

'Halt Hitler' Movement Gains Momentum as Nations Plan To Unite on Common Front

Conference Or Declaration Is Expected Soon

Britain, France And Soviet Russia Will Probably Head Move

By The Associated Press
A "halt Hitler" movement gained momentum yesterday in uneasy Europe.

A common front headed by Britain, France and Soviet Russia, and possibly including Rumania, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Poland was regarded a virtual certainty.

The line-up against the German fuhrer's expansion aims was expected to take the form either of an international conference or an anti-aggression declaration.

Russia was said to have proposed an international conference of democratic powers to draft a common policy.

Reliable quarters said Britain made a counter-proposal for a three power declaration in which the other states might join.

In the midst of all the talk, President Lebrun of France signed Premier Daladier's first "dictatorial" decrees to bolster the nation's armed might.

Chief among the decrees were those providing the addition of between 150,000 and 200,000 reservists to the army, a new north African force, immediate increase of officers and non-commissioned officers in the standing army and a boost from 45 to 60 hours the limit on the work week in national defense industries.

An early German-Memel union was foreseen in Berlin following a conference between the Nazi and Lithuanian foreign ministers.

The Memel diet, or Landtag, meets Saturday, and the expectation in Berlin was that the dominant Nazis in that body would pave the way for another Hitler coup by raising the cry, "back to the Reich."

Germany meanwhile called home her ambassador to France, countering France's action last week in summoning her envoy to Berlin.

The United States sent Germany a note refusing to recognize the legitimacy of Nazi Czechoslovakia.

Rumania, which appeared ready to concede German economic concessions but not surrender her political rights, was stimulated by the lively concern of Britain and France over her predicament. Enthusiasm was manifested in Bucharest over the news that Britain was sending a trade delegation.

In political circles it was intimated Rumania's fluid politics, as a result, might result in a change from dictatorship in which power is largely vested in the crown, to a more democratic regime.

Hungary concentrated more than half her 600,000 armed forces on the Rumanian border and in Carpatho-Ukraine, for "defensive purposes."

At Ungvar, new capital of Carpatho-Ukraine, the flag of czarist Russia again was raised as the newly annexed territory became autonomous under Hungary.

Seek Approval Of Agreement To End Strike

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—John L. Lewis announced tonight a tentative agreement, subject to approval by the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., newspaper guild unit, to end a 5-1-2 months old strike on three Wilkes-Barre newspapers that suspended publication last October.

The agreement was concluded by representatives of the newspapers and of the guild after four days of closed discussions here. Terms were not disclosed by Lewis, the CIO president, who acted as spokesman and advisor to the negotiators.

Representatives of the guild planned to leave for Wilkes-Barre immediately to present the proposed contract to the local unit, probably tomorrow.

HASTE—WASTE

Robber Grabs $1,675, Yet Loses $250

ALLENSTOWN, Pa., March 20 (AP)—A man grabbed $1,675 from a counter of the Allenstown national bank today while a teller was answering a telephone.

The call apparently was from a confederate of the robber who disappeared in a crowded street. In his haste he dropped $250.

Slovaks Seize Cars of Jews

Newspaper Prazsky List Demands Jews Be Fined $300,000

PRAGUE, March 20 (AP)—An anti-Semitic campaign was under way today in Slovakia and acquired portion of greater Germany in this newly acquired portion of greater Germany with confiscation of Jews' automobiles and demands for a forced loan from Jews.

The general staff of the Hlinka guards (Slovak storm troops) seized Jewish-owned automobiles and trucks in Slovakia and placed them at the disposal of guardsmen. Only where urgent need could be shown were exemptions made.

The newspaper Prazsky List, known for its anti-Semitism, demanded that Jews be made to pay 10,000,000 crowns ($300,000) "because they have robbed the Czech people for 20 years."

It declared that "Czechs were forced to work for Jews while they lived in luxury and the Czech people starved" and concluded: "therefore we demand a forced loan from all Jews of at least 10,000,000 crowns."

Meanwhile, secret police notified foreign legations that no permits would be issued for Jewish men to leave the country. No objections, however, were being made to the departure of women and children.

Retail stores were doing a rush business. Some locked their doors when the crush of customers became too great. Many of the purchasers were German soldiers, who emerged loaded with bundles.

Wholesale cloth merchants said their supplies had dwindled to almost zero since last Wednesday.

Nazis started 35 soup kitchens with the "Bavarian assistance train," a huge automobile train equipped to serve 30,000 meals at once.

Driver's Seat 'Garner Leads' Says F. D. R.'s Son

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 20 (AP)—Vice-president Garner was described as "in the driver's seat right now, well in the lead as a likely democratic candidate for the presidency in the 1940 elections" by Elliott Roosevelt in his semi-weekly broadcast tonight.

Announcing a "custom" under which he will occasionally discuss Texas citizens who have influenced state, national and world affairs, the son of President Roosevelt selected for the first of the series Vice-president Garner and Fred H. Vahlsing, at present of New York City, who operates a 10,000-acre truck garden in the Rio Grande valley.

Young Roosevelt stressed Garner's simple home life at Uvalde, his reticence toward public speaking, and the power he carries in legislative matters, a power which grew steadily from the time Garner went to congress in 1903.

Commenting on differences between President Roosevelt and Garner, the young Roosevelt remarked:

"There is little room for doubt that Mr. Garner and the president of the United States have traveled separate roads since the winter of 1937."

Modifications Sought
NEW YORK, (AP)—Stock exchange circles expressed gratification last night over the offer of the securities commission to hold "round table" discussion on Wall street proposals for modifying some of the SEC market regulations.

Rumania To Study Britain's Trade Action

Would 'About-Face' From Dictatorship To Trade Freedom

BUCHAREST, March 20 (AP)—An about-face in Rumanian politics — from modified dictatorship back to a more democratic regime — appeared likely tonight as political leaders studied an announcement suggesting that Britain might buy more Rumanian products.

News from London that Britain would send a trade mission to Bucharest caused great excitement in official circles.

To Rumania increased trade with Britain would mean political independence.

The London announcement came after completion of a new Rumanian-German trade agreement, but it appeared now the signing of the pact would be deferred as a result of the British initiative.

"The British action places an entirely new face on the whole situation," an official of the Rumanian press department said.

Leaders who for weeks have been waging a forlorn campaign to resist German economic dominance were greatly encouraged. They have been negotiating with the German economic expert, Dr. Helmut Wollhat, who came here to arrange the new agreement between Germany and Rumania.

The first impression was that an economic deal with Germany still would be made, but that the British action placed Rumania in an infinitely better bargaining position.

This morning many feared Rumania would be obliged to resign herself to the position of a virtual German colony.

The indication later in the day that Britain would become a customer for Rumanian wheat and oil, however, revived hopes that Rumania would be able to retain her economic and political independence.

It was pointed out the prospect of more English trade had been Rumania's trump card throughout negotiations with Germany.

Figures revealed that, without a favorable trade agreement, English purchases in Rumania had been increasing the past few months. In January and February Britain supplanted Germany as Rumania's best customer.

Syrian Citizens Stone French

DAMASCUS, Syria, March 20 (AP)—French troops moved into the streets of Syria's disorderly cities today under an order from Paris to take all police powers from the Syrian government.

Demonstrators in Damascus stoned the troops as they marched into the bazaar quarter, but order soon was restored. Soldiers were placed at strategic centers and before all government buildings.

The military occupation followed upon renewed rioting by Syrians angered over France's failure to ratify the 1936 treaty giving full independence to Syria, which is an autonomous state under French mandate.

In Damascus mobs attacked Syrian police and the police opened fire. There was an undetermined number of dead and wounded among the rioters.

Gabriel Puaux, French high commissioner, notified the Syrian president, Hashem Bek el Attassy, that the French military occupation would be only temporary.

Farm Youth Tries To Kill Cow; Shoots His Brother Instead

EMMETSBURG, March 20 (AP)—Howard Stillman, 20, a farm youth, was seriously wounded near here today.

