O'Brian Files Contest With Supreme Court

Casts Shadow Of Doubt Over Nov. 8 Election

Says Use of Voting Machines Invalidated Ballots in 24 Counties

DES MOINES, Dec. 14 (AP)—Competition for not more than $200 salary and two weeks in the office of secretary of state tonight had cast the shadow of doubt over the validity of the entire Nov. 8 election in Iowa.

Secretary of State Robert E. O'Brian, battling to hold his present job at least until Jan. 1, today filed a contest with the Iowa supreme court of the election of John F. Wessels, youthful Des Moines attorney, to the short term secretary position.

O'Brian's petition charged the policies followed in connection with the use of voting machines in 24 Iowa counties invalidated the balloting in those areas.

Not Approved? The privilege of the use of voting machines in the state of Iowa provides that said voting machines shall be examined and approved by three commissioners.

Gov. Nelson G. Raschke said he never had appointed such a commission because he believed the applicable sections of the law referred only to "the purchase and form of voting machines."

The secretary of state's office said it has no record of the appointment of such a commission since 1901. The Iowa official register for 1915-16, however, lists such a commission. Succeeding editions of the register or "red book," as it is commonly called, carry no voting machine commission names.

Wessels Ahead Official figures show Wessels, running as an independent, defeated O'Brian, a democrat, for the short term, 7,694 to 3,754. The short term ends Jan. 1. O'Brian is paid $5,000 a year, or $416.66 a month.

The $200 salary stake, however, is a constantly diminishing factor since the short term will receive pay only for the time he serves. Thus, if the contest continues undecided until Jan. 1—as expected—Wessels can win and receive nothing out of it all.

"Apparently somebody is trying to stall this thing along to prevent my taking office," the 24-year-old lawyer commented after reading O'Brian's petition.

The short term angle is a direct result of the Iowa constitutional provision limiting appointees to elective office vacancies to service "until the next general election." O'Brian was named to fill the vacancy caused by the death in 1937 of Mrs. Alex Miller.

Professor Clapp Conducts Orchestra, Chorus In Dramatic Christmas Chorale 'The Messiah'

By CLARA BARATZ The poignant details in the life of the Savior as choralized by Georg Friedrich Handel in "The Messiah" were presented last night by the University chorus and orchestra under the baton of Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp.

The portions presented dealt chiefly with the Christmas narrative. Performing before a capacity audience at Iowa Union, both chorus and orchestra gave a perfectly coordinated exhibition of the tremendous power of the oratorio.

The dignified rendition of the overture was appropriately crowned by the stirring recitative.

"Comfort Ye My People," sung by Prof. Herald Stark. Choral passages followed soloists—each showing inspired study of delicate shading in tone and emotion.

Featuring in the dramatic musical episodes were Professor Stark, Clara Harper, Hazel Chapman, Dr. Donald Mallett and Edward Nelson.

Perhaps the most significant passage of the oratorio was the orchestra's "Pastoral Symphony." Extremely calm in tempo, this instrumental comment is charged with the dignity and hope symbolic of the work.

The chorus, singing intensely throughout, gave exceptional tonal and emotional fervor to the passage. "Surely He hath borne our griefs." Not content with an unequalled cooperation among the harmonizing voices, Professor Clapp extracted the tragic spirit of the text from his inspired singers.

The always soul-stirring, "Hallelujah," during which the audience arose, was climaxed by Dr. Mallett's ringing interpretation of the triumphant aria, "The Trumpet Shall Sound," and a closing chorus.

The University chorus topped its excellent performance with a medley of Christmas carols.

Iowa Citian Plays Absentee Role for Sheriffs

Law Graduate of S. U. I. Reacts Correctly to Lie Detector

It looks like the real thing—at least to the lie detector.

At the joint session of the Iowa State Sheriffs association and the conference of county attorneys at Des Moines yesterday, Dr. J. H. Mathews, chairman of the University of Wisconsin chemistry department demonstrated the Keeler polygraph, sometimes known as a lie detector.

For his subject, an Associated Press dispatch informs, Dr. Mathews took Carroll Johnson, newly elected county attorney at Clinton, and a 1936 University of Iowa law graduate.

Johnson wrote down 10 first names of girls—including Marie. Strapped in the "lie detector," Johnson then answered "no" each time, when Dr. Mathews asked him, "are you engaged to Mary? Are you engaged to Jane?" and so on down the list.

When Dr. Mathews came to Marie the needle on the polygraph jumped up sharply. Halting the experiment, Dr. Mathews announced County Attorney Johnson was "lying"—that he really is engaged to "Marie."

And as it turned out, Dr. Mathews was right. Johnson, Dec. 3, announced his engagement here to Marie Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connell Sr., 420 S. Van Buren street.

Following the demonstration, Municipal Judge John Gutknecht of Chicago addressed the session. A "rational" treatment of young persons involved in crime—as opposed to "legalistic" treatment—was urged by Judge Gutknecht. Earlier the group listened to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, speaking by long-distance telephone from Miami, Fla., deplore "sob sisters" who, he said, interfere with officers doing their duty.

Judge Gutknecht, however, admitted what he was advocating was sometimes called "soft and sentimental," but he pointed to the results:

Out of nearly 5,000 boys from 17 to 21 who were given a "break," and not sent to prison, only 1 per cent got in trouble again.

Alderman And Etting Married

Defense of Snyder Continues as Former Wife Elops Secretly

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14 (AP)—The surprise elopement of Radio Singer Ruth Etting and her younger former accompanist, Myrl Alderman, stole most of the interest today from the trial of her former husband and manager, "Colonel" Martin Snyder, on charges of attempting to murder Alderman last October.

In the midst of the trial, the blonde singer and Alderman flew early today to Las Vegas, Nev., where they were married.

The 44-year-old Snyder at first could not believe news of the wedding. Finally he said:

"It's true that they are married, then from the bottom of my heart I want to wish them all the happiness in the world. I mean that."

Snyder, long a Chicago and New York Rialto figure, said this in a firm voice audible to most of the courtroom. The jury was out for a recess at the time.

Miss Etting and Alderman arrived at Las Vegas at 7:30 a.m., roused the county clerk from bed to obtain a license and were married shortly after 9 o'clock. Miss Etting gave her age as 37 and Alderman his as 30.

Among the witnesses was Snyder's 21-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, Edith Snyder, who is Miss Etting's secretary.

Snyder is accused of shooting and slightly wounding Alderman at Alderman's North Hollywood home in the presence of his daughter and Miss Etting. Miss Snyder has testified she fired at her father after he shot Alderman. Snyder also is charged with attempting to kill the two women, who had gone to the home to prepare Alderman's dinner.

Alderman's divorce from his second wife became final last week. She is suing Miss Etting for $150,000 damages, charging the singer stole Alderman's love.

At the trial today, Virginia de Marteau, a masseuse, testified she heard Snyder say last August "If what I think is true is true, I'm going to kill Ruth and Alderman."

CAPONE BILLED $50,000 Fine and Costs To Be Paid

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (AP)—The government sent a bill for $57,692.29 to Al Capone today.

The sum included a $50,000 fine Capone hasn't paid and $7,692.29 court costs of his income tax evasion case still on the books of the federal district court here.

Chris Gunther, deputy clerk, figured up the total for a reply to Warden J. A. Johnson of Alcatraz island prison from which Capone is scheduled for release Jan. 19.

German Press Reserved On Memel Issue

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP)—The controlled German press assumed a sudden reserve on the long-smouldering Memel issue tonight although diplomatic quarters predicted the return of that former German territory to the Reich before spring.

In contrast to the columns printed last week on Memelander's desires to join Germany, newspapers today printed only short dispatches reporting that in Sunday's Memel parliament elections German candidates won 83.5 per cent of the votes in 77 of 228 districts and 78.4 per cent of the voters in the city.

Diplomatic quarters based their forecasts not on the election figures so much as on what they called "important elements" like the 1938 German annexation of Austria and Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland and the "obvious motive" in new pro-German demonstrations in Memel, a district of 1,099 square miles which Lithuania took from Germany after the World war.

(Preliminary tabulations of election returns, a Memel dispatch said, showed Germans had gained only one seat from Lithuanians despite a strong "back to the Reich" campaign which gave the voting the flavor of a plebiscite on the question of rejoining Germany. The first count showed German candidates won 25 of the 29 diet seats.)

Would Widen U. S. Doctrine

Columbian Minister Suggests All Assume Burden of Defense

LIMA, Dec. 14 (AP)—A Pan-American Monroe doctrine under which all countries of the western hemisphere would assume the burden thus far maintained by the United States alone came before the Pan-American conference today.

Foreign Minister Luis Lopez de Mesa of Colombia told the committee for organization of peace that the "Monroe doctrine can now be widened to embrace all free America as a subject of responsibility."

Mexico, apparently mindful of controversies with the United States over expropriation of lands and oil properties, followed the lead of Argentina in submitting a resolution asking that the conference reaffirm past decisions that force must not be used for collection of debts between nations.

It was believed the resolution had little chance of passage, since there are already sufficient accords and agreements among American states against forcible debt collections.

Lopez de Mesa called attention to pressure of European events and political theories on the Americas in his proposal for a broadening of the doctrine proclaimed in 1823 by President James Monroe in a hands-off-the-Americans warning to Europe.

"National interests of the United States are coinciding with those of individual states of Latin America," he asserted in praising the "wonderful broadening of ideas of great statesmen" of the United States.

He made his proposal during a plea for Colombia's project for a league of American nations, which the conference seemed likely to postpone until its next meeting in 1943.

Contract Approved For WSUI's New Radio Studio Bldg.

The legislative interim committee yesterday approved a $70,000 contract for construction of the University of Iowa's new radio studio building, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Des Moines.

The building will be constructed adjacent to the engineering building, and will house new equipment and classrooms for WSUI's activities. The excavation for the building has been completed.

As Journalists Celebrated—

Wayzgoose Banquet Ends Tercentenary

Douglas C. McMurtrie of the Ludlow Typograph company in Chicago, standing, was the principal speaker last night at the traditional Wayzgoose banquet of students in the school of journalism. The dinner this year observed the 300th anniversary of American printing. McMurtrie spoke of the major part which American journalism has played since 1840 in unifying the segments of the United States into a strong democratic whole. "John C. Wolfe," seated, whom students had expected to be the managing editor of the Washington, D. C.,

Herald, but who in reality is a Cedar Rapids insurance man, appeared last night as a foil for conspirators who arranged that he should be heckled by a man in the crowd. The effect was almost too realistic, but the Wayzgoose Gazette, humorous publication of the annual party, appeared just in time and announced the thing as a hoax. Ticket sales for the dinner were stopped yesterday afternoon to enable Iowa Union's staff to prepare the goose dinner which was served.

Clark, Carol Can't Wed Until 1940 HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14 (AP)—Technicalities of legal procedure, Technicalities of legal procedure, it appeared today, may prevent Lombard and Clark Gable say "I do" until sometime in 1940.

The film actor's $286,000 property settlement with his second wife, Maria Langham Gable, has been approved mutually, but requires a court's approval before Mrs. Gable can file suit for divorce.

Gable said his wife, from whom he has been separated for three years, would seek a divorce as soon as a ruling is obtained on the legality of the settlement.

Gloria Baker To Be Married

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP)—This southern outpost of eastern society was stirred tonight by announcement that Gloria Baker, patent medicine heiress and much-feted New York debutante of last season, would wed Henry J. Topping Jr., heir to a $14,000,000 tinplate fortune.

