Report Azana Wants Peace At Any Terms

Loyalist Leader Still Trying to Persuade Del Vayo to Give Up

PARIS, Feb. 17 (AP)—Manuel Azana, president of government Spain, who has pleaded the futility of further resistance to Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, was reported tonight to have demanded that his government make peace on any terms.

Azana again conferred with Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo and was believed still trying to persuade him to abandon further defense of the one fourth of Spain the government still holds. An aide of the president said Azana had insisted "resistance is vain."

Informed diplomatic quarters said both Britain and France actively were pushing peace negotiations at Franco's capital, Burgos. Alvarez Del Vayo, who flew here from government Spain, apparently was waiting for the outcome of the reported negotiations.

It was believed they were being carried on as closely as possible on the lines of Spanish Government Premier Juan Negrin's "three points," altered only to eliminate his demand for a plebiscite to let the people of Spain decide what kind of government they want.

Insurgent assurances to Britain, diplomats said, apparently have satisfied another of Negrin's conditions for surrender, his demand for dismissal of foreign soldiers from Spain and for a regime free of foreign influence.

Thus, it seemed, success or failure of peace efforts depended on whether Franco, who has insisted on unconditional surrender, would guarantee clemency to the government supporters. This was Negrin's third demand.

Azana's desire that the government waive all conditions was reported to be based on his ardent wish to see peace restored immediately to Spain which tomorrow, Feb. 18, will enter its 32d month of civil war.

"The moment has come to end the tragic and useless blood bath, with the help of France and Britain," the president was quoted as having told Alvarez Del Vayo.

"I would favor certain conditions," he was said to have declared, "but after all, events are stronger than we are."

Azana, it was understood, pointed out to the foreign minister that Britain and France already had made evacuation of Italian and German troops from insurgent Spain cardinal points in their own policies.

"Since Franco has published his law on political responsibilities," the president was further quoted, "we are no longer in position to obtain further concessions there."

"It is better for the leaders to throw themselves on the goodness of France and Britain to help them escape reprisals than to continue the slaughter."

(An insurgent "law of political responsibilities," decreed at Burgos Monday, imposed penalties on persons in conquered Spanish territory who may be deemed hostile to the insurgent cause. It provided for dissolution of all parties of the pro-government front, but insurgent officials said its severest penalties were exile and loss of citizenship.)

Ten policemen have been posted around the Spanish embassy where Azana has taken up residence and where he has been conferring in carefully guarded secrecy.

Hit-Run Driver Kills Husband As Wife Is Witness

MCGREGOR, Feb. 17 (AP)—Charles Knoebel, 51, was fatally injured today when struck by a hit-and-run driver as his wife stood in the window of their home watching him return to work.

Knoebel, a painter, had just said goodbye to his wife and she was watching him cross an intersection as the car bore down upon him. Screaming for help, she rushed to her injured husband. He was taken to a hospital where he died three hours later without regaining consciousness.

In addition to the widow, survivors include the motherless twin children of Knoebel's brother, who have lived with them six years. The children, Dale and Delores, are 14 years old.

Sheriff E. W. Carlson of Elkader and Coroner E. B. Rhombert were notified and began an investigation. The driver of the car, which sped away, had not been ascertained tonight.

Their Father Is 'Somewhere in Spain'

Orphans of the Storm

With all their worldly possessions slung across the back of a mule, a Spanish loyalist family, consisting of a mother and her three children, arrive at Le Perthus, France, just across the Franco-Spanish border. Fate of her husband uncertain, this woman and her family are dependent upon the French for food and shelter.

Asks Japan for Explanation Concerning Hainan Occupation

U. S. Follows Action Of France, Britain In Eastern Situation

TOKYO, Feb. 17 (AP)—The United States again joined France and Britain in parallel action in the far east today when Ambassador Joseph C. Grew asked for an explanation of Japan's occupation of Hainan island off the south China coast.

A foreign office spokesman said Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita replied to Grew in the same manner as he had to similar questions within a few days from the French and British ambassadors, Charles Arsene Henry and Sir Robert Leslie Craigie.

His reply was that occupation of the island, 750 miles west of the Philippines, was "intended to strengthen the Japanese blockade of the south China coast and is not going beyond requirements of military necessity."

(In Washington a state department official said that Grew acted on state department instructions and that his inquiry was to be of a political nature, concerned only with Japan's designs in the orient as connected with Hainan, not with the status of Americans on the island.)

(Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles said Grew reported he had received a repetition of former statements that Japan has no territorial ambitions in China, and that her occupation of Hainan would not go beyond military necessities.)

(The United States destroyer John D. Edwards returned to Hongkong from Hainan today with confirmation of radio reports that all Americans were safe at Hoihow and Kiungchow, two cities occupied last week.)

The foreign office spokesman said American interests on the island, 150 miles from French Indo-China and on Britain's vital route between Hongkong and Singapore, were chiefly missionary enterprises, including eight schools, three hospitals and three churches.

He said Americans on Hainan had numbered 25 missionaries and 39 other residents. Nearly all "other residents" were believed to be women and children of missionary families, most of whom left Hainan before the occupation began, leaving 25 United States citizens on the island, at least two of whom were in the Chinese customs service.)

4 Inmates Escape From Reformatory; 2 Killed in Wreck

LINCOLN, Feb. 17 (AP)—Less than six hours after four inmates of the Nebraska men's reformatory escaped from the institution, the car they were driving crashed into a tree near St. Joseph, Mo., early today, resulting in death for two of them. The dead:

Vernon Lee, 20, Nebraska City, killed instantly. Wilbur Miller, 20, Eldorado, Ill., died several hours later.

U. S. Cardinals Arrive in Rome To Elect Pope

ROME, Feb. 17 (AP)—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, and George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, are expected to arrive here tomorrow night, the first American cardinals ever to complete a transatlantic crossing in time to vote in the election of a pope.

