ATHLETE OF YEAR TO BE ELECTED

Christians, Jews Observe Brotherhood Day

Rabbi Levens Will Talk At Congregational

Theme of Address To Be 'Democracy And Religion Today'

"Democracy and Religion Today" will be the theme of the address by Rabbi Monroe Levens of Tifereth Israel Community synagogue, Des Moines, at the Brotherhood Sunday services at 10:45 this morning in the Congregational church.

The observance of Brotherhood Sunday in Iowa City, part of a nation-wide program to promote goodwill conducted by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, is under the direction of the Iowa City Inter-Faith council.

Representatives of three faiths, the Rev. Llewelyn A. Owen, of the Congregational church, Attorney William R. Hart who was appointed by the Rev. Patrick A. O'Reilly to represent the Catholics, and Rabbi Levens will speak during the Brotherhood Sunday program, which will be broadcast over station WSUI.

Attorney Hart will read the First Lesson, the Rev. Mr. Owen will read the Second Lesson and conduct the services, and Rabbi Levens will give the main address.

A discussion of current problems under the topic "We Believe" will be given by three university students at the University Student Inter-Faith vespers at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in Macbride auditorium.

Mary Condon, A4 of Cedar Rapids, Perry Osnowitz, L1 of Sioux City, and George Hill, A4 of Burlington, will be the student speakers. They will be introduced by Bernard Peeters, A2 of Burlington, Wis.

Dr. Louis Binstock, well-known Chicago rabbi, will deliver two addresses tomorrow in the senate chamber of Old Capitol. At the afternoon meeting which will begin at 4:10 p.m. he will speak on "The Intelligent Man's Approach to Immortality." "Has Religion Failed" will be his topic at the evening meeting which will convene at 8 p.m.

The human relations dinner Tuesday evening in the Iowa City Congregational church dining hall will feature an address by the Rev. Donald Haynes, assistant pastor of St. Wenceslaus church, and a forum on the subject "What Can Catholics, Protestants and Jews Do Together?" Father Haynes' address will begin at 7 p.m. and will be followed by the forum. WSUI will broadcast the speech and the forum from 7 until 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The Rev. Mr. Owen, president of the Iowa City Inter-Faith council, said that the National Conference of Christians and Jews was making an effort to have the national Brotherhood Sunday program reach as many persons as possible because of the present international situation.

He explained that the Iowa City services are planned to cover the eastern part of the state through the radio broadcasts and distribution by mail of literature issued by the national conference.

The purposes of the National Brotherhood services are listed in the "Ten Commandments of Brotherhood" written by Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk, which will be read by the audience at the services.

HEDY LAMARR!

On Desert Isle. O. K.! Say Students

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Columbia university seniors today voted movie star Hedy Lamarr as the woman they'd like most to be stranded with on a desert island.

Madeleine Carroll won the election last year, asked whom she'd prefer to be stranded with, remarked, "an obstetrician."

Everybody's waiting to hear what Hedy will say.

Attacks Senate Highway Committee Will Have Hearing On Road Measure

DES MOINES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Rep. Dewey E. Goode (R), Bloomfield, returned to the legislative farm-market road wars today with a sharp attack on what he termed the "lobbying activities" of highway commission employees.

Goode, sponsor of the bill which would "reallocate" primary road funds to farm-market purposes, made public portions of a letter he had written to Fred White, highway commission chief engineer.

"My understanding of the duties of the highway commission and its employees," the letter said, "are to carry out the laws enacted by this general assembly, and it is not their duty to be lobbying for or against any legislation which comes before this house."

"But they are supposed to carry out the laws as passed by this general assembly, and do the best job possible with whatever funds we make available."

White is an outspoken foe of the farm-market road measure, which already has passed the house. The senate highways committee will hold a public hearing on the bill Monday.

"I noticed by the press that you stated there were between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 in obligations outstanding against the primary road fund on Nov. 30," the letter said. "Isn't it a fact that there is also to be received from the federal government to offset these obligations, over $4,000,000? Therefore, your obligations are to a great extent already taken care of."

"I also noticed... that you were in Des Moines attending a meeting held for the purpose of defeating the farm-market road bill, which was passed by this house, at which you stated that this was a threat to raid the primary road fund."

"Why did you not raise the same objections two years ago, when you were in Des Moines recommending large sums from the primary road fund to purchase and maintain interstate bridges on the Mississippi and Missouri rivers?"

Goode and other farm-market cohorts contend the so-called "diversion" to match federal secondary road grants, would not threaten the solvency of the primary road fund. The bill's opponents point out that Iowa has $79,000,000 in outstanding primary road bonds to finance, in addition to construction of new paving and general maintenance.

The bill would allot $658,000 immediately to the farm-market fund from primary receipts and would take about $1,750,000 annually thereafter.

France States Two American Planes Equal to German Ships

Senate Committee Discloses Testimony Taken During Probe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Disclosure that a French air mission considered only two American warplanes equal to similar German ships brought comment from war department sources today that this government has better and faster planes than any the French saw.

The French attitude was disclosed when the senate military committee made public the record of its secret investigation of the French purchase of 100 Douglas light bombers of a new model built for entry in an army competition this spring.

This record of testimony taken Jan. 27 and 28 revealed that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau told the committee that the French, after looking over the field, reported they found only two models that "could stand up in the air one second" against German planes.

Other disclosures from this testimony were:

1. General Malin Craig, army chief of staff, testified that the Douglas light bomber, of which the French purchased 100, and the P-40 pursuit plane, which they were not permitted to see, "are still valuable military secrets if we are to lead in the air."

2. Craig, while noting that the sale of the Douglas bomber came in "a little different" classification, endorsed in general President Roosevelt's policy in selling American military planes abroad.
3. Craig told the committee that, starting from scratch, manufacturers could not produce more than 40 planes of a new model in 12 months and added that 18 months would be required to turn out 300 bombers.

4. Secretary of War Woodring, in a heated exchange with Secretary Morgenthau before the committee, asserted that the French could not obtain delivery on 1,000 planes before July 1, as they first proposed.

Woodring said today, however, that the final French orders for 515 American planes, only one of which was of the latest type available to the army, would not "in anyway" delay the construction of 3,000 new planes for the army under the administration's proposed rearmament program.

In other war department quarters it was pointed out that the French had not seen the army's experimental XP-38 fighter which attained speeds in excess of 400 miles an hour in a dash across the country. These quarters also indicated that the army has in the process of manufacture a bomber considered to be much more effective than the Douglas ship.

On the other side of the capitol, six members of the house naval affairs committee adopted a minority report on the $53,800,000 naval air base bill which was approved by the full committee yesterday.

The minority report, foreshadowing a sharp floor fight when the legislation comes up in the house Tuesday, criticized only the proposal to improve plane landing facilities and the harbor at the tiny Pacific island of Guam.

French Fortify Empire Lines

PARIS, Feb. 18 (AP)—France strengthened her empire defenses in Africa and put them on the alert tonight following reports of Italian troop concentrations near the borders of two fascist-coveted French territories.

In Tunisia, French protectorate, troops were held in barracks, and airplanes were made ready for immediate flight in case of trouble. Submarine patrols surveyed the Tunisian coast and important troop reinforcements had been sent to the central stretches of Tunisia's frontier with Italian Libya.

Heavy artillery reinforcements were shipped aboard the liner Chenevoux from Marseille to Djibouti, French colonial seaport on the Gulf of Aden and one object of the clamor for the concessions aroused by the Italian press and public.

Europe In New Crisis

Democracies Fear Fascist Mobilization May Mean Trouble

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Europe's harassed statesmen, agreeing with President Roosevelt tonight that European developments were ominous, foresaw the possibility of a new international crisis at an early date.

While democracies and dictatorships took to the Spanish nationalist capital at Burgos their fight for European domination—with Britain and France bearing terms of Madrid's surrender—there were these new danger signs:

Italy was said in informed circles in London to have called up 150,000 reservists and to be planning to have another 150,000 with the colors "by the spring." The report lacked confirmation in Rome.

France took extraordinary defense precautions in Tunisia and shipped heavy artillery to her key colonial port of Djibouti after reoccupying a strategic Red sea area ceded to Italy under a 1935 accord which Italy subsequently denounced.

The British government, reliable sources disclosed, was worried by information it had received that German army officers have been attached to Italian garrisons in Libya. It also was said to be aware of important troop movements in Italy and to be seeking to establish how far they were "abnormal."

These developments came as official reports of possible new territorial demands in Europe, backed by threats of aggression, reached President Roosevelt at Key West, Fla. He intimated that because of the reports he might have to cut short his survey of fleet maneuvers and return to Washington before March 4, as he originally planned.

In Paris, Spanish government officials said the Madrid government had authorized Britain and France to negotiate its surrender with only one condition—that there would be no reprisals against former government fighters and sympathizers.

France's strengthening of her African defenses came after reports of Italian troop concentrations near Tunisia and French Somaliland, two fascist-coveted territories.

French troops established garrisons in a 12-1/2 mile strip of coastal territory between French Somaliland and Italian Eryrea, thus retaking possession of the area, which once had been ceded to Italy. Italian officials refused to comment on the reports of the Italian troop concentrations.

