Great Britain Backs France Against Italian Imperialism

Fascist Drive Disturbs New British Policy

New Friction May Wreck Chamberlain's Planned Rome Visit

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Great Britain backed France today by deciding on diplomatic action to block Italian designs on Tunisia, French African protectorate.

The fascist challenge to French control of Tunisia has threatened to deliver a final blow to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's European appeasement policy, already weakened by Germany's anti-Semitic campaign.

The Tunisian development led Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax to order immediate strong representations at the Italian foreign office.

With vital English and French strategic interests in the Mediterranean involved, Lord Halifax, reliable quarters said, ordered Britain's ambassador to Rome, the Earl of Perth, to take a "firm stand" against Italy's latest anti-French drive.

This drive threatened to wreck Chamberlain's projected visit to Rome, first announced Monday, the trip was set today for Jan. 11 to 14. The foreign office announced the date, however, amid conjecture that Chamberlain might not go at all as a result of the French-Italian friction.

Situation Unsettled

The situation still was far from settled and there were some who felt the fast-changing European scene might yet shift enough to force a reconsideration of the visit. Lord Halifax is to accompany the prime minister.

Britain decided on the Rome representations in order to reinforce the request of the French ambassador in Rome, Andre Francois-Poncet, for an explanation of the Italian clamor over Tunisia.

The foreign office made its decision after it had been informed officially that France could not tolerate interference in Tunisia or any other territory.

The issue cropped up suddenly Wednesday when deputies of the Italian chamber shouted "Tunisia, Tunisia!" in unison after an address by Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. The demonstration was led by Achille Starace, secretary-general of the fascist party.

The controlled Italian press followed with attacks upon France. The demonstration went without rebuke by the Italian government.

Aim Not Clear

The Italian aim has not been stated exactly and it was not clear whether the fascists are calling for cession of Tunisia or simply for increased Italian rights.

Lord Perth's instructions apparently reached him too late for action when he called upon Count Ciano today but the ambassador was to take the first opportunity of voicing London's views.

France meanwhile maintained a tight military and civilian grip on her North African protectorate. Only a month ago French army leaders traveled through Tunisia inspecting defenses and civil authorities have been routing out remnants of a secret nationalist organization which it was feared Italy might use to weaken French rule.

Dickson, Public
Enemy, Sighted
Near Waterloo

WATERLOO, Dec. 3 (AP)—Reports that Benny Dickson, currently branded No. 1 outlaw of the nation, and his blonde wife had been sighted on eastern outskirts of Waterloo late Saturday afternoon set police and state highway patrolmen scouring the city and surrounding area for a small coupe bearing Missouri license plates 420-592.

RESUMES DUTIES

Pope Receives Prelates In Audience

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Pope Pius resumed his regular heavy schedule of audiences today with little evidence of the illness which caused fears for his life a week ago. Apparently he has returned to normal health.

Tonight the pontiff received six prelates in private audiences and 1,150 other persons in a public audience.

The Pope spoke at the public audience of the coming Christmas and invoked "those infinite blessings" of which he said he himself still felt "the beneficial effects and graces brought to earth by the holy child."

Charges T.V.A. Loses Money

Morgan Says Board Gives Power Away 'In Red Millions'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Arthur E. Morgan, ousted by President Roosevelt from the chairmanship of the Tennessee Valley authority, told a congressional committee today the TVA was "giving power away" and was about $9,500,000 in the red for its first five years of operation.

The tall, grey-haired executive thumbed through voluminous documents for data to support his contention that the present TVA board had made erroneous cost allocations, had adopted a policy "dangerous" to flood control, and had demonstrated a "lack of responsibility."

Raising a long, bony hand to emphasize his points, the veteran engineer testified before the special committee investigating the government agency. He traced through a maze of complicated TVA accounts and then asserted: "The TVA is serving as a holding and an operating company to the so-called 'yardstick' community to which it provides power."

It sets up books and performs all the services of a private holding or operating company.

"They (the TVA board) are giving power away. I say that flatly—they are giving power away."

Cudahy Rejects Union Offers

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Harry Washburn, president of the CIO union at the Cudahy packing plant here, announced tonight that the union would meet Tuesday to consider what further action it might take in connection with its demands for exclusive bargaining rights and a closed shop.

Officials of the company today, after a two-hour conference attended by 30 representatives of the Cudahy local, rejected the closed shop and declined to recognize the union as the bargaining agency for all employees, pending a decision now in the hands of the National Labor Relations board.

H. O. Grady, manager, and Ray English, assistant superintendent, announced the company's reply to the union demands. The officials made no mention of an additional demand of the union, that of re-employing Washburn who was discharged several months ago for "insubordination."

The union has alleged that the discharge was for union activity. Hearings on recognition of the union as the bargaining group and reinstatement of Washburn were held last spring before a National Labor Relations board representative. The decision was in favor of the union and Washburn.

The Cudahy company appealed to the National Labor Relations board and that appeal now is pending.

3,000 Crewmen Discharged By French Gov't.

Liner's Operations Suspended; Strike Arbitration Sought

PARIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—The French government tonight laid up the liner Normandie and discharged its 3,000 crewmen and other employees in a move to break a strike of about 5,000 maritime workers at Le Havre.

Louis de Chappedelaine, minister of merchant marine, ordered discharge of the crew members who engaged in a sympathy strike with 60 of their fellow workers discharged for joining Wednesday's unsuccessful general strike.

The government earlier requisitioned the workers, placing them under military control. This drastic step failed to budge the strikers.

Two thousand other crewmen of the liners Paris and Il de France, which, like the Normandie, are operated by the French line, joined the strike. These workers, however, were on leave from their vessels which were being reconditioned.

French line officials said the Normandie's operations were suspended only temporarily while the government sought to arbitrate between the company and the strikers.

The officials said they had received information from the merchant marine ministry which indicated a settlement which would permit the large liner to sail, possibly late tomorrow or Monday. She was to have sailed for New York this afternoon.

Roosevelt Ends Vacation; Will Deliver Speech

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt, tanned and rested from two weeks of outdoor life, got ready today to return to Washington via Chapel Hill, N. C., where he will deliver a formal address Monday afternoon.

His last week day at this colony of infantile paralysis patients was spent mostly in work on that speech, to be made about 3:30 p.m. (CST) before a non-partisan University of North Carolina student forum known as the Carolina political union.

He found time, however, to have another talk with Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, presumably on new relief appropriations, and receive a few local friends.

The final cast of more than 100 characters for "The Blue Bird" was announced last night by Prof. Edward C. Mabie, director. "The Blue Bird," by Maurice Maeterlinck, will be presented by University theater Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. Matinees will be Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Tom Phillips of Albia has the leading male role in the play, that of Tyltyl. The part of Tyltyl's sister, Mytyl, is double cast, with Lorraine Pressler, A3 of River Mines, Mo., and Edith Leahy, A4 of Port Washington, N. Y., both playing in that role.

Other characters follow: Dorothea Carlson, G of Battle Creek, as the Fairy Berylune; Robley Evans, A1 of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, as Tyl, the Dog; Paul Robinson, A4 of Portland, Ore., as Tylette, the Cat; Paul Fuller, A3 of Muscatine, as Bread; Elmo Martz, A1 of Grand River, as Fire; Peggy Reagan A3 of Port Arthur, Tex., as Water; Lois Larson, A3 of Rockford, Ill., as Sugar.

Convicted Spies Leave Court—Without Smiles

During the trial they were often smiling, but their smiles were not evident as Johanna Hofmann (right); Erich Glaser (left), handcuffed to third defendant, Otto Voss, left court in New York City after they were convicted as Nazi spies. Johanna and Voss face twenty-year terms. Jury recommended mercy for Glaser.

Franco-Italian Crisis Arises

Economic Low Predicted By L. Henderson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—A prediction that the nation is in for a period of economic stagnation and decline "if we go on as we are," came today from Leon Henderson, secretary of the government's temporary national economic committee.

"We are at a strategic point in our economy," the blunt-spoken economist told the committee. "If we go on as we are, we are in for stagnation and decline. One of the interesting observations of recent years is the inability of the system to maintain itself at any level it has attained. We do not stop. We either go forward or back."