The only time heretofore that an American cardinal balloted for a new pope was in 1914 when the late John Cardinal Farley of New York happened to be in Switzerland and reached Rome in time to participate in the election of Pope Benedict XV.

United States embassy officials tonight completed arrangements to receive the prelates.

It announced that Consul General Thomas Bowman would greet them when they disembark at Naples from the liner Rex and that Edward L. Reed, counselor, and Sam Reber, second secretary of the embassy, would be at the station to welcome them in Rome.

Police Arrest 9 Insurgents For Night Raid

BRUSSELS, Feb. 17 (AP)—Police armed with foreign office election decrees today broke into the Spanish consulate and arrested nine Spanish insurgent sympathizers who had seized the building in a swift night raid.

Police said a former member of the consulate staff, named Cantilo, had led the raiders, who forced a secretary to sign over the property to representatives of Insurgent Generalissimo Franco.

Gendarmes and firemen aided police in recovering the building, which is on the Rue de la Science in view of the United States embassy.

Before they surrendered shouting "Viva Franco! Viva Belgium!" the men hauled down the insurgent flag. They ripped it into strips which they used as sashes as they were taken off to jail.

Charged with breaking into a private home, the men face possible deportation.

The raid caused a sensation throughout Belgium, which had severed relations with the Madrid government and decided to send a commercial agent to the insurgent regime.

Socialists said they would bring up the incident in parliament. Premier Paul Henri Spaak's government resigned last week partly because of a bitter dispute over his Spanish policy. No new cabinet has been formed yet.

The Spanish embassy said the nine arrested today were of Spanish nationality.

F.R. Ordered Demonstration Of New Bomber for France Despite Protest of War Dept.

F. D. R. Defends Plane Sales to France

Action Entirely Legal; Facilitated by Whole Government, He Says

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO KEY WEST, Feb. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt today defended the sale of American military planes to France as 100 per cent legal and asserted the whole government had facilitated the transaction.

Talking with reporters in a private car taking him on the first leg of a southern cruise, the chief executive declined to comment on a statement that the sale of latest type bombers to the French was made over the protest of Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staff.

When asked specifically whether he personally had supervised or facilitated the transaction, he said this was true if his reply was prefaced by saying the French had an absolute right to buy, that the sale was 100 per cent legal and the whole government facilitated it.

Senator Austin of Vermont, ranking republican member of the senate military committee which investigated the sale said yesterday in Washington that Craig had told the committee he had objected to it on the ground it might interfere with the army's plane procurement program.

Testimony made public by the committee also disclosed that when Secretary Morgenthau was asked why the treasury procurement division was asked to cooperate with the French mission seeking planes he replied this was done at the request of the president.

Farm Loans Decline WASHINGTON, (AP)—The farm credit administration reported yesterday that the total amount of federal loans on American farms declined $113,000,000 in 1938.

WPA Checks Reveal 2100 Unlawfully Cashed in Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—The secret service disclosed today that 2,100 WPA pay checks were cashed unlawfully in the year which ended last June 30.

Of the number, however, 1,995 were determined to have been stolen before they were cashed. More than 2,000,000 persons were on the WPA payroll during the year.

In the previous fiscal year, a total of 1,349 WPA checks were forged, of which 1,287 had been stolen.

Three Dead Southern California Hit by Windstorm

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17 (AP)—Southern California counted a toll of three lives and property damage of at least $500,000 tonight from a three-day windstorm.

As the gale died down, a survey showed citrus groves hardest hit, thousands of urban trees toppled, 2,700 telephones out of order, and losses from numerous fires exceeding $80,000.

Sixteen buildings were damaged or destroyed by a blaze brought under control in Pasadena early today by 16 fire companies. Battalion Chief Russell Stone said it started from an electrical short circuit, possibly caused by the high winds. He estimated the loss at $65,000.

Losses to the citrus industry ran into many thousands of dollars, with 50 per cent of the fruit in some navel orange groves being blown to the ground. Much fruit remaining on the trees was bruised.

Motion picture companies were forced to cancel location trips, with consequent costly delays in production schedules.

At Santa Anita park, where a tall tree fell across the track between races yesterday, another unusual accident today forced the withdrawal of the 8-year-old mare Marynell from the coming $100,000 handicap. Marynell suffered a severe tendon injury when struck by a bench blown through her stall door.

Suspect Anti-Soviet Inigue Following Loss of Pole Flyer

MOSCOW, Feb. 17 (AP)—Elements of anti-Soviet intrigue have been injected into the mystery of the disappearance of Sigmund Levanevsky, famed Soviet pilot, in a flight over the north pole in 1937.

Radiomen Voznesensky, chief of the station at Tikhaya bay in Franz Josef land, has been jailed, it was disclosed today, charged with counter revolutionary activities.

He was accused of withholding or delaying radio messages during Levanevsky's attempted flight over the pole to the United States and during numerous air expeditions sent out in search of the air hero and his five companions.

Defense Department WASHINGTON, (AP)—Senator King (D-Utah) proposed yesterday that congress create a single department of national defense.

Senate Group Makes Public Secret Actions

Air Board of Army, Navy Not Consulted, Committee Reveals

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—As a result of the senate military committee's long-standing and still-continuing row over secret proceedings, a transcript of testimony taken in its investigation of the sale of war planes to France was made public today, revealing that:

President Roosevelt, at a White House conference, personally gave instructions that a newly developed war plane be demonstrated for a French military mission.

He did so over the protest of the war department, and of Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps.

The aeronautical board of the army and navy, established to control the demonstration or sale of military planes to foreigners, was not consulted.

It was understood by all concerned that the fact of the demonstration's having taken place, and the fact that a sale of planes was under negotiation, were to be held a secret.

