England and France Prepare for Results Of Fascist Victory

18 Englishmen Make Appeal To Germany

Both Countries Move To Make Immediate Mobilization Possible

LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Great Britain and France today welded new political and military weapons for any possible test of strength with the Rome-Berlin axis arising from insurgent successes in Spain.

Britain named a new director of mobilization who presumably will map a complete program for calling land, sea and air forces into action if necessary. The nature and extent of his duties remained an official secret. The French cabinet had before it proposals to summon additional army reservists and increase the length of military service.

British ministers, who conferred with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today, sounded warnings reminiscent of "go easy" speeches aimed at Chancellor Hitler before the Munich crisis last September.

Standing in front of military preparations was a direct radio appeal to Chancellor Hitler and the German people to banish "the spectre of war and enmity between nations." The appeal was made by 18 of the most prominent British leaders outside political life and was broadcast in German over facilities of the government-controlled British broadcasting corporation.

In Paris informed circles said the French cabinet would take up tomorrow proposals to add three months to the two-year term of obligatory military services. Also to be considered, it was stated, was the calling to duty of some special army reservists. These suggestions were said to have resulted from Italy's calling up of 60,000 reservists Wednesday.

War Lord Accepts Post

Japs Report Chinese Marshal Wu Pei-Fu New Regime Head

SHANGHAI, Jan. 27 (AP)—Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, who 15 years ago was China's most popular military leader, was reported by the Japanese today to have accepted the presidency of a new regime under which the Japanese-sponsored governments in conquered China would be united.

Japanese reports from Nanking said Marshal Wu had accepted the post after a conference at Peiping of Chinese chieftains of the Peiping and Nanking Japanese-sponsored governments. The new regime, merging these two puppet governments, would be called the "central China pacification commission."

Japanese reports from Peiping said Marshal Wu had expressed a readiness to end a 12-year retirement from politics "to serve China."

The Nanking report said Marshal Wu intended to establish headquarters at Kaifeng, Honan province, an important city on the Lunghai railway.

Marshal Wu was quoted in today's Peiping dispatches as saying he was "willing to attempt any effort designed to secure peace—a peace that will safeguard China's sovereignty and resources and save millions of persons from suffering."

If Marshal Wu has accepted such a post, it would seem to indicate a partial success of long-continuing Japanese efforts to obtain responsible Chinese to participate in the Japanese program of forming a new Chinese government to supplant that of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Democrats Fill Card-Cut Race To 2 Parties

Have Full Slate To Eliminate Factions, Van der Zee Says

An attempt to reduce this year's city election to a campaign between two slates of candidates rather than three or four separate factions was expressed yesterday when six candidates filed nomination papers to completely fill out the democratic ticket for the city primary election Feb. 27. Prof. J. Van der Zee and Dr. W. F. Boiler, aldermen-at-large during the MOL administration in Iowa City from 1935 to 1937, yesterday filed as democratic candidates for aldermen-at-large.

Four other democrats filed for nomination as ward aldermen yesterday, the last day to file for the city primary. They were Walter E. Riley, first ward; Moody L. Crowder, second ward; Joseph Braverman, fourth ward, and James S. Brown, fifth ward.

Professor Van der Zee, prominent in Iowa City politics for many years and president of the Municipal Ownership League, explained his candidacy as a democrat was due to several reasons. He said:

"The democratic party had decided to present a full slate of candidates against the present Citizens' Non-Partisan administration. Democrats circulated and signed my petitions and yesterday asked me to be their candidate."

"I consented without hesitation when it also appeared that no other persons would seek nomination. For any third group such as the Municipal Ownership League to place another ticket in the field in March would be to invite votes of Iowa City to chase off in three directions—the very thing that in 1937 resulted in the present mayor and three of the six councilmen being elected by a minority of the voters."

"In general I do not approve of national political party tickets in a local election. I have not changed my mind on the most important issue confronting democracy in Iowa City. Issues have always appealed to me more than political parties or candidates wearing political party tickets."

"It is hoped that two lines will be so clearly drawn in the coming election campaign that the voters will have no difficulty in following the ball."

Professor Van der Zee has been a candidate in each of the last five city elections. In 1929 he was elected on the republican ticket as second ward alderman. He failed to be re-elected as an independent candidate for that office in the 1931 election.

Running again as a republican candidate, he was elected as an alderman-at-large in the 1933 city campaign. In 1935 he was successful as a MOL candidate for alderman-at-large. In the last city election, March, 1937, he was defeated during the vigorous campaign between the MOL and the CNP.

Throughout the terms he served in the council and in the election campaigns he waged a constant battle for lower utility rates, municipal ownership of the electric light plant and for governmental economy.

Professor Van der Zee's running mate for alderman-at-large, Dr. Boiler, was the other alderman-at-large during the MOL ad-

Southern Senators Assured Hearing On Railroad Legislation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Southern senators were assured today that a public hearing would be held on proposals which the senators declared, would establish national equality in railroad freight rates.

Senator Hill (D-Ala.) became chairman of an interstate commerce subcommittee to hear testimony on the rate problem. To serve with him, Committee Chairman Wheeler (D-Mont.) named Senators Andrews (D-Fla.), Lunden (FL-Minn.), Gurney (R-SD), and Tobey (R-NH).

Type Master Friends Come to Aid Of Goudy

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP)—Friends sought tonight to help Frederic W. Goudy, regarded as the foremost living designer of type, who lost his masterpiece in a fire which destroyed his 150-year-old workshop yesterday.

A campaign to raise at least $10,000 for the modern Cellini was announced by a trade magazine (printing) calling upon the entire graphic arts industry to help.

