The English People Will Decide

IT HAS been said quite frequently recently, that the Chamberlain government in England does not express the will of the majority of the English people.

However, it is difficult to know how true this statement is. It is assumed that as long as the prime minister's program is able to command a majority in the house of commons, he is expressing the will of the people.

Now and then we have occasion to lament the misguided activities of certain German organizations in this country, especially when they get imbued with the pathetic notion that their job is to promote Nazi-ism as the savior of mankind.

So we were delighted by the quotation repeated by Herman Luft, president of the United German Societies, at San Francisco's German day celebration recently. It was this:

"This is our land. Its welfare is our welfare. Its honor is our honor. Its greatness is our greatness. Its future is our future. Our freedom originates in the freedom of all."

"In this republic there is no German politics. . . and I believe that I represent the opinion of my comrades of German descent when I say that in this republic, there shall be no German nor any other foreign politics—no politics that seeks to serve foreign interests."

These words which Mr. Luft quoted were spoken in 1897 at Cincinnati by Carl Schurz, one of the greatest German-Americans in this nation has known, a Union officer in the Civil war, friend and adviser to Abraham Lincoln, whose contribution to democracy is incalculable.

They express the sentiment, naturally, of about 99 per cent of all Americans of German descent, regardless of the puny furor stirred up by a few Nazi-American "bunds."

Another "Traffic Hog."

MOTORING STUPIDITY is at its worst when individual drivers insist upon the letter of their rights and follow the signals of traffic lights regardless of consequences.

Rush hours in the congested downtown district present the following situation several times a day.

A street car, or an out-of-town driver unfamiliar with local regulations, makes a left hand turn at a busy intersection.

An east or west bound motorist, though seeing clearly that he can not move entirely across the intersection, avails himself of the green light to drive halfway across. When the lights change, he finds himself in position to block north and south traffic completely.

A north or south bound driver, impatient at the delay, slides as far as possible into the intersection and completes the tangle.

Thereafter, the lights change many times before the corner is cleared, only to have the entire routine repeated a few moments later.

MR. WELLS TELLS THE WORLD

H. G. Wells, who wrote that story about the War of the Worlds, which gave a lot of people a scare when it went on the ether waves a week or so ago, was just spoofing us when he pictured a lot of Martians coming down—or up or over—to our world and making so much trouble.

We don't know whether you would call Mr. Wells a pacifist or not. But he says he questions the old maxim that "if you want peace, you must prepare for war."

Accepting that 25 years as the period in which the pendulum swings, under present conditions, from one war to another, it would appear to be full time for making progress with that program of education, if we are to miss the next one, with all the horrors that we know full well would accompany it.

GOOD FOR WHAT AILS HIM!

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Prizefighters are sentimental. They won't admit it but all of them like to weep occasionally for Auld Lang Syne.

They say that when Parly was told that Larry Clinton is the baton for the show, he asked, "Batoneer? Isn't that a flower you wear in your coat?" That's what I mean . . .

Incidentally, we'll have something to say tomorrow about one of the finest drama series ever to be presented over the air, which is nicely started now and worthy of all the consideration any lover of artists from Euripides to Eugene O'Neil can give it.

"MILESTONES . . . in the History of Music" is the title of another good classical show today, which airs at 10:30 this morning over NBC.

The Eastman School of Music orchestra, with Emanuel Balaban conducting, will present the 13th century "Robin and Marian" by Adam de la Hale, the French troubadour who wandered picturesquely throughout the whole of France, singing songs for which he wrote both words and music.

THE COLUMBIA SYSTEM . . . will present the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music at 10 o'clock this morning, with music by Dvorak, Bax and Poulenc listed on the string quartet program.

DO YOU LIKE . . . that Kallenmeyer's Kindergarten thing that's been on the air ever since I can remember? The classroom comedy is due today at 5 o'clock. It's all right, I suppose . . .

Tonight's the night for Joe E. Brown, who can be heard at 8:30, with Harry Sosnik's orchestra, Gill and Deming, and Margaret McCrae, vocalist.

JOHNNY PRESENTS . . . Russ Morgan and his orchestra at 7:30 tonight. Professor Quiz is on at 7:30, or, if you prefer, Fred Waring and his orchestra. We had a lot to say

TONIGHT'S BROADCAST . . . of the Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou show has taken a lot of special preparation.

They're entertaining Parkyakarkus on their "Quaker Party" at 7 o'clock this evening over the NBC-Red network. (That should call for some preparation.)

Incidentally, those puns that the Greek epic insists upon pulling are perfectly terrible when you read them, but somehow not so bad when you hear them over the air.

They say that when Parly was told that Larry Clinton is the batoneer for the show, he asked, "Batoneer? Isn't that a flower you wear in your coat?" That's what I mean . . .

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It has happened at last. The stage has taken a trick from the screen. And a very clever trick it is.

"Nothing like 'Soliloquy' has ever happened before in the theater. This is strange, because the facilities for such a play have been at hand for some years now. A chap named Victor Victor (or Victor twice, if you prefer) saw those facilities lying around and he wrote a play. So a lot of people are thinking, 'Now, why didn't I think of that?'"

"Soliloquy" represents a wedding of stage and talking screen. It's all acted, there before your very eyes, by a cast of 40 people, headed by John Beal (also of the Movies) and John Beal's wife, Helen Craig (who since opening night here has had plenty of movie offers). But it's acted also by a regular movie sound track, which supplies the hero's unspoken thoughts.

You'll think, at once, of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," in which all the characters thought and thought and thought so much—a loud—that the show lasted night on to five hours.

"Soliloquy" is different. Only one character thinks aloud (courtesy of the sound track). He keeps right on doing what he's doing while he's thinking, too. He does not pause and stare off into space, disconcertingly, as they did in "Strange Interlude" while thinking out loud.

The result is highly interesting. When "Soliloquy" opens on Broadway, about two months hence, you'll learn from the Broadway critics whether it's a good play by Broadway standards. We in Hollywood may be swayed a little in judgment by our interest in its method of presentation. We all liked it—but then we see so many movies. . . .

John Beal spent two days recording the character's "thoughts" on film, accurately timed to be audible only at the proper cues.

You'd think the possibilities of error, during a performance, would be appalling. If any player missed a cue, or blew a line, or made too much haste through a scene, the whole production might be thrown out of order. But they've guarded against that, first with letter-perfect rehearsals, more importantly with technical precautions.

The sound projector is above the rear of the stage, and below, constantly in attendance, sits a sound technician, script in hand. It's up to him to make the thoughts "wait" or "hurry" as the actual playing requires.

Beal's understudy has a voice like Beal's. Gwyllyn Ford stands by the technician—with more opportunities than the usual understudy. When "Soliloquy" opened in San Francisco, one of those terrifying first-night catastrophes struck. The sound track went "dead." But the audience didn't know it. The sound technician keeps a microphone handy, and Ford spoke Beal's "thoughts" directly into the mike—through three scenes until the film was working again.

W. C. FIELDS . . . is now a regular member of the "Hit Parade" cast. Some of us think he's rather terrible, others think he's one of the great comedians today. Personally, I agree with the latter group.

Anyway, I predict that Deanna Durbin's "You're as Pretty as a Picture" will top the list of popular songs instantly, and stay for a week or two or three. It's the loveliest of the new crop. Hit Parade is at 9 tonight.

IF YOU COULD . . . happen over to one of the "Saturday Night Serenade" rehearsals, you'd find a fellow who's literally learning music from the ground up.

His name is Tony and he's a bootblack. For more than two years, we hear, he's been turning up at the CBS Playhouse in New York whenever the "Serenade" rehearses, and goes to work shining the shoes of Gus Haenschen, tenor Bill Perry and the singers in Emil Cote's Serenaders. It makes a funny picture as Haenschen stands on the podium, leading his men, with one foot resting on Tony's shine box.