He exhibited charts to show a constant increase in the national income from 1850 to 1929 and a general downward trend since then; and he cited his own unofficial estimate of increasing unemployment in the latter period as evidence of a slowing up in the economic machine.

While there were little more than 1,000,000 unemployed in the big prosperity year, he estimated, there were 10,569,000 jobless in October this year. This figure compared with 14,317,000 in March, 1933; a low for the depression of 7,412,000 in July, 1937, and 11,793,000 last February.

Three Killed
By Anti-Semitic
Rumania Corp

BUCHAREST, Dec. 3 (AP)—Three confessed terrorist prisoners were shot and killed today by their guards in Rumania's quick-triggered campaign to wipe out the fascist-patterned, anti-Semitic iron guard.

The shooting of three assassins at Cluj brought to 17 the number of prisoners disposed of in that fashion within four days—all killed, officials said, when they attempted escape.

Last Wednesday Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, convicted of treason as the leader of the iron guard, and 13 sub-leaders were shot down when, it was said, they tried to flee while being transferred from Rumnik-Sarat prison to Bucharest for questioning.

It was disclosed, meanwhile, that the German minister to Bucharest, Dr. Fabricius, was ordered to Berlin yesterday to report on the Rumanian internal situation.

(In Germany, the Nazi press, silent since the slaying of Codreanu, took the view in extensive comment that the iron guard leader was murdered in cold blood and blamed Jews for the slaying. Newspapers rejected the explanation that he and his sub-leaders were shot while attempting to escape.)

2-Year-Old Case Over Value Of Check Dropped

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—An indictment charging Mrs. Helen Short, 40, with raising a $150 check to 150,000 was dismissed today because George Wallace, Los Angeles banker, decided not to prosecute the two-year-old case, outgrowth of an Iowa snowstorm.

There was a decided difference of opinion on the matter when Mrs. Short, a comely widow, was arrested in May, 1936.

Wallace contended he gave her a $150 check as a loan to get her car out of a snowdrift in Iowa.

She said the check was genuine and was raised with Wallace's help as a pledge of the banker's promise to wed her.

A New York bank refused to cash the check on demand and notified Wallace and police.

Hull Ponders
German Trade

ABOARD THE S. S. SANTA CLARA, EN ROUTE TO LIMA, PERU, Dec. 3 (AP)—Central America, first portion of Latin America reached by the United States delegation to the Pan American conference, has given Secretary Hull and other delegates reason to ponder the growth of German trade influence.

Delegates have found that since 1933, when Adolf Hitler came to power, German exports to Central America have more than quadrupled.

Experts with the delegation who have examined the commercial situation in Central America find Germany striving hard to cut into the United States' share of trade. But American merchants so far are holding their position and Germany's gains are at the expense of other nations, particularly Great Britain.

The six republics comprising Central America have been regarded traditionally as part of Uncle Sam's own backyard.

American trade advisors with the delegation admit Germany's competition will be stronger in 1939 when she reorganizes her export and import structure following her absorption of Austria and the Sudetenland.

Philbert Brings Out Fire Dept.
To Play Game

OMAHA, Dec. 3 (AP)—This is the story of a philandering pheasant whose name just possibly may be Philbert.

Philbert broke out of his pen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Wilson here and started his one man tour of the city. He had a big time. In fact, it took the fire department and its truck ladder to bring Philbert down to earth again.

Philbert flopped away to freedom Wednesday and for two days hopped out of reach of all his would be captors. Some got close enough to pluck a tail feather, but Philbert didn't seem to mind. He just kept playing hide and seek from tree top to house top and back.

Last night firemen captured the weary bird—so tired he seemed unable to fly. He might have had trouble flying anyhow, for all his tail feathers were gone.

Capital's West Side Forbidden to Jews

G. M. Strike Protested

Labor Reconciliation Demanded; Asserts Violation of Treaty

DETROIT, Dec. 3 (AP)—General Motors corporation sent a "demand" to the CIO United Automobile Workers tonight for immediate cancellation of a strike in Fisher Body Plant No. 1 at Flint, Mich., asserting that the union had violated its agreement with the corporation by authorizing the walkout.

Failure to obtain an early settlement of the strike might cause 20,000 General Motors workers to be idle next week.

The cancellation demand was contained in a telegram sent by C. E. Wilson, General Motors vice-president, to Homer Martin, international president of the UAW, a few hours after Martin had announced that the strike was "duly authorized" and denied that it violated the UAW-GM agreement.

Substitution of a day-work basis of pay for piecework in one department of the Fisher plant is the major issue in the strike, which already has affected 6,400 Fisher employes and 3,000 workers on the final assembly line of General Motors' Buick division plant at Flint. General Motors officials said the strike, if prolonged, would close the entire Buick factory, which employs nearly 14,000 men. The Fisher plant supplies automobile bodies for Buick.

Non-Aryans To Lose Permits
For Driving

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, Dec. 3 (AP)—Berlin officially restricted Jews today with an approach to Ghetto conditions.

The capital's police chief, Count Wolf Hendrick Von Helldorf, gave the signal for inauguration of a system of banned streets, forbidden areas and restricted living quarters for German Jews which undoubtedly will be followed by other cities.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels on Nov. 15, five days after the current anti-Semitic drive started, had pledged there would be no ghetto but sharpest division.

Coincidental with the Berlin police chief's action was a decree by the chief of all German police, Heinrich Himmler, withdrawing drivers' licenses and automobile and motorcycle permits immediately from all German Jews.

His order asserted the assassination of Ernst vom Rath, secretary in the German embassy in Paris, by the young Polish Jew Herschel Grynszpan, showed that Jews were "undependable and unsuited to keeping or driving motorized vehicles."

German Justice

DNB, the official news agency, commented that "this preventive measure against Jewish arrogance gives an expression of the healthy sense of justice of the German people."

They may not attend the movies or theaters. To enter a forbidden area may mean a $60 fine or six weeks in jail.

Helldorf said, "Jews living in or next to the main streets and representative boulevards must expect that in the immediate future the Jewish ban will be extended also to these streets."

Must Move

He further suggested Jews find rooms in central and north-side streets, already inhabited mostly by Jews. He named Kuenz, Lintien and Grenadier streets particularly.

To Berlin residents these names connote cheap liquor houses, criminals' hideouts, tawdry pawnshops, second-hand clothing stores and squalid tenements of Jewish immigrants from eastern Europe. They lie in the section known as the "Scheunenviertel"—a quarter of squalor and riff-raff.

Jews could not give figures about the distribution of Jewish homes in Berlin but they agreed that Berlin's educated, well-to-do Jews live mostly on the west side whence they will be banned.

Ferdinand And Il Duce

SINCE THE SUBJECT of entertainment's come up, we've been wondering some time about Ferdinand the Bull and Mr. Mussolini. As far as we know Il Duce hasn't ruled about Ferdinand yet, but he will. To us Ferdinand, indeed, seems a very subservient animal, especially for the fascist way.

Consider his character? Ferdinand utterly lacks ambition; when the other little bulls are romping and playing, Ferdinand merely stirs under his cork tree, thinking and dreaming (especially dreaming).

And when the time came to prepare for the bull fight in Barcelona, what did Ferdinand do? Did he fight and scratch like the other bulls in the field? Did he try appear ferocious?

Not Ferdinand. To the contrary, he continued to sit under his cork tree, just dreaming. UNTIL he sat on a bee. Then they took him to Barcelona to enter the bull fight. Here thought the promoters, is an ambitious fighting young bull.

But they were wrong. In the arena what, pray, did Ferdinand do? He just sat in the center and smelled the ladies' flowers. He simply refused to be led into a fight.

Poor Ferdinand. They took him back to his field and his mother and his cork tree, and for all we know he's there yet, thinking, dreaming (especially dreaming), while the other little bulls are killing and being killed in the arena.

But not Ferdinand. According to Walt Disney's ending, he is "very happy."

As we say it's a dangerous movie. We think Mussolini'll ban it. For the last part if nothing else.

The candid camera has achieved some wonderful work, but we won't believe it's 100 per cent candid until we see a picture of a debutante frowning.

