German Ambassador To U. S. Called Home

Nazi Move Is Paralleled To Wilson Recall

Dieckhoff to Report On Attitude Toward Anti-Jew Outbursts

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, Nov. 18 (AP)—The nazi government suddenly called home its ambassador in Washington today for a personal report on what is regarded here as unfavorable American reactions to anti-Jewish outbursts.

The summons to Dr. Hans Dieckhoff followed so closely Washington's similar request to Hugh R. Wilson, United States ambassador to Germany, that even the average German who ordinarily disregards such moves began to realize all was not well between the two capitals.

DNB, the official German news agency, said "the ambassador would inform the foreign minister (Joachim von Ribbentrop) in detail concerning the queer attitude toward events in Germany of a domestic nature which is apparent from declarations by Roosevelt and other authoritative personalities in the United States of America."

(President Roosevelt said in a press conference Tuesday that news of anti-Jewish violence in Germany profoundly shocked American public opinion.)

Official spokesmen emphasized that Dr. Dieckhoff was "coming to report—nothing more," but declined to predict how long he would stay here, whether he would return, or whether the government would leave his post unfilled indefinitely.

It was known, however, that reports of the German embassy in Washington pictured so blackly American reaction to the wave of violence in Germany, following last week's assassination of a German diplomat by a Jew in Paris, that a personal report by the ambassador was deemed necessary.

(A German embassy secretary in Washington said Dr. Dieckhoff might sail from New York next Friday. In that case his departure would almost coincide with the arrival in New York of Ambassador Wilson, who was ordered home for "consultation.")

It had been expected generally that Germany would not ask Dieckhoff to come home until after Wilson had made his report to President Roosevelt.

Nazi officials, meanwhile, faced the possibility that some former German colony might be used for colonization by Jewish refugees under an international emigration plan.

Japanese Defy U. S. Demands

TOKYO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Japan denied today point by point every charge in an American note demanding maintenance of the "open door" in China and asserted that "ideas and principles of the past" no longer apply in China's "new situation."

This "new situation" results from Japan's aim of "Asia for Asiatics" in which she would force China into a solid bloc with Manchoukuo and the Japanese empire for the political and economic domination of east Asia.

Lewis Elected C. I. O. Leader

First Constitutional Convention Creates Stable Organization

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18 (AP)—The new CIO emerged from the cheering and celebration of its first constitutional convention today carrying a broad program for political and economic action under the leadership of its militant champion, John L. Lewis, 58-year-old one-time coal miner.

Winding up the five-day gathering, the 519 delegates who set up the CIO on a permanent basis at the Congress of Industrial Organizations, swept Lewis into the first presidency by thunderous acclamation.

Others Elected
Then with bands, horns and whistles blaring the convention rolled on to complete the new CIO by electing Philip Murray, another former miner and Sidney Hillman, ex-clothing worker, as vice-presidents, James B. Carey as secretary, and 38 union officials to sit with the officers of CIO's executive board.

Sweeping through a mass of policy commitments, the delegates reaffirmed their stand for the organization of the unskilled workers in the mass production industries and called on CIO leadership for an "unremitting campaign throughout every industry."

This coordination and the constitutional convention, Lewis predicted earlier, would be "the greatest step possible" for peace with the A. F. of L. by placing the CIO on an equal footing.

Discuss Fascism
Shifting their interest quickly from domestic to international affairs the convention approved a resolution calling on the United States to strengthen "democratic forces" in South and Central American countries against economic and political penetration there of "the fascist empires, Germany, Italy and Japan."

Responding to the acclaim that carried him into the presidency, Lewis, who also heads the United Mine Workers, largest of the 34 affiliated unions, declared:

"This election marks my transition from the role of an unscrupulous and tyrannical dictator to the role of a servant of a constitutional democracy, a constitutional labor movement — some change for a dictator!"

Navy Bombing Plane Crashes at Honolulu, Killing Two Fliers

HONOLULU, Nov. 18 (AP)—One of the navy's pioneer long range bombing planes crashed at high speed into a boat house during practice landings at Pearl harbor, killing two and injuring its other five occupants late last night.

Lieut. (J. G.) P. H. Ashworth, 30, Wenham, Mass., and Aviation Cadet J. W. Beam, Bardsworth, Ky., died in the wreckage.

Prisoner Dies
FT. MADISON (AP)—James E. Cook, 55, life term prisoner at the state penitentiary here, died yesterday after a 23-foot fall from the ledge of a second story window he was washing. He was sentenced from Winterset in 1914.

Industrial Men Give Approval To Trade Pact

See Agreement As Move Toward Better Standards of Living

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Approval of the new British-Canadian - American trade agreement in general, if not on certain diverse points, was accorded tonight by a number of leaders in banking, industry and commerce.

Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, George H. Davis, president of the United States chamber of commerce, and Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of General Motors corporation, were among those who broadcast this view of the treaties over a nation-wide (NBC) network.

Commends Intent
Commending the intent of the Anglo - American agreement, Swope asserted: "The freer exchange of goods should lead to improved standards of living in both countries, with a resulting prosperity and greater well-being of more people."

Aldrich said the agreements would "broaden the foreign market for our agricultural supplies which constitute our greatest export problem; it now remains for private enterprise to take prompt advantage of the opportunities which have been presented."

Said Sloan: "Again America, through the untiring efforts of Secretary Hull, moves forward in lowering the barriers against world trade. With this new treaty, the principle of multilateral relationships becomes more firmly established, and, as such, is a true approach to the maximum benefit with a more equitable distribution of the world's material resources essential in its search for peace and progress."

Milestones
Davis commented: "Viewed from a world's point of view, the completion of pacts with Great Britain and Canada are undoubtedly milestones in history; from a business point of view in the fields in which I am acquainted, the gains and losses seem to be about evenly balanced."

The attitude of other industrial and commercial leaders was mixed.

In some quarters, the treaty was praised as a stimulant to American trade; in others, it was described in harsh terms as unsatisfactory.

Ask Statement At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 19 (AP)—Pitt's "tempest over tuition" with the freshman football team in the starring role, picked up impetus on a new front tonight with a demand for a statement of policy by the student-faculty association.

John Downie, president of the association, said: "I think the time has come to ask a few questions about university policies." One of the queries which the committee proposed to have university authorities answer was, "What's the university doing about the football situation?"

The freshman grid heroes, who wound up a highly successful season today by burying Kiski prep by a 32-0 count, claim bills for $150 tuition were sent to their homes after they had been promised they were exempt from payment.

John Weber, university secretary-business manager, has maintained that under the school's new policy, athletic scholarships are ended, and they must pay the bills. He predicted an amicable settlement of the difficulty.

Woodman, Spare That Tree!

Women Protest Removal of Frail Cherry Flora For $3,000,000 Jefferson Memorial

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Cherry trees caused more excitement today than they have since young George Washington whacked one down.

From the capital's tidal basin to the White House a word battle raged on the question whether any of the famous Japanese cherry trees should be removed to make way for the new $3,000,000 Thomas Jefferson memorial.

"This," said one angry woman, as she chained herself to a tree that a workman was trying to remove, "is the worst desecration of beauty in the capital since the burning of the White House by the British."

Later she unchained herself, but she and 100 other women guardians of the frail trees continued an angry demonstration.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt sought to get at the root of the uproar. Stating that only 88 trees have to be pulled from the historic soil, the chief executive added that not only would they be replanted but they would be joined by 912 new trees.

But his announcement didn't stop the women. Grabbing shovels from the hands of the astonished workmen, they started refilling the holes left gaping by the uprooted flora.

The workmen then reunited their shattered forces and gently recaptured their shovels. While the ladies made caustic remarks, the men once more removed the dirt.

Told what was going on down at the tidal basin, the president laughingly announced that the trees—women, chains and all—would have to be transplanted.

The president asserted that the cherry tree issue had been exaggerated—that many persons had the erroneous impression that the trees would be destroyed. He said he had been advised that with the addition of the 912 new trees, the annual cherry blossom show would be more pretentious than ever.

Gettysburg Citizens of Town Pay Tribute to 'Abe'

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—A small boy and an elderly man stood among a handful of townsfolk in this battlefield community tonight and paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln's immortal address of 75 years ago.

The occasion was the eve of the anniversary of the dedication of a national cemetery for the heroes of the Blue and the Gray who fell at Gettysburg during the Civil war's crucial battle.

The boy recited Lincoln's brief address. The little gathering listened solemnly as his young voice declaimed: "Four score and seven years ago..."

William C. Storrick, who attended the dedication as a boy of 10 and came to be superintendent of the battlefield's guides, related his impression of the president's appearance. Lincoln had not, at first, been invited to speak, he recalled.

He's Coming SOON!

Saturday, November 26, Is Santa Claus Day in Iowa City

PARADE STARTS PROMPTLY AT 10:30 A. M.

The football squads of both East and West Waterloo high schools will arrive in Iowa City this morning to see this afternoon's Iowa-Nebraska football game. The teams are being given the trip here by the Waterloo alumni of the university, working in conjunction with the athletic departments of both schools.

A special train has been chartered for the group, which will arrive at the Cranford depot at 11 o'clock this morning. At noon the two squads, traditional opponents on the gridiron, will be served a special dinner in the river room of Iowa Union.

Plans to Work Out 4 Others If Favorable

Argentina, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand To Be Next

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Administration officials studied bitter criticism and warm praise of the new trade agreements with Great Britain and Canada today for indications of opposition and support they may expect in efforts to negotiate four other such pacts in the near future.

The mutual tariff reductions agreed to yesterday with Britain and Canada evoked charges, on the one hand, that the administration had "traded away employment," and predictions, on the other, that every American home would benefit.

Along Party Lines
Initial comment in congress was generally along party lines, but it was too limited to give an accurate indication of the reaction that may be registered in the session beginning next January.

State department officials were hopeful that British and Canadian acceptance of Secretary Hull's cherished policy of bargaining down international trade barriers would encourage Argentina, Australia, the Union of South Africa and New Zealand, among others, to negotiate similar trade treaties with this government. Realization of their hopes would bring to 23 the total number of such pacts.

Exploratory discussions have been carried on already with all four countries. The discussions with Argentina have been apparently dormant, however, since they encountered difficulties over Argentina's foreign exchange policies.

Outlook Good
The outlook for formal negotiations with Australia, which once was placed with Germany on the United States' economic blacklist because of alleged discrimination against American goods, is believed to be good. A high Australian official spent considerable time in this country in recent months.

Experts said that manufactures are major items of United States export to all four countries. Argentina exports meat products and wheat, sending quantities of the grain even to this country after drought years cut short the United States crop. Australia and New Zealand have principally mutton and wool to sell.

Among the critics who spoke out today against the new agreement with Great Britain was Russel T. Fisher, president of the national association of cotton manufacturers.

