Meet the King and Queen!

The king and queen were crowned in Iowa Union last night. The titles were honorary, to be sure, but the pomp and pageantry were there, and so were the crowned heads and their attendants. Here are the first honorary king and queen of the junior class and their attendants, as they presided last night over the Pica Ball, annual party of the Associated Students of Journalism. Left to right, they are Eulalia Klingbeil of Postville, the queen's attendant; Betty Jane

Prochnow of Davenport, the king; Robert Osmundson of Forest City, the king, and Edmond Gerber of St. Louis, Mo., the king's attendant. Osmundson was in Minneapolis, Minn., at the time the junior ballots were counted. He returned to Iowa City yesterday, but remained in seclusion throughout the day to preserve the secrecy which figured prominently in last night's presentation of the dignitaries.

Junior King, Queen Presented

R. Osmundson, Prochnow Are Class Choices

The king and queen of the junior class were presented to University of Iowa students at the Pica Ball last night, in a regal setting and accompanied with fanfares from red-coated trumpeters. The king and queen reigned over the ball from their thrones, while their attendants stood by their sides.

The king was Robert Osmundson of Forest City, Sigma Chi, and the queen was Betty Jane Prochnow of Davenport, Gamma Phi Beta. The two attendants were Eulalia Klingbeil of Postville, Pi Beta Phi, and Edmond Gerber of St. Louis, Quadrangle.

The four junior dignitaries were chosen in a contest sponsored by the junior class yearbook, the 1940 Hawkeye. From early recommendations from campus organizations, 24 juniors were selected by a faculty committee on a merit basis, and upon the popularity of these students, juniors cast their votes.

The identities were made known one dance before last night's intermission, with Loren Hickerson, A3 of Iowa City, member of the Pica Ball committee, as master of ceremonies.

The four were presented from the east balcony in the Union lounge. A long fanfare from three trumpeters preceded the ceremony. Miss Klingbeil, the queen's attendant, was introduced first. She wore a black gown and carried a bouquet of red roses. Gerber, the king's attendant, was presented next.

Following another fanfare, the lights in the lounge were extinguished, while a brilliant flood of light from behind the archway cast the silhouetted shadows of the crowned heads of the class against the curtained doorway. The curtains parted, and the king and queen appeared and mounted their thrones. Miss Prochnow wore a blue gown and carried a bouquet of white roses.

WHO SHOVED? Rudy Vallee Says He Had Reasons

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2 (AP)—Rudy Vallee said today that the reason he "shoved" a heckler last night in a hotel night club was because "the annoyance affected others" and because "he swung first."

A large group of notables, including Gov. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and many film figures, heard the heckling during the Vallee show and saw the band man push the guest off his chair.

French Line Crew Strikes

LE HAVRE, France, Dec. 2 (AP)—Sailors of the liner Normandie defied a government requisition order tonight and joined other crew members in a strike which French line officials indicated might delay the vessel's sailing for New York tomorrow.

The navy ministry requisitioned the Normandie this afternoon after the union of waiters, supply men and dining room stewards decided to strike in protest against Premier Daladier's decree laws and for higher wages.

When sailors joined the movement tonight maritime officials said it would be difficult to give the liner an entirely new crew in time for sailing, at 2 p. m., (8 a. m., CST).

The leader of the Le Havre Sailors' union, who issued a general strike call, was ordered arrested. It was reported in shipping circles that the government might be forced to call sailors of the regular navy to man the Normandie if it expected to take the vessel out despite the strike.

F. R. Settles Dispute Over Public Works

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today an informal understanding with Georgia under which the state he has bitterly criticized will share legally with other commonwealths in future federal appropriations for public works.

The president said last week he was tired of being soft-hearted and allowing Georgia to receive PWA funds in the absence of state authority permitting it to borrow.

Talking with reporters today in the presence of Gov. E. D. Rivers, he said he and state officials were agreed on plans to surmount the borrowing limitations of the state constitution.

Rivers, who had just called at the "little white house" with Lawrence S. Camp, the administration's unsuccessful candidate against Sen. Walter F. George, and Democratic State Chairman James L. Gillis, told reporters enabling legislation was ready for submission to the state legislature. He expected no difficulty in getting it through, he said.

Aside from the Georgia situation, the chief executive had little to say at his outdoor interview in front of a press cottage, to which he drove the governor from his mountain retreat.

Wishing to be helpful, he suggested that they write about the return of warm weather and the search for good climate by his ambassador to France, William C. Bullitt. The latter interrupted a vacation to come here yesterday for a few days.

The president said Bullitt had gone to Bermuda and found freezing weather, had returned to the States to find snow, and then had been rained out at Nassau, Bahamas.

PIED PIPER Rats Invade Famous Illinois Town

OTTERVILLE, Ill., Dec. 2 (AP)—This rural community of 94 population, where the first free school in Illinois was established in 1834, sent out a call today for a pied piper.

With the coming of cold weather, rats have invaded the town and, to make matters worse, a mysterious epidemic of distemper has taken toll among the cats. One woman caught 50 rats in one week, using a steel trap.

Police Doubt Kidnap Story

OXON HILL, Md., Dec. 2 (AP)—Police indicated tonight that if they do not find evidence in a short time to corroborate 18-year-old Mary Brown's story of her abduction, they will withdraw from the case.

Major Elmer F. Munshower, superintendent of the Maryland state police, said: "We will stay with the case long enough to satisfy ourselves that there's nothing more we can do, and then there will be nothing else to do but leave it."

The young student returned to her home last night, clothed only in a tattered slip, and said she had been held in a lonely hut by kidnapers since the previous afternoon.

None of the investigators who reported to headquarters late in the afternoon had found any evidence by which they could check the girl's story.

Daladier Seeks Internal Peace To Thwart Foreign Threats

Iowa Barristers Ask Stiffer Requirements Association Seeks to Eliminate 'Poorly Trained' From Profession

DES MOINES, Dec. 2 (AP)—A petition requesting that requirements for admission to the practice of law in Iowa be stiffened in an effort to keep "poorly trained" persons out of the profession was filed today with the state supreme court.

The petition was filed by the Iowa State Bar association, the State Board of Law Examiners, and Attorney General John H. Mitchell.

The proposition, which Attorney General Mitchell said he hoped would be acted on by the supreme court before the end of this year, was drafted after more than six months study by the petitioners.

Among the proposed changes the supreme court was asked to make the following rules governing candidates for admission to the Iowa bar:

1. A mandatory provision that a candidate for the bar show he had two years of study in a reputable college or university before commencing the study of law. Only a high school education is required now.