Express Belief That Germany Cut Concordat

MUNICH, Feb. 18 (AP)—Catholic authorities, aroused by the government's closing of Munich university's theological school, expressed belief today that the concordat between Germany and the Vatican had been broken.

They awaited instructions from Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, before protesting to the government. The cardinal, who is in Rome, always has insisted on strict adherence to the concordat.

Minister of Education Bernhard Rust closed the theological school yesterday after differences with the cardinal over appointment to the Munich faculty of Professor Barion, of the Braunsberg, East Prussia, Roman Catholic academy. About 1,800 students were affected by the closing.

Catholic said Barion was given his chair without consultation with Cardinal von Faulhaber and that consent of the archbishop was necessary under the concordat.

President Roosevelt Sails For Panama Warship Maneuvers

CHEATS DEATH Teacher's Quick Action Saves Pupils

WILMOT, S. D., Feb. 18 (AP)—Quick action by Francis Cummins, Wilmot school teacher, saved 25 pupils from serious injury and possible death here late yesterday when a water pressure tank in the basement of the school house exploded and crashed through the floor of the third and fourth room above.

Hearing a strange hissing sound, Miss Cummins ordered the pupils to line up and march from the room. Nearly all had escaped when the blast occurred. Many desks in the room, where the pupils had been sitting a moment before, were demolished.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt, concerned over a possible new international crisis, sailed for the Panama Canal fleet maneuvers today after warning the world anew that the Americas were determined to ward off the "ugly truculence of autocracy."

Official reports reaching him of possible new territorial demands backed by threats of aggression caused the president to intimate before embarking that he may have to cut short his journey and return to Washington before the scheduled March 4 date.

At a press conference after lunching at a Civilian Conservation Corps camp at West Summerlin Key, Mr. Roosevelt said information continued to be received that the international situation was disturbing.

This information was not disclosed in detail, but it was understood to relate to possible renewed demands from totalitarian countries. The demands, it was said, were likely to be pushed through use of fear of aggression instead of through normal diplomatic channels.

The president reached here from Florida City after a colorful 140-mile motor ride over the overseas highway across dozens of islands between the mainland and this government-restored outpost in the Gulf of Mexico.

He sailed on the destroyer Warrington from the naval station dock, planning to do some small boat fishing before transferring to the cruiser Houston at sea around dark.

Just before embarking, he delivered two radio talks from an open automobile. He reaffirmed his faith in the good neighbor policy and warned that western hemisphere nations were united in a "common aspiration to defend and maintain the self-governing way of life."

"By setting an example of international solidarity, cooperation, mutual trust and mutual helpfulness," he asserted, "we may keep faith alive in the heart of anxious and troubled humanity, and at the same time, lift democracy high above the ugly truculence of autocracy."

Religion Group Will Broadcast Interfaith Play

"Prejudice Parade," a play designed to bring out religious prejudices sometimes prominent in religious faiths, will be produced by Prof. H. Clay Harsbarger at 7:30 tonight over WSUI, a half hour before university students present the first of the university inter-faith vespers services in Macbride hall.

With the vespers following in natural sequence to the broadcast, the production play will be "piped" into Macbride auditorium, enabling those who attend the vespers service to hear it there.

Mary Condon, A4 of Cedar Rapids; Perry Osnowitz, L1 of Sioux City, and George Hill, A4 of Burlington, representatives of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths, will be the speakers at the inter-faith vespers, sponsored by the Student Religious Council.

Others who will assist are Hugh Cocksfoot, G of Wilton Junction; James Morris, A2 of Des Moines; Bernard Peeters, A2 of Burlington, and Isabelle Greenberg, A4 of Algona.

BOOMERANG Rain Stops Rituals For Hopi Dancers

GALLUP, N. M., Feb. 18 (AP)—The Hopi snake dancers of Arizona were credited formally today with raining out the inter-tribal Indian ceremonial.

Tired of having attendance at the big Navajo affair cut by rain—brought, of course, by the Hopi rain ritual held annually a few days earlier—directors of the inter-tribal broke with tradition and moved up ceremonial dates from the fourth to the third week in August.

Recess Looms In Legislature

Law Givers in High Gear as Bills Flood Iowa Upper Chamber

By JOHN H. CHAPMAN
DES MOINES, Feb. 18 (AP)—Under a warm February sun, Iowa legislators had thoughts of spring vacation today, after going into high gear to pass nearly 50 bills this week.

A resolution to recess from February 28 to March 6 is on file in the senate, over the signature Charles B. Hooven of Alton and H. V. Lewis of Chariton.

The proposed mid-session holiday would enable farmer members to go home and instruct the hired man about spring work. Lawyer members could attend court matters and make interest collections—or payments.

The resolution may be called up Monday, which is also the deadline for filing individual bills in the upper chamber.

The senate has received 300 bills this session, compared to 530 two years ago, but claims bills, of which there are sometimes nearly a hundred, are yet to come.

The senate turns its attention to farm-to-market roads Monday, as the committee on highways holds an open hearing on the bill which came over from the house several days ago.

The house bill would divert a portion of the primary road fund to match federal allocations for secondary roads in Iowa. The senate hearing was scheduled after an articulate group of anti-diversionists met in Des Moines last Monday to seek another way out.

"After talking to you fellows," they told senate leaders, "we get an entirely different idea of what this bill would do from that which Fred White (chief engineer for the highway commission) gave us."

"We're not opposed to farm-to-market roads. We just want to know what is the best way to get them," the spokesman said. Next day after the road hearing, independent merchants are expected in Des Moines in a mass appeal for enactment of a new chain store tax law.

The status of bills covering other subjects tonight was as follows:

Marital health—the house has sent bills requiring blood tests of altar-bound couples and ex-pectant mothers to the senate.

Teachers' pensions—the senate social security committee has recommended passage of a modified teachers' annuity bill, but the appropriations committee must now give its approval to the appropriations provisions.

Liquor-after recommending indefinite postponement for a local option bill, the house committee introduced a bill to tighten restrictions on beer parlors and divorce beer and dancing.

Voting Restricted To Iowa Student Body and Faculty

Who is "Iowa's athlete of the year?"

In order to select and honor the athlete who, in the opinion of the faculty and student body of the University of Iowa, is the outstanding athlete on the campus, The Daily Iowan, with the cooperation of the Campus "I" men's club, will conduct a poll, starting today, in which every student and each member of the faculty is urged to vote for his or her favorite athlete.

The ballots, one of which appears today on the sports page, may be filled in and sent to The Daily Iowan or deposited in ballot boxes which will be placed in Racine's cigar store number one, and Whetstone's drug store tomorrow.

Persons wishing to vote will be restricted to one ballot which must bear the voter's signature or be declared void.

The ballots, which will be collected and counted each day by a committee of "I" men, will be checked against any possible repeats and every precaution will be taken to keep the poll an honest expression of campus sentiment as to who is "Iowa's athlete of the year."

The polls will close Saturday at 12 a.m. at which time all ballots must be in The Daily Iowan, Racine's or Whetstone's in order to be included in the total. The winner will be announced in Sunday's Daily Iowan and will receive The Daily Iowan trophy between halves of the Minnesota-Iowa basketball game, March 6, the coach of the sport in which the athlete competes to make the award.

The winner's name will be inscribed on the trophy which will occupy a prominent place in the fieldhouse.

Each year another name will be added, another athlete who has earned, by his actions on the playing field or court, the recognition of the students and faculty as "Iowa's athlete of the year."

The following is the list of those eligible for competition: FOOTBALL, Erwin Prasse, Nile Kinick, Frank Balazs, Jack Eicherly, Russell Busk, Dick Evans, Jerry Niles and Ed McLain; BASKETBALL, Ben Stephens and Tommy Lind; BASEBALL, Jimmy George, Art Manush and Bill Voigt; WRESTLING, Carl Vergamini and Wilbur Nead; SWIMMING, Ray Walters and Bob Lowry; TRACK, Fred Teufel, Carl Teufel, Mill Billig, John Graves and John Collinge; TENNIS, Bob Sandler; GYMNASTICS, Adam Vogel.

Papal Conclave Will Begin On February 28th

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 18 (AP)—Forty five cardinals wearing violet capes bordered in ermine and violet in mourning for Pope Pius XI had their first funeral mass for him today while awaiting the arrival of foreign princes of the church to elect a new pontiff.

The service was the seventh of nine daily requiem masses being sung for the pope. The cardinals had remained away from the first six services as is their custom but they departed from tradition by having their service not in Sistine chapel but in St. Peter's Basilica.

Vatican authorities announced that the conclave of cardinals to elect a papal successor would open on the evening of Feb. 28 with the voting to begin the next day.

Two of the three United States cardinals—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, and George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago—arrived today at Naples aboard the liner Rex. William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston and two South American cardinals are expected to arrive Feb. 28.

Speaking Of Democracy

SPEAKING of democracy, what about the republic just to the south of us? There nearly 20,000,000 people are struggling for an economic place in the sun, and how many of us know anything of it?

Mark Sullivan believes our government should express its attitude toward the Mexican expropriation of American oil properties in a way that would force President Cardenas to back down, to return the properties he has already taken.