"In granting tariff concessions on cotton yarns and cloth to the United Kingdom, the administration has traded away employment in textiles," Fisher said in a statement at Boston. "The cotton textile industry in the United States is to be penalized for its high standards."

Colonel Howell Dies in Capital

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Funeral services were held in Walter Reed hospital chapel this afternoon for Colonel Daniel L. Howell, U. S. A., retired. He died there yesterday.

Burial with simple honors followed in the Ft. Meyer section of Arlington National cemetery.

Colonel Howell was born at Keokuk, August 30, 1853, and served in the army from his graduation from West Point in June, 1879, to his retirement August 30, 1917.

He is survived by two daughters and a son.

Colonel Howell was awarded the Silver Star and cited for gallantry in action against the Spanish forces at the battle of El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.

After his retirement he returned to active service and was detailed to general recruiting service at Ft. Logan, Utah, from Sept. 11, 1917, to July 18, 1919.

Colonel Howell began his military career at Ft. Logan, where he served from his graduation from West Point until Oct. 9,

Tight Pants! Ruled Not Contempt To Wear Them

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18 (AP)—Miss Helen Hulick may wear slacks in court if she likes.

The appellate division of the supreme court said so today in dissolving municipal Judge Arthur Guerin's order sentencing the 28-year old kindergarten teacher to five days in jail for contempt.

Judge Guerin refused to allow her to testify in a robbery case because she was attired in gray-green slacks and a close fitting orange sweater. He told her to appear in "women's" clothes the following day. She returned the next day, wearing the same slacks and a red and white sweater.

He held she was in contempt of court, setting forth in his order that she had appeared in "a tight fitting sweater and tight fitting pants, commonly known as slacks," and that the "effect of this on the orderly procedure of the court was not acceptable."

American Virility Unimpaired Despite Modern Rush, Worry, Expert Reports

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18 — Population experts today reported that American virility is unimpaired despite all the rush and worry of the present times.

The report was made to the American Philosophical society, an organization started by Benjamin Franklin to spread useful knowledge.

The virility conclusions were given by John C. Flanagan, of Teachers college, Columbia university. They came from intensive study of professional people, the type whose families are limited.

Each married couple answered 2,500 questions about wedded life. Nearly half made definite plans for children under birth control. Nevertheless this half reported that 24 per cent of its children arrived despite birth control.

President Asks For 6 Month Respite On Refugee Visas Here

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Secretary Hull urged the active participation of all governments in seeking a solution for the problems of Germany's Jewish refugees today, asserting that recent developments had made the problem more than ever urgent.

He made this assertion in a formal statement, announcing that Myron Taylor would return to London to attend, as the representative of the Washington government, an early meeting of the inter-governmental committee on political refugees.

The day was filled with other developments arising from nazi treatment of the Jews, which President Roosevelt has denounced as "unbelievable."

The president asked the labor department to permit 12,000 to 15,000 German and Austrian refugees, here on six months visitors' visas, to remain in the country an additional half year.

He told a press conference it would be cruel and inhuman to send them back to face the rigors of a concentration camp or other persecutions.

Attorney General Cummings joined the still growing list of prominent individuals who have denounced Germany's treatment of the Jews, asserting it had "shocked the conscience of the world" and was "as uncivilized as the cruelties of 19 centuries ago when Christians were fed to wild beasts."

Finds 60-Year Old Farm Hand Guilty In Murder of Boss

CEDAR RAPIDS, Nov. 18 (AP)—Charles Grabin, 60-year-old farm hand of Ely, was found guilty of second degree murder, by district court jury at 3:30 this afternoon, almost exactly 24 hours after the jurors first retired to begin their deliberations on the case.

Grabin was charged with the killing of his employe, Ed Skalsky, 55, on a farm near Ely Sept. 28. He pleaded self defense.

SATURDAY, NOV. 19, 1938

There's The Other Side, Too!

BECAUSE of events that have come to pass we believe it is opportune again to warn our readers: read your daily newspaper intelligently.

We are prompted to this statement by the appearance in last evening's papers of the news that Germany is calling her ambassador to the United States home. Following close upon similar action by Roosevelt in calling home America's ambassador, it brings to the fore the need for attempts at understanding.

Newspapers, if they do their duty to subscribers, must remember always that there are two sides to every question. But readers, too, must remember that such is true. Newspapers are published by human beings who are swayed—though we believe not as much as the person who is not trained to spot it—by the forces of propaganda. If you, then, reader, will learn to read intelligently—to seek to understand what is being said, to imagine what's behind every story you read, and then draw your own conclusions, you will benefit by the resulting knowledge.

Newspapers have been criticized for being biased, but anyone who reads his paper thoroughly will find that usually both sides are presented. The hope of most every newspaper and school of journalism is to educate readers to read thoroughly and to draw conclusions for themselves.

Applying this to the German situation, we ask you to think what astonishment the German people must feel at the American attitude. On our campus, a professor relates, a member of the Dresden choir which appeared here recently was astonished at the headlines in American papers. "Jewish controlled press!" the German boy was said to have exclaimed. His conclusion is not so naive as it seems when we stop to realize that from his viewpoint the Americans are unintelligent for their racial tolerance.

Time and again you have heard that education is the only savior for democracy. How well it applies here: be intelligent enough to judge for yourself what is fact and what is fiction. Analyze everything you read with a suspicion of propaganda, try to see both sides of the question, and be tolerant enough to listen to those whose ideas are opposed to yours.

That in spite of the lack of tolerance or German nazis or American congressional committees is, we believe, the way to preserve democracy.

The new trend in fashion calls for women to be feminine. Suppose they're trying to get back the seals in the street cars?

A burglar in South Gate, Cal., sent back $100 of the $120 he had taken from a housewife. Probably a tax dodger.

This World We Live In DO you grow tired of a world which thinks only in terms of bloody wars and other distasteful means of death and destruction?

Then, cease thinking about THAT world. It's much more stimulating to think about the world that believes in the relief of suffering, the alleviation of pain, the saving of lives and the promotion of the public welfare.

That is the world of any number of agencies which are asking your assistance. We're thinking of such agencies as the Community Chest, the Red Cross and the Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

For most of the months of the year you hear very little about them. But now, every one of them is seeking your cooperation in carrying out its missions of mercy or good.

It isn't too late to give your bit to the funds of the Community Chest if you neglected it when the campaign began. We believe, and believe you must agree, that the organizations supported by Community Chest funds are the ones which will make this world one in which living is a pleasant and stimulating pursuit.

And the American Red Cross, you'll agree, needs no selling. Good Samaritans seem to be fewer today than in the days before the government began its Samaritanism. But, even so, we wonder if the duties of the Red Cross aren't those which government agencies will never be able to properly fulfill. Suffering and destruction which the Red Cross alleviates and repairs will always continue, and needs your support.

To us it seems the Anti-tuberculosis Society carries on a special kind of work that is invaluable. When we look back on the work of such scientists as Koch and Trudeau and the great contribution they made, it seems tiny but significant work that is left for us: the buying of Christmas seals. What satisfaction can be yours to know that your seal purchases mean the very lives of those whose only hope is through treatment in sanitariums financed by the Anti-tuberculosis Society funds.

Perhaps you don't agree with us, but we did think it worth calling to your attention—that is if you're tired of hearing about wars and such.

The man at the next desk says a demagogue is one who entertains with a trained zeal.

Criminologists estimate there are 5,000,000 engaged in criminal pursuits in America. The figure probably does not include the radio football forecasters.

Japan admits its intention to dominate China. That probably was meant to correct any impression the Chinese may have had that the invasion was a picnic.

Higher education in the United States is epitomized in the forward pass, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. We'd like to add that a good line helps.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

MR. CUMMINGS IS LEAVING HOMER CUMMINGS is perhaps not the best attorney general this nation ever had—not yet the worst. He has accomplished some improvements in the Justice department, notably in criminal apprehensions and prosecutions, in expediting court procedure and in prison administration.

A friendly and easy-going man who prefers to bask in the sunshine of today rather than in that of a visionary tomorrow afternoon, Mr. Cummings' talents as a harmonizer have been severely taxed in the divided councils of the new deal.

Mr. Cummings' wide experience in practical politics failed him miserably in his most ambitious undertaking. As chief of the administration's legal forces it was his assignment to bring the judicial branch of government into the new deal fold. The scheme he concocted was designed on the theory that the hand is quicker than the eye. Argument: The federal court dockets were crowded. Remedy: For each judge over 70 years who fails to retire appoint a younger judge to sit with him. Object: To pack the Supreme Court. It was a clever scheme—too clever. Mass opinion revolted. Congress rebelled. The packing plan was overwhelmingly defeated. And that was the turning point where the new deal's popularity started its long toboggan downward.

We said Mr. Cummings originated the packing plan. But, really, we are not altogether sure. All we know is that he fronted for it, that he was generally reputed to have devised it, that he never denied the authorship, and that no one else ever claimed the slightest share of "credit" for it. Mr. Cummings will retire to private life in January. And we dearest that if ever his right to that particular niche in history is disputed it will be only by a deathbed confession of some anonymous confederate overwhelmed by a remorseful desire to take the rap for Mr. Cummings, even as Homer took the rap for F. D. R.

OUR UNION SUIT

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — To Mary With Love: People speak of "a flood of memories." I know what that means now. I was standing under the clock in the Biltmore today, which used to be a famous meeting place in the old days, and it all came back. It seemed for a moment as if it were exactly as it had been on that dim Saturday of the middle 1920's, when college boys wore coonskin coats, and everybody was drinking bathtub gin, and girls from everywhere came into New York on Saturday afternoons for the tea dansants.

The same clock was there and the same walls. But the faces were different. I remember on that day that everybody was speaking of Red Grange, and Coolidge was president, and the orchestra kept coming back to "Tea For Two," which was new, and Dartmouth was still undefeated, and it was November.

I had come there from the Fraternity Clubs at 38th and Madison, where I was spending the night, and I couldn't get over the excitement of meeting F. Scott Fitzgerald, who had been in the lobby when I registered. I had a bottle of gin wrapped up in a newspaper and as I placed it on the desk a young man with a gay sort of what-the-hell manner came in. He spoke to everybody and pretty soon he came over and picked up the bottle that was heavily wrapped in a copy of the New York Times. "Hmmm," he said, sniffing it, "gin." And then he snit it down and walked away, and for a moment I thought he was a detective and that he was going to arrest me for breaking the law.

But when he was gone I asked the clerk, "Who was that?" And he told me, "F. Scott Fitzgerald." And I was pretty excited, because everybody had read "Tales of the Jazz Age," just as everybody was reading "The Green Hat" and talking about Michael Arlen.