Mrs. Margaret Emerson of Palm Beach and Sands Point, L. I., confirmed persistent rumor by announcing the wedding would take place Monday at the Emerson estate—just six days after Topping's first wife, Actress Jane Shadduck, was granted a divorce at Bridgeport, Conn.

It will be the first marriage for Miss Baker—known to her friends as "Mimi"—although her name was linked with those of several of the country's prominent bachelors during the past few years while she was gaining a reputation as a ranking "glamor girl."

Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, wealthy young sportsman, and Miss Baker's half-brother, will give the bride away, and Mrs. George Vanderbilt, the former Lucille Parsons, will be matron of honor.

Merle Miller served as toastmaster at the banquet. Prof. Frank L. Mott, director of the school of journalism, explained the English tradition from which the term, "Wayzgoose," was descended. Early English printers (See WAYZGOOSE, page 6)

Mrs. F. R. In Business

Director in Boston Insurance Firm; To Represent Jimmy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will enter the insurance business Monday—not to sell policies but to protect the interests of her eldest son, Jimmy.

White House officials said today that was her purpose in accepting membership on the board of Roosevelt and Sargent, Boston firm formed by James Roosevelt and John Sargent in 1931.

The first lady will be elected a director at the meeting next Monday, Sargent explained in Boston, "and will take her son's place."

James, better known as Jimmy, recently resigned as his father's secretary to become vice president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., in Hollywood, Cal.

Mrs. Roosevelt, it was explained, agreed to become a director merely to do what she could as a motherly to take care of Jimmy's interests while he is on the west coast.

Peoria to Have Research Lab Sought Here

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—The agriculture department announced today the sites for four huge laboratories which will carry on a "test-tube" attack on the problems created by the nation's farm surpluses.

The laboratories, to be started before next July 1, will be constructed at Peoria, Ill., New Orleans, La., in the Philadelphia area and in the San Francisco bay vicinity.

The last congress appropriated $4,000,000 for the laboratories and authorized a similar expenditure annually. Their job will be to find new uses and new outlets in the human or industrial field for surplus farm products.

Although each will concentrate its research on the major farm products of its region, Secretary Wallace said their work would not stop at regional boundaries, but would be nationwide in effect.

He said basic research on constituents common to agricultural commodities such as starch, cellulose, protein and oil would be carried on by the scientists and technicians to be employed, as well as studies looking toward the possibilities of utilizing the commodities themselves.

Corn, wheat and agricultural waste products will be the major subject of research work at the Peoria station, serving the states in the northern region.

The secretary said more than 200 cities and towns including Ames and Iowa City, in Iowa, had sought the laboratories. The final selections, he said, were made on the basis of physical and scientific requirements, accessibility to major furo producing areas and the possibility of establishing relationships with agricultural processing industries.

Investigation Of U. S. Citizen's Arrest Ordered

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 14 (AP)—The arrest by nazi police of George Roth, naturalized United States citizen, on a charge of "preparation of high treason" was under investigation today by Wilbur Keblinger, American consul-general.

Authorities said a hearing of the case would be held here in a few days.

(In Washington it was reported Roth was arrested on leaving the United States liner Manhattan when she docked at Hamburg. The state department ordered the investigation.)

Recent English-Italian Accord Weakened By Aid to Spanish Rebels

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today that an Italian attack on French Tunisia would be a matter of "grave concern" to Britain.

He made the declaration in the house of commons, where in the meantime, anger had mounted over the German boycott of Chamberlain's Tuesday night speech deploring the anti-British tone of the German press.

It was in answer to a question from Laborite Arthur Henderson that Chamberlain again reassured France of Britain's "identity of interest." Henderson had asked whether "undertakings in respect of the status quo in the Mediterranean as embodied in the British-Italian agreement applied to Tunisia."

Accord Applies Chamberlain replied that "certainly" the London-Rome accord, put into force Nov. 16, applied to Tunisia.

"We cannot, however, contemplate the possibility of such an attack as suggested in the question put by Mr. Henderson."

The reassurance to France came at a time when British-German friction was overshadowed by animosity between France and Italy over Italy's insistent but unofficial challenge of French territorial strength in the Mediterranean, particularly in the North African protectorate, Tunisia.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet told the chamber of deputies foreign affairs committee that France would fight, if necessary before yielding an inch of her territory. Both Italy and Germany were informed of that determination.

Italy Arming The Italian government decided today to spend about $526,000,000 for military purposes in the next fiscal year as an "unavoidable necessity in view of the situation."

Chamberlain acknowledged that an Italian attack on Tunisia would violate the British-Italian accord on preservation of the status quo in the Mediterranean—the "bread route" of both Britain and France.

British-Italian relations were not helped by an admission in commons by Richard Austen Butler that Italy recently had sent aid to the Spanish insurgent generalissimo, Francisco Franco. Butler is undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

The Spanish civil war was expected to figure largely as a topic of talks when Chamberlain visits Premier Mussolini in Rome Jan. 11-14.

Schacht Arrives Another phase of the many-sided European situation was highlighted by the arrival from Berlin of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who came to London supposedly with a combined scheme of getting rid of Jews and German exports at the same time.

Schacht was the guest of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, who, informed quarters said, had been told the views of the inter-governmental refugee committee so that he might take the refugee problem up with Schacht.

The German embassy, however, announced that Schacht had no official instructions to discuss the matter.

Whatever financial scheme Norman and Schacht might work out for the emigration of German Jews it became clear today that they would not be able to count on any money from the Lord Baldwin fund for refugees.

Issues Statement Within a few hours after the German financial wizard arrived, the executive committee of the fund issued a statement that it had no intention of discussing with Schacht a plan attributed to him under which foreign benefactors would loan foreign exchange to emigrating Jews so that they might take German goods with them in lieu of their fortunes.

In Rome Il Giornale D'Italia, in explanation of the military expenditures, said Italy has "interests and rights to defend."

The comment of the authoritative Rome newspaper was carried in a column adjacent to that of the editorial writer, Virginia Gayda, in which he challenged French figures on the population of Tunisia, French North African protectorate.

Peace On Earth

COLORED LIGHTS decorate the store fronts and streets, tall evergreens are strung with silver, gold and glass ornaments, tall candelabra burn steadily before high altars while holy music rings softly through the churches from lofty organs. Men begin to think of their blessings and to remember those less fortunate with gestures of extended help and families renew neglected friendships.

In other parts of the world men march sternly through the streets of militarized cities, or seek out frightened, fleeing refugees. Citizens along borders watch fearfully the coming of each day and the rumors that they are the next to fall before the extending finger of imperialistic greed. And statesmen gather for long hours in vain efforts to bring compromise about where determination will accept no compromise. While outside in the street they hear the sudden sound of bells that brings to their mind again the approach of Christmas.

And some there are who stand with cynicism and look upon the gay preparations and sneer at such foolhardiness of men and brand as hypocritical the observance and the gestures of the season. The world, they say, will go back to the same hard thrusts at each other for power. People in comfortable circumstances will again forget the poorer neighbors and go their own unconcerned, inattentive way with a feeling of having done their part.

But whether Christmas ever does any good in solving the dark problems of the day or not, granted the good deeds done in the name of "peace on earth and good will toward men" are forgotten on December 26th, and whether men go from their humble worship services to kill and maim their fellow men, there is a purpose in the spirit that the day and season bring. For those who kindle for a day the fire of this spirit, though they may let it burn away at once, are ever afterward better men for that moment.

Speaking of quick-change artists, the football coach is champion. Coach Howard Jones of Southern California started the season as a washout, became a fair coach, then sank back to mediocrity but finished the schedule the smartest mentor in the United States.

Governor-elect Bricker of Ohio, refuses to wear a silk hat for the inaugural ceremony. He wants to start his administration without resorting to a disguise.

A Stubborn Custom

MUCH has been said and alas, much yet remains to be said about the universal custom of examinations. More specifically to be dealt with is the annual pre-Christmas plunge which befalls us now.

Steel-nerved professors—long past these inquisitory days forget that the nerves of the student men, and we who are less wise, have often pondered this phenomena of the law of averages which brings a barrage of quizzes with that dizzying, unflinching rapidity.

Why dwell on the fact that the quiz storm can be allayed or tempered by an earlier start, smaller quantity and lighter content? Our point (and we dare to make it in the very midst of this hurried situation) is that exams be entirely eliminated.

Far from being a worried student's idle wish, this is an observation made by great educators all over the world. Even in this university there are courses offered an eager portion of the student body which is not repaid with exams for its trouble.

Professor Benj. Shambaugh's campus course should stand as a shining example to the quiz-struck faculty. Offering its students the pithiest kind of subject matter, the course each week gives its members the opportunity to report in a pleasant, dignified manner the knowledge they have obtained and, most important of all—their own reactions to lectures and readings.

Through the simple expedient of a weekly diary, one happy university group is not only as certain to turn out a class of scholars as fine as would any sleepy, irritable batch of chronic exam-takers, but actually appears as a glowing light amidst a disgruntled student heap.

A Louisiana girl moves furniture supposedly by supernatural power. Our old man would like to learn her secret, for use in the spring of the year.

Let's Make Another Effort

PEACE and protection from aggressive foreign nations is the primary aim of the nations of the new world in the proposed four-point plan now being considered at the Pan-American conference at Lima.

Peace was also the aim of the treaty of Versailles when it was formulated after the close of the Great War. And, strangely enough, there is a similarity in the means with which the two different plans attempted and are attempting to establish that end.

The League of Nations was one of the by products of the former program. And now, at Lima a similar organization is being proposed.

Granted that the League of Nations did not fulfill the aims for which it was established, nevertheless, a league of the Americas might be successful. One of the faults of the greater league lay, perhaps, in its very greatness. Its scope was too wide. It included too many, too widely varying nations.

On a smaller scale, the plan may work. With a smaller group with definite collective aims, the program may be more satisfactory. For the sake of this chance, the plan is worth trying. And, isn't it up to our America to be among the first to ratify the plan? Let's try it and let's make it successful!

Jimmy Roosevelt takes a $50,000-a-year job as vice president of a film company. That suggests a new ambition for young America—to grow up to become a president's son.

And yet, it isn't his victory in the Derby that gave Black Gold immortality. A good many years have passed since that tiny chunk of black dynamite went to the post for the last time, but strong men who were at the track that day are not ashamed of tears when they relate what happened.

A true thoroughbred never quits. His body may be broken and he may even be matched against unconquerable Death, but his spirit still laughs loudly, and his brave heart is never beaten. And so it was that last day in the life of little Black Gold.

They took their places and soon were off—a fine field of blooded horses—and many in the grandstands had placed their bets on Black Gold. But somehow they didn't mind losing those bets—it was like paying tribute to the great soul of a noble friend.

You see, coming down the stretch Black Gold stumbled—or some said he was kicked by another horse—and his leg was broken. The other horses soon thundered past him, and he was left alone and helpless in the rear.

But the race wasn't over for Black Gold. Long after the others had flashed under the wire, he came hobbling home—finishing the last run on the three legs left him. There was no victor's wreath for Black Gold when the race was over—only a bullet to end his suffering. But God bless that little horse for teaching us what it means to be a thoroughbred.

And so we come to the moral—we need thoroughbreds in newspapers too; men who will stand the acid test, men who will finish each day's work as did that little horse. "John Doe Thoroughbred"—better to possess that title than be called a king.