With that attitude we disagree. The outright annexation of privately owned property for state use cannot, on the grounds of international law, be defended. On the grounds of common good it may be.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis once wrote, "For the general welfare of a people, the law can be revised."

Mexico, while Cardenas has not given it the kind of democracy we know, has made tremendous strides. Cardenas is trying to win his people to a new faith and a new order.

He has redivided the land so that not more than 376 acres can be owned by one person. Formerly one per cent of the people held 90 per cent of the land, and Mexico is primarily agricultural.

Cardenas is also teaching his people to read and to write; he is teaching them modern sanitation; he is teaching them new methods of agriculture and to make use of modern farm implements. Best of all, he is teaching boys and girls to be teachers, and he is supporting larger attendances at the University of Mexico and in smaller agricultural colleges.

He is attempting to bring a people with a culture 500 years behind our own into the world of 1939. That isn't an easy task.

To do that, he has had to be ruthless at times. Last March he expropriated millions of dollars worth of British and American oil properties when the foreign representatives refused to recognize the demands of their workers on matters of wages and living conditions. At least this was given as the immediate cause.

"Mexico," Cardenas shouted, "is for Mexicans."

Since that time both the American and British governments have protested vigorously to Cardenas; both state departments have issued vague threats, and the matter has ended there.

Cardenas, on the other hand, has suggested partial redemption, has spoken of a three-way conference to settle the matter; but his suggestions have been ignored.

Speaking of democracy, as everyone is these days, why not garner a few facts about the republic that is our nearest neighbor? Why not find out if possibly we might not have to go abroad to help a people find freedom? It's just possible.

Not Exactly Communism

MR. MARTIN DIES has been asked to go to Boston and to bring his committee with him. It appears the Boston Student Union club is being accused of "certain communistic tendencies."

Former State Senator Sybil Holmes has produced a copy of the Student Advocate, the union magazine, with two pages devoted to sex information.

"Besides an article headed 'Sex Education No. 4,'" Miss Holmes said, "there is also 'A Reading List on Sex'."

Mr. Dies has not as yet replied. Two things seem immediately apparent in the entire situation. Sex education is not a particular characteristic of the communist party; it is also that of doctors, of the church, of the Y.M.C.A., and the Boy and Girl Scouts of America. None of these could rightly be called exactly communistic.

Moreover, a reading list of the right kind of books on sex education is about the healthiest kind of a sign imaginable.

Brief Suggestion

WHILE everyone is busy discussing armaments and adequate defense and tolerance, might we make a simple suggestion?

At 10:45 this morning, in Iowa City's Congregational church, local Catholics, Jews and Protestants, will gather to observe National Brotherhood day, one day set aside to promote greater inter-racial, inter-faith, inter-faith understanding.

We will be there and hope that much of the rest of Iowa City will likewise be.

David Seabury, New York psychologist, says almost as many Americans enter insane asylums every year as start to college. Perhaps they don't care about football.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

REFORMING THE NLRA

THE EFFORT to establish a much-needed revision of the National Labor Relations Act appears to have degenerated into a contest between pressure groups.

At least three distinct movements are under way in the congress, including the Walsh bill in the senate, which frankly incorporates an A. F. of L. program.

Meanwhile, as was to have been expected, John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. have begun what is described as a "national campaign" to defeat any and all proposals to reform the act. This campaign is based upon the charge that all attempts at amendment are "designed to foster company unionism."

It is unnecessary to go into detail on the measures thus far proposed. Ostensibly, the principal aim of each is to cure the act's one-sidedness and to preclude, in its future operation, partiality in behalf of the C. I. O.

The present sentiment of congress being what it is, it seems probable that some kind of compromise measure will be adopted; not, however, without a bitter fight, which can only aggravate the hostility and distrust that are stumbling blocks to industrial progress and to the realization of accord in labor relations. It is not impossible that the pendulum may swing so far that groups heretofore unfairly favored may heretofore suffer from discrimination.

This would be tragedy. Perhaps, in view of the great, inter-ethnic strife that now divides labor, it is inevitable tragedy. But it is no less to be regretted and it is painful, especially, to observe how the administration has blindly neglected an obvious opportunity for service to the country.

It is not astonishing that no member of the administration has taken a constructive step toward originating the disputants together, and working out a harmonious solution? The more so when we recall the president's own admission, last summer, that the act needed "clarification." Mr. Roosevelt promised then, in deciding what changes in the act were advisable, he would consult the views of all concerned, including not only the labor board but "all unions and employers."

This kind of approach, giving free play to all conflicting viewpoints and interests, would have provided the best hope of an equitable adjustment of Wagner act inequalities. What the C. I. O., the A. F. of L. and many spokesmen for industrial management appear to forget is that the public has an interest in labor relations that goes far beyond the aims and desires, however legitimate, of any organized group or minority. It would not be too late, even yet, for the administration to take the lead in the establishment of an impartial, fact-finding body to examine the weaknesses of the labor act and the labor board, to hear views of all parties and especially to publicize findings in such manner as to acquaint the nation with the various sides to the controversy.

But the sad fact seems to be that this administration is so bogged down in its feuds and fratricidal political maneuvering that it has surrendered all ability to act for the broad welfare of the citizens.

A. STEINDLER, M.D.

Children's Hospital, State University of Iowa

For years the challengers of our democratic form of government, both within and without the confines of our land, have left no stone unturned to prove to us that our system is doomed to failure.

Every local disruption, every strike, every bit of party dissension, every storm in a tea pot, every insignificant ripple that moves on the surface of the body politic of a great nation is being duly magnified and assiduously exploited in some quarters of the foreign press and elsewhere to show us the error of our ways and the superiority of their own. We are raised in the belief that the commonwealth is an aggregate composed of all the people, and all of them free, but they tell us now that the state is the only unit worth considering and that it must not be allowed to decompose into its individual constituents; they call it Totalitarianism, and for the last decade or more their propaganda has not ceased to sweep over this country.

Strange to say, these ill winds are blowing upon us from different directions; from quarters which ostensibly differ among themselves in their political philosophies; but they are all founded on the proposition that one will or the will of very few shall represent the commonwealth and that it shall prevail without restraint.

It is perhaps one ray of light in this oppressing situation that, for us at least, the issues have become clear. There is no longer a distinction or a preference for either side of the extremist national philosophy. Fascism and communism alike must be equally subversive and inacceptable to a form of government based upon the principle that all men are created free and equal.

So the issue is no longer: whether to defend ourselves against fascism or communism, but rather against totalitarianism, which means both. To break down our defenses they tell us now, Democracy is on trial; that Christianity is on trial; that the Ten Commandments are on trial. This is a hypocritical and perverse statement of the issue. We are not trying Democracy, Christianity, or the Testamentary truths; they are trying us. The inheritance of the American people from the founders of the country is largely a spiritual one, conceived and nurtured in an undying belief in justice, faith, and freedom. The American people are challenged to show that they

AROUND THE TOWN With MERLE MILLER

PEACE BE WITH SOMEBODY Yes, the Franklin County Post of the American Legion in Columbus, Ohio, is up in arms about communism and Ohio State university. They can't wait for Mr. Martin Dies; so they're going to conduct their own investigation into "un-American activities."

I'm a little confused about such things these days. I'm a little amused, more than a little alarmed at the reverberations, unofficial and sotto voce, our tiny meeting of affairs Spanish has stirred up.

I'm sorry to hear it. Sorry, because Bob Burgess, a friend of mine (You'll meet him at this week's peace conference) has a tale to tell about the boys of the Franklin County Post.

Bob went to that Columbus, Ohio, peace meeting during the holidays. The boys didn't like that, and they protested to the city council. The council couldn't see anything un-American about peace; so the meet got started.

The second day, when Bob and his pals went down to that communistic hot-bed, the Methodist Student Center, it had been broken into and entered. The records of the meeting were gone.

The Franklin County boys had been at work. Protecting Columbus against un-Americanism.

It may shock someone for me to ask, What the hell is un-Americanism anyway?

One of my grandfathers might have been un-American. He stoked his way across the Atlantic after an anti-semitic putsch in Prussia of the old days.

In those days they called this the land of the free. A great-grandfather of mine

J. P. Morgan stopped farming on his estates in England after the operations were found unprofitable. That's one failure that can't be blamed on Secretary Wallace.

As a result of the clamp-down on drunken driving and other traffic infractions, the city's traffic fatalities were reduced from six in January, 1938, to only one in January, 1939.

Rates Drunken Walkers With Drunken Drivers MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A city drive against drunken drivers was so successful that Police Captain Toll E. Fowler decided to follow it with a "war to the finish" on drunken pedestrians. Memphians can't drink and drive their automobiles on the streets, said Captain Fowler; neither can they drink and walk the have kept faith; that they cherish and hold sacred these ideals as a whole and are not willing to compromise and barter on any part of them for expediency or gain, neither among themselves nor in the intercourse with other nations.

