Rumor General Miaja, Rebels in Peace Talk

Franco-Negrin Truce Halted By Rebel Head

Premier May Quit; Control of Madrid-Valencia Area Lost

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 8 (AP)—Spanish government Premier Juan Negrin's refusal to end the civil war on insurgent terms was shaken violently tonight by reports that peace talks had been opened directly between the insurgents and General Jose Miaja, dictator of the government's central zone.

The reports were said by members of the French chamber of deputies to have been brought back from Burgos by Senator Leon Berard, semi-official envoy to the insurgent capital. They came close upon announcements that Manuel Azana, president of government Spain, was considering resigning because of Negrin's refusal to surrender unconditionally.

Driven to the edge of Spain by the insurgent advance in Catalonia which routed the government army, Negrin appeared tonight to have lost control of the Madrid-Valencia area—the southern one-fourth of Spain still in government hands.

Despite the premier's frequent declarations of fighting "to the bitter end," Miaja, chief of the Madrid-Valencia zone, refused to answer Negrin's telegrams.

Miaja was reported to be engaged in conversations with Franco over Negrin's head—perhaps because the insurgents were said to be willing to grant better terms to an old soldier than to a socialist leader like Negrin.

There were even persistent rumors here that Negrin discouraged at last, was planning to resign himself. Minister of Agriculture Vicente Uribe said the rumors were "without foundation," but Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo refused to confirm assertions that the premier intended to carry on the war from Valencia. "That is something he himself must say later," Alvarez del Vayo declared.

Truce negotiations between Negrin and Franco broke down yesterday when Franco refused to accept Negrin's condition for surrender—that government leaders of the Madrid-Valencia zone be assured of their lives.

Quiet, scholarly Azana, who fled Catalonia before the insurgent sweep Saturday, now is at the little French village of Collonges-sous-Saleve, near the Spanish frontier.

Negrin came to Le Perthus today to learn Azana's plans and set up temporary headquarters in "the last house in Spain," its front porch actually jutting across the international boundary. Le Perthus straddles the border.

Negrin's aides considered his plan for "bitter end" resistance in the Madrid-Valencia zone would be compromised if Azana should resign because of the effect it might have on government followers.

Planes Attack Spanish Town

BOURG-MADAME, France (at the Spanish frontier), Feb. 8 (AP)—Physicians and nurses with first aid supplies were rushed to the frontier Spanish village of Puigcerda tonight after Spanish government authorities charged 1,000 refugees had been killed or wounded by insurgent warplanes.

French border authorities, however, put the casualties at little more than 100 on the basis of first reports received here.

The planes, said Spanish officials, not only attacked a jammed railway station in Puigcerda, but also swooped low over the roads leading into the town and machine-gunned columns of refugees and soldiers fleeing into France.

The difficulty of communicating with Puigcerda hindered ready establishment of the extent of the casualties.

Authorities estimated 15,000 refugees were crowded into the little border town this morning. The normal population is 2,300.

Will Combat Nazis in Spain

British, French Will Fight Wartime Help With Peacetime Gold

PARIS, Feb. 8 (AP)—A British-French plan to get Germany and Italy out of Spain by countering nazi-fascist wartime help with peacetime gold was reported by informed quarters today.

Diplomatic circles said Britain and France had offered to finance reconstruction of the war-torn country in return for a promise by Generalissimo Franco to eliminate German and Italian influence from a new insurgent state.

(There was immediate reaction in Italy to British-French overtures to Franco. The fascist press declared it was "too late" for eleventh hour moves by nations wanting to get on good terms with him and added that Italy insisted on a victory which would not benefit "those who, after having favored the exportation of bolshevism to Spain," hasten to make contacts with the insurgents.)

There was a belief in the two democratic nations that the relative poverty of Germany and Italy would make it hard for them to help in the rebuilding of Spain after the war.

Of more immediate concern to London and Paris, however, was the situation of Minorca, the only one of the western-Mediterranean Balearic islands still held by Spanish government followers.

Pianists Vronsky and Babin Perform Brilliantly

Young Russian Team Plays Technically Perfect Program in Concert Course Series

Noah Webster and his contemporaries should have provided the English language with a greater supply of adjectives.

For when one begins to describe an excellent musical performance, he runs out of the descriptive words too quickly.

We spoke highly of Nino Martini when he opened the university's 1938-39 concert course; then came Robert Viroval, proving to be an Iowa City audience, as he had to a New York debut audience some weeks before, that he was a genius of the violin.

What adjectives may have been used in describing the performances of both Martini and Viroval may be applied with perfect justification to the concert of Vronsky and Babin in Iowa Union last night. From beginning to end it was superb.

Ackley Firm Gets Contract To Cool Union

University Theater Will Also Receive Air Conditioning

The contract for the air-conditioning of University theater and Iowa Union was awarded yesterday to the Carsten Brothers contracting company of Ackley, following a meeting at which bids had been submitted.

It is expected that work on the two cooling projects will begin in the near future, although the contract is subject to WPA approval.

Airconditioning equipment will be installed in the main lounge, private dining room and cafeteria of Iowa Union. Through a "drift" process, the cooled air from those areas will condition the entire building, including the river room, sunporch and lobby.

Similar equipment will be installed in the auditorium of the dramatic arts building, the scene of University of Iowa play productions.

Gilmore Talks To Legislators About Merger

DES MOINES, Feb. 8 (AP)—The legislative committee on consolidation and co-ordination of state departments tonight heard Dr. Eugene A. Gilmore, president of the University of Iowa, discuss the reorganization proposals in a closed session. Nature of the discussion was not disclosed.

One of the proposed consolidation measures would discontinue the college of engineering at the university.

Since the proposal to combine the two engineering colleges was first made, student organizations within the Iowa college, together with the Iowa City chamber of commerce, have used a barrage of outstanding facts about the university college in the fight against the bill.

House Passes Appropriation Bill; Curtails T.V.A. Dam Construction

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The national labor relations board were the only points of real controversy in the measure.

After bitter discussion of the labor board, only five members supported an amendment to strike out the board's appropriation of $3,039,600, while 186 favored keeping the fund intact.

Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, immediately issued a statement saying that "labor's vigilance has checked the enemies of collective bargaining in a back-handed attempt to cripple the Wagner labor act."

As it went to the senate, the bill was $16,293,670 below the amount recommended by the budget bureau but carried $284,758,555 more than was appropriated for expenses of the independent offices in the current fiscal year.

When the bill was adopted to reduce the authority's appropriation from $39,000,000 to $21,797,000, it would have the effect of stopping work on a dam at Gilbertsville, Ky., abandoning a proposed dam project at Watts bar on the Tennessee river and halting investigation of dam sites near Coulter shoals in Tennessee. The amendment was approved by a teller vote of 159 to 122.

Arctic Blast Pushes East

Nine States Record Subzero Readings; -44, Unofficial Low

(By The Associated Press)
A wave of arctic cold moved eastward yesterday along a trail marked by subzero temperatures.

The mass of chilling air extended from Alaska to Illinois. In nine states readings under the zero level were recorded on frosty thermometers. An official low of 38 below was registered at Dickinson, N. D., while an unofficial 44 below was reported in Westhope, N. D., near the Canadian border.

Forecasters predicted the cold wave would push to the Atlantic seaboard but would lose force gradually as it advanced.

Some states — South Dakota, Montana and Nebraska among them — suffered the most severe siege of the winter.

Forty-nine persons, the majority in night clothing, were routed in -35 weather when fire destroyed the St. Elizabeth's Indian mission in Wakpala, S. D.

Three deaths by freezing were reported, one each in South Dakota, Kansas and Iowa.

A 48-mile wind shattered display windows and levelled electric signs in Duluth, Minn.

Residents of states in the path of the cold wave watched coal piles with one eye and thermometers with the other. Chicagoans were warned to expect a temperature ranging from zero to five below today. A record of almost three years free of subzero weather was threatened.

Farther east, a sharp drop was in prospect. A 39-degree plunge was forecast in Pittsburgh after the mercury had ascended to the 50's. Louisville prepared for a fall to 10 degrees above zero. Milwaukeeans staked their fannies for a five below snap while 29 to 25 below frigidly was in store for other parts of Wisconsin.

Subzero warnings were issued for Utah and Idaho while a snow storm sweeping north from southern Utah closed schools in Cedar City.

