will forget she knocked off Alabama, L. S. U. and Auburn."
A. F., San Diego, Cal.: "Nobody can say which is the best football team but Santa Clara has the best record. In the last three years, since Buck Shaw has been

Oklahoma's Tom Tom Stidham Brewing Over Bitter Medicine

NORAN, Okla., Nov. 10 (AP) — Dangling ten straight scalps from his belt, Coach "Tom Tom" Stidham is brewing more bitter medicine for the rivals of his University of Oklahoma gridiron warriors.

The wily creek Indian mentor, undefeated in six games this year and four at the end of last year, will send his powerful Sooners against Missouri, Iowa State, Oklahoma A. & M., and Washington State in order, with good chances of chalking up a perfect record to end his second year as head coach.

Injured I. U. Grider O. K. Sophomore Backs May Play Against Hawkeyes Saturday

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 10 (AP) — Indiana University's injured gridmen seemed to be getting well today just for the game with Iowa here Saturday. Team physicians told Coach Bo McMillin Joe Toifl, sophomore back out since October 1, would be able to play Saturday and Joe Nicholson, pass throwing halfback, might play. If Archie Harris, Negro end, and Russell Sloss, center, recover too, the Hoosiers will be at full strength for their last two games. The team, badly in need of scoring punch, practiced offense from the 20-yard line.

Construction of a $260,000 auditorium will be started on the Tulane university campus soon, Dr. Rufus C. Harris, president, has announced.

Loss of Hennessey, Holoubek Expected To Bother Marians

With but two veterans returning from last year's team, St. Mary's Coach Suelpel will have to start from scratch to build a winning basketball combination.

George Chadek and Jack Bock, co-captains, are the two lone veterans around which Coach Suelpel will build his team.

The absence of two stars of last year, Hennessey, stalwart guard, and Holoubek, sterling pivot man, will likely prove a handicap to the Marians unless some sophomores pop up with more than average ability.

At present, 20 men are regularly reporting for practice.

Nurses Stationed In Banks Aid Roll Call Beginning Today

By ART BELLAIRE
Today when the living are paying respects to the dead, the Red Cross is beginning its annual roll call. It will extend through Nov. 24.

In an attempt to restore the familiar picture of the friendly nurse, arrangements have been made through cooperation of both hospitals to place two nurses in each bank tomorrow and Wednesday, Walter Meinzer, chairman of the roll call board, announced.

Fifty cents from each subscription will be sent to the national headquarters at Washington. The balance, over half, will remain in Johnson county to be used in first aid, life saving, home hygiene, educational programs and relief in case of emergency, Mr. Meinzer said.

Scientists--

reported tonight that this human "egg" not only had not been fertilized but had been freshly produced.

They placed it in a drop of clear, water-white serum extracted from human blood which was allowed to hang from a glass plate so that the ovum within could be clearly seen under a microscope.

The tiny "egg" had a transparent covering through which was visible the vitellus, or yolk, certain yellowish granules and a colored object, or "body" near the edge.

The hanging drop was placed on a micro-dissecting table where, under a microscope, two finely pointed needles could be mechanically manipulated.

One needle point was pushed lightly against the transparent covering of the ovum. The needle made a dent, but did not penetrate, which the experimenters said showed the ovum covering is slightly elastic but quite tough. It is through this covering that a sperm enters an ovum in fertilization. A second, harder pressure caused the needle to penetrate. It was immediately withdrawn.

Twenty minutes later, the report declared, this ovum began to show the very first steps that ovum is ready to divide.

This division of the beginning of an embryo, Division in the Philadelphia case was only partial. But other spontaneous changes were described which the experimenters said proved that parthenogenesis when a really fertilized, genogetic activity had really started.

"It is concluded," their report stated, "that the human ovum is capable of being artificially stimulated to parthenogenetic activity." The background which led to this experiment is sensational. Human ova have only recently become available for scientific testing, due to advances in surgery.