Tony insists he's been coming around not only because he does a good business there, but he can learn a lot about music, too . . .

Wants Jail Watchdogs SACRAMENTO, Cal. (AP) — Prison breaks and other convict disturbances would be much fewer if guards were provided with dogs, says Marcus Monk, a trainer. Convicts who are willing to take a chance in assaulting a guard would think twice before risking attack from a trained dog, Monk contends.

Buzzards Go South PORTERVILLE, Cal. (AP) — One of the most unusual bird spectacles witnessed here in recent years was reported by Game Warden Ray J. Bullard. He noted approximately 2,000 buzzards winging south all in one flock.

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The machine threatens to dominate all aspects of human life. Strong is the man today whose spiritual life is free from the machine's tyrannies. Lewis Mumford's remarkable books, "Technics and Civilization" and "The Culture of Cities" indicate how much the machine has crowded out humanism, but he holds out a hope that we can break through to peace and control.

Little things count in this and I am impressed with the article by Dr. Howard B. Fabing, of Cincinnati, who analyzes the mental condition of us poor oafs at a wheel of a car in the awful presence of traffic lights (Journal of the American Medical Association September 1938). Adoption of his suggestions may prevent a proportion of our annual automobile accident toll, and certainly it will make drivers more comfortable.

Conditioned Reflex The motor car driver when confronted by a traffic light, responds to a conditioned reflex. If he sees the red light, he has an inhibitory instinct which causes him to step down on the brake and release the clutch. If the light is green he has an excitatory (go ahead) reflex which makes him release the brake and the clutch and step on the accelerator.

But they do not always control him absolutely because he may come into a traffic corner and see the traffic light suddenly. If it is red, he does not know how long it has been on and hopes it may go off soon so that he may proceed. Or vice versa, so his reflexes may get mixed up. The intervening yellow light does not always help out because on many signals it does not flash between red and green.

Pavlov, the Russian physiologist, who first described conditioned reflexes, described this quick succession of antagonistic conditioned reflexes and confusion in visual conditioning stimuli in the dog and very significantly referred to times when "collision" phenomena occurred.

If a reflex which brings expectation of food is established in a dog, and then another which means no food and then both these stimuli are applied in rapid succession, the animal becomes very nervous and excitable and irritable. The same thing happens to a motorist at times. He may get "collision" phenomena, and, as Dr. Fabing says, "an anxiety neurosis in miniature" occurs. When several experiences of this kind follow one on another in succession, it produces "a conscious restless anxiety exhaustion." Every driver must have experienced this.

To overcome some of this, there are better traffic lights than those commonly used available. Dr. Fabing recommends Schubert's, which is a circular glass panel divided into four sections—red, green and two yellows, on which a hand, similar to a clock's hand, indicates how much of red or green light is left, and this is calculated to compose the motorist's reactions.

St. Ambrose 11 Still Unbeaten

Defeat Simpson By 20-0 Score; Extend Streak

Only 0-0 Tie With St. Benedict Mars Record This Year

INDIANOLA, Nov. 11 (AP) — St. Ambrose college finished its third straight football season without a defeat today by romping over Simpson, 20-0, before 1,500 Homecoming fans.

Only two ties, one with St. Benedict's college of Atchison, Kan., this fall, mars St. Ambrose's record in the last 31 games. The last time the Bees were beaten was in the second game of the 1935 season with DePaul university.

The victory today gave St. Ambrose a perfect record in three games in the Iowa conference, but the Bees will not have a claim to the championship because of an insufficient number of conference contests.

Simpson fought off St. Ambrose threats repeatedly in the first period, only to have Al Haworth, substitute fullback, plunge over from the one-foot mark for the first St. Ambrose touchdown with six minutes to play in the second period.

The Bees counted twice in the third quarter. With the period only a few minutes old, Jim Furlong, center, intercepted a pass and lateraled to Tony Janick who scampered 53 yards for a touchdown. Stan Sosnoski tossed a pass to Claude O'Donnell for the third St. Ambrose score.

Simpson never threatened and spent most of the game attempting to ward off the many Bees' thrusts.

The Lineups

St. Ambrose	Pos.	Simpson
Tofanelli	LE	Cook
Holtzer	LT	Sjostrom
Tyrell	LG	Hutchison
Furlong	C	Miller
Kersasiotis	RG	Abbott
Scarpino	RT	Weigand
O'Donnell	RE	Glimore
Paul	QB	Jesson
Sosnoski	LB	Clark
Janick	RB	Wentworth
McGrath	FB	Lounsbury

Score by Periods
St. Ambrose 0 7 13 20

St. Ambrose scoring: touchdowns, Haworth (sub for McGrath), Janick, O'Donnell. Points after touchdown, Kersasiotis (place-kicks).

Inspired Coe Hands Grinnell 6-0 Whipping

CEDAR RAPIDS, Nov. 11 (AP) — An inspired band of Coe seniors, playing their last game for Moray Eby, who this year celebrated his twenty-fifth coaching season at the Cedar Rapids school, pushed over a fourth quarter touchdown to defeat a favored Grinnell eleven 6-0 today.

The game was played before 3,500 spectators, many of whom took part in the American Legion ceremonies preceding the contest. Coe scored on a sustained drive from its own 45-yard line. Beginning in the waning moments of the third quarter, the Kohawks battered their way to the Grinnell 32 on short jolts by Cislis, Dunlop and Kinch. On the 32 Cislis heaved a 15-yard pass to Left End Don Martin who carried to the Grinnell 2. Cislis scored on a fourth down plunge as the last period got under way. Lenz' kick was wide.

Coe outdistanced the Pioneers 8 to 7 and outgained the Scarlet and Black 167 to 115. The outstanding feature of the game was the failure of Grinnell's famed passing attack. Fifteen of 19 aerials were grounded and Coe intercepted another.

Baylor Wins

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — A Baylor thunderstorm broke over the luckless heads of Loyola today and drowned the Lions under a 35 to 2 touchdown deluge. Thirty-five thousand football fans turned out to watch the aerial magic of slender Billy Patterson, chief thunder bird of the storm, who struck with four touchdown passes.

Down The Sports Trail

By PAUL MICKELSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP) — Fore for a column on golf.

Chance of an international match to end all golf matches — Britain's Henry Cotton vs. West Virginia's Samuel Jackson Snead — are brighter than ever. Nobody can tell what home-loving Henry may do, but the professional golfers' association over here is confident he'll sign for a 72-hole duel to be played in New York next June or July. Aided by bankrolls offered by Elmer Ward, Boston clothing manufacturer, and the world's fair, plenty of dough is on the line for the match, which will be to golf what the War Admiral-Seabiscuit affair was to horse racing.

Snead's victory in the White Sulphur open yesterday marked the first time in many moons that a home club pro won a big show. They think so highly of Sam's golf down in that neighborhood that even the soda clerks and bartenders at the Greenbrier hotel were shocked when "all" Sam got for his first round was 68, two under par.

Can't understand "I can't understand it," said Edith Hammer, pretty golf secretary. "Sam never goes over 68 here." Sam failed to do better than 68 but he won, adding another line on the big blue board set in the hotel lobby that gives account of his victories. They're even building a new wing on the White Sulphur cottage that is used exclusively for the president of the United States when he travels through that neighborhood. Snead, who two years ago got $45 a month at the hotel for cleaning clubs, will live in the new wing. Such is fame.

Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank, World war buddies, played together in an exhibition today at White Sulphur Springs. Bobby saved Tom's life in one battle. They've been great friends since. Good luck at last has found handsome Dick Metz. A few years ago, he bought some land near Texarkana, Tex. He's just received a wire that they've struck oil on his property. It's a great break for a great guy who got busted up in an automobile accident just as he was playing his greatest golf.

British-American An American has a chance of winning both the American and British opens again next year. The dates will not conflict. The U. S. G. A. event will be played at Philadelphia, June 8-10, the British open at St. Andrews, Scotland, July 3-7. Cotton led all British pros this year with a 72.25 scoring average. Babe Didrikson and John "The Great" Montague are going touring together soon. Walter Hagen, an old hand in making a touch, is after bigger things. Sir Walter has been a frequent visitor in Washington as a member of a delegation of Detroit men who seek a big loan from Uncle Sam in connection with an automobile project. Walter's Michigan automobile license plate is "WH 288."

Guldahl Recovers

Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, fully recovered from a minor operation, is resting at his new home in Miami. Youngest ace shooter of the year — as far as known — is 9-year old Jerry Dougherty, who banged one on the 154-yard 4th hole at Recreation park, Los Angeles. Snead's favorite still is Jimmy Thomson. Samuel never misses a chance to see Jimmy hit one of his long range tee shots. Reports that George Jacobus would resign as P. G. A. president are premature. George is up for reelection. The annual meeting of the P. G. A. is a Chicago Dec. 15-17. Tommy Goodwin, New York amateur star who usually dominates Florida winter amateur golf, is singing in a New York night club.

The 1939 Augusta masters tournament will be played over four days, beginning March 30, instead of the customary three. The 12th green has been enlarged at the National golf club, scene of the show, and a new green has been constructed 40 yards back of the former location at the 7th. Golf pros have stopped betting too much money on college football games. They've been burned too often this fall. Who hasn't?

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1938

Albia Loses To City High By 6-0 Score

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP) — Ten members of the country's fast shrinking group of unbeaten and untied major football teams swing into action this week end against opposition that looms as formidable as any they will be called on to face between now and the approaching end of the wide-open, high-scoring 1938 campaign.

Dartmouth in the east, against well-primed Cornell before a capacity house of 29,000; Notre Dame in the midwest, against burly Minnesota in a game that was a 65,000 sellout a week ago; Tennessee in the south, against resourceful Vanderbilt; Texas Christian in the southwest, favored but in no position to be caught napping by Texas, and Santa Clara in the far west, matched with rugged St. Mary's in a Sunday game, furnish the program's high spots.

Of the other all-winning survivors, unscored-on Duke faces Syracuse; Georgetown meets West Virginia; Oklahoma and Iowa State, tied for the Big Six lead, tackle Missouri and Kansas State, respectively, and Western Reserve plays neighboring John Carroll.

Not all of the excitement will be furnished by the most successful teams. Yale and Princeton, in a renewal of football's oldest unbroken rivalry, appear set for a first class dog fight, while Pittsburgh tries to come back against Nebraska; Southern California, newly elevated to the Pacific Coast conference lead, tries to strengthen that position with a victory over Washington, and Northwestern and Michigan, before the day's top crowd of 80,000 battle for a higher bracket in western conference circles.

Bolting the doors and windows against misleading last-minute hunches, this observer submits the following forecasts (probable attendance figures in parentheses): Tennessee-Vanderbilt (22,000): They say Tennessee still hasn't shown its full hand. This might be a good spot to have an ace up each sleeve.

Cornell — Dartmouth (29,000): Cornell's line strength and reserves against Dartmouth's high-geared backs. The Ithacans also have backs, but then the Indian line can't be too bad either. Dartmouth, likely on a second-half drive, and close.

Notre Dame - Minnesota (65,000): After the Gophers, Notre Dame gets Northwestern and Southern California. That's a big order, but the way Elmer Layden has been sending his men in by platoons should give this to Notre Dame.

Texas Christian-Texas (18,000): Looks like the year's eighth straight victory for T. C. U. and eighth straight loss for the Longhorns.

Washington - Southern California (25,999): Southern California, though Washington may make it close even without a wooden horse for the men of Troy.

Princeton-Yale (50,000): Throw the records out the window. Princeton, but watch out for those Eli passes.

Nebraska - Pittsburgh (33,000): Pitt. They have an incentive now.

Syracuse-Duke (15,000): Each beat Colgate 7-0. That's merely confusing. Banking on the Blue Devils' stout defense, Duke.

Michigan - Northwestern (80,000): A good spot to duck and run. Doing both in the same motion, Northwestern.

Oklahoma - Missouri (23,000): Missouri has scored in every game but the Sooners have the type of crashing ends to blanket set for a first class dog fight, while Pittsburgh tries to come back against Nebraska; Southern California, newly elevated to the Pacific Coast conference lead, tries to strengthen that position with a victory over Washington, and Northwestern and Michigan, before the day's top crowd of 80,000 battle for a higher bracket in western conference circles.

N.Y.U. Defeats Colgate, 13-7

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP) — The unblushing Violets of New York university bloomed this Armistice day as they hadn't bloomed all season, upsetting Colgate's tired football forces, 13-7, before a crowd of 25,000 in Yankee stadium for their first major win of the year.

They shoved over two quick touchdowns in the opening quarter—one of them accounting for the first score against Colgate on a pass this season — and then fought back gallantly as Andy Kerr's deception and magic started to click in the last alf.

Twice in the closing quarter they held inside their five-yard line.

To Ed Boell, the only "triple threat" on the Violet squad, went the hero's honors. His quick kick in the first five minutes gave the Violets the opportunity of scoring their opening tally, and his two long passes. Not many moments later, produced the second.

That quick kick was a booming punt which brushed against the Raiders' Johnny Long on the Colgate 12. Alex Campanis, another defensive stalwart for the New Yorkers, just beat Long to the ball to recover. Campanis then batted the line for nine yards and Stan Mikulka carried it over.

Colgate came back with a rush, but the attack ended when a lateral pass fizzled on the Violet 30. After an exchange of punts, Boell started pitching from his own 41, and in two plays had passed to a score. The first was good for 24 yards to Mikulka, and the second, to Danny Dowd, who bounded over the line with the only aerial route score that rivals have been able to chalk up against the Raiders in seven games this fall. Campanis missed the extra point.

Late in the third period, the Raiders finally started to go to town. Taking a quick kick on their own six, they went to the 42 on line plays, with Joe Hoague, Walter Davids and Jim Gribbon taking turns at smashing into the forward wall. Then Davids uncorked his passing game. He started a forward-lateral to Don Wemple and Gribbon that traveled 19 yards, then passed 38 more to Wemple to the Violet 10, from where Hoague took it over in three tries. Hoague also kicked the point.

U. C. L. A.—Wisconsin (50,000): Having had bad luck going against the Bruins when they were at home, and finding little else to choose between the two, U. C. L. A.

Georgia Tech-Alabama (24,000): Alabama packs more punch.

Fordham-North Carolina (25,000): A nice spot for an upset, with Fordham crippled at three vital spots. Still, Fordham.

Tulane-Georgia (13,000): Tulane, on the theory they're better seasoned because of a tougher schedule.

Battle Expected In Next Week's Hawkeye Run

With a number of freshman stars already entered, and men who made good time in intramural runs expected, the 18th annual Hawkeye cross-country run promises to be a wide open affair as the thinclads take off around Finkbine field next Tuesday afternoon.

The race, which came to the University of Iowa with Track Coach George Bresnahan in 1921 is one of Iowa's historic athletic events. The large traveling trophy which heads the list of awards for the event has inscribed on it the names, among others, of Phelps, Hunn and Spears, three Big Ten cross-country champions.