If children would follow the preaching of their elders, rather than example, they might be able to cross the street with greater safety.

More than 3,500,000 persons in the United States can't write. The rest of us can look forward to not hearing their diaries read in breach of promise suits.

Internship For College Graduates?

THANKSGIVING is behind us. On Iowa City streets wreaths and lights herald another Christmas season. For most of us this thought affords pleasant contemplation.

Perhaps what is needed is a station that could be made to serve as kind of Bug House Square of the Air, specially dedicated to the uses of soap-boxers, zealous, rabble-rousers and crackpots, as well as presumably sincere patriots who, like Father Coughlin, have scruples about their constitutional guaranties.

But how are we to invent such a thing? No private person or corporation could possibly pay the lawsuit charges. Only the government would serve, and a government radio station would be so jammed with partisan propaganda that there would be no time left for the soap-boxers. It's too bad, but there just doesn't seem to be any way out. "Go hire a hall" is still the classic advice.

—Chicago Daily News

democratic training incomplete until we have undergone a fifth year of learning how to wear down shoe leather, run up postage expenses and wear out business directories in search of some method whereby we can put what knowledge we have absorbed in the university to a practical use.

What can we do about it? Faced with this problem, the American Association of University Women last summer made an interesting experiment.

Seventeen graduates from eastern women's colleges were selected on the basis of scholastic standing, campus activity records, personal appearance, individual earnestness and adaptability. These seventeen women were placed with business firms on a strictly "internship" basis—either no salary was paid them or the salary was purely nominal.

In reality the experiment was a two month's post-graduate course in "jobs and business"—getting a job, making a job and keeping a job. Regular working hours were kept. The girls were subject to discharge. They had to abide by all rules generally applicable to employees. . . . and as internes, they were pushed from one job to another on the theory they were learners and not employees.

In night classrooms, these women "business internes" were quizzed on telephone conversation, voice, poise and manners. They received grades in grooming, in body balance and carriage, in social skills, in getting along with people. They were given lectures on their work.

At the end of the two month's period, 14 of the 17 were given jobs, incomes and careers.

It is true, of course, that the women and employers were hand-picked. These cases, therefore, may have been exceptional. It is further true that some of them may have gotten jobs even without this supplementary "business interne" training. But it still remains that the average college graduate spends much more than the two months spent by these women before he finds his life career.

Is it possible that the solution of the college graduate employment problem lies in the direction of such "business internships"? In the face of the growing hopelessness of the task facing university graduates, it seems to us that the plan is worth a trial. Even a partial solution would be better than none.

Mrs. Roosevelt completed her Christmas shopping before Thanksgiving. The first lady probably is busy this week picking out valentines.

FREE SPEECH ON THE AIR

Father Coughlin's refusal to accede to one of the most rigidly enforced rules of the radio industry has helped demonstrate a fact that has been obscure to a great many Americans.

This is the fact that there is really no such thing as free speech on the air, and never can be under the existing setup.

Some two dozen stations have shut their facilities to the radio priest because he refuses to submit copies of his "script" in advance of his broadcasts. The Detroit cleric argues that he sees no reason why his manuscripts should be censored by anyone other than his immediate religious superior, the bishop of Detroit.

The right of free speech, as guaranteed by the American Bill of Rights and interpreted in the courts, certainly does not tolerate any prior abridgment or censorship of the remarks of a speaker.

Yet the radio industry's viewpoint is perfectly understandable. Should a speaker make damaging and libelous statements on the air, the station may be held financially accountable for the damages. In its own defense, a radio station must demand to see the script, and if necessary delete the libel, before it is aired. Strictly speaking, there can be no such thing as free speech on the radio, according to the classic concept suggested in Voltaire's remarks to Helvetius.

Perhaps what is needed is a station that could be made to serve as kind of Bug House Square of the Air, specially dedicated to the uses of soap-boxers, zealous, rabble-rousers and crackpots, as well as presumably sincere patriots who, like Father Coughlin, have scruples about their constitutional guaranties.

But how are we to invent such a thing? No private person or corporation could possibly pay the lawsuit charges. Only the government would serve, and a government radio station would be so jammed with partisan propaganda that there would be no time left for the soap-boxers. It's too bad, but there just doesn't seem to be any way out. "Go hire a hall" is still the classic advice.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

PRIVATE PAPERS OF AN EX-CITY EDITOR

A murky Saturday afternoon. . . . An hour more, and the deadline will be on him. . . . On a day like this, he thinks, there should be a million subjects to think about, write about. . . .

The town is like an ugly room with a too-small light bulb. . . . The sky is empty and cold. . . . He looks out the window, and fraternity pledges are raking yards and laughing; inside it is silent, still, unpromising. . . .

He could clean up the private desk. . . . The papers are there for two nearly consecutive years, 500 days of papers that said "Merle Miller, city editor."

Now that he had them all out, what could he do with them? . . . Sort them? . . . There was none he could throw away; each represented a rather special day of his life; no two were the same. . . . That is the way with newspapers.

Lots of recollections. . . . Remember that first day in June, when three boys walked along a railroad track—until the train came along. . . . And his discovering, on his first real assignment, that there'd been a fourth boy who'd escaped.

Talking with him, writing the story, "I was walking with my three companions"

The first time he'd seen a dead man. . . . They pulled him out of the river after two days, and he was dead all right. . . .

There'd been many since then, dead men and wounded ones. . . . Suicides and accidents and a murder. . . .

Those were the headlines, but there were simpler, humaner stories too. . . . The men he'd met, the Roscoe Turners, the John Erskines, the Mark Sullivans, the Linton Wells. . . . Simple men like anyone else, but great ones.

The police chief who wouldn't talk. . . . He quoted his words verbatim. . . . They still occasionally said, "I ain't puttin' nothin' out" but only in fun now. . . .

And letters, each of them a different story, each in a different ink, on different stationery. . . . "You saved my job by not printing my name in that last of intoxications. I'll never have to ask you again."

But there had been other occasions, and the job hadn't been saved. . . .

Another, "PLEASE don't print my son's name. . . . I don't know what I'd do if his father found out."

And the people. . . . The taxi drivers, the policemen, the nurses, the waitresses, the hundred and more little men and women who helped him on his "scops."

Some had written in. . . . "I have been let out of my job, and I am only 35. . . . Isn't that news enough for your stinking paper. . . . WHY don't you print the NEWS?"

Knowing that when you wanted to print it, that wasn't the way. . . . You pretended to know more than you did, and you found out more than you pretended. . . .

Hearing a lady juror remark, "But I don't see how he could"

Chinese Women Happy To Get Ragged Silks

HONG KONG (AP)—Scores of Chinese peasant women refugees gathered while large boxes of clothing sent by charity organizations from America were opened. The foreigners in charge dug in and brought out a profusion of silk undergarments. They brought out silk panties, silk step-ins, silk stockings, all worn, or torn, but unmistakably silk, and very fancy. The refugee women gasped, gurgled, and rushed for the clothes. For the first time in their lives, and through the medium of war, they are wearing silk next to the skin, although cotton or wool might be better, considering winter is coming.

TUNING IN

By Loren Hickerson

CLARK GABLE . . . whose appearance on "Silver Theater" last year was a highlight of the series, has been signed to headline the broadcast over the Columbia network at 5 o'clock tonight.

At Gable's request, Paula Winslow, versatile radio actress who played opposite him last season, has been engaged as his leading lady again this year.

The story, "Danger Lights," is based on a Collier's story by Grover Jones, dealing with a veteran railroad's indifferent son (Gable) and a girl (Miss Winslow.) True Boardman, who wrote the original "Silver Theater" story for Gable a year ago, worked with the radio adaptation of tonight's play.

Miss Winslow, whose work opposite Gable in "Detour to Love" last season was considered by Director Conrad Naezel to be the outstanding supporting performance in the series, is a radio veteran although her appearance belies it.