Eastern Washington experienced the coldest spell in two years. A two-day snow drifted over roads. Minimum temperatures included: Williston, N. D., and Ft. Peck, Mont., -26; Lemmon, S. D., -34; Sheridan, Wyo., -26; Crawford, Neb., -20; Moorhead, Minn., -18; Sioux City, Ia., -6; Goodland, Kan., -2; Rosalia, Wash., -8.

Coldest on the continent was Mayo in the Yukon territory. It was an even minus 60 there.

Glass Charges Roosevelt Used Power to Purge Va. Senators

Thousands Flee Rising Flood Waters
Red Cross officials made ready to care for 30,000 refugees as the Ohio river, fed by recent rains and melting snow rose to flood stage along a 250-mile front, causing damage of more than $1,000,000 and driving thousands from their homes. Families were evacuated from lowland areas, such as this one in Newport, Ky., across the river from Cincinnati.

Guaranteed Hospital Care For 40,000,000 Americans, If Doctors Will Agree to Medical Insurance Plan

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8 (AP)—An American Hospital association accountant predicted today 40,000,000 Americans will have guaranteed hospital and medical care by 1944 if doctors agree to supplement the group hospital insurance plans now in effect in 52 cities.

The accountant was Dr. C. Rufus Rorem of Chicago, director of the committee on hospital service of the American hospital association.

Approximately 3,000,000 persons were participating in the group hospital insurance plans last January 1, Dr. Rorem said. This figure, he predicted, would increase to 12,000,000 by 1942 under the force of guaranteed hospital service alone, and would swell to 40,000,000 by 1944 if doctors agreed to supply medical service under similar arrangements.

Under the hospital service plan subscribers pay certain amounts of money every month; some of these subscribers go to their local participating hospitals for care; the plan then pays the hospitals for the care given, retaining a reserve for epidemics and administration costs.

Heads of the various community plans came here today for a mid-winter conference. Their officials expressed hope physicians and surgeons soon would embrace the hospital plan and provide medical care under a similar arrangement.

Army Air Corps Expansion Advised by House Committee

RESTRICT THUMBING
Terrible Consequences Occasion Rules

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 8 (AP)—The University of Georgia today banned nocturnal hitchhiking for all students and forbade solo "thumbing" by co-eds at any time.

"When and if that unfortunate and regrettable situation occurs," the committee said, "it will be imperative and essential that we be prepared and equipped with the necessary air fleet and armed forces to provide adequate protection for our own shores that we may command respect of our rights at least in our own country."

The committee made the statement in reporting to the house a bill to give the air corps 3,032 additional planes, provide more than $23,000,000 for housing and other facilities in the Panama canal zone and authorize an additional $32,500,000 for so-called "educational orders" to train private industry in munitions production.

Ten republicans and one democrat on the committee signed a minority report which, while endorsing the program generally as "sound and reasonable," warned that failure to limit the war department to procurement of not more than 1,000 of the new planes in any one fiscal year would mean that "the entire 3,032 additional airplanes would be ordered this year under 'frozen' specifications."

Indications of War In Europe Prompt Immediate Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The house military committee, recommending immediate expansion of the army air corps and other defenses, declared tonight the increases were necessary because of indications that "war may come in Europe at an early date."

When and if that unfortunate and regrettable situation occurs," the committee said, "it will be imperative and essential that we be prepared and equipped with the necessary air fleet and armed forces to provide adequate protection for our own shores that we may command respect of our rights at least in our own country."

Says President Wants Them Out of Politics

Pres. Disregarded Senators' Desires For Appointments

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Sen. Carter Glass (D-Va) charged tonight that President Roosevelt has used his appointive power in an effort to "purge" Virginia's two senators from public life.

The aim, the 61-year-old legislator said, was to defeat Sen. Harry Byrd, democrat, in 1940 and Glass himself later if he should live "longer than the intrigues hope."

He said the method chosen was to disregard the senators' recommendations for federal positions in order to discredit and "dishonor" them among their own constituents.

Glass issued a lengthy statement in answer to President Roosevelt's criticism yesterday of the senate's refusal to confirm his nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a Virginia federal judge. Glass and Byrd contended their recommendations for the judgeship were ignored. They opposed Roberts on the ground that his nomination was "personally offensive to them."

In his statement tonight, Glass detailed the dispute over the appointment and said that in making recommendations he had been motivated by a wish to find a good judge rather than by a desire for federal patronage.

Recalling correspondence with President Roosevelt regarding a published report that Gov. James H. Price of Virginia had been given the "veto power" over the senators' recommendations, Glass said the president answered that while he still wished to have suggestions from the senators he reserved the right to consult "Nancy Astor, the Duchess of Windsor, the WPA, a Virginia moonshiner, Governor Price or Charlie McCarthy."

"I cheerfully absolve Charlie McCarthy from giving the advice designed to discredit the Virginia senators," Glass said, "and the record shows that none of the persons named was consulted (regarding the judgeship) except Price."

One of those recommended by Glass and Byrd was A. C. Buchanan, and of him Glass wrote: "I was not seeking a man under my political patronage nor one under the patronage of any politician."

"Buchanan would have been an ornament to the federal bench as he has been to that of the state . . ."

The senate rejected Roberts' nomination by a vote of 72 to 9. The president's comment on the rejection was contained in a letter to Roberts.

The president said that an assertion by Glass that Price had been given the veto power over appointments was untrue and added that "no governor, no senator, no member of the administration" has had such a veto power.

L. C. C. Nominee Amle Denies Communism; Defends Leftism

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Doggedly defending his frankly left-wing economic views, Thomas R. Amle named to the interstate commerce commission by President Roosevelt, told a senate subcommittee today that his first interest had been in preventing the imposition of a system of fascism in this country.

Repeatedly, in response to the questions of republican committeemen, he denied that he was or ever had been a communist, but readily conceded that his doctrines led to "collectivism."

"And the doctrines of communism lead to collectivism also," put in Senator Austin (R-Vt.).

"I think that's true," Amle answered, reflectively, "the only difference is how rapidly and how completely it is to be done, and the method to be used. I think fascism also leads to collectivism."

The questioning revealed that Amle, tall powerfully built Wisconsin progressive, was convinced that the "old economic system is breaking down" and that preparations should be made for meeting that eventuality.

Several times he emphasized that he always had advocated action within the confines of orderly constitutional procedure. He was opposed, he said, to violence and revolution.

That was, he said, a point on which his doctrines differed from those of communism, and as a result he had been severely attacked by communist leaders.

He said he had criticized the new deal program severely, not because it went too far, but because it did not go far enough. He added:

"I think the democrats stand about midway between my position and that of my friends the republicans. If my ideas were to be classified, they would come very close to what European countries call social-democrat."

The subcommittee, a branch of the interstate commerce committee, planned to defer for several days its vote on whether to recommend confirmation.

For American Ideals

The nearest thing to a "youth movement" that America has seen is the Boy Scout organization, this week celebrating its 29th birthday.

We have witnessed the results of Scouting in America for these 29 years, and can only say now that measured in terms of such results the organization has already paid any debt due the American people for the operating charter granted it by congress many years ago.

In addition to the inculcation of idealism through a program of action, Scouting has had a lifetime effect on its members. In Iowa City there are now many men, part of the 8,400,000 who have been included in the Scout family since 1910, who believe in the principle that "once a Scout, always a Scout" and who are doing their best to extend and interpret in practice the concept of civic and moral responsibility that came to them in their Scout troops.

America is proud of its Boy Scouts. We join in giving them greetings on this anniversary.

A Ray Of Hope—Without Hope

JUAN NEGRIN and his loyalist cabinet have apparently decided on a fight to the finish; that means a month, perhaps six, at the most a year more of warfare. It means more deaths and more destruction to that remaining one-fourth of Spain over which the Loyalist flag still flies.

In the end, the answer can be only one. Generalissimo Franco will establish what he has named a "nation in arms"; he will call for the execution of all the loyalist leaders, and he will attempt to organize his then-fascistic nation into an efficient war machine. He may succeed, but granting him his most inevitable victory, he probably will not.

A people which has defended itself for 30 months against the "isms" of Hitler and Mussolini probably will not remain docile even after a declaration of peace. There will be occasional outbreaks of rebellion; these may be quickly put down, but they will be only the outward signs of continued inward unrest.

