He Who Brought Peace

THE ROMAN Catholic church lost one of its greatest leaders in the death of Pope Pius XI; but the loss will be felt equally by the non-Catholic world, for no one man, perhaps, in our turbulent era has been such a constant force for peace.

Repeatedly it has been the intervention of Pius XI that has tempered the action of the war lords. Particularly visible has been the pope's influence on the dictator of the Italians, Shorn, of all temporal power in 1870, the popes from that time had been confined within the Vatican walls.

Speaker William Bankhead has appointed Jerry Voorhes of California as one of those who will be able through a congressional grant of $100,000, to investigate the life of un-American for another year.

Now the irony of the whole situation is simply that Jerry Voorhes is everything Martin Dies and his fellow-committeemen have not been. He is a left-wing liberal and a mildly sarcastic doubter of historical traditions and emotional talk about "The American Way."

When the house was discussing the extension of the committee, Voorhes spoke out against it but urged setting up one that would be "non-political." He lost then, but this week it appears he's won — won just what we are not sure.

It looks very much then, as if Dies investigators during the coming 11 months. Probably $100,000 isn't too much to spend for a good laugh; Hollywood spends much more for those with less humor.

When the doctor was called in, he shook his head and the thermometer to advise the girl that her mother's only hope was a serum he had at his home on the other side of Paris.

Well, the page on the register was blank either of her name or her mother's. Then she demanded to be taken to the room she remembered, and it was empty.

Tennis

And World Peace!

"BUNNY" AUSTIN, British tennis player, is returning to international tennis competition this year. Austin, who withdrew from Davis Cup competition two years ago to "give younger players a chance," has long been a top ranking player in England.

His announcement that he is returning to international competition in itself is not such strange news. It is the circumstances causing him to make his decision that makes it worthy of comment.

"We were all of us faced with the possible end of civilization. War threatened my wife, my daughter, my parents and all I cared about with destruction. It seemed uncanny to think of putting my daughter in a gas-proof tent. One was prepared to do all one could if it came to the worst, but there was no hope of war deciding anything."

Bunny believed that, and so he made his decision, a decision that should challenge the youth of the world to think and to act. He says: "I felt there must be some aim to go for which would have all the adventure and comradeship of war without the wastage; some cause by which the youth of Britain could create a new chivalry in the world."

So Bunny Austin, poet, dramatist, and tennis player, is returning to Davis Cup competition to do what he can to build international friendship. He will play tennis in Germany, Italy, and Japan, as well as in France and the United States, attempting to make friends wherever he goes and practicing the philosophy that if people will abolish fear, hate and greed, eventually nations will do likewise.

As he goes forth on his mission, he carries with him the hopes of the people of all the world. He has set himself a most difficult task. May others follow in his footsteps!

A Good Time Was Had by All

ONE OF THE few amusing notes in a week of news that showed a dearth of humor came from Washington on Wednesday. It appears a new name has been added to the Martin Dies committee.

Speaker William Bankhead has appointed Jerry Voorhes of California as one of those who will be able through a congressional grant of $100,000, to investigate the life of un-American for another year.

Now the irony of the whole situation is simply that Jerry Voorhes is everything Martin Dies and his fellow-committeemen have not been. He is a left-wing liberal and a mildly sarcastic doubter of historical traditions and emotional talk about "The American Way."

When the house was discussing the extension of the committee, Voorhes spoke out against it but urged setting up one that would be "non-political." He lost then, but this week it appears he's won — won just what we are not sure.

It looks very much then, as if Dies investigators during the coming 11 months. Probably $100,000 isn't too much to spend for a good laugh; Hollywood spends much more for those with less humor.

THE 'BIG DIVIDE'

THE "BIG DIVIDE"

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

IOWA CITY REPORTING...

Cosmopolite Cliff Fadiman (This week's New Yorker) breaks the publication date of Herb Krause's first term to "promising but unsatisfactory"...

You've heard the new "I Get Along Without You Very Well" which Hoagy Carmichael's worded... Those hearing it nowadays say Dix Beiderbeck played an earlier version with that tune in his Iowa City days...

If Hillcrest's more deserted than usual these days it's because, castle-like, the place is nearly inaccessible by foot...

I hadn't realized it at the London showing last April, but seeing "The Lady Vanishes" again recalled its similarity to that swell story Alexander Woolcott tells in his Rome Burning book...

Seems a mother and her daughter went to Paris at the beginning of the International Exposition... They registered at a hotel and had just settled down when the mother felt her strength giving way and fainted...

When the doctor was called in, he shook his head and the thermometer to advise the girl that her mother's only hope was a serum he had at his home on the other side of Paris...

If the girl would taxi after it, he'd watch over the mother... So the girl jumped in with a caddy and was off to one of the darker streets of Paris... At the doctor's address she stopped, knocked, was admitted by a questionable-looking slattern and questioned half-an-hour for the serum...

Back at the hotel she hurried in and was half-way up the stairs when a boy stopped her... What did she want?... Whom did she wish to see?... Why was she there?...

But it was her mother, she explained; they had registered; she was back with the serum... Sorry, said the boy, but she would have to check with the clerk...

Well, the page on the register was blank either of her name or her mother's. Then she demanded to be taken to the room she remembered, and it was empty...

The house physician was called, and he was the same the girl remembered... But he too was sorry; he had treated no patient that day answering the girl's description of her mother... Sorry.

And so through the streets of Paris wandered the girl... The police were sorry; everyone was sorry, but she never found her mother...

Woolcott says it's true...

American In the English version of "The Lady Vanishes," you're still mystified when the picture ends as to whether Dame May Whitty really disappeared or if Marg Lockwood was actually having hallucinations... They evidently decided to clear it up for us Americans...

Michael Redgrave, who plays the male lead in the movie, is the one I saw with Gielgud in the London production of "The Three Sisters"...

Of course, the real fireworks of the municipal electioneering won't even appear until after the primaries...

One of my kindest critics wishes I hadn't come along... Everyone was having such a pleasant sleep, he says...

Prof. Dorrance White says that "Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night" talk which Uncle Sam applies to postmen originally was written by Herodotus and was meant for doctors.

JOHNNY GREEN, the orchestra leader, will display his dexterity at the keyboard when he offers a solo of an old favorite, "Time on My Hands" as a highlight of his musical contributions to "Johnny Presents" over Columbia at 7 o'clock tonight.

Additional numbers include "Never Felt Better, Never Had Less," "Where has My Little Dog Gone?" "Mexicali Rose" and "Hold Tight."

"THE BISHOP'S CANDLESTICKS," perhaps the most famous episode in Victor Hugo's novel, "Les Miserables," will be dramatized as part of the show.

MINERVA DIMWITT, the lady with the lantern slides, will guest with Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou on the Quaker party at 7 o'clock tonight over the NBC-Red network.

A discovery of Rudy Vallee, Minerva hails from Chicago and owes her radio commitments to several guest appearances with Rudy's program. She'll share program honors on the Riggs show with Harry Savoy, former Eddie Cantor heckler, and the Philharmonics, six young boys who made a hit on Tommy's program several weeks ago.

MILESTONES in the history of music, presented by the Eastman school, brings another chapter in the story of music's development in a concert by the symphony at 10:30 this morning.

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

On the eve of Lincoln's birthday it is natural to try to project oneself back into the days of his life and the men and women of his time. For us in this column, we must confine ourselves to his medical life, but we have enough of interest to give you a picture of certain aspects of his time.