But meanwhile a few scientists have carried parthenogenesis, in their laboratories, to the higher animals. This year Dr. Gregory C. Pincus of Clark university reported that he had taken rabbit ova from their virgin mothers, subjected these eggs to chemicals,

AROUND THE TOWN

SHORT REMEMBER -- LONG FORGET

Anyway, the Tom Martin family'll be quite the handsomest folks this district's had representing it in D. C. for some time. . . By the by, Tom traveled 28,000 miles in his campaign. . . 16,000 before the primary, 12,000 since. . .

Incidentally, put it on the books that there's no little complaining about parking facilities at University theater. . . Some of us'd just once like to play-go without muddy feet. . .

And what about that space by the fine arts building? . . . Why are we continuously directed away from that? . . . Concluding, why not take up a collection to get rid of the mud? . . .

replanted them in a female rabbit and that several young had been born.

The origin of this work was about 30 years ago when Loeb fertilized a sea urchin egg by pricking it with a needle.

The Lankenau scientists said they had obtained to date four other human ova. These they said showed not the slightest evidence of starting spontaneous development when not tampered with. They said further experiments on other ova would be reported later.

This first human experiment in scientific history was not taken as evidence that "laboratory babies" are possible. Reimann and Miller made no comment on that angle. But the discovery was of immediate scientific value for, the report stated, even the start of parthenogenesis is possible in human beings, it may explain certain ovarian cysts, some tumors and some questions asked by cancer experts. Some of these growths could be from ova which had started spontaneously to divide in the parthenogenetic way.

changes, most of which offset each other.

Final unofficial adjusted totals in the governor's race gave: Wilson 438,657, Kraschel 381,383, Short (F.L.) 4,495, Wirts (Prog) 669, Mitchell (Prohi) 317.

The legislative turnover lifted the G. O. P. from an even-Stephen position in the house to one of a nearly top-heavy majority. Last session the republicans held 54 house seats and the democrats the same number. The 1937 legislative roster listed 29 republican senators and 21 democrats.

The new deal party won only one senatorship battle, in the 42nd senatorial district where Edward H. Vrba (D) of Cresco trimmed State Sen. Sam D. Goetsch of

I hate to keep mentioning it, and it probably has nothing to do with the state of democracy, nationally. . . But it has a great deal to do with freedom and intellectual integrity on the Iowa campus. . .

My friend, Sol Friedman, has at least half a dozen times placed his short advertisement for freelance photographic work on the Quadrangle bulletin board. . . And each time some one man, someone who must hate having to know himself, has written a single word across the face of it. . .

The word, if you haven't guessed, is "Jude."

And another to me alarming fact is that the Iowa Union tea

Decorah. Goetsch, however, served in the Iowa senate as a democrat but ran this time as a republican.

Vrba's triumph was the outstanding political "promotion" of the campaign. Last session he was a clerk in the Iowa house.

The only other "competitive" senatorial contest won by the democrats was in Dubuque county where Howard Baldwin (D) was re-elected without opposition. The other 10 democratic senators are holdovers from the last session.

Election--

membership would give such forces a majority. On some past issues, many more than 48 democrats have deserted the administration. In the senate, the republicans would have to pick up 26 democratic votes to assume command.

In the light of this situation, Washington's most popular game was speculating on what would happen when congress meets again. To most minds, the alternatives were some measure of capitulation to conservative opinion on the part of the president or two years of governmental deadlock.

A prominent congressional republican said that if the president should insist upon following an unchanged course, he would be beaten badly in congress. At the same time, should the republicans seek to undo major new deal legislation already enacted, the possibility of a presidential veto and the necessity of mustering a two thirds majority against Mr. Roosevelt in both houses was regarded as hanging over the conservative forces.

Thus, many thought the result depended upon Mr. Roosevelt's own interpretation of what the election meant, and his own decision as to what course he would follow. He could, seek opinion ran, seek compromise and cooperation, or lay down the gauntlet and battle it out for two years leading up to the 1940 presidential election.

In predicting that the democratic party might draft Mr. Roosevelt for a third term effort, Secretary Ickes said he based his view on the confusion of issues underlying Tuesday's elections.

dances are mere recorded music these days. . . Have been thus far this year. . .

The reason? . . . Trouble with the local musicians union; that's what I'd been hearing. . . And it's true, far as it goes. . . Seems the boys ask too much—all of them students at the University of Iowa, all of them working their way through school the hard way, nights until 3 in the morning, missing classes on afternoons, getting by on three and four hours sleep.