"They Didn't Believe Me" . . . from the score of "The Girl From Utah" will be sung by Felix Knight, brilliant young tenor, when he appears with Marie Louise Queveli, soprano, and Leonard Joy, conductor, during a presentation of excerpts from an RCA-Victor album of Jerome Kern music on the Magic Key, headlining feature of every Sunday, at 1 o'clock today over the Blue network of NBC.

Miss Queveli will sing "Why Was I Born" from "Sweet Adeline" and Leonard Joy's orchestra will present several other numbers from those two shows.

Maria Caniglia, Metropolitan soprano, Frank Black and Clifton Fadiman, the "Information Please" showman, will also star.

JACK BENNY'S GANG . . . will keep a shopping date with a bargain basement Santa on the broadcast from Radio City over the NBC-Red network at 6 o'clock tonight.

Accompanying Jack on his junket will be Mary Livingstone, Kenney Baker, Don Wilson, Phil Harris and Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, as well as the Benny scrippers.

All the way to New York, Jack practiced climbing in and out of an upper berth without a ladder

Professor Sedgwick of the department of zoology at Yale, used to tell the story of a young woman student who was very much surprised at all the things she found in an earthworm.

"What did you expect to find?" the professor asked. "Oh!" she answered, "I thought it would be all worm."

We would be all worm were it not for our six senses that flood us with information about the outside world. We are what they make us, plus a little nervous reaction of our own to such stimuli.

They are quite individual in nature. Probably no two eyes are alike, seeing things in exactly the same colors and proportions. We sometimes find two painters who are somewhat alike but no two who are exactly alike. So the world must look different to all of us.

Strange World . . . When by some accident a person is deprived of one or more of his senses, it becomes a strange world. I have always felt from hearing Helen Keller speak that her world, for all the things that have been said in wonderment at her, is a totally different world from the real world's image of a tree is that the trunk is like a human torso and the arms and leaves are like clapping hands. The flowers are square.

Blind people and deaf people develop all sorts of compensations and science does not understand just how all these are accomplished. A blind person can walk across a room and tell when he passes through a sunbeam. This can be explained, of course, on the basis of feeling of warmth, but how can it be explained how blind children in a park could tell the colors of different flowers? Small probably come to the rescue. But another explanation has been discovered. Sometimes a child has to feel a daisy to tell whether it is white or yellow. The petals differ in stiffness, and texture.

Circus Rider Blind . . . A circus rider who leaped with her horse from a platform into a tank of water continued to do so after she became blind, and jumped off the horse at just the right moment. When asked to explain it, she said she felt the muscles of the horse tense as it neared the water.

From these instances, which I pull from Dr. E. E. Fessenden's very interesting article in the American Weekly, one gathers that touch is more important either than sound or smell in coming to the rescue of the blind. And there is, fortunately, one sense that we never lose—the sense of touch.

But we may have some other way of knowing about the external world, something that Dr. Joseph B. Rhine, of Duke university, calls extra-sensory perception. The highly-sensitive blind man knows things that cannot be explained on the basis of his feeling or his hearing or his smell. A deck of cards with certain symbols on them will be guessed over and over even though no touch is involved. We perhaps all employ this extra-sensory perception more than we think.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The golden re-out "Dracula" in combination with ports are still jingling in, but already Frank and Drac, the horror showman's favorite twins of '38. Frank and Drac are Universal's pet names for "Frankenstein" and "Dracula," two seven-year-old movies which, alone of the year's crop of revivals, have done sensational business—and plunged the studios into a new cycle of horror.

Who started it? The studio, hearing claims from exhibitors in various parts of the country, maintains discreet silence, merely goats over a surprise bonanza with which it had nothing to do. The local U exchange throws the credit for the double-horror show to Emil Uman—of a Beverly Hills theater.

They say that Uman, anyway, was the first to put the idea into practice, thus starting an audience rush which, in many towns, left theater managers happily cleaning up—first, at the box-office, and then, amid the wreckage of their theaters mobbed by horror-hungry hordes.

It began, really, with the summer's general shortage of film product which led to widespread re-issues of old films. The U put out "Dracula" in combination with "Lady Tubbs," and "Frankenstein" was offered with "Love Before Breakfast." Uman—if he was first—preferred his horror in large doses, offered Frank and Drac together for a four-day run which lasted 24 days all day and most of the night. The experience related via trade journals put Frank and Drac in a class by themselves, their earnings overshadowing those of many newer pictures. The studio, not unprepared, sent new prints by the dozen, sent them forth on a percentage basis.

And then— It seems to have dawned on somebody that what the public wanted, after all, was horror. Confronted with the playfully murderous carvings of two movie monsters, the public—at least momentarily—could forget about War and Dictators.

Perhaps the reasoning was not so direct. Perhaps it could be boiled down to "Horror's making money this year, hm-m-m!" So again there's gold in them thar hills, and Hollywood is bogeyman-conscious. Latest entry: "Miracles for Sale," in which Henry Hull (once U's "Werewolf of London") will be directed by Ted Browning, Metro's Master of Shock and Spook.

A New Yorker at Large

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—You'll recall, of course, the story about the devil-hooper with the trained seal who was out of work so long that when he finally did get a job the seal had forgotten how to swim—and drowned.

Now comes Al Jolson with this anecdote of the prizefight manager who sat across the table from him at a restaurant the other night.

"How's tricks?" enthused Jolson, shaking hands, "how's the fight game treating you these days?" "Business is so bad," wailed the guy, "that when my man is taking a terrific beating I have to throw in a PAPER towel!"

Toscanini is noted for his fits of temperment, but there are moments when he gives voice to utterances that would do credit to a diplomat.

There is the case of Emanuel Feuerman, the cellist who gave a concert at Zurich one night—and regretted it for 12 years. Just before he went on a confere whispered that Toscanini was in the house, and this intelligence so disturbed the cellist that he gave a very shoddy performance.

Indeed, he was so chagrined that he rushed from the concert hall without going out front to meet the maestro.

Recently they met in New York and Emanuel asked Toscanini: "Do you remember that terrible exhibition I gave in Zurich? I played badly that night."

"No," replied Toscanini, "I have heard you on the air and admired you, but I never heard you play in concert." Whereupon the cellist described the occasion and insisted on refreshing the maestro's memory. Then Toscanini interrupted: "I still say I have never heard you play in concert. I remember hearing a very bad cellist in Zurich 12 years ago, but I never heard you play."

Jim Moran, the super-salesman who went to Alaska and sold refrigerators to the Eskimos, is in New York and plans to remain here for a few days. But he didn't unfurl any new and startling ideas to the boys at luncheon. At that, he doesn't need any new ideas at the present, for his laurels gained in the north and in Hollywood are still green enough. Having disposed of those refrigerators, Mr. Moran then captured a herd of Arctic fleas and sold them to Hollywood—claiming that fleas used to glacial light could work under klieg light, better than domestic fleas. Hollywood paid him $750 for his polar fleas. That, honey-bunch, is salesmanship. New York varied its turkey dinner prices greatly in Thanksgiving. The better known restaurants ranged between $1.75 and $2.50. But there was one place on 3rd avenue that offered an eight course dinner for 40 cents and this included a glass of beer.

 LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (AP)—Notre Dame came tumbling off football's highest peak today, knocked down for the first time this year by Southern California, the Rose Bowl hopes of the far west, in a savage game that ended in a 13-0 victory for the Trojans before a record crowd of 101,000.

Beaten twice this year but determined to carry no more defeats into the Rose Bowl against Duke Jan. 2, the Warriors of Troy upset the Notre Dame hopes in a two lightning-like thrusts that spelled gloom for the Irish.

Coach Howard Jones' eleven scored the first touchdown in the fading moments of the first half after the Irish had gambled for a first down in midfield and lost and hammered the Notre Dame defense 35 yards after recovering a fumble late in the fourth period.

Troy Adamant
 It was the 13th annual struggle between these two inter-sectional foes, and the courageous lads from South Bend went into the game on the crest of eight victorious games. Minnesota, Northwestern, Army, Navy and all the others on one of the toughest schedules in the land had surrendered to the Irish forces, but Troy refused to bend.

Packed in the coliseum was the biggest Los Angeles crowd of the colorful Notre Dame-U. S. C. series. It rivaled the huge throng that saw the game in Chicago in 1929.