2. Strict restriction of the allowance of credit given for study pursued in private law offices, ruling out all credit for law study carried on by correspondence or privately outside a law office.

3. Provision for waiting periods following the written bar examinations to enable the board of law examiners to devote adequate time to the review of examination papers.

4. General raising of application fees for candidates seeking admission to the bar, including attorneys from other states seeking admission to the Iowa bar, to finance more comprehensive investigation of their qualifications.

5. A limitation on the number of times persons can take the state bar examination and provision for a year's waiting period for those desiring to take the examination again after failing.

The petition was signed by Attorney General Mitchell, both as ex-officio chairman of the board of law examiners, and Henry C. Shull, president of the Iowa State Bar association.

4 Spies Get Prison Terms

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (AP)—With a grim reference to punishment for espionage in Germany, Federal Judge John C. Knox today imposed prison sentences of from two to six years on three men and a woman accused of selling United States military information to Nazi Germany.

"Had these defendants been apprehended within the confines of Germany," said Judge Knox, looking sternly at the four, "their fate would have been much more fearful. As it is, the agents of a totalitarian state are receiving the mercy of a democracy."

Then, without mentioning the headsman's axe directly, he added, "We have no sawdust sprinkled on our prison yards."

Red-haired Johanna Hofmann, 26, former hairdresser on the German liner Europa, who was accused of acting as a messenger for agents working in this country, was sentenced to four years.

The severest sentence, six years, was imposed on Otto Herman Voss, 38, airplane mechanic, accused of turning over aircraft information to German agents.

Erich Glaser, 28, former United States army private, who was stationed at Mitchell field, Long Island, and Guenther Gustav Runrich, 32, United States army deserter, were sentenced to two years each.

Accuse Son In Father's Death

BAINBRIDGE, Ohio, Dec. 2 (AP)—A son who asserted he was "too drunk to remember" was accused tonight by Prosecutor Lester S. Reid of slaying his pastor-father, Dr. Russell H. Bready, 62.

The well-known Methodist Episcopal minister, once mayor pro-tem of Pontiac, Mich., was found shot in the head in a vacant lot two blocks from his parsonage shortly before dawn today.

Twenty-nine-year-old Robert Bready, held in jail at Chillicothe, related, Prosecutor Reid said, that he recalled his father walking him about the streets trying to "sober him up." He remembered nothing more.

"I've definitely decided to charge him with homicide, but the degree has not been determined," Reid said. "The evidence seems to point to him." He added that the charge would be filed tomorrow.

"Nothing has been uncovered yet to warrant a first degree murder charge," declared Reid, who said the son admitted he was "too drunk to remember much of anything."

Robert Virovai to Play Here 18-year-old Hungarian Prodigy Will Appear at Union Monday

Robert Virovai, 18-year-old Hungarian violin prodigy who began his first American tour Nov. 15, after starting New York's better musical sets with his brilliant American debut, will appear in Iowa Union Monday night, the second artist on the university concert course.

Virovai's mother, a simple Hungarian peasant woman who watched John Barbirolli, distinguished conductor of the New York philharmonic symphony orchestra clasp her son's hands after eight tumultuous curtain calls the night of his American debut, will accompany him to Iowa City.

The young master will play a concert including numbers by Bach, Mozart, Veracini, Paganini, Hubay (under whom he studied), Rossini-Paganini and Corelli.

Tickets for the concert are now on sale at the music studio building, room 15.

Virovai won first place in the international contest for violinists and cellists in Vienna last year. He was then 17 years old. He graduated from the Conservatory of Music in Budapest at the age of 13.

Premier Asks Employers To Rehire Men

PARIS, Dec. 2 (AP)—Threatened by the colonial ambitions of both Italy and Germany, Premier Daladier today sought the internal political and social peace he considers essential to the defense of the world's second largest colonial empire.

(French-Italian relations, strained during the Italo-Ethiopian war and since by the Spanish civil war, were jolted anew today by an authoritative fascist editor's declaration that Italy was "ready to march—even against France—if it is necessary.")

The French ambassador to Rome, Andre Francois-Poncet, delivered a strong protest to Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano against the cries of "Tunisia!" and "Corsica!" which followed a speech by Ciano before fascist deputies two days ago.

The protest was similar to that presented to the Italian ambassador to Paris yesterday by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

Meanwhile, to prevent employers from taking undue advantage of his victory over organized labor in Wednesday's abortive general strike, Premier Daladier warned them to handle their workers with care.

Through his labor minister, Charles Pomaret, Daladier advised employers to take back all workers who merely had obeyed union orders in heeding the call to strike in protest against the Daladier economic program.

Thousands had been thrown out of work at least temporarily. The government's advice carried a tacit warning that refusal to take back most of the strikers would bring grave trouble.

Socialist deputies estimated 80,000 workers had been discharged but the general confederation of French employers declared there was no "question of a mass lock-out or discharges taking the form of reprisals."

More than 20,000 workers were still on strike and there were minor disorders today.

Leon Jouhaux, leader of the general confederation of labor which sponsored the strike movement, wrote Daladier that the question of the confederation's collaboration with the government would be discussed Monday in a meeting of the organization's national committee.

With the worst of the labor crisis over, foreign experts and political leaders turned their attention to Italian and German colonial ambitions. Both were old desires but the Italian clamor has emerged with new insistence.

The Italian emphasis was on Tunisia, French North Africa's protectorate, but the manifestations in Italy linked shouts of "Corsica!" with "Tunisia!" this week. Corsica, an island off the western Italian coast, was conquered by the French in 1768 and now is a department of France.

Nazis May Trade Jewish Freedom for Exports Increase

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (AP)—A prominent Nazi editor disclosed today that plans were being studied for making Jewish emigration possible in return for increased German exports.

Although he declined to outline specific details, the editor said the project had advanced to the point where Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, director of the four-year economic plan, could announce it soon.

(In London, an international five-nation committee on refugees met and was understood to have decided to make a fresh approach to Germany to arrange for emigration of German Jews through German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, during his visit to Paris where he will arrive Tuesday.)

The editor, who is close to Goering's group, explained the idea behind the scheme as follows: "Jews need foreign exchange to get out. We haven't any. Hence other nations must supply it. These nations, however, will insist that Germany should repay these sums from possessions left behind by German Jews."

"There is only one way we can repay—through goods. Therefore the problem of ridding ourselves of Jews and for Jews to make emigration possible comes to this: 'How great a quantity of additional German goods are foreign nations prepared to buy from Germany? They can have all 850,000 Jews and half - Jews if they will give us enough export orders.'"