These fellows want $15 for a 10-piece orchestra of a Wednesday afternoon. . . And the University of Iowa can't seem to afford it. . . Need I add a comment? . . .

If you hear me screaming, it'll be because somebody's giving another speech on how to save democracy. . .

I hadn't remembered until just now. . . But the rumor in London is that Neville Chamberlain has false teeth. . . This information is free. . .

NOTE FOR ASPIRING JOURNALISTS: The Chicago Tribune for yesterday morning reports,

"The G. O. P. gained upwards of 80 seats in the house." . . The Des Moines Register reports, "Republicans gained 74 seats." . . The Daily Iowan, through Associated Press, reports, "G. O. P. gains 77 seats in house."

There are errors — honest mistakes in reporting. . . Then there are just mistakes. . .

It really doesn't matter what you do, as long as you do it commercially. . . Take the two national poets appearing on the Iowa campus this year. . .

Pulitzer prize winner Robert Frost has enough for his three daily meals and a little to furnish his New England farm. . . But that's all. . . Pulitzer prize winner Archibald MacLeish paid $43,000 income tax last year. . .

Mrs. Bruce Mahan has a suggestion worthy of consideration. . . I pass it on for public comment, consideration. . .

"Would it not be interesting, before the echoes of Religious Emphasis week die away, to stage a contest in which the vote of honor would be given to the best answer to the question What is Religion. . . It would be understood, of course, that the answer be not a stereotyped definition but one formulated from the writer's own sincerity and understanding." . .

Well, comment please. . .

Thought I liked the music last night, as you'll see elsewhere this morning. . . But while I heard it I kept thinking a thought that had nothing to do with tone qualities or art. . . It was simply to wonder which ones of those boys will die first, when the coming war starts, I mean. . .

1939 Honorary Cadet Colonel Candidates Named by Dailey

Cadet Colonel Will Be Presented at Ball By Military Students

Col. George F. N. Dailey is today announcing the five university women who have been selected as candidates for the honor of being this year's honorary cadet colonel. These candidates include Henrietta Bonnell, A4 of Eldridge; Mildred Fitzgerald, A4 of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Harriet Ludens, A4 of Morrison, Ill.; Marjorie Moburg, P4 of Geneseo, Ill., and Barbara Mueller, A4 of Davenport.

Selected by the advanced military students, the honorary cadet colonel will be presented at the Military Ball. The other four will serve as honorary lieutenant colonels.

Miss Bonnell is a resident of Coast house and a member of the German club.

Miss Fitzgerald is an active member of Delta Gamma sorority and a member of Mortar board. Other activities include treasurer and vice president of Seals club, secretary of the Student Art guild and a member of the University chorus. She has served on the Hawkeye business staff, is a member of Women's Athletic association, and a member of Y. W. C. A. She was a leader and a member of the council of Freshman Orientation, on the University Reception committee, a member of the Junior Prom committee, and the pledge mistress of her sorority.

Miss Ludens is an active member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and is the president of the chapter. She is the vice-president of Mortar Board. Her activities include Apprentice Players, W. A. A., membership council of Y. W. C. A., and she has served in the University Women's association as point system chairman, treasurer, and vice-president. Chairman of the art exhibit, Homecoming Party committee, and Club Cabaret committee have been her duties for Union Board. She has served on the Freshman Party committee, university social committee, and Sophomore Cotillion committee. She was a Freshman Orientation leader, Mecca queen attendant, a member of the university social committee, and a member of the Home Economics club.

Currier hall's candidate, Miss Moburg, is the president of the dormitory and a member of Mortar Board. Her activities in the college of pharmacy include vice-president of Rho Chi, vice-president of Kappa Epsilon, vice-president of the Pharmaceutical association for students, and secretary-treasurer of the senior pharmacy class. She was a member of the freshman orientation council, Y. W. C. A. and the Spinsters' Spree committee. She is a member of Union Board.

Miss Mueller is an active member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and historian for Mortar Board. Her activities include society editor of Hawkeye, a member of the Frivol staff, and a member of Y. W. C. A. She serves on the University Social committee and is the vice-president of Coffee hour, Spinsters' Spree committee, and activities program for freshman lectures.