The transcript, including testimony by Arnold, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations; Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, and Capt. Sydney M. Kraus of the navy, was handed to newsmen toward the close of a day which saw a new outbreak over whether the committee's hearings on matters of defense and foreign policy should be held secret or not.

It quickly developed, however, that the ambassador was of no mind to be questioned on important subjects. Whenever a "pertinent" question was asked, a committee member said, he declined to answer because to do so might affect a "delicate" international situation, or impair his own future usefulness.

Meanwhile the question of national defense came up at the other end of the capitol, with the house naval committee formally approving a $52,000,000 naval air base program, including the development of an "outpost" at Guam at a cost of $5,000,000.

During the day bills were introduced in both branches, by Representative Maas (R-Minn) and Senator Reynolds (D-NC) to establish a naval base on Wrangell island in the Arctic ocean, northwest of Alaska.

The senate committee's transcript showed that Johnson disclosed the president's part in the French transaction. In reply to a question by Senator Clark (D-Mo) as to where it was determined that the French should see the airplane in question, he said:

"The authorization to Secretary of War Woodring and myself was by the president of the United States in a conference at the White House."

Captain Kraus, who had been detailed to the procurement division of the treasury department, and accompanied the French mission to California, said he, too, inspected the plane.

"I looked in at the bomber compartment through the various windows that were there, and so far as the bomber compartment was concerned, it was practically a bare compartment," he said.

"There might or might not have been a few simple flight type instruments the bomber would have needed to use, but in no sense anything that is restricted or that has not been sold by the thousand, I guess, all over the world."

An order had been drafted in Washington directing that the French mission be allowed to see the plane "less secret accessories," but it was testified that the word "less" was dropped out in transmitting a copy of the order. Senators felt this might have led to disclosure of secrets to the French had there happened to be any secret apparatus on the plane.

Students Will Lead Vespers

'We Believe' to Be Topic of Interfaith Service on Sunday

University of Iowa students will conduct the first university interfaith vesper service at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Macbride auditorium under the auspices of the Student Religious council.

Preceding the vespers, conducted entirely by university students, WSUI will broadcast "Prejudice Parade," a play designed to bring out the religious prejudices sometimes prominent in religious faiths. The broadcast begins at 7:30 p.m.

The broadcast of "Prejudice Parade" will be "piped" into Macbride auditorium, so that those who wish may come to the hall early to hear the broadcast. The vesper service follows in natural sequence.

With "We Believe" as the topic of the evening, three university students will speak at the vesper service—Mary Condon, A4 of Cedar Rapids; Perry Osnowitz, L1 of Sioux City, and George Hill, A4 of Burlington. They represent Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

The program will open, following the WSUI broadcast, with the singing of "God of Our Fathers" under the leadership of Hugh Cockshoot, G of Wilton Junction. James Morris, A2 of Des Moines, will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Isabelle Greenberg, A4 of Algonia, will lead the responsive reading, Bernard Peeters, A2 of Burlington, Wis., will introduce the speakers.

The planning committee for the Student Religious council includes Parke Woodworth, E3 of Ipswich, S. D.; Anne McPhee, G of Newton, Mass.; Ruth Subotnik, A3 of Cedar Rapids; Hillis Hauser, A4 of Marshalltown, and Miss Condon.

Flood Control Seen for Sioux

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Rep. Harrington (D-Iowa) announced today army engineers had decided to make a detailed flood control survey of the Little Sioux river.

"I initiated a movement for a survey in the second session of the 75th congress," Harrington said. "As the result, engineers made a preliminary survey last year. Now they have decided that the project warrants a complete and detailed survey."

Harrington said he was informed lack of funds would prevent much work during the current fiscal year but extensive work would be done in the fiscal year which will open July 1.

"Every year the Little Sioux river does an immense amount of damage to crops and property," Harrington said. "This is particularly true from River Sioux, where it flows out of the hills and on to the Missouri river alluvial plain, to its junction with the Missouri river. I hope eventually to have the federal government correct this situation. The detailed survey will be a step in that direction."

The Meaning Of Recognition In Spain

OVER TWO and one-half years ago in Spain, a civil warfare broke out that governmental authorities and men of the press predicted would be of approximately three weeks' duration. That three weeks has lengthened into 31 months; and Franco, the nationalists and the loyalists are names which have become almost as common in American papers as are the terms democrat and republican. During this time the only powers which have given express cognizance to Franco's party thus extending to them a status in international law are Germany and Italy. The sympathies of these countries toward the nationalists have been accompanied by arms and forces but what stand has the rest of the world taken?

Last week's headlines carried reports that Great Britain is contemplating recognition of Franco and his party. If so she will be the first of the democratic powers to do so. France, Great Britain and the United States have chosen to ignore Franco and grant him absolutely no status in international society other than that of insurgent. In so doing they have refused him the right of blockade (accredited only to states with a status in international society) and have refused to carry on any diplomatic relations with his party. They have refused to recognize that a war is actually in progress in ravaged Spain.

In agreement with this policy, then, Great Britain ignored the embargo Franco had proclaimed even to the extent of allowing her ships when time after time her prizes were stopped in the Mediterranean. No incident is reported that any American ships were molested, but had they been, the United States would have had no recourse. Just as in the case of Great Britain, the United States would have refused to recognize that any department of state existed under the nationalistic regime by which, through diplomatic negotiations, could they have asked for settlement or demanded reparations.

By granting Spain the status of belligerents, Great Britain would be recognizing the following facts essentially conceded when any state is recognized: that nationalist Spain has a government able to carry on affairs of state, that they have a military unit and that they have control of a piece of territory. Great Britain would then be legalizing Franco's blockade. Her recognition, then, if expressly announced would be considered formal. Had she chosen to extend only tacit recognition, that is, to behave "as if" the nationalists had a status in international society, this implied recognition could be established by carrying on business with them, or by exchanging diplomatic representatives.