Probably, then, although they have been trained in 30 months of fighting, those unwillingly conquered by the onward march of the rebel forces will not make good army material if Franco should join Mussolini and Hitler in what some think will be the coming war of fascism versus democracy.

Spain's chief importance will be as a strategic center; despite his promises, no one believes Duce's promises that he will give up his interest when peace is declared. He has broken that promise consistently since the Anglo-Italian agreement of April.

But if Italy should attempt to press her charge for recognition of her "natural aspirations" in north Africa, the Spanish ports on the Mediterranean might help defeat the fleets of England and France. It's possible.

It's possible also, of course, that the loyalists may be able to hold Valencia and Madrid and that one-fourth of their territory until a "break" occurs outside. One of the loyalist cabinet leaders expressed it very well:

"Perhaps there will be a European war. That would change the picture," he said.

It's a sorry kind of outlook either for Spain or for the rest of Europe whatever happens.

Don't the Italians and Germans realize all that name-calling of the president and democrats is reserved for the republicans?

THE FRONTIERSMEN

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

VIENNA VIGNETTE (Everyone who travels plans some day, some place, to write a book about the trip. . . . Sometimes it happens that, among the over-abundance of travel anecdotes, there's a tale worth booking. . . . This is the first of an occasional series of such tales this reporter would include of his experiences.)

Vienna, Germany, in late April, 1938, was not quite the city I'd wanted more than any other in Europe to visit. . . . That Vienna was one of occasional Bohemians, Strauss waltzes and weiner schnitzle. . . .

This new Vienna I sensed first in the third-class compartment I rode in from Berlin. . . . There wasn't another English-speaker on the car, and I don't know a word of German. . . .

In my compartment there were only three young German s.s. troopers in uniform who talked loudly, laughed much and drank numerous bottles of beer. . . .

I was busy with my Paris-purchased copy of Gunther's "Inside Europe." . . . And when we reached Vienna had just completed his account of that amazing tyrant, Adolf Hitler. . . .

Then we were pulling into the darkened outskirts of the town, into the dirtiest station in all of Europe surely. . . .

When I alighted with my two trunk-cases, my brief case of books and the walking stick I'd purchased in London, no porter moved to take my bags. . . . There were none in the station. . . . Only a series of officials who motioned me to halt. . . .

Half an hour later I had unrolled in the anteroom, had all my bags examined and the Gauthier and F. A. Voigt "Unto Caesar," English edition, confiscated. . . .

I flourished my American passport prominently but didn't get the books back. . . .

The early-evening Viennese streets were quite as dark and as romantically shadowed as I'd hoped but everywhere there were swarms of lines of marching storm troopers joyously exchanging the salute and repetitious performances of the "Horst Wessel." . . .

It was the fifth week after the "Anschluss." . . . Vienna, the newspapers reminded me daily, was still in a state of "revolution." . . . The evidences were everywhere in smashed store-fronts, men scrapping the last remains of the Schusnigg regime from the sidewalk, men and women walking in the streets with their belongings on their backs. . . .

"Until further notice," my hotel bill read, "all business will be conducted on a day-to-day basis." . . . That meant the collector came round morningly. . . .

Afternoons in the squares I would see nursemaids with their charges insulted in the parks by more dirty-faced young men in brown shirts. . . . And always they too were singing, "Today Austria, tomorrow the world." . . .

It wasn't until the third of my four days in this city of soft living now under military order that the event occurred which I'm passing on. . . .

I was walking in one of the smaller sections of the town, where the streets were darker, the houses smaller and dirtier. . . . On one corner there was a large church, non-Catholic, Inside I could hear music. . . .

So I stopped, walked inside to rest a minute and watch the service. . . . It was, I assumed, to be a wedding, because the pianist had just begun the strains of Mendelssohn's world-famous march. . . . Tee, dum, tee, dee. . . .

At the first notes, a handsomely-dressed uniformed older man was out of his seat and to the front of the church. . . . There was a hurried consultation with the girl who was the pianist. . . . And then silence. . . .

There was a rustle of relatives and friends who crowded the first two rows of pews. . . . But that was all. . . . Fifteen minutes later I walked out, wondering, puzzled. . . .

What had happened? . . . Had the bride deserted? . . . Was the groom missing? . . . Had they mutually agreed to call it a day? . . .

Of course, some would probably have guessed immediately. . . . But it wasn't, I think, until a week later when I was back in Paris, still wondering, that I remembered the composer of that wedding march they'd begun was a Jew. . . .

He knew nothing about Hollywood when he came, but he did know about business—two degrees from the University of Chicago, five years in the Orient, three spent in business. He'd heard about Los Angeles, so he came to see if it were all true. . . .

He saw the three great industries: citrus fruits, oil and motion pictures. He chose the latter as offering least competition in his field, and settled down to a job for which, till then, there was absolutely no competition: that of No Man in a Yes Man's Paradise. . . .

Now a talk with a man like this ought to produce reams of copy about the foibles of Hollywood's famous—but remember that this Rex Cole is a successful business manager. If his clients ever do those little foolish things that make good stories, you won't hear about them from Cole. . . .

TUNING IN

By Loren Hickerson

FRANCHOT TONE and Sylvia Sidney, two screen stars who recently returned to Broadway and the legitimate stage, will step from the footlights to the microphone as guest stars on the Kate Smith hour over the Columbia network at 7 o'clock tonight.

The two visitors from around the corner will present scenes from their Broadway success, "The Gentle People." This light comedy about gangsters has been contributed to the stage by Irwin Shaw, heretofore well known for his motion picture scenarios and short stories. "The Gentle People" is Shaw's first play for Broadway.

Franchot Tone, making his third visit to Kate Smith's program within a year, will be heard as Harold Goff, the gangster who extends his racketeering to some simple fisherfolk at Sheepshead bay, near Coon Island's Steeplechase pier. Miss Sidney plays Stella Goodman, daughter of the nice old man who is victimized by Tone. In the end, the fishermen turn tables on the gangsters and dust him off.

Other features of the program will find Henry Aldrich again confused between problems of the heart and finances, Abbott and Costello wrangling in the new Mopeville business venture, Johnny Williams and his boys offering new swing arrangements, and the hostess of the program, Kate Smith, assisted by Jack Miller's band and Ted Straeter's chorus, singing a new group of melodies such as have established her as the leading lady of the microphone.

ANDRE KOSTELANETZ, the musical director, will get the opportunity to display the versatility of his musical range on subsequent weeks. For his guest of tonight over CBS the maestro will present Glady's Swarhout, famed opera singer.

The show will be heard at 9 o'clock. Next week Kostelanz leaves the sublime and goes to Gene Autry, which should be significant in itself. . . .

Kay Kyser was just behind Guy Lombardo as the favorite band leader in the poll held annually in

AND JACK BENNY scores as double radio champion again, according to results of the poll announced Saturday. Alton Cook of the New York World-Telegram did the poll.

Once again the Waukegan jester has been selected by the editors as the champion of champions. His Sunday night program was also voted the most popular of all radio shows. Last year he lost this honor to dummy Charlie McCarthy, after having held the post the two years preceding.

For the fifth consecutive season Benny has been named favorite comedian, a great tribute to the consistency of the star's performance.

Health Hints: A normal human chest is flat, and a chest subject to tuberculosis is round. By "flat" is not meant that the chest is caved in, in front, but that it is narrower from front to back than it should be. The tuberculosis or consumptive chest is bent over the front, looks flat, but in reality it is deeper than the healthier flat chest.

These statements are contradictory to those usually made or believed. I think most doctors, even those who work in tuberculosis, would say, if asked, that the chest least likely to acquire tuberculosis is not flat, but deep.

When Dr. S. A. Weisman, of Minneapolis, discovered this contradiction several years ago, it suggested to him that it might be used to aid in individual defenses against the disease. In any such infection as tuberculosis, there must be the factor of the soil and the seed. For the development of a case of tuberculosis, there must be a suitable kind of constitution on which the germs may grow. The round barrel chest represents a kind of soil that is favorable to growth.

Dr. Weisman believes that there is much that can be done in young life to change the type of chest. All children's chests are round, and in the course of development become flat. Respiratory infections keep them round and thereby make a good soil for tuberculosis. Adenoids, repeated attacks of tonillitis, bronchitis, chronic bronchitis and asthma are conditions that tend to produce round chests and all are, to a certain extent, subject to correction.