There was no doctor at Lincoln's birth, the only attendant being Mrs. Enlow. Warm water, warm coverings and a hot fire in the cabin were the only precautions used to safeguard this precious life in its early hours.

When Lincoln was nine years old, his mother, Nancy Hawks Lincoln, died—probably from using milk from cows which fed on white snakeroot. Today her life could have been saved by the proper administration of carbohydrates, but in those days nothing of the nature of the disease was known.

A Healthy Life During most of his life Lincoln was physically healthy in spite of his lanky and somewhat unfavorable build. In 1837 he suffered a condition of mental depression. As is well known, he did not appear on the day first set for his marriage, which in the light of future events was not quite as queer as it appeared at the moment.

His attacks of melancholia, which persisted on and off for some time, have been ascribed to chronic constipation from which he suffered all his life, and which would be natural in a man of his physique. Costiveness probably also explains his fondness for apples.

Like all other human beings, of course, Lincoln had many minor ailments in the course of his life, and it is with a fellow feeling that we notice some of his drug store bills: in 1858 he bought 10 cents' worth of adhesive plaster; in 1859 he bought 25 cents' worth of castor oil, also 35 cents' worth of Brown's mixture and cough candy; in 1859 he bought a bottle of Dead Shot which was used as a sure cure for bedbugs.

Curing His Exhaustion After one of the Douglas debates he fell into an acute state of exhaustion and was treated at the Quincy House, Quincy, Illinois. At that time the proprietor of the Quincy House was George P. Floyd and Mrs. Floyd was asked to attend the sick orator. She took one look at him and said that he needed a "rum sweat," at which Lincoln said he never drank a drop in his life. But Mrs. Floyd assured him that the rum was for external use only. He was stripped and seated on a cane-bottomed chair and covered with blankets. Then a pan of New England rum was lighted and placed under the chair. This started a profuse perspiration, and broke up his malady.

Years later Mr. Floyd visited at the White House. Lincoln recognized him and said, "I believe your wife saved my life when I was in Quincy in 1858. Yes, I have taken that rum sweat that she prescribed for me many times and I have prescribed it for some of my friends. It has always been a dead shot."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS G. B.: "Will you kindly advise whether honey is safe for a diabetic to eat in any quantity, or is it as harmful as sugar to one?"

Answer—Honey contains almost as much sugar as plain sugar itself and should not be used by a diabetic any more than sugar should. If your doctor allows you to use honey, he probably has reasons for doing so, but in 100 grams of honey, there are over 75 grams of sugar.

B.M.: "I am taking hydrochloric acid. Please tell me what is the right amount?"

Answer—Ten drops in a half glass of water of the dilute acid.

M.H.: "Our child received diphtheria immunization when she was 3 years old. She is now 7 1/2 years. Last fall she was given the Schick test and pronounced o. k. Should she have another test every year or is that one sufficient?"

Answer—The Schick test should be given about every five years until the patient is 15 years old. The general idea is that diphtheria immunization once established, lasts 10 or 15 years at least.

F.C.: "I do like very much margarine salad dressing. It contains vinegar, spices and different ingredients. I was told if I ate a lot of that dressing it would affect my blood; that it would thin out. Is this true?"

Answer—No.

Insect Found on Rabbit May Be Clue to Typhus HAMILTON, Mont. (AP)—A tick discovered on a rabbit last July by Prof. J. C. Brown of Texas College of Arts and Industries is of a heretofore unrecorded species, R. A. Cooley of the United States public health laboratory here has announced.

The tick may "help answer problems regarding the mysteries of typhus fever," and Cooley, The Hamilton laboratory specializes in studying tick-borne diseases.

A New Yorker at Large

By George Tucker

NEW YORK — Rehearsals for important radio broadcasts are amazingly informal. You expect to find the director a harassed fellow who tears his hair and, with tears in his eyes, urges his cohorts to greater effort. But if the Bob Benchley show, "Melody and Madness," is any indication, these rehearsals are mere romps.

Nobody gets concerned about anything, although there never is much time to rehearse a show. Benchley's show is a scheduled Sunday night event. Yet he never sees the script until Friday afternoon. Then he looks at it again for a little while on Sunday. That's all.

Here's the way one of these rehearsals is conducted. From 2 to 4 Artie Shaw's orchestra sits on the stage of the CBS playhouse and rehearses the musical part of the program. Then, at four, a tall, pleasant fellow with laugh wrinkles under his eyes and wearing a derby, comes in. That's Benchley. He takes off his derby and puts a pencil behind his ear. Then these people wander on stage: Martin Gosch (director), Hank Garson and Al Lewis (they write the show), Alice Frost (feminine lead), Dell Sharbut (he announces the show), Mann Hollner (head of the radio department for the agency handling the show), and several others whom I do not recognize.

They sit around and gab about horse racing and similarly interesting items for awhile, and then the rehearsal gets under way. That is, they all gather around a large table. Then Hank Garson and Al Lewis (the writers) read the script to the cast. After this the cast reads the script as they will read it into the microphones on Sunday night. This all takes place against a sustained background of deep-chested chuckles, because Benchley learned to laugh a long time ago and he never forgot how.

This laughter has come to be something like a Holy Grail to actors, who strain their ears listening for it whenever Benchley is around.

For 15 years, among other jobs, he has been a dramatic critic for various magazines, and his fellow critics have gotten so used to that usually judge how well a new comedy is succeeding by the amount of laughter it gets from Benchley. There is no doubt when Benchley is amused. He leans back in his aisle seat and roars with a contagious laughter that must be heart-warming to the actors on stage who wonder how they are getting over. When they hear that unmistakable bellow of mirth from Benchley they know that they are successful. In contrast, when he thinks a comedy isn't funny, he can screw up his mustache and depress his eyebrows into a face of decision that would frighten Frankenstein.

He still has the newspaperman's habit of being able to express himself better on the typewriter than he can act it out or explain it. Seeing a point in his sketch he thinks he can improve, he says, "Oh, now look here... now wouldn't it be better this way?" But, instead of acting out or speaking his suggestions he plops down at a typewriter and writes out the dialogue and scene directions.

He is like Frank Sullivan in that he laughs at his own gags. But Sullivan just gives a polite chuckle, while Benchley's unrestrained laughter leaves no doubt that he is having as much fun as his own parties as are his guests if not more so.

That's Benchley at home or abroad, and this goes for rehearsals, too. Which gives rise to the thought that if Sunday's broadcast brings you as much hilarity as just reading the script did to Benchley, then everybody is going to be in for a hilarious evening.

Sparked by Lanky George Devine, son of one of Iowa's football immortals, the Iowa City Little Hawks closed their Mississippi Valley conference season last night with a 31-23 victory over the Thunderbolts of Franklin high school of Cedar Rapids. The win gives the City high forces a record of six wins and four losses in conference warfare.

Although they won easily, the Hawklets were definitely off their stride last night. Time and time again Iowa City shots fell short of their mark and at other times their floor work was bad.

In addition to being tied for high point honors, Devine played a beautiful game last night and was the only Hawklet to handle the ball with consistency. Several times his perfect passes set up Hirt and McLaughlin for short shots.

Devine and Hirt of Iowa City and Kerres of Cedar Rapids tied for top scoring honors for the evening, each scoring eight points on four buckets. Ted "Airside" McLaughlin, who also played a good game last night, was next with seven — three field goals and one charity toss. Lemons scored six times on three baskets.

