Nazi Press Reports Enemies Fearful After Parade

Claim Military Strength Awe'd World Capitals

Il Duce Reiterates Friendship of Italy In Long Telegram

BERLIN, April 21 (AP)—The controlled nazi press, in jubilant mood, told Germans tonight that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's huge 50th birthday parade had struck terror into the hearts of Germany's enemies.

Every radio announcement and every edition of the afternoon newspapers reported amazement and awe in the world's capitals at the military might Germany displayed in a four and one half hour parade yesterday.

It was a "warning to all opponents," said the Koelnische (Cologne) Zeitung.

"Hitler To Go Far"

The reception of Paris, said Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' Der Angriff, could be summed up in the words, "Hitler can go far with this Germany."

London, Der Angriff added, thought the German anti-aircraft guns were "a new terror for bombers."

The Lokalzeitung found that the "German power impressed the world" and the Boersen Zeitung said a Danish general, recounting his observations of the parade to his countrymen, called it "the greatest experience of my life."

The führer turned from the fanfare of his birthday celebration to concentrate on the speech he will deliver before a specially called session of the reichstag next Friday to answer President Roosevelt's plea for at least 10 years of assured peace.

The press of callers representing many foreign countries and a considerable accumulation of official business, gave him little time today, however, to think about his response to the appeal, which his axis partner, Italian Premier Mussolini, already has called "absurd."

Due Pledges Friendship

Nazis close to the führer, therefore, predicted he soon would leave the capital to work on his reply in solitude, probably at his chalet at Berchtesgaden in his beloved Bavarian mountains.

Messages published today showed that Hitler and Mussolini again had affirmed their inseparable union in the Rome-Berlin axis.

Il Duce, in a lengthy telegram, reiterated that the friendship between Rome and Berlin "cannot be disturbed by the recurring attempts of our enemies."

"Sometimes they will have to convince themselves that they are following a false course, because fascism and national socialism (nazism) are the way of justice and peace."