Meanwhile, iron fences enclosing Jewish burial plots were being torn down to increase the German supply of scrap iron and newspapers took up a campaign against persons who sympathize with Jews.

The remaining Jewish publication in Germany, Juedisches Nachrichtenblatt, appealed for the removal of the fences "as a great project for beautifying Jewish graves" and said, "inasmuch as the German reich's supply of scrap iron must be increased we want voluntarily to make this material available for re-utilization."

Fascism Is Real Menace To French Democracy

FASCISM, under the guise of "protecting" France from communism, has scored another thrust in democracy's vitals.

Labor unrest, caused by "communists", has given the fascist sympathizers another excuse to urge dictatorship upon the French republic.

The French general strike, promulgated as a 24-hour demonstration against the Daladier government by five million members of the French general Confederation of Labor, strikes deep at the democracy of France itself.

The protest strike was directed against Premier Daladier's decree suspending the 40-hour week and imposing new taxes to keep the government afloat. As soon as the strike plans were made public, French troops boarded the trains for the strike centers. An hour after the strike started, the laborers returned to work.

Today, Daladier is praised for "saving" France from the radical communist labor element. By crushing the revolt, Daladier certainly gave communism a blow, but he also gave democracy a severe set-back.

Under a democracy, labor has the right to engage in collective bargaining — everywhere but in France. France today faces the same situation that faced Italy and Germany before the rise of Mussolini and Hitler. Fascist sympathizers fostered rumors dealing with possible "red" domination. In an effort to stamp out the "red" menace, the governments allowed the leaders unusual powers. Germany and Italy have subjugated communism but now fascism has them under its yoke.

Fascism is striking while France is almost down. If these labor disturbances break the slender thread of French democracy, fascism will soon feast on the bones of the Paris government.

Germany Receive Unfair Criticism For Hitler's Acts

IT SEEMS incredible that the people of a nation would be blamed for the action of their government. Especially would this seem to be true in the case of a nation ruled by dictators.

History shows that what is happening today is characteristic of the past. The propaganda flowing freely to have us believe that the German people are responsible for, and are condoning Hitler's actions. As in 1914, the citizens of the democracies are being asked to believe that the citizens of Germany are inherently different from other peoples, that they are cruel, bloodthirsty, and inhuman. In an editorial the Tulsa Tribune says, "Hitler is supported by the mass insanity of the German people. . . There is something peculiarly arrogant and insolent inherent in the German people." The greatest mistake citizens of democracies can make, is to believe such lies. They are purely propaganda.

Scientific knowledge disproves conclusively that such statements have any basis in fact. American citizens who have been in Germany and have come to know her people, almost unanimously agree that they are as fine and intelligent as any people on earth, and just as peace loving. German born citizens living in this country bear out that conclusion. The majority of Germans in America, are hard working successful citizens, and are as loyal to America, her tendency is to classify all German-Americans by the small minority activity in Nazi organizations.

Blood Purges

And Benedict Arnold

RUMANIA'S "Little Hitler" was liquidated the other day by King Carol in a purge that saw 13 such aspiring "fuehrers" eat earth.

Soviet Russia every so often digs up a few people that have to be purged or "liquidated" and we over here on this side of the Atlantic are shocked and quietly say "Thank God that this is America, where no such things happen."

We forget that early in American history, such purges also occurred and would have occurred had the leaders then been able to get their hands on certain parties.

One of those parties in particular had been a great hero during the Revolution—a great hero—and a dastardly traitor. Dust off your history books and look up the name Benedict Arnold, whom we consider today as the Rumanians consider their recently purged "little Hitler."

We remain smug, seemingly secure and content just to shake our heads at the goings on on the other side—just as they shake their heads whenever another Negro is lynched.

Stay smug, but just remember that Benedict Arnold and Leon Trotsky and the rest of them are birds of a feather that deserve to be "liquidated" whether the country be the United States, the Soviet Union, Rumania or any other country. Traitors have always been treated alike. It seems to be for the best interests of the existing government.

There must be a great many people in Spain who would trade places with the 100-year-old Arkansas man who never has seen an airplane.

The police department of Tacoma, Wash., now has a press agent. Any day we're expecting the glorification of the well known dragnet.

Because political affairs in most of the central European and Balkan countries are unusually confused at the moment, it is fitting to make two or three surmises about the current "purge" in Rumania.

One is that the killing of 14 Iron Guard (or fascist) leaders by King Carol's police was probably deliberate. The press correspondents were able to call it a "supposed prison break," which suggests their convictions in the matter. And of course this is an old trick in the tyrannies. In Latin America, they call it the "ley de fuga," or "fugitive law"—which is a simple process of shooting prisoners and then reporting that they had attempted escape, thus automatically absolving the executors.

Another fair assumption is that King Carol and his regime are no less "fascist," in the totalitarian sense, than the Iron Guards with their Nazi inclinations. It is just a question, again, of who is going to be the big boss. Nazi organizations, even when not under the immediate direction of German leaders, have shown no disposition to tolerate past rulers. Carol probably knows full well that he would become a second fiddle (as the king of Italy), if not indeed a "traitor" (as Schuschnigg in Austria), if the Iron Guard who have contested his authority for so long were to overthrow his autocracy. He is therefore fighting for retention of his power, his freedom, possibly even his life. The fascist oppression of Jews is going on even under his own government, apparently as a sop to the extremists, although it would probably be much more severe under the Iron Guards.

Ideologies, in other words, can "go hang." Carol's monarchy happens to be "in" and it intends to stay in. The Rumanian fascist crowd wants to get "in," so it is taking advantage of the current prestige of Nazi-ism in central Europe to ride a promising horse and, if possible, drive the monarchy out.

One thing more. There has been considerable evidence that the Iron Guards were getting support from the Nazis proper. If so, the "purge" will probably infuriate Hitler's clique. In the past, the result of this has been to intensify Nazi efforts, to create gradually more and more terrorism and anarchy, and finally to bring one "demand" after another that will debilitate the authority in power and bring the area completely under Nazi economic if not military domination.

The fact that King Carol deemed this desperate "purge" necessary suggests that he is making a last stand. The collapse of Rumania into the Nazi orbit may be much closer than has been suspected. Certainly there is a quiet perfect analogy in the current episode to the cast of Austria. The domestic affairs of Rumania itself would not excite so much world attention, were it not that the arrival of Hitler's "empire" at the Soviet Russian border and the Black sea is directly involved.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

FROM A COLUMNIST'S DIARY: Isn't it today that the comments begin on editorial page, to continue there indefinitely barring, as some newspapers are wont to say, not knowing all the facts, "unforeseen circumstances?"