On this coming Sunday there will meet all over this country men of different creeds and races in a communion of mutual understanding. Irrelevant differences will be smoothed out on the great platform of common ideas and ideals. But it will be more than a mere conference of good fellowship; it will be a mutual confession of faith. What is it that holds Protestants, Catholics, and Jews together with bonds stronger than the temptations and profits of clannishness and prejudice, if it is not the great fundamental truth of religion common to all. It will be a testimonial of faith for Christians and Jews alike because forbearance and love of your neighbor is Christ's mandate and the golden rule an old testamentary truth.

On the secular side it must also be an occasion to reaffirm a national constitution designed upon the precepts of freedom and equality. And it is to be hoped that all will listen, barring the atheist and pagan who also have ears but cannot hear.

The constitution is America and America is the constitution. Without America the constitution is a mere shadow, without the constitution this country is a mere geographical concept.

The issue is clear: Are we going to yield to pressure, harangue and lure and sell the birthright of American ideals for a mess of porridge? Or are we going to assert ourselves on the question of individual equality, freedom of worship, freedom of speech, of press? These truths the American people have steadily held sacred during the history of the nation. They cannot be sullied and besmirched by compromise and expediency.

TUNING IN By Loren Hickerson

PHIL SPITALNY and his all-girl Hour of Charm orchestra will present their version of favorite classical tunes which have brought fame to their composers when broadcasting from the stage of the Hippodrome theater in Baltimore at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The orchestra is making a week's personal appearance in Baltimore. Songs they'll feature tomorrow night are Rimsky-Korsakov's "Song of India," "Air for the G String" by Bach, Wagner's "Evening Star," Schumann's "Träumerei" and Schubert's "Serenade."

The program, which also features Dorothy Thompson, the brilliant journalist, as news commentator, will emanate from Baltimore on a nation-wide hookup with NBC's Red network. Miss Thompson's talk on world events will be picked up from New York studios, and put on the networks from Baltimore. The genius of radio.

The Spitalny band continues to increase in popularity, one of the finest musical organizations in the country of its kind; the finest all-girl band.

EDDIE CANTOR who never keeps anything from his public, will announce the name of the Santa Anita winner that Clem McCarthy gave him on last Monday's program on the broadcast tomorrow night at 6:30 over the Columbia network.

Eddie will sing "Romance Runs in the Family" while the rest of the cast play the parts of all the "great lovers" of history. Kay St. Germaine and Bert Parks will introduce a new version of the musical hit, "Begin the Beguine."

LUCILLE MANNERS, soprano star of the Friday night Cities Service concert series over NBC's Red network, makes one of her infrequent appearances away from her regular program when she is heard as a guest star on today's Blue network MAGIC KEY program at 1 o'clock.

She will be accompanied by Frank Black and the orchestra, which, oddly enough, also plays her accompaniments on the Friday night programs. Another of radio's finest organizations.

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON is the scheduled guest on the Jesse L. Lasky "Gateway to Hollywood" program at 5:30 today over Columbia's network. He will "support" two aspirants for screen fame, chosen in a nationwide talent search by RKO-Radio pictures.

AND DON'T FORGET that friend Jack Chase is now in Hollywood. Today's "Gateway" will be worth hearing for the chance that Jack may be one of those two aspirants.

A CHICAGO DOCTOR will tell how dogs help the physician when he appears in an interview with Bob Becker the dog authority, on "Chats About Dogs" at 2:45 this afternoon.

The Bob Becker Players go collegiate on this broadcast and set the scene in a student society house where dogs were strictly forbidden. How the sisters overcame the ban on pets, and how a little wire-haired terrier rewarded his mistresses for their affection makes an amusing and exciting playlet.

Incidentally, there's a good story on this campus about a certain pleasant little kitty and a fraternal. Good dramatization material.

STRANGE, that with the entire radio industry buzzing with conjecture as to the actions of the film studios pulling their stars from the air to appease the protesting movie exhibitors, from Hollywood comes word that MGM for the first time has given young Freddie Bartholomew permission to head his own radio series. He is being put up for sponsor consideration by Leo Morrison in a series titled, "Freddie Bartholomew Presents."

A New Yorker at Large By George Tucker

NEW YORK — William Butler Yeats, the Irish poet, died in Dublin the other day, and when the cables came through with the story I went down to the Biltmore and asked Albert Stevens Crockett for some personal reminiscences on the man.

Albert Stevens Crockett is an old hand at recalling world figures of the last 30 years. Years of moving about the continent as a foreign correspondent threw him into contact with most of the titans of the theatrical, sporting and political worlds, so that now, at least to me, he seems a walking glossary of familiar but undefined names.

In such instances I always seek him out, and on this occasion this is what he said: "I had gone over to Ireland to dig up a story, being then London correspondent of the old New York Herald. In the Shannon hotel I found my old friend, Henry Dana, manager for Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and the latter's His Majesty's theater, in London. He told me Tree was going to present William J. Locke's 'The Beloved Vagabond' at the St. James theater the following Monday night, and that the author was stopping at the Shannon. In due time came an invitation to dine with the actor-producer on Sunday night. And so, in Tree's apartment, there was a formal dinner with Tree presiding, his daughter Viola acting as hostess, and the guests being Locke, Dana and myself.

"After dinner Dana and I went down to the hotel lounge, where most of Tree's company were assembled. Lolling on the sofa, surrounded by beautiful women, was a handsome young man with a pale face, dark handsomely hair, and wearing a flowing black tie and a velvet jacket. It was William Butler Yeats. Being at the age when a hard-working newspaperman was apt to look down on anybody, even a poet, who seemed to be a lady's man, I conceived a sort of aversion to him and did not listen to the verses the women were begging him to quote.

"A few years later, in New York, when I was chief interviewer for the old morning Sun, I had to interview Yeats and got an absolutely different impression of the man. I recall that interview because, a couple of days later, George Mallon handed me a note from Yeats which said such nice things about the interview that I still have it. On several subsequent occasions I interviewed him. The last time he came over I heard him speak before the Dutch Treat Club, and was enchanted.

"But the picture was completely gone of the sentimental-looking poet in velvet jacket, flowing tie and handsomely hair. He was now a ripened man of the world, substantial in figure, carefully groomed in a smart lounge suit. Many times since then I have thought that the first impressions of a raw young American, even if he has had years experience as correspondent in foreign countries, are not always to be relied upon. Certainly mine were not when I first met Yeats in Dublin, because his subsequent career proved me, to say the least, to be the victim of myopic inferences."

Walters Takes Two Firsts To Spark Hawks

Poulos Sets New Breaststroke Mark, Al Armbruster Wins

By OSCAR HARGRAVE
Daily Iowan Assistant Sports Editor

Capturing seven out of 10 first places and taking their share of the seconds and thirds, Dave Armbruster's Iowa swimmers yesterday handed out a sound 50-36 thrashing to Wisconsin.

Setting a brilliant pace for the team that he captains, Ray Walters proved once more that he is still a top-notch sprinter. Walters, who had been expected to be in poor form after his recent cold, outplashed Thompson, the Badger ace, to carry off first honors in both the 60- and 100-yard dashes.

Only other swimmer to get two firsts during the afternoon was the other captain, Jerry Siefert of the Badgers, who outlasted Iowa's Carl Ahlgren and Bill Tesla to bag first in both of the distance swims. Ahlgren finished a close second in both races.

But, while the two captains took more than their share of the wins, it remained for an Iowa sophomore to turn in the one record-breaking performance of the day, as George Poulos smashed still another of Bob Allen's breaststroke marks.

Poulos, after unofficially bettering Allen's mark over the long course Wednesday night, stroked the 200 yesterday in 2:26.9 to lower Allen's mark over the short course by three and one-half seconds.

Other bright spots in the meet for Iowa were Hawkley victories in the medley relay as Al Armbruster, Poulos and Ernie Draves outraced the Badgers, Armbruster's win in the backstroke, and Bremer a close second, and the surprise victory of Larry Hayes in the diving.

Complete summary of events: 300 medley relay—first, Iowa (Armbruster, Poulos and Draves); second, Wisconsin—time 3:01.4. 220 free style—first, Siefert (W); second, Ahlgren (I); third, Tesla (I); time 2:26.

60-yard free style—first, Walters (I); second, Thompson (W); third, Kershaw (I); time 29.3. Diving—first, Hayes (I); second, Brandon (I); third, Noehl (W).

100-yard free style—first, Walters (I); second, Thompson (W); third, Emmerich (W); time 33.8. 150-yard backstroke—first, Armbruster (I); second, Bremer (I); third, Horton (W); time 1:38.4.

200-yard breaststroke—first, Poulos (I); second, Ristow (W); third, Lowry (I); time 2:26.9. (New University of Iowa record.) 440-yard free style—first, Siefert (W); second, Ahlgren (I); third, Crowley (W); time 5:09.

400-yard free style—first, Wisconsin (Thompson, Emmerich, Noehl and Gile); second, Iowa; time 3:42.3.

New Entries For Tourney

All-University Mat, Mitt Meet Expected To Draw Over 200

With entries continuing to come in, the list of fighters and grapplers for the all-university tournaments, which start this week, is expected to reach the high mark of last year before the deadline Tuesday night.