He was holding a cow by a rope so that his brother, Charles, might shoot it for butchering. The cow moved and the rifle bullet struck the youth in the thigh and lower abdomen.

W. O. Douglas Nominated By Roosevelt For High Tribunal

Chairman of SEC Receives Approval Of Republican And Democrat Senators

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—William O. Douglas, who Horatio Alger career carried him up the ladder of farm hand and struggling student to the post of chief regulator of Wall street, was nominated for the supreme court today by President Roosevelt.

Just past 40 years of age, the chairman of the securities commission will become, if confirmed, the youngest supreme court justice since Joseph Story of Massachusetts took his seat on the tribunal in 1812 at the age of 32.

There was not doubt tonight on Capitol Hill that he would be confirmed with ease. Many senators hastened to express their approval.

The hardest thing said about Douglas was that he was not a western resident. That section is now unrepresented on the court and there had been demands that this situation be corrected.

While there was a bit of disapproval among some western senators, they for the most part indicated approval of the choice.

In fact, Senator McNary of Oregon, the republican floor-leader, called the appointment "excellent" and said he was "confident that confirmation will be given without any undue delay or objection."

Douglas was at his desk in the SEC building when the nomination was announced. Jerome Frank, a member of the commission, informed him of his promotion and told him the "president couldn't have done better." Douglas, himself, would make no comment for publication, but he yielded to the importunings of cameramen and posed for pictures at the end of the commission's long conference table, once leaning far back in his chair with his feet on the table. He appeared to enjoy the informality of the pose.

The appointment was rated a "victory" for the "inner circle" of more aggressive new dealers. But it was, in addition, a victory for men of such viewpoint as Senator Borah (R-Idaho), who has differed with the new deal on many questions.

To Borah, in fact, was entrusted an important phase of the preliminary work some weeks ago. Western senators, already disappointed during this session by the appointment of Felix Frankfurter of Massachusetts, were conducting their drive for the choice of a man from their area. Douglas was born in Minnesota and reared in California and Oregon, but his adult career had been in the east. Borah quietly eased the way with his western colleagues.

At one point it was proposed that due to his western background, Douglas be named as coming from the west, but Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.), always in the know and listened to when supreme court appointments are pending, stepped on that particular strategy.

Foreign Circles Foresee Early Memel Return To Herr Hitler

Desire To Join Nazi Nation To Be Put To Formal Vote Of 150,000 Residents

BERLIN, March 20 (AP)—Well-informed foreign circles foresaw tonight the likelihood of an early return of the Memel territory to rapidly expanding Germany.

The impression prevailed that Memel's 150,000 residents would join the Nazi nation as soon as they put their desire in the form of a formal vote.

The Memel Laddtag (parliament) meets Saturday.

This expectation of German-Memel union followed upon a conference here between the foreign ministers of Germany and Lithuania.

Count Johannes von Welzel, German ambassador to Paris, meanwhile was ordered "to return to Berlin to report," countering France's action last week in summoning back to Paris the French ambassador to Berlin, Robert Coulondre.

Calling home of the German ambassadors to Paris and London — Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, ambassador to London, was summoned home Saturday — and rejection Saturday of British and French protests against German occupation of Bohemia and Moravia "is not a mere formality," Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz, information service of the foreign office, said tonight.

It adds that "the summons to the ambassadors expressed the displeasure of the Reich government at the attitude, especially that of Britain, toward solution of the Czech-Slovak question."

"The attitude of the British press and the utterances of British politicians and the British prime minister have caused extraordinary resentment," the service continued. "Germany has at the request of the legal Czech-Slovak government cleared up a situation that was unbearable, especially to Germany, and has arranged an affair which concerned Germany exclusively."

"England has responded to this, in speeches and in the press, with incitements which in their lack of responsibility toward European cooperation can hardly be surpassed."

"The attempt to mobilize Rumania by means of lies and to start with this state a new Benes course of policy against Germany can only be described as criminal."

(Dr. Eduard Benes was president of pre-Munich Czechoslovakia.)

Various travelers reaching Berlin from the northeast of Europe at the same time reported troop movements.

Juozas Urbys, 42-year-old foreign minister of Lithuania, spent 45 minutes with German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, pivotal executor of Chancellor Hitler's strategy.

Memel is a strip of land of 1,099 square miles detached from the north side of Germany's east Prussia by the treaty of Versailles.

U.S. Sends Note to Germany Refusing Recognition of Reich Protectorate in Czechoslovakia

Rep. Cox Slaps Lobbyist For WPA Workers

Tactics of Workers Alliance Spokesman Anger Southerner

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Angered by the tactics of a workers alliance representative taking part in a drive for the administration's $150,000,000 relief appropriation, Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) slapped the man in the face today in a house of representatives corridor.

The alliance representative, a white man whose name was not learned, called Cox from the house floor, eye witnesses said. Indicating two Negroes who were with him, he informed the congressman they were constituents and wanted his support for the WPA fund.

Cox was said to have told the alliance spokesman his companions would be better off behind a plow back in Georgia, and that the matter of how he should vote was for his own determination.

The alliance representative was quoted as saying: "That isn't satisfactory and we'll remember it at the next election."

Cox, witnesses said, slapped the man's face and told him to "remember that, too."

The alliance, a union of relief workers, said that about 100 delegates from its units in 13 southern states had come to Washington to urge their congressmen to vote the additional WPA appropriation requested by President Roosevelt.

"Their main purpose is to make sure that the votes of the southern congressmen do not defeat the voting of additional WPA funds and therefore make necessary the discharge of more than 1,250,000 WPA workers throughout the nation," the alliance said.

A subcommittee of the house appropriations committee now is considering the question of the $150,000,000, which represents the sum congress cut earlier this year from a $875,000,000 appropriation sought by the administration. The committee expects to conclude hearings Wednesday and may report the bill soon after.

Some members said there was considerable sentiment in the committee for a "compromise appropriation" of $100,000,000 to $125,000,000.

Col. F. C. Harrington, the WPA administrator, advised state WPA officials today that 400,000 WPA workers would have to be dropped from the rolls in the week beginning April 3 if no more funds were appropriated. He also fixed the number to be dropped in each state.

Chain Store Bill Deferred

Graduated Tax Bill Cited as Pressure Group Legislation

DES MOINES, March 20 (AP)—Despite pressure from an independent merchant delegation, an unyielding Iowa senate today postponed consideration of anti-chain store legislation until Thursday.

The 31-to-17 vote to defer prevented a roll call on a motion to pull a graduated chain store tax bill out of sifting committee and to place it before the senate for prompt consideration.

A special committee will attempt to rewrite the bill, combining it with features of another senate bill which would revise the method of assessing chain store merchandise stocks.

If the new committee is not ready with its bill by 10:15 a.m. Thursday, under terms of today's agreement, the original motion to withdraw senate file 17, the graduated tax bill, will be up for consideration again.

Senators Edward Breen (D), Fort Dodge, and A. J. Shaw (R), Pocahontas, led the unsuccessful fight to have the upper house consider chain store legislation today.

E. P. Donohue (R), New Hampton, majority floor leader and chairman of the senate sifting committee, headed the opposition and offered the substitute motion to defer action until Thursday.

The independent merchants filled the galleries and overflowed upon the floor of the senate.

The graduated tax bill was branded as "pressure group legislation."

"I think you independent merchants are being misled," Senator E. P. Corwin (R), Pritland (Muscatine), declared.

'Stop Hitler' Drive Formed

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—Joint efforts by Britain, France, Soviet Russia and any other willing nations to unite in a common front against any German aggression were regarded in diplomatic quarters tonight as a virtual certainty.

The "stop Hitler" drive, which may involve nine European powers, was expected to take the form either of an international conference or an anti-aggression declaration by Britain, France and Russia.

The soviet union was said to have proposed an international conference of democratic powers to draft a common policy in the face of Germany's expanding empire.

Reliable quarters said Britain had countered with a proposal for a three-power declaration in which other states might join and predicted that either one or the other plan would be adopted.