Just keep up the work, Merle, and keep on battling at 500 percent. And in all that you do write—or all that you do in this world—I wish you the joy that comes from a job well done.

Sincerely yours, Dick T. Street.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

(Today's column is the second of two written by Dick T. Street, syndicated columnist who writes "Street Seen" for seven newspapers and who was recognized as the best weekly columnist in the United States last June by the New York City Newspapermen's association.)

STREET SEEN By Dick T. Street I like to think of all the thoroughbreds in the newspaper game—and like to read letters from friends who have reached esteemable heights in the fourth estate.

Bess Streeter Aldrich, very good friend. Just received a letter yesterday from her telling about her story, "Song of Years," currently running in the Saturday Evening Post.

I have many letters from the late Ellis Parker Butler, the Iowa who made "Pigs Is Pigs" the most popular story two decades ago. Ellis has now passed on—but the critical letters he wrote me hold an indelible impression on my mind.

Or Edgar Rice Burroughs of Tarzan fame. I think I am about the first person to be notified of his new novels. At periodic intervals he gives me "inside tips" that have helped me to get nearer the top.

And so the list goes. The other two remaining friends whom I value most are J. Edgar Hoover and my faithful friend forever—"Blackie." But Blackie doesn't criticize me. He is my dog.

Apologies to L. E. Frailley. Sports writers from Portland to Portland will never forget Black Gold, winner of the Kentucky Derby in the year 1924. In size, he was little more than a pony, but there never ran a horse with heart so big.

And yet, it isn't his victory in the Derby that gave Black Gold immortality. A good many years have passed since that tiny chunk

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

According to the medical science—(1) rest, (2) isolation, (3) overfeeding. The cure is known in America as "the rest cure"; in France as "the isolation cure," and in England as "the overfeeding cure," each nation emphasizing the feature felt to be paramount.

There are certain other elements in the cure, such as massage and other forms of physiotherapy, but the really important elements are to allow the patient to rest and for the soul to right itself and become once more sweet and healthy. Of course, in this the role of the physician himself is extremely important.

Weir Mitchell himself was a wonderful director, counselor and guide. He knew that the human heart was "deceitful," above all things "deceitfully wicked," but knew also that it might be attuned to devotion and loyalty, to the finest and most delicate sympathies.

Try to Reduce Divorces WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—Increasing number of divorces in New Zealand has resulted in the department of justice studying the English plan of "domestic relations courts" to effect reconciliations between man and wife where possible.

Personality also has a great deal to do with the ability to endure fatigue. A study of the lives of great creative geniuses would indicate that many of them suffered torments of neurasthenia as the result, not of the labor of writing words on paper at a desk or of executing combinations of sounds on a musical instrument, but of the tremendous expenditure of emotional activity that goes with creative work. Few people can work at so high a tension. The average man has not a sufficiently prosy mind to bring on a nervous breakdown from this reason.

Whatever the cause or the nature, the neurasthenic is always tired; he is always below par; he always complains somewhat of some part of his body. He is a typical ghost at the feast, the "sourpuss."

I am describing here the chronic, life-long neurasthenic, and most of them have the condition throughout their lives. There are many instances, however, of acute nervous breakdown from emotional or physical cause and these are subject to successful treatment.

Mitchell's Rest Cure In spite of many psychotherapeutic methods, such as psychoanalysis, perhaps the best method of treatment for neurasthenics is the old one of Weir Mitchell, the rest cure. There are three cardinal features of the Weir Mitchell

TUNING IN

By Loren Hickerson

JOHN BOLES, the star of Hollywood pictures, and Sammy Kaye, the "swing and sway" maestro, will be guests of Kate Smith on her hour musical show on the Columbia network at 7 o'clock tonight.

Also featured on the program, which stars the "songbird of the south" in songs both old and new, will be the Ted Stuster choir, Jack Miller's orchestra, the Aldrich family starring Ezra Stone, and Abbott and Costello, the cross-fire comedians.

Boles has enjoyed sustained popularity longer than most of the current crop of Hollywood favorites. He was a star of "Desert Song" and "Rio Rita," two of screenland's earliest musical endeavors. His adaptability as a player has been illustrated in the straight dramatic roles he has had in such successes as "Stella Dallas," "Back Street" and "Craig's Wife." His appearance on the Kate Smith hour will star him in an original comedy sketch.

Only a few years ago Sammy Kaye was practically unknown. He was an Ohio university graduate with ambitions to reach the top in the orchestral world. With the advent of rhythm music (polite phrase, to be sure) the rise of the young clarinetist to a ranking position has been rapid. His band is currently holding down the dance music assignment at the Commodore hotel in New York.

WITH LIONEL BARRYMORE as a special guest, "Good News of 1933" will send its Christmas card over the airwaves tonight by presenting an elaborate preview of the screen version of Dickens' immortal story, "A Christmas Carol."

Barrymore will introduce the spot with Reginald Owen as Scrooge, the role he plays in the film version which is soon to be released, and a supporting cast of players to include Gene and Kathleen Lockhart, Ann Rutherford and Lynne Carver. The program will be heard at 8 o'clock tonight over the NBC-Red network.

All the regular stars will be on hand—Fanny Brice, Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Tony Martin, Leslie Howard and Jane Bryan will be guests on the Bing Crosby show at 9 o'clock tonight.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The stars can move over a little this week and make room for another. Her name is Paulette Goddard, and she's been a long time getting there—but there she is. Or should be after she has a couple more pictures like "Dramatic School."

Paulette's film experience before this included a term as a Goldwyn Girl, the lead opposite Chaplin in "Modern Times," and a supporting role in "The Young in Heart," her first talkie. I thought she was pretty, but otherwise only fair. In "Dramatic School," I think, she takes the cake—and practically out of academy award-winning Louise Rainer's mouth.

Co-star Rainer, as the little stage-worshipping girl who works in a factory by night and attends dramatic classes by day, is mostly excellent. The tremolo note that has marred some of her recent work is restrained, and she is even gay at times, which is becoming. But Paulette (partly, in fairness, because she is newer) makes the decided hit.

The film, directed by Robert B. Sinclair, cuts an interesting cross-section, a little reminiscent of "Stage Door," through the training grounds of drama. Louise, so imaginative that she believes her own stories, relates a romance with a marquis (Alan Marshal). When Nana (Goddard) spitefully brings the two together.

"Thanks for Everything" is another musical from the 20th Century-Fox pattern. After a slow start, it builds to consistent hilarity in scenes in which Jack Haley, as guinea pig for Adolphe Menjou's advertising firm, is subjected to "tests" to discover what provocation the "average man" needs to go to war.

It's Haley's picture, with singable tunes by Tony Martin, and Jack Oakie, Binnie Barnes, Arleen Whelan, and George Barber all helpful. William Seiter directed.

Tires Were Missing But Not for Long KOKOMO, Ind. (AP)—Raymond Frick parked his car outside the steel plant where he works. When he came out several hours later he found the two rear wheels missing.

On the following day Frick found two tires and wheels lying near the spot where he had parked his car. Tied to one of the wheels was a note reading "thanks for the loan."

asked, "What's the matter, Mother?" And Mrs. Kysner told him: "But James' program is over." Then Howell laughed and said: "Mother, I know this will be hard for you to believe, and it may come as something of a shock, but there are other orchestras on the air and, believe it or not, some of them are pretty good." Well, sir, she laughed and laughed when she told me that, because, as she put it, "For me radio begins and ends with James."

Didn't you see James at all, Uncle Tuck? No, I didn't, but I'll tell you who I did see. I saw Ulford Madison Maxwell Clementine Riggsbee. That's his name but you just call him Mack. He's James' chef, chauffeur, valet, personal secretary and chaperone. He's been with Kay ever since he steamed out of Chapel Hill in Passaic. Passaic is a famous old Ford that probably belongs in the Smithsonian Institution, because it took James just about to every state in the union when he was beginning his career as an orchestra leader.

Where's Passaic now, Uncle Tuck? In Rocky Mount, children, and there it'll stay. There have been other cars, and better ones, but none of these new stream-line whizzers is ever going to usurp old Passaic's place in James' heart. No, sir.

And now, my tots, toddle off to bed. Uncle Tuck's got business. He's got to tune in on Kay Kysner's college of the air, and how can you pay attention to college with a bunch of kids hanging around asking questions?

NEW YORK—Say, Uncle Tuck, how 'bout telling us a story? All right, children, but you'll have to be good and sit quietly and not talk. We'll be good, Uncle Tuck. Well, let me see. Once upon a time there were three brothers and their names were Howell, Edward and James. Howell was the eldest and he became a lawyer. Edward, the second brother, became a chemist. And James, the baby, became an orchestra leader.

Now maybe you know all about James, but not by that name. Because that's the name his mother calls him by when she doesn't call him Baby. But that's not the name everybody calls him by. Everybody else calls him Kay, and when you remember that his last name is Kysner, why who in the world could it be but Kay Kysner, the man who introduced singing titles to radio?

Ge, Uncle Tuck, who told you all those interesting things? Ah, that's a secret, but if you won't tell I'll let you in on it. Kay's mother told me herself. Yes, sir, she's visiting here from her home in Rocky Mount, N. C., and while James was out rehearsing I went up to see her. We talked for nearly an hour, and would you believe it, she has a broken arm. Yes, sir, she broke it just before she came to New York, but it's getting better now and she no longer carries it in a sling.

Well, we were talking about Kay and his orchestra and she told me that one night Howell—that's Kay's eldest brother, remember?—came to visit her, and they were listening to Kay on the radio, and when Kay's program was finished she reached right over and turned off the radio. When she did this Howell

Major Meeting Dull Affair

Very Little Accomplished and Nobody Seems To Mind—Except Martin

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—It appears that the major league powers, in convention assembled and doing little very audibly, have overlooked a most important item of business, to wit: what to do about the New York Yankees.

As Skipper Joe McCarthy, squire and content, his face split in a wide, tight grin, denits a lobby hair and listens with utter indifference to the howl of the trade winds, other pilots or owners scheme to split each other's throats in deals, whereas they might concentrate on developing one team which might give the Yanks at least a mild workout.

They might use the Red Sox as the guinea pig, or, if they wanted to start on a really fertile field, take the Athletics or the Browns which shouldn't be hard. Everybody else took them last season.

Anyway, with Colonel Jake Ruppert showing no signs of dissolving his team in the manner Connie Mack did when the world was his oyster, there appears a ripe field for a little conspiracy to do the dissolving for him, so the pennant race would be decided some other way than by acclamation. It's an idea.

Possibly too much is expected, but the opinion persists that despite their rivalry from faculty meetings, sales conventions and the Tuesday afternoon sewing circle, baseball confabs are in a class by themselves in developing

WILLIAMS SELECTS SQUAD OF 12 TO CARRY ON 2 GAME ROAD TRIP

De Paul And Butler Foes On Journey

With two consecutive victories to their credit, 12 Hawkeye basketball players will take to the road Friday on a tour that will carry them to Indianapolis, Ind., for a Saturday enshrinement with Butler college, and from there to Chicago, where Monday they tangle with the ever tough De Paul quintet. The tilt with De Paul's Demons will be the last before the New Year's eve joust with St. Louis university.

Coach Williams, in selecting his traveling squad, chose five guards, four forwards, and three centers.

The starting lineup for the two games will depend on how well the various players perform in today's practice session, particularly the probable starter in the center spot where Williams has been having considerable trouble in filling the pivot post to his satisfaction.