The name which might be added to the list this year is highly problematical. The freshman run brought to light some potential winners in Carl Schnoor of Perry, Arnold Carlson of Des Moines, Ray Hirlman of Storm Lake, Ernest Hemingway of West Branch and Warter Rouzer of Kansas City. In the Co-op dorm event of the intramural program Claude Crist of Clarence, Don Lettow of Radcliffe, Boyd Berryhill of Buffalo Center and Henry Still of Farmington distinguished themselves. They have been urged by Bresnahan to enter the Hawkeye run, as have Otis Joiner of Maquoketa, Robert Stuart of Nashua, Edwin Sollis of Chariton, A. Anthis Smith of Ft. Madison and Robert Ivie of Iowa City, who all placed high in the interfraternity run the following night.

Beyers' Passing Wins for Delts

Tosses Account For Winning Touchdowns In 19 to 6 Triumph

Delta Tau Delta remained undefeated by defeating Phi Gamma Delta 19 to 6 in a hard fought contest yesterday afternoon. Prior to yesterday's battle both teams were undefeated and this alone made the game more keenly contested.

The pass combination Beyers to Carmody which netted two touchdowns for the winners proved to be the margin of victory. The Delta Tau Delta's used this scoring play to count their first touchdown and their last touchdown, and intercepted a pass to count their second tally.

With McCune doing the passing, the Phi Gamma Delta's came back strong in the second half, in an effort to even the count through the air lanes, but on most occasions they were unable to pierce the tight defense of the winners.

In the Town league Northwestern after building up a 25 to 0 lead in the first half, coasted to an easy 31 to 19 victory over Southwestern. The pass combination of Miller to McCallister was good for three of the winners' touchdowns, while the other two came as the results of intercepted passes. The losers scored on passes in the second half after the Northwesterners had the game on ice.

In shape for the event, Coach Bresnahan will have equipment issued and will have instructions given to all who wish to do some training for the run.

If previous games in the Indiana-Iowa series mean anything at all, today's clash between the Hoosiers and the Hawkeyes will be close. Nothing as far as championships are at stake when both teams come on the field at Bloomington, but to the players themselves it's the Battle of the Cellar—a game to find out who finishes above Chicago.

A win for Iowa today means an even split in conference competition and the best record an Old Gold team has chalked up since 1933. A win for the Hoosiers will mean coming out of the Big Ten depths.

Coach Irv Tubbs' charges are still smarting from last year's game — an encounter which saw the Hawks shove Indiana all over the field in a biting wind, only to see the Hoosiers hang up three points by virtue of a field goal.

Both teams are lacking in a good scoring punch, Indiana having scored but nine points in all the games they've played, where the Hawkeyes have countered with some odd 40 markers, half of them against Chicago.

Defensively, Bo McMillin's squad is as good as it ever was, allowing no opponent more than two touchdowns in a single game, whereas Iowa's defense has been cracked hard and often, and the Hawkeyes have a definite vulnerability — pass defense.

Tubbs has been shifting the team around in an effort to perfect a pass defense against the tossing of the Hoosiers' Joe Nicholson, injured sophomore who will be in there today.

With Frank Balazs ready to play, Iowa's ground game should be far more potent than against Minnesota. Tubbs has shifted Jerry Niles back to center, where he will most likely start. Russell Busk, Floyd Dean, Ray Murphy and Balazs will probably compose the starting backfield, with Nile Kinnick coming in after a while.

Bulldogs Stop Whizzer White

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Nov. 11 (AP) — Refusing to play the fatted calf role in Whizzer White's homecoming to his native state, the Los Angeles Bulldogs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 47 to 6, in an Armistice day professional grid game.

White, Colorado university's all-American back last year, had an in-and-out day in his first appearance before a mountain crowd as a $15,000 performer for the Pirates. His only fumble was quickly coinced into a Los Angeles touchdown by Homer Beatty, former Southern California end, who scooped up the ball and ran 35 yards for the score in the third period.

War Admiral Will Attempt Comeback At Narragansett

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 11 (AP) — War Admiral, the stout little son of Man O'War, attempts a comeback here tomorrow.

Making his first start since his defeat by Seabiscuit in a match race, the Admiral races an eight-horse field in the $10,000 added Rhode Island handicap at Narragansett park.

C. S. Howard declined to enter his Seabiscuit, but War Admiral has enough opposition to get a real testing in the mile and an eighth event, and probably one that will shape his future career.

Top Shape AMES, Nov. 11 (AP) — Virtually in top physical trim, but nervous, the Iowa State college football squad left late today for Manhattan where they play Kansas State Saturday in the crucial game of their drive for the Big Six championship.

Former Iowa Students Will Marry Today

Reed-Pryor Nuptials To Be Solemnized In Aliquippa, Pa.

Betty Reed, daughter of Mrs. Mary W. Reed, 729 N. Dubuque street, and Donald J. Pryor of Ardmore, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Pryor, will be married in the First Presbyterian church at Aliquippa, Pa., at 8 o'clock this morning.

The bride, who will be unattended, will wear a wool frock of periwinkle blue with black accessories. Mrs. Reed will entertain the bridal party at a wedding breakfast after the ceremony.

Upon return from their wedding trip, the couple will live at the Bloomdale apartments in Wayne, Pa., where Mr. Pryor is editor of the Main Line Daily Times of Ardmore, Pa.

Miss Reed was graduated from Abraham Lincoln high school in Council Bluffs. She attended Lindenwood college and was graduated from the University of Iowa in 1935. She was affiliated with Delta Gamma sorority, Mortar Board and Phi Beta Kappa. She has been society editor of the Council Bluffs Nonpareil for the past several years.

Mr. Pryor was graduated from the Burlington high school. He also attended Compton junior college in Compton Cal., and the University of Iowa. During the year 1935-36, he was editor of The Daily Iowan. He was affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, A.F.I. and Sigma Delta Chi. Mr. Pryor held positions with the United Press in Ft. Wayne, Ind., and in Detroit, Mich., before accepting his present position last spring.

Mrs. Reed and Mr. and Mrs. J. Carl Pryor of Burlington accompanied the bride east by motor for the wedding.

University Club To Have Buffet Supper at Union

From 6 to 6:45 tomorrow evening guests and members of University club will be served a buffet supper in the clubrooms at Iowa Union. Prof. Harry G. Barnes of the university speech department will read for the group. A musical number will also be presented.

Reservations for dinner may be made at the main desk of Iowa Union.

Woman's Club Will Meet For Second Lesson

The second in the series of lessons on home decoration will form the program of the home department of the Iowa City Woman's club at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The group will meet in the basement recreation room of the Iowa City Light and Power company.

Mrs. George Van Deusen will present the decoration lesson and Mrs. W. T. Goodwin will discuss "Fiber and Bead Handicraft."

A demonstration on "Modern Make-up and Good Hygiene" will conclude the program.

Moose Lodge Women Will Have Meeting

The obligation ceremony for new candidates will be a part of the regular meeting of the Women of the Moose Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. in the Moose hall.

There will be an executive meeting at 7:30 p.m. preceding the general session.

After the ceremony, the group will have a social hour. Mrs. Annie Tomlin is in charge of the entertainment.

Officers and escorts are requested to dress in white.

Two-Two Club Will Play Bunco

Five-hundred and bunco will provide entertainment for the members of the Two-Two club when they meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. O. L. Rees, 121 Evans street.

Mrs. Caroline Darby will conduct the business session. Mrs. Charles Kendall will assist the hostess.

Theta Rho Girls To Meet in I. O. O. F. Club Room Monday

There will be a routine business meeting of the Theta Rho girls club Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. The group will assemble in the club room in the I. O. O. F. hall.

Girl Scouts to Camp

Local Girl Scout leaders went to Camp Cardinal last night for an overnight outing.