Exercises especially adapted to developing a proper chest expansion and to the production of reserve defense against tuberculosis can be planned.

Exercises Counts: Forty years ago Hutchinson wrote in regard to correcting the round-chestedness of the tubercular type, "a month of tree climbing will do more good than a gallon of treatment after the disease has developed." He advised "a reversion to the aboreal habits of our ancestors" to correct malformations in children's chests. In active tuberculosis, rest is important, so tree-climbing is taboo, but for children who have no signs or symptoms of tuberculosis, other than a poorly developed chest, the old advice is still good.

Other exercises are climbing ladders with the back toward the ladder; the ladder used is that found in orthopedic or fully equipped gymnasiums. Swimming is excellent. Any work with horizontal bars, or rings, or other equipment which makes the exerciser hang by the hands, is the kind desired.

These days gymnasium teachers are busy teaching children rhythm which does nothing to develop the chest or expand the lungs, while the ropes, rings, horizontal ladders and bars have all been tied up or put away.

A few days ago a lady press-agent came in and was telling me about the marvelous things the New York "world's" fair is going to have. For some reason or other I asked her something about the San Francisco fair. She almost fainted. "You can't write anything paralleling the two fairs," she said. "Mr. Whalen wouldn't stand for it."

Well, now, isn't that just too bad. Will you kindly tell me what Grover Whalen has to do with what is written about both fairs? Meanwhile, the San Francisco fair has set up offices in New York, and if you want to see anybody get bored, just wander by those offices and ask them about the New York fair.

A New Yorker at Large

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Almost every day letters are received from people asking about the New York fair and what they should see when they get here. Now let's be honest with one another. Let's start all over again and get this thing straightened out. I don't know. I don't know you and I don't know you and I don't know you. That goes for the New York "world's" fair and also the San Francisco fair. I think both of them are acting like a couple of shrill spinsters anyway.

A few days ago a lady press-agent came in and was telling me about the marvelous things the New York "world's" fair is going to have. For some reason or other I asked her something about the San Francisco fair. She almost fainted. "You can't write anything paralleling the two fairs," she said. "Mr. Whalen wouldn't stand for it."

Spaulding's latest edition of "track and field" rules gives a great deal of credit to the University of Iowa's graduate school for its experiments in the world of sports, particularly its research in the development of high school track events.

It has this to say about the university's part in standardizing the discus throw so far as the national setup is concerned: "The new high school discus is official this year and will be recognized as the only one for high school records, so far as the national setup is concerned. The size and weight of the new discus was determined by means of experiments made by the graduate school of the University of Iowa, in which the size of the hand and finger strength of high school boys as compared with those of college boys were calculated.

Although it is a known fact that the graduate school has been turning out some fine work in this field, very few know the real significance of the efforts of the university to better, if at all possible, the equipment of those athletes who provide many of us with many thrills during the competitive season. Much credit is due the graduate school for its fine work in this field.

And Francis Heydt, fanciest back stroker this institution has seen in many a day, elected to continue his studies at Michigan. Why? Don't ask me as I can't supply the answer.

With one of the better pools in the country, one of the better swim mentors in the country why should Heydt transfer his affections to another school?

Michigan, of course, will disclaim all knowledge of the affair. Michigan usually does. I still wonder why?

Youthful pugilists, interested in what Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, was pleased to call "the manly art of self defense," will swing various and sundry "Sunday punches" at opponents tonight at Tiffin in that will be the opening of hostilities in the fight trail that will lead to Iowa City and eastern Iowa's boxing tournament, scheduled to take place in the community building Feb. 20, 21 and 24.

Of the many projects promoted by this community, this stands out as the worthiest.

It's easy enough to fight a cagey battle from the 34th row — which Mae Jacobs humorously calls "inside" — but it's an entirely different matter to be in there swinging against a worthy opponent.

The boys entered in this tournament rate all the support possible for Iowa Citizens to give — if you don't think so, try three fast rounds with any of them. It'll be quite an experience.

All set to gain revenge for the only defeat the Iowa City football team received last fall, the Little Hawk basketball team will meet Franklin high school of Cedar Rapids in the last Mississippi Valley conference game of the season.

Coach Francis Merten spent the week in rehearsing offensive formations as he sought to put final polish to the Red and White boys' play. The Hawklets already have the strongest offensive in the league and Merten wished to guard against any let-up by his men.

Franklin has had rather a poor season and, along with the other Parlor City schools, makes up the bottom flight of the league. Coach Orville Rust's boys are only one place out of last position by virtue of two wins and five losses, while McKinley has won only one and lost seven. Roosevelt and Wilson are just above them in the standings.

TRACK TEAM LEAVES FOR MINNESOTA; GRAVES ILL

Iowa's "one win-no loss" track team leaves for Minneapolis at 1 o'clock this afternoon, intent on making it victory number two by whipping the also undefeated Gophers Friday afternoon.

Although the chances are good for an Iowa victory, the Hawkeye squad will be weakened by the loss of John Graves, one of its co-captains. Graves, who has contracted a slight cold, has been ordered to stay at home to avoid any chance of missing the National A. A. U. championships Feb. 25 at New York.

Reasons for Iowa optimism is found in the number of splendid sprinters and middle distance runners Coach Bresnahan has at his disposal. Carl Teufel, Ed Wiggins and Jim Wilson sport plenty of speed in the 60-yard dash and the 440-yard dash should be another clean sweep for Iowa with Fred Teufel, Milt Billig and Ed McCollister running one - two - three.

Iowa Cagers Drill for Power Before Invasion by Hoosiers

Hope for Revival Of Scoring Strength That Downed Purdue

Lacking nothing at all in the way of defense, but minus some of that tremendous scoring that their opponents for Saturday night possess, Iowa's cagers have turned to offensive drill this week as Coach Rollie Williams seeks to ready his team for the coming of Indiana's league leading Hoosiers.

With three straight defeats behind them, the Hawks are hoping for nothing more than the return of the deadly scoring power that accounted for Purdue and downed Chicago. Benny Stephens, to be sure, has been piling up points again, but Angie Anapol, who accounted for 24 points in the last two games before the late lamented road trip, has scored nothing more than free throws since that time. One point in each of those two contests was the record of Anapol, who sometimes hits from all angles and sometimes doesn't connect at all.

Besides the recovery of Anapol, Iowans are hoping for the return to form that brought Charles Plett and Kenny Bastian their standings as the most improved players on the squad, and there was one good sign in the Illinois game. Tommy Lind, apparently has begun to add something to the total. Lind poured in four field goals in that game, and perhaps he can hold that kind of a pace.

Gym Team To Meet Gophers

Clash Monday In Opening Meet Of Gymnastic Season

Preparing for the coming conference campaign, Coach Albert Baumgartner has his gymnastic team going through their paces every afternoon now.

With the opening meet against Minnesota's Big Ten title holders only a short time away, Baumgartner has been looking forward to a better season than the gymnasts had last year.

At present, he has 10 performers that seem to shape up to a more than fair to middlin' aggregation. Standouts among these are Capt. Adam Vogel, who was out for a good part of last season with a shoulder injury who will compete in four events; and Robert Parry, a veteran of the 1937 title year. Parry was not in school last year, but is expected to be in at least three events, starring on the horizontal bar and the flying rings.

The Better to See PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia's zoning board agreed yesterday to permit major league baseball at night over the protests that howling fans would disturb sleep and wake babies.

J. Roper, Louis' Next Ring Foe, Lacks That Something Known as Reputation

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8 (AP)—For the benefit of those who don't know, and they seem to be in the majority, Jack Roper is best described as a human being.

He is also a heavyweight fighter and the man Mike Jacobs, Tom Gallery and fate selected as the next opponent for Joe Louis. On second thought, leave fate out of the matter. It has enough problems without getting mixed up with the troubles of Messrs. Jacobs and Gallery.

As who's who might have it, but doesn't, Roper was born 36 years ago in Ponchatoula, La., and christened Cecil Byron Hammond. He gave up three names and original good looks, as well as Ponchatoula, in time, and adopted the ring name of his more illustrious brother, Captain Bob Roper of A. E. F. boxing fame, when he started fighting along about 1924.