Franklin began scoring early when Sopusek and Mehegan pumped in field goals to give them a four-point lead. But Hirt brought City high up with two buckets and Devine and McLaughlin pushed them ahead with a field goal and a free throw. Mastin ended the scoring in the slow first period with a bucket tying the count at seven-all.

Mainly on the work of Devine, the Hawklets pulled away in the second quarter and were leading at the half 19-15. Both teams presented tight defenses in the third act, the Hawklets scoring on McLaughlin's two field goals while the Thunderbolts were able to garner only one basket. In the last period Iowa City tied the game with Lemons bagging four points, McLaughlin and Hirt two each. Orville Rust's boys scored two buckets and two charity leaves.

Iowa City's sophomores also ended the season with victory when they ran over the Franklin sophs, 29-19. The first half was close and slow, the Little Hawklets holding a 14-10 advantage at the rest time.

Norman Paukert led the Iowa City boys to victory by his great defensive work and scoring ability. He was high for the game with nine tallies — four baskets and a free throw. Earl Lemons, leading scorer in the conference, was next with eight — three baskets and two from the foul line. Wachel led for the losers with six, one basket and four from the free throw lane.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

- Cause and Effects
- Pro Cagers
- Farr Away

NEW YORK, (AP)—CAUSE AND EFFECT, OR, IT'S A DEAD BALL THAT DOESN'T BOUNCE: CAUSE—Tennessee 17, Oklahoma 0, in the Orange bowl football game Jan. 2.

EFFECT—Coach Tom Stidham of Oklahoma seeks a rematch for Norman next December to salvage the Sooner pride. In other words, Oklahoma wasn't as bad as it was painted.

CAUSE—Hank Greenberg, Tiger slugger, got 58 home runs last season.

EFFECT—Greenberg gets a "nominal" raise, believed to bring his 1939 salary to around $30,000. Babe Ruth hit two more home runs in one season and drew $80,000. (Maybe this belongs in the "how times change" department.)

Pro Cagers
CAUSE—A recent comment concerning the "return" of pro basketball in the near future.

EFFECT—Roy Shudt, sports editor of the Troy, N. Y., Times-Record points out that good pro basketball is very much among those present. In fact, the American league, made up of the New York Jewels, Brooklyn Vistations, Washington, Philadelphia, Union City, N. J., Kingston and Troy, N. Y., and Wilkes Barre, Pa., claims to play the fastest basketball in the world. The cream of the college crops is on the rosters, including nearly every player of the "wonder five" at St. Johns; some ten years ago Jack O'Brien, ex-Columbia scoring ace, and Bernie Fleck, City College of New York captain last year. The Troy team plays in an armory which can accommodate from 7,500 to 10,000 spectators. Barney Sedran and Marty Friedman, the "heavenly twins" in their hey-day as players, manage teams in the league.

CAUSE—Jimmy Fox, outstanding American league player last year, feted at 53 banquets during winter months.

EFFECT—Fox only eight pounds above normal playing weight of 190, proving you can lead a horse to pasture but you can't make him eat. Jimmy knows that if the waist line is fat, the batting average isn't.

Farr Away
CAUSE—Tommy Farr sails for England.

EFFECT—Joe Jacobs, Tony Galento's manager, immediately announces Tony is ready to meet Farr. When Farr was near, Jacobs couldn't see Farr. (Maybe that's carrying a pun a little too far.)

CAUSE—The general shouting for a match with Joe Louis by contenders, some of whom possibly are afraid they might be heard.

EFFECT—J. C. "Scoop" Latimer, sports editor of the Greenville, S. C., News, suggests the Galentos and Novas and Farris and the rest be booked with Louisville for a battle royal in the Greenville folding gloves tournament in the community cow pasture, with the last man on his feet the undisputed champion. (Jack Roper, the fighter of many years standing, we hope, is not included. He'll get a private audition on the west coast.)

McCoy Wins
BOSTON, (AP)—The third try succeeded for Al McCoy, of Boston, last night, and that New England heavyweight titlist gained a divided decision over Rudy Knox of Dayton, O., in a lively free-swinging bout at the Boston garden. McCoy, outpointed by Knox in their two previous clashes, weighed 184 1-2 and his opponent 181.

Although Mike refused even to intimate what challenger he has in mind for Louis — Tony Galento has been mentioned most prominently — he announced the heavyweight champion definitely would do his preliminary work at that training base "for a June fight."

The camp will have an arena large enough to seat 4,000 persons.

It was indicated he planned to go into the proposition on a 50-50 basis with the fair.

"Of course," Mike explained, "anyone can train there, but it is being erected especially for Louis for a June fight. If it is constructed in time, either Max Baer or Lou Nova may do some work there before their fight in May."

Adjoining the camp will be a boxing museum, set up as an exhibit of old-time boxing equipment and data.

One game was postponed last night and another cancelled, because of bad weather conditions, between St. Mary's and Wilton, and between St. Pat's and the Cedar Rapids team of the same name.

The game between St. Mary's and the Wilton "Beavers" will be played at some later date. That between the parochial school from Cedar Rapids and Coach Father Harry Ryan's team was cancelled outright.

Wrestlers In Crippled State As They Leave

Annoyed by sickness and injury, Mike Howard's Iowa matmen leave tomorrow for the Gopher state and two mat meets, with Minnesota, Monday, and Carleton, Tuesday, before they return to Iowa City.

The latest reports brought bad news for the Hawkeye team, as an examination disclosed that the boil on the knee of Capt. Carl Vergamini will prevent his making the journey. In Vergamini's place, Howard will use Xavier Leonard or Paul Whitmore, both inexperienced men. Against the Iowa 175 pounder, the Gophers will present a man who had an old score to settle with the ailing captain. Vergamini defeated the Minnesota man, Harold Trahm, last season, and the re-match would have been one of the evening's high spots.

Another of the misfortunes is the bad ankle that has been troubling Louis George, 145 pounder. However, George will be able to wrestle, and has been working out again during the past few days.

Besides Trahm, only two others of last season's team are expected to start against the Hawks for Minnesota. Hanson, star 128 pounder, will get another chance at Phil Millen, whom he defeated last season. The third returning Gopher, Baack, 121 pounds, was thrown last year by Eklert of Iowa. He has improved since then, but in Billy Sherman, he faces one of the toughest little men Iowa has ever presented.

While the Iowans should be pleased if they meet weak opponents, there is one Hawkeye, Wilbur Nead, who wishes Minnesota had retained a certain star of last year's squad. Cliff Gustafson, Big Ten titleholder last season, beat Nead in the Gopher meet two years ago. That is the only defeat Nead has ever suffered, and it is disappointing that the Minnesota star has graduated.

The Iowans to make the trip will be Wilbur Nead, heavy-weight; Xavier Leonard or Paul Whitmore, 175; Merrill Johnson, 165; Clarence Kemp, 155; Louis George, 145; Kenny Kingsbury, 136; Phil Millen, 128; and Billy Sherman, 121.

Mention Tony For June Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—A fight for Joe Louis in June in New York was virtually assured today when Promoter Mike Jacobs completed details for construction of an elaborate training camp for the brown bomber on the world's fair grounds.

Although Mike refused even to intimate what challenger he has in mind for Louis — Tony Galento has been mentioned most prominently — he announced the heavyweight champion definitely would do his preliminary work at that training base "for a June fight."