Emergence of the two suggestions as a likely course of European opposition to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's eastward expansion followed British efforts to weld a European front and her independent steps against German imperialism.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons that Britain's huge rearmament program, which started as a plan to spend $7,500,000,000 in five years, again would be renewed.

Welles Recalls Czech Minister To Washington

Bland Introduces Bill To Authorize Plans Of National Defense

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The United States, in a note to Germany, refused tonight to recognize Hitler's coup in Czechoslovakia.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, sent the note to the German embassy a few hours after ordering the American legation in Prague closed. He called back to Washington Wilbur J. Carr, the American minister to Czechoslovakia.

Contents of the document will be made tomorrow. It acknowledges receipt of the German note of last Friday announcing Hitler's protectorate over Bohemia and Moravia.

It was understood the American note was in the spirit of Welles' emphatic statement last Friday in which he referred to Germany's absorption of Czechoslovakian territory as "temporary."

The dispatch of the note and the closing of the Prague legation were the outstanding events in a day filled with developments here over the Czechoslovakian situation and national defense. Others were:

Chairman Bland (D-Va) of the house merchant marine committee introduced a bill to carry out the war department's recommendation that congress authorize expenditure of $277,000,000 for strengthening the defense and improving the facilities of the Panama canal.

The civil aeronautics authority asked congress for a $7,300,000 appropriation to train civilian pilots, saying that only thus could "the United States adequately safeguard itself against the vast militarization programs now being pressed with fanatical zeal by foreign powers."

Vladimir S. Hurban, the Czech minister, returned from Chicago where he conferred with Eduard Benes, ex-president of Czechoslovakia, and said he would "sit tight" as Czech minister until the United States recognized the legitimacy of Germany's occupation of his country. He indicated this might never be.

Welles endorsed, as a step in the logical direction, the new neutrality bill introduced by Senator Pittman (D-Nev). It would permit "cash and carry" sale of munitions to warring nations.

Secretary Morgenthau said he had no fear of inflation as a result of an influx of gold, sent to this country by Europeans nervous over the tense situation there. He declined, at his press conference, to reply to a question whether the treasury was considering seizing Czech gold in this country for payment of Czech debts.

Harry Francis Cunningham, Washington architect, resigned as associate architect for the proposed new German embassy building here. He said German architects had delayed since last September sending his necessary data and that the events of the last few days were "offensive to my solidly founded American ideals."

Driver's Permit Suspended For 3-Year Period

DES MOINES, March 20 (AP)—The driver's license of Forrest Couch, 17-year-old Des Moines youth, was suspended for three years by Municipal Judge Ralph Powers today. Couch recently was found guilty of reckless driving in connection with the death of Ruth Rogers, 16, who was killed when the car she was driving swerved into a party of young people enroute home from a skating party.

The judge also imposed a 30-day jail sentence on the defendant, but paroled him to his attorney.

Conservation Or Disaster?

THE WARNING cries of the National Wildlife federation are no idle callings of "wolf." Americans know full well the changes that have been wrought in America's wealth through exploitation of our wildlife—both animal and vegetable—and our failures to protect and rebuild.

Iowans have heard before of the economic and aesthetic losses from destruction of wildlife. The founder of the wildlife federation is Jay N. (Ding) Darling, an Iowan, which doubles our interest in the movement.

March 19 to 25 is being celebrated as Wildlife week. The first Wildlife week was observed with the distribution of poster stamps painted and contributed to the federation by Mr. Darling. This year a series of 80 stamps, portraying fish, birds, wildflowers, trees and mammals, are in circulation. They were done by a group of America's outstanding nature painters.

You will hear much for the next several days about conservation activities. Here, however, we want to repeat the message on "Wildlife and Groceries" set forth in the Kiwanis Magazine by Iowa's Mr. Darling.

"We talk conservation," the artist says, "because our minds are gradually absorbing the fact that it means something more than dumping infant fish into lakes and streams, something more than arresting small boys for shooting robins.

"We have, within a scant generation, destroyed in our commercial fisheries, our forests and our marshlands, the means by which millions of families, now supported by public funds, could have sustained themselves had we chosen rational harvesting instead of destructive exploitation.

"Abuse of the topsoil, and of the water resources that enable the topsoil to produce, is one of the bedrock reasons why scientific, large-scale conservation is a necessity if we are to survive and flourish as a nation."

We Need Wisdom And Level-Headedness!

SINCE THE status of the United States in any future world war will depend much, if not entirely, on the neutrality act, it behooves our legislators to be wary of emotional action in approving legislation.

We are inclined to believe that Senator Borah's view is the wisest. The Idaho lion declared Sunday, "I would like to vote for a bill which would prohibit the sale directly or indirectly of all instruments of war to any and all nations engaged in armed conflict."

Senator Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, announced Saturday that he has drafted a resolution to revise the neutrality law so that warring nations can purchase arms in this country if they pay cash and haul them away in their own ships. Under the present law, an embargo on arms shipments to nations engaged in war goes into effect whenever the president finds that a state of war exists.

Neutrality legislation is dangerous. Rapidly changing international policies can cause such legislation to become obsolete and embarrassing almost overnight. The present law has caused administrative confusion in the Sino-Japanese conflict because there was no declaration of war—the law prevented embargoes from going into effect without a formal declaration.

The acts which congress passed in the last four years grew out of the Ethiopian conflict and subsequent threats to European peace. The first act had not been on the statute books long before the Spanish war broke out and confronted the administration and congress with a new situation: the act had provided neutrality only for "war between or among two or more foreign states."

The resolution of January, 1937, which cut off shipments of arms to Spain caused opposition from Republican Spain sympathizers. That, of course, raises a question: should we be sympathetic to the underdog? Again, we believe with Senator Borah that such sympathy, out and out discrimination as it is, would increase the danger of America being drawn into a conflict.

There is a more important question, too. Should we, through neutrality legislation, discriminate against the totalitarian powers, in favor of our natural allies, Britain and France? Pittman's revisions, with which congress now concerns itself, are offered to leave the American markets open for these nations in event of war. The nature of his resolution, however, assumes Britain's navy will control the sea.

The history of American efforts at neutrality begins with pronouncements made by Washington. Every conflict since has shown up inadequacies in the laws of the time.

Today's troubled European situation should make us fully aware of the importance of the measures now being considered. Complete neutrality would seem most desirable, yet is probably impossible. Loopholes for rapid change of policy must be left, yet these loopholes can act to make the act utterly worthless. In the end, we can depend only upon the wisdom of our administration and legislature and upon their level-headedness amid chaos.

Those small nations so eager to jump on Hitler's band wagon may discover that it isn't a wagon at all—but a cage.

The Ides of March are gone and now Uncle Sam must wait 12 more months before he hits the jackpot again.

Maybe the reason there are so many nazi spies over here is that they are studying the new theater of general Goering.

A good definition for America might be a place where people not only think for themselves but are permitted to.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

NAZI EDUCATION

American university students might well chalk up another point in favor of democracy. In the future, according to an announcement from Germany, entrance to higher education institutions will be possible only through selection by the nazi party acting through its student organizations.

Because of this law, the German student must be recommended by a student organization before he can gain entrance to a university. Naturally only students in sympathy with nazi party will be selected and students with independent political thoughts or of non-Aryan descent will not be given the privilege of attending institutions of higher learning.

The announcement serves to point out vividly the fact that the German system of education, since it is under the absolute control of a political party, has many serious defects. Under the present regime, students holding their interest in research and study above their interest in disfavor. Also, German universities will not turn out as great a quantity of students as under normal conditions because only students with "correct" political beliefs will be allowed to attend schools of higher education.

The type of knowledge the students get in school will not be of as high standards as formerly for many able and distinguished professors have left the country because of nazism, being replaced by less brilliant men.

Announcements like this should make American university students thankful that they live in a democratic country where all students can obtain higher education. The introduction of the system in Germany is unfortunate, but at the same time it has the value of reminding the American student that he is given a way of schooling which too often he does not appreciate.

HEAVY, HEAVY—!