Spinsters Spree or Bust

"Peddle on, young lady, if you're taking me to the Spinsters' Spree—YOU do the work," says Henry Allanson, A3 of Takoma Park, Md., to his escort, Eleanor Jones, A2 of Williamsburg, Currier hall resident.

To be sure that his feminine escort does her job efficiently this modern back-seat driver puts his foot on the handle bars and—its heigh-ho, heigh-ho—off to the Spree we go.

Can You Spare a Pocket?

"Would you mind putting these trifles in your pocket?" inquires Henry. "The pleasure's all mine," Spinsters Eleanor assures him, though her face says otherwise.

What could she do? Who knows, that pipe may hang from one of Currier hall's walls before the evening's over.

"All's well that ends well? . . . but does it? Look at that watch! Mr. Twiddle, the house father would be so angry if . . . Ah, here's the solution! The fire-escape! 'I'll help you up,' says Eleanor, "but before we say good night . . . er—ah, that is—how about a—m-m-m-m-m-m-m-m-m-m."

Record Crop of Twins Arrives in Iowa

DES MOINES (AP)—Fifty-two sets of twins were born in Iowa during July, setting what the state health department said was an all-time record.

Des Moines led with five sets; Sioux City and Iowa City rated second with three each and other cities reported two apiece. The total exceeded by 14 the previous high of 38 last May.

A record was established by the air mail service between England and New Zealand when letters posted in London, Oct. 9, were delivered here on Oct. 21.

Ray Murphy, a student, Earl Shay and John Marulas were fined $1 each for parking over time; Ward Billicks was fined $10 and $1 costs for intoxication; Wallace M. Evans of Davenport was fined $1 and $1.50 costs for speeding, and Roy Malatek of Solon was dismissed after double parking.

Dam That Was Built By Early Padres Found

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (AP)—Possibly the first dam ever built in the western United States has been located on the San Diego river. It is two miles above old Mission San Diego de Alcala and has been attributed to the work by the Padres about the year 1790.

For years the dam was covered by boulders and silt, but recent flood waters uncovered it. It is on the ranch of Ernest Briden, who reported his find to city authorities.

Protest Program GENEVA (AP)—The executive committee of the world Jewish congress yesterday called the world's attention to "new persecution of Jews in Germany" and described the assassination of a German diplomat in Paris by a Jew as a poor excuse for the nazi campaign.

New Yorkers Protest Nazi Anti-Semitism

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—Protests against the new wave of anti-Semitism in Nazi Germany were sounded from the speaker's platform, picket line and radio today.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey and former Gov. Alfred Smith attacked Germany in a radio broadcast (WMA) sponsored by the non-sectarian anti-Nazi league to champion human rights.

Carrie Chapman Catt, pacifist and feminist, led the national council of women in sending telegrams to the state department asking the government to protest the persecution of Jews in Germany and Palestine.

Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer prize author, suggested that the peninsula of Lower California (Mexican territory) be used as a haven for refugee Jews.

Capt. Victor A. Cazalet, member of the British parliament, proposed that a million Jews seek refuge in northern Rhodesia, Africa.

A delegation from the American League for Peace and Democracy picketed the German consulate as the group lodged a formal protest with Nazi authorities accusing Germany of "acts of unbridled vandalism, thuggery and bestiality."

German consular officials reported to police that telephone threats warned them the building would be blown up and a 24-hour police guard was placed around the building and at the home of Consul General Hans Borchers.

Dewey said he wished to "ap-

Silver Shadow To Have Party

Floor Show With University Students Will Be Main Event

The Silver Shadow, internationally known dry night club, is expressed by the above picture, which was taken last Saturday at the opening party. Here Jack Latimer, A3 of Corning, the roving accordionist, stops to play for a group of the guests.

Jack will be on hand again tonight when the Silver Shadow opens for the first informal party of the year. Tickets limited to 100 couples, will be on sale at the door tonight. Len Carroll and his orchestra will play.

The Silver Shadow, internationally known night spot of the University of Iowa, will hold its second party of the season tonight, with Len Carroll's orchestra providing dance music. Tonight's party will be informal.

This week's floor show under the direction of Cherie Wilson and Evelyn Hansen promises to be unusually entertaining, featuring exclusively student talent, as usual.

Giving impersonations will be Ronald Van Arsdale, G of Greenwood, Ind., whose reputation as an entertainer has grown yearly on the University of Iowa campus.

Gay Franklin, A4 of Ottumwa, will be featured as the vocalist. Marian Morrison, A2, and Norman Gold, A4, both of Newark, N. J., will present their interpretation of the shag.

As master of ceremonies for the second time will be Bruce Baumgardner, A4 of Le Grande. Jack Latimer, A3 of Corning, will again be strolling accordionist.

Tickets for tonight's informal party will be available at the door.

Scheduled for next Saturday night is another informal party, for which tickets will go on sale Tuesday.

Three more formals and three additional informal parties, are planned following the one tonight.

Marriages Are Included

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Dollar days in Evanston stores prompted Justice Samuel Harrison, 88-year-old magistrate, to try dollar marriages.

"I have the best bargain in Evanston, an item that will last for a lifetime if treated with proper consideration," he announced.

He added that on dollar days he would marry couples for $1 each.—C.O.D., no rebates and no exchanges.

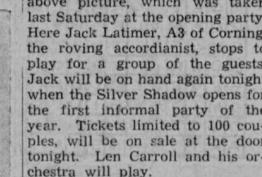

Some of London's famous doctors are artists, and 99 of their works were shown at the Rembrandt Gallery. All exhibits were for sale and admission was free.

College to Hollywood

AUSTIN, Texas (ACP)—If the University of Texas sent mail to former students, not a few of the letters would be addressed to Hollywood, for some of the best-known film actors and actresses once attended the University of Texas.

John Boles, screen lover, who was born at Greenville, was graduated from the university in 1917 and studied in New York and Europe before beginning his screen career.

When John Arledge came to the university from Crockett in 1925-26, he was known as John L. Arledge. He went to Hollywood in 1931. Helen Vinson, movie star and wife of the top-ranking tennis player, Fred Perry, attended the university from 1922 to 1924.

Adrienne Ames, as Jeannette Florence Allen, was selected one of 10 campus favorites in 1928 and her picture appeared in the university yearbook. She received her degree from the university in 1930.

The name of Corinne Griffith, listed on the rolls of the ex-Students' association as Corinne Griffin of Mineral Wells, who came to the university in 1912.

Tex Ritter, western star, studied at the university from 1922 to 1927. His real name is Woodward Maurice.

Smith Ballew, Dallas student at the university from 1921 to 1923, played a banjo in an orchestra composed of university students before he joined the movies in Hollywood.

One of the latest additions to the ranks of university "exes" making good in Hollywood is Mary Tom Blackwood from Alexandria, La., "sweetheart" of the university in 1932.

This is the first in a series of such activities and is being sponsored under the directorship of Donald Winbigger, an associate of speech and dramatic art, and Dr. Loretta Wagner, instructor and teacher of speech.

The biggest catch to date has been a ten-dollar bill—used as a book-mark! "But they wouldn't let me keep it," complained the almost-licky circulation attendant.

Stamped and addressed letters often found in the books are mailed on. Recently one addressed to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was discovered.

Some borrowers help future readers by leaving synopses of chapters. Temple students also display their artistic ability by filling the pages with slips of paper bearing free-hand drawings, by "improving" on pictures already in books, and by carefully decorating the covers.

Unused theater tickets are another find, but usually they are discovered too late for use.

Other book-marks: rulers, calendars, clinic cards, hairpins, paper clips, stamps, four-leaf clovers, paper napkins and campaign buttons.