The camp will have an arena large enough to seat 4,000 persons.

Conn Wins Another From Fred Apostoli

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—more action packed inside the Billy Conn's Irish dander was aroused by a poke in the eye in the second round tonight so the clever Pittsburgh youngster swarmed in from there on and walloped favored Fred Apostoli in a blood-curdling 15-round battle in Madison Square Garden. Conn weighed 167 to the San Francisco fighter's 161.

Cheered on by a near sellout crowd of 18,988 fans who were out of their seats and roaring all the way, the lanky son of Erin did an even more convincing job on the half-holder of the world middleweight championship than he did in whipping him in this same ring a month ago.

By the victory, which he turned in again with his educated left hand and a newly acquired right-cross that snapped in like a bull-whip, Conn, becomes the first fighter ever to whip the ex-bell-hop from the coast twice in a row. Several have tried it, but none got past Freddy more than once until Billy came along to turn the trick tonight.

At the finish, Conn although gashed under both eyes and sporting a left side that looked like a broken bottle of catsup from Apostoli's right-hand smashes, boasted a clear margin. The Associated Press score card gave him eight rounds, with five for Apostoli and two even—and two of Fred's heats were taken away from Belting Billy for low punching.

Deckard Wins Two Mile Run In 9:14.6 at New York Relays

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP)—Norwood (Barney) Ewell, Penn State Negro freshman sprinter, set a new world record of five and one-tenth seconds for the 50-yard dash tonight in winning the finals of the event in the second annual indoor Penn A. C. track and field carnival. The former record of five and two-tenths seconds was set in 1916 by J. G. Loomis of St. Louis, Mo.

Sanford Goldberg, New York's "flying fireman" from the Millrose A.A., turned in a brilliant performance in the 1,000-yard handicap. Passing his rivals in bunches on the straightaways, the metropolitan champion won in 2:17.2, beating some 30-odd men who started with as much as 55 yards on him.

Wesley Wallace of Fordham,

beat George De George, junior national steeplechase champion from the New York A.C., by 3 yards.

De George was given a 40-yard handicap. Robert Conkling of Manhattan college, given 60 yards, beat his team-mate, Joe Moclair, for third place, while Joe McCluskey of the New York A.C., and Johnny Wall of the San Francisco Olympic club, the other scratch men, placed fifth and sixth.

Both Cut Mean Capers on Ice

Will Resume Battle At University Races Sunday; No Evans Fans

A feud which dates back to the childhood doys will have an airing Sunday when Frank Balazs and Dick Evans, both of whom cut no mean figure on ice skates, clash in the all-university, open ice speed contest at Melrose lake.

Evans, like Balazs, received his early speed training in the "silver skates" derby which is an annual event in Chicago.

Products of the same neighborhood in the "Windy city," Evans and Balazs have long been rivals in this business of speed skating and both welcome the opportunity to settle the feud for once and all on the lake Sunday afternoon.

Those in the know favor Balazs as he is a known quantity, having performed in the Chicago Stadium during his prep school days.

On the other hand, an attempt to dig up Evans' record — if he has any — has met with dismal failure. There are those, though they be in the minority, who claim that Evans hasn't a chance of finishing ahead of the fleet Balazs at any distance from the 100 up to the mile.

Evans, however, forming a one man rooting section, says that he will take the "north side flash" quite handily, and doubts that he'll even work up a sweat in the process.

Whatever the results of the feud may be one thing is certain, and that is that a good crowd will be on hand when the two don the skates to battle to a finish Sunday afternoon.

Records Totter In Penn's 2nd Indoor Relays

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP)—One meet record was broken and another equalled as the second annual Penn A.C. indoor track and field carnival neared the half way mark tonight before a crowd of 7,500 in Convention hall.

Speedy quartets from Pittsburgh, Princeton and Georgetown university broke or equalled the one mile college relay record with three minute and 29 second performances. The old record of three minutes, 31 seconds was set last year by Georgetown.

Pitt's quartet of Frank Ohl, Al Ferrara, Lawrence Tregoning and Allen McKee set the new record in the opening mile against Temple. Princeton followed a few minutes later in winning from Columbia and Pennsylvania and Georgetown equalled the mark in the next race in defeating Villanova and Catholic university.

John Maher, Villanova sprinter, equalled the 50 yard dash record of five and three-tenths seconds in winning his preliminary heat. The other four winners, West of Columbia, Ewell of Penn State, Wilson of the New York Athletic club, and Jughans of Pennsylvania, who nosed out Ben Johnson, former Columbia star, were a tenth of a second behind Maher's mark. Jughans and Ewell later equalled Maher's time in winning semi-final heats.

Jughans pulled up lame after winning his semi-final heat in record equalling time.

Freshman Sprinter Sets New Mark

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP)—Norwood (Barney) Ewell, Penn State Negro freshman sprinter, set a new world record of five and one-tenth seconds for the 50-yard dash tonight in winning the finals of the event in the second annual indoor Penn A. C. track and field carnival. The former record of five and two-tenths seconds was set in 1916 by J. G. Loomis of St. Louis, Mo.

Sanford Goldberg, New York's "flying fireman" from the Millrose A.A., turned in a brilliant performance in the 1,000-yard handicap. Passing his rivals in bunches on the straightaways, the metropolitan champion won in 2:17.2, beating some 30-odd men who started with as much as 55 yards on him.

Wesley Wallace of Fordham,

beat George De George, junior national steeplechase champion from the New York A.C., by 3 yards.

De George was given a 40-yard handicap. Robert Conkling of Manhattan college, given 60 yards, beat his team-mate, Joe Moclair, for third place, while Joe McCluskey of the New York A.C., and Johnny Wall of the San Francisco Olympic club, the other scratch men, placed fifth and sixth.

Hoosiers, Iowa Battle Tonight

Old Friends Anderson, Ingwerson Meet Again

Burton Ingwerson, former University of Iowa coach who now tutors the linemen at Northwestern university, returned to his old haunts yesterday.

Ingwerson, accompanied by his wife, is visiting at the home of Rollie Williams, Hawkeye basketball mentor. He will witness the meeting of Iowa's cagers and the pace making Indiana Hoosiers in the fieldhouse tonight.

At the fieldhouse yesterday, Ingwerson talked over prospects with Anderson. The schedule calls for a game between the two schools with the site of the contest being Evanston in the final game of the season.

Commenting on Anderson's appointment Ingwerson said, "I wish you a lot of luck, Eddie."

Jim Thomson Wrecks Par In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 10 (AP)—Siege Gun Jimmy Thomson's "home run" tee shots wrecked the competitive course record with a seven-under-par 64 that left the field three strokes behind today in the opening round of the $5,000 Texas open tournament.

The Shawnee-On-Delaware veteran racked up six birdies, an eagle, 11 pars and one bogie for his 34-33-64.

Silent Clayton Heafner, a Greensboro, N. C., youth out playing the first tournament golf in his life, rattled par by four strokes for a 67 that left him tied for second with Byron Nelson.

The Carolinian who gave up a job in a Charlotte candy factory to join the winter tour, had a weird assortment of pars, birdies, eagles and penalty shots for his 34-33-67.

Nelson came in with a 34-32-67. Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Boston, who scored the incredible 59 in a practice round, was bracketed at 68 with E. J. Harrison, Little Rock, Ark.