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

These are the days, of course, when day by day, events will continue to take on an aspect of all black and all white. But human movements have a habit of being alternate colors, dark and light greys.

I'm speaking of Europe. . . . I have just been reading Pierre Van Paassen's "Days of Our Years," a book which he wrote after living a lifetime of introspect and adventure in Europe. . . . It's violently prejudiced. . . . Van Paassen hates war, believes that none can ever be justified. . . .

That Frenchman, Pierre Laval, shook his head. . . . He would not even place Bruening's request for a loan or a moratorium. . . . He lead the German chancellor to the door with an expression of adieu. . . .

As Van Paassen writes, "It was a sunny day in Paris when Pierre Laval signed the death warrant of the German republic. . . .

And so, these days, as they paint a Black Nazi Germany and the white lamb that is France, remember those words. . . .

Also the words of Leon Blum in Paris in 1937. . . . "Do you not think my heart bleeds when I see what is going on in Spain? . . . But every time we make a move to help Madrid, we receive a warning from Downing street that if we become involved in a war with Germany and Italy we must not count on England's support."

Van Paassen's ending I might pass on. . . . "In a world situation which seems to lack all logic there are a great many unpredictable and unforeseeable. . . . The muzzled and propaganda-drugged peoples may yet awaken from their stupor and ask the meaning of the huge armament campaigns and take their fate and the fate of their avowed and unavowed fascists and put an end to the monstrous imperialist game of guile, greed and blood and make this bountiful earth a garden for all God's children to walk in. . . .

I feel, with Van Paassen, a note of optimism in the European situation scene this morning. . . .

Tomorrow I thought I'd write about "A Pacifist Looks at Europe."

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—Today's song of Unstinted Admiration is dedicated to a little woman who isn't "important" any more.

Unless you were a movie fan eight or nine years ago, you won't even recognize her name. It's Evelyn Brent. Remember?

I saw her walking across the RKO lot the other day, and a lot of other people saw her too, but nobody looked twice. People look twice only at "important" people.

Stardust gets in the eyes, and they don't see gameness when it walks by in a plain gray suit and plain hat with its chin high. That was Brent—Betty Brent, as her friends call her.

Ten years ago I drove out to see Betty for the first time. She lived at Malibu then, in a big house right on the sand, a big house where Hollywood trooped in and out, paying homage to success. Brent was "big"—star, wealthy, famous. Big.

One day it ended. She wasn't a star any longer. She was broke. She had thought everything was safe. It wasn't. She had to start all over again, just as if she hadn't had a heart-breaking tough time getting to the top. She went on "personal appearance" tours, she made her own way, she kept her chin up.

It's not a new story. What makes it different is that Betty Brent, with every human right to be bitter and sour, isn't. She's doing a picture again. She has a better part in "Second Step" than she's had in years. Dance hall entertainer, tougher than tough, a real "character"—the sort of hard-boiled femme she did so well in "Underworld" and her

EDWARD G. ROBINSON'S CBS "Big Town" drama over CBS at 7 o'clock tonight will expose the counterfeit sweepstakes ticket racket.

Robinson will be supported by a large cast headed by Claire Trevor. During the story, Miss Trevor is about to resign because her editor has broken a dinner date. Before she can quit they become involved with unscrupulous vendors of sweepstakes tickets and romance gets a break.

ANDRE KOSTELANETZ, famous maestro; Clement Wood, noted poet; Arthur W. Brown, celebrated artist, and others will be heard on "If I Had the Chance" over NBC's Blue network at 9 o'clock tonight.

Guest master of ceremonies, battling for the absent Cal Tinney, will be Harry von Zell, announcer for Fred Allen and Phil Baker.

GEORGE JESSEL becomes a permanent master of ceremonies on "For Men Only" beginning with tonight's broadcast, at 7:30 over NBC's Red network.

George bowed in with "The Jessel Jamboree" last Wednesday and did it so well that Ben Gross, writing in the New York Daily News, gave him three stars—the highest any radio performer can get.

So Jessel, who has been away from the networks a long time, comes to the helm of "For Men Only," and will present three famous personages as a start—Actor Noah Beery, Cartoonist Rube Goldberg and Dr. Henry Calvin of the Adventurers' club. Poetess Margaret Fishback will also be on hand.

DICK POWELL'S new show starts at 7:30 tonight over the Columbia network, with Dick replacing Al Johnson as master of ceremonies. It will be known as "The Tuesday Night Party." The first guest star will be brilliant-nosed W. C. Fields.

Diek will head a half hour show of informal chatter and songs, assisted by Parkyakarkus, Martha Raye and Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

WILLIAM POWELL, the Hollywood writer who made "The Thin Man" a picture not only to be remembered but also to be re-done in a thousand different guises, will swap backfence gossip with Bob Hope and Patsy Kelly when he appears as guest on Hope's weekly program at 9 o'clock tonight over NBC's Red network. Skinny Ennis handles the music.

TONIGHT'S SHOWS NBC-RED NETWORK 7—Johnny Presents. 7:30—For Men Only. 8—Battle of the Sexes. 8:30—Fibber McGee. 9—Bob Hope.

A New Yorker at Large

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Jim Farley is one of Washington's most frequent commuters to Manhattan, but unless you know him personally or gain an appointment with him through Mrs. Duffy at headquarters, it is practically impossible to gain a daytime audience with him.

And when you do the chances are you will find him dictating letters to three or four secretaries simultaneously. This is not an exaggeration or a figure of speech. He actually dictates three and four letters at once.

No one knows how frequently he lies between New York and the capital, but he has been known to make the stretch five times in a single week. His energy is amazing. No one ever saw Jim when he looked tired or harassed. He always has a spring in his step and a pleasant countenance.

The elevator boys and the bell hops at his hotel tell me he has an understanding with the management that word of his coming and going is never to be released. They say people who want to see him frequently hang around the lobby for hours, and sometimes for days, waiting for him to step out of an elevator. That apparently is their best bet. The bell hops can't be bribed. If you ask the desk clerks of news of his whereabouts they favor you with a blank expression and say, "Mister, we never heard of him."

"I was sitting in Happy Masefield's Bull Fiddle Inn last night," comments a newly returned correspondent from London, "when a liquor salesman came in. (Remember the salesman in 'Stagecoach')?"

"Happy says, commenting on some good looking girl at the bar,

"Boy, if she could only cook I'd marry her."

"This liquor salesman, a mild looking gink, finished his glass of milk and said:

"Don't ever say that, Happy. I did once, and I regretted it."

"There was a girl who used to come to my bar back in the old days, and I used to say to her, in a joking way, 'Honey, if you could cook and I wasn't already married I'd marry you in a minute.'"

"Well, this girl became my cashier, and I used to tell her, always joking, that I'd marry her if she could cook and I didn't have a wife."

"You know what? That girl learned to cook and then my wife died and she wanted me to marry her. She finally became so insistent that I had to fire her."

"Listen, Happy, don't ever say that, even joking."

General Notices

Health Hints By Logan Clendening, M. D.

When one has been told that he has heart disease—either high blood pressure with consequent heart complications, or an attack of heart pain (angina)—or when a heart murmur meaning valvular disease is discovered in a young person, the decision has to be made as to how to balance, in the future, rest and exercise.

In any discussion of the subject, you hear over and over again the statement made in the most authoritative tones, "The one absolutely essential element in treatment of heart disease, the one sheet anchor of success in its management, is rest." And then, in the next breath, the great authority begins to sing the praises of exercise in heart disease.

Must Be Balanced It sounds contradictory, but, as a matter of fact, it is not necessarily so, because the two things must be balanced. The publicity given the sudden death of some prominent citizen while carrying out any particular effort, such as golf, horseback riding or public speaking, accentuates the belief in the harm of exercise in heart disease. But as my friend, Dr. Louis F. Bishop Jr. of New York, points out, there is no special emphasis put on the occurrence when a man with heart disease dies in bed, where most of them do.