Frances Vogel Will Entertain Friends Tonight

Frances Vogel, A1 of Davenport, is entertaining a group of friends at a 6 o'clock dinner in the French dining room at Currier hall tonight.

Guests for the pre-Spinster's Spree dinner are Mary Frances Beck, A3 of Davenport; Josephine Helbe of Davenport; Imogene McDonald, A2 of Pella; Louis Wurl, A1 of N. Towanda, N. Y.; William DeHart, G of Albuquerque, N. Mex.; Karl Beck, A4 of Davenport, and Samuel McHose, G of Nevada.

TODAY With WSUI

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHTS
Armistice Day Programs
A re-creation of events preceding the World war including a portion of the senate debate before the entrance of this country into the war, is written into the script by Edith Foth, G of Topeka, Kan., for the Armistice day program at 9:30 tonight. The program was given Monday night and is being repeated by request.

The Armistice day tribute program, being broadcast from the steps of Old Capitol at 10:45, is sponsored by the American Legion post. Prof. Mason Ladd of the college of law will be heard.

Another program in commemoration of the signing of the armistice will be on the air at 7:30. Margaret Freerkens, A1 of Freeport, Ill., will give a 10 minute oratorical declamation on peace "I Am Innocent of This Blood."

Spinsters' Spree
Bernie Cummins and his orchestra can be heard at 9 o'clock playing from the main lounge of Iowa Union where the annual Spinsters' Spree will be held.

Production Shows
Two production shows, which are rapidly becoming the most talked-about highlights of WSUI's calendar of events, will be presented today under the direction of Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department.

They are "The Parade of Events" at 8 o'clock tonight, and the repeat broadcast of the Armistice day program at 9:30 tonight. Both broadcasts are presented through the combined efforts of students themselves, who are responsible for the production from the preparation of script to the last announcement at the end.

C. Black Marries Geraldine Gates In Methodist Church

White and lavender chrysanthemums against a background of palms provided the setting for the marriage of Geraldine Gates, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. S. E. Gates of Adair, to Craig Black of Chicago. The ceremony took place Nov. 2 in the Methodist church of Adair.

Entering with her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attired in a gray costume suit with a cut beaver collar and wore a corsage of lavender orchids. The Rev. Ivan R. Mills officiated at the ceremony.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to friends and relatives of the family.

Mrs. Black is a graduate of the university and has been teaching at Gregg college in Chicago. Mr. Black is a graduate of Poughkeepsie college of New York.

The couple are now at home in Chicago, where Mr. Black is assistant-manager of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in that office.

ROMANCE UNDER

BY OREN ARNOLD

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, with the aid of her mother-in-law, rents a cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, in preparation for the launching of a unique business venture. Bob Towne, football end and campus hero, and some of the other students, are arrested by the new sign in front of the Davis cottage announcing a "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE." Sara Sue explains her Cottage Plan to a group of students and finds them greatly interested. Bob Towne even asks HER for a date. Against her better judgment, Sara Sue goes dancing with Senior Towne. She enjoys the evening, but as he leaves her he kisses her impetuously. When an insignificant-looking freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls in her club, Sara Sue is amused and interested. That evening a girl in a car stops in front of her house and insults the pretty widow. The caller proves to be Peaches Pomeroy, a senior, who has been accepted as Bob Towne's girl the previous college year. After 99 students had joined her Plan, Sara Sue is routed from her bath one night to find another caller on her doorstep in the pouring rain.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 7

WHEN SARA SUE DAVIS slipped on her negligee at 11 p.m. to answer her front door bell, she had no intention of admitting anyone. She imagined it might be an emergency call. Possibly a telegram. Or — or — anything. She peeked through her tiny window to see the bow-legged man standing in the rain. Then she unlatched the door and opened it a crack. "The cottage is closed for the night," she told him.

"Oh, please—"

She did not know him. But he held out his hand in supplication. He was well dressed. He was youngish, but the horn-rimmed glasses he wore made him appear older; they and his strained expression. He seemed to be in some sort of trouble. He spoke haltingly at first. Almost a whisper.