Let down a comment about how much J. Van der Zee resembles Dean Phillips of the commerce college. . . Does the fact that both are Dutch have anything to do with it?

Might some day write a column about the 12 Least Appreciated Persons on the campus. (Except all of them seem to appreciate themselves.)

While listening to Jack Knight's buoyant little talk yesterday I mused that if folks can't stay until a lecture's end, they really shouldn't come at all. (P. S. The only ones who left were women.)

Rather liked Knight's "Aviation has changed from an art to a science. . . Plain imagination hasn't much part in it any more."

He's a charming tiny man to have seen so much and been so many places.

Yesterday morning's mail had these four lines from one Gerald Gerber, who says he's eight and one-half but probably isn't. . . Leaves, leaves turn brown. Leaves, leaves fall down. Snow, snow, drop, drop. Everywhere we take a flop.

Saroyan, Bill, writes and publishes more short stories than any other living author (and probably better), declares he makes less than $20 a week. . . He writes good stories. . .

Faith Baldwin makes $10,000 a story. . . She writes bad stories. . .

I want to be a writer? . . .

The Orson Welles' fictioncast scared everybody away but Campbell's soup with a $5,000 weekly contract.

Incidentally, I'm just now learning that it's possible to be really quite fond of a person with whose politics I disagree. . . If we don't discuss politics. . .

Wonder why the Register junked Jay Franklin, who's really six times the writer Ernest K. Lindley is.

This week've been idly thumbing George Seldes' "Lords of the Press" to find myself angry on a number of pages, agreeing on some. . . Seldes condemns all "journalists" heartlessly, neglects to mention that bad as we are we're still better than the newspaper folk of any other country. . .

Then Seldes jumps down the throats of the "columnists who chit-chat aimlessly when civilization falls." . . I mean, he writes, the spinners of trivia. . .

Probably means the Walter Winchells, the F. P. A. among us. . . And, sorry, Mr. Seldes, we may be fiddling while Rome burns. . . But I'll bet Nero had a delightful time. . .

Let the long-haired chap save the world for posterity. We'll just make it amusing for ourselves. . .

This writer's more interested in Iowa City than the world. . . Although he occasionally wanders off the local reservation. . .

Pig-Tailed Monkey Comes to Washington

WASHINGTON — A recent arrival at the zoo of the Smithsonian Institution here is a pig-tailed monkey believed to be the first born in the United States. The wrinkle-faced fellow's parents are "pig-tailers" brought to this country from the East Indies.

Sharing the zoo limelight with the baby monkey are a couple of poisonous side-winder rattlesnakes, the gift of a California schoolboy. The "side-winder" wriggles over the ground obliquely instead of straight ahead.

Can't Chop Trees

LONDON (AP)—No person will be allowed to cut down, lop, or destroy any registered tree in Southwest London, under a draft scheme of by-laws adopted by the London county council, the registration of trees being part of a town planning scheme.

When there's tyranny, little-ness and hypocrisy here, he endeavors to mention it. . . He's light-minded, to be sure; but that's a forgivable fault. . .

He hates dullness so much he may be too often trivial. . . But he sleeps well at night. . .

The Walter Lippmanns and the Mark Sullivans and the Frank Kents among us may sometimes not. . . If they do, they shouldn't.

So there, Mr. Seldes. . .

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

"My nerves" means to most of my readers, I hope, a kind of vision of a diagrammatic human with long strands running from a central spinal cord to the outskirts of its body. To a few, it means that something inside the mind doesn't like to have Jones, the butcher boy, whistle as he delivers the lamb chops to the kitchen.

This makes for a slight confusion, which I note from time to time in my correspondence; such as, "I see you recommend Vitamin B for nerves. Would it be good for my granddaughter who has what has been diagnosed as hysteria?" No, it would not be good for that, so let me attempt to explain.

Communication System: The nervous system is a communication system, and it may be compared to such a communication system as your own telephone exchange. If you pick up your telephone receiver and dial it properly and fail to get a response, one of several things may have happened. The central telephone exchange may have burned down, the branch exchange may have burned down, or the wire between your "home" and the exchange may have been cut.

In the comparison with the central nervous system, the central exchange represents the brain, the branch exchange the spinal cord, and the telephone wires the nerves, or nerve fibers that go out from the cord to the muscles or to the skin. A paralysis may have its seat in the brain or in the cord, but most forms are due to disease of the nerve fibers. And this is fortunate because disease of the nerves can be cured more readily than disease of the brain or spinal cord.

Fiber Regenerates: This is due to the ability of the nerve fiber to regenerate. I said in an earlier article this week that a nerve cell once destroyed can never be replaced. That is true, but the nerve fiber going out from it, so long as the cell itself is intact, will regenerate. The nerve cell that moves the muscle of your thumb lies in the spinal cord, in the middle of the back of your neck; from it the slender nerve fiber runs along the arm to the thumb. If this fiber is cut or otherwise interrupted, the cell will send out a new fiber which, growing along the path of the old one, will eventually make the path intact again. Regeneration occurs in lower animals to an astonishing degree. The lobster will part company with a limb, and slowly grow an entire new one. In man this faculty of regeneration is represented only in the nerve fiber.

The causes of nerve fiber degeneration are either poisons or lack of proper food. Perhaps most of them are due to lack of proper food. We used to think that alcohol would cause neuritis; now we know that so-called neuritis can be cured by giving the patient Vitamin B, which is a normal ingredient of a balanced diet. The alcoholic gets his neuritis from starvation; all chronic alcoholics tend to depend on the alcohol for their caloric bodily needs and neglect eating, or at least neglect eating a balanced diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS: M. S.: "What effect would two cups of carrot juice a day for a month. I was told by a layman it was a builder." Answer—Carrot contain carotene, which is the precursor of vitamin A, the vitamin which protects against infection. Excessive use of carrots results in a yellowish discoloration of the skin—carotenemia. Otherwise, there is no possibility of harm.

Reader: "What causes black objects to float in front of the eyes?" Answer—Scotomas of this kind are probably due to opacities in one or the other of the watery humors of the eye. They do no harm and cannot be helped.

TUNING IN

By Loren Hickerson

TOMMY RIGGS will run into some radio rogues on his broadcast over the NBC-Red network at 7 o'clock tonight when he and Betty Lou entertain the three Radio Rogues.