Although the Iowans defeated the Butler brigade last year, it is expected that the Bulldogs will provide the Hawkeyes with their toughest competition to date.

According to "Pops" Harrison, who scouted Butler earlier in the season, the Indianapolis five is composed of sharp-shooting veterans who lack nothing in speed and all-round play.

The De Paul team, always one of the better teams in this territory, apparently will prove tough as usual this year. The Demons, two weeks ago, dropped a double overtime tilt to Chicago's Maroons who are definitely better than at any time during the past several seasons.

The men making the trip: forwards—Capt. Benny Stephens, Angle Anapol, Fred Hohenhorst, Tom Lind; centers—Dick Evans, Howard Bastian, and Charles Plett; guards—Erwin Prasse, Joe Murray, Louis Selzer, Bob Hobbs and Howard Irvine.

Vet Swimmers Down Frosh

Ray Walters Cops Two Firsts In Rout of Yearlings

Capt. Ray Walters, splashing his way to two first places, last night paced Dave Armbruster's varsity tankmen to a 39 to 27 victory over Bob Allen's freshman swimmers.

Walters, proving definitely that he has fully recovered from the illness that kept him out of the water for a year, came through with easy victories in the 60 and 100-yard free style events.

Although George Poulus brought the freshmen a win in the 100 breast stroke, and the first year men captured the 160 relay, it was in the diving that they scored their one sweeping victory, the freshman trio of Beidrzyel, Vargon and Connell finishing in one, two, three order.

Frank Brandon of the varsity finished in fourth position. Medley relay, varsity (Al Armbruster, Lowry and Kershaw) first, freshmen second.

60-yard free style—Walters (varsity), first; Bareisa (freshmen), second; Cochrane (varsity), third; Coulter (freshmen), third. Diving—Beidrzyel (freshmen), first; Vargon (freshman), second; Connell (freshmen), third; Brandon (varsity), fourth.

200-yard free style—Armbruster (varsity), first; Draves (freshmen), second; Smertz (freshmen), third; Gerber (varsity), fourth.

100-yard free style—Walters (varsity), first; Kershaw (varsity), second; Wenstrom (freshmen), third; Bareisa (freshmen), fourth.

100-yard back stroke—Bremer (varsity), first; Brankamp (freshmen), second; Sauri (varsity), third; Mahoney (freshmen), fourth.

100-yard breast stroke—Poulus (freshmen), first; Lowry (varsity), second; Noon (freshmen), third; Nelson (varsity), fourth.

160-yard relay—freshmen (Bareisa, Kartra, Brankamp and Wenstrom), first.

Purdue Wins Again LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 14 (AP)—Purdue university's basketball team hit seven field goals in six minutes then coasted to a 39-27 victory over Detroit university here tonight.

The Boiler-makers held an uninteresting 16 to 11 lead at the half then came to life suddenly to run the count to 30-13 with an offensive led by Dickinson and Igney. Dickinson and Fisher paced the Purdue attack with nine points each. Callhan, Detroit center, was high man for the night with 11 points.

Frosh Gridders To Be Given Awards Today

Garner All But Six Votes in Amassing Overwhelming Count

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—The New York Yankees, missing a perfect score by only nine points, today were selected as the outstanding sports team of the year by an overwhelming margin.

The American league baseball champions, who went on to set a new record by beating the Chicago Cubs in four straight games for their third successive world series victory, were named first by 61 of the 67 contributing sports editors, with three votes each for second and third. On a basis of "three points for first, two for second and one for third, this gave the Bronx Bombers 192 points out of a possible 201.

The six votes for No. 1 team that didn't go to the Yanks were split among three football teams and the lone woman's combination to figure in the eighth annual Associated Press poll, the Edmonton Grads, Canadian basketball team.

Texas Christian's unbeaten and untied football forces got two first-place nominations and 45 points, for second place; Notre Dame, largely because many of the returns were in before its defeat by Southern California, got one No. 1 vote and 43 points, for third place, and Duke's unbeaten-untied-unscored on Blue Devils, the east's Rose Bowl entry, finished fourth with two first-place votes and 35 points.

Other relays will be in the fraternity, quadrangle, and co-operative dormitory events.

Six individual events will give Iowa varsity and freshman athletes their first 1939 competition. Coast House—George Miller, Iowa City, captain; Bob Campbell, Sharon; Hoyt Carrier, Vinton; Ray Gorman, Chicago, Ill.

AMERICAN LEAGUE WILL PLAY NIGHT BASEBALL

Opening Tilts Begin—as Usual—in Spring of Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—The American league today decided to open its 1939 season April 17 and close Sunday, Oct. 1.

As usual, there will be only one game on the opening day with the world champion New York Yankees meeting the Senators at Washington. The following day all the teams will swing into action with Boston at New York, Washington at Philadelphia, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at St. Louis.

Chicago, Cleveland and Boston will have their openers April 21 with the Browns meeting the White Sox, Tigers tangling with the Indians and the Athletics invading the Red Sox home park. On the same day the Yankees will be at Washington.

Snead After Big Money as Miami Tourney Begins

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP)—Samuel Jackson Snead trains his golfing guns on the last big prize of the year in the $10,000 Miami open tomorrow, needing less than $1,000 to send his 1938 tourney take past a record of $20,000.

The tactful cannoner from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who shelled the par 70 Miami Country Club course with a 287 in four competitive rounds last year, has warmed up with a pair of 67's this time — and he need finish no better than third to pass the previously unheard-of mark of 20 G's.

Snead, a relative newcomer to the cash-and-carry caravan of golf, has pocketed $19,039 this year while winning eight of 34 meets and ending well up in most of the others. First money in this 72-hole medal event will be $2,500, second $1,250 and third $1,000.

Sixty-eight Runners to Represent Girls' Organizations in Carnival

St. Mary's scrappy little band played the role of David in beating out the big Red Hawks of Cedar Rapids last night in the City high gym with a score of 24 to 22. It required an overtime period for the Ramblers to get the decision over the St. Wenceslaus five who fought stubbornly every inch of the way.

George Chadek furnished the crowd with plenty of excitement in the last few minutes when he had a chance to sew up the game with a pair of free throws, but missed both. However, he more than redeemed himself in the overtime period when he flipped in the bucket that won the game.

His brother Jim was largely instrumental in getting the winning points. He snatched the ball halfway down the floor from the Rambler basket and bulleted it up to George who was in the clear under the net. George turned and swished the netting with the one that settled the game in the Marjan's favor.

The fortunes of the game changed rapidly throughout; the Red Hawks leading at the quarter 8 to 6; St. Mary's going out at the half by a slim 12 to 11 lead, and St. Wenceslaus leading again at the conclusion of the third by a 15 to 13 count.

The tilt was rough and frequent fouls were called, two men on each side leaving the game via the foul route. Don Schmidt, rangy Rambler center, was injured in the third quarter while fighting under the invaders' basket for a rebound, but he stayed in the game until the finish.

Cincy May Get Major Meetings

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Baseball's two biggest "jam sessions" the week-long minor league meetings and the three-day major league conclave, may both be held in Cincinnati next year over a 10-day stretch.

The Cincinnati Reds suggested at today's National league meeting that the schedule be arranged in that way. Reds officials pointed out that since 1939 is baseball's centennial, and since Cincinnati had the first professional baseball team, such a move would be fitting.

The American league expressed willingness to join the National league in the proposal, and it was put up to the minor leagues for their approval.

Cub Deal For Slaughter Rumored

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today sold two of their minor league outfield holdings, Jim Ashell and Coaker Triplett, to farm teams of the St. Louis Cardinals, and immediately reports popped up that the transactions were forerunners of a deal involving purchase of Enos Slaughter from the Gas House gang.

Uniform Ball Is Adopted

Expected to Settle Disputes Arising As To Slugging Ability

By SID FEDER NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—In a "kiss-and-make-up" session marked by the friendliest attitude shown between the two loops in a long time, baseball's big leagues today agreed on a uniform ball and introduced night ball in both circuits for the 1939 season.

While rumors of impending trades were heard all over the Park avenue hotel in which the diamond magnates are meeting, each of the two leagues gave some ground in their previous stand on the ball question, and finally agreed on a pellet for 1939 which will have the raised and increased stitching of this year's so-called "dead" ball of the National league, and the thinner cover of the American league's livelier missile.

Then, the junior circuit swept its objections to night baseball out the window, passed a resolution introducing the game to its league and granted permission to the Cleveland Indians and Philadelphia Athletics to start the arc-light business going next season.

The Dodgers and Boston Bees, who already have completed two trades, indicated they were about to spring another, possibly tomorrow. Boston also is talking things over with Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh. The Pirates denied a rumor that outfielder Johnny Dickshot was to be traded or sold, and President Clark Griffith of Washington said the same thing about Al Simmons, although it was reported he had asked waivers on the veteran wallpaper.

In following the National league into the night baseball field, the American league passed a resolution almost identical with that under which the senior circuit has been operating for two years. Each club wishing to play is permitted seven games in its home park a season, and must offer one night date to each other team in the league. If one team refuses, the date may be offered to one of the other clubs, although no outfit can play more than two night games in any one rival's park a season.

Discussing a "pet peeve" of coaches and heads, the senior circuit also passed and recommended for action at tomorrow's joint session, the so-called college amendment, which protects college players against proselyting of players by professional clubs.

U-High Cagers Practice For West Branch

Somewhat discouraged by the erratic play of his cagers at Tipton Tuesday, Coach Brechler began preparations for the crucial conference tilt with West Branch here Friday night.

In an effort to shake off the listlessness of his varsity, Brechler stressed passing and ball handling again in yesterday's drill. The youthful U-High mentor realizes that his team is in for a surprise unless they show a marked improvement against the veteran West Branch five Friday night.

After pointing out the numerous errors committed in the Tipton battle, Brechler sent his entire squad through a lengthy drill in fundamentals.

In addition to the work on fundamentals, the locals were sent through a brief defensive drill in an attempt to iron out the weak spots in this phase of the game.

In last Tuesdays game the Blue and White lads failed to shift quickly enough and as a result their zone defense was cracked wide open on numerous occasions.

In addition to the varsity game the U-High sophomores will clash with the West Branch second team in a curtain raiser.

Farmer, Wife Husk 5,000 Bushels of Corn

CARLINVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Persons who think they work too hard should compare their labors with Clyde Murphy and his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy have just finished husking 5,000 bushels of corn from 90 acres on their Pawnee farm. Using one wagon and one team they averaged 148 bushels a day. Mrs. Murphy lost but one-half day's husking during the entire season.

In addition they took care of their chores night and morning, which included milking six cows.

Coming to Iowa

NORFOLK, Neb., (AP)—L. J. "Pat" Wilcox, golf professional at the Norfolk country club the past seven years, resigned yesterday to accept the offer of the Sunny Side country club at Waterloo. Wilcox' contract here has one more year to run but he will probably be released to accept the more lucrative post.

Elizabeth Stapleton Will Marry Bernard Wheeler This Morning

Iowa Graduate To Take Vows At Muscatine Church

Before an altar decorated with baskets of roses Margaret Elizabeth Stapleton, 122 E. Market street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Stapleton of Muscatine will be the bride of Bernard R. Wheeler of Muscatine, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wheeler of Muscatine, this morning at 9 o'clock in the St. Mathias church in Muscatine. The Rt. Msgr. W. L. Hannon will read the vows of the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear a gown of white chiffon velvet, fashioned with a cowl neckline and junior train. Gathered at the shoulder, the long sleeves extend into points over the wrists. Her circular tulle veil, which is edged in lace, is held in place with tiny white ostrich plumes. She will carry a shower bouquet of white roses.