Writers Go To State Contest

Selections from the Leigh Hunt library collection are being shown in the current exhibit at Rainey library in the basement of Schaeffer hall, open daily from 3 to 5 p.m.

Among the many items indicating Leigh Hunt's close association with his literary fellows are letters from Robert Browning, Charles Lamb, Charles Dickens, and Alfred Tennyson; a bank draft of his signed by Lord Byron; a silhouette of Lord Byron cut by Mrs. Hunt, and Thomas Carlyle's testimonial which aided in securing a pension for Hunt.

In 1822 Leigh Hunt joined Shelley and Byron to project a periodical publication, "The Liberal." Shelley was drowned returning from Leghorn where he had gone to welcome the Hunt family. The first volume of "The Liberal" shown here records Leigh Hunt's memory of the first Sunday in Italy when he walked arm in arm with his friend Shelley after a separation of months.

Other Shelleyana here are a brief prepared in Shelley's suit or custody of his children after the death of his first wife, and Mary Shelley's note-book in which she wrote her Greek exercises.

A leaf from the mulberry tree under which Keats is supposed to have written his "Ode to a Nightingale" is here. A biographer of Keats' claims, however, that it was written under a plum tree.

Autographed books and presentation copies which belonged to these famous literary people, and some of Leigh Hunt's own manuscripts and letters are also shown.

The Leigh Hunt collection, acquired in 1934 by the University of Iowa libraries, was brought together by the late Luther A. Brewer, well-known to Iowa citizens as the founder of the Torch Press in Cedar Rapids and nationally known bibliophile.

This collection of manuscripts, holograph letters and books relating to Leigh Hunt is considered the most complete one of this author in existence. It is available for the use of serious students doing research with Leigh Hunt or his contemporaries in which a consultation of original items is advantageous.

Winners of poetry and prose selections in reading contests conducted Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at University high school are Bobby Tapper, Lois Irwin, and Patricia Grothouse.

These contestants will represent University high school in the state contest to be held at Iowa Wesleyan college, Mt. Pleasant, Nov. 19.

In the first round of the contest held this week, 60 pupils participated; in the second round, 27, and the last, eight.

Dean Lierle and Bernard Hawley have been selected as alternates to the contest.

English Sends S.O.S.
LONDON (AP)—English blacksmiths have their choice now of either the spreading chestnut tree or the cross tree of a battleship—for numerous vacancies have arisen with the increased production of warships.

To qualify, they must be able to demonstrate their proficiency and must be between 19 and 28.

If under 21, they will receive $8.02 a week plus board and room. If over 21, they will receive $10.93. They may rise to a salary of $17.50 as chief blacksmith.

Ice Cream Champ Gulps
LEWISTON, N. Y. (AP)—An ice cream eating contest—in which more competitors than could be accommodated applied—was staged by a local drugstore.

The lucky boys were named for the competition, 45 others, who applied, but couldn't be accommodated, sat on the sidelines and cheered "gulps."

Robert Seick won the honors by downing nine large dishes in 20 minutes. The nine portions represented one and one-half quarts.

The schedule follows: today, Northwestern at Evanston; Tuesday, Oxford—Cambridge at Iowa City; Thursday, Minnesota and Wisconsin at Iowa City, Illinois at Urbana; Dec. 8, Northwestern at Iowa City, Purdue at Lafayette; Feb. 16, conference debate, opponent to be selected; March 2, 3, 4, tournament at Iowa City; March 10, conference debate, opponent to be selected; April 7, 8, conference tournament at Chicago; April 11, Dartmouth at Iowa City (tentative).

Iowa speakers will argue against eight Western conference rivals. This league schedule is featured by three debates on the same day, Nov. 17, when Minnesota and Wisconsin send teams here and the Iowans go to Illinois.

Tournament Planned
Iowa will conduct its own tournament March 2, 3 and 4, when some 15 institutions in about a dozen states send debaters and other forensic stars here.

Peace Is Greatest Ideal of Armistice Day
Prof. Ladd Says on War's 20th Anniversary

(Because The Daily Iowan considers it a significant and intelligent commentary on yesterday's 20th anniversary of Armistice day, below is reprinted the entire text of Prof. Ladd's prepared address.)
Armistice day is not a memorial day for those who fought in the World war and met with death. Indeed, it honors those who sacrificed their lives for their country and in the interest of the triumph of right, but it has the greater purpose of making America mindful of our part in the World war and developing the ideal of peace. It also serves as a day to make Americans conscious of the liberties we enjoy under a free government and to bring our people into closer touch with the great democratic institution of government.
It is the hope of the American Legion and of all who unite in this day to thereby promote peace in this country and peace in the world. No group of men can be more interested in the promotion of peace than those who have known through their own experience the awfulness and futility of war. The American Legion has taken that forward-looking view of using their organization and their influence in the interests of peace and in the interests of promoting good citizenship in this land of ours. These are the major objectives of the Armistice day and are the most fitting means of making Armistice day a day of good for America and for the world.
There have been great changes in these last 20 years. Some have been good. Some have been bad. As practical men we must realistically take the world as it is rather than as we think it ought to be. We must recognize that the great ideal of the American soldiers who served across the waters to make the world safe for democracy has not been accomplished. It would be undoubtedly shocking if those who gave their lives during the war would see the condition in all parts of the world today, but we the living must look the facts squarely in the face and realize that other parts of the world have not found democracy the solution of their problems as we have ours. Whether good or bad, totalitarian governments in one form or another today represent the greater part of the countries of the world. How long they can exist as such is an open question. How long any nation can exist without freedom of expression, without freedom of its subjects in determining their own religious life, without freedom in having information upon which to deliberate over their problems, is a matter of great doubt. How long nazism and fascism may survive after their present leadership has passed away is also doubtful. Nevertheless, a governmental idea different from our American ideal of democracy will undoubtedly be developed even after the present European domination has ceased. We must recognize this fact and also must realize that this government as well as England and France has acknowledged the full existence of the totalitarian states. As much as we may differ with such continental systems and as much as we dislike the oppression of the individual which has come under them we must recognize the facts as they are and deal accordingly.

Consistent with this thought the request of the American Legion to the ministers of the churches of the country last Sunday that sermons be preached upon the subject of the Golden Rule is significant. We must do unto others as we would have others do unto us. We should enlist the countries of the world in the cause of peace, letting them realize that America will deal fairly with them and that America expects fairness in return. We will permit them to pursue their own course of internal government. We ask in return that they respect the right of America to pursue without interference its program of democracy. Unfortunately the influence of power has been felt in over-ruling the opportunity to deliberate and determine international affairs solely on the basis of right. Power has asserted itself in controlling the choice between right and wrong. With the great armies of Europe and the force of their influence even in a peaceful settlement, it becomes important to America to reconsider their own activities in military preparation. Even for America with its own ideal of peace, we must realize that if our influence in the interest of peace is to be maintained we must in a larger way strengthen our power so that our voice will be respected and play its full part in causing peace in the world. This power, however, must always be kept confined to the narrowest possible limits consistent with the place of America in the affairs of the world.