Last winter, there were over 200 matmen and boxers in the ring seeking the honors and the medals that were given. This year, Dr. Fred Beebe is in hopes that the event will be even larger. Beebe, who is in charge of the event, is cautioning prospective entries to have their names in before Tuesday's deadline, and he especially urges them to undergo their physical examinations before they register. No entry is to be regarded as complete without the doctor's signature.

Most encouraging sign in regard to the two meets, is the apparent willingness of entries from the town division to register. Dr. Beebe is in hopes that the town group will present as large a contingent this year as will the other divisions.

Comiskey Has Bill Daly To Teach Him How

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Patrick Edward Comiskey is as Irish as Paddy's pig but there are no leprechauns in his corner. Instead Bill Daly, a bland, cigar-smoking Irishman, guides his career through the tortured politics of Tin Ear alley and battle-scarred Johnny Lane teaches him the lore of the ring.

Right now they are more important to Patrick than Joe Louis. He is still learning; learning how to hook and jab with his left hand; learning how to punch to the body; learning the thousand and one tricks of the trade. Outside the ring he must learn the dress, speech and general deportment of a young man with a million dollar tag on his right hand and a most promising future.

"In two years," he assures you earnestly, "I'll be fighting Joe Louis or whoever is champion for the title."

Daly grinned. "Talks right, doesn't he," he asked. "He fights right, too. He's coming along. Eleven straight fights and 11 wins, 10 by knockouts. He's still got a lot to learn but he's a ready learner."

Lane took up the story. Each day Pat goes three rounds in the gym. Most of the time his opposition is a stablemate, Maurice Strickland, a big New-Zealander who, barring Louis, is the best boxer in the division.

"He learns as he goes along, sometimes because he has to. Strickland has a hell of a left jab, so this kid started jabbing in self defense."

Then Comiskey gets out of the ring and in front of the mirror. For 12 minutes he shadow boxes as Lane and Strickland look on. He jabs, he hooks, he crosses his Sunday punch, the right, until his arms grow heavy. Then they put on the big bag and he works on that.

Lane discovered him. He was handling Pat's brother, Jim, and noticed a large young fellow around the Comiskey household. After two workouts at the gym, Pat came up and asked, "Get me a fight."

They started him against Jack Glover. He knocked Glover out in the first round; since then he has been fighting and learning.

BADGERS BEAT HAWK CINDERMEN

By JIM BRISTOL
Daily Iowan Sports Reporter

Paced by Ed Smith, lanky Negro hurdler who equalled the American indoor record for the 70-yard high hurdles by running the event in 8.6 seconds, the Wisconsin track team defeated Iowa's Hawkeyes in a dual meet yesterday in the Iowa fieldhouse by the score of 55 1-3 to 30 2-3.

Smith's time tied that set by Caldemeyer of Indiana and Osgood of Michigan, in 1936, and Gedeon of Michigan in 1938. The time also beat the fieldhouse record of 8.7 seconds which was equalled by Collinge two weeks ago. Collinge did better than .87 yesterday as he barely nosed out at the tape by the Wisconsin Negro.

Fred Teufel scored Iowa's only individual first by taking the 440-yard dash. Billig and Graves followed him to the tape in that order giving the Hawks their only clean sweep of the day.

The mile relay team of F. Teufel, Wiggins, Baird, and C. Teufel won the only other first place credited to the Hawkeyes by handily defeating the Badgers in the last event on the program.

The Badgers scored nine points right off the reel when they swept the first event, the mile run. Walter Mehl, the Big Ten champion and NCAA record holder, won as expected with Buxton and Towle following him to the finish line.

The Wisconsin boys made a real sweep of the long distance events by taking all three places in the two mile run. Mehl again took first honors followed by Farin and Towle. Elliott of Iowa lasted with the leaders until the final lap but faded as the Badger runners sprinted down the stretch.

The Badgers were credited with two upsets as Kauffman nosed out Carl Teufel in the 60-yard dash and Buxton surprised even Wisconsin followers with a victory over Billig and Graves in the half mile. Graves led most of the way but was passed on the final turn and finished third behind Billig.

Most of the field events points went to the Badgers as expected. Padway, Big Ten pole vault champion, won his specialty with a leap of 12 feet, six inches. Roberts of Iowa took third.

Harrar and Best of the Badgers tied for high jump honors at five feet, nine inches. Parrish and Wilson of Iowa and Kommers of Wisconsin tied for third.

Malisch of Wisconsin won the shot put with a toss of 44 feet, seven and three-fourths inches.

Leuz and Harkness of Iowa followed in that order.

The Badgers were supreme in everything yesterday but the quarter mile. The only time the large crowd attending had a chance to cheer was when the Iowans swept the 440 with ease and when the mile relay team, with four quarter milers in action, strode to victory in that event.

Mehl won the mile and two mile without extending himself and gave the impression that it pressed he could have cracked several fieldhouse records. At it was he missed the fieldhouse mile record by only 2.7 seconds.

The freshmen exhibition races, run off during the courses of the meet, provided one excellent race in which Hank Vollenweider, former Dubuque high school star, ran the 60-yard high hurdles in the very good time of 7.9 seconds. Hamilton was second and Gillespie third.

Art Schlauder won the frosh 60-yard dash in 6.6 seconds, followed by Gillespie and Houch. In the half mile Carl Schnoor scored a victory in 2:06. Matsun was second with Hirenman third.

The varsity summaries follow: One mile run—won by Mehl (W); Buxton (W), second; Towle (W), third. Time, 4:22.9. 60-yard dash—won by Kauffman (W); C. Teufel (I), second; Darling (W), third. Time, :6.4.

Time, :8.6 (equals American indoor record made by Caldemeyer, Indiana and Osgood, Michigan, in 1936 and Gedeon, Michigan in 1938 and breaks fieldhouse record of :8.7 set by Saling, Iowa, in 1932, Lamb, Iowa, in 1938, and Collinge, Iowa in 1939.)

Two mile run—won by Mehl (W); Farin (W) second; Towle (W), third. Time, 9:49.2.

880-yard run—won by Buxton (W); Billig (I), second; Graves (I), third. Time, 1:59.2.

Free throws missed—Weber, Fisher, Yeager 3, Beretta, Dickinson 2, Bell 2, England, Weigandt 2, Gallagher.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 18 (AP)—The spark that Bob Igney, forward, supplied in the Purdue offense tonight wasn't strong enough to keep Wisconsin from scoring a 32 to 20 overtime victory in a free-for-all basketball game before a wildly cheering crowd of 10,500.

Igney, slight of stature but a dead shot from long range, went in midway in the first half and pulled the Bollermakers into a 16 to 11 half time lead. He connected for five field goals on seven shots in that half, but Badger guards stopped him effectively thereafter. His total for the game was 16 points, high for both teams.

As Igney faltered Andy Smith, Badger forward, took over the scoring chores, connecting four goals in the second half, and bringing his game total to 11 points, second high for the contest.

Wisconsin tied the score after the intermission at 19 to 19, but dropped behind until the closing minute Smith shot the Badgers into a 26 to 25 lead. Elwood Yeager, guard, tied it up with a free throw while the crowd stood and shouted.

Free throws missed—(Indiana) W. Menke 4, Armstrong 2, Huffman 1. (Northwestern) Melchior 6, Voigts 1, Vance 1. Referee: Bill Haarlow (Chicago); umpire, John Schommer (Chicago).

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 18 (AP)—Indiana withstood Northwestern's blistering last half drive to win its seventh straight Big Ten conference victory by a 44-37 score before 5,500 enthusiastic fans here tonight. The win enabled the Hoosiers to hold fast to first place in the loop race.

Without the services of Capt. Ernest Andres and Bob Dro for the first half, Indiana was deadlocked at the intermission at 14-14, but the ailing regulars returned to action in the last half to thwart the Wildcats' threat.

Curly Armstrong paced Indiana, getting 18 points. Chuck Melchior, of Jasper, Ind., led the Wildcats with 13 points.

Each team scored 15 field goals, but Indiana tallied 14 times from the free throw line to provide the victory margin.

The score was tied three times in the first half, but I. U. never was headed in the second period.

Score at the half: U-High 22; Mt. Vernon 5.

Mt. VERNON, Feb. 18 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—Exhibiting a potent offensive attack, U-High completely outplayed Mt. Vernon here tonight to chalk up an impressive 35 to 23 victory. Besides the varsity victory, Coach Charles Austin's sophomore quintet defeated the Mt. Vernon reserves 25 to 8 to give the Rivermen a clean sweep for their evening work.

Ernie Krogh, Blues' pivot man, led both teams in scoring with 10 points, and also was responsible for breaking up the Mt. Vernon passing attack. "Hank" Pelzer, who relieved Krogh at center, and Dave Hull, Mt. Vernon pivot man, each counted eight points. Hull's eight points were all collected after the intermission.

The Brechlermen jumped off to an 8-0 lead early in the initial period, and continued their point-getting campaign throughout the first half, leading at this juncture 22 to 5.

After the rest period, Coach Brechler inserted his reserves, who played the entire third quarter, and the final four minutes of the last stanza.

High Hats

Spring Models Have Tall Crowns

Crowns of the new spring hats have high ambitions and brims are taking a broader view of the sartorial situation.