If Great Britain makes her recognition de facto, she will be granting that the nationalists have a status as belligerents, in fact, but she would not be giving her approval. If the recognition were made de jure, she would be sanctioning this belligerency status as just and right. Should Great Britain take either of these steps, it will be interesting to note how other foreign nations will react. If the example set by history is true, other countries will soon follow in John Bull's footsteps.

A Montreal minister tells his congregation it is all right to go skiing on Sunday if they go to church first. He doesn't want any backsliders, though. A girl got a job in the movies by parading in Hollywood with a placard bearing the sign, "My legs are nice. I can act, too." One superfluous sentence there. A Chicago judge says that more slaps for the wife would mean fewer divorces. And more inquiries.

A Cleveland physician goes to Guatemala to study the habits of the sloth. He might do just as well staying at home and watching the Indians play ball. Some recent verdicts suggest that it might be a good idea to look up a couple of juries—or at least a few jurors.

In the University of Wisconsin case we believe the regents and the senators who broke the regents' deadlock in the controversy mentioned are thoroughly in the right. We only wish there had been a stronger show of conviction by a unanimous vote to have the gift rejected in its present form. Regent A. C. Backus within the meeting of the regents expressed it admirably. He pointed out that the gift's conditions "eliminate Negroes, Catholics and Jews, and brings the Ku Klux Klan proposition into the university."

"Why," he asked, "just this slum to the Negro, Catholic, and Jew? It can be misinterpreted. In the state there shouldn't be this feeling. We should be one happy family."

DEMOCRACY AND FREEDOM

Life Is Made Up of Duties As Well as Rights, Voigt Reminds

(February 19 has been designated as National Brotherhood Day by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The purpose of this organization is to help make America safe for differences, and to create an atmosphere of good will and understanding. The Daily Iowan will publish an article each day this week written by an Iowa Citizen on this important subject. Readers interested in getting detailed information about the scope and work of the National Conference of Christians and Jews should write to Rev. Llewelyn A. Owen, First Congregational Church, Iowa City, Ia.)

By EDWIN EDGAR VOIGT, Pastor Methodist Church of Iowa City; Past President, Iowa City Ministers' Association

Last year a very significant book, written by Professor Hocking of Harvard, appeared under the title, "The Lasting Elements of Individualism." In the second chapter he asks the question, "Is individualism working badly?" and suggests that it will most certainly work badly if we live as though life were made up of rights without duties.

The American citizen, as such, is very prone to talk much more about his rights and liberties than about his duties and responsibilities. One hundred and fifty years of national tradition gives him that kind of mind-set. If you read the thrilling record of our national origin, you must be impressed by the zeal our forefathers had for human rights. Read the constitution and the first eleven amendments, and what you have is a document which states that the citizens and the several states shall forever possess such and such rights and immunities, and that government is instituted to safeguard them. As one reads these documents one should also be impressed by their silence as to human duties. The theory seemed to be that they would give a man as much liberty as possible, and let his sense of duty grow out of his individual conscience.

This theory of political economy will work as long as men's consciences function, so that they voluntarily take upon themselves the duties of citizenship. And our form of government has survived for this century and a half because the majority of its citizens have maintained a sense of duty proportionate to their grants of liberty. I for one am inclined to believe that government has not been obliged to specify men's duties because during these years it has been able to depend upon another agency, a voluntary one, to do this task. This arrangement has been the genius of our democracy. Government exists to safeguard what Americans believe to be their inalienable rights and prerogatives. The citizens, on their part, voluntarily undertake to create such non-political organizations as are suitable for teaching the public what obligations must be undertaken by all in order to have social well-being.

Now, I further believe that this supplementary agency upon which government has been able to depend has been organized religion. The city church, reaching out in its manifold enterprises, the circuit rider who rode the wilderness along side the pioneer, served this republic by laying upon the consciences of its citizenry what must be done for the sake of the common good. That contribution of the various religious groups has made our form of government possible, because it gave a free citizenry the moral stamina to use their freedom wisely and well.

And now as I look on the contemporary scene, let me state that I believe in this American system. I should hate to see it cease to be, and I hope that our American democracy can continue to find in its religion that moral dynamic which will inspire its free citizens voluntarily and cheerfully to take upon themselves the duties required for their corporate life.

AROUND THE TOWN With MERLE MILLER

These are three isolated incidents in the 24 hours of a columnist. Maybe they add up to a story that says something important. Maybe not.

The first is about my friend, Irene (That's not her name). She's one of these non-Aryan girls around the campus who combs from the Bronx, New York; she's married, and her husband's a student too, also from the Bronx. I've known times when Irene hasn't eaten. I've known times when she had to stay home all day because her one pair of hose, not silk, were torn.

I've known times when I'd ask her to join me for a cup of coffee, knowing well she hadn't dined in the evening. I've known many weeks when she and her husband have eaten, dined and danced on $3.

And the queer thing is, it doesn't matter. She loves Iowa City better than New York, and she knows what she's here for. And, although I've never known anyone with the odds against stronger, she'll probably get it.

Well, last night Irene came in, aglow with anticipation. She'd obtained a dollar; she said she'd stolen it. And she was going to the concert, she heped. Would they sell her a ticket for a dollar? I didn't know; I doubted it. I know St. Louis symphonies aren't for the unmoneyed.

She called the main desk of Iowa Union, and the answer was, of course, "No." Did I have a quarter? I hadn't. We searched, but the people with quarters were already at the concert. Except one; it was his last. Irene "borrowed" it.

It was then 8:10, and she jumped over the news room railing and a chair on her way out. "I've never been so happy in my life," she shouted at the door. And meant it. Maybe that proves something that's encouraging.