And then I went over to the Biltmore and stood under the clock because that was where I was to meet Jack McQuade, my roommate in school, and presently he came in like a great bear in his coonskin coat and his red knit tie and his Rosenberg suit. "Well," he said, "this is the nuts, eh? I told you you'd like New York," and then we went in and sat at a table with about 200 other people and danced with a lot of girls he knew, girls from Smith and from Wellesley and other schools too. And I met Florence Rice there and she danced with me, and ever after that when I'd see her picture in the papers—in Hollywood, in Miami, in New York—I'd say to myself, "I remember you. I danced with you at the Biltmore one Saturday afternoon in November. You were Grantland Rice's daughter then, but now you're an actress and everybody knows you."

It's fun to think of old times sometimes—sometimes when you turn a corner, or happen by chance to pause under a clock.

TUNING IN By Loren Hickerson

music in Russ Morgan's manner.

TONIGHT'S SERENADE the Saturday Night Serenade, to be exact, is one of the better programs of the day. Tonight's show at 8:30 over the Columbia network, will emphasize the up-to-the-minute hit tunes of the day.

The orchestra, under the direction of Gus Haenschen, leads off with "Lambeth Walk," swings into "Change Partners" from Fred Astaire and Ginger Roger's "Carefree," with Bill Perry singing that one. It follows up with "A Tisket" and "Music Maestro Please."

Mary Eastman, soprano, will sing Vincent Youman's ballad, "Through the Years," and the Serenaders choir offers a timely medley of college airs. The show closes with that last summer tune that's doing pretty well again right now, "The Girl Friend of the Whirling Dervish."

RAMBLIN' RED FOLEY, singing star of Avalon Time, all-American musical show, will highlight "Down on the Old Plantation" and, with the musical support of the Avalon chorus, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," on tonight's coast-to-coast broadcast over NBC at 6 o'clock.

The Neighbor Boys' contribution will be "All God's Chillun Got Wings" and the featured college medley will include the songs from the University of California, New York University and Notre Dame.

Bob Strong's arrangement of "Who Blew Out the Flame?" and "Study in Brown" (it's my favorite liltin' tune) will be spotlighted by the orchestra and the entire ensemble will offer "All Ashore!" A good show.

EARL MCGILL still popular here after a summer (or part of one) on the campus, directs "The Automatic Man: Francis" from Dr. Paul de Kruif's "Hunger Fighters" at 8 o'clock tonight over Columbia. Most popular of the Saturday dramas.

The narrative, from the files of ex-mountie W. Don Fast and written and directed by Jack Johnstone, will tell how the counterfeiter overplayed his hand and was subsequently brought to justice. Johnny the call boy as master of ceremonies will introduce

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — You may not know it, but Hollywood does: no matter what your calendar says, every year has 95 weeks.

Hollywood learned this disconcerting state of time's affairs from the Warner research department, which in turn learned it from the research group of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce. Hollywood is interested because, with a full list of all the "weeks" supposed to be observed throughout the land, Hollywood can anticipate each of them with appropriate "art" featuring its stars and starlets.

Even thus equipped, however, a publicity "art" man can run into difficulties. How illustrate Truth Week, Honesty Week, or such intangibles as APPLE GROWERS HAVE ANOTHER WEEK as allegedly observed in New York State? Reindeer Week has possibilities, provided he can find a reindeer, also provided the reindeer is agreeable to posing with Olivia DeHavilland, Marie Wilson, or Ann Sheridan. (Lives there a reindeer with soul so dead he wouldn't be agreeable?) Apple Week, yes—Bonita Granville munching one. Prayer Week? Shirley Temple, of course. Grandma Week—that calls for May Robson. Courtesy Week, well, Ivan Lebedeff will bow from the waist. International Peach Week—who but Danielle Darrieux? Pride in Appearance Week—Adolphe Menjou, naturally.

Whoa, here's Find Yourself Week. And Go to High School Week, and Bundles for Near East Week. Weeks and weeks and weeks. I think the publicity art man who brought all this up wishes he hadn't brought it up.

Also, by now, quite a few people are wishing that time clocks hadn't been brought up, either. Hollywood became time-clock conscious the other day when a new agreement between producers and the Screen Actors Guild became effective. Actors drawing less than $1,000 a week are supposed to punch the clock to keep strict account of working hours and overtime—and some of our best people make less than $1,000 a week.

The first concrete result was a general rush, by producers, to acquire time-clocks, the demand exceeding the supply. (Twenty-five Century-Fox ordered 25, got only 10.) Actors, it was estimated, would "punch" their cards from four to eight times daily: at the casting office, in the make-up department, in wardrobe, arriving on the set, arriving for fittings, arriving for publicity interviews or portrait sittings, before going to lunch, again on returning from lunch, again on final departure.

Studios anticipated increased overhead, amount unestimated; mad scramble for the time-clocks at quitting time; lost and misplaced time cards. To avoid the possible overtime payment of players, they worked on more rigid daily production schemes.

Early returns from the time-clock front seem to bear out anticipations. Actors and bosses alike were squawking. Indicated was a general clarification of the rules, perhaps the abandonment of clock-punching in favor of some simpler form of record-keeping.

Simplest way out, of course, would be for the producers to pay everybody $1,000 a week. None of them, to date, has thought of it.

Cops Seize Scooters Then Stage Own Race

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Police confiscated several home-made "scooters" from youthful owners who had used them too freely on sidewalks. Turnkey George Bruin and Patrolman Herman Hensley looked longingly at them and finally could resist no longer. So each manned a scooter and staged a race for the station-house gang.

Medical Aptitude Test Last year, under the auspices of the Association of American Medical colleges, the medical aptitude test was taken by 10,755 students of 628 colleges applying for admission to approximately 90 per cent of the approved medical schools of the United States. This test is required of all applicants for admission to the college of medicine of the University of Iowa, by virtue of its institutional membership in this association (see the university catalogue for the current year, near the bottom of page 77.)

The medical aptitude test for University of Iowa applicants for admission to any medical school belonging to the American Medical association, for the year 1939-1940, will be given promptly at 3 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, in the main auditorium of the chemistry building. Each such prospective applicant is notified to call at the office of the registrar in order to obtain the fee card for the prescribed fee of one dollar ($1) which goes to the Association of American Medical Colleges for the purpose of meeting the expenses of conducting the examination, reading the manuscripts, tabulating the outcomes and making these outcomes available to the respective medical schools. This fee card should be presented immediately to the treasurer's office, which will issue to each student who pays the fee indicated, a card testifying that the fee has been paid; and this second card is to be presented to the student as he enters the main auditorium of the chemistry building, just before 3 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2. An attendant will take up these cards as presented. H. C. DORCAS, Registrar

Captain Jack Eicherly

On the list of Hawkeye gridders who will be playing their last games in Iowa stadium as they take the field against the Cornhuskers today, is Captain Jack Eicherly, of Holstein. Eicherly is the man who turned in one of the most thrilling runs in Hawkeye football history, when he broke loose against Minnesota a year ago, and he hopes to use his running ability today in order to give his grid career a successful finish. Included in the help that Jack will have in the backfield will be, among others, Glenn "Red" Olson of Colo and Al Schenk of Chicago. Olson, who has recovered from the injuries which have kept him on the bench in several games this year, will be back at his old half-back position, while Schenk will probably start the game at quarterback. Among the linemen who will be seeing service today will be Carl Vergamini, a guard. Vergamini, who came here from Council Bluffs, adds wrestling to his foot-

Cornhuskers and Hawkeyes to Battle Today

Fred Apostoli Stops Corbett

Wins on Technical K. O. in Eighth Round Before 7,500

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Fred Apostoli, the San Francisco bellhop long recognized as the uncrowned king of middleweights, perched at least a portion of the 160 pound crown on his curly black hair tonight by stopping young Corbett in eight rounds at Madison Square Garden. Apostoli weighed 159; his rival 159 1-2.

Before a somewhat disappointing crowd of 7,500 who paid $21, 601 at the box office the San-Franciscan dropped his California rival twice in the seventh round and two times more in the eighth before Referee Eddie Josephs halted the proceedings at two minutes, 1 second of the latter heat. The victory gave the flailing Fred recognition in New York state as world middleweight champion.

After a slow start, which saw the ring - scarred Fresno southpaw give Apostoli plenty of trouble through the first two rounds with his left hand style of whacking, Fred went to work from the fifth heat to the end, it was just a question of when the finish would come.

Apostoli had been trained to go after the southpaw stance of the 33-year old Corbett with a smashing right hook, and once he started to pour this in, he was complete master. He threw this blow, along with jarring lefts to the body, and Corbett, after gamely accepting the beating, slumped to one knee in a neutral corner for a nine-count in the seventh round.

He came back fighting, but Apostoli, the 24-year old boy who has whipped every top middleweight in the game today, sailed in and flattened him once more, this time with a right hand smash that landed flush on the face.

Coming out for the eighth, Apostoli belted the shorter, stockier 33-year old brawler with rights all over the ring. Finally Corbett went down in his own corner for a count of nine from another right. They danced out to mid-ring from there, but the beating had been too much for the game warrior who once held the welterweight championship. In the center of the ring, he slumped to his knees and Referee Josephs called the whole thing off.

Hawkllets Open Cage Season

Patchwork Lineup To Face Williamsburg Next Tuesday Night

Pushing his Little Hawk cagers hard to mold them into a smooth-working quintet, Coach Francis Merten has begun final preparations for the Hawkllets' opening game with Williamsburg in City high gym Tuesday evening.

Hindered by the lack of men, many outstanding cage candidates having been members of Iowa City's triumphant football eleven, Merten will present a patch-work lineup Tuesday evening. Starting for the Little Hawks will probably be Captain Russell Hirt at center, George Devine and Prescott at forwards, Lemons and Culbertson at guards.

The team should be strengthened when Joe McGinnis, Ted McLaughlin, Ted Lewis, Bob Buckley, Vergil Parker, Junior Heacock, Clarence Crumley and "Dusty" Maher report. These men have been on the football team and had little time for practice because of the postponement of the Davenport game.

Returning lettermen around whom Merten will build his 1938 edition of the fighting Little Hawks include Hirt, McLaughlin, Devine, Lemons and McGinnis. Reserves from last year's powerful quintet include Heacock, Buckley, Maher and Crumley. Promising men coming up from Herb Corn-mack's sophomore five are Lewis, Bob King and Parker.

Big losses from last year's speedy club are Putnam, Covert, Wheeler and Rogers. Big Putnam, Iowa City center, will be hard to replace. He was a big factor in the Red and White's ability to control the ball from the bankboard. Wheeler and Rogers were Iowa City's speedy pony forwards with keen shooting eyes. Covert was a crack forward.