For more than a decade, the 73-year-old Goudy worked in a converted water mill at Marlboro-on-Hudson, N. Y. Early yesterday, he watched it crash in flames.

Once before fire had wiped out Goudy's efforts. That was 30 years ago when his small New York plant went up in flames.

'Economy Bloc' Puts Reduced WPA Bill Over by 47-46 Vote

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—By the dramatic margin of a single vote, the senate rebelled today at President Roosevelt's spending policies and joined the house in ordering a $150,000,000 cut in work-relief appropriations.

It voted 47 to 46 to provide $725,000,000 to finance WPA from Feb. 7 to June 30, instead of the $875,000,000 requested by the chief executive—to the dismay of administration leaders, who had waged a hard, week-long fight to sustain the president.

The senate's "economy bloc," consisting of almost the entire republican membership and 20 some democrats, was jubilant at winning the first battle of the session, and the first test of strength on this issue since the November elections.

The result was a guarantee that the $725,000,000 appropriation will be in the bill when it is sent to the White House. Since the house, too, approved that figure, it can not, under congressional rules, be changed in the house-senate conference which presumably will be called to deal with changes made by the senate.

The vote came after a week of such parliamentary jockeying and careful nose-counting as the senate has not seen since the supreme court reorganization bill. It was a week which saw vastly more work done in cloak-rooms, corridors and senatorial offices than on the senate floor.

A.F.L. Council To Explore For C.I.O. Patch-Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor said today that the possibilities of peace with the CIO would be "explored" at the winter meeting of the AFL executive council opening in Miami Monday.

The federation issued a statement saying that other problems to be discussed are congressional legislation to amend the Wagner act and wage-hour law, the expansion of organizing work, especially in textiles, and fraternal relations with foreign labor organizations.

It is expected that AFL President William Green will make a report to the council on his informal talks with Secretary of Labor Perkins concerning the prospects of reopening CIO-AFL peace negotiations before spring. At the federation's Houston convention last October, Green told the delegates he would do everything possible to promote unity with John L. Lewis' CIO movement.

Schaffner Found Plant Chromosomes

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 27 (AP)—Prof. John Henry Schaffner, internationally known botanist who had been associated with Ohio State university since 1897, died today at the age of 72.

Professor Schaffner was known for his discovery of the chromosome reduction process in plants on which the mendelian phenomena are based; reversal of sex in plants, and production of plant rejuvenations.

In 1895 and 1896 he was professor of natural sciences at the University of South Dakota.

Fight Disease, Hunger After Quake in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 27 (AP)—The Chilean government fought hunger and disease today in the wake of Tuesday night's disastrous earthquake.

United States Ambassador Norman Armour, who called at the foreign office to ask how the United States could help relieve suffering, was told that medical supplies and condensed milk were urgent needs.

Especially great was the danger of disease at Chillan, where estimates of the number of dead ranged from 4,000 to 10,000, and at Concepcion, where about 2,000 died. In these cities, where most of the deaths occurred, burial of the dead was a problem taxing facilities.

Bodies were placed in mass burial pits, some dug, some simply the fissures opened in the earth by the tremors. Military authorities, in control, warned against profiteering prices on coffins, which were scarce.

Some children needing urgent medical attention were brought to Santiago as evacuation of the stricken southern regions was begun.

Special trains carried doctors, nurses and medical equipment into the quake areas.

Rebels Capture Another Town

Insurgents Face Job Of Getting Food For 1,500,000 Persons

BARCELONA, Jan. 27 (AP)—Thousands of Barcelona's war-weary and hungry population feasted tonight on bread and milk as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's trucks brought food to replenish the city's empty cupboards and his armies rolled on toward the French border.

As fast as his forces of reconstruction moved into the conquered government capital his victorious legions pressed on in an effort to wipe out the last government resistance in northeast Spain.

There scarcely had been a halt since Barcelona fell without a struggle yesterday. Insurgent armies on the coast advanced north to within 70 miles of the French border. They captured Badalona, once a source of government war supplies and eight miles north of Barcelona. Other columns converged on Granollers, another important town in the shrinking, isolated corner of Catalonia the government still holds.

(Government forces hold another "island" of territory in south and central Spain, including the cities of Madrid and Valencia.)

(Should the Catalanian front collapse, the government still would have slightly more than one-fourth of Spain—an area about equal to the state of Arkansas—for which it has declared it will fight to the bitter end.)

A huge task faced the insurgent conquerors of desolate Barcelona. They must feed an estimated 1,500,000 persons who have been living on meager rations.

U. S. Plane-Building Skill at France's Service As Senate Neutrality Bloc Protests 'Alliance'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—With the approval of the Roosevelt administration, much of America's skill in building warplanes has been placed at the disposal of France.

This disclosure, made by President Roosevelt today at a time when a new war crisis appeared to be in preparation in Europe, created a stir of interest on Capitol Hill.

From within the mandatory neutrality bloc came rumblings of dissent. Senator Clark (D-Mo.), a moving spirit in that bloc, announced he would try to get congress to prevent sales abroad of newest type American military planes.

The administration's course, he complained, seemed to "line up with France." If there is to be such an "alliance," he declared, "The American people should know about it."

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that the sales of planes had been given formal consideration at a cabinet meeting. Inasmuch as a number of private American factories are now idle, he said, it was considered an excellent idea for them to take the foreign orders and thus begin operating and be ready to get started promptly on the large orders expected to be given them later by the United States government in behalf of its own air services.