The Rogues are currently laying them in the aisles with their imitations and gag songs in "Hellzapoppin'" the smash hit of the present Broadway season and the play whose title was banned from polite radio for quite some time.

The musical portion of the Riggs program will be in the hands of Larry Clinton and his orchestra.

MARY EASTMAN, lovely soprano of the "Saturday Night Serenade," will sing the soothing lullaby, "Sandman is Calling," as the feature of the "Serenade" program at 8:30 tonight over Columbia's network.

Bill Perry, one of the airlines' most popular tenors, will highlight "My Own." Gus Haenschen's orchestra will offer "Cry, Baby, Cry," "Stompin' at the Savoy," (which seems to be making quite a comeback these days) "While a Cigarette was Burning" and "At Long Last Love."

"It's Time to Say Aloha" will be the contribution of the Serenaders and, as a finale, the entire ensemble will be heard in the old dance favorite, "Bye Bye Blues."

TOM, DICK AND HARRY, radio's most popular veteran singing trio, will guest star with Red Foley, star of Avalon Time, over the NBC-Red network at 6 o'clock tonight.

The singing guests will be heard in some of their special harmony numbers as well as in the friendly kibitzing that has made them famous.

Red Foley's special numbers will be Hoagy Carmichael's hit, "Small Fry," and a new arrangement of "When Mother Nature Sings her Lullaby," with the chorus. The production number will be "The Cotton Picker's Congregation," and the Neighbor Boys will vocalize on the old hymn, "Open Up Them Pearly Gates."

The orchestra, under Phil Davis, will contribute "Flying Down to Rio" and "Pagan Love Song." One of Tom, Dick and Harry's specialties will be "Bessa From Odessa."

VERDI'S "OTELLO" will be heard over the National Broadcasting company this afternoon during the second complete Saturday matinee of the Metropolitan's 1938 - 39 season.

Giovanni Martinielli and Lawrence Tibbett will have the leading roles.

IS ORSON WELLES headed for the movies? It is pretty generally known that the motion pictures have been after the young master-showman Welles ever since he blazed to prominence, but he has consistently turned them down on artistic grounds. Now, from sources close to him, comes word that he may capitulate. The reason—Hollywood's offers look too, too inviting, financially.

WITH SOME BB SHOT and an old phonograph record in your home, you're on your way to becoming a sound-effects man!

Jack Johnstone, "Johnny Presents" drama director, ordered a "rain machine"—and got a device that would make Joe Cook green with envy. The Sadie Thompson mood equipment includes a bucket of fine BB shot, a phonograph disc, a funnel and several pieces of stiff paper.

On a cue from Johnstone, the sound man releases a lever which passes the BB shot through the funnel and onto the record below, which keeps revolving. The record drops the shot into the paper from all sides, and a convincing rain storm is the result.

"It is always pretty difficult to make out what the critics want of Hamlet, even when they express lucidly what views they have on the subject. . . One actor doesn't satisfy them because, though they agree he handles the role with sure intelligence, he neglects to sacrifice his intellectual conception of the role of some other actor's emotional conception. Another actor displeases them because he does the opposite. And still another gets their bad notices because he dovetails the two. As my old editorial partner used to say, no wonder Hamlet is crazy."—George Jean Nathan. ### Julia Coburn Advises On Style Careers

Exceptional Ability Is Necessary For Fashion Writing Job

Stressing the importance of a girl's knowing that she has exceptional ability in either creative or promotion work before she decides definitely that her career will be with fashions, Julia Coburn, former fashion editor of the Ladies Home Journal and now of the Tobe - Coburn School for Fashion Career in New York, addressed university women yesterday afternoon. The lecture was in the dining room of the home economics department.

In answer to the question as to what ability and training are necessary for the creative line in fashions, Miss Coburn said, "You must have that God-given talent first and then be able to harness that talent to meet the existing demands so people will be willing to pay for it."

Fashion as a career has existed for women only since the early 1920's, Miss Coburn said. It is a profession created by women for women, and because women can add to the buying and selling of merchandise.

To be successful in the promotion line of fashions, and this includes all types of sales promotion work, an exceptionally good mind and good background of general education is most important.

Background courses, actual information courses and personal development courses are taught the girls at the Tobe - Coburn school. The school is located in the Time and Life building of the Rockefeller center.

"The professional training is valuable to the young women who want to shorten the period of apprenticeship in the field," said Miss Coburn.

Dame Fashion's Notebook Secret of Milady's Charms

Delving around in Dame Fashion's notebook can often add sparkle to your charm and more than likely perk up your wardrobe. A fashion hunch for home shindigs — be they bridge, backgammon or Bach — is the formal pajama ensemble with a gleaming sabre metallic jacket, encrusted in turquoise covering citron crepe trousers and silver sash streamers down to meet jewel-paved sandals. Then there's a hostess gown in a gold lame sloop of medieval fullness. Emerald studs clipping collar and cuffs add that tailored touch.

And if you want to go dining, you'll create "oh's" and "ah's" if you appear in a long circular skirt in malaga palle and a brief fitted jacket grappeted in pink feathers. As a side hint, pageboy coifs add a final zip to this costume.

If you're supping at a formal affair, a burnt orange dinner suit with copper lame blouse and mink tailored chechia will really top the bill. Still undecided you might like a purple crepe frock accented by gold kid seams and bracelet cuffs. Then place a frivolous blue pillbox at an angle so as to conceal one good eye, and you've a knockout.

And if it's formal you go, an evening gown in sophisticated grey velvet sheath worn with a scarf and muff of fiery red coq feathers will swing into any situation. Getting down to personality again, to suit the prom type there's a black frock with a heart-shaped bodice and ballerina skirt fluted in ivory velvet ruffles. And then top it off with a downy angora jacket to keep your heart warm. If the music's hot and the shag's the style, match them both with a cadet blue taffeta off-shoulder camisole bodice laced in aquamarine and a short matching military cape. And speaking of capes, warding off the night air is a MacTavish plaid and a supple moleskin with a little monk's hood to protect milady's coif.

This mischievous weather, first warm, then cold, calls forth the fur world and fur-trimmed things. A safari brown Alaska seal coat with collar and pockets deliberately poking out bits of plaid bunting attracts the eyes and keeps away the cold. A trim black Persian lamb cape with padded shoulders and lined with fireman red flannel makes a blonde more chic.

Assuming that it's a turn for warmer days, a grey tweed suit with side panel and sleeves of curleyke kimmer will be vera, vera smart. Another bandbox costume is a suit of beige and brown wool striped with beaver tuxedo cuffing.