Roper thinks his first appearance inside the ropes was here, but says it might have been in Norfolk, Va., or even New York because he often gets places confused, and anyway, for years he rambled around the country as just another heavyweight.

winning the pole vault. Iowa's loss of points in the field events should be offset by their firsts in the track events.

Iowa will be seeking its sixth straight victory over Minnesota tomorrow. For the past two years the Hawkeyes have won by a score of 59-27. The Hawks have won 11 of their past 12 indoor dual meets against Big Ten competition and since 1929 have won 14 of 18 meets.

Men making the trip are Ralph Kosbau, John Collinge, Roberts, Wiggins, Merlin Erickson, McCollister, Sparks, Wilson, Elliott, Billig, Fred Teufel, Carl Teufel, Bill Leuz, Don Parrish and Ed Baird.

Hawks to Meet Moline Fencers

Friday, Feb. 18, marks the return of fencing to the Iowa campus as a competitive sport.

The coming encounter with the Moline Y.M.C.A., at the fieldhouse, signifies more to Iowa fencers than a chance to display their athletic prowess. It is the return of an athletic activity, because of student interest.

For years the sport has lain dormant. But student interest has revived, and the ancient sport will again adorn Iowa's sport calendar. Coach Albert Baumgartner has already chosen four of the required eight contestants for the Moline encounter. Heading the Iowa fencers will be Alexander Ehrenberg, a graduate student from Brooklyn, N. Y. Ehrenberg, an aspirant for the 1936 Olympic team, was a member of the City College of New York's fencing squad for three years.

Other definite positions on the Iowa team are held by: Milford Barnes, of Iowa City; Harold Kirshenblit, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Henry Hamilton, of Oak Park, Ill. The remaining four positions will be filled through competition in the advanced fencing classes.

Dates will also be set for anticipated matches against Coe college and Ames.

Promoters To Line Up Fight For Tony Soon

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The three men most interested in matching Tony Galento against a ranking heavyweight agreed on a plan today that is expected to send the Newark fighter against either Lou Nova, Tommy Farr or Max Baer.

Herman Taylor, Philadelphia promoter who holds an option on Galento's services, agreed to release Tony to Mike Jacobs, head of New York's Twentieth Century Sporting club. Joe Jacobs, manager of Galento, said Tony was ready to fight Farr at once or later, meet either Nova or Baer if Mike can break their May 25 date or tackle the winner this summer.

Mike said he expected to clear up the matter with a definite announcement within a couple of days.

In the Fold NEW YORK (AP)—Three rookies sent in their signed contracts to the New York Yankees yesterday. They were Catcher Warren Rosar, leading batter of the International league while with Newark last year; Pitcher Al Piechota, up from the champions' Kansas City farm, and Charles Stanceau, also a pitcher from the Yankees' Binghamton, N. Y., farm.

Wildcats Next for Tankers

Seek Second Straight Win Of Season

Upon the shoulders of two sophomores, Carl Ahlgren and Ernie Draves, and a pair of veterans, Ed Gerber and Bill Tesla, rests the biggest job confronting Dave Armbruster's Iowa swimming team which tackles Northwestern Saturday at Evanston.

Rated highly as a conference threat this season, the Wildcat squad will present its main strength in the distance swims, where it will tackle a few of Iowa's rising stars. In the 440 and 220-yard swims, the Hawk-eyes will be depending upon the stars of last year's freshman squad. Carl Ahlgren, Ed Gerber, Bill Tesla and, probably, Ernie Draves.

Ahlgren, in winning the 440 event in the Chicago meet, distinguished himself, and it may be Ahlgren and another sophomore, McCaffree, of the Chicago team, who will battle it out Saturday. McCaffree, like Ahlgren, has an enviable record, having won the A. A. U. 220-yard event in 1937.

However, the Wildcats are not depending entirely upon one man in either of the distance events. With a Des Moines boy, Kelley, and Walsh to back up McCaffree, they will present a formidable front to Armbruster's combinations of distance men.

Although the Iowa mentor is not certain as yet who he will start in either of the longer swims, he plans to use all four of his distance hopes.

Against Chicago, Armbruster used Ahlgren and Ed Gerber, who has been cutting down his time of late in the 440. In the 220, he depended upon sophomore Ernie Draves, and Bill Tesla, who recently returned to school.

With a brilliant swimmer, Van DeWater, for competition, the Hawks acquitted themselves well in both of these events. Ahlgren came first in the 440, but Van DeWater nosed out Gerber for the second position. And, in the 220, the Maroon star was a little more successful. He came first, trailed by both of the Iowa entries, Draves and Tesla, who finished second and third.

The Hawk-eyes appear better equipped to do battle this week. Tesla has had another week of training and, considering that he has been back in the water for only two weeks, this should mean a lot of improvement in Tesla's work. Ahlgren, also, should be in better form. He has been ill until late in January, when he began his actual training period. Gerber, too, is much more potential than his performance against Chicago would indicate.

McSpaden In Sub-Par Round At San Antonio

Chesley Wins From Gables In Volleyball

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 8 (AP)—Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Boston pro, warmed up for the $5,000 Texas open tournament today by shooting a 59 — 12 under par — to break the old Brackenridge course record by five shots.

Fred Corcoran, tournament manager, said the round broke all P.G.A. records for par 71 courses. McSpaden clipped seven shots off the first nine with never a putt more than 10 feet from the cup, and then coasted in with five birdies and four pars on the incoming nine.

Previously Abe Espinosa had cracked out a 63 to better the old course record by one stroke.

A field of 175 is expected for the first 18 holes of the event Friday.

Middies Sink Long Ones To Win

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 8 (AP)—The ability to sink long shots balanced Navy's erratic play today and the Middies turned back the Washington and Jefferson college basketball team 51 to 37.

With the visitors unable to cash in on close firing, Navy held the upper hand after the first 10 minutes, despite wild passing and shooting. When the Presidents closed in during the last part of the game, Navy got to work in earnest and, showing its first real attack, sped away to a comfortable lead.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Forks (and a few knives) in the sports trail:

Add reasons why the Cincinnati Reds may be the team to look over and not the team to overlook in the National league race:

Wally Berger, outfield ace, escaped unscathed in a coast motor car accident, and sees this as an omen for a great year. The outfielder of Berger, Harry Craft and Ival Goodman accounted for 61 home runs last season, and is rated one of the best defensive trios in the circuit. If the Reds can catch up the defensive fences around second base they will be tougher than a day at the races.

It probably was a mistake in the first place, so the recent mention of the midwest as the hotbed of basketball naturally bounced right back. Phil McLeese, Salt Lake City Tribune sports editor, puts his chips on the intermountain country as the real playground of the game, pointing out that his paper carries more than 70 box scores in its Saturday editions.

(Note—This is emphatically not a contest to discover which paper gives its linotype operators the biggest headache. Hutchinson, Kan., was mentioned previously because its printing of 44 boxes seemed like a big job for a paper of that size.)

Sports celebrity impressions: Leo Durocher, Dodger pilot — eye old babbling brook. Ed Barrow, Yankee prey — the great stone face. Joe Louis — dynamite in velvet. Lou Gehrig — Shirley Temple's dimples on a mountain. Glenn Cunningham — a geared-up model T.

Americans Lose Match Basle, Switzerland, Feb. 8 (AP)—The United States' hockey team received its first setback in the world amateur hockey championship today, losing to Switzerland, 3-2.

Two of Switzerland's goals were kicked into the net by American players while the third was awarded to the victors by the referee because the cage had been moved.

The winning goal in this weird match, played before 14,000 spectators, came in the seventh minute of the final period. The Swiss forward, Kessler, drove a long shot toward the American goal. At the same moment the cage was bumped aside and although the puck missed it, the Polish referee, Sachs, allowed the goal to count.

Blues Prepare For Vengeance On Old Foes

U-high cagers were sent through a brisk scrimmage yesterday, as the Blues practically concluded preparation for their final home appearance Friday night against the veteran West Liberty quintet.

Although no accurate score was kept during yesterday's scrimmage, the Rivermen displayed a much-improved type of game. Scoring punch which has been absent to date was present for the first time yesterday. Krogh, Carson and Burns contributed several buckets each to swell the U-high total. In addition, these three veterans turned in a smooth floor game.

The Brechlermen have been pointing for Friday's game for some time, and are determined to avenge for an early 20-16 beating at West Liberty.