Attending Miss Stapleton as matron of honor will be Mrs. Everett Lange. Mrs. Lange will wear a blue taffeta frock, the short puffed sleeves, sweetheart neckline and bouffant skirt of which is edged with lace. Lace also outlines the princess lines of the dress. She will wear matching accessories, including a tiny circular hat tied at the back of the head with a large bow. Mrs. Lange will carry a mixed colonial bouquet.

Mr. Lange will serve as best man, and ushers will be Ed Freers and Raymond Wheeler, a brother of the bridegroom. William Hylmar and Elmer Mapes will serve as acolytes.

The mother of the bride will wear a tea blue ensemble with matching accessories, and Mrs. Wheeler, mother of the bridegroom, will wear a black gown with matching accessories.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the Muscatine hotel. Decorating the table will be a bride's cake and baskets of roses. Later the couple will leave on a wedding trip, the destination of which has not been revealed.

Miss Stapleton attended the St. Mathias school in Muscatine and was graduated from the university in 1937. Since her graduation she has been employed as secretary at radio station WSUL.

Bremer's Group Gives Party For Bride-to-be

The employees of Bremer's clothing store entertained at a dinner Tuesday night in the Jefferson hotel in honor of Ruth Katz, 1036 Woodlawn, whose marriage to Al Greenberg of Philadelphia will take place during the holiday season.

Sharing honors with the bride-elect were her mother, Mrs. Goldie Katz, and her uncle, Harry Bremer.

A white basket of pink briar-cliff roses and white pompons centered the table. The decorative motif of pink and white was also carried out in the place cards, tapers and other table appointments.

Guests at the affair included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Slavata, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reedquist, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miltner, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Urbans, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Tomlin, Margaret Romaine, Lois Godlove, Mrs. Charles Kendall, Mary Condon, Watson March, John Simpson, Burdette Freercks, Paul Murray and Marvin Katz.

A new milking process which excludes air from all steps of the process has been invented by an Ohio State university professor.

All Dolled Up

All dressed up and ready to be put in Christmas stockings are these dolls which are shown with the members of Girl Scout troop 10 who made the clothing for them as part of their community service project.

HOTSTESS HINTS

Holidays are the best times for get-togethers. Neighbors drop in for friendly chats, visiting relatives stop by and children home from school come in to say "Hello!" For times like that you have to have refreshments on tap for every hour.

Perhaps you'll just pass a plate of home-made cookies or sugary doughnuts with a glass of cider. Or you'll set up a well-stocked buffet table with shiny dishes and silverware gleaming under holiday candles. Whether it's much or little, everyone relishes this mid-winter hospitality.

Since these days usually mean real feasting too, the wise hostess will plan things that will whet the appetites of casual callers.

Cider and doughnuts are always a treat and they're easy to serve. But for Christmas zest, add orange juice to the cider and put some dates and raisins in your doughnuts. Set a gaily colored pitcher of cider, steaming or chilled — on the table beside a heap of doughnuts and let the guests help themselves. A pitcher of some fruit or holly-red cranberry juice and a basket of plain sandwiches will be quite as welcome.

A crisp tasty teammate for beverages, coffee, tea, fruit juices, ginger ale or egg nog, is a plate of bell-shaped or star bits of baked thin cheese pastry.

Make your sandwiches small, use fillings that are tangy, meat or fish spiced up with chopped pickles, onions and salad dressings. There'll be plenty of candied fruit, Christmas cookies and other sweets on the table to make up for the demand for such things.

Different kinds of cheese sandwiches are good, too. A tip top filling for a toasted graham bread sandwich is several kinds of cheese with a little bit of cream and some chopped salad green. For one that appeals to men try this: Chopped ham mixed with cream cheese a dash of minced onion and salad dressing. Rye bread should be the choice for this one, and men also like minced cooked liver mixed with cream for a filling.

You can make your sandwiches hours ahead of time. In fact, it's better to do so for if sandwiches are packed tightly they will improve in flavor. Line a box with waxed paper and a damp cloth. Then wrap about six sandwiches together in waxed paper, pack the little bundles closely together, cover with another damp cloth and the lid and put the box in a cool place. Since sandwiches dry out quickly, pile just enough on the plates for serving, keeping the reserves well covered until you need them.

Package crisp crackers, cheese straws, jars of cheese and prepared sandwich mixtures as well as sardines and canned cooked tongue can be quickly pressed into service when the crowd exhausts the supply of made up food. So, see that the emergency shelf is well equipped. It will not be wasted as you do not need to use the packages unless they are needed.

Bowls of fruit with plenty of grapes, candied fruits, stuffed dates and assorted confections set on the table allow the guests to "nibble" as they please.

Leather Compacts
New vanity gadgets are compact and matching key rings ornamented with terrier's heads. Smart and inexpensive, the compacts are of solid leather. The key rings have leather dogs' heads to match.

White Shrine Will Meet For Dinner, Initiation

McMurtrie Tells of Services Printers Rendered in Early Day

Followed Footsteps of Earliest Pioneers To Western Frontier

Douglas C. McMurtrie, eminent printing authority and author, appeared as a graduate college lecturer here yesterday as a feature of the school of journalism's observance of the 300th anniversary of printing in what is now the United States.

"As we look back on pioneer history," said McMurtrie, "we must realize that those early printers, following close in the footsteps of the pioneers, rendered a great service in opening the west."

The speaker pointed out that the west, through its early newspapers, had advertised itself and its opportunities to the people of the more advanced east.

Traces Expansion

He traced the expansion of printing toward the west, along the early pioneer travel routes, and spoke of early printers who were outstanding in beginning the first newspapers of the western states.

"The press in Lexington, Ky.," he said, "provided all the western states with their printers. This was a notable contribution of one state to her sister states."

The speaker outlined the earliest 15th century history of printing in Europe, and pointed out that Gutenberg's invention of movable type in Germany in about 1455 was the outgrowth of increased need for the facilitated reproduction of texts.

Discounts Beliefs

McMurtrie discounted beliefs Gutenberg himself had printed the early Bible for which he is credited.

Printing in the new world, he asserted, began in Mexico almost 100 years before the advent of printing in the United States; that a Spanish printer had been sent to Mexico City to print religious works.

The press at Harvard university in Cambridge, Mass., was the first to appear in America, McMurtrie said. It had been brought here by Jose Glover, who returned to England for a press when he realized the need for something to combine the newly organized colonies together and to disseminate the news of both new and old worlds to all.

Daye First

Glover died on the return trip to America, and the task of actually beginning the work of the first press was left to his wife and a young English printer, Stephen Daye, who carried out the work.

The freeman's oath, taken by each member of the Massachusetts colony, was the first document to appear from the Cambridge press. An almanac, all copies of which have been lost, followed, with the "Bay Psalm Book," the first book to be printed in America, following soon after.

The first Iowa press, he said, was set up in Dubuque in 1836. It was a Franklin hand press, a press which later became the first press in other mid-western states. Upon it was printed the Dubuque Visitor, the first Iowa newspaper.

"No American community where English speaking people are gathered together," McMurtrie stated, "could long exist without the services of a printer and the function of a newspaper."

Make-Up Must Harmonize With Your Costumes

Color harmony is the watchword of smart make-up this season.

Like accessories, make-up must harmonize with one's costume, and so intricate has the art become that lipsticks, rouges and powders are designed with an eye on costume colors of today.

The safest way to make sure that your make-up is definitely harmonious with your ensemble is to visit your favorite beautician and talk over with her the colors in your wardrobe. Then, let her suggest the best color of lipstick, rouge, nail varnish and powder for your costume make-up.

The violet, cerise, fuchsia and magenta shades require a rather bright red lipstick and nail varnish with a purplish cast. The browns, beiges, rusts, greens, and terra cottas call for a rich clear red without a hint of purple. For evening there are two different types of make-up designed to blend with the after dark colors of the current mode.

Lipstick, rouge and nail polish for wear with petunia shades, purplish blues or to accent black or white should be rather bright and clear, a red verging on the strawberry. For mauve, purplish blues and the cyclamen shades there is an exciting color very similar to the cyclamen flower.

A smart trick of the season is to accent one's nail varnish and lipstick with a matching flower, bit of costume jewelry or an ostrich tip in the hair.

In 1905 it took 44 days for an automobile to cross the United States on a test run, New York to Portland, Ore.

Pharmacists Extend Christmas Greetings In Window Display

"Christmas greetings from the pharmacists."

This is the thought expressed in the Christmas window display of the practical pharmacy class.

Unlike other displays, this one embodies no advertising or display of products. It is a winter landscape scene in miniature with a background of dark blue paper which is studded with various sizes of silver stars. The smoke from the chimney of a house in the center foreground has formed the word "greetings" in the sky above the house. The scene is lighted by blue lights and a tinge of red.

The window was planned and installed by David Bernstein, P4 of Des Moines; Howard Clarke Jr., P2 of Burlington; William J. Burns, P1 of Oelwein, and John H. Ehlers, P2 of Reinbeck.

To Give Short Story Prize

A. French Memorial Prize of $50 to Be Presented to Student

The Alice French (Octave Thonet) memorial prize in short story writing will be offered again this year. A prize of $50 will be awarded the writer of the best short story written by an undergraduate of the University of Iowa.

Entries must be submitted to the English office in University hall by April 15, 1939. A committee consisting of members of the English department and outside judges will judge the stories. Last year, Ruth Suckow acted as a judge.

Dorothy Stronks and George Bryant, both seniors, have won the contest for the last two years.

Finland's Population Is on Increase

HELSINKI (AP)—The present population of Finland is 3,834,602, according to statistics just published. This shows an increase of 27,499 over the 1936 figures.

Seventy-eight per cent of the population lives in country districts, and is principally engaged in agriculture.

Prof. C. H. McCloy of the university physical education department spoke to the CCC camp at Solon last night. His subject of discussion was "Science Helps the Coach."

Red Apple Makes Attractive Piece For Holiday Table

For an attractive centerpiece for a holiday table, make a candle holder from a red apple. Cut a hole in the center of the apple and fit a red or gold Christmas taper in the cavity. Tie a gay bow of silver or red ribbon around the center of the candle, and then place the candle and holder in a nest of evergreen branches. On a white tablecloth the effect is colorful and attractive as well as inexpensive.

Second of Two Lectures Given by Dr. Paul Nemenyi; Deals with Propulsion of Sand

Dr. Paul Nemenyi, noted European authority on fluid mechanics, presented the last of two lectures on the Iowa campus yesterday before students in engineering and geography. His topic was "Geophysics, Geomorphology and the Civil Engineer."

"Geophysics deals with such physical phenomena which are particular to our particular planet," Dr. Nemenyi said, "and which cannot possibly be studied in all their essentials through laboratory experiments alone."

"Examples of such phenomena are storms, lightning, ocean waves, the gulf stream, earth magnetism, earthquakes, volcanic outbursts, river and beach erosion and sandstorms in deserts."

"Geomorphology, on the other hand, approaches the problems of our planet through description of the characteristic forms of its surface and through analysis of the causes which led to these forms; obviously both deal with the same facts, and only the way of approach is different."

"Both studies should be distinguished from geology, which deals with the physical and biological processes which took place on or near the surface of our planet in remote ages and which have left their imprints mainly below the present surface of the earth."