Now to go with madame's evening charm, an ermine jacquette and melon muff with a sprinkling of violets is really something to note. The "400" fur animals make a mink boxer with neckline shirred on chateau velvet drawing, a sable capelet or a white quilted caracul wrap. But, if you're looking for something just a little different, a pink camelian lame wrap with huge frog ornaments of pearls and emeralds and deep plush velvet sleeves has personality-plus.

lina have returned home after being called here.

Gamma Phi Beta. The chapter house will be transformed into toyland tonight for the Christmas formal party. Earl Harrington's Avalon orchestra will furnish the music for dancing.

The committee in charge is headed by Charline Saggau, A3 of Denison. Ruth Fenton, C3 of Jewell, Helen Qualheim, A2 of Denison, Betty DeGroot, A1 of Humboldt, and Betty Jane Kelloway, A2 of Adair, are also on the committee.

Chaperons for the affair are Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Earl P. Strong and Mrs. Stella Crawford.

Melda Boustain of Davenport and Bettie Jayne Reed of Marshalltown will be guests at the chapter house this week end.

Gamma Phi Beta announces the pledging of Evelyn Anderson, A1 of Hite Creek.

Helen Witte of Burlington and Mary Louise Meersman of Moline, Ill., will be guests at the chapter house this week end.

Pi Beta Phi. Blanche Young of Des Moines is a guest of Annabel Anderson, A4 of Cedar Rapids, at the chapter house this week end.

Carol Jane Osterholm, A2 of Waverly, will spend the week end at her home.

Sigma Phi Epsilon. Carol Johnson, district governor of Sigma Phi Epsilon, will be a guest of the chapter this week end.

Robert Anderson and William Murphy of the Alpha chapter at Iowa Wesleyan, Mt. Pleasant, are guests.

Mr. Lewis Mason, who has been visiting at the house for the past week, will leave today.

Prof. and Mrs. C. J. Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Luck and Mrs. M. R. Whipple will chaperon the Christmas formal which will be given this evening.

The committee in charge includes Ralph Winger, A3 of Keokuk; Stanley Bahnsen, A3 of Clinton and Mike Harrington, C4 of Keokuk.

Guests are expected from Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Dubuque, Des Moines and Davenport. Johnnie Ruby's orchestra will provide the music from 9 to 12.

Zeta Tau Alpha. Alma Louise Atherton, A3 of Union Grove, Wis., will visit in Chicago this week end.

Delta Delta Delta. Sally Lipston, a member of Delta Delta Delta at the University of Texas, was a guest at the chapter house Monday night. As a member of the Union Board, she is making a survey of Union buildings in all parts of the country.

Delta Delta Delta announces the formal initiation of Mary Lucille O'Hearn, A4 of Dubuque, Marion Danner, A4 of Merrill, and LaRita Halloran, A2 of Audubon.

Virginia Lynch, A2 of Ames, will spend the week end at her home.

Home Ec. Club Dinner Will Be Dec. 13th

Committee Of Formal Affair Is Announced

Members of Faculty, Administrators To Be Evening's Guests

The Home Economics club has announced Dec. 13 as the date for their annual Christmas dinner.

The seven course formal dinner will be served as usual to university faculty members and administrators and students belonging to Home Economics club. Guests connected with faculty and administration are invited.

Approximately 100 guests are expected to attend.

The dinner is said to be one of the most outstanding events of the club and has been a tradition of the department for some 30 years.

The advanced foods class prepares the dinner and the beginning foods class serves it. Every effort is made to have the food and decorations symbolic of Christ.

The following are the committees who are now meeting and making plans for the dinner.

Invitations and Reception: Prof. Frances Zull, head of the home economics department, and Prof. Mate Giddings of the department, faculty advisors; Vernetta Schmidt, A4 of Avoca, and Mary Elise Clapsaddle, A3 of St. Genevieve, Mo., co-chairmen.

Invitations: Helen Rose, P2 of Iowa City; Frankie Sample, A1 of Iowa City; Elizabeth Emmons, A3 of Clinton, and Margaret Conner, G of Iowa City.

Reception: Lorraine Beneke, A3 of Palmer; Janithe Propst, A2 of Iowa City; Mable Yoder, A4 of Iowa City; Helen Rose, P2 of Iowa City; Polly Schenk, A1 of Iowa City; Dorothy Busz, A1 of Park Ridge, Ill.; Margaret Gardner, A4 of Iowa City, and Marjorie Eggleston, A2 of Vinton.

Pre-Christmas Season Features At Iowa Union Include Music, Art Displays and Decorations

Greatest Art Works Of University Group Will Be on Display

The pre-Christmas season at Iowa Union will feature a festival carefully planned by the Iowa Union staff and Union board, it was announced yesterday.

The decorative scheme will include a Christmas tree in the lounge and a wreath on each of the fireplaces. During the final week before vacation, fires will burn all day in each of the fireplaces.

A special art exhibit will be hung in the Union lounge, which will be ready for the public tomorrow. This exhibit will include the greatest works of art in the university collection. As a special feature the famous painting, "Holy Family With Angels," by Andrea del Sarto, has been secured on loan from the Davenport Municipal Art gallery.

In addition to this, "Mary's Cottage," the most valuable picture in the university art collection, painted by Daniel Garber, which hangs in the President's home, has been loaned by President and Mrs. Eugene A. Gilmore and will be on display in the lounge.

Tomorrow evening, the Union will present complete recordings of the Mass in B Minor, by Johan Sebastian Bach. The first half of the work will be played at 4:30 p.m. and the second half at 7 p.m. Thus an intermission of approximately one hour will be provided. Prof. Earl E. Harper will preside and Prof. Phillip Clapp, head of the music department, will speak briefly both at 4:30 and at 7 p.m. on the character and significance of this musical masterpiece.

The climactic feature of the pre-Christmas season will be the presentation of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." This will be sung in Iowa Union lounge Dec. 14, by the university chorus, assisted by special soloists, and accompanied by the university symphony orchestra. The presentation has been prepared by the music department and will be conducted by Professor Clapp.

From Monday, Dec. 12, to Thursday, Dec. 15 inclusive, Christmas music will be played and sung from the balcony of the lounge each day at 9:55 a.m. and at 4:15 p.m. The 9:55 a.m. presentation will consist of carefully chosen recordings played by means of the new radio-phonograph instrument recently purchased for use in the river room.