Miss Opportunities
 Keyed up to a pitch of excitement, both elevens missed scoring opportunities in the first part of the battle. Then came another opportunity for the so-called Notre Dame opportunists. But Bob Saggau, the splendid Irish sophomore halfback star, who tried to make three yards on fourth down, missed by one yard on the Irish 38.

The Trojans took the ball and Ollie Day, a reserve, trotted into the S. C. backfield. Two plays later, with the ball on the 37, Day struck a pass into the arms of Al Krueger, hard-socking sophomore end. He took it on the six and fell across the line with a Notre Dame tackler, apparently Zontini, clutching his ankles. Phil Gaspar missed the conversion and 35 seconds later the half ended.

The Irish came out battling after the rest, but so did the Trojans. They were without their star quarterback, Grenville Lansdel, who left the game in the first quarter with a twisted ankle, but Day, Mickey Anderson, Jack Banta, Jimmy Jones and a few other lesser lights were carrying on the battle.

The second break for S. C. came with about 10 minutes of the fourth period left. Joe Piepul fumbled and Jimmy Jones came up with the ball for Troy on the Irish 35.

Ten plays—crash!—Troy's second touchdown. Gaspar's conversion was successful this time, and there was the score, 13-0.

**★ ★ ★
 Notre Dame wasn't through trying, however. Saggau, after the kickoff, reeled off 21, Tonelli added up several sixes, Saggau passed 13 yards to Steve Sitko, and Notre Dame reached the Trojan 14, first down. Two passes fell incomplete as the Trojan ends piled in on Saggau and the third heave was intercepted by Bob Peoples, sub fullback, who ran it back 29 yards. It was the Irish's last chance.

Irish Outgain
 The Irish outgained the Trojans on punting plays, 145 yards to 98, but the combined passing and running of the Trojan team brought the edge to Troy by 151 yards to 143.

In the first period the Irish drove from midfield to the Trojan 22, but lost the ball on downs as the Trojan aerial defense swamped the Irish passers.

**★ ★ ★
Morrison Fumbles
 Early in the second quarter Notre Dame's Morrison fumbled, and Gaspar got the ball on the Irish 21, but two plays later the Trojans fumbled, and Morrison recovered.

Rocking back and forth, Troy steamed up a drive of 35 yards that carried to the Irish 16, but Gaspar's try for a field goal from the 25 was wide.

The result left Notre Dame, winner of seven games in the series, U. S. C. five, with one tied. Notre Dame's first chance in eight years for an undefeated, untied season was stopped by Troy's best team in five years.

Tennessee's Volunteers Crush Mississippi 47-0; Stay Unbeaten

Six Backs Score For Volunteers, George Cafego Stars

By HARRY SNYDER
 MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 3 (AP)—The power valve on the University of Tennessee gridiron machine remained wide open today and the Orange Bowl selection roared to a 47-0 triumph over the hapless Mississippi Rebel team before 20,000 fans.

It was the Volunteers' tenth consecutive victory of the season.

Six different ball carriers accounted for the touchdowns and the experts were chattering by half-time that "anybody" could score behind the blocking afforded by the Orange-clad forwards.

The Rebels, weakened by the absence of their injury-ridden, All-America halfback, Parker Hall, much of the game, were completely bewildered by the potent offensive tactics of the victors.

George (Bad News) Cafego, hailed as the Vols' No. 1 back, scored only one touchdown, climaxing a 64-yard drive, but spectacularly contributed to the other touchdowns.

He turned in a major share of the 340 yards amassed by the Vols in their running game. Volunteer defenses held Mississippi's ground-gaining to 56 yards.

The Vols opened their first offensive with Cafego flipping two long ones for sizeable gains and then going over himself for the one. His kick from placement was good, and it was Tennessee all the way thereafter.

In the third, Coffman contributed a 52-yard touchdown run down the sideline and on the first play after Mississippi received the kick-off, Wyatt snagged a Rebel pass and streaked 34 yards for another score. Then Buist Warren added insult to injury by rambling 85 yards from his 15 for a touchdown behind peerless blocking.

Sooners Crush Cougar Eleven By 28-0 Score

Counter Three Times In Third Period, Jennings Injured

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
 NORMAN, Okla., Dec. 3 (AP)—Oklahoma's Sooners, gridiron champions of the Big Six, crushed Washington State's Cougars, 28 to 0, here today with a last-half surge that carried them to the end of an all-victorious season and ran their victory string to 14 in a row.

A crowd estimated at 15,000 fans watched the Sooners score three touchdowns in the third period after drilling deep into enemy territory time after time without finding the double stripe in a scoreless first half.

By handing the Cougars their worst beating of the season, the Sooners wrote the final figures into a season's record of 10 wins to carry against undefeated Tennessee in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., Jan. 2.

Hugh McCullough, playing his last game on his home field, scored two touchdowns and Bob Seymour, hard-running halfback, the other in the third period splurge.

Wind Helps Sooners
 The wind helped the Sooners on their first scoring thrust. McCullough punted over the goal line and a penalty left the Cougars on their own three yard line. Dick Emerson punted from deep in the end zone and the strong wind carried the ball out at the five.

Three plays later, McCullough plowed over from the one-yard line and Raphael Boudreau rushed in and kicked the extra point.

Starting on the Cougar 46, after the following kickoff and an exchange of punts, the Sooners drove straight to another touchdown. Seymour crashed off tackle for the counter after Gene Corretto had rammed to the three.

The third touchdown came at the end of a 33-yard drive, featuring a 12-yard pass from McCullough to Earl Crowder and a 19-yard dash by Seymour. McCullough rammed over from the 4-yard line.

Turn Down Rose Bowl Proposition

By EARL HILLIGAN
 CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—Western conference faculty representatives quickly tipped over the Rose Bowl idea today—and then set one up "on the house" in the form of a free evening meal for Big Ten football players.

With a decision to reaffirm their standing of years against post-season gridiron contests, the faculty advisors turned thumbs down on a plan which would have made the Rose Bowl game an annual contest between a Big Ten team and one from the Pacific Coast conference.

No Proposal
 The faculty representatives, pointing out that no formal proposal for such a reciprocal agreement ever had been received from west coast authorities, adopted this motion:

"In view of the wide publicity given to the matter of prolonging the football season so as to permit the playing of post-season games, it was moved and carried that the conference reaffirm its ruling against such extension of the playing season."

Little discussion, it was learned, preceded adoption of the motion, and the decision was practically unanimous. On the west coast, official silence greeted the Big Ten action. Some were reported favoring such a plan, with others opposed on the grounds it would wreck national interest in the game, which on Jan. 2 will send Southern California and Duke into action.

Speedily Achieved
 Authorization of the training table plan was speedily achieved. Schools will be permitted to furnish the evening meal daily to players throughout the gridiron season. Heretofore players have been furnished meals until the opening of classes.

Conference "B" football teams were voted permission to play Friday games and the faculty members decided that John Mariucci, crack Minnesota junior end, is eligible for another year of varsity competition. Mariucci playing varsity ball one year for Hibbing (Minn.) Junior college, while a freshman at the institution. It was decided that junior college varsity competition, while the player is a freshman at the college, does not constitute a year of varsity competition against the player should he transfer schools.

Capt. Oscar Olson Leads Carls To Win in Loosely Played Tilt

Sinks 17 Points to Head Scorers; Ben Stephens Garners 16 Points for Hawkeyes; Old Gold Still Rusty

By J. DENNIS SULLIVAN
 Daily Iowa Sports Editor

A slow, deliberate quintet of Swedes from Carleton, led by one Oscar Olson who scored 17 points, dashed cold water on the opening of Iowa's cage season last night by outscoring Rollie Williams' crew, 37-33.

The contest was loosely played throughout, the Hawkeyes particularly showing the effects of not having had sufficient time in which to hit their stride.

Stephens, with 16 points, was a standout for the Old Gold brigade. Anapol, who dumped in three field goals and two free throws for a total of eight points, was the next high scorer on the Iowa team.