Seven were clustered at 69, including Les Walper of Washington, D. C.; Horace Lacey of Little Rock; John Barnum, Edinburg, Tex., amateur; John Bulla of Chicago; Sammy Byrd of Philadelphia; Marvin Stahl of Lansing, Mich.; and Horton Smith of Chicago.

Irvine has been playing classy ball and he has proved that he can shoot, but he has been playing conservative ball that does not make for scoring spurges of the Benny Stephens or Pick Dehner type.

By BOB McGRANAHAN Daily Iowa Sports Writer

Garnering 10 points in a big third quarter rally, West Liberty defeated U-High 18 to 14 on the latter's court Friday night.

The U-High defeat, the second suffered at the hands of West Liberty, dropped the locals into fourth place in the conference standings, with a record of four wins and four defeats.

Murray Dawson, the outstanding man on the floor, garnered eight points to lead both teams in scoring. In his great all-around performance, Dawson collected four of the Blue's five field goals. Ed Burns was credited with the only other U-High bucket, Lyle Walker, West Liberty forward, counted three field goals and one free throw to run a close second to Dawson with seven points.

One basket from close in by Nichols, West Liberty forward, tells the story of the opening quarter, as the invaders held a 2 to 0 advantage at the conclusion of the initial period.

In the second period Dawson, junior U-High forward, came to life and counted three nifty buckets to put the locals back into the thick of battle. To supplement Dawson's fine work, Burns came through with his only field goal of the game. While the Brecklemer were enjoying this second period scoring spree, West Liberty was held to two lone free throws. The half ended with the Blue and White tied holding an 8-4 advantage.

After the intermission the Elurs fold-ed up both offensively and defensively. During this lapse on the part of the Rivermen, the invaders went on a point-gathering campaign which netted them 10 points, and at the conclusion of the third period West Liberty was on the long end of a 14 to 8 count.

Score at the half: U-High 8; W. Liberty 4.

Andres Paces High Scoring Loop Leaders

Irvine to Start At Forward for Iowa Alongside Stephens

Probable Starting Lineups
IOWA Stephens (C) F..... Armstrong
Irvine F..... Dro
Plett C..... W. Menke
Prasse G..... (C) Andres
Lind G..... Huffman

Officials: Referee, John Getchell (St. Thomas); Umpire, Lyle Clarno (Bradley Tech).
Broadcast: WSUI, 7:35.

Victorious in their one start this year against a team from the Hoosier state, Iowa's erratic cagers take to the home floor tonight against Indiana, now leading the Big Ten, and of the same free scoring disposition as the Boiler-makers.

Knowing that lack of scoring power has cost his team the last two games, Coach Rollie Williams of the Hawkeyes has turned to offensive drills during the last week, hoping to instill some of that scoring spark that was touched off during the Purdue encounter.

Although the Iowa defensive record is impressive thus far, there are signs that tonight's game will depend upon shooting eyes and upon the scoring support that Capt. Benny Stephens gets. Stephens, who always pitches, with the basket for a catcher, can be depended upon for part of the points the Hawk-eyes will need, but the thing that worries the Iowa mentor is whether or not the other points will be forthcoming.

Tonight, Williams will start the sophomore star, Howard Irvine at the other forward post and hope that Irvine bags his share of the points. Charles Plett, who was able to hit in a couple of the games, will get the call at center, while Erwin Prasse and Tommy Lind will be at guards.

With this lineup in the game, Williams has a team that should be able to hold down the scoring of the Hoosier captain and scoring ace, Ernie Andres, as well as the remainder of the basket-mad Indiana crew, but Williams is not yet certain as to the scoring power of his new combination.

Irvine has been playing classy ball and he has proved that he can shoot, but he has been playing conservative ball that does not make for scoring spurges of the Benny Stephens or Pick Dehner type.

Neither has Tommy Lind been able to pile up many points, although Lind sank four field goals in the Illinois encounter. On the other hand, Angie Anapol can score at will some nights, but some nights he doesn't score at all. Williams will be holding Anapol in reserve tonight and the Chicago flash may be able to get in there and break his scoring silence.

with the only other U-High bucket, Lyle Walker, West Liberty forward, counted three field goals and one free throw to run a close second to Dawson with seven points.

One basket from close in by Nichols, West Liberty forward, tells the story of the opening quarter, as the invaders held a 2 to 0 advantage at the conclusion of the initial period.

They'll Drill at Tonight's Game

The above picture shows the Columbia Academy Grenadiers executing a drill similar to the exhibition which will be put on between halves of the Iowa-Indiana basketball game tonight in the fieldhouse. This crack drill squad from Dubuque executes close order drills and the manual of arms without verbal command. The 17-man group is under the leadership of Cadet Maj. Donald H. Jettel. The uniforms of the organization are modeled after the West Point full dress uniforms and feature the colors of Columbia's academy, purple and gold. The unit was organized in November, 1937, under the sponsorship of the Columbia faculty.

Grenadiers To Drill at Game

Columbia R. O. T. C. Unit Will Appear At Fieldhouse Tonight

The Columbia Academy Grenadiers, a unit of the Columbia academy R.O.T.C. of Dubuque, will present an exhibition drill between halves of the Iowa-Indiana basketball game tonight in the fieldhouse.

The unit of 17 juniors and seniors of Columbia academy, all with high scholastic standing, is under the leadership of Cadet Maj. Donald H. Jettel. It has been trained under the direction of Inf. Sergt. Clayton A. Peterson.

The group was organized in November, 1937, by Maj. Watson L. McMorris of the Coast Artillery corps, a military instructor, under the sponsorship of the Columbia academy faculty.

The uniform of the unit is a modified West Point full dress, featuring the Columbia school colors of purple and gold. The purple tunic is of the mess jacket type, having a high military collar, double rows of gold buttons, and white cross-belts.

The trousers are of white flannel with a purple stripe. The headgear is a purple and white shako with gold ornaments, a black visor and chin strap, and a white feather pom-pom. White gloves and black shoes complete the outfit.

The drill will consist of a series of close order evolutions and the manual of arms, all executed without verbal command.

Frosh Riflemen To Match Columbia
The University of Iowa freshman rifle team will fire a shoulder to shoulder match with the Columbia academy team from Dubuque this afternoon at 1:30 in the fieldhouse.

Activities Board Postpones First Group Meeting

The fireside discussion groups which are being sponsored by the religious activities board and were scheduled to begin Feb. 12 have been postponed one week, and will start Feb. 19 instead, it was announced yesterday by Hillis Hauser, A3 of Marshalltown.

It was also announced that the many houses which have already indicated that they want discussion groups will be notified as to the speaker and date for their discussion.

Any other houses or groups who wish to participate in the discussions are asked to leave word at the religious activities office as soon as possible, so that schedules for speakers may be arranged.

Tally-Hi Bridge Club Will Meet Tonight

Members of the Tally-Hi bridge club will meet tonight in the home of Mrs. W. F. Leinbaugh, 420 N. Clinton street. The group will assemble at 7 o'clock.

Jewish Leader to Speak Here

University Women Will Have Intramural Swimming Meet

Event Will Be Held February 20 Under Auspices of Seals

For the first time in the history of women's intramurals, women's organizations on the campus will compete in a swimming meet Feb. 20, at 7:15 p.m. The meet, under the management of women's intramurals and the Women's Athletic association, will be sponsored by Seals club, women's honorary swimming organization.

Each organization will select its own captain and assign its own entries. The total number of women who can enter from each organization is limited. It will be necessary to have an entry in each event.