"Please, I beg of you—I must see you! You are Mrs. Davis?"

Sara Sue had a normal curiosity. This obviously was no student.

"Yes, I am Mrs. Davis?"

"Mrs.—ah—Sara Sue Davis? Ah—Incorporated?"

"Incorporated," nodded Sara Sue. It was interesting her more and more.

"I realize it is quite late, but please do not take umbrage. I am Dr. Holgate."

"Oh yes, Dr. Holgate."

He looked it. One of the new professors. That classified him, all right. Sara Sue smiled a trifle.

"I—ah, I must—I came to avail myself of your confidential services, madam. You have no idea how urgent—"

"Oh, but Dr. Holgate, it is late. The cottage is closed for the night. In fact, I was just retiring when you rang. And besides—"

"Oh, please! I beg of you!"

"—besides, my memberships are for students and are all taken and—"

"Oh my dear Mrs. Davis! All! Am I, then, so late?"

Sara Sue studied the man closely. Was this some sort of gag? Was Bob Towne behind this? She opened the door an inch wider to inspect him.

He could be nothing but sincere. She restrained an urge to laugh at him, for he did look comical there in the rain. All at once it dawned on her that she was being rather ungracious, inhospitable. The rain and wind were cold.

"Please step in for a moment, anyway," she invited. "No, not quite all my memberships are taken. But Dr. Holgate, I had no idea that any of the faculty would be interested. I mean—"

"It is most irregular, madam. I can readily understand your astonishment. But—when one is in dire need, one searches for any panacea. And I—"

"Yes?"

"Frankly, Mrs. Davis, I am a somewhat lonely man. That is, I am not wholly gregarious. But I have—I have—well, I am in need of such counsel as you advertise."

If the man had not been so intent, so obviously straining for his confession, Sara Sue should surely have laughed out loud at him. But Sara Sue had been reared a lady.

"If you mean that you wish to meet some friendly, companionable people, Mr. Holgate, I am sure that is just splendid. And I should be glad to introduce—"

"Oh, no! No, no! Or maybe yes. But immediately, madam, the need is much more urgent. The fact is, Mrs. Davis, I wish guidance in romance. I am—ha ha, myself in love!"

The sigh of relief was so comical, the confession so obviously an embarrassment, that Sara Sue did laugh at him then. But she was promptly apologized.

"Please come in, Dr. Holgate! I should not have kept you standing here in the entrance way. But you realize it really is rather late, and I was hardly expecting such a call!"

"To be sure. Thank you, indeed."

She left him then, and went to her kitchen. She had a hunch that Cleopatra and Calculus might have left some hot coffee, and in that she was right. Dr. Holgate, chilled by the storm, accepted his cup gratefully. He advised Mrs. Davis, from a somewhat pompous height, which did not frighten Sara Sue, that she was a most gracious hostess. She smiled her thanks.

Any man will expand spiritually when his stomach is warmed. Sara Sue Davis is just one of a billion or so observing girls who know it. A cup of coffee and a dish of cookies have worked many a miracle since time began.

Dr. Holgate welcomed the food as something for his nervous hands to attend to while he tried to approach the details of his call.

"So you are in love, Dr. Holgate," Sara Sue resumed presently. "I think that is wonderful, sir! May I congratulate you. And I am honored that you think I may help."

"Then I may join your—your Plan?"

He paused, cup in mid-air, for her answer.

"Well—" she hadn't meant exactly that.

"Please—I will pay anything, any fee. I have quite a good salary, my dear Mrs. Davis. I could pay double, or triple, or—"

She laughed, again.

After all, why not, she asked herself. She was serving Rice. She had expected to chaperone and guide the students only, but if a faculty man really needed and wanted her help, couldn't he be accepted, too? Also, she thought, candidly, faculty approval should not harm her in a business way; the faculty controls a school.

"I see no reason why not, Dr. Holgate. But the fee will be just the same. Three dollars a month, in advance. Remember that I promise little, I do promise to give members private advice if they ask it, but I do not operate a matrimonial bureau or anything of the sort. In fact, I hadn't expected—"

"No, I daresay not, Mrs. Davis. But as I indicated, I am a lonely man. I have several degrees. A doctorate. I am well schooled. I have had no time for love, nor thought of it. But now—it has come! May I speak quite frankly?"