These highlights of the spring hat styles were revealed in a unique preview at Miami, Fla., when an aerial millinery show was broadcast 2,000 feet above the resort.

An innovation in style shows, the event introduced advance spring models in felts, suedes and straws. The high crowns, faintly reminiscent of a Chinese coolie hat, give a dash to the new styles in keeping with the zest of spring. Broader brims, briskly turned up in the back and dipping down flatteringly at one side give the new felts that feminine feeling which is so dominant in all of the spring introductions.

Colors for which to keep an eye out when you go shopping at your favorite milliner's are sun drops, a shade as warm and lovely as the Florida sunshine which inspired it, prunella, a rich wine shade; fox glove, the color of the flower for which it was named; arbutus, a delicate pink and tiger lily, a rosette hue. These will be smart pastel colors to brighten up spring suits and tailcoats, according to Geraldine Knox, New York hat stylist, who broadcast the aerial preview.

New and interesting is the use of the wimple with a tailored felt. One of the high style notes in spring millinery, broad brimmed felts with high spool crowns, brims tilted up on the right side instead of the left and fishnet veiling draped like wimples are something else for which to watch.

Prof. Sowers Sees Drift To Better Humor

Witnesses 26 Plays, 10 Foreign Movies, 6 Operas in N. Y.

A trend toward more wholesome American humor on Broadway was noted by Prof. W. Leigh Sowers who has just returned from his annual visit to Broadway to see the current productions. Professor Sowers reviewed some of the plays at the meeting of the American Association of University Women yesterday in the University clubrooms of Iowa Union.

Professor Sowers saw 26 plays, six operas and 10 foreign movies during his brief stay. The most blatant fault he noted with the modern theater is a result of the lighting from above the stage which eliminates all facial expression. This also necessitates that all expression come from the voice and not many actors have this ability.

Ballets, circus tricks, costume plays, operas sung in three languages and a revival of the Gilbert and Sullivan type of musical comedy are also highlights of the plays now running on Broadway.

The Rev. Iliot T. Jones, speaking on "Shoot the Works," and Miss Otto were also on the program.

Class Classics

Another thaw, and hopes are raised again for an early spring. With the hope comes a general dragging out of saddle shoes, the college girl's classic. And on the heels of the shoes come ankle socks, the absolute "tops" to complete this foot ensemble.

The older the shoes are, the better. No matter how extensively you look among a girl's accessories, nary a bottle of white shoe cleaner will you find.

As for the socks, angora and brushed wool have been found to be the most completely complementary. However, just so the color of them harmonizes with the sporty outfit, they will be in the running.

Pictured above stepping over a conglomeration of snow and its counterpart, water, are Madelyn Miles, A3 of Clear Lake, and Joan Workman, A1 of Keosauqua.

Star Cakes Are Appropriate On First President's Birthday

Hostess Hints

A holiday, to most children, means not only a day when they are free from school, but a day which, like a party, brings some thing extra special to eat. This idea is not lost with the passing of the years as grown-up, too, associate special dishes with certain days. Thanksgiving turkey, Christmas cookies, valentine cakes, are inseparably linked in our minds with the days whose names they bear.

So, on the birthday of our first president, what could be more fitting than a Washington Star cake? And to make it a double treat and one worthy of the occasion, why not have a brick of ice cream with the cake?

Washington himself would have enjoyed this combination, for ice cream was a rare delicacy in his day and not the readily available dessert it has become since Dolly Madison made it popular. Here is the recipe for the cake; the ice cream you can buy at any time and store in the refrigerator until you're ready to serve it.

Washington Star Cake
2 1-4 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup butter
1 1-2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup milk
2 eggs separated
3-4 teaspoon lemon extract
1 1-4 cups tart red jelly
1 cup whipping cream

Sift flour, measure and resift three times with the baking powder and salt. Cream butter until soft, add all but one-fourth cup sugar and the egg yolks and beat vigorously until the mixture is very smooth and fluffy.

Add flour mixture alternately with the milk, beginning and ending with the flour and beating until smooth after each addition. Beat egg whites until stiff, add the remaining sugar and beat until blended; then fold into cake along

In addition to the exhibition, Hale will speak informally Wednesday in the Union library on "The Romance of Jewels." He will speak at 10 a. m., 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. Hale will explain the process of making enamels in connection with the exhibition.

Hale's work in jewelry and enamel has placed him among the foremost American craftsmen; his exhibition is one of exceptional beauty.

In his collection are precious and semi-precious stones set in original designs and arrangements. Leading jewelers throughout the country have acclaimed his pearl as especially fine. His craftsmanship is that of the Renaissance master, but in feeling his works are in keeping with the present day.

He studied at the Norwich Connecticut Art school and the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts. Abroad he studied at the Guild of Handicraft in Chipping Campden, England, and in London with Frederic Partridge, one of the best known jewelry experts in the world.

Hale is a member of the Boston Society of Arts and Crafts and was the first dean of the Boston Jeweler's guild of that society. He has served as dean of the Craftsmen's guild of Marblehead and as a vice president of the Boston society.

In 1915 Hale was awarded the medal of the Boston society of Arts and Crafts. Several of his small pictures in enamel are in the permanent collections in the leading art museums of this country.

TIPS on the Shopping Market

By Betty Harpel

IN behalf of your new suit or coat, join the sewing class and then drop in at STRUB'S to see the new sheer woollens in dress or suit weights for spring. You'll revel in the lovely new shades of gold, fuchsia, lime, aqua and violet which are so good this season. Or you'll fall completely for the tiny "Shepherd's Check" or the bright splashing plaids which are used for the new sport jackets. Or, if you are a little more on the conservative side, there is a new shadow plaid which is shown in lovely color combinations. Another important thing which you will appreciate about the new Jamestown worsteds is that they are sanforized or polished so that they don't grow scratchy, or irritate the skin. Come in and see them at STRUB'S this week!

Among the loudest protesters against the proposed removal of the Engineering college to Ames are the Ames men. What with four men to one woman already, they don't need any more competition. Of course, if they would care to move the Iowa City Home Ec majors down there, that would be another matter.

That little wooden heckler, Charlie McCarthy, is to meet his radio opponent, W. C. Fields, on the STRAND screen. You'd better be in to see the fun. The film is "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," and Edgar Bergen is in it, too, of course. Right now, "Jesse James" is being held over, so that you can all see it. If you haven't seen it, be sure to go, and to watch for "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man."

FOR your new spring suit you will want a pair of DOMBY'S smart pumps or ties. If it is man-tailored you'll like the patent pumps—or if it is a nubby tweed the soft suede toeless and heeless sandals and pumps will be a perfect match for they are in all shades. For a dash of color there are various combinations that will give that zip to your spring wardrobe. Stop at DOMBY'S tomorrow for the shoe that will make your spring outfit complete.

Get in good with the roommate—and take this tip. A warm toasted sandwich with a tasty filling made to please by the PRINCESS or IOWANA CAFES will make even an evening of study a pleasant activity. And don't forget to treat yourself, too.

A BIG, beautiful roast, tender and juicy, would be a pleasant surprise for the family tomorrow night. Get your roasts at POLEHNA BROS. MARKET. POLEHNA'S meats are always delicious.

Just beyond the Iowan office at 3 S. Dubuque is a convenient place to pick up your daily drug items and toiletries—an experienced registered pharmacist will dispense your needs in medicine—

This warm weather gives you a hint to have all your spring clothes ready for wear, as there is to be still warmer weather soon. LE VORA'S VARSITY CLEANERS do excellent work at the best rates in town. Call 4153 and have your spring cleaning called for immediately.

YETTER'S have the ideal clothes for you to use in making up a nifty sport outfit for school this Spring. YETTER'S new stock of gorgeous skirts has so much variety with their flared skirts and pleated skirts with two and three colored stripes in woolen crepes, Shetland fleeces, and flannels. Their skirts are in all new colors of French blue, aqua, dusty rose and beige as well as in darker colors. Make a suit of your own choice by adding one of their beautiful plaid or plain colored jackets to the skirt. To wear under it nothing would add to its attractiveness more than one of YETTER'S new sweaters—Pucker puffs, kitten-fluff angora, light angora, or one of their other numerous styles in the new Spring colors of coral, lime, French blue, and cyclamen coming in either cardigan or slip-over styles. These sweaters, skirts, and jackets are all being sold at popular prices. Be sure and make your selection while the stock is large by hurrying down right away.

We hear that some of the Delt convention-attenders were scared out by the flu epidemic and departed for their homes, leaving some blind dates in the lurch.

To complete your spring outfit you'll want to get the latest thing in hosiery. The Vanity Fair knee-last featured at the ZIMMERMAN HAT SHOP has that elastic top which permits free knee movement without straining the hose. For a full fashioned, longer wearing, and non-wrinkling hose be sure to get the knee-last. They come in all the newest spring shades and sizes. Stop at ZIMMERMAN'S tomorrow.

FOR plenty of action and entertainment, don't forget to see Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in the hit "Too Hot to Handle" at the VARSITY THEATRE now. As the added feature hit, Hoppie and all his pals give you plenty of thrills in "Pride of the West"—another Hopalong Cassidy feature.