Herb Krause And then last night we chatted around the tea cup with Herb Krause who's just had published a hauntingly stirring novel that I, for one, will never forget.

Herb Krause will be one of our great novelists one day soon.

TUNING IN By Loren Hickerson

"ONCE UPON A TIME," one of federal theater radio division's present series, will present "How the River God's Wedding was Broken Off" at 9:30 this morning. The Oriental's subtle sense of humor is beautifully demonstrated in the Chinese fable. Mutual network.

This series, illustrating the fantasy-traditions of peoples the world over, is directed by Robert Lewis Sharon, who also wrote the dramatizations.

"MEN AGAINST DEATH," another federal theater series, presents "McCoy: SHOULD GENERALS DIE IN BED?" at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

It's the story of death-fighting at close quarters, of venturing into the front-line trenches of the war on parrot fever by a general who did not die in bed, McCoy of the United States public health service.

McCoy discovered that not only parrots but humans also were carriers of the germ which brought inevitably a tell-tale pneumonia to its victims. Warned of the danger to himself by his wife and friends, McCoy nevertheless carried on until he and his aide discovered that a serum made from the blood of convalescents was the cure for parrot fever.

TOMMY RIGGS and Betty Lou will have Lew (Dribbles) Lehr as their guest of honor at 7 o'clock tonight when the stage, screen and radio comic appears on the Quaker party broadcast over NBC's Red network.

Lew is the radio comedian made famous by his zany antics on the Movietone newsreel film. Originally, he wrote special comedy material for Texas Guinan, Bert Lahr, Lou Lillie, Trixie Friganza and Shaw and Lee.

Larry Clinton's orchestra and swing songstress Bea Wain will provide the musical background for the Riggs-Betty Lou-Lehr funfest.

ROBERT (Believe it or not) RIPLEY returns to the air in the middle of March for Tim and Irene's former sponsor, Royal Crown Cola.

Bishop Wants A Brighter Audience LONDON (AP)—Church-goers, says the Bishop of Durham, are getting dumber.

"There has certainly been a change for the worse in the intellectual quality of church-goers," he wrote in the "Westminster Abbey Quarterly."

"The cultured class has generally ceased to go to church. The modern preacher must make his count with hearers who know little about theology and care less, whose power of attention is very small and who are not accustomed to anything more mentally exacting than emotional appeals and topical allusions."

A New Yorker at Large By George Tucker

NEW YORK — Since my college, because he lacks either the inclination or the imagination to entertain himself. Nightclubs fall into one of two brackets in New York. Either they are top-flight or they are not. The people who patronize the lesser clubs are not inveterate, that is, the same faces do not appear at these clubs night after night. At the more expensive clubs they do. You will find at these places a great many very genuine people. But with them you will find the old stand-bys, the boys who spend the money night after night, the tired actresses who laugh just a little too loudly, the jaded nerves seeking a moment of "relaxation." You will also find there any number of the people who have come to be classed as members of Cafe Society. Believe me, it is no special honor to be catalogued as such. Rudeness in public places, such as in restaurants and theaters, seems to be a certificate of admittance to this rather unselect group—that and a flair for pleasant notoriety. Anyone acquainted at all with nightclubs is aware of these facts and therefore has no kick coming. The entertainment, when there is entertainment (some of the most expensive places do not even have music), consists of no more than a very loud band and a girl crooner, usually a debutante. I think everyone should visit these clubs and acquaint themselves with them and have a good time, because they are a part of New York life, and as such, are interesting experiments. But as a matter of daily routine — you wouldn't like to sit through the same movie 200 times, would you? Or would you?

Inter-Fraternity Week End To Begin With Informal Party

Union to Be Scene Of Dance Featuring Phil Levant's Music

Opening the activities of the annual inter fraternity week end will be an informal party in the main lounge of Iowa Union Friday with Phil Levant and his orchestra providing dance melodies from 9 to 12 p.m.

Personable Mr. Levant, who plays the violin, composes and directs his band, is a Chicago boy. Opening at the Bismarck hotel, almost unannounced, Levant's band quickly caught on with the dancers and his nightly broadcasts over WMAQ, WENR and the NBC network gained him national popularity.

Before his Bismarck appearance, Phil Levant and his orchestra traveled for two years, playing hotels in Texas, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Michigan and returning to Chicago briefly from time to time. Gradually he increased his orchestra, working out orchestrations with Joe Kovatz, his pianist, Dick Dickson, his drummer, and Herb Arney, the bass player, and Frank Deise, first saxophonist.

Phil hit upon an instrumental bass of three violins and three tenor saxophones and built on brass and rhythm sections to add color and tempo.

Featured with the orchestra is youthful George Wald, tenor, sharing the vocal honors with Gretchen Lee, who presents a contrast with her swiny popular style.

Phil is composer of his radio theme song "Strange" and another new number "After Glow," which developed into a hit tune.

He has five arrangers in his orchestra, and Kovatz collaborates with him in his composing.

On a bet, Phil wrote the Marquette Victory song. He attended Crane college at Chicago.

Four Highest Scoring Schools Eligible To Go to District Meet

The sub-district contest of the Iowa State High School Forensic league series of the year will be held at Iowa City high school today. The topic of discussion, which is being debated by high schools in 42 states, is: "Resolved, that the United States should establish an alliance with Great Britain."

The tournament, which will be a round-robin, will be run off during morning and afternoon sessions.

Class A teams, in addition to Iowa City high school, to debate in today's meet are Muscatine, Newton, Oskaloosa, Davenport, and Washington. Each school will have ten debates. The four highest-scoring schools in today's tournament will be eligible to compete with winners of other sub-district contests at the district meet in Burlington, Feb. 24 and 25.