"Please do. It shall be in strict confidence."

"Oh! Yes. Yes, by all means. Well, then I was asked to an entertainment, a reception or something. It seemed advisable to go—this is my first faculty position anywhere, you realize—and she was there! She paid quite deliberate attention to me!"

He turned toward Sara Sue in his enthusiasm. She nodded.

"She was tastefully attired. She wore—I am told you ladies are interested in such things—she wore a black, ah—" He paused to swallow, and think.

"I know," Sara Sue said, quietly. "Black. With a touch of gold."

"Yes! You know her?"

"No, sir, but it's a good guess, always," she smiled again.

"Oh! Doubtless. And she was quite interested—"

"In you and your work," supplied Sara Sue.

"Yes! My dear madam, you are a woman of remarkable acumen!"

"Please proceed, Dr. Holgate."

"There is no more. Except that—that—well, frankly I am deeply smitten of her. I have experienced no such sensations since my youth. I am now well along toward 30, I fear. And I am convinced that human destiny includes pairing. In short, marriage, Mrs. Davis. Of course I dared not speak to her of this. I am not of her station. I mean to say, she moves in quite a different sphere, I dare say. She was so utterly at ease. So beautiful. So charming. But, Mrs. Davis—I must impress her somehow! I must!"

Sara Sue could tell that he was desperately in earnest, and she felt a quick surge of sympathy. She herself had known poignant love. She understood.

"I promise to help you in every way I can, Dr. Holgate," she assured him, quietly, earnestly. "Love is—the grandest thing in the world!"

"Yes! Oh, yes. And thank you!"

"Don't you think," suggested Sara Sue quietly, her curiosity mounting along with her interest, "that it is about time to mention her name?"

"By all means," agreed Professor Holgate. "In strict confidence, of course. I place myself utterly in your hands. Her name is Miss Pomeroy, Miss Geraldine Pomeroy, nicknamed, I believe, Peaches."

They reveal that 2,000 years ago India had gymnasia and that physical culture was common among her people.

Twenty-three inscriptions, mostly of the third and fourth centuries of the Christian era have been brought to light. They relate to a period between the disappearance of the Kushan empire and the rise of the Gupta kings.

Iowa City May Be Site of $1,000,000 Federal Laboratory

New Laboratory to Employ 200 Workers in Experiments

Research in Farm Goods, Products To Be Conducted

As the center of one of the nation's largest farming districts, Iowa City is being considered for the location of one of four one million dollar federal regional research laboratories, it was reported yesterday at the chamber of commerce office.

Provided for in the Agricultural Adjustment act of 1938, the four laboratories are to be established by the secretary of agriculture at the most convenient points in the major farming areas of northern, southern, eastern and western United States.

Iowa City is under consideration for a number of reasons. In addition to being in the geographical center of the "Northern Producing Area," it has communication by all forms of travel, modern schools and hospitals, and a flourishing business district, up-to-date city conveniences and adequate accommodations for employees.

Hiring 200 workers, the proposed laboratory will conduct researches in any scientific, chemical and technical fields connected with farm commodities, products and by-products.

The northern area in which Iowa is located includes Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

In deciding this group of states, Secretary Wallace took into account the distribution and type of agricultural production, farm population, farm income, value of farm property and total population.

"In addition to these facts," Wallace said, "it is of first importance that the research load among the four laboratories should be equalized and coordinated for the efficient performance of the task specified by congress."

The work, in the initial stages of the program, will be concentrated in the northern laboratory on corn, wheat, and agricultural waste products. It will mean the extension of present and establishment of new agricultural industries.

A strong point in favor of Iowa City is the fact that the University of Iowa is located here. Giving access to large libraries, experimental laboratories and scientific experts of all fields, the university will probably be an important factor in the final decision.