In the opening moment of play when Loft dumped in the first basket of the game, it became obvious that the Hawkeyes were in for a battle. Stephens tied the count seconds later, but Loft came back to give Carleton the edge by dropping in a beautiful hook shot from the side of the court.

Prasse tied the score again with a drive-in shot and Stephens gave Iowa the lead by making good on a free throw. Larson fouled Bastian who made good the attempt and Iowa led, 6-4. A moment later, Larson fouled Stephens and Benny added to Iowa's lead by making good the two tries and the score read Iowa 8, Carleton 4.

Larson and Olson connected in quick succession, tying the count at eight each. Olson made good a free throw and Carleton led, 9-8. Stephens then connected from far out on the court and Iowa regained the lead, 10-9.

Berry dropped in a long shot, the Carls taking a lead which the Hawkeyes never regained.

Two Dolphins Will Help U. of Chicago

Two University of Iowa Dolphins, Ed Gerber and Bob Lowry, have been delegated to attend the Dolphin show at the University of Chicago this week, it was disclosed last night.

The two Iowans, following the plan by which Dolphins exchange ideas between the chapters of different schools, will attend the Chicago show next Wednesday night.

Besides the Chicago mermen's annual show, Gerber and Lowry are interested in helping sponsor a future meeting of all Big Ten Dolphins.

Ernie Lain and Ollie Cordill Lead Rice to 25-14 Victory

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 3 (AP)—Ernie Lain and Ollie Cordill found themselves and each other today in the last game of the southwest conference season and led Rice Institute to a 25-14 upset victory over Southern Methodist university, league runners-up to Texas Christian.

The pressure was off in this game, which meant practically nothing in the final conference standings, and Lain heaved two touchdowns passes to Cordill. Cordill scored a third and E. Y. Steakley, a senior speed merchant, snagged another of Lain's passes for the fourth touchdown.

Lain pitched and Cordill caught for much of the Rice yardage. Rice showed the potential power the critics gave it before the season opened, marching 84 yards for its first touchdown. Cordill smashed over from the two-yard line.

Southern Methodist put the ball in play on its own 20, shoved it down to the Rice 39 as the first period ended and on the fourth play of the second period, Gerald Geise threw a mighty pass from the Rice 35 to Bill Dewell, sub end, who snagged the ball in an almost impossible catch and fell over the goal line.

Rice took the kickoff, ran it back to its own 22 and by passing and ramming the line, worked it down to the SMU 22, where Lain pitched a perfect pass to Cordill who scampered over for Rice's second marker.

Northwestern Touchballers Claim Title

Northwestern touchballers closed an undefeated, untied season yesterday by mauling a South-west brigade, 35-12.

In winning, the men from the Northwest lay claim to the mythical university touchball championship, and will accept a challenge from any source to prove their superiority.

Aaron Miller, taking the ball into pay dirt twice, was a standout for the Northwesterns. Harry Skow and Ralph Kosbau also tallied for the victors.

In claiming the championship, the Northwesterners point with considerable pride not only to the won and lost column, but also to the fact that they amassed 163 points while holding their opponents to 43.

Mrs. Madeline Darrrough Horn Discusses Writing for Children

Author of Children's Books Gives Hints To Child Study Club

Discussing "Writings for Children," Mrs. Madeline Darrrough Horn addressed members of the Child Study club at a luncheon in the river room of Iowa Union yesterday. Mrs. Horn, an author of children's books, began her discussion by suggestions for those "mothers who wish to write."

According to Mrs. Horn, it is not as necessary to begin writing early as it is to have good ideas put down on paper. Writing should be fitted to your leisure time, so that when an idea presents itself, it can be dashed off on paper and developed later. Good writing can not be done in a hurry, and hours of patient, conscious labor is required for success.

"Don't be too ambitious when you first begin to write," advised Mrs. Horn. "Be satisfied with the obscure magazines first as they are more than likely to be that bottom rung on the ladder to success."

Write at every available chance, whether it be minutes for a business meeting or merely a friendly letter. All writing has something in common, Mrs. Horn went on to say. The ability to think clearly and to express one's self adequately is developed by a constant flow of writing.

Mrs. Horn told the inexperienced writer that she must not be discouraged if her first few manuscripts were returned. Send the same article to many publishers, was her advice. The many publishing firms have different systems of selecting material. Where one house would refuse copy another might gladly accept it.

Primer and readers are very difficult to write because of the limited vocabulary, explained Mrs. Horn. Scientific research has compiled data showing that the average child's mind can absorb only three new words at a time and then, these words must be repeated constantly. However, a primer can be made interesting by word choice and subject matter. Children enjoy animal stories and stories with onomatopoeic words. Children who are taught to read at home have a much richer background than those who must learn all the fundamentals at the public schools.

Stories for children are likewise difficult to write because of the need for simplicity. The adult writer who thinks and speaks as an adult must master the art of bringing himself down to the level of a child's thought and expression, said Mrs. Horn.

The material, plot and climax for such tales must be carefully selected. Characters must live as a child would have them live, time element must not be complex nor inconsistent and the length of the story must not be tiresome when read aloud. Use the child as a critic of literature meant for him, she advised. "Their sharp eyes and frankness make them enjoyable critics," declared Mrs. Horn.

And lastly, Mrs. Horn spoke of illustrations in children's books. If copy has been accepted by a publisher, try to get a good artist if the book is to be illustrated. Children love good, colorful illustrations as much as the adult who often selects a book on the basis of its illustrated pages.

Among the group of children's books, displayed through the courtesy of The Bookshop, were copies of Mrs. Horn's "Farm on a Hill" and "Log Cabin Family." Mrs. Horn gathered her material from old family traditions and personal experiences with her own children. Other books on exhibition for tots and the early teens, were "Stories About Henry" by Tippet; "The Gay Mother Goose" illustrated by Francoise;

Virovai, World-Famed Violinist, To Appear Here Tomorrow

Brilliant Boy Musician Will Play at Union

Hungarian Prodigy, 18, Takes America By Storm at Debut

Robert Virovai, the 18-year-old Hungarian violin prodigy who is ranked next to Yehudi Menuhin as the greatest world has to offer, will appear in Iowa Union at 8 p.m. tomorrow — the second artist on the 1938-39 concert course.

Virovai, the sensation of all Europe, will be accompanied at the piano by Bernard Frank. His mother, who is travelling on his first American tour with him, will come to Iowa City with her son.

The young virtuoso startled critics of his America debut with his brilliant, Pitts Sanborn, New York World-Telegram critic, said in his review of the concert:

"One of the most exciting debuts ever witnessed in Carnegie hall introduced to America a young violinist last night. Virovai faced his first American audience as if bursting with electric energy and he played like a dynamo. His attack was positively ferocious, his rhythms pushed chor. He could turn and polish a lyrical phrase with irresistible grace; then storm the ear with the impetus and dazzle of his pyrotechnics.

"He drew a bow of astonishing

Plays Tomorrow

Robert Virovai, above, the young Hungarian violinist who appeared for the first time in America last month and took the nation by storm, will appear at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Iowa Union as the second artist on the 1938-39 concert course. He is on his first American tour.

length and freedom, balanced by the sureness and agility of his finger-work. His trill had a diamond point brilliance. And about it all was a touch of the gypsy, the caljotery, the spontaneity, the abandon, the native gusto and mirth.

"The large audience began applauding Virovai between the movements of the concerto and at the end and recalled him thunderously again and again."

Virovai's musical life has been a long list of triumphs. Last summer, at the age of 17, he won first prize for a masterly performance of the Brahms violin concerto at the international contest for violinists and cellists in Vienna. He graduated when only 13 from the Conservatory of Music in Budapest, and studied under the great Jene Hubay.

Tickets for Virovai's concert are available in room 15, music studio building.

'Mail for Christmas Now'

Postmaster Barrow Lists Suggestions For Sending Holiday Mail

Postmaster Walter J. Barrow yesterday announced a list of suggestions which he urged everyone to follow for the Christmas mail. He said that early mailing of Christmas cards and packages will be appreciated by post-office employees, who hope to spend Christmas and the day following with their families.