The sure way to a man's heart is to smile at him from his dresser. Have KADGHN'S make a picture to give him and you will be constantly in his thoughts.

Your spring costume will be complete if you have a pair of the new pumps EWER'S are showing in the Japonica shade or in navy and black patent leather, to show it off. EWER'S also have the toeless and heeless styles that are the epitome of chic. Choose a bag and stockings to match at EWER'S, they have beautiful hosiery shades.

MAKE your room more pleasant and home-like by investing in one of the RCA Little Nipper radios at the CHECKER ELECTRIC store. They are small, but powerful, and have a wide range of selectivity. They come in all colors to match your room and are small enough to fit in anywhere.

Have you been wondering where to go on your afternoon date? For an enjoyable time, JOE'S PLACE is the only place to go. Here you can meet all your friends and have a real get-together. Why not make it a daily event and relax at JOE'S PLACE—the college hangout.

THE ideal place to take your date is the PLA-MOR BOWLING ALLEY for a real good time. Incidentally, girls, bowling is a perfect cure for the excess poundage—bowl between classes any afternoon. Free instruction is provided. Bowling makes a good Sunday date, too.

Washington World

By CHARLES P. STEWART
WASHINGTON, D. C. — Our Yankee diplomatic and naval folk are trying to get a line on General Franco, the Spanish rebel leader, who evidently has his country's government crowd licked to within a second or two of a knockout.

One ordinarily thinks of a rebel chieftain as a liberal or even an extreme radical, in a state of insurrection against a backward regime.

This time, in Spain, it is different. King Alfonso was an ultra-conservative. He was so much so, and was so incompetent also, that his administration became decidedly rickety. Finally, in an effort to stall off revolution, Gen. Primo de Rivera, one of Alfonso's military men (as reactionary as Alfonso himself, but with more ginger), set up a dictatorship. It did not displace Alfonso. It was something like the situation in Italy, where Dictator Mussolini is the recognized boss, with King Victor remaining as a mere figurehead.

It was too late, though. After three or four years the radicals chucked Rivera, plus Alfonso, into the discard and established what they called a republic.

They certainly WERE radicals. I knew Spain very well in later pre-World war days. The then anti-government party was dominated by the anarchists. Those were the men who came into power. Anarchists are quite unlike nazis or fascists. They often are confused with communists; as a matter of fact the two philosophies are downright hostile to each other.

Strange as it may seem, the average anarchist has a lovable personality. He tosses explosives rather liberally, but he has high ideals—too high for the world we live in. His theory is that, if we all were real brethren, we should not need any troublesome, interfering, expensive governments.

Now, when I say that anarchists ran Spain during the post-Alfonso-Rivera era I mean just that. Newspaper readers will have noticed that, following the Franco rebels' conquest of Catalonia, their first job has been the "cleaning up" of the anarchists. Just so, anarchists have been pretty thick all over Spain, but in Catalonia, and especially in Barcelona, its provincial capital, they have been as numerous as Tammanyites in Manhattan ever were.

Who is Franco?
What, then, is Franco's program?
He is a conservative rebel against radicalism, certainly. But is he trying simply to get back to rationality? Or is he a tool of fascism, backed by nazi-ism?

Undoubtedly he represents a reversion from anarchy — which most of us, tolerant as we may be, regard as too much of a good thing for the present.

Maybe he wants to revert too far, however.

Even Alfonso and Primo de Rivera were not as intolerant as Herr Hitler is. Does Franco want to become as 100 per cent a dictator as Hitler?—or, possibly, is he willing to become a dictator who is dictated to by Hitler and Mussolini?

Washington does not know enough about the general to be sure on these points.

It may not be any of our business. Yet it is, indirectly.

Portugal is stirred into the equation. It is just a piece of a country on the western edge of Spain. Nevertheless it is extremely totalitarian. It used to be very democratic. It was darned radical when it overthrew King Manuel a scant generation ago. But today it is a dictatorship—pro-Hitler and pro-Mussolini.

Query:
Who cares for all that?
Why, Spain and Portugal, as colonial powers, control the South African west coast opposite to South America's east coast, and are a great deal nearer to it than any of Uncle Sam's ports are to sub-equatorial South America.

Who cares for that too? Spain and Portugal?

Yeah! But suppose that Spain and Portugal provide jumping-off places from the Southwest African bases for German and Italian naval and aerial activities in eastern South America's direction!

It might develop into quite a fret to Uncle Samuel.

Decidedly a Suspect

General Franco has become decidedly a suspect to Yankee diplomacy and naval strategists.

We do not know him at all well. Perhaps he is a democrat—but we are afraid he is not. We have not got him sized up in the slightest. We have not had any relations with him. We have assumed that he is a pure rebel. Now it appears that he is a government.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., finds herself involved in a murder mystery when first the eccentric old lady and later, her middle-aged daughter-in-law are found dead under the same hair drier.

Elsie was attending each at the time, though out of the salon for a few moments before discovering the old lady's death. A string of emeralds, belonging to Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., are strangely missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family, and some of the house guests, strike Elsie as queer.

Phil Benson, newspaper reporter and close friend of Elsie's, arrives as the police launch their investigation. He immediately phones for Mac McIntyre, head of the Chicago homicide squad, who happens to be in town. Meanwhile Richard and Daphne Witherspoon, children of the second victim, conduct themselves oddly during questioning.

The chief of police continues his interrogation of all those at the Manor when the two deaths occurred. Elsie, Benson and McIntyre discuss the possible suspects. No trace of poison is found in the body of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon. J. Making a secret investigation of the beauty salon, Phil and Elsie come upon a bit of cigaret tissue which has the smell of bitter almonds. Suddenly something strikes Phil on the head. When he recovers a few seconds later the cigaret tissue is gone.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
IN SPITE OF THE fact that I knew I would not sleep a wink, I crawled into bed and slept dreamlessly all the night. In the morning, with the sun shining, I felt better. At nine o'clock, according to schedule, I opened the salon. I thought it highly improbable that the beauty business would be rushing—an unexplained death is apt to put a damper on the vainest woman's vanity—but I had been hired to operate the salon and I intended to carry out my part of the bargain.

Around the middle of the morning I heard a car chugging up the drive. It was Phil's Ford, with Phil himself at the wheel and a strange man seated beside him. I ran down the front stairs like a mad woman. Hawkins was opening the door.

"Hi, there, Elsie!" shouted Phil. He was bubbling over with cheer and good spirits. "This is Mac McIntyre," he added, and I looked up into a pair of the bluest eyes I had ever seen.

"So this is Elsie Ritter!" Mac McIntyre said, and his blue eyes began to twinkle. I could not say a thing; I was stricken dumb with surprise. Mac McIntyre, as a detective, was a shock and a disappointment. He was a tall, gangling figure of a man with long arms that dangled from his coat sleeves and long legs that dangled from his trouser cuffs. Scrubbed and pressed and dressed in his Sunday best, he reminded me of a farmer in town for the day. Somehow I expected to see the hayseed clinging to his hair.

Not that Mac looked especially dumb, or especially bright, for that matter. But he did not look like my idea of a Chicago man-eater!

"Will I do?" he asked, and I blushed to the roots of my red hair. I had been guilty of staring at him.

"Don't let Mac kid you," Phil said. "He's a notorious lady killer. In Chicago, they say, he owns the finest collection of etchings a chorus girl was ever invited to inspect!"

I smiled uncertainly and extended my hand. One of us was being taken for a ride, and I had a hunch it was little Elsie.

"Did you wish to see someone?" Hawkins addressed Phil.

"I'd like to see Mr. Horace Witherspoon, Benson of the Times."

"Mr. Witherspoon is at breakfast. Will you wait in the library?"

"I will. Thanks." And to Mac and me: "Come along, gang."

We followed Hawkins along the corridor into the library. I could hardly wait for the butler to get out of sight, to ask the questions that were seething through my rattled brain. "Phil, did you find anything?"

He glanced swiftly around the room. "I found plenty, Elsie," he said softly. "I found murder!"

"I want you to begin at the beginning and tell the whole story as you remember it," said Mac McIntyre, as we sat waiting for Mr. Horace to appear. "Don't skip a thing because you think it's not important; in a murder case everything is important. Everything!"

"All right," I settled myself more comfortably in an armchair before the fireplace. "I'll try. But first, for Pete's sake, tell me something! How was Mrs. Horace killed?"

Mac grinned wickedly. "Perhaps we have been a little lax, Elsie. Suppose you explain, Benson. After all, it's your show."

"Anything to oblige a lady," Phil said, passing around the cigarets. "You see, baby, it was this way: Didmore performed a second and more thorough autopsy this morning. This time he knew what he was looking for—and he found it, cyanide!"

"Cyanide! I thought that was a gas!"

"It's a poison that works as a gas. Taylor knew what it was the minute I explained the circumstances we discussed last night. He gave me all the dope. This is the way cyanide works: a tiny pinch of the stuff kills, and kills instantly, and because such a small amount is required to cause death, it is difficult to detect by autopsy. Didmore found minute traces in the heart and lungs."