Defeating West Liberty, however, will be no easy task, and the Blue and White lads will have to be in top form if they are to trip their old rivals. Maylan and Lane, forward and center respectively on the visitors' quintet, are the chief scoring threats. It was the combined scoring of these two boys which was largely responsible for West Liberty's early season victory.

Coach Brechler will depend on his tight zone defense, which rates as the best in the conference, to stop the visitors' attack.

U-high's defense has held opposing teams to 18 points a game, to top the conference in this respect. Offensively the locals rate fifth with an average of 21.8 points a game.

In addition to the varsity game, the U-high sophomores will battle the West Liberty reserves.

Five University of Iowa athletes—the record breaking mile relay team and John Collinge, high hurdler—on Feb. 25 will become the first Hawkeyes to compete in the National A. A. U. senior indoor championships in New York city.

The Iowans, accompanied by Coach George Bresnahan, will leave Feb. 23 and will compete two days later on the new board track in Madison Square Garden.

Relay runners will be Co-Captains John Graves and Fred Teufel, Carl Teufel, and Milton Billig. It was this quartet which ran 3:15.4 last spring for a new Drake relays record and the third-fastest mile relay run in the United States in 1938.

In New York, the men will run the 1600-meter relay and possibly the 1000-meter medley event of 400, 100, 200, and 300 yards. There is a possibility that several of the Iowans also will compete in open individual events such as the 60-meter dash and the 600 and 1,000-meter runs.

The present all-senior team last year averaged .483 per man in winning the Drake race. Except for Billig, who has run on boards in eastern meets as a schoolboy, the Iowans have raced only once on a board track, that being at the Chicago relays last year. They will work out on the Garden track the day before the meet.

Collinge, who last week equaled the field house record in the 70-yard high hurdles, will run the 65-meter high hurdles. He placed in races at numerous major meets last year, winning second in the Big Ten indoor meet, third outdoors, and second at Kansas relays.

While in New York the Iowans will be guests of the Iowa alumni club, headed by Arlo Wilson, former Hawkeye track captain.

Grapefruit Salad on the Half-Shell

This is a big citrus month — the time to get bargain buys and eat all the grapefruit you want — broiled, baked, juice and "au naturel" — or in these attractive ways. Make your grapefruit salad crisp and fresh, right at the table and serve it "on the halfshell" in its own natural bowl.

Remove seeds from grapefruit. With a sharp knife cut around in-side edge of grapefruit as close to the shell as possible. Separate grapefruit segments from mem-brane. Cut out remainder of membrane and place a bed of ro-maine or escarole around inside of shell. Cut grapefruit segments into pieces and arrange on lettuce bed. Garnish with French dress-ing.

For other variations place en-dive stalk around the grapefruit shell. Heap grapefruit segments at base of endive stalks and sprinkle with grated yellow cheese, garnish with French dress-ing.

Try sprinkling the grapefruit segments with finely cut celery and dust with paprika. Garnish with French dressing or Roquefort cheese dressing.

Another attractive way to use avocados is to cut them into strips and lay them lengthwise and crosswise in the grapefruit halves. Alternate slices of avo-cado and segments of grapefruit on lettuce bed. Garnish with French dressing.

And for a Valentine party, place grapefruit segments on lettuce bed and sprinkle with finely chopped maraschino cherries. Garnish with maraschino dressing.

Belts Now—What Next?

Feminine Collectors Browse for Clasps, Sashes, Fasteners

Instead of collecting grandfa-ther clocks, willow-ware and sandwich glass, the feminine col-lector of 1939 has placed belts in their rightful limelight. All over the world milady is busily brows-ing around for fantastic belts, belt buckles and clasps to adorn her pullovers, fur coats, plain wool frocks and even glamorous even-ing gowns.

The tang of the wide open spaces goes into the makeup of this waistline highlight. Flashy red leather, about four inches wide, is a typical cowboy belt. Studded with shiny gold or silver nail heads and matched by a wide cuff it makes an amusing note in a formal afternoon ensemble of change-able blue and green lame.

Colorful links of alligator form a striking band to set off any one of this season's popular light weight sweaters. Jump rope belts in leather matching either your sweater, skirt or both will be seen on the golf links, tennis courts or for casual campus or street wear.

A cerise sash tucked into a dull gold buckle is smart and colorful when worn over a black fur coat. And for that classy sport tweed coat tie a belt of brown leather disks studded with steel nail heads about the waist and let it dangle down the front.

Particularly interesting for even-ing wear are antique gold belt buckles attached to velvet sashes. Another brilliant number is of black suede rich with gold filigree, pearls and rubies. Still another is of hammered silver with royal decoration and slit to hold a black velvet belt.

To top off that classic black and white gown add a twisted gold or silver kid belt. And if you are partial to trim shirtmaker dresses, give them added style by buckling on a tiny black patent leather belt.

For beach wear and those gay summer prints why not be up-to-the-minute in a colored raffia belt, twisted into colorful sea shells and fish net.

This season madame is more and more waistline conscious. And if their popularity and unique styles mean anything, stylists might even design frocks as mere accessories to milady's belts.

Engineers Give Demonstration Of Resuscitation

An explanation and demonstration of the prone pressure method of artificial respiration was given by Henry Bilterman, E4 of Hite-man, and Werner Moeller, E4 of Iowa City, at the weekly meeting of the Iowa student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers yesterday.

The A. I. E. E. requests that at least one period a year be given to instructing student engineers in the proper method of resuscitating persons suffering from electric shock, drowning or gassing. The prone pressure method, which is recommended, is the easiest and most effective.

A number of concerns make it imperative that their employees be thoroughly familiar with artificial respiration as well as other first aid measures. To this end they devote a part of their training courses which the incoming engineer must take.

The operation of pulmotors, resuscitators and inhalators was also discussed at the meeting yesterday.

Camera Club Adopts Change In Structure

Will Be Divided Into Regular, Advanced And Cinema Groups

The Campus Camera club adopted a new plan of organization Tuesday night at their regular monthly meeting in the fine arts building.

The members of the club will now be grouped in sections in order to facilitate their mastery of the art of photography and to afford a better opportunity for each member to develop along the line of his special interest.

A regular section, advanced section, and cinema section make up the new divisions organized. Shirley Briggs, A3 of Iowa City, president, announced that the chairman of each section will plan and carry on his own program.

Ruben Scharf of Scharf's studio, will direct, as chairman, the activities of the advanced group. Lee Cochran, supervisor of visual instruction, will be in charge of the cinema section. Through the development of each section with a greater variety of activities and equalizing the competition in each class of work, the usefulness of the club will be promoted.

The regular monthly meeting of the club will continue to be devoted to demonstrations, lectures, discussions, and print criticisms as before. Moreover, informal meetings concerned with special projects will be held by the members of each section. In this way the calendar of the club will provide some activity at least once a week.

Elementary instruction and experimentation will be taken up by the general section. Projects of a more technical nature will be undertaken by the advanced section. The cinema section is open to all those interested in making motion pictures.

Any person in Iowa City, whether connected with the university or not, is eligible to membership in the Campus Camera club. All persons actively interested in any phase of photography are cordially invited to join the club and participate in any branch of its activities.

Prof. Lester D. Longman To Present Two Public Lectures

First Talk Will Be Given February 14, Second February 28

Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the graphic and plastic arts department, will present two public lectures in the auditorium of the fine arts building at 8 p.m. Feb. 14 and Feb. 28.

The subject for the first lecture will be "Giotto and Florentine Humanism," and for the second "Leonardo da Vinci, Artist and Scientist."

In these related lectures, both of which will be illustrated by approximately 60 slides, Professor Longman will discuss the beginning of Florentine humanism and the great man of that period, carrying the development of the movement through to its highest peak. The work of Giotto marks the beginning of the humanistic movement in Florence and da Vinci climaxes its development.

In presenting "Giotto and Florentine Humanism," Professor Longman will discuss the principles of late Byzantine art which preceded the beginning of the humanistic spirit in the early Renaissance.

He will contrast the hieratic and dogmatic religious quality of medieval work with the new and more human religious interest which inspired Giotto. This new trend in art is paralleled by a new approach in literature which is exemplified in the writings of Petrarch and Dante.