Little Hawk hopes were given a serious setback when it was feared that Bob King's knee probably will keep him out of competition for most of the season. He pulled a cartilage and was well on the road to recovery when he re-injured his knee in a touch-football game a short time ago.

Merten has made up another tough schedule for his Red and White basketballers, including among their opponents such teams as Davenport, West Waterloo, Muscatine, Clinton and the Cedar Rapids schools. Three dates are yet to be filled.

The incomplete schedule:
Nov. 22, Williamsburg, here.
Nov. 25, Muscatine, there.
Nov. 29, Lone Tree, here.
Dec. 2, Davenport, there.
Dec. 9, Wilson, C. R., here.
Dec. 16, Roosevelt, C. R., there.
Dec. 20, West Waterloo, here.
Dec. 29 or 30, Open.
Jan. 6, Clinton, there.
Jan. 13, McKinley, C. R., there.
Jan. 20, Dubuque, here.
Jan. 27, Davenport, there.
Feb. 3, Clinton, here.
Feb. 4, Williamsburg, there.
Feb. 10, Franklin, C. R., here.
Feb. 17, Open.
Feb. 25, Open.

Merten is looking for games to be played in Iowa City for Dec. 29 or 30 and Feb. 25 and a game to be played on a foreign court on Feb. 17.

Air services available to travelers in the western hemisphere now extend a total of 141,000 miles, or 44 per cent of the combined lengths of all the world's scheduled air services.

Ames Awaits Oklahoma-I.S.C. Title Clash Today

AMES, Nov. 19 (AP)—Little Ames teemed with excitement tonight awaiting the Iowa State-Oklahoma clash for the Big Six football championship here today.

The weather man forecast "fair and warmer" and a veteran line, featuring Ed Bock, a rough and ready guard.

Oklahoma's undefeated Sooners took a light drill in nearby Des Moines this afternoon and appeared confident of winning their first conference championship. Coach Tom Stidham said his boys were ready.

WILSON SIGNS Ex-Philadelphia Pilot Now Cinti Coach

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18 (AP)—Jimmy Wilson, for five years manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, was named coach of the Cincinnati Reds baseball club today.

Wilson arrived here late today and signed a contract with General Manager Warren C. Giles to succeed Eddie Roush, who announced yesterday that he would not renew his contract with the club.

A Father Talks About His Son

Dan Hill Tells Mickelson How It Feels To Be a Proud 'Pappy'

By PAUL MICKELSON
NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—It was with the greatest of reluctance that Big Dan Hill sat down to talk about Duke's fine football team and a big red headed kid at center who is his son. Not only is Big Dan a very shy man but he's as elusive as the first olive in a bottle. When he was president of the Piedmont league, he was so hard to locate at baseball meetings that newspaper reporters hired a special messenger to tail him at all hours so he could deny or affirm rumors.

"How does it feel to be the father of a real football star on a team that has scored 100 points to none for the opposition?" Big Dan was asked.

"I'm having one of my greatest seasons as a pappy," he replied happily. "I've heard more things about the Hill family this fall than I ever could figure out. My son's name is Dan W. Hill Jr. I call him just 'June.' The fans and sports writers call him 'Tiger' and 'Little Boy Blue.' Once, while I was sitting in the stands watching him play, a big guy points to my son warming up and says: 'That big red headed so and so is warming up.' The fan was a Duke booster—one of my old pals. He meant to pay 'June' a compliment. Isn't football a funny business?"

Not Talking

Beyond that, Big Dan refused to talk about his son's football ability. Though he realizes the "Hill for All-America club" is growing, Father Dan wouldn't talk about it, thereby clinching the distinction of being the only father of a football star who refuses

Ramblers Drill For Cosgrove Tilt Here Next Week

Formational floor plays are being given to the St. Mary's basketball quintet in practice this week as Coach Sueppel drills his charges for the Cosgrove game which will be played in the Iowa City high school gym Monday evening.

The Ramblers depended entirely on a fast break in the Muscatine game which they won by sheer speed 32 to 21. The success of the fast break depends on a speedy ball club, and the Ramblers seem to have what it takes. A mixture of tricky plays

Wildcats Bar Irish Path To Championship

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The middle west, where two major titles will be put on the line and Notre Dame will encounter the next-to-last obstacle in its march to an all-winning season, holds the balance of interest in tomorrow's national football program, one which marks the end of the 1938 season for many of the mightiest powers.

Gophers, Badgers

Two of those powers are Wisconsin and Minnesota, evenly matched western conference leaders who will clash before a capacity crowd of 37,000 at Madison. The Badgers are bidding for their first championship in 26 years and Minnesota is defending the title, but neither will have exclusive claim to the season's laurels unless Michigan cooperates by beating Ohio State before a full house of 68,000 at Columbus.

Irish, Cats

Meanwhile at Evanston, Ill., 47,000 customers will jam into Duche stadium to see Northwestern, always tough for the Irish, try to throw a damper on Notre Dame's national championship aspirations. There will also be a record turnout of 20,000 at Ames, Iowa, as Oklahoma, unbeaten and untied, winds up its Big Six conference campaign against unbeaten but one-tied Iowa State.

Yale, Harvard

These four games, with their championship aspects, overshadow even such traditional conflicts as Yale vs. Harvard in the east, California vs. Stanford on the Pacific coast, Rice vs. All-winning Texas Christian in the southwest, and North Carolina State vs. unbeaten-untied-unscored on Duke in the south. The California-Stanford duel, the far west's annual "big game," will attract 82,000, largest crowd of the day, and 22,000 more than are expected for the Yale-Harvard meeting, year-in, year-out classic of the eastern "Ivy league."

The football teams of the University of Iowa and the University of Nebraska were to meet here this afternoon in the 25th renewal of the rivalry between the two schools.
The game was to have many more implications than the mere silver anniversary of the rivalry implied, as both teams have won only one game this season, and Iowa's coach, Irl Tubbs, is definitely on the spot for his failure to produce this season.

Although Nebraska's record is identical to that of the Iowans, Major Biff Jones, Nebraska coach, suffers no such indignity, but he, too, will be pointing for a second win, as his team winds up behind the poorest Nebraska record in the past decade.

Tubbs was to present a team predominantly made up of seniors, thrown into the Iowa lineup in the hope they would play far above their respective heads in the final game of their collegiate careers.

The entire backfield was to be of last-year men, including Al Schenk, a senior halfback from Chicago, Ill., who was converted into a quarterback only this week. Nile Kinnick, star halfback, was to be relegated to the sidelines in favor of Capt. Jack Eicherly, another senior.

Jerry Niles, who has shown promise as a center after beginning the season as a back, was to be the only sophomore in the lineup as the game began. He was to occupy the pivot post which he has filled capably since the Purdue encounter.

While Iowa had a sophomore at center, Nebraska's center, Charley Brock, was the chief worry of the Iowa coaching staff. Brock's great defensive work has been a thorn in the side of the Cornhusker opponents all season, and Coach Tubbs has repeatedly warned his men in practice this week that they must bottle Brock if the Iowa offensive is to be effective.

On and Off The Field

By HOOKER HOHENHORST

Today's football game will mark the end of the collegiate football careers of Capt. Jack Eicherly, Chuck Brady, Red Olson, Bob Allen, Wilbur Nead, Tarzan Herman, Carl Vergamini, Jimm Kelley, Frank Balazs and Al Schenk. These boys have given all they have had for the cause of the Hawkeye football teams over a period of three years. The least that might be expected of the local fans is that they will turn out en masse to see them in their final game.

Judge Michael L. McKinley, one of the most influential and loyal out of state alumni will return to his Alma Mater today, bringing with him several outstanding athletes from the Chicago prep circles.

One of these will be none other than Otto Jaretz, a product of Lane Tech high school. Otto was a member of the last Olympic swim team and he has piled up an enviable record this past summer while touring Europe with a group of American swimmers.

St. Pat's In Hard Session

Stiff workouts have featured basketball practice at St. Patrick's this week. In an effort to round the team into shape, Coach Father Ryan has been pushing his cage candidates to the limit.

Two weeks remain before the Irish opening battle with St. Mary's of Riverside on Dec. 2, but Coach Ryan has his work cut out for himself if he wants to present a team capable of standing up under the furious pace set by the modern cage sport. Ball-handling has been emphasized during the past week, along with practice at left-handed shooting. Defensive work under the basket has also been the object of intensive drill.

Public Invited To Lecture By Levi Leonard

Noted Transportation Authority Will Talk To Cosmopolitans

Levi O. Leonard of the history department will present an illustrated travelogue at a meeting of the Cosmopolitan club tomorrow evening at the International house, 19 Evans street.

In his address, Mr. Leonard will take the group on "A Tour Through the West." For more than half a century he has been intimately associated with the building of railroads and the expansion of transportation throughout the western part of the United States and is considered one of today's foremost living authorities on the history of transportation in America.

Among the pictures which will be shown are a number of colored panoramic views of Yellowstone National park, the Rocky mountains, Indian villages, canyons, rivers, rock formations and many other picturesque scenes.

Supper will be served at 5:30 p.m. and Mr. Leonard's talk is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Everyone interested in the Cosmopolitan club is invited to attend this meeting.

American Legion Auxiliary Will Meet Monday

Members of the American Legion auxiliary will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the community building for a business session. Everyone is requested to bring her favorite recipe for use in the cookbook which the auxiliary is compiling.

Following the business meeting, card games will be played, and refreshments served.

Silver Shadow To Have Party

Student Entertainers Present Floor Show At Informal Dance

That International Casino of the Iowa campus, the Silver Shadow, reigns supreme again tonight as it presents its second consecutive informal party of the season. Playing for the attending couples will be Vette Kell and his popular swingsters.

A large number of out-of-town guests here for the Nebraska game are expected at the informal gathering. With this in mind, Cherie Wilson and Evelyn Hansen, directors of the floor show, have again secured the services of a galaxy of student entertainers.

Included on the program is the Quadrangle chorus, under the direction of Hugh Cockshoot, A4 of Wilton Junction, and by popular request Norman Gold, A4 and Miriam Morrison, A2, both of Newark, N. J., will repeat their last week's presentation of the shag.

Jack Latimer, A2 of Corning, will present an arrangement of "Dark Eyes" on the accordion and will also be wandering accordionist during the intermission.

Remaining after tonight's party are three formal and two informal parties. The next one, a formal, will be given Dec. 3.

He is also assistant staff announcer and news commentator of radio station WSUI. He is a member of the Pica Ball committee and the Union Board sub-committee. He served on the committee for Religious Emphasis week and on the freshman conference committee. As a freshman, he was awarded the Samuel LeFevre speech award. Last spring he spent three and a half months in Europe studying English broadcasting methods.