Senator Sheppard (D-Tex.), chairman of the senate military committee, announced that his group would study the subject to determine whether legislation would be needed to restrict sales of planes abroad. General Mallin Craig, army chief of staff, will be called before the committee tomorrow.

Iowa Stands Unique in the Nation

This map represents current business conditions as compared with a year ago. It appears in the February issue of "Nation's Business", official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Business conditions in the United States are shown graphically by the above map and barometer, the result of nation-wide surveys. The state of Iowa stands alone in the nation as the single one showing an increase for December 1938 over the same month the previous year. Unexpectedly high volume of holiday buying throughout many sections of the country helped to whiten the map. As for the barometer, the rapid continuous rise of the chart from the low point reached last summer showed signs of leveling off in December, due to holiday shut downs in industrial operations. As might be expected from the story told by the map, business conditions in Iowa City showed the same trend as the state. Reviewing the past few weeks, Charles A. Bowman, Iowa City Chamber of Commerce secretary yesterday reported, "Business conditions up and through the holidays were good. Since the holidays there has been a normal business." Optimism was expressed in the statement of Chris Yetter of Yetter's Department store and chairman of the retail trade division of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Yetter said, "We're optimistic about business conditions. We're looking forward to a good spring and summer business." Farm income in Johnson county is expected to be greater this year, indications are for a greater university enrollment, and building trades are prepared for extensive construction programs in the city this spring—all factors in the continuance of prosperity in Iowa City.

Moore Quits After Protest

Union labor trouble which would have resulted in the postponement of the President's Birthday ball was narrowly averted last night when Nate Moore, local electrical contractor holding a contract for repair work on the Community building, discontinued his work.

At a meeting of the Building Trades Council of Iowa City last night, the group passed a resolution which put the Community building on the unpatronized list which would not allow a union worker to enter the building. All Iowa City orchestra members belong to the musicians' union and would observe the resolution, the trade council said. Without music, there would be no ball.

Informed of the council's resolution, Moore said, "I don't understand why they are taking action at this time against unorganized labor on a job costing less than $150, on a job that has been completely repaired in the past by unorganized labor."

Realizing that he would be indirectly responsible for the possible postponement of the birthday ball, Moore agreed at midnight last night to vacate his job at the Community building.

The resolution passed by the council reads:

"Iowa City Building Trades Council, consisting of 13 affiliated craft unions, met in an executive board session tonight regarding the present labor conditions existing on the community building. The employment of an Iowa City electrical contractor that is unfair to organized Iowa City labor has resulted in the board's placing the Community building on the unpatronized list."

The statement was signed by Hugh Carson, president; Ivan C. Edelstein, recording secretary, and Vernon Stutzman, chairman of the publicity committee.

Science

Marches On

FROM A. J. Cronin's great story "The Citadel" and the subsequent movie production, our thoughts turn again to that ever-present and all-important problem of tuberculosis. What great change and advancement has occurred in medicine since Cronin's Dr. Manson and how encouraging and significant it is to realize the knowledge and inspiring progress resulting from the persistent work of men like him.

Sixty years ago the tuberculosis germ was still isolated and until 1904, no organized efforts to combat it were instigated. Its death-dealing blows were felt all over England and America and other affected regions with only pain and sorrow left where life and hope once lived. Today, the public, made aware of the wonders and miracles being accomplished through science and medicine, has become confident and hopeful in the face of this dreadful scourge of humanity. Physicians now state with pride that tuberculosis is rapidly being overcome just as in the case of small pox and typhoid. The death rate has decreased until now only 55 out of every 1,800, contracts the disease fatally.

Part of these satisfying results are due to the constant and increasing efforts of the National Tuberculosis association, organized in 1904. Every year new plans are constructed by which millions of lives are saved from death by tuberculosis. Most outstanding among their recent plans is the plea for federal money to the amount of $288,000,000 for hospital construction and maintenance and for the poverty-stricken. Though the sum sounds huge, where would be a wiser place for government spending, than in preventive and curative methods for tuberculosis? Should the plans succeed in the form of legislation, the extent of the NTA would be seen not only in the treatment of the poor-sick but also in the provision for their families and care after recovery. To spend money to cure tuberculosis and then let the patients return to the original sources of infection would indeed be foolish. Eternal vigilance is the crux of these plans, and its effect can be seen right here in our own colleges.

Recently the Journal of the American Medical association reported results of a tuberculin test on 18,744 college freshmen embracing 20 colleges which revealed startling facts. From 40 to 60 per cent of the students at eastern colleges and far-western schools showed tuberculosis infection and in our own territory, the central states, the figures were given as 20 or 30 per cent. Incidentally the tests showed that the disease is more prevalent in college men than women.

The University of Iowa does its share in aiding the NTA in its search for incipient cases by requiring the tuberculin test as an entrance requirement for new students. It follows that the attention of the medical and the scientists is being concentrated upon details and thoroughness rather than on broad mass effect in eradicating tuberculosis. This great task can truly be thought of as a goal, or a citadel, toward which humanity is working together for humanity.

American Shipping: Pro and Con

ADMIRAL LAND, chairman of the U. S. Maritime commission, created by the Marine Act of 1936, gives two reasons for an American merchant marine: (1) to preserve and protect our ocean-borne commerce and (2) to equip the navy with an efficient auxiliary fleet.

For decades a battle of arguments for and against an American merchant fleet, as contemplated by the Act of 1936, has been waged. Admiral Land's statement sums up the affirmative.

When pinched, the pros confidently fall back upon the time-worn defense argument, and they point with satisfaction to the World War "lesson." To clinch the protection of commerce reason, they mention the British coal strike of 1926 when many British ships were withdrawn from regular services to transport fuel, thereby threatening the flow of American trade.