It is well recognized that the aged ill should not be kept in bed, but it has not been sufficiently appreciated that the middle-aged with impaired circulation can also be harmed by too prolonged bed rest.

Two groups of patients with heart disease need especially planned exercise. It is manifestly impossible to limit very much the young person who has been found to have a heart murmur following an attack of inflammatory rheumatism. A boy of 12 is going to play baseball, and when he hits the ball he is going to run to first base as hard as he can, and forget—God bless him!—all about his murmur. And that is what he should do. Exercise is just as good for the heart muscle as for any other muscle in the body. Exercise in such a patient never causes sudden accident. It is good for him and prolongs life.

Two Classes The two classes of patients which exercise must be carefully supervised are those who, after an attack of angina or coronary thrombosis, have had a period of rest and now need to be rehabilitated, and, second, those with high blood pressure and some of its complications.

In the first group, graduated exercise can be begun in bed first with massage, passive movement and respiratory exercises, and following that the resistant exercise of the brothers Schott, The Oetel method of exercise consisting of graded walks carried out at the point where any symptoms such as breathlessness occur. Beginning on a horizontal level, the walks are increased gradually with regard to distance and decline.

For ambulatory patients with high blood pressure, it is difficult to gauge the amount of exercise for which the heart muscle has capacity. Games with intermittent action are obviously preferable—such as croquet, lawn bowls and archery. Golf often falls under the head of intermittent but sometimes of continuous exercise.

CHARLES BOWSER NEW PITT COACH

Takes Position Relinquished By Sutherland

Was Once Grid Star And Honor Student At Pitt Institution

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh's trustees tonight named Charles W. Bowser, an honor student and gridiron star at the institution from 1920 to 1923, to succeed Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland as football coach.

The board also acceded to a request of Chancellor John G. Bowman to appoint a committee to study the "entire situation" at the university in "all its phases" and report to the board as soon as possible.

Sutherland in resigning criticized the school's administration, as did Don F. Saunders, executive secretary of the General Alumni association, who announced his resignation tonight.

Named to the investigating committee were A. E. Braun, banker, A. W. Robertson, of the Westinghouse Manufacturing and Electric company, E. T. Weir, steel master, Norman MacLeod, Leon Falk Jr., E. R. Weidlein and C. W. Reisinger.

Saunders was a close friend of Dr. J. B. Sutherland, who quit recently as football coach. He was graduated in 1929 and after returning to his home town, Sterling, Ill., as secretary of the chamber of commerce for three years, came to Pittsburgh with the alumni association.

Don F. Saunders Resigns Position

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP)—Declaring developments at the University of Pittsburgh have "unquestionably impaired the confidence and the morale" of the alumni, Don F. Saunders tonight resigned as executive secretary of the General Alumni association.

"I feel my services are no longer of value because I have become increasingly unsympathetic to some policies of the university administration which I believe to be detrimental to the best interests of the school and of the alumni," Saunders wrote Earl Crawford, president of the organization.

Saunders was a close friend of Dr. J. B. Sutherland, who quit recently as football coach. He was graduated in 1929 and after returning to his home town, Sterling, Ill., as secretary of the chamber of commerce for three years, came to Pittsburgh with the alumni association.

To Defend Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Meade, manager of Double-Champion Henry Armstrong, announced yesterday that Armstrong will defend his world welterweight title in England May 22 against the winner of the Ernie Broderick-Young Jack Kilrain fight. Meade intends to leave for England April 2, a week after Armstrong's welter title bout with Davey Day, to complete the arrangements.

PAYCHEK FLATTENS OLIVER IN FOURTH

George Falk, Grant Johnson In Mitt Clash

In three bouts, scheduled for this afternoon, the remaining finalists for the all-university boxing championships will be picked. The boxing finals will be a part of the program Thursday night in which all-university wrestling titles will be settled.

Fireworks are guaranteed for the feature brawl of today's card as George Falk, a finalist of last year, tangles with Grant Johnson of Jefferson, for the right to meet Bill Humphrey, fraternity 175-pound champ. Falk, rugged town champion, is rated one of the more dangerous punchers in the tournament, while Johnson, the rangy co-op titleholder, demonstrated punching power last week when he battered Charles Hotle into helplessness to prove his right to continue the tourney.

Other bouts on today's program are the 165-pound clash in which Ervin Chesley of Grover faces Schuler of the Quad, and the 128-pound bout between James Carter, town champion, and Dwight Harley of the Quad.

Spring football practice is in full swing at Northwestern university and Bill is having his first opportunity to fulfill those glowing predictions made for him. But instead of being the sensational youngster he was in 1937 he is just another member of one of the greatest squads in Northwestern history.

De Correvont sincerely wants to make good. If the opinions of two Northwestern coaches are considered, he apparently has a better than 50-50 chance of earning a place on Northwestern's varsity next fall.

"De Correvont will be a fine runner, I'm sure," said Maury Kent, freshman coach. "He is built compactly enough to make a great ball carrier. He did most of his running around the ends in high school, but he'll learn to drive straight next fall."

Head Coach Lynn Waldorf, who watched De Correvont only once or twice last year, had this to say: "He has a lot to learn, but he's eager for knowledge and is a fine prospect. He's a swell kid and we are glad to have him. How good a football player he will be, I don't know, but he'll get every chance to make good."

To make good, Bill will have to fight his way to the top. In addition to 40 candidates coming up from the freshman squad, 78 men are listed as returning from the 1938 roster. Of the nine letter-winners who will not be back, only four could be rated as first stringers, leaving an amazing array of talent.

Boy Wonder Gets Chance DeCorrevont. Prep Grid Flash, Reports For Football Drill

CHICAGO, March 20 (AP)—Bill de Correvont has started "the big push" — and it looks like an uphill climb for him all the way. Less than a year and a half ago, de Correvont was the nation's most widely publicized prep school player. As a halfback at Austin high school in Chicago, he scored 35 touchdowns in 10 games. He looked like a "natural" to go places in the collegiate game.

Spring football practice is in full swing at Northwestern university and Bill is having his first opportunity to fulfill those glowing predictions made for him. Relay Team To Run in Chicago Will Run in Special Match Race At Amphitheater

For most of the members of the Iowa track team, the team which defeated Minnesota for the seventh consecutive time last Saturday, this week end will be a quiet one, but for the mile relay team it will be either a week end of broken records or of disappointment.

The team, holder of the Drake relay record and fourth in the National A. A. U. indoor meet recently, will run a match race on the boards in the Chicago amphitheater Saturday night as part of the Chicago relays.

The quartet of Carl and Fred Teufel, John Graves and Milt Billig, has not run together since the A. A. U. meet when they were timed in 3:19.7.

Coach George Bresnahan had not been informed last night as to the identity of the opponent.

The Minnesota meet last Saturday closed the indoor season. Records show that the Hawks have won 15 out of 19 dual meets in the past 10 years. Leading contributors to the Iowa victory column are Minnesota, 7 of 8, and Chicago, 5 of 5.

Co-Capt. Johnny Graves was the leading Iowa scorer of the indoor season with 23 points. He was closely followed by Ed Elliott with 22 and Milt Billig with 20 1-2.

Frosh Tracksters Win Postal Meets From Wolverines, Bucks

Green, Schnoor In Wins as First Year Men Pile Up Points

Winning postal dual meets is getting to be an old story with the Iowa freshman track team. The squad, one of Coach Ted Swenson's best in years, won two more last week, it was announced today.

The Iowans defeated the Michigan freshmen 60-39 and conquered the Ohio State freshmen 50 1-3 to 39 2-3. The victory over the Wolverines was especially impressive and heartening as the Michigan varsity squads have dominated the Big Ten field for the past few years. The Hawkeye win is a hopeful sign for the future.

In the Michigan meet the Hawks swept the high hurdles and the high jump, Whitehurst and Vollenweider taking the hurdles in 7.9 and Boitcher, Cowden, and Harsha tying for first in the jump with leaps of 5 feet, 8 1-8 inches.

The Iowans were whitewashed in the half mile and could garner only one point in the 440-yard dash.