After his introduction, Dr.

University Band Host Today To Bandmasters

The University of Iowa band will act as host to members of the Southeastern Iowa Bandmasters' association at its regular monthly meeting today.

Bandmasters from this part of the state will meet with the Iowa band at 4 o'clock this afternoon for a clinic rehearsal, in which various types of music and playing styles will be demonstrated.

The band will be host to a dinner meeting for the visitors on the sun porch of Iowa Union at 6 o'clock. Moving pictures of football games will follow the dinner.

Prof. Charles B. Righter, director of the Iowa band, is vice-president of the Iowa Bandmasters' association.

Iowa Chemists Studying Fats

May Discover Cause Of Chemical Action Which Spoils Fats

From research work in biochemistry at the University of Iowa eventually may come discoveries which will prevent rancidity from ruining fat products such as butter, lard and oils.

Prof. H. A. Matill, director of the anti-oxygen research in biochemistry, made this report yesterday as he announced some of the results to date and plans for continued studies in 1939.

"The actual chemical events are still somewhat obscure but a careful chemical study has revealed the possible presence of some new types of intermediate products which are responsible for the ultimate formation of rancid products," he said.

The university scientist also said that work is continuing on the nature of substances which can be introduced into fats to prevent the rancidifying process from starting.

"One of the newer vitamins, vitamin E, is one of the constituents of natural fats which has this ability. The possible function of this vitamin in the regulation of processes of rancidification in the organism is also being studied further," Professor Matill declared.

He said that a number of other naturally occurring substances have the capacity to prevent the rancid condition. During the next year, research under his direction will seek further facts about their composition and action.

Interest of scientists of numerous nations was aroused last summer when aspects of the research were presented before the International Physiological Congress in Zurich, Switzerland.

Woman's Debate Team Leaves For Lafayette

Dorothea Guenther, A2 of Davenport, and Frances Highbarger, A3 of Muscatine, will leave this morning for Purdue university in Lafayette, where they will appear tonight in the second of this year's women's Western Conference debates.

Dr. Loretta Wagner, director of women's intercollegiate debate here, will accompany the team.

The question for discussion tonight is the same as the one used last Thursday night when Iowa

Bury Record of Present World Under Fair Grounds, to Be Dug up in 6936

Buried 50 feet beneath the surface of the earth, on the grounds of the New York World's Fair, in September of this year lies the time capsule which will preserve for posterity a record of our present world.

The story of the technical and educational details of the casket and a brief description of the contents which will be unearthed by the archeologists of 6939 A.D., is told by John Yuhas, E3 of Garfield, N. J., former editor, in the December issue of The Transit.

Newton Sacks, A3 of Sioux City and campus editor of The Transit, has written an interesting history of the meat packing industry in Iowa. He has lived most of his life in Sioux City and has been in personal contact with the industry.

His article will be continued next month.

"Stream Crossings" by Capt. Leonard Kuhre of the engineering corps, is a story of the problems of moving a large body of men across an unfordable river in a few hours and how those problems were solved.

Prof. F. G. Higbee of the college of engineering yields the faculty pen and produces an essay about the Christmas recess.

All these stories, combined with alumni news, a report of engineering progress in the light of building bridges, campus news, and "Quips and Quiddities" make up the latest issue of The Transit, which is published monthly by the students of engineering at the University of Iowa.

Freshman Rifle Team Named By Wendlandt

Students selected for the freshman rifle team of 1939 were announced yesterday by Sergt. H. W. Wendlandt, coach of the R. O. T. C. rifle team.

Seventeen marksmen were selected out of a class of more than 100.

Last year the 1938 rifle team won the national intercollegiate freshman rifle match. Competition in this event this year will occur sometime between Jan. 15 and March 15.

Those selected for the 1939 team include B. E. Boyer, E1 of Farmington; R. Hess, E1 of Iowa City; W. Keller, E1 of Cedar Rapids; J. Nichols, A1 of Newton; J. O'Brien, A1 of Des Moines; V. Pettit, A1 of Des Moines; D. L. Price, A1 of Jefferson.

L. Pritchard, A1 of Traer; M. Ruby, A1 of Seymour; W. R. Silver, A1 of Montezuma; S. H. Swisher, A1 of Iowa City; E. Schneekloth, E1 of Davenport; F. L. Venable, A1 of New Sharon; Bill Berryhill, A1 of Livermore; M. W. Moore, E1 of Sea Girt, N. J.; L. Benda, A1 of Iowa City, and E. E. Loan, A1 of Iowa City.

University High School to Give Moliere Farce, 'The Physician'

Prof. Klein Reviewer Urges Book As Law Basis

The "Survey Midmonthly" reviews Prof. Earl E. Klein's book, "Work Accidents to Minors in Illinois," in the current issue. Professor Klein is of the division of social administration to minors under 18, and the reviewer, who is a member of the national child labor committee, points to this study as a means by which a university can fulfill a social function — that of unearthing and assembling factual data essential to a successful legislative campaign, and suggesting what form legislation should take.

She urges that the findings and recommendations made by Professor Klein be the basis for bills to be presented to the legislature of Illinois, in an effort to secure adequate protective laws for children and young people.

5 Engineers Receive Cadet Promotions

The following promotions in the engineering unit of R. O. T. C. were announced yesterday by Lieut. Col. Louis A. Falligant.

John D. Howard, E4 of Marion, has been advanced to cadet captain.

Promoted to cadet corporals are Eugene F. Knott, E2 of Avoca; Robert J. Strabley, E2 of Iowa City; George E. Lindholm, E2 of Iowa City, and William B. Hills, E2 of Iowa City.

Prof. Joy W. Kistler, head of athletics and physical education at University high school, spoke to the Benton County Schoolmasters' club at Blairtown last night. His topic was "Safety in Athletics."

Drama Department of University to Help In Giving Production

University high school will present "The Physician in Spite of Himself," one of Moliere's best French farces, at 8 o'clock tonight in University theater. Donald Winbigger, associate in the speech and dramatic arts department who directed "The Youngest," all high school production this summer, will direct tonight.

"The Physician" is the first University high school play of the school year to be presented in cooperation with the University theater and the dramatic arts department.

The story is built around a woodcutter who is passed off as a doctor by his wife, seeking revenge upon him for having beaten her. Its feature is a broad variety of comedy and slapsticks, from which the modern term, "slapstick comedy," is derived.

Cyrus Bedy and Duane Carson will play the servants in the play. Bill Boiler will portray Sganarelle and Patty Bates will play the part of Martine.

Other characters include Herbert H. Bowie as M. Roberts; David Boys as Lucas; John McAllister as Valere; Paul Bordwell as Geronte; Elizabeth Spencer as Jacqueline; Ruth Carmichael as Lucinde; Jack Cooke as Leandre; Lynn Frazier as Thibaut, and Bruce Adams as Perrin.

Adults and those not registered in University high school may obtain tickets for the production at the high school for 35 cents.

Woman's Club Meets Tonight

Yule Music Will Be Presented by Choirs And Harp Soloist

Christmas music by a boys chorus and harp selections will form the Christmas program of the music department of the Iowa City Woman's club at a meeting this evening at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Roy C. Flickinger.

The boy carolers group, directed by Mrs. M. M. Crayne, will sing "Here We Come A-Caroling," an old air from Yorkshire; "Deck the Hall With Boughs of Holly," an old Welsh melody; "Angels We Have Heard on High," an old French carol; "Little Town of Bethlehem" by Redner, and "Away In a Manger" by Herbert. Willetha Reber will present four selections for the harp including "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," an old English air; "At Dawning" by Cadman; "Barcarolle" by Offenbach, and "The Rosary" by Nevin.

Under the direction of Mrs. Dwight Curtis, the Woman's club chorus will sing the "Cherubim Song" by Tschalkovsky and "Carol of the Russian Children" by Trehane.

After the program the whole group will join in group singing.

Decorate Your Front Door For Yuletide Spirit

When you're decorating your home for this Christmas season, don't neglect your front door. When your guests arrive, that first impression of the holiday spirit before they even enter the house helps add to the Yuletide cheer. So spruce up your entrance with a wreath of pine trimmed with silver cones and fastened with a red or white bow. Or tie two or three weather-proofed bells to your knocker. An electrically lighted candle wreath provides a Christmas touch at night. Or for a truly novel idea combine Mexican gourds and evergreen into an attractively colored wreath and hear the compliments come. So get into the spirit of the season, put your thinking cap on your curls and your best Christmas idea on your front door.

Mrs. Enlow To Entertain Group

Mrs. Eliza Enlow, 1228 Sheridan avenue, will be hostess to the Stitch and Chatter club tomorrow at 2 p.m. Mrs. W. A. Roessler will assist the hostess. The meeting will be a Christmas party with the exchange of gifts a feature of the afternoon.

Concentrate On Hobbies

Gift Problem Solved By Catering to Big Interest at Yuletide

If your friends or relatives have hobbies, your Christmas gift problems are solved by catering to their main interests. Then you may feel that you have pleased them and that the gift will be cherished long after the holiday season.

Nowadays most people have some fascinating fad they follow when the office is closed for the night and anything that will add to their enjoyment of this hobby is very close to their hearts.

For the man who spends many of his leisure hours behind a lens or in a dark room, you might choose a tripod, a light meter or a book on trick photography. If he has an acute case of camera fever his gift could be a set of camera filters to give different tonal qualities to his prints.

Does your list include a woman to whom spring means gardens and seeds? You probably can add to her Christmas cheer with a linen garden smock embroidered with gay flowers on the pocket, a big sun hat or gardening gloves.

Or consider the man who is always looking for new sensations for his palate. A box of choice cheeses, assorted pots of honeys or jams, or a rich fruit cake tied with shining ribbons would give him something to remember for many a day.

You can say Merry Christmas to the music lover with some new records, one of the modern wide racks to hold his old ones or a book on the opera to brighten up his days for months to come. The amateur painter and sketcher will thoroughly enjoy an easel, a water color block or a few tubes of good paint. If you are sure of the print collector's taste why not add to his store with an etching or a Japanese print?

If there is an angler on your list, consider one of the new fish nets with a scale in the handle, a star drag reel, a tackle box or a book showing him how to tie his own flies. You will probably earn deep gratitude from the man who spends much time on the water with a lightweight, warm wool sweater or an oilskin suit.

For the woman who makes steamer travel her hobby there is a wide range of gifts. A steamer rug in a handled case, a capacious handbag with a slide-fastened pass-port pocket, silk envelopes to hold lingerie, handkerchiefs and stockings, a bottle bag with rubber lined pockets, or a case holding collapsible dress hangers are some welcome suggestions for her.

And for the woman everyone knows who concentrates on personal beauty and charm there are masses of interesting gifts. A new vanity bag of unusual shape, eau de cologne in a painted porcelain bottle, a mirrored make-up box, or scented satin sachet for her closet — all are happy ideas.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman James W. Wadsworth's recent announcement of his candidacy for the republican leadership in the next house of representatives puts some "pep" into the G.O.P. intra-party politics for the beginning of the coming session on Capitol Hill. When Congressman Bertrand Snell, republican leader for several seasons past, dropped out of the running for renomination it generally was taken for granted that Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr., having succeeded him, Martin, would be Snell's assistant, has a certain claim to promotion. Moreover, during the last electoral fight he was chairman of the republicans' representational campaign committee. As we know, the G.O.P. made big gains, for which it's recognized that Chairman Martin of their congressional board of strategy is entitled to his share of credit.