Nearly 100 Shipping Board vessels, hastily placed in service, filled the gap. The negative side bases its opposition primarily on an economic foundation. If a merchant marine is needed, they say, forces of circumstances will produce it, but artificial stimulation by the government yields only undesirable results.

Shipping is a service, the economists assert, and foreign countries, as nations in debt to the U. S., can pay us only in goods or services. Shipping, therefore, is a means of payment for them. If we subsidize ships, it is simply a tariff in reverse, and we cannot continue the practice if we expect other nations to buy from us. They must sell to buy. Finally, paying freights to foreign countries enables them to buy more of our products. So runs the negative argument.

Trade follows the flag is an aspect of the promote-or-commerce-argument on the pro side. For example, statistics show that U. S. trade with the Orient increased 30 per cent from 1914, when there were only five American ships in that service, to 1928, when there were 140 ships. In the African trade in 1914, there were no U. S. flag vessels; but in 1927 there were 19, and trade had jumped 325 per cent.

The present administration ostensibly agrees with this theory, for the avowed purpose of the newly-established "Good Neighbor Fleet" to South America is to develop American trade with that continent.

Scuffling at the trade follows the flag argument, the negative side, represented by Abraham Berglund, says, "There is little economic justification for it." Though Mr. Berglund grants that the "effect of the national flag in foreign ports is appreciable," he modifies the admission by adding that it is "not great."

A keener insight into the American merchant marine question is shown by Calvin and Stuart in "The Merchant Shipping Industry." They, too, believe that economic principles determine the value of a merchant marine; but they recognize that political considerations and motives determine a country's policy toward it.

"In other words," they declare, "when a nation's political integrity and pride are exposed, it will not hesitate to take actions which are uneconomic, and yet justifiable and essential from a national point of view."

Every major maritime country has aided its shipping primarily from defense or political motives, they point out. Arguments against an American merchant marine, therefore, hammer futilely at a stone wall, for even though economically unjustifiable, American shipping can be and is defended on less logical, perhaps, but more emotional political grounds, which the economist does not attempt to refute with reasons.

A DEATH FOR A DEATH You probably didn't notice it; most of the papers hadn't even a story. . . But you might remember. . . All of them were about our age; the oldest was 24, the youngest 19. . .

He'd hardly gone to school at all. . . Couldn't learn much. . . He was too dumb. . . He said just a cheerful, "Good-bye" when they turned on the current. . .

The other two boys, Philip Chalefa and Isidore Zimmerman, will spend the rest of their lives in Sing Sing. . . Governor Lehman commuted their sentences almost at the last minute before they were scheduled to die. . .

They were, perhaps, unusual cases. . . Nobody knew much about Isidore except that he wasn't on the scene of the crime. . . He was merely an "accomplice," and the laws of justice find him as guilty as the others.

Phil too was different. . . He'd been an honor student in his high school, was captain of the baseball team and was successful at almost everything he tried. . . But in 1930 he had an attack of diabetes. . . He hadn't been able to save much money for a doctor, and he hadn't been able to get work since. . . They said he was too sick for a regular job. . .

These are the five the citizens of New York state, 12 men good and true, found guilty of "first-degree murder." . . Undoubtedly, all five have now learned their lesson. . . The laws of the state have been effective.

Undoubtedly, too, the boys of the dead end streets of New York have learned their lesson. . . And crime and poverty will no longer be intermarried. . . Undoubtedly, that stern, good citizen who yesterday told me a man, any man, could make what he would of his life is right. . . But I sometimes wonder. . .

TUNING IN By Loren Hickerson

PHIL BAKER will highlight "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," Cole Porter's hit tune of the current Broadway season, on his show at 8 o'clock tonight over Columbia's network. The Andrews Sisters will sing.

Cole Porter's greatest favorite at the present moment is "Get Out of Town," and not so bad at that. . .

The composer has prepared special lyrics of the former for the Andrews trio. The original lyrics were introduced by Mary Martin in the musical comedy, "Leave It to Me," current Broadway success.

Turning from music to drama, Phil and his gang will ride roughshod through their own version of "Jesse James." The comedian will have the assistance of Bottle, Harry von Zell, Mary Kelly and Eddie DeLange, with interruptions from Beetle (the man in the box).

Any similarity between the Baker drama and the original probably will be a mere accident, particularly with Johnny Pineapple, the Hawaiian, and Bottle, the Englishman, taking part.

Bottle will continue his efforts to call the sponsor in Honolulu by coin telephone. He has borrowed a few bags of nickels from the subway.

FEDERAL THEATER has two regular Saturday features today, "The Pied Piper" from the German stock of fairy tales will be presented over WOR and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:30 to 10 o'clock this morning.

"Evans: Death in Milk" is the topic of the "Men Against Death" drama at 1 o'clock this afternoon. This series comes from Dr. Paul de Kruif's famous books.