On Dec. 26, a holiday this year because Christmas falls on Sunday, there will be no city delivery, rural delivery or window service at the postoffice. "However," he continued, "arrangements will be made here to handle all 'gift parcels' received in the city in time for delivery on Dec. 26."

The suggestions submitted were:

1. Purchase your supply of postage stamps in advance of the Christmas rush, thereby avoiding inconvenience and delay.
2. Early mailing is constantly and vividly stressed during the pre-Christmas period, and to encourage patrons to do this the department authorizes parcels to be marked "Do not open until Christmas."
3. Late mailers of the "gift parcels" should use the special delivery service which insures immediate delivery of such parcel upon receipt at the office of the address.
4. Carefully pack, label and tie parcels. Packages not properly prepared will be refused.

5. Prepay postage fully on all mail matter.

6. Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address, box or rural route with number whenever possible. Address sender's return card in upper left corner of address side.

7. Do not enclose letters in parcels; to do so will subject the entire parcel to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first-class rate may be sent with parcels at third- or fourth-class rate by securely attaching the envelope containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of the parcel.

8. Insure valuable parcels.

9. Mail parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers or other perishable matter at main office.

LONZO JONES, Secretary

Graduate Students
 Each student in the graduate college who expects to receive the master's degree or the doctorate at the forthcoming convocation, Jan. 31, 1939, is requested to procure for us immediately the official transcript of graduate work he may have done in another graduate school, if he has not done so before, so that this may be taken into account in determining whether he or she fulfills the requirements for a high degree.

This should be done immediately since, otherwise, it is possible that we shall be unable to certify for graduation next January a student who may have accomplished satisfactory graduate work elsewhere, but who has not submitted the requisite official statement of it early enough.

H. C. DORCAS,
 Registrar.

Residence Club
 Prof. Wilfred Sellars of the philosophy department and Prof. Paul Engle of the school of letters will give a two way discussion of the relative merits of Oxford and Iowa as educational institutions at the meeting of the Fireside club to be held in the fireside room of the Unitarian church Sunday evening, Dec. 4, at 7 p.m. A light lunch will be served at 6 p.m.

COMMITTEE.

Delta Sigma Rho
 The Iowa chapter of Delta Sigma Rho will hold a business meeting Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 7 p.m. in room 7. Schaeffer hall. All members on the campus are urged to attend.

MALVIN HANSEN, President

Mid-year Graduates!
 Every student who expects to receive a degree or certificate at the university convocation Tuesday, Jan. 31, 1939, should make his formal application on a card provided at the registrar's office on or before Thursday, Dec. 15.

It is of the utmost importance that each student comply with this request immediately; otherwise it is likely that, although he may be qualified in other respects, he will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present semester.

Making application for the degree of certificate involves the payment of the graduation fee of $16. Call at the registrar's office for the card.

H. C. DORCAS,
 Registrar.

ROMANCE IN

READ THIS FIRST:
Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE" and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human," he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' public display. The next day, while walking with some of the students, Dr. Holgate is confronted by Peaches and two other girls in a passing car. After Dr. Holgate is almost forced into Peaches' car, they all decide to go to Galveston for a swim. In the water, the crowd is startled when a mother cries that her child is drowning. Meanwhile, Sara Sue goes to church with T. J. Sanders.

enemy, and Peaches looked away. "Well—" Bob tried lamely to talk. But the situation was rather strained. It always is in a hospital emergency ward, for that matter. And here he was with an ex-sweetheart and a new girl he loved. He pressed his lips tightly together.

"It is not a moment to think of personalities," Sara Sue announced, sensibly. "I would like—Bob and I would like—to know what happened. We read an extra edition of a Houston paper, hurriedly. That's all we know. Would you—?" She looked at Peaches.

"He saved the little girl first," Peaches began, not looking directly at either of them, but at the wall. Her face seemed to wear a pout. "I mean, he kept her from drifting away and drowning. Then the mother jumped on him. She was about to drown herself, trying to save the child. Thornton had to fight both of them then."

"He was marvelous. I thought he was running away, at first. I even yelled 'Coward' at him. But he was doing a wise thing. He ran out on the pier and dived in, where he would be closer to the child. I think he is wonderful."

"Then what?" Bob probed.

"Well, of course some more people saw it. I was crying, and shrieking around, I guess. Somebody—two men—put out in a row-boat. I guess it was a sort of life-boat there where they rent the floaters. But the waves were awfully rough, and these men weren't good at it."

"They got the child, then the woman. While they were lifting the woman into the boat, a wave knocked Thornton against the oar lock. It hit his head, and knocked him unconscious."

"They almost never got him out, then. Of course he was almost drowned. More people had come. A first aid squad was nearby and an ambulance came, and—well, we all came here. I made them give him the best suite in the hospital. There were some others in our party. But they have gone home."

"They sat silent for quite a while then. Presently Dr. McGill came out of the sick room, looking over his glasses at Bob and Sara Sue. "Um. You may as well go and get some rest," he suggested, brusquely. "It is past midnight. We can notify you of any important change. He is desperately ill, but we are doing everything possible."

A nurse had heard him, and she spoke now. "This is the patient's sister, Dr. McGill. Miss—I did not get your name, please?"

"Davis, Mrs. Davis," said Sara Sue, blushing. "And this is Mr. Towne."

"Well, you may stay here if you'd rather," the doctor ruled. "But there is no reason to disturb him. He would not recognize you, probably, for some time yet. The suite, of course, is designed for relatives, so you can have cots brought here if you like. But do nothing to disturb the hospital routine."

With that he was gone. Sara Sue bit her lip, trying to think. Bob and Peaches looked at her.

"Sister!" said Peaches. Then, contemptuously, "Why did you lie to get in? What is Thornton Holgate to you?"

"Listen, Peaches," Bob broke in. "You can't sit here and—"

"It's all right, Bob," Sara Sue put out a hand to restrain him. She looked pleadingly at him now. "It's true. I did lie. But the reasons for doing so were my own! I see no reason to have a scene here."

Peaches Pomeroy had, of course, been under a nervous strain. She herself had been up late the previous night, dancing, drinking. She had been swimming, which is fatiguing to one not in best physical condition. Then she had witnessed a near tragedy, had been through the excitement of the rescue and the subsequent efforts to save Thornton's life. Strain always made her not only weary, but irritable as well. And then—to cap it off—here came the two people who had hurt her pride most.

"What reasons?" she demanded now. "Reasons? You probably have a reason for everything you do. Or think you have. Have you been lying about all the other things, too Mrs. Counsel in Romance?" Peaches' voice could sting, when she wanted it to. "You've been butting into everybody's affairs ever since school opened! You're not even a student, you're nobody socially, you haven't got—"

"Peaches! Stop it!" Bob Towne literally growled it at her, glancing at the sickroom door. "This is no way to act! You don't know what you're saying. And this is no place. You're acting like a cat when you don't know anything about—"

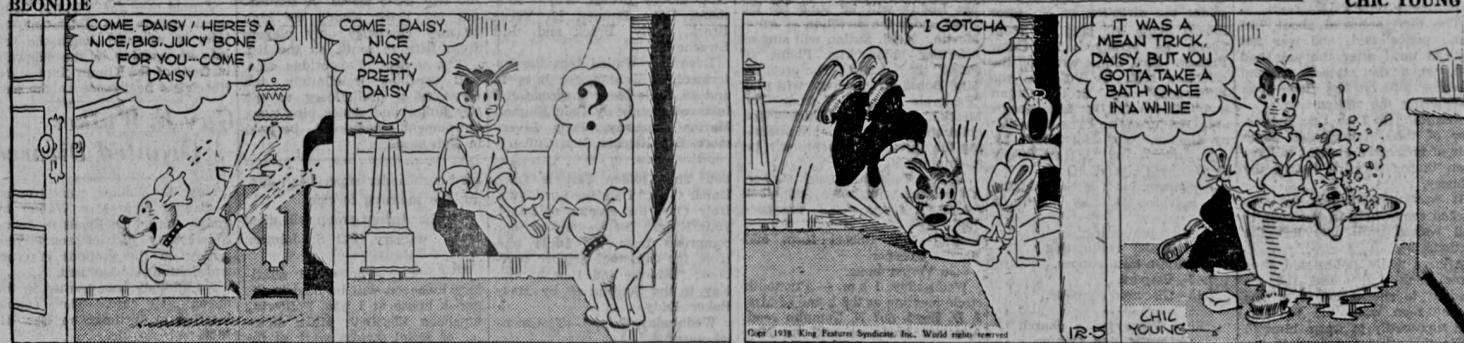

"BOB! No!" Sara Sue shook him. "No more talk, please. Come on!"