Flowers for Madame

Skyward rose a tower of fragrant white boxes as "Flowers for Madame" arrived at Currier hall Friday night. The Sophomore Cotillion, first of the all-university formal parties, brought our m'lady bejeweled and bedecked with corsages of freshness and beauty.

Madonna Rickey (left), A1 of Knoxville, and Virginia Swanson (right), A2 of Vincent, let out "ohs" and "ahs" of delight as they open their boxes.

HOSTESS HINTS

What could be more delightful for a cold weather dessert than a warm, juicy, fruit and nut turnover served with generous wedges of mellow cheese? And especially since the pastry is made extra tender and flaky with good rich butter—with a flavor which is hard to duplicate.

This is the kind of dessert that will stand out in a simple cold weather meal. Such a meal might consist of steaming hot oyster stew, a vitamin-rich salad and the fruit turnover with golden yellow cheese.

Fruit Turnover

1 lb. prunes, cooked and drained
1 cup nuts
1-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 cups all-purpose flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoon baking powder
1-2 cup butter
78 or 8 teaspoons of chilled milk

Stone the prunes and combine with nuts, sugar and lemon juice. Chill. Sift flour, measure and resift with baking powder and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in butter using pastry blender or two knives. Add milk by teaspoonfuls, tossing lightly until mixture is just damp enough to hold together when pressed with fingertips. Divide dough into eight equal parts and roll out each piece on a lightly floured board into square or circular sheets. Place one-eighth of the prune-nut mixture on half of the pastry, moisten the edge and turn the other half of the pastry over it, pressing the edges firmly together with the tines of a fork. Prick the top in several places with the fork. Transfer the turnovers to baking sheet and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 10 minutes; then reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and bake 20 minutes longer. Serve with cheese. Makes eight turnovers.

Elks' Ladies To Lunch Tuesday

The Elks' Ladies club will have a luncheon-meeting Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the clubrooms of the Elks home. Bridge will be played following the business meeting.

Mrs. A. F. Droll is chairman for the affair.

minutes longer. Serve with cheese. Makes eight turnovers.

Prof., Mrs. Wilbur Schramm Awarded First Prize for Costumes at Masquerade

A grand march at 10 p.m. of prizes were Prof. and Mrs. Thursday night officially opened the most colorful masquerade party in years given by the Triangle club. Vette Kell's orchestra had the members of the club and their guests waltzing in swing time and stepping into lively two steps.

First prize for the most original costumes was awarded to Prof. and Mrs. Wilbur Schramm. Grant Wood's "American Gothic" served as the theme for their costumes.

Prof. Charles L. Sanders and Mrs. Muriel Ward were awarded second prize. Mrs. Ward depicted a package of Kool cigarettes and Professor Sanders was dressed as an oriental potentate carrying out the idea of the Folgers coffee trade mark.

Capt. and Mrs. Leo C. Paquet were in charge of the party and assisting them in the presentation

Paul Olson.

Prof. John M. Russ called out the two step for all of the hillbillies, picketers, soldiers, national guards, Spaniards and Japanese costumed guests.

A Hula girl and a beach comber were impersonated by Prof. and Mrs. Olson. Capt. and Mrs. Miles Dawson were gaily attired in Spanish costumes, and Dean and Mrs. R. A. Kuever and Prof. Seymour Flicher were gay Tyroleans. Prof. and Mrs. Russ depicted the Kentucky hill billy and child bride idea, and Capt. and Mrs. Paquet appeared in formal attire of the gay nineties.

Another effective gay nineties outfit was worn by Prof. John McCalliard and Isabelle Smith. Mr. McCalliard was resplendent in a motoring outfit, including linen duster and goggles.

Wuanita Brown, R. E. Bravender To Live in Swea City

A semi-circle of chrysanthemums against a background of palms and ferns was the setting for the marriage of Wuanita Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brown of Estherville, to R. E. Bravender of Swea City last Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Claude Faunsgaard read the single ring ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives and a few friends. Nuptial music was provided throughout the service by Mrs. C. M. Gronstal.

The bride was attired in a princess style gown of white crystallized velvet, fashioned with a high gathered neckline, leg o'mutton sleeves and a long train. Held in place with a tiara of cut velvet with pearl settings, her veil of illusion net was waist-length in front and fell into a long train in the back. Her bridal bouquet was of white chrysanthemums.

Lavon Brown, who served her sister as maid of honor, wore a floor-length Victorian styled gown of French blue moire taffeta and carried a bouquet of roses and chrysanthemums. Leroy Applequist of Swea City served as best man.

Following the ceremony, a four course dinner was served at the Hotel Gardston. A two-tiered peach and white wedding cake served as centerpiece for the decorations.

Mrs. Bravender attended the university and Mr. Bravender was graduated from the university last June.

After a wedding trip to Minneapolis, the couple will be at home in Swea City, where Mr. Bravender owns a men's clothing store.

Louise Brown Will Marry In Eldora Nov. 25

A wedding of the Thanksgiving season will be that of Louise Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Brown of Eldora, to Martin G. Blacknum of St. Paul, Minn. The ceremony will take place on Nov. 25 in Eldora.

Miss Brown was graduated from Eldora high school and has been employed as secretary in the state banking department.

Mr. Blacknum, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Blacknum of Eldora, is a graduate of the university, where he was affiliated with the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

He is employed in the traffic department of the Weyerhaeuser Lumber company in St. Paul, where the couple will make their home.

Study Group To Convene Monday

Organization of the government and foreign policy study group of the League of Women Voters will be the main item of business which the group will undertake at its meeting Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the board room of the public library.

Latin America will be the first subject which the group will study. Discussions and reports are planned for later meetings.

Mrs. George W. Martin is the chairman in charge.

Highlanders, Band to Give Final Performance of Season

Pontioners, Pershing Rifles Also to Drill at Nebraska Game

Iowa stadium today will see the last appearance this fall of the University of Iowa's marching band and Scottish Highlanders as they perform 118 strong before and between halves of the Iowa - Nebraska football game. Pageantry between halves of all football games this fall, strikingly colorful and performed with the greatest of precision, has excited the most favorable comment.

Today's demonstration will be no exception. The performance will begin before the game with the appearance of the Iowa Big Ten banners and trumpeters at the north end of the field.

Followed by Band

They will be followed by the University band wearing black and gold military caps, red coats with black and gold trim and black trousers with gold stripes. Prof. Charles B. Richter is its director, with Hugh Gunderson, G of Sheboygan, Wis., and Stanley E. Willson, G of Mason City, assistant directors. H. Jean Hedlund, A1 of Des Moines is twirling drum major and Parley Wellstead, A3 of Ottumwa, directing drum major.

The Scottish Highlanders will be next with their authentic Scotch pipers' costumes. The 25 pipers and 16 drummers were organized by Col. George F. N. Dailey, commandant, and is the largest and most completely equipped bagpipe band in the United States.

Scottish Uniforms

Pipers wear a uniform similar to that of the Black Watch regiment of Scotland, Royal Stewart tartan and high black busbies or feather bonnets. Drummers wear hunting Stewart tartan kilts and cocky glengarrys.

William L. Adamson, of the military science department is pipe major and Joseph W. Belhrad, A2 of Cedar Rapids, drum major.

The Pershing Rifles and the Pontioners will come last and the group, after a fanfare by the trumpeters, will parade to the south end of the field with the band playing "The Footlifter."

While the national anthem is being played, the flag will be raised.

To Drill at Half

Between the halves, the Highlanders will appear first in a special drill routine. As they move toward the east side, the band forms at the south end to a gradually increasing drum roll culminated with a chord and the playing of the famous old swing tune "Lassus Trombone."

This will be followed by the playing of the "Knights of the Road" as the band counter marches to midfield and executes a pivot turn toward the east stands. Playing a Nebraska pep song, the band will form a large N and in this formation will sing the "Corn-huskers Chant."

Then, to the music of "My Nebraska," the band and Highlanders will form a representation of the new Nebraska capitol building.

Will Form "I"

Playing "Iowa Fights" the band will then take regular formation facing the Iowa stands with the Highlanders forming a large "I" in the center of the band. The new Iowa march song, "Iowa, Or to Victory" will then be played.

Through a complicated series of crossing lines, a fan formation will be made to the music of "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." In the fan formation, and while playing the waltz song "Auf Wiedersehen" from Rhombert's "Blue Paradise," the demonstration will close with the release of several hundred colored balloons by the Highlanders.

The fans will be assured of music no matter what the weather, since the entire 20 minute program has been recorded and in case zero weather makes it impossible for the instruments to be played, the routine will be run through to the music of the recording.

Loyal Helpers, Church Group, Elects Officers

Officers for the Loyal Helpers Sunday school class of the First Christian church were elected at a meeting of the group Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Helen Boerner, 235 Ferguson street.

Those elected are Mrs. Carrie L. Chapman, president; Matilda Adams, vice-president; Mrs. L. J. Maher, secretary; Mrs. Hattie Day, assistant secretary; Mrs. Boerner, treasurer; Mrs. Hilma Feay, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Catherine Hope, teacher, and Mrs. Cora P. Cowgill, assistant teacher.

The program was in charge of Miss Adams. The group also celebrated Mrs. Boerner's birthday anniversary.

How University Students Earn Their Board

University of Iowa Students...

Daily Iowan Photos by Sol Friedman

The "Joe College" type of hell-raising student who has plenty of money to spend and makes no bones about spending it is passe on the University of Iowa campus, if recent figures compiled by Lee Kann, director of the employment bureau, are indicative.

As contrasted to the wine, women and whoopee era of a decade or so ago, Kann points out that 57 per cent of all men and 29 per cent of all women attending the university now apply for board jobs to ease the financial strain on papa's pocketbook. This is an average of 48 per cent of the university's approximate 7,000 population.

A large percentage of the students earning their board at the University of Iowa are employed in the nutrition and housekeeping departments in the university hospitals, Kann says. Standard rates of payment are one meal for each hour of labor. Seventy students work nine hours a day during summer months to accumulate meal credits used during the regular school term.

Earn Their Board...

Alice Erickson, C4 of Roland, is an exception to the general run-of-the-mill board job workers. Alice, a Chi Omega, works her board job "just for the fun of it," she says. Her father, she admits, could buy her several restaurants if he wanted to. Hers is also one of the most pleasant jobs on the campus—merely opening the door of a downtown restaurant for guests and flashing a smile of greeting. Here Sam Schneidman, C4 of Quincy, Ill., is getting his share of smiles.

At University Hospital...

Here's how approximately 1,100 students employed in university units and in downtown business houses solve the problem of providing for the greatest single item on their expense lists—board.

hospital during the noon lunch hour.

Meat, potatoes, vegetables, bread, butter, milk, coffee and a dessert comprise the average hospital bill of fare. Second helpings are allowed on all but meats, desserts and milk. Foods are prepared under the supervision of the department of nutrition and menus are balanced to include essential energy-supplying dishes.