At 4:15 each afternoon, "live" music will be presented. The program will be as follows: Monday, 4:15 p.m. brass sextet; Tuesday, choral ensemble; Wednesday, brass sextet and accordion; Thursday, string ensemble.

The music from the balcony will be offered informally and opportunity will be given for those listening in the lounge to join in the singing of carols from time to time. Each program will continue for 20 minutes.

In addition to the program thus prepared for the general public, there will be the usual parties, dinners, dances, and social gatherings motivated by the Christmas spirit.

Three Faculty Members Attend Broadcast Meet

Three faculty members are in Chicago today attending the second annual School Broadcast conference held by Chicago public schools.

They are Pearl Bennett Broxam, program director of WSUI, Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department and Prof. Bruce E. Mahan of the extension division, chairman of the radio board.

The convention is for people interested in knowing more about how radio programs should be received in and out of classes, or the utilization of radio in schools.

The members of the discussion group on the "Town meeting of the Air" radio program last night were selected from the conference.

The faculty members will return tomorrow evening.

ROMANCE UNDER

BY OREN ARNOLD

READ THIS FIRST:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE," and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human," he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' public display. The next day, while walking with some of the students, Dr. Holgate is confronted by Peaches and two other girls in a passing car. After Dr. Holgate is almost forced into Peaches' car, they all decide to go to Galveston for a swim. In the water, the crowd is startled when a mother cries that her child is drowning. Meanwhile, Sara Sue goes to church with T. J. Sanders. (Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 25

ROBERT TOWNE was a somewhat unhappy young man for two reasons. First, his rather juvenile rival, Worthington Gurley, had taken his girl to a dance. Second, his older and now equally (or more!) potent rival had walked into Sara Sue's cottage and taken her away, right under his nose. And to church, at that.

He didn't know what plans Sara Sue had for the afternoon. Normally a happy-go-lucky person, Bob was disposed to be gloomy when he left the Davis cottage at noon. But he was not licked. He planned to grab a bite of lunch, then go back to her cottage. He had entree always because he was a member of her social organization, for which he paid the regular fee. But he also meant to camp on her personal doorstep until he got a date with her. Persistence was one of Bob Towne's assets.

He called at 1:20 and found her in. But she was also in bed. "Take yo'self an away fum here, Mistuh Bob, suh," Cleopatra Jones ordered the young man. "You knows Miss Sara Sue got to have some sleep! I ain't gon' let no young man come courtin' her till she gits three hours sleep."

You couldn't budge black Cleo. Massive physically, she could also be a mental blockade, which is one reason why Sara Sue kept her. Calculus, her long and lanky husband, chuckled at the conversation.

"Mistuh T. J. cuttin' in on you, Mistuh Bob," Calculus informed the caller.

"You're telling me!" Bob grinned. "Calculus, I'll break your neck if you let Sanders hang around here."

"Yassah, I knows you can do it, too. I sees you ran yo'self right through three tacklers at once Saturday, unh UNH! I betcha your tears 'em up right on through the Mexico game, too, yas suh!"

Rice was to close her football season this year by playing the University of Mexico. Some authorities said Mexico was to be the biggest hurdle Rice faced. But Calculus had faith. He thought Bob Towne unconquerable; he secretly and openly admired him.

"Lemme tell you what — you come back here long about four p. m. and sweet-talk Miss Sara Sue. Betcha you gits a date, then."

"I'll do it, Calculus."

But he didn't quite connect at "four p. m." Sara Sue slept, shamefully, until almost 5. Calculus and Cleo had to side-track three telephone calls for her. But when she finally did come out of her bedroom, Bob was on deck, smiling, shining, whistling.

"For goodness sake, Bob Towne! Have you taken root here?"

"It's an idea," he assured her. She yawned at him.

"How was church?"

"Fine. Excellent sermon. And music. You ought to go. Once, New experiences broaden young college men, I'm told."

"I have another rare experience in mind. Very rare, for me."

"You like to eat here? With me? We could eat privately."

"Thanks, no. I want to get you away. I haven't held your hand even, in weeks. Woman, everybody on the campus knows you are my sweetheart but you've got to take you out and administer a little woo."

She laughed again. "Silly! But talk on. It's part of you, and I like it. What time did you want to start?"

"Instantly, if not sooner. Now."

"Okay, pal. But I'm getting to be a terrible gadabout. I'm supposed to be a working lady."

They drove north on Main boulevard, debating as to restaurants. They parked for a moment at Red Dog Johnson's "Gablers," Red Dog — legal name, Gaylord Johnson, Ph.D. — was a Rice grad and manager of athletics, as well as "Gablers" owner. But —

"Nerts. There's half a dozen mugs in there I know," Bob ruled. "I want you alone. Please, honey. Sara Sue, I—I've just got to take you off alone somewhere and make love to you. I'm crazy for loving you. I mean it! Football and studies and money have got me down at the moment, but so help me, our time's coming! Sara Sue."

He had suddenly spoken his heart so earnestly, so sincerely, that the girl turned to him in some alarm. She saw the pleading in his eyes.

"Why, Bob!"

"I'm not joking, honey. I mean every word I say. I've never felt like this toward any other girl. I stole one kiss from you, on our first date. But I'll never steal another. I worship you too much. I want you to want me to kiss you!"

Sara Sue was almost frantic for a moment.

She had expected a somewhat pleasant evening of banter and play-fighting and general tomfoolery in conversation. For Bob had been like that. But now he was soft and terribly sincere. She inspected his face again, to be sure he wasn't acting. He wasn't, and that made her position harder. She bit her lip, trembling a little.

He would have taken her in his arms then, but for her quick response.

"Thank you, Bob. I think you are fine. Honestly I do. But—we must not talk now of such things! We mustn't! Simply must not. You have your—your schooling, your football land everything. I am smothered with business. And—and—well, Bob, I honestly don't feel in that mood right now. I think you are just impulsive. It takes a lot of time to fall in—to be deeply in love. Why, we hardly know each other! Come on, let's just go eat and be gay again, and not talk about us."

A man can do nothing to combat such a mood as that.

He drove on away with her, up the street, and forced himself back into the bantering tone. But each of them knew that a spiritual something hovered between them, or over them. One cannot bare his soul one moment, and close it the next. Sara Sue set out to be extra kind to him. She was thankful to have gotten out of a delicate spot as easily as she did. Never for anything in the world would she have wanted to hurt his feelings; certainly not the feelings of any man in love.

The meal they finally ate was good. There was music, too, and pleasant reminiscences about the dance and about football and such things. They lingered until 9:30 at their table, then walked out into Main street, there where the skyscrapers are.