In order to emphasize the importance of Iowa City, Mayor Myron J. Walker pointed out the following facts:

1. Within a radius of 100 miles of Iowa City are 36 counties of the state, one-half the population and one-half the industrial plants of the state.
2. The 100-mile circle does not include Des Moines which is only a few miles beyond it and Mason City which is 25 miles outside the circle.
3. The library facilities for scientific work at Iowa City are only equalled at Ames, in the state of Iowa.
4. The personnel with international reputations in chemical research such as Dr. Edward Bartow cannot be excelled.
5. The importance of getting towns to concentrate in their efforts to obtain this laboratory is highly important.
6. In addition to being centrally located in regard to population and as to industries in Iowa, Iowa City is located in almost the exact geographical center of the area to be served, and is also almost in the exact center of the places where at the present are located plants processing agricultural products.

This is particularly important since the waste from these plants and the further uses for agricultural products would undoubtedly be utilized; hence, Iowa City's location makes it the logical selection for the whole district and would thus serve as a justification for Mr. Wallace to use in answer to critics who might otherwise be dissatisfied on the selection of a location in his own state.

As the amount of interest shown by the various localities in question will have a heavy bearing on the final decision, Mayor Walker urges all citizens to write to the men heading the project.

All letters should be addressed to either Henry G. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., or to Dr. H. T. Herrick, chairman, special survey committee, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A Gift For Christmas

Saving Lives Is Plan of Council On Safety as '39 Nears

CHICAGO, Nov. 11—"Keep the fifth man alive!"

The National Safety Council went to the drivers and pedestrians of the country with that appeal today in an effort to pull down the usually super-heavy November and December traffic toll.

The goal is to cut this toll 20 per cent and thus keep pace with an unbroken reduction in traffic deaths that prevailed the first three quarters of the year with a saving of 5,820 lives. This drastic drop has come in the face of the fact that automotive travel has increased slightly in the same period.

If the 20 per cent reduction rate can be maintained the rest of the year, the Council said, the 1938 traffic toll will be approximately 8,000 below last year's total of 39,500 and this year will go down as the most encouraging in the nation's history from the traffic safety viewpoint.

A uniform 20 per cent drop in fatalities means, the Council pointed out, that one out of every five persons doomed to die in traffic this year will be spared.

The nation wide campaign being conducted by the Council, and participated in by 32 other national organizations, is prompted by the fact that November and December annually are bugaboo months for traffic safety. Last November traffic deaths totalled 3,750. The December toll was 3,730.

Over a five-year period the November toll was 20 per cent and the December total 30 per cent greater than the year-long monthly average.

The reasons for this, Council engineers say, are bad weather, more hours of darkness and the Christmas holiday rush.

In only one other year since traffic fatality figures first were compiled nationally in 1906 has there been a reduction in the annual toll, the Council said. That was in 1932.

The extent of the recent gains is more impressive because of the fact that the period of unbroken reductions began in November, 1937.

The Council is taking its nationwide campaign straight to police chiefs, motor vehicle administrators, and other public officials, to community safety council officials and safety contact men in thousands of cities.

"This year, for the first time," said D. D. Pennell, president of the National Safety Council, "we have a fine chance of effecting really substantial reductions in traffic fatalities. Everything depends on this final two-month period—the period when normally we pile up huge death totals.

"Sleet, ice, snow and fog soon will make roads and highways doubly dangerous. Darkness comes earlier. There is the Christmas rush, with its hurry and bustle and spirit of conviviality, and the natural tendency by police and traffic officers to be lenient because of the geniality of the times.

"This year, more than ever before, we must clamp down on

The Drivers Get Pointers at Traffic School

Glenn Eves, service manager of a local garage, is shown above speaking before the first weekly traffic school of the season, which was held in the council chambers of the city hall last night. His talk was entitled "Care and Safety in Driving." Police Judge

Burke N. Carson presided at the meeting.

Mr. Eves explained the necessity of having all parts on the car in adequate running order. He said that it is not only unsafe to drive in a run-down car, but that it was unfair to other drivers,

Judge Carson explained various clauses in the Iowa Motor Vehicle law. He warned all drivers to have any mechanical weakness on the car repaired, not solely to evade fine, but for the driver's own security.

careless drivers and pedestrians. A substantial drop in traffic deaths this year not only would be a fine achievement in itself, but would be a powerful stimulus to greater gains next year and in the years to come.