She led him out, thence back down the corridor. And she was sobbing into her tiny handkerchief, feeling very miserable indeed.

In Oriental countries flowers are often added to salads for decoration.

Lisle is the term used to designate fine, smooth, two-ply cotton, tightly spun and singed.

CHAPTER 26
IF YOU WALK atop the long Galveston sea wall from the Crystal palace and the roller coasters and the Hotel Galvez, out around the graceful curve at the end of the island, you will come eventually to one of the largest hospitals in the world. It is John Sealy hospital, named for a philanthropist, famed for distinguished service and for being a valuable adjunct to the Texas university medical school, in the adjoining blocks.

Down one of the hospital's white tile corridors now was an air of some excitement, caused by a knot of people who clung near the entrance to one suite. Mr. and Mrs. Diehl were there, three newspaper men, a photographer and a beach life guard, now in street dress. Sara Sue Davis and Bob Towne saw this group when they turned into the corridor, but their first hurdle was an efficient looking floor nurse, who blocked their way.

"Whom did you wish to see?" the nurse asked.

"Dr. Holgate," said Bob.

"Sorry. No admission. He is unconscious anyway."

"But I must go to him!" Sara Sue pleaded.

"You can do no good now. May I ask who you are?"

"I am Mrs. Sara S— We are relatives. I—I'm his sister!"

Bob turned then to look at Sara Sue. He had never heard her lie before, even a white lie. He wondered again at her intense interest here. But he gamely echoed, "Relatives," supporting her.

"Well—" the nurse weighed that. "I suppose you are entitled to stay, at least. But you can come now only to the sitting room. He has a suite, you know. Under no conditions can you go into the bedroom unless accompanied by Dr. McGill, who is in charge. He is with the patient now. Also two nurses. And be absolutely quiet, please."

The light in the sitting room was dim. A nurse closed the bedroom door when they stepped in, and then snapped on another light.

"Oh!" said Sara Sue, taken aback.

"Hello, Peaches," Bob greeted Miss Pomeroy. She was sitting in a wicker rocking chair, face pale, staring up at the newcomers. She did not speak at first.

"How is he?" queried Sara Sue, scarcely above a whisper.

"He may be dying."

They all looked at the bedroom door.

"Better sit down, Sara Sue," Bob urged. "We'll see Dr. McGill after a bit, I imagine."

"He doesn't know any more. I just asked him," Peaches declared. "It will be a long time, several hours, before he will know. . . Why did you come? I mean—"

It seemed to dawn on all three of them at once that their positions were somewhat strange, that no one of them really belonged there, keeping potential death watch beside a new Rice professor.

Here was Geraldine Pomeroy, and Bob Towne, the Rice man she was supposed to be engaged to in months past. And here was the widow Davis—she who had appeared like a romantic bombshell near the Rice campus this fall, upsetting Geraldine's plans, disturbing everybody for good or bad. Bob had openly and often avowed his love this fall not for Peaches, but for Sara Sue. Peaches had gone out of her way one night to insult Sara Sue. And Sara Sue had, secretly, been coaching Dr. Thornton Holgate, in wooing Peaches!

Only Sara Sue knew all of this, of course. She glanced now at her

Rob Oil Station As Attendant Checks Tires

2 Unidentified Men Pilfer Cash Register Of Twenty Dollars

Walking into the Phillips filling station at Burlington and Madison streets last night while his car was being attended to, one of a pair of unidentified men robbed the cash register of approximately $20, the local police department reported.

The theft occurred about 7:25 p.m., police said, and was not noticed until after the pair had left, when the attendant found a dollar bill on the floor upon re-entering the station.

According to Dick Lee, proprietor of the station, the same pair of men were thought to have been there shortly before the robbery.

It was thought that the two parked somewhere in the vicinity and waited until Lee left the station.

After a while, police said, they came back and asked the attendant to check the tires. One of the men went into the station supposedly to warm himself, while the other remained in the car.

The men were described as young—both being about 25 years old. The one who entered the station was described as being about five feet eight or nine, and weighing between 175 and 180 pounds. He was wearing a grey hat, dark suit and black overcoat.

The other man who remained in the car was about the same size and was wearing a brown or black hat and a black overcoat.

They were driving a 1936 Dodge coupe with an Illinois license. The car was rather muddy, it was reported.

Republicans To Have Meet

George A. Wilson, Governor-elect, Will Give Talk Tuesday

Twenty local republicans will attend the Republican Jubilee dinner at the Hotel Savery in Des Moines Friday evening, Attorney Robert L. Larson, chairman of the Johnson County republican central committee, announced yesterday.

Among those representing Iowa City will be Attorney Larson, State Representative W. F. Morrison, Congressman Thomas E. Martin, Judge H. D. Evans and Attorneys K. M. Dunlop and H. J. Ries.

Governor-elect George A. Wilson will be the principle speaker of the evening. His talk will be broadcast at 8 p.m. over radio station WHO.

In addition to the governor-elect, congressional representatives and many state legislative representatives will be introduced, according to an announcement issued by the state central committee.

Former United States Senator L. J. Dickinson is among many distinguished Iowans who have made reservations for the dinner.

1938 Delinquent Tax Property To Go on Sale

The 1938 delinquent tax property will go on sale at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the court house, County Treasurer W. E. Smith announced yesterday.

Over 25 per cent of the delinquent owners listed on the report published several weeks ago have paid the taxes. This is an exceptionally large number of redemptions, according to officials.

Teefy, Wallen, Fitzgerald Lead In Recreation Center Ping Pong Tourny

Robert Hull, now in fourth place in the "ladder" ping pong tournament being held at the recreational center, yesterday issued a warning to those above him. "I wasn't used to the kind of paddles they have down there," he said, "because my finger always got in the way. I brought one from home, though, that I can really swing."

In the junior division, including boys under 14, Don Teefy holds top place. Following him in order of standing are Walley Emmons, Andy Chukalas, Robert Hull, Bobby Brown, Wayne Emmons, Dave Danner, La Verne Brack, curly Brack and Bill Sweeney.

Lawrence Wallen tops the intermediate division, for boys 14 and 15. Jack Teefy is second and followed closely by Dale Hughes, Marion Dunaway, Jack Livermore, Bob Kircher, Bud Culbertson, Carl Williams, Issac Searl and John Brown.

Among the seniors, boys over 15, Dean Fitzgerald rates first so far. Following him are Winston La Port, Bill Williams, Meyer Markovitz, Albert Schmidt, Allen Wallen, Lindy Hickerson and Melvin Greazel.

Eugene Trowbridge, director of the local recreational center, said that those not already entered are still invited to participate in the tourney. Any player may challenge one in his age class of a higher standard. If he wins, the two trade places. A contestant not listed among the high 10 may challenge only players from fifth to tenth on the list.

The contest, Trowbridge said, will continue indefinitely and serve as a preliminary to the city junior and senior ping pong tournament scheduled to be held in February.

ist. The Golden Test is from Isaiah 43:15, "I am the Lord, you Holy One, the creator of Israel, your King." The lesson—sermon comprises from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Wednesday, 8 p.m.—Testimonial meeting.

Moen Placed Under Bond

3 Larceny Cases Heard Yesterday By Justice T. Fairchild

Roy Moen, Northwood, who confessed to Sheriff Don McComas that he stole a car belonging to George Emmons from Iowa City Tuesday night, was placed under a $2,000 bond when he appeared before T. M. Fairchild, justice of the peace, yesterday. The case was referred to the district court.

Herbert Keys, charged with larceny of property valued at more than $20, waived to the district court and was put under $2,000 bond.

Judge Fairchild sentenced John O'Day to 30 days in the county jail for petty larceny.