At once the raucous voices of newsboys assailed them. Which phenomenon was common enough, but for the fact that they were calling extras. Casually, Bob bought a paper, and held it under a neon light for both of them to scan.

"BOB! Look! . . . Look!" Sara Sue grabbed his arm, leaning close the better to read, tense in every muscle now. And Bob himself was equally alarmed.

There were large photographs of Peaches Pomeroy, of Thornton Holgate, of a strange woman, a Mrs. Diehl, and her small daughter. Of two other Rice girls, and of some freshmen boys—and Galveston beach.

There were headlines — boxcar headlines — and sub-heads no less black. And two-column type away down the page. Bob and Sara Sue read every word.

"Bob," she suddenly spoke. "Take me to Galveston at once!"

"Why, honey, what can you—?"

"Take me! Now! I'll pay the cost. Or I'll have to hire another car. This instant, I tell you! He's dying! It says so, there! His head struck the side of the rescue boat! Didn't you read it? Concussion! It says he's dying! A waver!"

"Yeah, but—do you know Holgate? I mean—"

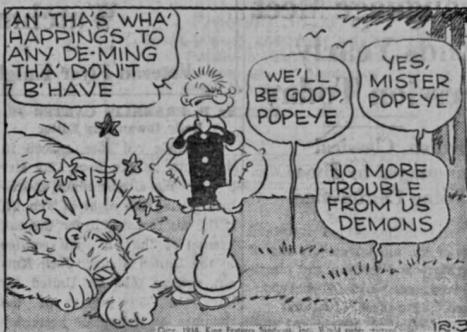

"Yes! Come on!"

She grabbed his hand and raced him to their car, parked a block away. Obediently, without further question, Bob sped them away, heading for Galveston.

Watchman Helped U. S. Airmail

Veteran Flyer Knight Says Iowa City Airport Light Guided Him

By B. FRANKLIN CARTER JR., Daily Iowan City Editor

"A single red fuse, placed in the center of the Iowa City airport by the airport night watchman during the night of Feb. 22, 1921, was responsible for the existence of the air mail service in the United States," Jack Knight, veteran pilot for United Air lines told 150 persons at the chamber of commerce yesterday noon at the Jefferson hotel.

Knight, who has flown more than two and a half million miles, traced the development of the air mail service from a single route of 435 miles from New York to Cleveland to the present network of air lines.

"The government announced in 1921 that it intended to discontinue the air mail service because the great expense did not warrant the continuation," the pilot said.

"The pilots who were then flying the mail decided to show the official that a continuous coast to coast flight was possible even if war planes were the only equipment available," he continued.

"On the first night flight, Feb. 22, 1921, my division was from North Platte to Omaha. I flew the 275 miles guided by bonfires at automobile headlights. When I arrived at Omaha, the officials announced the flight had been canceled and the relief pilot had left the field."

Determined to show the government officials that the night flight was possible, he obtained permission to continue to Chicago. When he arrived over Des Moines, a heavy fog closed in, and rain began to fall. He arrived over Iowa City with seven minutes of gas left in his tanks.

After circling the town, he saw the flare burning, took a chance on that being the airport and made a landing in the dark. He refueled his plane and took off for Chicago. From there another pilot carried the mail east.

With the transfer of the air mail service to private operators in 1926, Knight remarked that a new responsibility was placed upon the pilots—passengers. He said, "before we began carrying passengers, each flight was a contest: to return to a base field was a disgrace, and we would rather wreck a plane trying to get the mail through, but with passengers we could not attempt such flights."

After the beginning of passenger carrying, one improvement has followed another until now blind flying has been developed to such an extent that many pilots at the Boeing Flying school have flown more than a hundred hours in a hooded plane including landing and taking off, he reported.

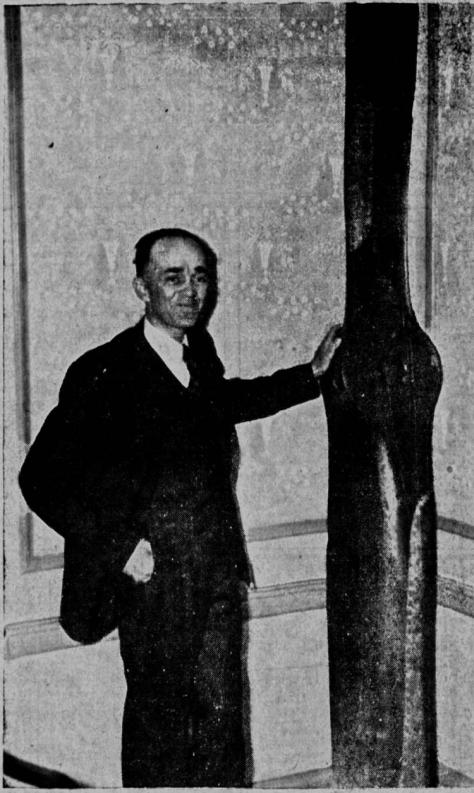

Knight maintained that today flying is only 6 per cent below the safest form of transportation, and predicted that by 1940 air travel would be from 6 to 12 per cent safer than any other form of transportation.

He attributed this high safety record to the development of the radio beam, hermetically sealed cabins which allow flying to high altitudes, two-way radio maintained by three radios in each plane and the exactness of the requirements for the pilots.

Giving the audience a preview of the equipment which will be put in the service within the next year, Knight described the DC-4, a 42-passenger, four-motored Douglas plane, and the 74-passenger Boeing flying boat. The Douglas has a cruising range sufficient to travel from the west coast to Chicago with an ample gas reserve, and the Boeing will fly from Los Angeles to New York non-stop, he added.

Attorney William R. Hart, who served as toastmaster for the program, said that the dinner was the first of a series of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce has planned for the coming year. He said the meetings will be held once each month.

Knight Meets Flight Companion

Capt. Jack Knight, United Air Lines' veteran pilot who has flown 2,500,000 miles in 18,300 hours in the air, is shown above with the propeller from the De-Havilland plane which he landed on Walter Smith field, the Iowa City airport, the night of Feb. 22, 1921. This was the first night air mail service to Iowa City, and was a stop on the first continuous transcontinental air mail service. Knight originally was scheduled to fly only the division from North Platte to Omaha. In the face of adverse flying conditions, he continued east from Omaha, stopped at Iowa City and landed again in Chicago. He was guided along his route by automobile headlights and bonfires built by the chambers of commerce of the cities on his route. The propeller was given to the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce soon after the completion of the flight.