For the first time this year Carl Schnoor failed to win the mile run as he bowed to Ackerman of Michigan who won in the fast time of 4:28.9. Schnoor came back, however, to take the two mile, at which event he is undefeated.

Bill Green of Iowa was the only double winner in the meet, winning the 60-yard dash in 6.4 and the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet, 10 inches. Hank Vollenweider completed Iowa's list of firsts with a win in the 60-yard low hurdles.

The Hawks only swept one event against the Buckeyes, the mile run. Schnoor won in 4:39.6, followed by Carlson and Matson. Vollenweider won the low hurdles and tied with Whitehurst for first in the high jump.

Schnoor won his specialty, the two mile, and Green took the dash to complete the five firsts the Hawkeyes garnered from the Ohio State runners. The Buckeyes also won five firsts but superior second and third place strength gave the meet to Iowa.

Green failed to win another first in the broad jump because this event was not included on the Ohio State program.

Leading individual scorer in the two meets was Carl Schnoor with 18 points. He took three firsts and a second.

Diamond Team Works Outside Of Fieldhouse

Taking advantage of the mild weather and feeling that it was time for some outside work, Coach Otto Vogel yesterday had his athletes move out of the field house for the first fresh air workout of the year.

With just two weeks remaining before the Hawks make their first start against Millsaps college at Jackson, Miss., the Iowans will find it necessary to accomplish much in the way of conditioning if they are to hold their own with the southerners who have been working under good baseball conditions for some time.

Vogel wasted no time once the men were outside. A batting and fielding drill followed by a four-inning game between a potential regular team and the yannigans kept the candidates busy for the afternoon.

Fred Hohenhorst, Hal Reed and Harold Haub, who are being relied on for the bulk of Iowa's pitching come the season is under way, tossed a few in practice, loosening the pitching muscles in their shoulders and arms.

Teams Withdraw
CHICAGO (AP)—Tournament officials announced yesterday Central Catholic high of Portsmouth, Ohio, and McGill institute of Mobile, Ala., had dropped out of the National Interscholastic Catholic basketball meet.

Three Iowans Will Journey To Ann Arbor

Hawkeye Hopes Rise Since Victory Over Wildcat Swimmers

Hopes for a good showing in the NCAA meet this week end received a boost last Saturday as Iowa's mermen, led by Capt. Ray Walters, Al Armbruster and George Poulos, trounced Northwestern in a dual meet at Evans-ton.

The fact that the Hawkeyes all showed a definite improvement over their work in the Big Ten meet, and that the trio who will make the trip to Ann Arbor, Mich., this week end were stand-outs, was heartening to Coach Dave Armbruster.

Walters came through with wins in the 50- and 100-yard free events to lead the Iowans, beating Surlis of the Wildcats in both events. Although Walters has not equalled the times of his sophomore year, chances seem good that he will finish among the leaders.

Armbruster and Poulos, both of whom placed in the Big Ten tank meet, and who won their events against the Wildcats, are figured for points. Armbruster has been only one or two seconds over record time during the year and, in the Michigan meet, came near the old national record, even while being beaten by Beebe of the Wolverines.

Best opportunity for the Hawkeyes, however, seems to be in the medley relay. Walters, Armbruster and Poulos rate, on the basis of comparative time, among the first four teams in the nation, following closely behind Michigan and Ohio State. The Wolverine team of Barker, Holmes and Haigh barely nosed out Iowa while setting a new record in the Iowa pool last month, and the Wolverines have been battling Ohio State in the event all year, while other teams in the nation have been trailing.

Fencers Ready For Intramural Meet Next Week

Intramural athletics continue next week as Iowa's second annual fencing tourney gets under way, March 27. In keeping with the steady rise of fencing enthusiasts on the campus, entries have already begun to reach the athletic office.

With the realization of a team this year, fencing men have returned to the foils with added zest. The tournament will not only prove the current champion, but will also provide Coach Albert Baumgartner with some knowledge of the strength of Hawkeye fencers. From this field of entrants will probably emerge a future Iowa fencing team.

Matches will be held with both the foil and saber weapons. All entry blanks must reach the athletic office before March 25.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM MAJOR LEAGUE CAMPS

SAN ANTONIO, March 20 (AP)—Lyn Lary, the Cleveland Indians' holdout shortstop, signed his contract today. Manager Oscar Vitt made it clear, however, that Lary would have to win back his old position from Jimmy Webb, who has been occupying the position in acceptable style.

LAKE CHARLES, La., March 20 (AP)—Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia American league baseball team announced today that Leroy Parmelee, hold-out right handed pitcher, was on his way to training camp. Mack said they had found a way around a salary disagreement. Parmelee, a former big-league hurler, played with Minneapolis in the American Association last year.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The fight for a utility job in the Detroit Tiger infield was continued today by Mark Christman, last year's regular third sacker, and recruit Benny McCoy, second baseman. The Tigers play the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla., tomorrow and Christman and McCoy are to start.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 20 (AP)—The New York Giants suffered their first defeat of the year today, but only third-stringers, coaches and scouts of Manager Bill Terry's array were involved. The winners were the Louisiana State university team, which rang in a lot of subs, too, before polishing off the professionals 19 to 2 in seven innings.

LOS ANGELES, March 20 (AP)—Two home runs with the bases loaded gave the Chicago Cubs a 9 to 4 victory today over the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league, the National leaguers' fifth straight decision in the Grapefruit circuit. Billy Herman, second baseman, lifted a homer over the left field barrier in the fifth, scoring Messner. Lee and Hack ahead of him. Two innings later First Baseman Phil Cavarretta duplicated the feat, sending English, Russell and Gleason across the plate.

Johnson County a Wilderness in 1830's

Pioneers Came Here When Treaty of 1837 Eliminated Indians

"Until late in the 30's the area now known as Johnson county was a veritable wilderness which constituted a hunting ground for Poweshieks, Saks and Fox Indians," states Fred C. Battell in an article published in the State Historical society of Iowa publication, the "Palmprint," for March.

According to an act of congress, the "possession of, surveying, marking off or occupation of any and all persons of any portion" of the land was forbidden until the Indians were removed and the land surveyed.

By the treaty of 1837 the Indians were eliminated and eager pioneers ventured into the new country.

Johnson county was created in December, 1837. The county's first white settlers were Eli Myers and Philip Clark who rode horseback from Indiana to investigate.

"They so ably spread the gospel of rich soil, health climate, and abundant timber and stone for building that a number of their Indian friends and neighbors packed lock, stock and baggage and trekked forthwith to the banks of the Iowa river," writes Battell.

The following winter the territorial capital was located by law in Johnson county. This aroused the settlers and on March 8, 1839, at a meeting, the constitution for the "claim association of Johnson county" was adopted. S. C. Trowbridge, the county sheriff, was elected as the first president of the association.

Two hundred and eighty-two signatures were affixed to the constitution—with nearly every settler in the county present.

"Close scrutiny of the faded page of the original manuscripts now housed in the library of the State Historical society of Iowa shows with what care and foresight those early pioneers guarded their own interests," it is stated.

"The constitution named the officers and prescribed their duties—a president, vice president, clerk or recorder of claims, deeds or transfers of claims, seven judges or adjustors of claims or boundaries and two marshals."

Moreover, the association officially declared that any person who attempted to intrude upon the rightful claim of another and "take away a portion of the hard earnings of the enterprising settler is dishonest and no gentleman."

The association showed its authority when a man named Crawford had taken possession of a claim belonging to association-member William Sturgis. About 60 frontiersmen on Nov. 7 marched in a body to the claim jumper's cabin and asked Crawford to abandon his claim.

He refused, and Sturgis offered to pay him for all labor performed on the property if he would leave peaceably and relinquish his claim; but Crawford still refused.

"Without a moment's delay," related a witness, "the men ascended the corners of the house, and in 15 minutes there was not a vestige of it left standing. Mr. Crawford was left in amazement, with axe in his hand, in the center of the vacant space once occupied by his cabin."