"Too many of us have felt that a steady increase in the traffic toll was inevitable. We now are proving that it isn't"

His Close Shave Was Really Close

PUEBLO, Col. (AP) — Frank Kasic came closer to death than a hair's breadth while hunting rabbits. A shotgun accidentally was discharged by a companion and the pellets literally scalped Kasic.

The shot tore away the hair and scalp and grazed the skull but did not penetrate it. His companion stumbled while walking uphill behind Kasic.

No Wonder Show-Cars Become Shop-Worn

LONDON (AP) — How motor cars at the annual motor show become "shop-soiled" is explained by one auto official.

One of his popular models had 5,000 visitors sit in it during the week, its door was estimated to have been opened and closed 15,000 times, its hood lifted 3,000 times and the rear luggage compartment opened and inspected 4,000 times.

Neither Party Liked Other's Music

CHICAGO (AP) — The music of a church organ next to his home displeased William Hoepfner so much that he tried to drown it out with his radio-placed at an open window.

The church folk had Hoepfner arrested for disturbing their services and Judge N. J. Bonelli fined him $50.

May File Court Cases Today

County Clerk To Open Office

Must File Cases Of November Term 10 Days Before Opening

County Clerk R. Neilson Miller's office will remain open today to accommodate those persons who wish to file cases for the November term of the Johnson county district court which opens Nov. 21. The law requires that the petitions must be on file 10 days before the court term begins.

Yesterday seven cases were filed for the next term. The largest in amount asked was that of the National Life Insurance company against Mrs. Anna Tomas, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tomas and Emil Tomas. The company alleges $19,875.02 is due it on an unpaid promissory note. Attorney E. A. Johnson, Cedar Rapids, represents the company.

Claiming $10,000 damages for injuries received in a car-ambulance accident Sept. 22, Louise Bennett, Boxholm, filed a petition naming Fred Jones, driver of a University hospital ambulance, as defendant.

Miss Bennett's petition claims that the car in which she was riding was struck by an ambulance driven by Jones on the highway between Dows and Boxholm. The plaintiff's attorneys are D. C. Nolan, Iowa City, and Doran and Doran, Boone.

Attorney Lee J. Farnsworth filed a petition for Tina Paukert claiming $797.03 due from Christy Kahler on an 11-year old promissory note.

Alleging $103.11 due as the balance of a conditional sales contract, the Victor Adding Machine company filed suit against Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Ingram, Tiffin, doing business as Ken and Fern's, for the foreclosure of the contract. Attorney C. Glenn Garten, Des Moines, filed the petition for the company.

Florence M. Oakes filed suit

County Clerk To Open Office

against Jerry Donda asking damages of $110 for rent of a farm in Johnson county. The law firm of Wilson, Clearman and Brant represents the plaintiff.

Clinic to Close This Morning

The final sessions of the annual clinic sponsored by the college of medicine of the University of Iowa will be held this morning with Dr. N. G. Alcock, professor of urology, presiding.

Dr. E. D. Plass, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, will give a demonstration of prenatal examination at 8:30.

The remainder of the morning, from 9:30 to 12 noon, will be devoted to papers. "Symposium on Physical and Chemical Therapy," "Diathermy and Its Indications," "The Pavex Machine" (a demonstration) and "Sulphanilimide Therapy" are the topics for discussion.

Judge Gaffney Admits 2 Wills For Probate

Two wills were admitted to probate yesterday by Judge James P. Gaffney, who appointed executors for the wills.

Mrs. Frances O. Loveland was appointed executrix of the estate of her husband, Theodore O. Loveland, who died in Iowa City Oct. 20. She will serve without bond.

Roy C. Anthony will act as administrator with will annexed for the estate of Frank H. Anthony. Judge Gaffney set the administrator's bond at $2,000. Mr. Anthony died Oct. 23.

WSUI Red Cross Program to Feature Four Iowa City Men

The Red Cross roll call program at 8:15 tonight on WSUI will feature four men, all of whom have passed the Red Cross first aid requirements.

They are Fire Chief James Clark, Patrolman Ed Ruppert, Sgt. Edgar Faber of the Iowa Highway patrol, and Clarence Donover of the Iowa City telephone company.

The program is being presented in conjunction with the annual Red Cross roll call.