The changed attitude marked a new period in the humanity of man and introduced a warmer and more tolerant religious spirit. It is generally considered that

Longman to Speak

Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the graphic and plastic arts department, will present two lectures, the first on "Giotto and Florentine Humanism" Feb. 14, and the second on "Leonardo da Vinci, Artist and Scientist," Feb. 28, in the fine arts building.

this new attitude developed as a result of the influence of St. Francis.

Among the large number of slides which Professor Longman will use to illustrate his lecture on Feb. 14 will be the great fresco series of Giotto in the Arena chapel in Padua. These frescoes, which were done in 1305, illustrate the artist's style and demonstrate the characteristics of the period as exemplified in painting.

Professor Longman will touch

Dr. Marie Skodak, Iowa Alumna, Publishes New Child Welfare Study

Dr. Marie Skodak, who received a doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Iowa last August and who is now connected with the Flint, Mich., guidance center, has just published a new study in the series of "Iowa Studies in Child Welfare."

The bulletin is entitled "Children in Foster Homes: A Study of Mental Development." It is an investigation of the mental development of orphan children placed in foster homes and the relationships existing between their mental development and various characteristics of the true and foster parents.

Two groups of orphan children from family backgrounds that were inferior in education, occupational level, intelligence, and economic status were placed in foster homes above average and superior in these characteristics.

One group of 154 children was placed before six months of age and another of 65 children was placed in foster homes between the ages of two and five and one-half years.

Thus the first group did not experience the true-family background at all as a result of their placement in early infancy; while the second group lived in varying periods of unfavorable environment of the true home or in other environments known to be adverse to mental development.

The mental level of the foster children placed under six months of age was found to be above the average of the general population and above the level of expectation judging from the data on the real parents.

With regard to the children placed between the ages of two and five and one-half years, there appears to be no relationship between the intelligence of the children and the intellectual level of the true parents. On change from the poor environment of the true home to the superior environment of the foster home the children began to gain in IQ and continued to gain over the period of time covered by the study.

The children placed in foster homes in early infancy, however, showed a higher degree of mental growth than those placed during the preschool ages. This general trend was true even in the case of children whose true fathers came from the lowest occupational levels or who had one parent who was known to be mentally defective.

Thus the final mental status of these orphanage children was found to be more closely related to the mental level of the foster parents than to the mental ability of the true parents.

The evidence indicates that it is the home rather than the child's true-family background that sets the limits of his mental growth. Children from the point of view of mental growth are truly what the home makes them.

Legislature May Control State Cars; Prepare Auto Pooling Bill

Highway Patrol Unit Exempted in Draft Aimed at Economy

DES MOINES, Feb. 8 (AP)—Those 2,000 state cars on the highways tonight drew the attention of Iowa's retrenchment republican legislature.

Rep. H. W. Burma (R), Allison, disclosed that the joint house and senate committee is preparing to introduce a bill providing for strict control of all cars operated by the state government under a dispatcher system.

The measure, he said, would provide for a pooling of state cars under the supervision of a dispatcher appointed by the governor. Some agencies, such as the state highway patrol and highway commission would receive a needed number of cars, but those individuals or agencies that had only casual need for a vehicle would be required to file a requisition to obtain state transportation.

Burma said he had no idea how much of a saving could be achieved by adoption of this measure. In New Jersey, however, he said, a "pooling" system saved a reported $100,000 a year in the operation of 1,300 cars. He added he did not know how much of a reduction the eastern state effected in the number of vehicles needed.

Governor George A. Wilson and the Iowa executive council yesterday voted to discontinue assignment of state cars to the governor and council officials. The governor has never used the state automobile left with him by former Governor Kraschel.

Senator Edward Breen (D-

Fort Dodge) tonight drafted a bill taking the Iowa motor vehicle department and its unit, the highway patrol, out from under the control of the secretary of state.

The bill adds another chapter in the dispute between republican Secretary of State Earl G. Miller, who now controls the motor vehicle department and the highway patrol, and those who would take these departments from him. The bill has democratic support in the house.

The names of Representatives E. A. Moore (D-Harlan) and W. J. Johannes (D-Osceola) were on its title page.

Breen's bill, which he said will be introduced in the senate tomorrow, would call for the appointment of a motor vehicle commissioner by the governor for a six-year term, with senate ratification.

The present commissioner is appointed by the secretary of state and draws $5,000 a year. The salary of the commissioner under the Breen measure would be $4,000.

The inter-fraternity council last night went on record in opposition of sending corsages for university or fraternity parties. The vote does not apply to sorority parties, it was pointed out.

The matter of social etiquette was voted upon by each individual chapter on the campus before the council meeting last night, and the vote of that body reflected the sentiments of the individual chapters.

Not a Bluff Reed Asks Increase In Appropriations

DES MOINES, Feb. 8 (AP)—Charles D. Reed, government meteorologist here, said today that if the state legislature continues appropriations for the weather bureau at the present level it might be necessary to reduce the number of observation posts in Iowa by one-third.

He said his warning is "not just a bluff" to get more money from the legislators. He said overhead expenses for the 145 stations in the state have become so top-heavy that they will have to be slashed or the appropriation base will not be large enough to support them.

The state's present share in the upkeep of the stations is $3,500, the amount of the appropriation proposed by the state comptroller for the next biennium.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART WASHINGTON, D. C. — Of course President Roosevelt should not have made a secret of that conference of his with the senate military affairs committee. He might have known that the senators who attended it would tell all about it to the newspapermen as soon as they got out of the White House. Maybe he did know it. Plenty of commentators suspect that he insisted on secrecy simply to intensify interest in the event, thereby getting still more publicity out of it. However, he evidently did not foresee that the 16 or 17 senators present would be fairly sure to disclose differing and possibly conflicting stories.

If the whole out-doors had been invited in, there could not be any dispute as to the correct answer to the question, "Did or didn't 'F.D.' say that Uncle Sam's 'frontier' or 'first line of defense' is 'on the Rhine' or in 'France and England'?" Too many people would have heard him say it or not say it—and there'd be a stenographic record.

Driven to Extreme As it is, the president is driven to the extreme of declaring that the yarn referred to is a "deliberate lie"—muddled strong language. "Teddy" Roosevelt used to speak of "liars," but he was not quite that emphatic.

And an additional trouble is that at least five of the 16 or 17 senators present stand pat that they did hear the president express himself approximately as quoted. Some recall that he said "frontier"; some that he said "on the Rhine"; some that he said "France and England."

It seems like stretching the candy muddling thin to draw such distinctions.

Yet it is hard not to do so. One does not like to assume that the White House tenant is over-doing himself in tanning a handful of senators "deliberate liars." But if they are not, what is the president, in so denouncing them? Perish that idea also!

Nix on Secrecy "F.D." was not satisfied with consulting secretly with the senate military affairs committee. Having consulted with these latter gentry he called another committee into his confidence to clarify what he had discussed with the military affairs folk.

Thus the conversation was everlastingly mixed up.

A lot of congressmen were excluded from these gatherings.

Now, a senator or a representative is as jealous as a soprano.

Such of these "birds" as have been called especially into consultation at the executive mansion naturally are flattered, even if they are anti-new dealers — it makes them look important.

But the rank and file of legislators (including neglected new dealers) are as sore as boils.

Right on top of this other secrecy comes monetary secrecy.

What about the "stabilization" contract? I will gamble that the average man never heard of it.

In pre-war days?

Suppose, then, that an American tourist was coming home from, say, France. He changed his French money into American money, and knew what he was getting, about, in American money. At that time the French franc was worth about five to the American dollar. The tourist knew what he was entitled to and got it.

International currencies no longer mean much. The individual tourist can stand international fluctuations, but they raise Cain with big business.

So— Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, along with Great Britain and France, fixed up a scheme to stabilize international exchange. It has involved 2 billion dollars. It has worked tolerably well.

But nobody knows HOW or WHY it has worked.

I always thought I didn't know how or why—on the theory that I was too darned dumb.

Now I discover that senators and financiers do not know, either.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

READ THIS FIRST: Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., finds herself involved in a mystery when the eccentric old lady is found dead under one of the hair driers after Elsie had left the room for a few moments. She is further humiliated when she learns that one of the servants in the Manor's household suspects her of taking Mrs. Witherspoon's emeralds, which are missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family and some of the house guests strike Elsie as queer, and she is surprised when the old lady's son, Horace Witherspoon, advising her to say nothing of the missing jewels for fear of publicity and the police. The coroner arrives for his investigation. Phil Benson, Elsie's friend and a reporter, comes for an obituary for his paper and Elsie shows him around the mansion. Mrs. Witherspoon's funeral is held the next day. (Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER SIXTEEN TUESDAY dawned a better and brighter day. I felt quite cheerful as I bustled about the salon preparing the pads and curlers and ammonia for Mrs. Horace's permanent. Promptly at nine she arrived and by nine-thirty things were well under way.