Seals members will not be allowed to enter the competition. They will act as officials for the meet.

Although the list of specific events will not be announced until later, there will be speed and form swimming, diving, relays, and a novelty relay. There will be events for three classes—beginners, intermediate and advanced swimmers.

The meet is under the general chairmanship of Fern Newcomer, A2 of Iowa City. Officials are Miss Newcomer, starter; Lois Westcott, A2 of Hampton; Isabelle Armstrong, A3 of Hutchinson, Kan.; Mildred Fitzgerald, A4 of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dorothy Gleysteen, A2 of Sioux City; Louise Seeburger, A2 of Des Moines, and Gertrude Toyne, A2 of Clarinda, timers.

Bernice Peterson, A4 of Boone; Roberta Nichols, A4 of West Liberty; Susan Runner, A3 of Iowa City, and Annabelle Hinkle, A2 of Valparaiso, Ind., form swimming judges; Isegrat Weber, A1 of Cedar Rapids, and Betty Hughes, A2 of Cedar Rapids, form diving judges; Katherine Hrusovar, A1 of Moline, Ill., Jane Fink, A3 of Louisville, Ky., and Betty West, A2 of Des Moines, recorders.

Dorothy Ward, A2 of Iowa City, herald; Margaret Schmithals, G of Milwaukee, Wis.; Ruth Summy, A1 of Des Moines, and Muriel Strate, A1 of Keokuk, scribes; Maxine Reams, A4 of Cedar Rapids, Miss Gleysteen, Charlene Saggau, A3 of Denison, and Martha Snell, A1 of Marion, publicity.

Miss West and Miss Fink, properties; Virginia Shrauger, A1 of Atlantic, hostess; and Prof. Gladys Scott of the women's physical education department, Miss Newcomer and Miss Runner, events.

Dr. Temple Sholom, in New Orleans he was president of the Rotary club and active in various civic affairs.

He has visited Europe three times in the last eight years, in 1931, 1933 and 1937. He has visited Russia three times, Germany three times and most of the other European countries an equal number of times. He has also travelled in the Scandinavian countries and in Palestine.

Janson to Give 2nd Art Talk

Horst Janson of the graphic and plastic arts department of the university will talk on the art of Max Beckmann tomorrow at 4:15 p.m. in the auditorium of the fine arts building.

This is the second in a series of gallery talks that the art department has arranged for February, March, and April.

Eighteen paintings by Beckmann are now on view in the fine arts auditorium. Beckmann was a prominent member of the post-war German expressionist group.

He received second prize at the Carnegie International in 1929. The present German government placed a ban on his paintings and forced him into exile in Holland.

The exhibition of sculpture, paintings, and drawings will also be open to the public tomorrow afternoon.

Disapproval Of Payroll Taxes Voiced in Cal.

San Joaquin County Employees Will Not Pay Social Security

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10 (AP)—A new step in the revolt of a Fresno business group against federal payroll taxes, and the outburst of a farm leader against relief costs today marked apparently growing dissatisfaction in California over its social security situation.

The Fresno movement came to the attention of congress when Rep. Elliott (D-Calif) told the house ways and means committee that a group of San Joaquin county employers had vowed to go to jail rather than pay any more taxes under the social security law.

Simultaneously Ralph H. Taylor, executive secretary of the California agricultural council, in a public statement demanded that the state's relief rolls, which he said numbered 280,000 persons be purged of "the lazy and indolent, who have the fallacious idea that the government owes them a living."

"There is undeniable evidence," Taylor said, that California has more professional papers than at any other time in its history. Working California—farmer, labor, business and professional men—is footing the bill with 20 to 25 per cent of its income going to pay federal, state and local taxes.

The Fresno group was formed two weeks ago. Martin, a building contractor, employing 10 persons, and nine other "little business men" organized the citizens league to resist payment of 100 per cent penalties which they said had been levied by the government against California employers delinquent on payroll taxes.

Martin's organization committed itself to repeal of the entire social security program and notified Treasury Secretary Morgenthau it would resist payment of the penalties on constitutional grounds. The constitution prohibits the levying of "excessive" fines.

Martin announced receipt of a telegram from Acting Secretary John W. Hanes denying the department had levied a 100 per cent penalty upon California employers for 1938 delinquencies.

Dark Frocks Still Good

Spring Fashions Set With Last Year's Perked-Up Dresses

Those mid-season dark sheer frocks in your wardrobe are going to be just as popular this spring—especially if you perk them up with some of the crisp young novelties that are making headline fashion news this year.

Giving ingenious charm to a simple navy blue dress is a chain of white linen daisies worn around the collar. Other floral chains are just as attractive, but one very girlish bunch is a starched linen-old-fashioned nosegay like grandmother carried. It hangs from a demure black velvet ribbon that ties in a bow at the back.

Adding a splash of color to your dark gown is a necklace of deep red paper-thin glass poppies. The chain may be of either gold or silver. Another unique necklace highlight is a cluster of multi-colored sea shells twined together by strands of raffia.

A very smart combination of necklace and belt is typical of old Mexico. Hanging from a copper chain is a large gourd painted with Mexican designs and matching if it is the belt of large copper links with two painted gourds serving as buckles.

California glazed berries from the pepper tree have been wound into fascinating colorful ropes that add brilliancy and dash to severely cut gowns.

And the designer has found another use for the shells of nuts. Instead of making buttons out of them, beautiful necklaces with matching belts can be made out of carved and polished walnut halves.

And taking marbles away from the school lad can make another novel and colorful necklace. Silver arrows hung on a silver chain make stylish costume highlights.

And to be more glamorous on that special evening party try an old-fashioned choker made of tiny crystals and sequins. There's a bracelet, too if milady would like to catch a soft evening hankie through its strands.

Fat or Thin, You May Be Just Right

Expert Develops New Rule of Thumb Way to Measure Weight

By The Associated Press If you are a man and the layer of fat and skin just above the hip measures an approximate half-inch in thickness, your weight is as nearly correct as it is possible to be, says a University of Iowa research man.

If you are a woman, the layer should be three-quarters of an inch thick, and if it is your weight is correct, regardless of what the small table on the penny scales may say.

Prof. H. C. McCloy of the University of Iowa child welfare research station determined the "fat layer" method of checking correct weight after a series of studies.

Disturbed at the tables printed on drug store scales, Professor McCloy set out to find a way to determine correct weight without accepting the usual weight-height ratio.

His method is based on the assumption that weight is dependent primarily upon the size of the bones of the body and the shape of the skeleton, as well as upon height.

He says the method was founded upon the belief that to be a normal, healthy individual, the large-boned, broadly built person should weigh more for his height than should his small-boned, narrowly-built brother.

After much experimentation with body measurements, Professor McCloy found four he said were useful in determining normal weight. They are: Height, as a measurement of the length of the body.

The circumference of the chest, with certain corrections for the amount of fat which covers bones, as a cross section of the body.

The width of the hips, to indicate the general breadth of the body framework, again with corrections for the amount of fat covering the bones.

The width of the knee. To clarify the idea of weight checking, Professor McCloy prepared a table containing the actual measurements and weights of three girls to show why it is impossible to expect all three to conform to the height-weight formula. All were five feet six inches tall.

Table with columns for Name (Mary, Jane, Anne), Age, Height, Chest circumference, Forearm, Width of hips, Width of knee, Actual weight, and Computed normal weight.