Not long afterward another "call-to-arms" was issued. Crawford had rebuilt his house, and this time the settlers determined to stop at no half-way measure. A peaceful agreement was reached between Sturgis and Crawford, however.

The only other disciplinary measure recorded was a whipping administered to Charles Berryhill for claim jumping. By order of the club, Joseph Stover gave the lashes.

By order of the constitution the members were given notice to make and record their claims. Many were described in much detail and the claimants used many devices in locating their property.

During the four years of the claim association's history there were but two government land sales. One was at Dubuque in 1840; the other at Marion in 1843.

"Soon after the land sale at Marion, the claim association of Johnson county disbanded," the article states. "Its usefulness was over. For four years it had kept a record of land holdings, listed transfers, prevented claim jumping and kept order in the community until civil government was established. It was a remarkable demonstration of the capacity of the pioneers for self government."

Spring Show Pearl Jewels at Height Of Fashion

Perfect with the new "little girl" styles of spring are pearls, and the jewelry designers are outdoing themselves with clever ideas utilizing these ever-popular jewels.

The very newest way to wear pearl clips is on the shoulder of an evening dress as epaulettes. Of course, with strapless gowns this doesn't work, so the clips are worn irregularly spaced at the top of the bodice.

A new trick with a long necklace of pearls is to wind it once around the neck, and then once around the upper arm.

The younger crowd in New York has almost deserted completely the bizarre type of jewelry, and at the spring parties the girls are wearing wide-skirted dance dresses that spell innocence and ribbons tying back long hair at each side. Many of them complement their costumes with a pearl necklace and matching bracelet and clips.

During the winter season court lady necklaces of pearls fastened at the back with velvet ribbons were very popular, and this style has been adapted to the spring picture. This season the pearls are held by narrow velvet ribbons in pastel shades. For the right type, earrings in pearls with tiny matching bows of velvet are tricky.

For an older, more sophisticated woman a single strand of pearls is smart for daytime wear, with a simple gold clip brooch of continental design in different shades of gold.

WASHINGTON WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

The truth is that American diplomacy has no very clear idea of what has just happened under Herr Hitler's auspices in what was Czecho-Slovakia and thereabouts.

I'm certain that references to the Czechs and Slovaks, to Bohemia-Moravia, to Ruthenia and to the Carpatho-Ukraine sum up as a pretty meaningless jumble to the average citizen of this republic. He recognizes the names of a few cities mentioned in dispatches, such as Vienna, Budapest, Pilsen (on account of its beer) and Prague. But places like Svalava, Kenderske, Torhegyalac and Bratislava? Naturally the signs on their whistling posts don't mean a thing. Some of them are not even pronounceable except locally. For instance—the important city of Przemysl? An eminent American geographer is on record to the effect that it isn't pronounced at all; it's sneezed. Then there's the neighboring city of Lwow. W, in that place's vicinity, is a mixture of W, V, and F. The authority just previously quoted points out that Lwow is neither pronounced nor sneezed; it's coughed.

How It Works

I once knew an American, quite prominent in the publicity world, whose name was Siddall — pronounced, in our language, with the accent on the first syllable and with the vowel in the second syllable considerably slurred. One day I wrote it down like this—Sszdl. And asked a Slovak friend what it sounded like to him. He pronounced it perfectly.

Well, as I was saying, I think that area is a good deal of a mystery to us.

We have some experts in the state department's division of eastern European affairs who probably understand this geography and weird spelling somewhat, but the state department, as a whole,

'Un Carnet de Bal,' French Movie, Will Have Final Showing

"Un Carnet de Bal," an outstanding French movie ranking in importance with "Grand Illusion," will be shown at the Strand theater today for the last time. The movie is shown under the auspices of the Romance language department.

This is the story of a well to do Frenchwoman, widowed in her early thirties, who voyages the world to find out what has happened to the youths who paid her court when she was the belle of a small French village. What she finds, though it is chiefly disillusionment, leaves more than a passing memory to the spectator.

Roles for which they have been rehearsing for weeks will be taken by Iowans turned actors at the university this week.

From community groups and junior colleges will come nearly 200 men and women to participate in the first section of the 1939 play production festival.

Thirty-three casts will give their plays between Thursday morning and Saturday night. All but 10 of them are in the community classes, A, B and C.

Morning, afternoon, and evening schedules in the university's theater will be closely followed as the casts give their plays in rapid succession.

Judges announced Sunday are Hubert C. Heffner of Northwestern university, community A and B; Albert T. Cordray of Westminster college, New Wilmington, Pa., and Prof. Edward C. Mable head of speech and dramatic art department of the university.

Three community groups which last year received superior in the group rating plan will defend their honors. They are Marshalltown community theater in class A, Spencer Drama club and Davenport Woman's club in B.

The only original play to receive superior last year was that of the Iowa City Woman's club.

Mason City, the junior colleges' only superior of 1938, is not entered.

District Court Will Name Jury To Hear $26,690 Damage Suit Of Pittman Vs. Theater Corp.

Demand for Injuries First Case of Kind In State's History

Jury selections for the $26,690 damage case of Mrs. Mary E. Pittman will begin at 9 o'clock in Johnson county district court this morning. This suit against the Central States Theater corporation is the first theater case of its kind in Iowa, although similar cases are to be found in outside jurisdictions, Judge J. P. Gaffney reports.

An amendment to the original petition in the case was filed in court yesterday by Lee J. Farnsworth and Will J. Hayek, attorneys for the plaintiff, Mrs. Pittman in the amendment alleges that at the time she sustained injuries in a fall in the Englert theater she was receiving $65 a month "and that she is still disabled and unable to resume her work."

The sum of $540 is asked in the amendment to be added to the original claim of $26,150, for loss of wages.

The plaintiff is seeking damages for injuries she claims she received in a fall at the Englert theater Nov. 8, 1937. She states in her petition that when leaving her seat in the theater she lost her footing on a step-off into the center main aisle, which is several inches lower than the floor for the row containing the seat which she had occupied, and fell to the floor.

She charges that the defendant corporation which operates the local theater was negligent and careless in failing to have the aisle adequately lighted, and that she received permanent injuries as the result of the accident.

Judge Gaffney said yesterday that the case, which is the second suit listed on the second jury assignment for the February term, would last most of the week.

The law firm of Messer and Cahill will appear for the defendant.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

CHAPTER FIFTY

MAC CONTINUED his explanation of the murder.

"I don't know when or where Horace evolved his murder scheme. We do know that he had been studying poisons, as witness the volume in the library. Evolve it he did, however—and the cleverest part of the whole business to me is the way in which he secured the stuff. Sending his own wife after it!"

I interrupted: "How did he force her to buy the poison?"

"He didn't force her, Elsie. You see, it was a usual arrangement, Horace sending his wife for poisons. The clerk at the drug store told us about that. Mrs. Horace was in the habit of making weekly shopping trips to Columbus. What was more natural than that Horace would request her to do his shopping for him? It was his habit to make a list of his laboratory needs, and for his wife to have these prescriptions filled for him in the city."

"How—how diabolical!" I exclaimed horrified.

"Oh, it probably started out innocently enough," Mac assured me. "It only ended badly. Well, so much for the motive. Horace wanted money; he wanted Della. He murdered his mother. And he permitted her to live; she knew too much. Besides, he wanted Della at once, before Reginald should get her."

"And so," he concluded, "we have the motive. We have the poison. That leaves the method." "Yes, what was the method?" Phil queried eagerly.

Mac began: "Horace decided for obvious reasons to commit his crime on the night of the ball. To do this he must set the scene. He must know to the minute when his mother would appear in the salon; and he must arrange to have her use a certain drier to dry her hair. Thus, the midnight visit to the salon. He was scouting, so to speak."

I put in: "Then it was he who upset the chair?"

"Yes. It took me hours of figuring to hit upon the reason for that excursion. It wasn't until I glanced through the appointment book in the lobby that I saw the light. He had to find out the exact time of his mother's appointment. He couldn't afford to murder the wrong party."

"Where did he get the key?" I asked.