Iowa Pepsters Cheer Senior Grid Men to Play Last Game

Speakers Laud Ten Squadmen as Bruce Morrow Gets Yells

Iowa fans joined Pi Epsilon Pi and the university football band at the final pep rally last night in honoring the 10 members of the Hawkeye squad who will appear in their last University of Iowa football game today.

Introduced as that man "with the marvellous black bag," Dr. Bill Haynes, medical supervisor of men's physical education, presented the members of the Hawkeye squad, who will be wearing Old Gold uniforms for the last time today.

The graduating members of the team are Bob Allen of Chicago, Chuck Brady of Mason City, Wilbur Nead of Gilman, Carl Vergamini of Council Bluffs, Jim Kelley of Sioux City, Frank Balazs of Chicago, Capt. Jack Eicherly of Holstein, Glenn Olson of Colo. Al Schenk of Chicago and Bob Herman of Pacific Junction.

"We're proud of the men who fought for Iowa this fall," said Pat Boland of the Iowa coaching staff, who spoke before Hawkeye rooters last night.

One man out of ten and acting as master of ceremonies was Bruce Morrow, D4 of Council Bluffs, Iowa's all-American cheer leader chosen by Arch Ward of the Chicago Tribune staff to appear at the all-star game last August.

Morrow lead the cheering with all his usual pep and fervor last night, backed by the cooperation of the University band under the direction of Hugh Gunderson, assistant director.

"I'm rootin' for Iowa," was the personal message expressed to an Iowan reporter by Frankie Masters, orchestra leader, who was unable to attend the pep meeting preceding his appearance at the Sophomore Cotillion. "I haven't seen very many games this year because of my work," added Masters, "but Iowa's OK."

At the opening of the dance, Masters again expressed his regret at not being able to attend the rally as he had scheduled earlier.

Eye Care, Age Less

New York Specialist Can Tell Woman's Age by Eye Beauty

A New York nerve specialist remarked the other day that he could tell a woman's age by her eyes. In five tests he hit the nail on the head every time proving that his words were no idle boast.

Yet many women who spend hours of thought and care on their complexions and nails completely overlook the equally important business of warding off age signs from their eyes.

The wisest method of taking care of one's eyes is to combine home treatment with regular visits to the beauty parlor. Home treatment is important, of course, but even the best home treatment cannot accomplish the same successful results as can a trained masseuse, who knows the muscles of the face and understands the scientific care of the skin.

On the other hand it is just as important that you supplement such professional care, which should be on the weekly visit basis, with a daily routine at home. First of all, invest in a good eye wash and bathe your eyes for two or three minutes at night just before retiring and in the morning upon arising.

Eye exercises are another essential to bright healthy eyes. Exercise your eyes night and morning and at intervals during the day when they feel tired. Holding the head still, turn the eyes from side to side. Then look up and down without moving the head. Next roll the eyes around and around. Close them and squeeze the lids together.

At night after the eyes have been exercised and bathed in an eye cup with a solution, the eye-lashes should be brushed upward and the brows should also be treated to a brushing. Rub a little vaseline into the lashes and brows and apply a good wrinkle cream underneath and at the corners of the eyes.

Follow this routine regularly and even though your eyes be small and in no way distinctive you will find that people make complimentary remarks about them.

As an Aid to a University Education

Ice cream for dessert! Here's Don Sexton, A1 of Scranton, left, and Howard Vander Beck, G of Oskaloosa, putting the finishing touches on a hospital meal. About 1,500 meals are served in the employees' cafeteria each day.

Most student board job workers assert they would be unable to attend the university if such jobs were not forthcoming. The average budget of a man in the college of liberal arts working for his board at the University of Iowa is about $225 a year, including tuition, room, books and fees.

Robert Virovai To Play Here

Violinist to Appear in Iowa Union at Concert in December

December's presentations on the University of Iowa's concert and lecture courses occur within 24 hours of each other when Robert Virovai, violinist, and Harlan Tarbell, magician, appear here.

Virovai will be the second artist on the concert course. He will appear in Iowa Union on the evening of Dec. 5.

Exhibitions of legerdemain will be performed by Harlan Tarbell, who has served as teacher of magicians for many years and who has created some 200 tricks of his profession. He will appear here Dec. 6.

The violinist Virovai, is a young Hungarian who made his first appearance in the United States Nov. 1, playing with the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra in Carnegie hall, New York City.

Z. T. A. House Wins Tourney

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority won first place in the intramural volleyball tournament Thursday night in the women's gymnasium. Eastlawn dormitory placed second.

Results of the matches are as follows: Zeta Tau Alpha won from Kappa Alpha Theta; Zeta Tau Alpha won from Eastlawn; Eastlawn won from Pi Beta Phi; Eastlawn won from Kappa Alpha Theta, and Six of the student hospital workers are women. Louise Box, A3 of Belle Plaine, is shown here doing her stint at the typewriter in the nutrition department office.

The hospital is not the only place where students work for board; 175 students work in other university units, excluding those laboring in fraternities, sororities and cooperative dormitories. Fifty women are employed at Currier hall. An estimated 265 students work in fraternities and sororities, while 235 work in downtown business houses. Thirty per cent of all downtown jobs are paid in cash, according to Kann's figures. Besides those working for board, 95 women and 150 men live in cooperative dormitories, preparing their own meals and caring for their rooms. Another 85 women reside at Eastlawn, a semi-cooperative dormitory.

Strange as it may seem, the employed group of students rank just as high scholastically as the group of non-workers. This, explains, Kann, is partly because students with low scholarship records who would probably be unable to maintain required grade averages are refused employment by the bureau.

Members of the Eastlawn team are Katherine Pesek, A4 of Cedar Rapids; Roberta Nichols, A4 of West Liberty; Lucile Hardenbrook, A2 of Danville, Ill.; Billie Young, A1 of Cedar Rapids; Virginia Johnston, A1 of Brighton; Helen Joerger, A1 of Ellsworth, and Mildred Ross, A3 of Oelwein.

Dr. Swann To Speak Monday

Lecturer Will Be Entertained in Union By Physics Students

Dr. W. F. G. Swann, director of the Bartol research association of the Franklin institute at Swarthmore, Pa., will give two lectures at the physics building Monday.

Dr. Swann will speak at 4:10 p.m. on the subject "The Philosophical Approach to the Quantum Theory," and again at 7:30 p.m. on the topic "What Has Become of Reality in Modern Physics?"

The noted scientist was born in Ironbridge, England. He received both his B. S. and his Sc. D. degrees from the University of London. He also has an honorary A. M. degree from Yale university and an honorary Sc. D. degree from Swarthmore college.

Dr. Swann has been director of the Bartol foundation of the Franklin institute since 1927 and has done extensive research in electromagnetic theory, atomic structure, cosmic rays, and relativity.

The staff and graduate students of the physics department will have a dinner at Iowa Union Monday evening at which Dr. Swann will be present.

Kerensky To Talk at Union

Democratic Dictator Of First Revolution Views Governments

The former Russian premier of 1917, Alexander Kerensky, will speak on "Dictatorships and Democracies" Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Iowa Union.

At one time a strong believer in democracy, Mr. Kerensky narrowly missed being hanged for criticizing the government of the Czar.

Kerensky played an important part in the Russian revolution and the overthrow of the old order. He was worshipped by the Bolsheviks at the beginning of the revolution, but as the new government developed, Kerensky's democratic ideals met with little favor and he was finally deposed by the Bolsheviks.

Statesman, leader and orator, the Russian was successively minister of justice, minister of war and marine, prime minister, generalissimo and dictator, and chief of the provisional government.

Mr. Kerensky is known as a terse, forceful speaker.

Of 636 students at Mills college, 210 are undecided as to their major. The largest group of majors is in the field of art, with music a close second.

Women in Home Economics To Go to Chicago

Various faculty members and students in home economics are attending field day in Chicago this week end. It is being sponsored by home economics business women in Chicago.

Prof. Frances Zuill, head of the home economics department, Prof. Merle Ford, and Prof. Helen Waite are among the faculty members who went to Chicago with four of the senior girls: Martha Jakish of Keokuk, Alice Jean Bates of Iowa City, Mary Beach of Huron, S. D., and Maxine Johnson of Iowa City.

The purpose of the trip is to show to home economics majors, positions in textiles, clothing, food and nutrition.

Home economics majors throughout the middle west were invited for the trip.

Professor Richard Will Address Group

Prof. Christian Richard of the school of religion will speak tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at a meeting of the Knights of Columbus in Cedar Rapids. The subject of Professor Richard's address will be "Catholic Lay Leadership and Liberty."

The meeting is to be held in the Roosevelt hotel.

Former Prof. E. Soucek, Prof. J. Howe Study Rainfall

Prof. J. W. Howe of the college of engineering of the University of Iowa and Prof. Edward Soucek of the University of Toledo, are co-authors of a paper entitled "A Study of the Variability of Precipitation" appearing in the 1938 Transactions of the American Geophysical Union. Professor Soucek was formerly instructor in hydraulics at the University of Iowa. This paper, which was read at the annual meeting of the society in Washington, D. C., showed that in Iowa the precipitation in one year might be as much as 54 per cent below average or as much as 84 per cent above average.

The average precipitation for any five consecutive years, however, was found likely to be from 29 per cent to 65 per cent more than the long-term average. Such large variations, the authors state, are rare and they are likely to occur on the average of once in 100 years.

Changes in variations of average rainfall for consecutive periods from one to 40 years were studied in detail by the authors.

Based on the Iowa studies, Engineers Howe and Soucek have proposed a method for predicting the variation of precipitation averages in other parts of the United States and they report that the method was remarkably accurate for rainfall stations in Massachusetts, Ohio, Utah and Oregon.

The authors explain that precipitation in the arid southern California region is small and very erratic, and does not conform to the pattern of statistical analysis based on Iowa observations.

Went for Fire Engine; Returned With Monkey

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio, (AP)—Mayor Howard Moore and Councilman Hobart Tait went to Defiance, Ohio, to look over a fire engine—and returned with a monkey. They have been taking considerable "ribbing" from friends who understood it was a fire engine and not a monkey they went after but the mayor's reply is that "Bingo," the monkey, will be the nucleus of a Mechanicsburg zoo.

Doctors of a Century Ago Depended Upon Only Six Medicines for Sickness

It took a rugged constitution and plenty of luck for many Iowa pioneers of a century ago to pull through attacks of fever and ague, especially since many of the "doctors" were not trained in medical colleges and depended upon only six medicines.

William J. Petersen, lecturer in Iowa history, looked up details of the work of the medical profession in Iowa in 1838. He found that few physicians had medical school educations but as a whole they performed heroic work under great difficulties.

to sick calls had obtained their education by "reading" with a graduate physician. When they felt they had absorbed enough knowledge they would proceed to the frontier.