Students representing Iowa City high school were selected on the basis of a series of debates held here Feb. 13 with Washington high school. These students are Arthur Froehl, Judith Worton, Tom Wurli, Gordon Christensen, and Conrad Jones. E. J. McCreary is the City high school coach.

The judges are six university student debaters, chosen by Prof. A. C. Baird, director of intercollegiate debate. They are John Barnes, A2 of Lamoni; John Gillotti, A3 of Des Moines; Clair Henderlinder, A3 of Onawa; Eli Samore, A2 of Sioux City; David Sayre, A4 of Ames, and Oscar Serbein, A3 of Collins.

WSUI Will Have Busy Week End To Give Nine Remote Control Broadcasts Within Three Days

This week end WSUI will establish a kind of record, probably unequalled by any other educational station in America. Three days there will have been three days there will have been nine remote-control broadcasts.

Beginning at 1:30 this afternoon, Eric Wilson, editor of the University News Service, and Bill Seiler, WSUI sportscaster, will go to the fieldhouse for the broadcast description of the Iowa-Wisconsin track meet.

At 2:40 listeners will hear the music of the University concert band and chorus, playing and singing as part of the Eighth Annual Conference of Teachers and Supervisors of Music. Prof. C. B. Righter will conduct the band and Prof. Herald Stark the chorus.

DEATH AT THE MANOR BY M. E. CORNE READ THIS FIRST: Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr. finds herself involved in a murder mystery when first the eccentric old lady and later, her middle-aged daughter-in-law are found dead under the same hair drier. Elsie was attending each at the time, though out of the salon for a few moments before discovering the old lady's death. A string of emeralds, belonging to Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., are strangely missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family, and some of the house guests, strike Elsie as queer. Phil Benson, newspaper reporter and close friend of Elsie's, arrives as the police launch their investigation. He immediately phones for Mac McIntyre, head of the Chicago homicide squad, who happens to be in town. Meanwhile Richard and Daphne Witherspoon, children of the second victim, conduct themselves oddly during questioning. The chief of police continues his interrogation of all those at the Manor when the two deaths occurred. Elsie, Benson and McIntyre discuss the possible suspects. No trace of poison is found in the body of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Jr. Making a secret investigation of the beauty salon, Phil and Elsie come upon a bit of cigarette tissue which has the smell of bitter almonds. (Now Go On With the Story) CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR "BITTER almond?" Phil asked when I said that's what I had smelled. I nodded and yawned. I was getting sleepy. This prowling about in the small hours of the morning was not my idea of fun. "Let's get out of this salon, Phil." "Wait a minute, baby. Now think! When you raised the hood and Mrs. Witherspoon fell out on you, did you sneeze?" "Uh-huh." "And did you sneeze again when you untied Mrs. Horace?" "Mrs. Horace? Why, yes I did!" I wrinkled my brow. Now what was he driving at? Whatever did my sneezing have to do with murder? "And both times it was this bitter almond odor that made you sneeze?" "Yes, it was. It tickles my nose and I have to sneeze. That was one reason I hated to mess with the beauty mask. It smelled like that, too." "It did, eh?" He rubbed his chin. "But Mrs. Horace didn't have the mask on her face when she died, did she?" "Oh, no! She never used the mask to my knowledge." "Good! Baby, I think we have something! As sure as God made little apples this piece of paper is going to send someone to the hot seat!" "It's a clew?" "Nothing else! In the morning I'll take it around to Taylor at the drug store and, if he's half the druggist he thinks he is, he'll know what poison smells of bitter almond and is so deadly that it kills instantly and defies detection by autopsy." "Oh!" I began to feel thrilled myself. Fancy Phil figuring out the whole business! "Won't Daphne be surprised when you tell him the news?" He laughed. "He will that!" Carefully he stowed the paper in his vest pocket. "Now for a look into the second compartment, and then we'll call it a night." "That suits me," I said and stifled another yawn. "Phil!" I froze to the wall. "Did you hear anything?" "I thought I heard a noise in the lobby!" We listened. Phil said: "All's quiet on the western front, baby." "Nerves, I guess," I said. "Sure, nerves!" He patted my arm. We went into the second anteroom. "Well, I can't discover a thing that's missing!" I said wearily. "Cream, powders, lotions and—oh!" I gave a little cry. "Eh?" Phil turned to me. "Find something?" "The bottle of beauty mask is missing!" "No fooling?" "Look!" I pointed to the top shelf above the dressing table. "It was there between the powder boxes and that large jar of massage cream! And now it's gone!" Phil said thoughtfully: "So that's what Daphne was after!" I was puzzled. "What would she want with that?" "Heaven only knows, Elsie, but she must have wanted it pretty badly to come sneaking in here in the middle of the night." "And she arranged the articles on the shelf so that the mask wouldn't be missed!" He shrugged. "Another mystery to add to our list. Scoot along to your room, honey, before I douse the light. I'll follow." "All right!" I tiptoed across the lobby. "O. K., Phil, I'm here!" The light in the anteroom went out. Phil started cautiously toward the open door. It was so dark I could not see him. I counted his steps. One, two, three—funny I had not noticed before that his shoes squeaked. I chuckled inwardly. It was just like the big bum to wear squeaky shoes upon a midnight pilgrimage. Four, five, six—mechanically I counted—seven, eight, nine—why something fishy about the set-up out here! Miss or Mister X wanted that tissue badly enough to conk me on the head for it! "It must have been a man," I insisted. "A woman couldn't have done it; she wouldn't have the strength." "I don't know, Elsie. Daphne, remember, is the athletic type. Women can do all sorts of tricks nowadays." "I can't believe it was Daphne. I stamped out my cigaret. 'I simply can't believe it!'" "Better hop into bed, kid," he said gently. "I'll be going along. You aren't afraid to stay alone?" "No," I lied. "I'm not afraid." "Lock both doors and keep them locked until morning. I'll be out as soon as I've seen Taylor and Mac McIntyre." "I'll—I'll be waiting." "Good girl!" He kissed me. "So long, Toots." "Sure you can find your way out?" "Sure! Sleep tight and don't worry!" "I won't!" I promised and locked the doors behind him. Fire Fighting Expert to Talk On Prevention

I. C. Clubs Sponsor Two-Day Campaign In State Program

Fire prevention campaign meeting Thursday at Jefferson hotel will feature Richard E. Vernor, manager of the fire prevention department of the West Actuarial Bureau of Chicago, as principal speaker.