Mac made a wry face. "It seems that the good Greely mislaid her keys and mysteriously found them again."

"I'll be damned!" exclaimed Phil. "Why didn't she mention the fact?"

Mac snorted. "Why didn't she mention a lot of facts? Greely may be an excellent housekeeper, but she'll never make a detective! If she had opened her mouth concerning a number of things, we might have reached the truth sooner. But I'll explain that later on. To continue with the method: Elsie played into the murderer's hands by dining downstairs the evening of the first murder. However, lassie, had you remained in your room," he turned to me, "Horace would have invented some excuse to get you out of the way. So don't let that worry you!"

"During Elsie's absence Horace jimmied the three driers and attached his poison in the tissue to the fourth one. The stage was set! The murder machine was in order!"

"And I"—I stammered—"I—threw the switch!"

"You threw the switch, yes," Mac affirmed. "And then something else happened that worked to the murderer's advantage. You left the salon for half an hour!"

I frowned: "I never did get that straight of that business. Why did Mr. Horace ask me to deny my absence?"

"He wanted it to appear that his mother died in your presence. He was being cautious. Of course he didn't think that her death would be pronounced other than normal; but he evidently thought far enough ahead to grasp that your absence, were it known, might create a question in the minds of the police. In other words, the fact that Mrs. Witherspoon died in your presence, before your very eyes, was testimony enough that she had met with no foul play. You could swear that no one aside from yourself had touched the old lady. On the other hand, should your absence come to light, Horace could insist that the old lady had been poisoned during your absence from the salon."

"I see!" I said. "How hard he was! He came to watch his mother die!"

"I suppose," Mac theorized, "that he was a little nervous in spite of his elaborate precautions. He had to see for himself how his plans were working. He could not know, of course, that his entrance was a signal for you to cut his victim's finger and so set, conclusively, the time of her death."

I drew a long breath. "And Mrs. Horace?"

"Mrs. Horace had to be gotten rid of at once. She knew about the purchase of the cyanide. In case Mrs. Witherspoon's death was questioned—well—Horace couldn't afford to take a chance on his wife putting two and two together. I rather believe she suspected him, anyway, of the arsenic poisoning, I mean, judging from her actions."

"But how," I wanted to know, "did he mean to explain her death? She wasn't in ill health?"

"We can't be certain about that, Elsie. I'm of the opinion he meant to suggest suicide. He had no reason to believe we would ever discover the adhesive and the tissues."

"And it was he who suggested that she have a permanent?"

"Yes. Daphne has admitted it. She was present at the time. Mrs. Horace, it seems, was aware of

Albert B. Sidwell Is Elected President of New School Board

Election Votes Canvassed By Former Board

Time Extended To School Contractor To Finish Building

Albert B. Sidwell was elected president of the new school board which met last night in the office of Iver A. Opstad, superintendent of school. Sidwell was sworn into office by Elza M. Means who had been selected as temporary chairman by the retiring members of the board.

Sidwell succeeds J. M. Kadlec who was president of the school board throughout the construction of the new $725,000 high school building in Morningside.

Canvass Ballots
Before the former board withdrew, a canvass of the ballots of the school board election was made. Unfinished business was also completed.

In the last regular meeting of the school board an extension of time was granted the Paul Steenberg Construction company for the completion of the new high school. At that time it was decided that the added expense would be withstood by the contractor.

A letter has since been received from the construction company which declared that the expense should be paid by the school board. The board members decided to hold by their resolution.

No Politics
First business of the new board was a resolution rejecting the request for use of the high school auditorium for political purposes.

A request for stop signs near Kirkwood school was also considered. Action on this matter hinged on the judgment of either the police or street department, the board decided.

Police Explain Recent Thefts

Local Boys Confess Entering and Robbing Downtown Offices

Police believed that a logical explanation of recent petty robberies throughout the community was given yesterday when they obtained written confessions from two local youths. A third boy, police said, allegedly involved with the other two, left town.

The youth, both under 17 years old, admitted forcing their way into several downtown offices as well as numerous parked automobiles both in Iowa City and Cedar Rapids.

Chief of Police W. H. Bender said the group probably is guilty of sorority and fraternity house thefts committed recently.

Besides wrist watches, bicycles and other articles, $50 in cash was and other articles, $50 in cash was police.

The Paul-Helen building and the Iowa City Savings bank building held most of the offices the youths entered. Police said the boys admitted looting several offices in East Hall.

Police said they will refer the case to Mrs. Mabel R. Evans, county probation officer, for disposition.

Four Johnson County WPA Workers Lose Jobs in Probe

The recent WPA investigation prompted by an order from congress caused four Johnson county workers to lose their jobs. The purpose of the probing, according to George J. Keller, Iowa WPA administrator, is to eliminate those not in actual need from relief rolls.

The four, Barry said, were dropped because of "financial ineligibility."

The larger number were put to work to fill seasonal vacancies left by others who have sought other jobs, it was revealed.

The review was based on an investigation by every county in the United States. Those counties which have not yet completed their inquiry must do so before Saturday, according to published specifications.

The four Johnson county workers dropped from WPA rolls, Barry said, were taken from a review of 90 persons who have not been probed since Nov. 1. One

Due to an increased demand for the new Golden Gate series three-cent stamps, a second shipment of 20,000 stamps is now for sale, Postmaster Walter J. Barrow announced yesterday.

The first shipment, which was sold immediately, showed a preference for these stamps by the public, Barrow said.

Coordinating Council of Social Agencies Discusses Completion Plans for Community Building

Youth, Adult Groups Should Be Served Says Prof. E. Hills

Plans for the completion of the Iowa City Community building were discussed last night by members of the Johnson County Coordinating Council of Social Agencies in Reich's Pine room.

Reviewing the origin of the project, Delmer Sample, said that Iowa City had many fine buildings but no community building until the present one was constructed. When the 1929 depression stopped its growth, the need to the building came into the possession of Iowa City, he revealed.

Speaking for the committee in charge of operating the building, Louis Mueller, chairman, announced that a $25 fee is charged for the use of the building and that it will have taken in $800 by April 20. "We show no favors to anybody — everybody is treated alike. We are servants of the city," he said.

Mueller revealed that 10-year leases with the Women's Relief Corps Improvement league and the Iowa City Woman's club are pending in which it is agreed that the organizations will invest money in return for the use of rooms on certain days. In this way the committee hopes to build up a fund and secure complete rehabilitation.

Anticipating the possibilities of the building in the future, the Rev. Evans A. Worthley declared that there must be "use of the building for recreational purposes—the legal and logical place." Suggesting the promotion of business girls' clubs, a rifle range, swimming pool, and sewing clubs, the Rev. Mr. Worthley said that the people of Iowa City depend too much upon the university and need an intellectual challenge for adult education and concerts.

Speaking on "What I as a Citizen Want to See from the Building," Prof. Elmer Hills suggested that the building serve a certain type of groups: namely, youth groups and adult groups. He declared that organizations must work for the interests of the community and not for individuals to be successful in the building project.

Mayor Myron J. Walker said the building needs the financial support of organizations who are willing to contribute more than they get out of the project. "Unless each organization in the coordinating council earns money within itself or borrows money

Barry said yesterday that eight men will be chosen as Johnson county's quota for the present fiscal quarter. All youths between 17 and 23 years old have been urged to apply for enrollment.

Choice of enrollment, Barry said, will be based on the need and physical qualifications of the applicant.

Bank Night Estherville Man Files Suit for $500

ESTHERVILLE, March 20 (AP)—Ralph Rousseau of Estherville has filed suit in district court here in an effort to obtain the $500 bank night prize for which his name was called at a drawing, Feb. 8.

The Central States Theater corporation, owner of the Grand theater here, was named defendant.

Rousseau said in his petition that his name was called as winner and that he appeared "within a reasonable time" to claim the prize, but it was denied him. He also asks 5 per cent interest on the money from Feb. 8.

Hubert Schrodt, manager of the theater, said Rousseau failed to claim the prize within the two minute time limit set by contest rules.