Equipped with a supply of calomel, jalap, aloes, Dever's powder, castor oil, and Peruvian bark, the self-styled, physicians had few stock treatments. They bled fever patients, gave cathartics, and trusted to nature to complete the "cure."

ROMANCE IN

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furore on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE." Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior, who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unrepentant freshman, provides another interesting problem for Sara Sue. But the climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him. . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human." Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself. (Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 14

WHEN quick-on-the-trigger salesmen such as T. J. Sanders are caught with nothing to say, that's news. It means one of two things: they are ill, or they are in love. Mr. Sanders was not ill.

He certainly did not, as a rule, stand gawking at pretty girls like a yokel, either. He had never been known to blush, or to poke his finger awkwardly at girls and mumble, "You—you—y-you—"

But he was doing all of these things now.

He had expected Mrs. Sara Sue Davis, personally and incorporated, to be a somewhat stoutheaded widow of perhaps 52, wearing a benign smile, wearing a little too much face paint, and having a definitely officious, managerial manner. The Mrs. Davis who came to him, therefore, was glorified by contrast.

She had greeted him politely, and waited. Now the moment's wait threatened to stretch into a century. Not that a century is too long a time to stare at Sara Sue; nothing of that sort. But, well, when a young business man calls on a young business woman on business, somebody just has to start talking sometime. Sara Sue perceived that she would have to go a step further.

"Won't you sit down?" She invited. "If there is something I can do for you—"

The century began to wane, bringing T. J. out of his trance. "Oh, Oh, sure," he said. "Gosh!" "Am I, then, so shocking?" Sara Sue smiled.

"Not No, ma'am! Ha, ha! I must be acting like a freshman. The fact is, I was quite surprised. Fact is—well—I wondered if you would want Nightmare? That's it, Nightmare!" He grasped at Nightmare somewhat desperately, and in obvious relief.

"Nightmare?"

"Yes'm. My bulldog. Don't you remember? At the game? I had him dressed like an owl."

"Oh, yes. Surely! I recognize you now. You sat just behind mother and me, didn't you, Mr. Sanders. He was a nice dog. But do you mean now—?"

"Yes, ma'am. I've got to get rid of him. I mean, circumstances are such that I shall be unable to keep him for the next year or so, and I remembered you got along with him and seemed to like him (Mr. Sanders' poise and tongue, had returned) so if you want him, he's yours."

Now the fact is, T. J. Sanders valued Nightmare somewhat more than he did his own soul. As a matter of comparative statistics, T. J.'s books would show that he gave $25 to churches, community chest and other charities last year, but that he planked down a $50 check for Nightmare as a pup. Sometimes Nightmare even slept with him.

But remember that Mr. Sanders had been suddenly faced with a girl who, although unknown, had haunted him for days. When you come abruptly face to face with love like that, you do unaccountable things. He just simply had to have some logical excuse for calling on Sara Sue Davis like that. He couldn't blurt out news of his infatuation; he couldn't get fresh with this girl; to this girl he absolutely must appear gentlemanly and refined, he felt. What, therefore, had they in common? What conceivable mission could have brought him logically to her private office?

Frantically searching his mind for an answer as she stood before him, he had hit on poor Nightmare. And before he realized it he had given Nightmare away!

Sara Sue was delighted. T. J. brought the ugly bulldog from his car and presented him in the flesh. Strangely, this did not hurt his (T. J.'s) feelings, either. Nor for that matter did it appear to hurt Nightmare's. He (Nightmare) licked Sara Sue's hand in apparent happiness and contentment. Mr. Sanders didn't, but could have done the same thing.

T. J.'s financial mind was reasoning that the world is full of good bulldogs, but contains only one girl. If Nightmare had cost him $500 instead of $50, the introduction he was getting to this girl was worth it. He stooped to pet old Nightmare with genuine affection. There was much conversation. A deal of talk about diets, habits, worms, collars, leashes, puppies, pedigrees, tricks—Nightmare could stand on two legs, do somersaults, roll over, play dead, wear spectacles, and hold a cigarette in his ferocious looking mouth. He could, and had on one occasion, torn an aggressive, ill-tempered police dog to shreds, but despite his appearance and ability, Nightmare distinctly was not a mean bully. Few bulldogs are, for that matter. Sara Sue thought him grand. T. J. gave deep thought to the matter of asking for a date with Sara Sue.

Normally he wouldn't have wasted any thought on such a detail. He would simply have flung out, "I'm coming by with a can of paint Thursday night, kid; some of the town needs re-painting." That or some similar cocky remark. Usually he found he had an affirmative answer. But he sensed that he must take another tack with Mrs. Davis, Inc.

"I just felt that you liked good dogs, Mrs. Davis," T. J. began, fishing for an opening. "So I wanted you to have Nightmare. It is much better that he be with someone who appreciates him, I said to myself yesterday. By the way, have you ever seen the Gullport kennels? Nightmare was sired there."

"No, No, I haven't."

"Well, say, you may think I'm—did Calculus tell you who I was, ma'am? I've been around Rice here for three years. I'm representative of the Columbian Sporting Goods corporation. Here's my card. But what I was going to say was, that I'd like to show you those kennels. Just so you could discuss Nightmare's points and background and all with them, if you wanted to. He's really a well-bred dog. I could—I could drive you out there and back in half an hour some afternoon."

"I'd love it," said Sara Sue, petting Nightmare.

"I'll drop by sometime when it's convenient for you," T. J. beamed. He decided to advance with caution. An initial victory should be nursed a while.

He departed in what he felt was her good graces.

Everything was rosy until after supper.

Nightmare made himself quite at home. Cleopatra didn't like his looks, but when Sara Sue put him through his tricks, Cleo, the cook, decided he was worthy, and so fed him. Nightmare yawned prodigiously, curled up by the living room fire and went to sleep. Such domesticity would perhaps have been undisturbed, even with the clatter and laughing of collegians who dropped in, if Mr. Robert Towne hadn't been among them.

Big booming Bob, never meek, came in noisily as usual. Not only was his voice dominant, but it was recognized. Nightmare bestirred himself and came forward eagerly to greet an old friend, one who had frequently petted him.

"Say, isn't this—whose dog?" Bob asked Sara Sue.

"Mine. Don't you just love him?"

"Yours? Where'd you get him?"

"Must I tell you everything, Mr. Towne?"

"T. J. Sanders been hanging around here?"

"He gave Nightmare to me."

"No. He wouldn't."

"He did. Why wouldn't he?"

"Gave him to you? Outright?"

"Yes. Why? Did you want Nightmare yourself?"

Bob stared hard at her. He knew T. J. Sanders well.

"Listen to me, Sara Sue. Have you got a date with T. J. Sanders?" He jabbed it at her, rather abruptly.

"No! Why—why yes, come to think of it, I do have. A sort of date."

"Well, I'll be dog-goned damned!" murmured Bob Towne, smiling not at all.

'Vulgar' Chewing Gum Gets Boost from British

LONDON (AP)—Still branded by many Britons as "vulgar," chewing gum has been accorded the dignity of a special place in the galleries of London's Imperial institute, a museum devoted to life and activities of the British empire.

Chicle, basis of chewing gum, now is second only to mahogany as chief export of the central European colony of British Honduras.

Prescribed by the royal air force as an essential part of emergency flying rations, chewing gum is used in hospitals here for gastric complaints, mouth and throat troubles and in convalescent stages of some child ailments.

The institute exhibit traces the evolution of chewing gum from the dank forests of Honduras to the store windows of Britain.

Four Danubian wheat countries, Bulgaria, Hungary, Rumania and Yugoslavia, will have an export surplus of 97,000,000 in the crop year 1938-39, the department of agriculture reports.

The annual per capita consumption of meat in the United States is about 142 pounds compared with 326 pounds in Argentina; 321 pounds in New Zealand and 205 pounds in Australia.

Work To Be Shared By Three Concerns; Approve Contractors

Contractors recommended by the board of supervisors for Johnson county's $84,588 secondary road improvement project have been approved by the bureau of public roads at Omaha, Neb.

Contracts will be signed early next week, according to R. H. Justen, county engineer, who received notice yesterday of the bureau of public road's concurrence.

The L. J. Peters company of Des Moines, Baker and Patton of Independence and the Concrete Material company of Cedar Rapids will share work on the project scheduled to be started Dec. 16.

Seven Youths Arrested For Looting Cars

Youths' Confessions Clear Nine Thefts Here in Past Weeks

A "gang" of seven Iowa City youths yesterday confessed to local authorities a series of thefts in the city during the last few weeks, according to Chief of Police W. H. Bender.

The youths, all juveniles, said that their loot was gathered only from unlocked automobiles parked on the local streets. This arrest, Chief Bender said, clears up a series of more than nine break-ins reported recently by local persons.

The police were able to recover only part of the stolen goods. The rest, the youths explained, was thrown into the Iowa river. This was done, they said, to avoid being caught.

What articles were recovered included flashlights, several small cameras and a blanket. A movie camera was among the things thrown into the river, the offenders said.

Chief Bender said he did not believe that this group was responsible for car radio thefts reported recently. Similar cases, he said, have been reported in Cedar Rapids as well as in Iowa City.

The youths will be tried in juvenile court, police said.

Teachers Will Gather Here

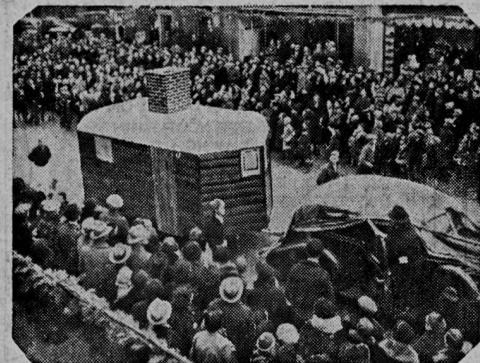

Music teachers and supervisors will learn more about teaching methods when they come to the University of Iowa for their annual conference in 1939.

Dates of the affair are Feb. 16 to 18, it has been announced by the extension division and the department of music, cooperating sponsors.

In addition to technical lectures and demonstrations by university music groups, the visiting teachers will attend afternoon and evening concerts by the St. Louis Symphony orchestra.

Forest Fires Raging
UPLAND, Cal. (AP) — Southern California's worst forest fire in years, roaring along on a 50-mile wind, swept 8,000 acres of virgin timber yesterday in the Mt. Baldy section of the Angeles national forest.