I had almost completed wrapping the hair when Miss Daphne looked in.

"Going to make mother beautiful?" she called, laughing at the sight of Mrs. Horace looking like nothing so much as a picanniny with her head covered with metal clips.

I smiled. The more I saw of Daphne the better I liked her.

"I've been trying to talk her into having this done for ages," she said, coming inside and seating herself on the arm of a chair. "She always refused until now."

"Better late than never," I said.

"Right you are," she agreed, and I thought she directed an anxious glance at her mother. "I'll run along. Glad wants me to help her pack. See you at lunch, mother."

At a quarter to eleven Mrs. Horace, her head a mass of kinky corkscrews, was ready for the final step. I plastered her hair with waving lotion and set the wave.

"Take the second driver, please," I directed, and was somewhat relieved when she scooted under it without demur. Either she had forgotten or did not care that it was in this chair that her mother-in-law had breathed her last. I fastened the cloth strip tightly about her throat and threw the switch.

I will never know to my dying day what made me suddenly whirl from the table where I was sorting and returning the curlers to their separate boxes, but whirl I did. For a moment I stood staring at the aproned figure beneath the drier. What had caused my start of alarm, my certainty that all was not as it should be? There was nothing wrong with the picture—Mrs. Horace sat quietly, her hands folded in her lap. Nothing wrong, and yet—there — there it was again! A soft scraping sound like the sound of something dragging roughly across the floor! It was close, quite close. Perplexed, I tipped to the drier.

And then—then I saw; I saw what was making the noise! The slipper-clad feet of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon were creeping slowly from beneath the hem of her skirt! They were pointed toward me, toes out! On and on they crept. I could not take my eyes from them. Suddenly, with a violent movement, they stopped. Horrified, my gaze traveled upward. Mrs. Horace lay sprawled in her chair, her neck held rigid by the cloth strip of the helmet! Her lower torso slumped grotesquely forward, as if it had endeavored to escape the rest of her body.

The room turned upside down and right side up again before I finally managed to throw the switch and lift the hood. And as the head was released from its forced imprisonment Mrs. Horace Witherspoon slid noiselessly to the floor.

As I bent above her a familiar odor tickled my nostrils. I sneezed! Then my knees gave way and I was sitting upright on the floor looking into the wide open eyes of Mrs. Horace. I screamed. I screamed again and again. These eyes regarded me steadily. They were terrified eyes! I scrambled to my feet and fled screaming into the corridor.

I sat in my bedroom waiting for someone to come for me. It was mid-afternoon and I had been waiting since twelve o'clock. Four hours of horror, of vague, nameless fears.

It was Miss Daphne who found me in the hallway. She had been coming up the front stairs when she had heard me shrieking, and she had run to where I stood and had shaken me roughly.

Before long the whole household was milling about the corridor. Mr. Horace appeared from somewhere, and when I saw him I began to scream again. It was his wife who lay on the salon floor with her eyes open—and dead!

"Hush!" he said, and his voice was a different one than I had ever heard him use. It was not faltering and uncertain, but strong and incisive. It cut like a knife through my hysteria. I was so astounded I quit yelling and stared at him open mouthed.

"What is it?" he demanded, and pointed to the salon.

"Something has happened," Daphne said. "Something dreadful, I think."

"What is the matter?" Della Craig pushed herself forward.

"Stand back all of you!" commanded Mr. Horace in his new crisp voice. "Miss Ritter, come with me!"

I tried to draw back. I did not want to go inside again, but he took hold of my arm and pulled me across the threshold and shut the door on the crowd outside.

"In the anteroom," I managed to stammer, and he pushed aside the silver curtain.

"Good God!" I heard him exclaim. He sort of staggered and fell into a chair and hid his face in his hands. For five minutes he sat thus; then he raised his head and looked at me.

"How did it happen?" he said at length, and he had his old voice back.

I shook my head helplessly. "I don't know. I never left the room."

"Poor Lettie!" He knelt on the floor beside her. "I—I don't understand."

"Father!" Daphne came into the room. She ran to the little man, and her eyes fell upon the body of her mother. I thought she was going to faint. But she did not faint. She stood there a few feet from her father and her mother—and there was an expression on her face that froze my blood to see.

She was smiling, with the corners of her mouth lifted ever so slightly and curled back from her teeth.

I must have gasped, for she turned and faced me gravely.

"She's dead, isn't she?" she asked softly.

"Yes, she's dead," Mr. Horace answered her. "Her heart has stopped beating."

"Father!" And now another voice called his name. The dark young man, Mr. Richard, burst into the salon. His face was pale with apprehension. "Della says there's been an accident!"

"Mother is dead," said Daphne, and she smiled again that queer, blood-chilling smile.

Labor Council Warns Contract Holders to Conform to Law

Building Trades Group Says Contractors to Be Prosecuted Under Labor Preference Rule

Warrant Issued For Arrest of Neil Hede, Plastering Contractor

By B. FRANKLIN CARTER JR., Daily Iowan City Editor

Warnings were issued last night to the holders of contracts on the new Morningside high school building by the Iowa City Building Trades council that the contractors must comply with the Iowa Labor Preference law before noon today or face prosecution, Harry Morse, business agent for the council, announced last night.

The warnings were sent to Paul Steenberg, general contractor for the high school building, and Swain Fwabery, general superintendent of construction of the building, Morse said.

Delivered by Messenger He explained that the notices from the council were delivered personally by messengers to Neil N. Hede and Fwabery, who are on the job in Iowa City, and telegraphed to Steenberg whose general offices are in Minneapolis.

The decision to notify the contractors was the result of a five-hour meeting by the council last night. The notices read:

"You are hereby notified to comply with the Iowa State Labor Preference law before noon, Feb. 9, 1939, or otherwise we will prosecute all concerned."

Warrant Issued

A warrant for the arrest of Hede issued yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace T. M. Fairchild on information charging Hede with a violation of the labor preference law had not been returned late last night, Justice Fairchild reported.

The warrant was issued on an information drawn up by Attorney Robert L. Larson, acting county attorney in the absence of County Attorney Harold W. Vestermarck, and signed by Morse, the business agent for the building trades council.

The information charged that Hede had employed a workman, Martin Swanson of Minneapolis, in preference to Edward Calloway of Iowa City which is allegedly contrary to the provision of the preference law which requires that contractors on public works paid for in part or entirely by taxation must use Iowa labor when available and competent.

Claims Union Requirement

Hede, when informed yesterday afternoon that the criminal charge had been filed against him, said that he was acting in accordance to international regulations of the plasterers' union which he claimed allowed an out-of-state contractor to employ a half of his workers from the state in which the contract is performed and the remaining half from the contractor's home state.

He explained that union local to which he and his men belong in Minneapolis required that he employ a half of the total workers on each out-of-state contract he undertakes from Minneapolis under the union regulations.

Hede reported that only seven men, six plasterers and an apprentice, employed on the school building were from Minnesota. "The remaining three-fourths of the men working are local men," he declared.

Developed Monday

The first indications of labor trouble on the high school building project developed Monday night when the trades council ordered all plasterers employed at the building to stop work, pending the settlement of the difficulties.

At the command of the council, which represents 13 organized labor crafts in Iowa City, the 27 plasterers, lathers and cleaners employed at the building did not work Tuesday or yesterday.

After Hede had failed to reach an agreement with the council Tuesday, the council threatened Tuesday night to order all union laborers on the project to stop work. With the exception of the 27 plasterers, all the workmen were on the job yesterday.

Morse explained that there is a possibility if Steenberg should not comply with the state preference law that all the projects being constructed by his company in the nation will be placed on the unpatronized list, resulting in the halting of operations.

The plastering work at the new school building is nearly half completed, according to Hede. If work is resumed at once, the plastering will be completed in about eight weeks, he said.

The Iowa City school board awarded the general contract for the construction of the building to the Paul Steenberg Construction company of Minneapolis who sub-let the plastering contract to Hede.