In America today we face new challenges. We must make our American democracy more real in the lives of American citizens. We are hardly conscious of the source of the freedom we enjoy. Our American constitution and our American system of government must be greater appreciated for the part which they play in our success and happiness. Armistice day contributes to this and to making Americans conscious of our great American institutions of government. Obviously we may well appreciate other democratic institutions. We are proud of England, a nation of kindred spirits. We see values in the French Republic, but let us in a greater way appreciate our American system for the American people. The national mind, the national heart and the national conscience, these are the Verdun battlements in American life today. Our democracy at home and the methods by which it may fulfill the needs of the needy, and express itself in our American ideals of liberty are our great American problems. Let us in a more real way support liberty, support our American constitution, that it may accomplish through liberty true social ends of government. Although much worry has been expressed as to the future of America and the danger that we too may succumb to the influences of a totalitarian state, it is doubted if this danger really exists. Americans born of a pioneer spirit and having lived in this land of freedom would never submit to dictatorship over the affairs in their private life, their religious belief and the right to enjoy life, liberty and property in the pursuit of their happiness. Armistice day as it comes this year and in years to come must reawaken the spirit of America and stir us in a greater loyalty and respect for our American constitution and this prized land of ours.

George R. Davies of the college of commerce's research bureau. Taxation for the support of competitive arming will be paid, as it formerly was, with greater alacrity than will taxation supporting humanitarian or political projects. However, these taxes will return in the form of industrial purchasing power.
"Even the so-called peace of Munich has failed to halt the flow of European capital to America. In addition, many countries of Europe, especially England, have placed large orders for military equipment with American firms from which both the steel and aviation industries will profit," Professor Davies said.
Of great significance, he added, is the fact that the United States government is planning additions to its fighting forces and to its equipment with the eventual result that it will join the disastrous armament race which has followed in the wake of the depression.
"If this plunge toward rearming affects the United States as it has other nations, munition plant construction will be favored over campaigns for better housing; family cars will be relinquished so that armored tanks can be built," the professor startlingly declared.
However, he pointed out that preparedness does not mean that war is inevitable. Democracies, recovering more fully from the paralysis caused by the depression, may yet out-distance despotisms with the result that normal progress may again be resumed.

WASHINGTON WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Herr Hitler's economics minister, Walter Funk, who is scheduled to visit the United States soon to try for a German-American trade agreement, may as well save time and steamship fare by not coming. Secretary of State Hull, with whom he will have to negotiate, is all in favor of international trade pacts, but not the kind of pacts that Hitler and Funk favor. He made this very clear in his speech before the National Foreign Trade convention in New York a few evenings ago. The Nazi notion of a trade treaty between two countries is a dicker by which they make certain concessions to one another, but to the disadvantage, if possible, of other countries. Secretary Hull wants his trade bargains to be as internationally all-inclusive as can be managed. By no means is he opposed to the inclusion of Germany, but not to the exclusion of any other nationality. He thinks the latter kind of a treaty would be injurious to Germany, but that isn't his business. What he does know is that it would be injurious to the United States.
Aimed at Europe
The secretary said all this, in effect, specifically to the National Foreign Trade convention, but undoubtedly he intended the fuhrer and Herr Funk to overhear him. It's a safe bet that they did, too. Maybe Herr Funk won't come, on the strength of it. If he does, it goes almost without saying that he'll be most politely treated, superficially, but he'll get a punch on the nose essentially.
Secretary Hull implied a lot more than he said.
He referred to "dictatorships," "autarchies" and "totalitarianism." In a narrow sense, he so expressed himself as to appear to mean trade dictatorships, but it was extremely obvious that he had in mind political dictatorships also, like Germany and Italy of course, and Japan probably.
He likewise stressed the "loss of liberty." Trade liberty alone? I'd

Prof. Davies Asserts Business Activity Will Follow Re-arming

States That Sacrifice Required of U. S.; War Not Inevitable
Business activity and employment will follow in the wake of nations' competitive arming—but if the United States enters the world armament race, it will require sacrifices of some elements of a high standard of living. That was the combined prediction and warning issued by Prof. Davies.

think he hinted at the loss of all sorts of liberty, thought it wouldn't have been diplomatic to put it thus.
Our army and navy expansion programs likewise are more than suggestive of our estimate of the overseas growth of absolutism and the decline of democracy. They may seem like military activities, but they have the state department's apprehensions back of them.
Plenty of attempts have been made to induce the White House and the state department to voice opposition to German and Italian persecution of the Jews and to both countries' evident wish to muzzle the Catholics. Rather naturally there's an official disinclination to say much on these subjects. No one questions that, personally, enlightened men like President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull are horribly shocked by these outrages. Yet it isn't surprising that they hesitate to go formally on record concerning them.
We have, indeed, said something semi-officially in behalf of the Jews in Palestine. However, that's outside our sphere of influence. There really isn't anything we can do about it—not unless we choose to mix into world affairs on a larger scale than public opinion promises to justify at present.
It's funny.
This country is isolationist up to date. It doesn't want to have anything to do with overseas quarrels. It had its lesson in the last World war, and is cuckoo on the subject of keeping out of the next one.

ROMANCE UNCLE

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a future on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE." Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior, who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another interesting problem for Sara Sue. But the climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him... then confides he has fallen in love with Peaches Pomeroy.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 8

ON THE afternoon after Dr. Holgate had called on Sara Sue, confessing to her his love for Peaches Pomeroy, Robert Towne, Rice senior, stuck his head out of his dormitory window and issued a command:

"Slime Gurley, get your contemptible hide up here!"

Gurley was not insulted, since all freshmen are called "slimes." He had been at Rice for a week, which is long enough to begin learning things. He hastened upstairs.

"Yes, sir," he reported to Bob, giving the salute. The slime salute consists of touching the button on a ridiculous green skull cap and wagging one's fingers. The cap, like the salute, is mandatory at Rice.

Bob engaged in some intense bearing of the slime until such time as his rich vocabulary ran out. Then the freshman was made to shine two pairs of senior shoes, sweep the senior's room, dust all his furniture, and bring him a glass of ice water from the hall fountain. Twice during the hour's process, Bob whipped the lad with a leather belt—not too hard—just for added pleasure.

Some of Bob's friends came in, and they also insulted the freshman variously. One of them painted a mustache on the young lad with iodine. Another made him sing words on a cigaret pack, to the tune of "Home On the Range." Another commanded the boy to do an imitation of Mae West.

When these scholastic pursuits were over, Bob ordered Slime Gurley to go to the dormitory entrance gates about 200 yards away, climb one high brick post and stand motionless on top of it in the post of Napoleon.

"How long shall I stay?" Worthington asked.

"Until I tell you to come down, you slime! Get going!"

He got going. Moreover, he got going in good spirits. Nobody was peevish at anybody else. This was all routine. He struck his pose on the gatopop, while a lot of passers-by grinned appreciatively. And he was promptly forgotten by the seniors.

Really young freshmen — i. e., slimy slimes — have been known to stand on that post all night, so great was their awe of upperclassmen, and their general lack of acumen.

But Slime Worthington Gurley came to himself after an hour or two. Hunger contributed a great deal. When the dinner signal sounded and students began running like stampeded cattle for the mess hall entrance, "Napoleons" began to worry. Finally he decided to risk the upperclass wrath. He climbed down and hastened to his own meal.

"Slime, if you had stood up there another half hour," Bob Towne greeted him, "I would have smacked you for it. I ought to anyhow."

"But you told—" the lad caught himself.

Bywater Will Close Legion Talks Tonight

National Education Week Ends; WSUI To Carry Program

Concluding the series of American Legion talks on National Education week, Dr. W. L. Bywater will speak tonight over radio station WSUI from 6:50 to 7 o'clock. His subject will be "Gaining Security For All."

Speaking on the program last night, Attorney Edward F. Rate speaking on "Holding Fast To Our Ideals of Freedom" warned future citizens of the United States to beware against encroachment on freedom.

In closing the speaker advised the youth of America saying: "We must learn to defend our ideals of freedom and democracy by constant efforts to improve our plan of living, to eliminate the weaknesses from our government and to match the efficiency of the totalitarian states with an efficiency of our own in which our ideals are preserved."