Thousands See Santa's Parade

Crowds such as these will see Santa Claus when he comes to Iowa City for a pre-Christmas visit Nov. 26. Any one who has ever enjoyed the stories of Mother Goose will want to be in Iowa City to see the parade of characters that Santa will bring with him. All of the Mother Goose characters will be on hand, including Mother Goose herself. Her float will be drawn by two Shetland ponies which little children may ride after the parade. Also in the parade will be "Miss Merry Christmas," some young woman of Iowa City or the surrounding territory who will rule over the city for the day. She will ride on a float especially designed for her and on which will be a cutter with reindeer. In taking the character of "Merry Christmas" the girl will find a certain tradition to uphold. According to stories from Santa Claus land, she is Santa's guiding assistant and as such has come to be known in many cities almost as well as the patron saint himself. The local committee soon will announce the name of the girl who will personify "Miss Merry Christmas" in the parade which will be held here on Saturday, Nov. 26, beginning promptly at 10:30 a.m.

Traffic Violators Fined Yesterday By Judge Carson

Police Judge Burke N. Carson fined several persons yesterday for violating a city ordinance which states that the streets and the alleys are not the places to leave cars all day and all night.

Robert Heiser and S. K. Sora were each fined $1 for using the street for storage of their cars; John Howard, booked for parking the rear of his car to the curb, was discharged; the Mann Motor company was fined $1 for alley storage of four of their cars.

Earl D. Von Drosks was fined $2 and $1.50 costs for passing on a hill; John I. Griffith was fined $15 and $1 costs for speeding, but $12 was suspended when he agreed to attend traffic school; Bob Larsen, who parked overtime, was discharged.

Land Owners Receive $3,970

Awards totaling $3,970 were made to owners of land condemned by the state on U. S. highway 261 to Solon. Proceedings were carried on by the state highway commission yesterday in the sheriff's office.

Owners of the land, with the amount of condemned acreage and price paid for the land, are Emil J. G. Hemmer, 5.14 acres, $730; Peter and Lillie Greazel, .008 acres, $500; D. J. Gatens, 1.24 acres, $265; Frank Ross, .89 acres, $1,950; C. E. and Mae Moss, 3.15 acres, $425; Joseph J. Wonick, 1.54 acres, $100.

Commissioners appointed to appraise the property were C. O. Dayton, Washington, Ia.; Grant Dalton, Muscatine; Lewis Herman, Marengo; W. C. Scrimgeour, Belle Plaine; Frank Baldwin, Cedar Rapids, and S. G. Frink, Tipton.

Cinderella Will Be In Iowa City With St. Nick for Xmas

Cinderella, one of the most glamorous figures of storybook fame, will accompany Santa Claus when that jolly old gentleman rides into Iowa City on Saturday, Nov. 26.

The heroine of the fairy tale will be perched on a large golden slipper as she rides on a motor-driven float in Santa's big pre-Christmas parade.

As a patriotic contribution to his pageantry parade, Santa will present a float bearing Betsy Ross, creator of the first American flag.

The parade will occur one week from today. The starting time has been announced as 10:30 a.m.

Minnow Season To Close Nov. 30

Seining minnows in Iowa will be unlawful after Nov. 30. The law provides a rest period for this species that will last until May 15, 1939.

Officials of the Iowa state conservation commission explain that minnows must be afforded protection because they are number one on the game fish's diet and are decreasing in number.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

OF MICE AND MEN (which is which)

Frankie Masters wasn't at the P. E. P. meeting last night. As far as he knew, and as far as we knew it was just among P. E. P.-ers.

"There was a misunderstanding as to time and place," he told us. "But I was there in spirit."

And so, Mr. Masters, we guess the rest of the Iowa fans...

In the campus you've only been on the case a few years. Pi Epsilon Pi is the campus pep fraternity.

Don't mind if you do a bit of tear-wiping after the A. Einstein article in this week's Collier's. We all are.

Not that I'm surprised, but the rumors have already started about the "inside" of the Kinick basketball walkout.

Everyone has a theory but Nile... He needn't one; he's already spoken his truth.

The New York world's fair won't let nazi Germany in. It's La Guardia's rather ill-timed idea.

I didn't know until now that there was hissing at last week's S. Spree, especially regards one of the campus' most eligible.

There are more ways of expressing a nearly universal opinion... Should have mentioned it earlier, but was so sorry... Heard the P. Rifles wanted to take this around town swimming yesterday... Valiant is the word for militarists.

I was in all afternoon too...

Note to Pershing Riflemen... Sorry about that misunderstanding... The incident was still a trifle on the disgusting side, but this reporter might have known the club's not responsible for what one of its members decides on a moment's spur.

But the wooden-rifling was a bit silly... Why drag the rest of us in on your private affairs?

There's a human enough little drama being enacted at the K. P. hall today, worth remembering in times like these... The simple announcement is that the African Methodist church is sponsoring an all-day feed at the hall.

In behind comes the real tale... The feed needs support; it's to pay off the mortgage on the church... And unless it's a success, there'll be no A. M. E. after the first of the year.

Not that we need to be unduly alarmed... Because I'll be seeing you at the K. P. hall today, of course.

Remember Joe Keenan — he of the u. lecture series?

Well, the New York Times reports he may step into either the Cummings job or the Harry Hopkins position.

Hopkins, of course, is certain to be released from his WPA duties.

The graft — alleged and real — didn't help new deal engineering.

George Gallup's been offered all colors of money to make personal canvasses of a candidate's chances... 'Twould cut down campaign expenses... The answer's a two-letter negative.

Two professors live side by side in the east part of town.

And although they've been seeing each other daily for the last six years, they've never yet spoken.

P. S. As if you didn't know, they work for the same department.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world... It takes even two like the local social worker and doctor who saw the girl on the Cedar Rapids road but didn't stop.

They didn't want to get involved in anything like that.

There's a new college play on Broadway, concerning undergraduate life... "Where Do We Go From Here?" it's called.

And in the third act one of the frat boys answers the question... "Merrily we go to hell," he declares... "But it's been a great little trip."

Frog Season Closed From November 30 Until June 1, 1939

The season on frogs will close in Iowa Nov. 30, and until June 1, 1939, it will be unlawful to take frogs or have them in possession.

It is unlawful to ship frogs out of the state at any time, further states a bulletin of the Iowa state conservation commission.

Open Game Season On Migratory Birds Will Close Nov. 28

The open season for ducks, geese, mudhen and jacksnipe closes Nov. 28 in Iowa, state conservation officials report.

Waterfowl held in possession on the closing date may be held for a period of 10 days following the close of the open season according to federal regulations.

While the state is authorized to issue permits to hold other game longer than 10 days, it cannot do so with migratory game because of the specific limitation of 10 days.

Dec. 8 is the last day a person may have migratory game taken in Iowa in his possession.

Past Masters Will Entertain

Dr. H. R. Jenkinson To Conduct Meeting Of Masons Tuesday

The Past Masters are planning an evening of entertainment, Tuesday at the Masonic Temple. All Masons in this lodge and other lodges are invited to attend the affair, which will be presided over by Dr. Harry R. Jenkinson.

A dinner will be served at 6 p.m. by the Ladies of the Eastern Star.

The program will feature R. L. Records as the toastmaster. The Sharon male quartet will sing a number of selections throughout the program, at which the Rev. F. G. Codd, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of Davenport, will be the principal speaker.

After the dinner the Past Masters will confer the third degree on candidates.

Farmers May Soon Bury Their Silage

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—An Indian burial mound guided University of Wisconsin scientists to develop a new method of storing corn silage against future droughts.

They had a trench dug on a knoll resembling a burial mound at the university's experimental farm. The trench is 50 feet long, eight feet deep, eight wide at the bottom and 12 at the top.

The hole was filled with 40 tons of corn. Horses were used to tramp it down. Thus it became an underground silo.

Samples of the silage will be withdrawn each year for the scientists to study and determine if this form of silo will provide palatable cattle food.

Conservation Commission Acts To Stop Destruction of Game by Autos

Due to the heavy destruction of fur-bearers and certain species of game by traffic on Iowa's highways, as well as in other states, organized action through the state conservation commission is being taken to cut down such waste of wildlife.

The loss of song birds is equally serious.

Reports by the National Wildlife federation show what is being done to check this destruction. In Pennsylvania, large oil and gas companies are cooperating with the game commission in displaying colored posters impressing motorists with the importance of sparing wildlife along the road.

That much of the destruction is not wholly accidental is the conviction of game wardens, sportsmen, biological survey field men and others interested in wildlife, who insist that in many thousands of miles of day and night travel they almost never find the killing of a wild creature unavoidable.

"It is undoubtedly true, that a great many drivers get a thrill out of running down game," says C. R. Gutermuth, director of education of the Indiana department of conservation. "A cotton-tail bounding along in the glare of the headlight, is a challenge to a certain type of unthinking motorist. Educational propaganda is the only way this can be checked."

To determine the extent of wild life losses under speeding wheels, daybreak surveys are made before crows, vultures, stray dogs and cats and other carnivores clean up the remains of highway victims. Animals killed range from deer — which not infrequently cause serious wrecks — to warblers and woodpeckers.

Rabbits, skunks, muskrats, squirrels, raccoons are common among the mammals frequently killed. The rare Florida otter occasionally meets its death crossing highways. Quail and pheasant are destroyed by the thousands.

Wildlife technicians report that the presence of dead game animals on highways has a decided tendency to cultivate a taste for these species in various predators, as well as in domestic cats and dogs.

For the first six months of 1939, gifts to educational institutions declined $58,568,188 from the total of a similar period of last year.

The Student Workers Federation has been refused a meeting place on the University of California campus.

Returns From Study Abroad

Director Newburn Explains Why British Students Superior to Ours

By DEAN ROGERS

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Newburn have returned to Iowa City from a three-month tour through England and Scotland where Mr. Newburn, director of the University high school, was engaged in research under the auspices of the Carnegie foundation.

Studying secondary school methods and teacher training programs, Mr. Newburn noted many differences between the British and American systems.

He pointed out that the average secondary school student in England seems more learned than students of the same class here probably because of the more rigorous entrance examinations enforced in the English system. Under the foreign selective system examinations to reduce the secondary school entrants to about 15 per cent as compared to the 70 per cent of students entering American schools of the same grade. While graduation in the United States is based almost wholly on the credit system, in England it depends on a series of examinations.

Another distinction is the relation of the British government to schools maintained by the various churches. The government provides church schools with operating expenses as well as those publicly maintained.

Mr. Newburn further explained that English educational officials rigidly insist on the separation of sexes in school life. Where separate buildings are not available for boys and girls a strict division of classes is carried out.

In regard to the training of teachers Mr. Newburn said the British course varies radically from our system. After receiving their degrees, the teachers in England complete their training in one year and then enter service in the secondary schools. Many of the instructors are accepted without the final year's work.

Upon his return to New York, Mr. Newburn met with officials of the Carnegie foundation for a series of informal conferences before coming to Iowa City.