Iowa State Fire Prevention association and the local chamber of commerce are cooperating in the two-day event, Thursday and Friday.

The Kiwanis, Rotary, Altrusa and Lions clubs, junior chamber of commerce and the board of underwriters will work with the sponsors in conducting the program.

Fire hazards will be sought through an investigation of business houses, industrial plants and public institutions.

Vernor, one of the country's leading experts in the field of fire prevention, has made a special study on the subject. State fire prevention associations in 19 mid-western states are under his direction.

He is head of the National Fire Protection association and past president of the Chicago Rotary club.

Dust Bowl Refugees in California Find Solace In Outbursts of Religious Fervor and 'Meetins'

SAN FRANCISCO — Poverty stricken refugees from the Dust Bowl who have come to California's great inland valley are finding consolation for their hard lot in an outburst of religious fervor.

Relief officials report a mushroom growth of "tabernacles" along the 500-mile route the families follow as they seek work in the fruit and vegetable harvests. Most such places of worship are tents or small frame buildings.

The meetings—noisy, informal and often hilarious—include such religious manifestations as dancing, talking in strange tongues and rolling on the floor. They start in the afternoon or early evening and usually continue well past midnight.

A Promised Land "The best results come late," said one pastor. "The powers of evil seem to give up about midnight and God gets the right of way."

Amazing conversions of drunkards and criminals are related, but most of the flocks are made up of honest farm people who have been dispossessed by drought or mechanized farming and have come west in search of the promised land.

California, with four migratory workers for every available farm job, has proved a disappointment in an economic way, but thousands of refugees believe they have found their promised land in the tabernacles.

Most of the congregations abstain from smoking, drinking, motion picture shows and card playing, and seek the ecstatic type of religious experience usually described as Pentecostal. An impulse to utter strange sounds that can be interpreted only by special revelation to some devout listener is the most conspicuous feature.

Ex-Sailor, Ex-Boxer The outstanding sect is the Gospel Defenders, shepherded by "Brother Charley" Fisher. It has a big tabernacle—erected by labor of the faithful at a total cost of $90—which each Sunday draws about 1,000 persons to the tiny town of Chowchilla, near Fresno.

An ex-mechanic, ex-sailor and ex-prize fighter, Brother Charley is only "six years old" in his gospel life. He was converted when a young boxer he was training made him attend church under threat of forfeiting a match.

Today he runs not only his tabernacle but several branches and is continually putting on tent meetings for the tide of impoverished humanity that drifts up and down the valley. He has 40 preachers in training.

Brother Charley has quite a colony of followers settled around his tabernacle, and is talking hard to the U. S. Farm Security Administration to get a grant that will anchor migratory workers to a little cottage and a piece of ground.

The government has offered him a $1,500 experimental fund, but the preacher is holding out for more.

Meanwhile, at nightly meetings his flocks alternately sing, weep, laugh, dance and pray. Many of them have nothing to call a home, but at least during meetin' time they're happy.

Nick-Nacks For Spring

What Milady Will Wear or Use When Soft Breezes Blow

By SHIRLEY LAMB Now that you've started putting your winter wardrobe in boxes and getting out the moth balls, you find that you could use a few quick tonics to help you "put your best foot forward."

If you've just taken last year's in-between suit out of its wrappings, a whimsical little wool sweater dotted here and there with tiny colored suede bows will give it a bright, fresh appearance. One thing you'll be glad to know is that it washes over and over again remaining just as soft and colorful as ever.

Believe-it-or-not spring flowers not only grow in gardens, but they can be carved out of real turquoise, lapis lazuli, carnelian or amethyst with tiny jade leaves here and there. One bouquet poses in a minute enamelled vase and can be caught either at the throat or on the lapel.

If you are one who prefers blouses to sweaters, there's a sweet combination called sweater-blouse in silk crepe. Smocking is expected to be a pet fashion this season so this little number has bands of latex smocking around its cardigan neck, on the puff sleeves and waistline.

Entirely dunkable and looking very a la Paree are these town-and-country gloves in natural chamolis with a shaped band of pigskin and a narrow insert of pigskin running from the palm to the thumb tip. Another simple little slip-on is of French suede, cut with a brief, sharp flaring wrist. Colors are Bermuda blue, violet, lime, fuschia and cyclamen tones. Both styles are handmade.

This season it's impish and very smart to let your contrasting slip show just a tiny bit below your frock, especially when the bottom has yards and yards of swishy ruffles. Celanese taffeta in mustard, champagne, navy or shocking pink seems to be the swishest of all materials.

Designers of jewelry have gone quite wicky-wacky over bamboo necklaces and bracelets this spring. Great chunks are interspaced with colored plastic material. Get a set for that plain, black frock of yours and you'll feel very smart and up-to-date.

Sheer and springy are the Swiss cotton hankies that madame will be using this season. Clusters of flower-buds and scalloped, hand-rolled edges will brighten up the pocket of any suit. And for our sport fan, a snowy white hankie with three letter monograms plunked right in the middle are very swank. The monograms are handblocked and come in grey, navy, black, wine or brown.