Current Taxes Total $95,854 For October

The total amount of current taxes collected in Johnson county during the month of October was $95,854.25, County Treasurer W. E. Smith revealed in his report to the county auditor yesterday. The total amount of delinquent taxes collected in the county during the month was $2,064.75.

Special assessments during the month totaled $1,042.20, including $914.04 for paving. Collections to the amount of $60,775.79 constituted miscellaneous receipts, including $36,403.24 for the poor; $6,137.53 for secondary road construction of the 65 per cent and 35 per cent levies and $921.02 for the two per cent auto sales tax.

Receipts and disbursements by the county, the report concluded, included miscellaneous payments of $2,774.34 paid to the city for its improved streets projects and $1,992.70 to county taxpayers in compliance with the 1938 non-stand credit laws.

Santa Claus Is Coming to Town November 26

Christmas Holidays Will Be Ushered in Early as Iowa City Plays Host to St. Nick

By JIM BRISTOL
Down from the land of perpetual snow and ice; down from the Northland — the land of make-believe; down from the Garden of Peace at the Top of the World comes an announcement that will be hailed with joy by young and old.

SANTA CLAUS IS COMING TO TOWN!
Ever proclaiming the year's best holiday with his wealth of wondrous surprises, old St. Nicholas has gladly accepted the invitation of the merchants and business men of this city to make a pre-Christmas visit to Iowa City. His visit will be on Saturday, Nov. 26, and he will bring with him the wonders and marvels of Toyland combined with beautiful and marvelous objects and characters from Fairyland, from Dreamland and from throughout the world. Even the smallest children know about Santa Claus. Every grown-up has heard and read about the jolly old saint ever since he was a little tot on his mother's knee. Hundreds of stories are told about the origin of Santa Claus and in many foreign countries he is called by other names. But regardless of his origin and no matter by what name he is known, the beloved old gentleman's sole purpose on earth is to bring happiness and to promote "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

So it is that we take a look back into the distant past. There was a time, so it is said, when men talked and thought about fairies, brownies, elves and other like characters much more often than they do today. Perhaps fairies and make-believe times never really existed. Perhaps they were only imaginary. But Santa Claus apparently originated in those days and who will deny that he is still here on earth, doing good deeds and bringing happiness to all the world?

Santa Claus is with us the year 'round, although most of the time he is present in spirit only. He is the embodiment of kindness and unselfishness. He is a symbol of a better humanity. He goes hand-in-hand with faith in our Creator.

His very visits on Christmas eve commemorate God's gift to mankind and the practice of giving to those we love at Christmas time is only natural.

Now, when Santa Claus comes to Iowa City on Saturday, Nov.

26, he will bring with him a great host of wonderful and beautiful features. He would like to have every person in the community to know all about these marvelous features and to know a little something about himself.

In The Daily Iowan, every day between now and the time of the parade, there will appear a story about Santa Claus and his visit here. Children should follow these stories closely. Parents should read them aloud to small tots who cannot read. And everyone should discuss with everyone else this most important of happenings — the Santa Claus parade.

Then, when Santa actually does arrive in this city, he will find a populace ready to receive him and everyone, young and old, all set for the greatest, most joyful day of their entire lives.

Santa Claus and His Reindeer Float

When Santa Claus comes riding out of his icy home in the Northland to Iowa City on Saturday, Nov. 26, he will be riding on a float such as the one pictured above. Santa's float will be only one of many which are scheduled to take part in the gigantic

Santa Claus' parade. Along with Santa will come all the fairies, brownies and elves from Fairyland to entertain the citizens of Iowa City and to add to the general merriment of the day. Plan to be in Iowa City on Saturday, Nov. 26 for the happiest and merriest day of your life.

City's Respects Paid World War Dead

American Legion Sponsors 'Moment's Silence' Memorial to Comrades

A marching band, flags waving, three bomb reports and firing of rifles, together with patriotic speeches merged their efforts in bringing citizens to their feet yesterday to pay respect to those who died for their country. The annual Armistice day celebration was sponsored by the American Legion with the aid of various patriotic organizations throughout the city.

The parade began at the Community building, marched up Gilbert to Washington street, west to Clinton and north to the east approach of Old Capitol.

Among the participants in the parade were members of the American Legion, University band, Veterans of Foreign Wars Junior drum and bugle corps, Eagle Ladies Drill team, Boy Scouts, the Red Cross and a unit of the National Guard cavalry-infantry.

The Roy L. Chopek post, presided at the services. Frank J. Mezik, post chaplain, delivered the invocation.

Short talks were delivered by Attorney W. R. Hart, who spoke on "The American Legion and Armistice Day;" Mayor Myron J. Walker, who spoke on "Iowa City and Armistice Day;" and Prof. Harry G. Barnes, who talked on "The University and Armistice Day."

Following these addresses at 11 a.m., the firing of a bomb prompted a moment of silence during which time memories of war heroes were revived. A squad from Troop I, 113th cavalry, fired three shots, two more bombs were fired, and finally taps was sounded. The University band then played "America."

Prof. Mason Ladd of the college of law climaxed the program with the main address of the day. It dealt with the facts before the world today. He urged the people to look at the world as it is, not as they think it ought to be.

Professor Ladd reminded his audience of the day when this campus was transformed into a training camp. "Every male student," he said, "was getting ready to join those 'over there.'"

He continued, "We should enlist the countries of the world in the cause of peace, letting them realize that America will deal fairly with them and that America expects fairness in return."

Professor Ladd praised the English government and the French republic, but he insisted that Americans should value their own democracy as the strongest and best. "The national mind, the national heart and the national conscience—these are the Verdun bat-

Following Professor Ladd's speech the band played the national anthem. The colors were retired, and the Rev. R. M. Krueger delivered benediction, thus concluding another reverent pause in American life.

Dr. Malbone W. Graham, professor of political science on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, has received decorations from the republic of Lithuania and from Finland, in recognition of his published work.

Funds for erection of Silliman college, the 10th at Yale university under the college plan for undergraduate residence, adopted 15 years ago, have been provided by a bequest of Frederick W. Vanderbilt, who died recently.

ANSWER TO TWO INQUIRIES

I hadn't thought about Him for some time. . . Hadn't had time. . . And then, evidently inspired by the week that's passed, these two letters came. . . "Do you believe in God?" they both asked. . .

And here I am searching for an answer. . .

I must confess I don't know. . . I can't define a God, but somehow I don't think I'm an atheist. . .

I haven't been able to find Him in churches much. . . Because each one tells me He's a different kind of Deity. . . Ours, each says, is perfection. . .

They can't all be right. . . Each must be a little wrong. . .

I think, of course, that I've known my own particular God quite intimately once or twice. . . Those rare times when I did something really quite magnificent and fine. . . And no one knew it. . .

And best of all it didn't matter.

What things? . . . Laugh if you like, but I've written a particularly good column. . . I've been especially witty. . . I've given someone a half dollar I needed myself. . .

I've felt great capacity for enjoyment. . . I've seen a painting that moved me. . . I've been stirred by a movie. . . I've watched a sky that was breath-taking. . .

I've heard a symphony that made me weep. . . I've read a poem that got inside my feeling.

Then, for that very little time, I think I was, may I say it, God-like. . . And understanding. . .

Such moments are, fortunately I think, rare. . . Great moments always are. . .

When I try to picture Him, I get a bit confused. . . It seems to me quite trivial whether man is in His image or not. . .

Or whether he be a Catholic or

PROTESTANT OR A JEWISH GOD. . .

The outside wouldn't matter. . . I don't choose my friends because they're handsome. . .

And He would be somewhat like my best friend. . . He would have a sense of humor, appreciate a good joke. . . He would be able to understand sin. . . And appreciate those who have and are repentant