From the above figures, Professor McCloy pointed out, the worry Jane and Anne might have experienced when confronted with the penny-scale weight chart was unfounded. Jane was only three pounds over weight. Mary, on the other hand, could eat all the chocolate eclairs she wanted. She had nine pounds to pick up.

Going further into the reasons for over weight and under weight, Professor McCloy found that the amount of fat carried beneath the skin and the development of the muscles are instrumental factors. He said he found that in some cases underweight persons not only were lacking in proper amount of fat, but also had underdeveloped muscles. They needed not only proper diet but exercise before their weight problems could be solved.

On the other hand, he said, people who were used to heavy, manual labor were found to be often overweight because of heavy muscle structure as well as overeating.

Through many measurements, Professor McCloy determined that the proper amount of fat could be determined by picking up the fat and skin just above the hip. He found the layer should be about one-half inch thick for men, and about three-quarters of an inch thick for women.

"It can, of course, be measured accurately only with the proper instruments," he said, "but applying the simple 'rule of thumb' should prove interesting."

Of muscle structure, he said: "In general, the person who has sufficient strength to meet the exigencies of the day with enough energy left to enjoy the evening should be able to walk three or four miles in an hour without feeling fatigued. If he can do this he need not concern himself with the size of his muscles."

Professor McCloy said that the system he used required too many instruments and is too complicated for individual use.

"For the individual who does not have access to the clinic or measuring room, the careful application of the method may not be possible," he said, "but its implications are interesting."

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Deep in the heart of the jungle over the studio ice rink the junior Tarzan and his screen mamma walked hand in hand down a carefully im-promptly forest path to be surprised by a gang of stalwart blacks in the service of white explorers Henry Wilcoxon and Frieda Inescort.

And on the sidelines, his foot resting on a cage wherein reposed a sloth sleeping upside down, stood the junior Tarzan's papa—Reginald Sheffield.

"I shouldn't say it, being his father, but Johnny's a mighty fine little boy," said Actor Sheffield, who has been in plenty of pictures but is not in "Tarzan in Exile."

When I met Johnny I had to agree. He is a nice, tough little hunk, having a picnic swinging in prop trees in a loin-cloth and body make-up. It's in character that he shouldn't brush his hair much, which from Johnny's point of view is all to the good.

Johnny was an incubator baby, but at seven years of age he's brawnier than most. He came into his big role via one of those nation-wide talent hunts which, true in form, ended where it began—in Hollywood. Or at least with a Hollywood personality, "discovered" in New York, Johnny was one of the kids who alternated with Peter Holden in "On Borrowed Time" and that was when Daddy Reginald read in the papers about Tarzan's need for an athletic offspring.

Sheffield took steps, via his agent, and it was in the bag. The Sheffield backyard in Hollywood is complete with all varieties of traps, ladders and swinging equipment, to appease what their father calls the "monkey blood" in all three of his youngsters. Johnny was good enough at swimming, too, and was immediately approved by Tarzan Weissmuller.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Some first class judges of Uncle Sam's western hemispherical defensive problem, as the subject becomes a more and more important issue on Capitol Hill, see that the aviation angle of the situation is being over-emphasized from the new world's standpoint.

Chairman David I. Walsh and Carl Vinson, respectively of the senate's and the representatives' naval affairs committees, of course are congress' leading boosters for increased Yankee sea power. They do not under-estimate the vital necessity of a formidable air arm to supplement Uncle Samuel's fighting fleet's efficiency. At the same time, the bulk of the advice they get from professionals is to the effect that surface strength afloat should be our first consideration.

Army men ditto, in their suggestions to Chairman Morris Sheppard and Andrew J. May, respectively of the senate's and representatives' military committees. Not that the army crowd, either, speaks of aviation otherwise than as indispensable; still, it rates groundings as the main thing in so far as this country is concerned.

True, navy and army alike will be glad of all they can get aerially, but they rate the heavens as secondary to oceans and terra firma for American military purposes.

I do not mean to say that there are not flying enthusiasts who contend that surface fleets and troops are obsolete, but they're in a minority.

Europe Is Different

Europe, to be sure, is different. An aircraft from Berlin, say, could scout over London or Paris and do incalculable damage or kill hundreds or thousands, and get home again, unscathed.

I saw one of the Kaiser's dirigibles try it over London in 1916. It was, indeed, while trying to make its get-away, shot down above the Thames estuary, but it had raised havoc in the meantime.

Parenthetically, the English had been telling what awful things they would do to one of those crews of German pirates if ever they caught a few. Well, they did catch that dirigible-load—all of them survived except one who was drowned accidentally in the estuary. The prisoners were interned at Chatham Barracks. As a neutral correspondent, at that juncture, I interviewed them. The English officers had turned out of their quarters in the barracks and were sleeping in cots in the corridors, to furnish comfortable accommodations for their German captives.

But aviation today is not what it was then. I have no doubt that, as of the present writing, a whole fleet of hostile planes (not mere dirigibles) could streak it over the British and French capitals, leaving them mere masses of ruins, and get away safely.

Such would be short-range operations. But, manifestly, no effective air fleet could get from Europe or Asia, to this side of the Atlantic or Pacific. A few aircraft, out of several thousands, might do it, and wreck a dozen or so of buildings in New York or San Francisco. Which would be very irritating, but, militarily, of no consequence. They never would get home, either. That would not signify; a warrior expects to commit suicide—but he'd be wasted.

A landing and occupation obviously would be impossible. Equally impossible for Uncle Sam to send an air fleet to Berlin or Tokyo.

Oh, yes, it might be done with an air base in England against Germany, or an air base in Manila against Japan. But it would be mighty unhandy in either case.

The nub of it is: A lot of legislators think our aviation talk is purely hysterical.

Absent-Minded Prof's Rated by Students

DES MOINES, Ia. (AP)—When a second faculty member became forgetful, the Drake Times-Delphic, student newspaper, started planning a foundation for absent-minded professors.

As memory aids to professors who qualify, the paper will present a certificate and a piece of string.

The first charter member, the paper reports, is the professor who with his wife was unable to find his spectacles before school hours. Finding them in his vest during class, he hauled them out and exclaimed: "Here they are."

Another professor is said to have driven his car to the business district to shop, and then returned on the street car.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

READ THIS FIRST: Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., finds herself involved in a mystery when the eccentric old lady is found dead under one of the hair driers after Elsie had left the room for a few moments. She is further humiliated when she learns that one of the servants in the Manor's household suspects her of taking Mrs. Witherspoon's emeralds, which are missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family and some of the house guests strike Elsie as queer, and she is surprised when the old lady's son, Horace Witherspoon, advises her to say nothing of the missing jewels for fear of publicity and the police. The coroner arrives for his investigation. Phil Benson, Elsie's friend and a reporter, comes for an obituary for his paper and Elsie shows him around the mansion. Mrs. Witherspoon's funeral is held the next day. Elsie is at her wit's end when Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Jr., dies suddenly while under the same ill-fated drier in the salon the next morning. The police arrive and launch an investigation. The coroner pronounces the second death a case of murder and says he suspects poison.

"And in fifteen minutes she was dead?" "Ye-es. Her hair was still damp when I lifted the hood."

"I see. Any questions, Karns?" "No, chief."

"Was Mrs. Witherspoon in poor health?" He had not finished with me.

"I shook my head. "She appeared perfectly well."

"Did you leave the room while the deceased was there?" "I never left the room at all," I replied with a clear conscience.