THE FILES SHOW that whenever Jack Benny

A New Yorker at Large By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Such a day . . . about two weeks overdue, aren't you? 10:30—Get up, breakfast, glance through morning papers, depart for office. 11:02—Scan through the mail and discover this note from the wife of a friend of mine who is in Florida: "You ought to come down here for awhile. Tuck, you could pick up lots of material on the beach. . . What do you mean by material, honey? . . . Also discover 17 missives from press-agents, which gives rise to the thought that reading 17 blurbs is a lot of time to waste on press-agents. 11:48—Sneak down to the music shop and idle away half an hour looking for a recording of "Constancy," but no can find and decide to settle for "At Night By the Ocean," which I have been whistling until I think I will go nuts if I don't get on a different tune soon. 12:54—Two fast dogs and java at Hamburger Joe's. 1:39—Go on shopping tour with Janet Gaynor and Adrian, the designer — only they aren't aware that I'm along. They are about two paces ahead of me as they browse through Macy's. . . Adrian has on a suit, the material of which looks like polka-dot Janet pauses in the book department, in the military department, and at the perfume counter. . . Now what can she want with a book, a hat, and a bottle of perfume? 3:23—Get a telephone tip that the police intend to pull a surprise Chinatown raid in half an hour, and decide to attend. The raid doesn't come off and all I get is a long, dreary subway ride. 4:55—Spend an hour with a temperamental typewriter composing essays, then make a belated break for the barber, who eyes me critically and states, "You're

Exams Are Over, So Students Head Home for Brief Respite

Fling Cares to Wind As 'Sign Out' Lists On Campus Grow

With exams a thing of the past, no more burning of the midnight oil and no headaches the hour after, university students fling cares to the winds and head homeward. Bags are packed, tickets are bought for all parts of the state, and trains and buses and automobiles pull out for the home fires. With the old semester over there are a few days for relaxing before getting up for that "eight" o'clock again and from the long lists of "sign outs" at dormitories, sororities and fraternities all university students are making the most of their opportunity.

And for those who aren't able to pack up for home territory, the Iowa Union seems to be a favorite place for coking. Here and there are groups of no longer anxious faces really enjoying their cokes for the first time in many days.

Various Meal Leftovers Can Be Made Into Tasty Dishes

Here are some new touches for everyday dishes and also use up any leftovers. They are part of the scheme that any one can use.

Try this next time you have ham and vegetables left over.

Ham and Mushroom Casserole
1 cup cooked carrots, diced
1-2 cups cooked potatoes, diced
1-2 cups ham, boiled or baked
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
3-4 cup milk
2 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs

Cut the potatoes and carrots into small cubes, about 3-16 of an inch. Chop the ham in course pieces. Arrange alternate layers of potatoes, carrots and ham in a buttered casserole. Pour over all condensed cream of mushroom soup to which the milk has been added. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for 45-60 minutes. Serves 6.

Dressed up this way you would never recognize yesterday's leftover cold baked potatoes, or plain boiled potatoes either, for that matter.

Jiffy Creamed Potatoes
1 tablespoon butter

1 tablespoon onion, chopped
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
2 tablespoons condensed tomato soup

2-1-2 cups cooked potatoes, diced
Melt the butter in a pan and cook the onions until soft but not brown. Empty the condensed cream of mushroom soup into the upper part of a double boiler, mix well, and to it add the two tablespoons of condensed tomato soup. Then add the cooked onions and the diced cold potatoes. Heat all over hot water and serve. Serves five-six.

To fix up baked potatoes—give them a little extra zip and flavor, try this:

Rosy Baked Potatoes
Bake the potatoes. Scoop out the shell and mash well or put through the ricer. For each medium sized potato add:

2 tablespoons condensed tomato soup
1-4 teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper
2 teaspoons butter
1 tablespoon sharp grated cheese

Mix all together thoroughly and put the mixture back into potato shells. Brown in hot oven under broiler.

Slabs of Vitrolite To Be Used for Gadgets In Modern Closets

A Fifth avenue shop that specializes in equipment and gadgets for the clothes closet is featuring slabs of vitrolite, a new colored glass, to be laid beneath hangers to protect evening and dinner dresses that otherwise would touch the floor. The vitrolite may be had in a variety of pretty colors to harmonize with the scheme of your bedroom and can be cleaned merely by wiping off with a damp cloth. An extra shelf may also be achieved by having the material, cut in the proper length and laid on top of the baseboard to stretch across the closet.

Hat Shape History
Earliest men's felt hats were held in shape by draw strings. Later hats were made to shape and the draw string used only for size adjustment. Finally men's hats were made in today's ranges of sizes and the draw strings became ornamental hat bows.

4 S. U. I. Scientists Purify Blood Clotter

Stop Bleeding With Extract Of Beef Blood

Thrombin Sprayed On Wounds With Perfume Atomizer

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH Associated Press Science Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 27 — Bleeding during surgical operations and after accidents can now be stopped almost instantaneously with an extract from beef blood sprayed on a wound with a perfume atomizer.

Four University of Iowa scientists announced in the journal "Science," published by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that they had purified thrombin, the element in blood which makes it clot, and had used it successfully in halting profuse bleeding within two to 10 seconds.

Operations frequently are hampered by interference of blood in an incision. Dr. W. H. Seegers, Dr. E. D. Warner, Dr. K. M. Brinhaus and Dr. H. P. Smith declared, particularly in operations on the brain and liver.

In the future, however, an atomizer filled with thrombin will probably be one of the principal parts of a surgeon's equipment since the chemical stops bleeding from the small blood vessels which cannot be closed in any other way.

Thrombin acts as a "freezing" agent to form a thin film of clotted blood over any area which begins to bleed profusely. It is always present in the blood as a slightly different substance called pro-thrombin which is converted to thrombin when exposed to air.

However, in some individuals it is not present in sufficient amounts, or is not converted quickly enough. As a result they bleed profusely and during a surgical operation their condition may become critical unless a blood transfusion is given immediately. Use of thrombin obtained from the blood of cattle at slaughter houses may make many transfusions unnecessary.

Recently Dr. Clyde Brooks of Louisiana State university declared he had gone to the same source, had obtained from ox blood a substance known as "deturo-proteose," and had found it successful in the treatment of some types of pneumonia.