Our friend the turtle inspired the idea for a roomy, soft capeskin purse. The leather is folded back to resemble a turtle's back. It comes in all colors, but lime and cyclamen are particularly attractive.

And for that new supply of sweaters, pick up a narrow suede belt with varicolored fringed

Wayne Putnam To Play Tonight For Elk's Party

Washington's birthday will provide the decorative motif for the Elks' lodge party tonight in the clubhouse. Wayne Putnam and his orchestra will provide music for dancing from 9:30 to 12:30.

The committee in charge of the affair includes Mr. and Mrs. Jule Kasper and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Ashmore.

suede tassels. And matching it are a necklace and bracelet. There's another smart belt made out of disks of colored pigskin strung together on pigskin strips that tie nonchalantly in front.

For you who have a yen for new and different bits of china, put an added dash of color on your table with amusing and individual handpainted pieces. Two of the most popular pieces are a star-shaped bowl and a tulip decorated oval scoop.

When soft spring evenings call for fluttering chiffon gowns, make yourself a little more glamorous with a necklace and bracelet of translucent white shells mounted on silver stems like flowers and with bright-eyed centers.

Looking at that pet woolen frock of yours, why not give it a new touch with one of the horsey belts? One of the latest numbers comes in natural cowhide, about two inches wide, and uses a giant stirrup for a buckle. And if you can use cuff links, there are tiny stirrups for those.

W.C.T.U. Has Meeting Here

Temperance Union's Accomplishments In Education Set Forth

Summary of the accomplishments of the Woman's Christian Temperance union was set forth yesterday by Mrs. Ida B. Wise, national chairman, at the W. C. T. U. regional meeting here.

Mrs. Smith reminded her audience of the scientific and educational functions of the organization's program by use of radio, newspapers, magazines and motion pictures. School boards in different localities, she said, have been anxious to get W. C. T. U. ideas through programs or general literature.

Unlike the old-time saloons, she insisted, new ones direct their appeal toward women as well as men. Most of the women, she contended, are housewives.

From here, contrary to previous plans, Mrs. Wise left for the national W. C. T. U. headquarters at Evanston, Ill., last night. Illness forced her to cancel the remainder of her Iowa tour.

Prof. Briggs Tells Masons Of Iowa's Past

Members of Masonic service club yesterday learned of unusual occurrences during Iowa's earlier days as told by Prof. John E. Briggs of the political science department, who was a guest speaker at the meeting.

Professor Briggs told his listeners that armies twice invaded Iowa. The first, he said, came before the Revolutionary war when troops came down from the north in search of bandit Indians. The second occurred when British troops seized some miners near Dubuque during the Revolutionary war.

Guests included Max Katz, Osage; Ray E. Smalley, Sharon; Arthur McLeod, Joseph Buchmayer and Ed U. Opfall.

Victim of Kidnap Scare

Heard Her Son Was Kidnaped Mrs. Ruth Drew, shown with daughter, Joan, received phone call in Los Angeles informing her that her son, 13, was kidnaped. She verged on collapse until search revealed the boy with his father, Glenn W. Kelsey Sr., Mrs. Drew's former husband. Police are seeking the person who called to say "I have your boy and you will never see him alive again."

Newman Club Will Entertain Tonight at 9

Newman club, Catholic student organization, will entertain at a Pre-Lenten party and dance in the music building from 9 to 12 o'clock tonight. The Rev. P. J. O'Reilly of St. Patrick's church is the Newman club adviser and will chaperon the dance.

Len Carroll's orchestra will play for dancing and the singing, featuring Virginia Shrauger, A1 of Atlantic, and Arthur J. Martin, A1 of Corning. All members are invited, and requested to bring the notice sent them in the mail.

The committee in charge of the arrangements includes Herbert McHugh, C3 of Chicago, chairman; Evelyn Mitchell, A3 of Em-

County Board of Supervisors Authorizes Certificate Issue

County board of supervisors yesterday authorized the issuance of $50,000 in anticipation certificates of the secondary road construction fund for the years 1939 and 1940 to fulfill contracts with three construction companies for work now being completed in Johnson county, it was announced.

The money is needed to finance the work which has included surfacing of 54 miles of road with crushed rock.

Action of the board of supervisors was approved by the Iowa state highway commission.

The certificates, bearing interest of not more than five per cent annually, will be in the county treasurer's office at 10 a.m. March 1.

Impatient Chinese Take Medicine in One Gulp

LOS GATOS, Cal. (AP)—Doctors' efforts in interior China are handicapped by the tendency of the natives to gulp prescribed medicine all at once, says Dr. Leonard Wilbur, for eight years a practitioner there.

"It was a common occurrence to give a Chinese patient medicine with instructions to take one tablespoonful a day, only to have him drink the whole bottle at once in the belief he'd get well that much sooner," says Dr. Wilbur.

STATE TEACHERS vs. IOWA

Beyond the Dreams of Kings

Perfumes from France, woolsens from England, shoes from Massachusetts, oranges from Florida and California, coffee from Brazil, laces from Switzerland, motor cars from Michigan, pineapple juice from Hawaii . . .

Isn't it marvelous how the intricate machine of commerce constantly gathers the necessities, conveniences and luxuries of life from the four corners of the earth and puts them right down here in our home town?

Have you ever stopped to think what an important part ADVERTISING plays in making all this possible?

Without advertising, no merchant could afford to risk a large investment in merchandise—and wait and wait till some chance customer happened in . . . Without advertising, you would be unaware of the many lovely, useful, needful things assembled in the stores for your convenience . . . Without advertising, finding what you wanted at a price you could afford would be a matter of luck or of patient plodding from store to store.

Mass production and sales volume—through advertising—have brought to the American people an ease and comfort of living that would have been beyond the wildest dream of kings of old.