Besides, Martin is Wadsworth's senior in point of service, which counts in these contests. Martin is just starting on his eighth term; Wadsworth only on his fourth. Still, Wadsworth has a record of 12 years in the senate before he began being a representative. Perhaps that even him up with Martin. Or perhaps not. Wadsworth would be a senator yet, but he was beaten for reelection — by Sen. Robert F. Wagner. Then was when he grabbed at a representative's seat, as the next best bet, and won it. He can carry his district but he couldn't carry his state. Maybe Martin couldn't carry his state, either, but he never has proved it. Wadsworth has and it's no asset to a politician to have taken a licking.

A Debatable Issue

As between Martin and Wadsworth the issue is debatable.

All the same, I'd guess that Wadsworth's victory over Martin would cause a medium of ill feeling.

It won't be as ill as the ill feeling which resulted from Alben W. Barkley's defeat of Pat Harrison for the democratic leadership in the senate. But that was different. The democrats' congressional majorities are so large that they can afford a bit of internal friction. The republican minorities are so small that they've got to stick together. A defeated G.O.P. faction may be mildly grouchy for awhile, but it will get in line presently.

This isn't true of the democrats. They quarrel among themselves even when they're in a minority. The late Democratic Speaker Joseph W. Byrns repeatedly told me that the democrats have principles, but the principles of various democratic wings conflict, dividing them into groups of little impetencies. But the republicans, he said, having no principles, can unite any old way.

Of course that's a rather democratic way of expressing it, but the fact remains that the democrats generally are not as cohesive as the republicans. If Martin and Wadsworth get into a mean enough row the talk is that the G.O.P. will pick its representative leader from the mid-west as a compromise. Yet the trouble with that scheme is that the mid-west has scarcely any veterans of the G.O.P. brand to choose among, and a party congressional leader needs oodles of experience. The republicans in the senate are fixed all right, with Charles L. McNary as their generalissimo. It's up to the house republicans to use pretty good judgment.

Hard Boiled Bert
Bertrand H. Snell, known as "Hard Boiled Bert," is fading from the picture. He was a majority leader for a long time — when he was in a majority. It hasn't been so easy for him since he's been in a minority. Today republican diplomacy is essential and Bert hasn't got it.

Perhaps Martin, from Massachusetts, is as conservative as ever Bert (a New Yorker) was. He's more suave nevertheless.

Wadsworth (another New Yorker) is as polished as Martin is — and as conservative, or more so. He knows the west also; he's managed a ranch in Texas. There's nothing obviously hard boiled about him.

Martin, by the way, essentially is a newspaperman. Newspaper folk notoriously know nothing about business, but there's an occasional exception. Martin is one of the exceptions. He has the publicity flair more than Wadsworth has — a lot more of it than Bert ever had. My surmise would be that he'll get that leadership.

A western leadership is a mid-dling remote contingency. It may seem unimportant, considering the present eclipse of the republican party.

Nevertheless, who knows? It's maneuvering for 1940.

ROOM AND BOARD

CHAPTER 35

IT SEEMED like an hour or two that Dr. Holgate stood there, moving his chin, but uttering nothing sensible, staring at the boor who had forced Sara Sue onto the fellow, who was grinning. Then a man touched Dr. Holgate's elbow. "Wasn't that the girl you bragged?" queried Mr. White, Leila's husband.

Mr. White, a ship's carpenter, had mentioned earlier that he was proud to know Thornton.

"Why—yes! Yes, it is!" Thornton still seemed frozen, immobile.

"Well, I'd of smacked him over the focas'le, m'self. Why'n't you do it?"

"Ah. Yes! Yes, I shall, Mr. White!"

Thornton came to life, and when he did so he walked onto the dance floor. Sara Sue almost bumped into him then. She had struggled free, but Mr. Duke O'Reilly was still grinning and pursuing her.

Whereupon Dr. Thornton Holgate, who was accustomed to swimming, and who played a very good game of tennis on occasions, drew back his right arm.

SPLAT!

It didn't make an awful lot of noise, but everybody seemed to hear it.

Mr. O'Reilly, amply warned, had tried to duck too late. Now he seemed to fold up, knees and midships, and he dropped in a heap on the floor.

"Wham!" said some bystander, enthusiastically. "What'd he do, Mister?"

A circle of people had formed. The music stopped. And at that juncture Mr. White, Leila's husband, stepped forward, fists up.

"Well, if O'Reilly's got a gang here, where are ye? Me an' Holgate here's achin' for more exercise. Ain't we, Holgate?"

"Why, ah—yes! Yes, just come on! One does not dare insult ladies in this assembly! I—that is, we—will—will smack them over the focas'le. I am with you, White, one hundred per cent."

Nobody thought it funny. In fact, it wasn't funny—unless one could have known the old Thornton Holgate intimately and been peeking in a man in a tuxedo had knocked out a sailor, and another sailor had stood up for the man in the tux. Who wants to fight now?

Nobody did, and the dance went on. Some fellows dragged Duke O'Reilly out and revived him, but by that time Sara Sue and Thornton were on their way home.

"I am proud to know you, Mr. White, repeated, bidding them goodby. 'I'd thank you to come and see me and Leila some time. I want she should know folk better than me. I'm just a sailor. She married beneath her station, and—"

"I am sure she did not, Mr. White," Thornton declared, shaking hands, "even though she is a charming lady. We certainly hope to see you both again. I enjoyed the evening. I am grateful for your assistance in the little—ah—difficulty, also."

Sunday morning found Sara Sue Davis with a great deal on her mind.

She had refused both Bob Towne and T. J. Sanders when they had asked her for church dates this morning, and now she was doubly glad. She wanted to be alone. Or at least to be with her own private affairs. She soon found herself talking with black Cleo.

"Uhm uhm, you sho keeps yo'self busy, ma'am," Cleo was saying. "You got more love business than you 'magine you'd have, I expect."

"I surely have, Cleo!"

There had been the upsetting episode of the Gurleys. The Gurleys, man and wife now! Youngsters still in their teens. Sara Sue sometimes had moments of conscience about that. Should she have stopped their marriage—or tried to—instead of aiding it? Well, they'd both be in a few days, and if ever she saw a perfect match, this was it. Moreover, they would have eloped anyway; Marcia's own father, who had flown to Houston when he got the news, admitted that Sara Sue had been instrumental in keeping them both in Rice.

She had "lectured" Worthington's father. "World conditions today are not like they were 20 years ago, Mr. Gurley. Maybe your son acted for the best, after all. He will keep his chin up, whatever you do; he has pride. And he has friends, I can assure you. I hope you don't be too hard on him."

Mr. Gurley, Sr., had mumbled and rumbled a lot, and ended up by giving the married kids his blessing. He said it would cramp his bank account, but he would at least keep Worthington in school. And Marcia promptly found herself a spare-time job—and stayed in school, too!

"Anyway, I have that romance settled," Sara Sue told Cleo. "At least for a while. I think it will stick, too. They really love each other."

"Yes'm, they does," Cleo agreed. "You settles things well. Other people's troubles, I mean. But—Miss Sara Sue, ma'am—"

"What, Cleo?"

"How 'bout your own love affairs, ma'am? Is you happy your own self?"

"Uhm. No'm, you ain't. You cain't fool old black Cleo!"

You couldn't, indeed, fool old black Cleo. Sagacious, observant, wise in a race-old wisdom that was better than any literacy of the whites, Cleo knew!

"Miss Sara Sue, when you tol' me al' about Mistuh Dr. Holgate, ma'am, your eyes just shine all over the place, and have a far-away look in 'em. Tell your ol' colored frien', ma'am, is every-thing perfectly all right?"

"Certainly, Cleo." The white girl was a trifle embarrassed.

"He is a fine looking gentlemun. Calc'us say he powerful smart."

"He is smart, He's a professor."

"Calc'us say he been settin' up to Miss Peaches Pomero-y."

"Yes, he is in love with—why Cleo. That's a secret! Don't you ever mention that to anyone. You hear me?" Sara Sue was astounded at the thought of having broken a confidence.

"You knows I don't tell nothin', neyuh! But that don't mean I don't know nothin'! That ain't all I knows, eithuh."

Sara Sue looked at her cook.

"What else do you know, Cleo? I ought to discharge you at once! Maybe I will!"

"No'm, you won't. You's my baby, and you thinks a heap of me, and you knows you do, heh-heh. Ah has to keep a close look-out over you, all the time. You knows you ain't talkin' with no stranguh, honey."

Sara Sue knew it, truly. She loved Cleo, in a very real way. No more loyal servant ever lived; no better friend, in her earnest way. Their relationship was not a rare one down south. Sara Sue smiled sweetly at her, feeling almost like a little child, like the baby that Cleo called her.

"Peoples awful proud of you, honey. You see yourself in the paper that day? Law, Miss Sara Sue, ma'am, a million peoples calls here about that! They proud of you. So is we all, and I betcha so is Mistuh Professuh Holgate, ma'am."

"He's a real hero, Cleo. He saved two lives, and last night he—"

Sara Sue was off again, talking, opening her heart. She told Cleo the whole story of his evening at the dance hall, told it with enthusiasm. But she finished rather lamely.

"I—I took him out there," she tried to explain, "to get the experience at dancing. He has been taking private dancing lessons, and I wanted a good place for him to practice. Then he can—can go to dances better with—Peaches."

"Uhm, yassuh. But Miss Sara Sue, honey— The old woman spoke with infinite tenderness now. "You ain't telling nobody nothing. The truth is, honey, you been awful busy helping othuh peoples with they love business, but you ain't done right by your own self. You coulda already made marriage with Mistuh Bob, I bets. And Mistuh T. J.—lawdy, he worships the groun' you walks on! But you is yearnin' your heart for another man. Now ain't you, honey?"

Slowly, Sara Sue nodded, staring out a window. Tears were glistening in her eyes.

Cleo put a fat arm around her "baby" and patted her a bit. Then she moved away. "I brews you a cuppa tea, honey. It perks you up, quick." Cleo had deliberately changed the subject. The truth was, she had choked with emotion herself, "her own self." Tears dimmed her own eyes.

Sara Sue drank the tea gratefully, talking little but thinking much. It was true. She fully realized it now. Realized what she had tried desperately to keep a secret even from herself. Sipping from the steaming cup, she admitted now that she loved Thornton Holgate more than anything else in all the world.

And she was pledged to help him make love to another girl, one whom—how cruel is circumstance sometimes!—she knew to be thoroughly unworthy of him, but for whom he had admitted his own devotion.

"Uhm. No'm, you ain't. You cain't fool old black Cleo!"

You couldn't, indeed, fool old black Cleo. Sagacious, observant, wise in a race-old wisdom that was better than any literacy of the whites, Cleo knew!

"Miss Sara Sue, when you tol' me al' about Mistuh Dr. Holgate, ma'am, your eyes just shine all over the place, and have a far-away look in 'em. Tell your ol' colored frien', ma'am, is every-thing perfectly all right?"

"Certainly, Cleo." The white girl was a trifle embarrassed.

"He is a fine looking gentlemun. Calc'us say he powerful smart."

"He is smart, He's a professor."

"Calc'us say he been settin' up to Miss Peaches Pomero-y."

"Yes, he is in love with—why Cleo. That's a secret! Don't you ever mention that to anyone. You hear me?" Sara Sue was astounded at the thought of having broken a confidence.