Thrombin has also been found effective in checking the bleeding of hemophilia, the disease which causes a person to bleed almost continuously from even a small cut or bruise.

It is also expected to be a vital aid to bone surgeons who heretofore have not been able to stop bleeding from the small blood vessels within the bone marrow except with bone wax, a substance foreign to the body which sometimes interferes with bone healing, Dr. Seegers said.

Thrombin, however, being of the natural substances in the blood does not hamper the healing process. "Prolonged bleeding from bone is often troublesome to the surgeon at the time of operation," the Iowa scientists said. "With the application of thrombin we are able to stop this bleeding within five to 10 seconds and we have been able to reset portions of brain, and to check with ease the hemorrhage which is otherwise so difficult to control," he added.

Students Shout As Duce Salutes Anti-French Mob
ROME, Jan. 27 (AP)—Italy pressed her anti-French campaign with authoritative press attacks and noisy student demonstrations today in the wake of the insurgents' victories in Spain.

The fascist mood was that the day is nearer, as a result of the fall of Barcelona, when Italy will present a bill to France for payment of colonial claims.

Authoritative fascists, commenting on an official French offer to call an international conference on the European situation, made it plain any such conference must be, if Italy is to take part, one in which Italy could better her position in the Mediterranean.

Premier Mussolini's attitude long has been that Britain, France, Germany and Italy—the "big four" of Munich—should settle Europe's problems.

In Rome today a crowd of students, augmented by many fascists, crying "down with France," tried to march upon the French embassy but were turned back by police.

A University of Chicago survey shows that most students marry between the age of 20 and 25.

Spain--
of the Spanish government today carried out three shattering raids on Figueras, where hundreds were reported killed or injured. The government cabinet, in flight from fallen Barcelona, was "somewhere in Gerona province," and the insurgent air raiders evidently thought that meant Figueras, refugee-crowded town 15 miles from the French border.

The raids spread renewed fear among the refugees and started a panicky flight toward the French frontier. Even as the bombs crashed into the outskirts of Figueras, hundreds raced for trucks and started north.

Tens of thousands of other refugees were moving toward the frontier before the steadily advancing insurgent armies. French border guards stood at barricades to prevent a mass influx.

The government's ministers were reported to be scattered throughout Gerona province, between Barcelona province and France. Some reports said that even the ministers themselves did not know where their colleagues had set up offices.

There seemed little possibility that the government ministers would try to move back to central Spain and set up headquarters again either at Madrid or Valencia—at least until after it should become apparent that government troops in the northeast could no longer hold out.

(At Madrid Colonel Casado, commanding the central front, declared the war would go on regardless of the outcome in Catalonia.)

Spanish government officials warned the French tonight that if some arrangement is not made to care for refugees at once in a

Museum Work Now Extended
Art students, science teachers, recreational directors, and geologists now are being aided by work in museum methods at the University of Iowa, although none of them ever intends to mount specimens for museums, Prof. Homer R. Dill, director of the museum and head of the training work, has announced.

Modeling and casting aids art students who desire to make permanent casts of their work, while this course also interests playground and recreational teachers. Science teachers receive practice in skinning of birds, mammals, and reptiles which aids them in preparation of classroom material.

Restoration of fossils and preservation of archaeological material now can be done by geologists using a new Iowa method. It is possible, by use of flexible matrix method, to make perfect reproductions of delicate specimens, Prof. Dill said.

Oldest Grad Mrs. Kersey Holmes Has Honor
Only death can remove the distinction held by Mrs. Kersey Holmes of Pasadena, Cal., that of being the oldest graduate of the University of Iowa.

Mrs. Holmes, the former Etta Raymond, was granted the now-obsolete bachelor of didactics degree in 1865, only 10 years after the first classes convened at the university and just as the Civil war was ending.

A news dispatch from Salem, Ore., reported the death Monday of Mrs. Lydia Battey Bowerman, described as being the oldest graduate of the university. She received her degree in 1887.

Alumni officials, however, declared yesterday that Mrs. Holmes' title is authentic. If she lives until June, 1940, she will be the first person to observe the 15th anniversary of Iowa graduation, it is believed.

To Keep the U. S. at Peace Major Objective, Says Welles
NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP)—In the people of the United States be kept at peace and that they be permitted to live their lives in a peaceful world.

Welles said he was convinced the greatest need of the people of the United States at the moment "is to do their own thinking for themselves."

It is a gravely serious — a deeply disquieting moment in our modern civilization," he said, "it is a situation which demands the clearest thinking from all of us."

Among the objectives of the foreign policy Welles listed: "The developing and strengthening of our friendly relations with other powers; the improvement of commercial opportunities for American trade abroad; the maintenance of the legitimate interests and treaty rights of American nationals in foreign countries; the re-establishment of the reign of international law to supersede the rule of force; the reduction and elimination of economic barriers to international trade, and the limitation and reduction by international agreement of military and naval armaments."

Welles reviewed international events since the World war and said that "since that day we have seen a progressive and even more rapid deterioration in international relationships and in human relationships."

The undersecretary said the administration's foreign policy had other "highly important objectives" in addition to that of peace but they were "supplementary to the fundamental objective... that the people of the United States be kept at peace and that they be permitted to live their lives in a peaceful world."

Representatives See Boost In Liquor Prices as Means Of Expanding State's Income

Figures Show Iowa's Liquor Costs Are Lowest of 16 States

DES MOINES, Jan. 27 (AP)—Iowa house leaders tonight eyed the state liquor store price structure as a possible source of additional revenue to finance the ever-increasing load of state government activities.