He continued: "Cyanide, as I said, works as a gas. It is really an acid, and this acid forms gas, or fumes, which enter the heart and lungs and suffocate the victim. Even when taken internally, Taylor says, the action is the same."

"And the odor?"

"Bitter almond! And the beauty of it is that the odor lasts only a short while. Had you raised the hood 10 minutes sooner than you did the odor would have been quite marked. As it was, you got only a faint whiff, enough to make you sneeze."

"But—I was still puzzled—how was the cyanide used in this case?"

"Simple, darling. Here's the way I figure it: The murderer fastened a pinch of the poison to the inside of the drier hood by means of the tissue and adhesive strips. Previously he had disconnected three of the driers to insure his victim choosing the right one. All unsuspected, you, Elsie, tied the victim into the contraction and threw the switch. Almost immediately the air fanned the paper, the cyanide formed its poisonous gas and presto! the thing was done. Later the paper and tape were removed. A practically foolproof murder device!"

"How awful! Why—why, I killed Mrs. Horace! I killed her!"

"You made an obliging tool for me said. 'The whole thing was ingeniously planned and carried out. And that's the bait of it! All X had to do was to bait the trap. No time alibi was needed, for X didn't have to be on the spot to commit the crime!'"

"A very clever one, our X," added Mac. "If you, Elsie, hadn't found that scrap of paper, and if the person who stole it had let well enough alone instead of drawing our attention to its importance—"

"But I found that paper before Mrs. Horace was killed!"

"I know. Your tissue had nothing to do with her death. Your tissue held the poison that killed Mrs. Witherspoon, senior."

I shuddered. "Then she was murdered?"

"The detective nodded. 'We are practically certain that she did not die a natural death. However, until the body is exhumed and an autopsy performed, we are forced to assume that she died of a heart attack. In the meantime we will concentrate on the daughter-in-law's death.'"

"I see," I said, and strangely enough I felt neither shock nor horror. Perhaps I was becoming inured to both. Somehow the fact that the dead body of Mrs. Witherspoon, so recently laid to rest, was to be taken from the ground—rude and unceremoniously dug from the ground to be dissected and discussed upon a cold marble slab in the middle of the night—affected me not at all. Perhaps, I found myself thinking, perhaps in a little while I shall regard murder without fear or emotion, seeing it as a game of hide-and-seek, with the murderer at one base and ourselves at the other. Funny, what you can get used to—is that not what they once said of the men in the trenches?"

"Now, Elsie," McIntyre interrupted my reverie. "Suppose you begin at the beginning and tell me a few things."

"What is it you want to know?"

"Everything. Everything that has happened in this house since your arrival."

"I'll try," I said, and began my story. When I had finished Mac's face was grave.

"A queer outfit, these Witherspoons!" he mused. "Each one of them hiding something—"

"Daphne knows plenty!" put in Phil. "Without half trying I could build up a sweet case against her."

"She isn't guilty!" I flared. "She couldn't be—her own mother!"

"Matricide isn't so uncommon." "Rubbish! Daphne was crazy about her mother. Anyone could see that!"

Phil argued: "But if Mrs. Horace suspected her—"

I snorted: "Mothers don't suspect their daughters, and even if they do, they don't give them away to the police! I'd as soon suspect Mr. Horace!"

"I'm considering him, too," Phil returned, unperturbed. "My mind is open—"

"And empty!" I added dryly. McIntyre guffawed: "So you two are already disagreeing!"

"Elsie is a sentimentalist," Phil said. "According to her none of the Witherspoons could have done the deed."

"I'm not!" I denied furiously. "Children! Children!" cried Mac. "Remember you aren't married yet!"

We grinned sheepishly. (To Be Continued)

Believe Professional Campus Thieves Made Greek Thefts

Warns Groups Of Laxity Of Open Windows

Chief Bender Says Breakins Are Being Probed Thoroughly

With breakins at the Phi Mu and Alpha Xi Delta sororities Friday night as the climax, the epidemic of fraternity and sorority robberies which has occurred during the past two weeks is being intensively investigated, Chief of Police W. H. Bender reported last night.

"The police investigations," Chief Bender declared, "discount the possibility that these robberies have been committed by local persons.

"Professional campus thieves," he explained, "who travel from one college town to another and rob sororities, fraternities and churches are suspected in the local thefts. These thieves work quickly and are generally far from the scene of the robbery before it is even discovered or reported to the police."

University sororities and fraternities were warned yesterday by Chief Bender to lock all doors and windows during meal-times and to keep upper-story windows locked at all times, especially the windows near the fire escapes.

At the Phi Mu house, 111 E. Church street, Violet Haisman, C3 of Ft. Atkinson, reported to the police Friday night that her purse containing $3, a compact and other valuables had been taken from the sorority house Thursday evening.

The loot at the Alpha Xi Delta sorority, 114 E. Fairchild street, included two purses containing fountain pens, $2 and compact belonging to Julia Haring, A2 of Camanche, and Eunice VanZwol, C4 of Paullina.

Both thefts occurred between members were eating dinner in the basement dining rooms. The front door at the Phi Mu house and a second floor window near a fire escape at the Alpha Xi Delta house were the means by which the thieves entered.

Robberies of other sorority and fraternity houses reported to police during the last two weeks and 7 p.m. while the sorority have been at the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and the Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternities. Losses from these breakins totaled $50 in cash, four suits, two overcoats, two watches and five purses containing glasses, pens and compacts.

Mr. Conklin was stricken while at work in a downtown building at 11 a.m. yesterday. He died before reaching the hospital.

He had been working as a university janitor for the last 14 years.

Born Nov. 5, 1864, in New Jersey, Mr. Conklin moved to a farm near West Liberty while still young.

Survivors include his wife, Elizabeth; two sons, Frank Conklin, Kalona, and Clinton Conklin, Mt. Vernon; one daughter, Mrs. C. R. Gates, West Branch; and five grandchildren. One daughter preceded him in death.

Plans Hawkeye Beauty Contest

To eliminate prejudice from the selection of Hawkeye beauties for the year, John Evans, editor of the Hawkeye yearbook, announces tentative plans for this year's beauty contest.

Three university women representing the sorority, town and dormitory organizations, were appointed by University Women's association as an advisory committee to work with Mr. Evans.

This committee includes Era Haupt, A4 of Marshalltown, representative of the sororities and one of last year's Hawkeye beauties, Hermina Brandt, C4 of West Liberty, representative of the dormitories, and Ellen Christensen, A4 of Sergeant Bluff, representative of the town girls.

This year for the first time, the beauty will be chosen in person. Before, pictures of the contestants have been sent away for judging.

P. R. Farris Will Speak At Trade Council Convention Here

Council Will Lay Plans For Fighting WPA Job Invasion

P. R. Farris, Council Bluffs, president of the Iowa State Building and Construction Trades council will speak before a state convention of Iowa trades councils at the local building union hall here today. First session is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock this morning.

The purpose of the meeting, Farris said, was to lay definite plans in combatting "WPA's invasion of the construction field." Contending that all building should be left to private corporations, Farris will disclose his ideas concerning possibilities of a definite settlement.

Harry Morse, Iowa City Building trades official, said that five delegates are expected from each of the following cities: Council Bluffs, Waterloo, Des Moines, Sioux City, Ottumwa, Burlington, Davenport, Dubuque, Muscatine, Ames, Marshalltown, Mason City.

The meeting, Morse said, will continue until all business is completed. If plans are not finished by tonight, he added, the meeting will be continued tomorrow.

'Krause's Book Has Promise'

Novel Brings Scene of Harsh Mid-Western Farm Life to View Realistically

By MERLE MILLER

Herb Krause has written a book that has both promise and fulfillment, more, probably, of the former than the latter.

"Wind Without Rain" is sometimes gripping, once in a while almost unbearably realistic and grim, occasionally mediocre.

Yet the novel cannot be forgotten, certainly can't be dismissed as just another first novel.

It suffers under a terrific handicap as well. Readers of 1939 A. D. are likely to be a little weary of any novel of harsh, mid-western farm life, good or bad.

It is the story of Johan Vildvogel, cruel to his wife, browbeating his sons, entirely without loveliness or humanity. It is the story of the wife who tries to shield and understand her sons. Especially it is the story of Franz, who plays waltzes and melodies on his fiddle that his father despises, whose chores are endless, who even on his wedding night falls asleep too exhausted to take off his clothes or wash himself.

These people are real beings; they are characters that live. They are men and women that love them or hate them, try to forget them.

Out of all the artificial praise that accompanies a novel, a novel, written as a requirement for a Ph.D. degree, Herb Krause has emerged with a first-class piece of work. Good, frankly not great.

Sometimes, for example, the figures of speech which sprinkle every page are forced and unnatural; once in a while they are precisely placed. One might have wished there were fewer of them.

And the ending, although not as weak, suffers from the same general fault as George Abbe's novel; it seems too much the half-hearted attempt at a Hollywood tragedy with a paper-mache sun shining through painted clouds.

All of which finishes up trivially compared with the unputting tenseness of most of Mr. Krause's prose, of his poetic speech and of his imagination.

If Herb Krause keeps humble and writes a second novel that's better than his first and a third that's better than his second, he'll