"You knows I don't tell nothin', neyuh! But that don't mean I don't know nothin'! That ain't all I knows, eithuh."

Sara Sue looked at her cook.

"What else do you know, Cleo? I ought to discharge you at once! Maybe I will!"

"No'm, you won't. You's my baby, and you thinks a heap of me, and you knows you do, heh-heh. Ah has to keep a close look-out over you, all the time. You knows you ain't talkin' with no stranguh, honey."

MELBOURNE (AP)—Alfred Williamson has bet $250 he can ride from Sydney, New South Wales, to Melbourne—about 480 miles—on a rocking horse.

He started Dec. 1. To win his wager he would have to be back in Melbourne by the end of the year.

The horse, like those on a merry-go-round, will move on two pairs of roller skates. The front will be geared for steering with reins, and the rear skates driven by a chain geared to tricycle pedals.

CARLSBAD, N. M. (AP)—Postmaster Ray Soladay hopes Carlsbad gets around to installing plenty of street lights very soon.

"Then the loafers won't have to loaf and lean on Uncle Sam's mail boxes," said Soladay. "Some of the boxes are of wood and I think 90 per cent of Carlsbad loafers must be whittlers because our mail boxes look like skinned totem poles."

Community Chest Drive Reaches 88.86 Per Cent of Quota

Residential Division Only One To Oversubscribe Set Figure

Director R. Taylor Announces Results As Campaign Closes

Iowa City's Community Chest campaign for 1939 officially closed with 88.86 per cent of the $18,915 quota set for the drive, 2,474 subscribers contributing $16,838.15, Roscoe E. Taylor, director, declared yesterday in a final report to Prof. Elmer E. Hills, chairman of the chest board of trustees.

Director Taylor pointed out that $1,175.75 of the funds were designated as follows to the five participating organizations: social service, $718.31; boy scouts, $112.37; girl scouts, $68.64; post room, $68.19; and recreational center, $208.24.

While the goal for this year was not reached, the amount raised will cover the budgets approved for the organizations in the chest and expenses for the campaign and administration throughout the year, he continued. There is no adequate provision for shrinkage, he added.

The drive was divided into eight groups of which the residential division oversubscribed its quota 1.62 per cent with $1,244.85; the national firms group came second, with $1,871.50, 98.50 per cent of their goal; and the university, third with $4,061.25 amounting to 96.70 per cent of its goal.

The amounts subscribed to the other five divisions, and the percentage of the quota made in each, are: business, $5,005.50, 88.59 per cent; public schools, $386.50, 85.89 per cent; University hospitals and medical laboratories, $1,508.20, 82.7 per cent; employees, $1,792.37, 82.7 per cent; and professional, $958, 66.07 per cent.

Only $557.53 of the $1,000 budgeted for the chest campaign expenses have been spent this year, increasing over four hundred dollars the net funds available for distribution to the institutions participating in the chest, the director said.

Taylor declared that the cooperation of the Kiwanis, Lions, and Rotary service clubs in providing luncheons for the campaign solicitors during the first week of the drive was very important in the campaign's organization.

Thanks to the Jefferson hotel were expressed for the very favorable arrangements made for chest headquarters. The director also expressed gratitude to the chamber of commerce for extending its office facilities during the concluding weeks of the campaign.

ter serving prison terms, 85 per cent either were convicted of other crimes within five years of their release or were killed while participating in crime.

Reclaiming first offenders, the judge said, can be successful in 99 per cent of the cases—but such work must be done with the individual boys, and by individual judges, sheriffs and county attorneys.

"Unfortunately," Judge Gutknecht added, "political credit does not follow this kind of activity like 'hanging up a record' for sending men to the penitentiary."

Masonic Lodge To Confer 3rd Degree Tonight

Iowa City Masonic lodge No. 4, A. F. & A. M., will confer the third degree upon two members of the school of dentistry faculty this afternoon and evening.

The work will start at 4 o'clock and will reconvene at 7:30. Dr. Ray V. Smith, master of the lodge, will be the presiding officer.

Monday evening at the regular monthly meeting officers for the coming year will be elected.

Church-Goers Raise Corn for Budget

CROFTON, Neb. (AP)—Members of a rural Evangelical church near here raised money for their budget by renting a 35-acre plot of ground. They grew corn on it, sent 30 churchmen out to husk the crop and sold it.

Pleads Innocent

NEW YORK. (AP)—Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of a state supreme court justice, pleaded innocent yesterday to a smuggling indictment which named her as a co-defendant with Albert N. Chaperau, and was released on $1,000 bail for trial Jan. 3.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Works Progress Administration disclosed yesterday work relief enrollment dropped to 3,139,045 during the week ended Dec. 10, which was 123,624 below the record peak of 3,262,669 on Nov.

Holiday Events Announced By Moose Lodge

Two holiday events were announced last night at the regular meeting of the local chapter of the Moose lodge, No. 590 L.O.O.M. A Christmas-day party for the children of the lodge members is to be given in the lodge hall at 2:30 p.m. Dec. 25. Lawrence Miller will be in charge of the gifts given to the children.

This year's New Year's eve dance will begin at 9 p.m. at the Moose hall. Putnam's orchestra will play for the event. William Kanack, chairman of the entertainment committee, will be in charge of both of these events.

The $18,000 remodeling work of the lodge hall will be completed by Dec. 22, and the formal opening will be held sometime after the holidays.

SEC Charges Filed Against Investment Co.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—A strenuous legal struggle appeared in prospect today after the Securities commission filed charges of "fraud and deceit" against the Fidelity Investment association which, officials said, has sold about $600,000,000 of securities to the public.

Officials described the case as the "biggest of its kind in SEC history." The complaint was filed in federal district court at Detroit, where Judge Edward J. Moine directed the concern to show cause by next Monday why it should not be enjoined from using the mails or engaging in interstate commerce.

The firm made plain at once that it would fight. Carroll Evans, vice-president, declared at the headquarters of the company in Wheeling, W. Va., that he was sure it could convince the court that it should not be restrained.

The company, which has offices in 58 leading cities throughout the country, has a staff of 2,000. In its financial statement of June 30, 1938, it listed as directors a former U. S. senator from West Virginia, a former governor of North Dakota, a former assistant U. S. attorney general, a director of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Pittsburgh and a director of Republic Steel corporation.

The SEC complaint alleged that the company "has engaged and is now engaged in transactions and practices . . . which operate . . . as a fraud and deceit upon the purchasers of securities issued by it."

Rob Woman Of Coat, Purse

Nona Cooper, 1137 E. Burlington street, reported to police that two Negro women took her purse and coat from her as she was going home at about 11 p.m. yesterday.

She told police that the two women accosted her as she was walking east on College street near the intersection with Lucas street. One of the women put a hand over her mouth and the other took her purse and coat, she said. The two escaped before Miss Cooper was able to get a description of them.

Five Motorists Appear Before Judge Carson

Charged with speeding, Charles Brady was fined $15 and costs yesterday by Police Judge Burke N. Carson. Eleven dollars of the fine was suspended on the condition that Brady attend traffic school.

W. J. Peterson was dismissed with a warning for street storage; Horace Love paid a $1 fine for parking in a prohibited zone; Ivan Schmidt was fined $5 and costs for disturbing the peace; and Roger Kessler, charged with speeding, was deprived of his operator's license for two weeks and fined $15 and costs, but $12 was suspended when he agreed to attend traffic school.

DUKE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE DURHAM, N. C.

Four terms of eleven weeks are given each year. These may be taken consecutively (graduation in three and one-quarter years) or three terms may be taken each year (graduation in four years). The entrance requirements are intelligence, character and three years of college work, including the subjects specified for Class A medical schools. Catalogues and application forms may be obtained from the Admission Committee.

Dredge Begins Work at Park

Having cleared away the entire wedge of land that formerly extended into the Iowa river south of City park bridge, the hydraulic dredge of the Emergency Conservation works now engages in clearing away over 30,000 cubic yards of swampy land at the southeast corner of the park. Superintendent Edward Brown, in charge of the project, said, "In spite of the freezing weather, we expect to have the entire area dredged out by the new year." In order to move the dredge under the bridge Tuesday, Brown said it was necessary to lower the level of the river 10 inches by closing the dam at Coralville and opening the dam at the hydraulics laboratory. Since the lowering of the river lessened the available power of the Iowa City Light and Power company, the university power plant cooperated for a time to supply Iowa City with electricity.

Newburn Tells Of War Scare

Principal Describes Trenches in Parks, Other Preparations

Prof. H. K. Newburn, principal of University high school, told the story of the recent war scare in England, at the regular luncheon meeting of the Lions club yesterday noon in Reich's pine room.

Professor Newburn was in England during the recent crisis which threatened to break into war. He told of the trenches which were dug in the parks of London and of the air raid preparations.

The speaker commented on the fact that it was almost impossible to secure passage for America without a long delay because so many Americans were attempting to leave the danger zone at the same time.

Marriage License Issued by Clerk

Glenn L. Scillian, Iowa City, and Arleta C. Gates, Seminale, Okla., were issued a marriage license in the office of R. N. Miller county clerk, yesterday.

Dog fanciers of the United States buy an estimated $2,000,000 worth of cedar shavings annually for dog beds. The shavings are believed to keep fleas from the dog's coat.

Continue Suit Against Ham

Defendant's Story Of Case Substantiated By Sergt. B. Hauber

Testimony for the defense in the $1,500 damage suit of Sidney Cross Jr. against Patrolman Lawrence N. Ham of the Iowa City police department will continue this morning before Judge Harold D. Evans.

Cross is asking damages against Ham for false arrest and malicious prosecution.

Sergt. Ben A. Hauber was questioned yesterday concerning the events before and after the arrest of Cross in Coralville Jan. 1. Cross was charged with driving while intoxicated after the arrest.

Odd Fellows Will Plan Installation Of Officers Friday

Plans for the semi-annual installation of officers in January will be discussed by the Good Samaritan encampment, No. 5, I. O. O. F., when it meets in the Odd Fellows hall Friday evening for the regular monthly meeting. Alfred Lennabaugh, chief patriarch, will preside at the meeting.

Hauber's testimony substantiated that of Patrolman Ham who told the jurors Tuesday that he did not strike Cross with a blackjack.

Cross was found not guilty on the charge of driving while intoxicated by a jury April 1 in the Johnson county district court.

Local Musicians To Give Show, Banquet Tonight

First annual show banquet of the Iowa City local No. 450 of the American Federation of Musicians will be held at 7:30 tonight in the Grand ballroom of the Moose club.

Initiation of new members will take place at this time with W. B. Hooper, traveling representative of the American Federation of Musicians, in charge of the ceremonies. He will be assisted by Claude Pickett, secretary-treasurer of the Midwest Conference of Musicians.

Two campus bands will provide music for the affair, along with ballet dances and other local talent.

Reservations for the banquet may be made by calling the Musicians Service before 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Legion Asks For Discarded, Broken Toys

Contributions of discarded toys were asked yesterday by B. M. Ricketts, commander of Roy L. Choquet post No. 17 of the American Legion, who announced that the legion post will repair and distribute the toys at Christmas to needy Iowa City children.

Persons who have toys which they wish to donate were asked to leave them with Mrs. Martin Pederson at the Red Cross office in the Johnson county courthouse or with Henry Herring at Bob and Henry's. Herring will call for toys if the contributors are unable to deliver them, Ricketts said.