Representative Phil R. Roan (R), Fort Madison, chairman of the house liquor control committee, obtained from State Liquor Chairman Bernard E. Manley a set of comparable figures showing Iowa liquor prices to be the lowest of any of the 16 liquor monopoly states in the country.

Roan said he was not necessarily in favor of increasing liquor prices in the state stores but that he was investigating the practicability of a "reasonable boost" and the consequent expansion of liquor profits for the state treasury.

Manley's figures show that in 89 popular items, Iowa's prices were lowest in 63 instances. The retail price in the 170 state stores was second from the bottom in 16 other items, third in four and fourth in six.

Despite the comparatively close margin on which the Iowa commission has operated, liquor profits earned $1,900,000 for the state general fund in fiscal 1937-38.

Roan said he would not favor any price disturbance that would interfere with the primary purpose for the establishment of the liquor system; namely, the conquest of bootlegging by furnishing standard products at the lowest reasonable cost.

Both sections of the Iowa legislature spent a relatively quiet day today in deference to a touring troupe of law-makers who went to the Glenwood state school

DEATH AT THE MANOR

READ THIS FIRST:
Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Eliza. Elsie finds her employer is a withered old woman with a sadly misplaced sense of vanity. After bumping into Mrs. Witherspoon Jr., in the darkness of the salon, Elsie is awakened in the middle of the night by a falling chair in the same room.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER SIX
IT WAS a long time until I slept again. For hours, it seemed, I lay listening to the sound of my heart—and for another sound—the opening and closing of the outer salon door! Presently, and the clock on my bed table chimed two, I heard that for which I waited. Stealthy footsteps crossed the tiled floor of the lobby. The door opened and closed. The intruder had gone.

I made up my mind to question

"What did you think of grandmother?"
Mrs. Greely in the morning, but when morning finally arrived I had changed my mind. After all, the salon was public property to members of the household and guests at the Manor. Doubtless mine was not the only key to the beauty parlor.

In the bright, cheering sunlight I could laugh at my midnight fears. My burglar had been no burglar at all, but more than likely one of the ladies who had, perhaps, run out of face cream. And in the excitement and hurry of the afternoon rush I completely forgot the incident.

Mrs. Greely had not exaggerated when she had said that Saturday would be a busy day. It was, and with a vengeance! There was work enough for three operators, and all on my shoulders. By lunch time I was a wreck, and by evening my shoulders ached, my brain in a whirl and my legs like chunks of lead fastened to my body.

The morning began well enough with Miss Daphne, "Duffy" was called, arriving 10 minutes early for her appointment. I liked her immediately, she was so friendly and obliging.

"Take your time," she said as I scurried about to get things ready. "Beastly bore, this grand ball, but grandmother insists."

"Must be a wonderful affair," I remarked, and she made a faint noise. She had an interesting, impish sort of face, and her eyebrows darted upward in the center and her nose tilted ever so slightly. She was not pretty by accepted standards, but she was young, not more than 19, and she had lovely skin—pale golden and quite flawless. It was her hair, the color of carrots, and her long green eyes that gave her color. She looked rather like a tomboy, for she was slim and slight.

"Ready," I said, and she moved to the chair indicated. I gave her a shampoo and began on her nails while she was under the drier. She had nice hands, short and square and capable. When her hair was dry, she parted it in the middle and brushed it furiously.

"Can't be bothered with a wave," she explained carelessly. "Too much trouble."

"You don't need a wave," I told her, and it was true. Straight hair suited her.

She sat down again and I went on with the manicure.

"What did you think of grandmother?" she said suddenly, and glancing up, I surprised a tense, taunt expression on her face.

"Why—why, she is quite marvelous for her age," I replied, scarcely knowing what to say. You cannot tell a granddaughter that you believe her grandmother is a dying woman.

"You didn't think she looked—ill?"

"Ill?" I swallowed. Her voice sounded like her face had looked—yes. "Well, of course, at her age—"

"Yes, she's quite old," she seemed oddly relieved. "I keep

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART
WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sen. Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, as an adverse critic of Rooseveltian foreign policies and of the administration's advocacy of increased national defense, threw a considerable surprise into the upper congressional chamber the other day.

Reynolds, in his argument, had the support of Senators Lynn J. Frazier and Ernest Lundeen of North Dakota and Minnesota respectively.

Their fellow solons accepted Frazier's and Lundeen's attitude as quite natural. The North Dakotan is a republican, wholly without compunctions in attacking new deal recommendations. Moreover, he is a vehement pacifist. Once he fought for a constitutional amendment forbidding American participation in any war, even defensively. I am a moderate pacifist myself, but I could not exactly see how Uncle Sam could insure himself against aggression from abroad by unconstitutionally warring on our part. I asked him about this at the time. His answer was that no nation would attack another country which already had an anti-war constitutional clause of its own. I always have had my doubts of that. However, I think the endorsement by a lawmaker like Frazier, of Senator Reynolds' pro-peace reasoning, was plenty logical. As for Lundeen, he is a farmer-laborite, and that outfit is pacifistic, too; so the Minnesota was consistent likewise.

But Reynolds is a democrat. He was disagreeing with a president who wears the same label that he does. It is true that there are anti-new deal democrats. Sen. Josiah W. Bailey, of the "Tarheel" commonwealth, is one of them—Reynolds seemingly being another.

The difference is this: Bailey has been an anti-new deal dealer all along, since he got the new deal sized up. Reynolds is a recruit, apparently.

Senator Bailey is not especially a pacifist, either. He does not like new deal economics, but he does not oppose armament; North Carolina is as bellicose a state as any one could desire.