"Any visitors come in?" "No—yes! Miss Witherspoon came in for a moment."

"And what time was that?" "I frowned, trying to recall. "It must have been about nine-thirty or thereabouts. I had just started to wind Mrs. Witherspoon's hair."

"Right?" He shot the question at Daphne.

"Yes," she said slowly. "I wanted—"

"Never mind explaining now. I'll get to you later." He returned to me. I was feeling calmer now, though none too cheerful. I could not forget the emeralds, the missing green stones. Sooner or later, their disappearance would come to light. And when it did—well—fire-works for little Elsie!

"Well?" said the chief, and I came out of my trance to find him bending over me.

"Well, what?" I said, and my tongue was dry against the roof of my mouth. But I never found out what he had been going to ask me, for the door opened and a tall, gaunt figure in a striped cotton blanket tottered in. It was Eliza, a ghastly, palsied Eliza with the light of fever burning in her sunken eyes.

"She did it!" she said loudly. "Ask her! Ask her where she hid the jewels! Ask her!"

I sat motionless. I could not take my eyes from her. I tried to shout a denial. I tried to escape those burning, accusing eyes. I could only sit rooted to the spot while the pulse in my throat throbbled like a trip hammer and the blood of my body coursed to my brain, leaving me limp and helpless.

"Come, Miss Ritter!" Chief Ellis mopped his perspiring brow.

I sighed tiredly. For over an hour he had been plying me with questions.

"I tell you I don't know," I repeated for surely the hundredth time. "I don't know."

"Come now, Miss Ritter." He yawned widely. "There's no use being stubborn—"

"Stubborn!" Anger lifted my weary spirit. "You call it stubborn to refuse to confess to a crime I never committed?"

"Easy." The shadow of a grin lighted his weary face. "Maybe you think I'm rough, but I'm only trying to get at the truth."

"Well, you don't you, then?" I demanded, irritably. "Why don't you find the real criminal? I didn't steal Mrs. Horace and I didn't poison the jewels! I never set foot in this house until last Friday, and "I never want to set foot in it again!" His grin widened. I did not like his grin. His eyes were hard and suspicious. He said mildly: "I'm not trying to trap you, Miss Ritter, but you must admit that the jewels are missing and that you had the best chance to steal them. And you must admit that the deceased met her end in your presence and yours alone."

"She could have been poisoned before she ever entered the salon," I reminded him hotly.

"That remains to be seen. If you haven't been arrested yet, you can thank the medical examiner. I'm waiting for his report."

"Oh!" I stared at him. Until that moment I had not really believed that I was in any danger. Innocent persons, and I was innocent, were not put into jail! But they were! My heart froze. I again was seeing a bold, black headline that had attracted my attention one day as I passed an uptown newsstand: KILLER CONFESSES CRIME FOR WHICH INNOCENT MAN HANGED IN CONNECTICUT

"Say, chief!" Officer Karns, who had been stationed guard over the rest of the household in the drawing room while his superior questioned me, popped his head into the room. "Phil Benson is out here. Wants a story for the paper."

"O. K. Send him in." Phil Benson! My fears faded. I wanted to laugh and shout and sing. Phil was here! Everything was going to be all right. Phil would save me! I rushed to the door and threw myself headlong into his arms as he crossed the threshold.

"Elsie!" he exclaimed. "What's wrong?" "Oh, Phil!" I cried, and laid my head on his shoulder and burst into sobs of sheer relief.

"Do you know this girl, Benson?" The chief was curious.

"Of course. Elsie is a good friend of mine."

"He's going to arrest me! He says I murdered Mrs. Horace and stole the emeralds and—and everything!"

"Well"—Chief Ellis looked to the floor—"I haven't arrested her yet!" (To Be Continued)

Season's Low Registered By Mercury Drop

Minus Five Degrees Is Coldest Reading For Local Records

Iowa Citizens who ventured out-of-doors yesterday morning were greeted with a five degree below zero temperature.

An unnamed drizzle of something resembling sleet was measured at .52 of an inch of precipitation.

Shortly before darkness, temperatures again dropped steadily until three degrees above zero was reported at 9:45 last night by the local weather bureau.

Police reported last night that all roads leading from Iowa City were open but "very slippery."

Car drivers were urged to drive with caution as a thin sheet of ice was said to have coated most highways.

Buses from the west were a half hour behind schedule last night due to the icy conditions of the roads.

The outlook for today and tomorrow point toward fair and warmer weather.

Sorority Theft Still Unsolved

Police Fail to Find Two Purse Taken From Z. T. A. House

Purses stolen from Zeta Tau Alpha sorority house Thursday night were still missing yesterday, local police reported.

The two purses belonged to Frances Krausz, G of Portsmouth, and Mildred Anderson, A2 of Las Vegas, Ariz.

The robbery was first discovered at 6:15 p.m. when the front doors of the house were found open.

Verne Race Draws Fine for Failure To Have 1939 Plates

Verne Race, Council Bluffs, was fined $10 and costs in police court yesterday for failure to have new license plates.

An official geologist's report gives Texas the greatest petroleum reserves in the United States, with California second.

Eastern Iowa Amateur Boxing Tournament Has Floyd DeHeer Among Its Fifty Entries

Fifty entries have been received for the eastern Iowa amateur boxing tournament to be held in the Iowa City Community building Feb. 20, 21 and 24 and March 3, Len Velander, tournament director, announced yesterday.

Five teams have officially entered, Velander said. They include fighters from Tiffin, Oxford, Hills, Muscatine and CCC camp No. 772 at Sigourney.

Floyd DeHeer, Iowa's three-sport man, entered yesterday. DeHeer, who will be entered in the heavyweight division, has had considerable experience in amateur boxing in this state.

Velander expressed a belief yesterday that the tournament will rate among the strongest on record in this state.

University groups who are expected to enter either individually or in teams were particularly urged. Several fraternities, cooperative dormitories and rooming houses have indicated their intentions of entering.

Prizes will be awarded all winners. A team trophy will be given the winning team. Individual awards include bathrobes and medals.

Training facilities will be completed in the basement of the community building. Eugene Trowbridge, director of the recreational center, has announced. When finished, they will be available to all fighters entering the tournament.

Preliminary bouts will be held yesterday that the tournament will rate among the strongest on record in this state.

Judge Gaffney Summoned By Mother's Illness

Judge James P. Gaffney, called to the bedside of his 82 year old mother, will not hold court at the courthouse this morning.

He was informed yesterday afternoon of her illness and said that he would not return to his duties until Tuesday, when he will hear the first non-jury case of the February term of court.

Weather Stops K. of C. Rally

Iowa City Meeting In National Crusade Put Off Last Night

The Iowa City Knights of Columbus meeting to form a part of the nationwide "Crusade for Christian Justice" campaign which was to be held here last night was postponed because weather conditions made it impossible for many participants to attend.

The joint meeting of the councils of the ninth Iowa district of Knights of Columbus will take place at 8 p.m. Wednesday night in the local Marquette-council clubhouse.

J. N. Golden of Grand Rapids, Mich., supreme Knights of Columbus council representative, attended the short session which was held last night to replace the ninth district joint council meeting formerly scheduled.

Edgar C. Vassar, grand knight of the local K. C. chapter, urged all grand knights, financial secretaries and membership, insurance and publicity chairmen to attend the coming meeting.

Freshmen To Have Conclave