Senator Reynolds' Record
"Bob" Reynolds has not been very conspicuous in the senate hitherto. He has been on Capitol Hill for more than half a dozen years, but he has not said much.

He is an exceedingly likable chap.

When he began running for the senate I judge that he promised a political appointive job to nearly every voter in North Carolina. When he got here they literally swamped his headquarters. His outer office, adjoining the Capitol, was full-up to standing-room-only with position-seekers. There also was a queue reaching out into the corridor.

I wanted to see him on newspaper business and consulted his secretary. "All right," said the latter, "I'll sneak you in, since you're not asking for any favors."

He did. I got my "dope." Then, mindful of the swarm outside, "O.K., senator," I said. "I can see how busy you are. I'll beat it."

"No, no," replied the Carolinian. "Stick awhile. It's such a mercy to talk with somebody who isn't demanding anything on the federal payroll."

A Globe-Trotter
Senator Reynolds knows more, practically, concerning world affairs than any other member of either house of congress.

He has been what can be described as a professional "globe-trotter."

He has written a couple of books relative to his overseas travels. They have been "best sellers."

Congress' other foreign affairs authorities speak theoretically. "Bob" Reynolds has BEEN THERE.

He is worth listening to.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

First Semester 1938-1939

Saturday, January 21, 8 a.m., to Saturday, January 28, 4 p.m., 1939

The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in SPECIAL GROUPS A, B, C, D, E, F, and G, as shown in the form below; and Speech (1), (2) and (3) as shown at the second N.B. below).

The Program Committee directs the attention of both students and instructors and professors, to the regulation that there is to be no deviation from this schedule, in the case of any examination—except as authorized by the Committee on Admission and Classification on the student's written petition, filed in ample time and supported by the recommendation of the department concerned—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviation for the purpose of completing examinations earlier will not be permitted.

Each student who is absent from the final meeting of his class as indicated in the Examination Schedule should be reported, on the official grade sheet at the end of the semester, as "Abs." Before this grade mark can be removed he must file with the Committee on Admission and Classification a written petition, with adequate vouchers attached, setting forth in full the necessity of his absence. This petition must include a departmentally signed statement indicating whether, in case the Committee finds the absence excusable, the student has the department's and instructor's permission to take the final examination. If the Committee finds the reason for the absence adequate it will issue to the student a partially prepared special report card (signed by the Secretary, lower left corner) with a form letter explaining to him that he has the Committee's permission, with the departmental consent and at the convenience of the instructor, to take his final examination within one month (or other designated period of time) from the date indicated.

If the student takes the examination thus authorized the outcome is to be reported on this card and not on any other card.

In the case of conflicts (within the SPECIAL GROUPS A, B, C, D, E, F, and G) the Schedule itself, as presented below, provides a general method of making adjustments.

All classes whose first weekly meetings have occurred as indicated in the rectangles below, meet for examinations during the periods noted at the tops of these three columns, and on the days noted in the rectangles directly opposite at the left of the double vertical line. N.B. Unless students are reasonably sure that their semester's work, including final examinations, is successful they are requested to call (within the 24-hour period following the conclusion of each of their final examinations) at the offices of the deans of men and women, appropriately, in order to learn whether any of their instructors have reported Fd. for them; and if any student has reason to suspect that Fd. will be his record for one or more courses, he is requested not to register until he learns that he has passed.

CONFLICTS: In case of conflicting examinations the student should report to the instructor in charge of the first of the two conflicting subjects as listed within the particular SPECIAL GROUP rectangle above which is involved. (Read downward first in left column and then in right column.) This instructor will arrange for you a special examination. Report to him or her, not later than the regular class hour, January 16 or 17, if possible, January 9 or 10.

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or in the case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first clock-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 21 meets for lectures T Th S at 8. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 8—and the class will meet for examination Monday, January 23, 2-4, according to the tabular form above. Again, physics (125) meets twice each week, T F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for the examination is, therefore, Friday, January 27, 2-4.

N.B. All sections of freshman Speech (1), (2) and (3) will meet during the examination week on the days and at the periods designated below. Rooms are assigned by the instructors.

Saturday, January 21—Section D, 8-10; Speech (2), 8-10.
Monday, January 23—Section A, 1-3; Section E, 3-5.
Thursday, January 26—Section I, 8-10; Section C, 1-3; Speech 3A, 1-3; Section G, 3-5.

Friday, January 27—Section J, 8-10; Section H, 10-12; Section B, 1-3; Speech 3B, 1-3; Section F, 3-5.

"ODD" classes, namely those whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or Saturday, or which meet "as arranged," will be assigned for examination as announced to each class by the instructor in charge of the class, at one or another of the following periods:

1. From 4 to 6 on any day from January 21 to January 27, inclusive.
2. Any one of the examination periods assigned, as indicated above, for the examinations in SPECIAL GROUPS A, B, C, D, E, F, and G, since for such "odd" classes these five examination periods will be found quite available.

In connection with any such announcement to meet it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times, if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

According to one clause in the formal action providing for a special semester-examination program, "the instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time."

According to another faculty regulation, which is in record as adopted by the faculty, "instructor recognizes that his work up to this examination has been a failure, in which case the final report should be 'F'—even though the student may have been absent from the final examination. No examination should be given, subsequently, to such a student until after the absence has been absconded by the Committee on Admission and Classification, as shown by a partially filled special report card signed by the Secretary of the Committee, as indicating that the absence has been excused and that the student is authorized, subject to the consent and at the convenience of the instructor concerned, to take the final examination."