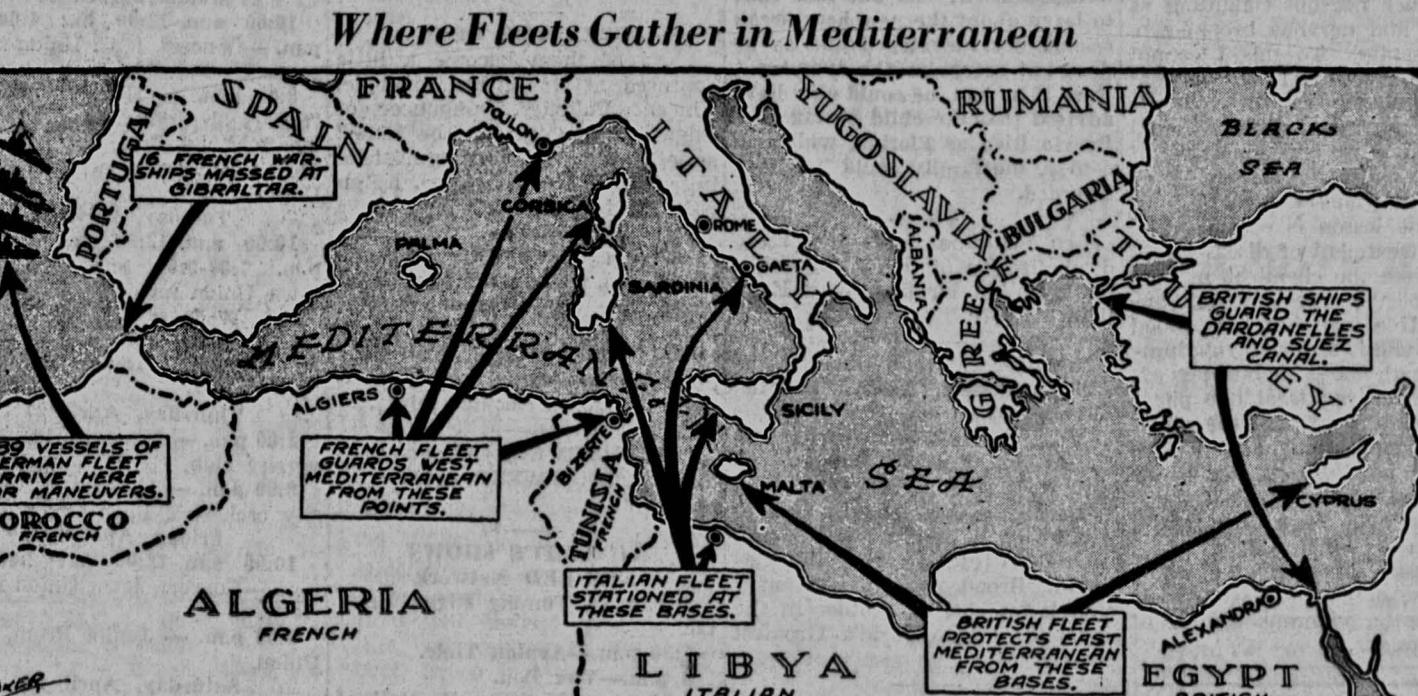

Hitler implied that "with thanks I bring anew the assurances of my indestructible friendly ties with you and the fascist Italy created by you..."

Mott Declares F.R.'s Election Not Unusual

OMAHA, April 21 (AP)—Dr. P. L. Mott, of the University of Iowa, told a regional conference of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism today there was nothing unusual in the 1936 election of President Roosevelt in the face of opposition from the majority of newspapers.

Dr. Mott said that before the civil war but seven of 16 presidents favored by a majority of the press were elected.

Gaye Walker, Nebraska university journalism college head, expressed amusement at what he declared was the tendency of journalism schools to include "ethics" and "libel" in the same course—"what we ought to do and what we must not do."

Ready for what diplomats term "eventualities," the fleets of the four major European powers are massed in the Mediterranean in naval might ever assembled. Map shows the precious possessions of ships guard in the "great basin."

Court Says Liner Was Set on Fire

LE HAVRE, France, April 21 (AP)—Investigating Magistrate Andre Curbelier said tonight preliminary inquiries established definitely that a "criminal act" was responsible for the burning of the French liner Paris at her dock here.

Police believe "foreigners" set the fire on Tuesday night, the magistrate said.

Wilson Fills 3 School Posts

Five Appointed To State Conservation Vacancies for July 1

DES MOINES, April 21 (AP)—Gov. George A. Wilson today sent to the Iowa senate the names of five new appointees to fill forthcoming June 1 vacancies on the state conservation commission.

He also nominated three members to the state board of education, among them Henry C. Shull, Sioux City attorney and a republican, for his third 6-year term.

"What can you do when you are outvoted?" he asked.

Should the report be accepted, legislative leaders said, the 48th general assembly may be expected to pack up and go home pronto.

Expect Battle On It Today

If Okayed, It Will Boost Amount To $500,000 Over 1937

DETROIT, April 21 (AP)—Iowa legislative compromisers tonight settled on a state government budget of $21,263,000 a year, up $446,000 from the house appropriations bill but $1,307,000 under the senate figure.

The corresponding departments spent $20,747,030 a year under the acts of the last legislature. Thus, if the two houses approve the bill, the state's comparative budget will be $526,339 more annually than it was two years ago.

The conference committee report, result of two days' wrangling behind closed doors, will be considered by the two chambers tomorrow.

An impending battle over acceptance of the compromise, however, was indicated when Sen. L. H. Doran (R-Boone), said he disapproved the bill. Doran was one of the conferees.

"What can you do when you are outvoted?" he asked.

Should the report be accepted, legislative leaders said, the 48th general assembly may be expected to pack up and go home pronto.

How Do
The Germans Feel?

In ALL THE discussion that is going on concerning the present international situation, no one seems to know definitely what the Germans think and feel. How much are they affected by the propaganda that comes from a controlled press, radio and education? Do they hold resentments against the democratic peoples, or only against the governments?

Of course, it is impossible to answer these questions with any certainty of being right, but it is possible through various means, to secure an inkling of the existing attitudes of some of the citizens of Germany. The following extracts are from a letter written to an English friend by a young German Nazi youth leader who has just left a university in Germany and entered his Labour Camp about two weeks ago. The reader can draw his own conclusions.

"Now we come to politics, about which we differ but which does not affect our friendship. When you look at the map of Europe today you will find that there are 90 million Germans living there, as many as the French and English together. When you look at your newspaper today you will find the very interesting news that besides Bohemia and Moravia, Memel has returned to the nation of Adolf Hitler without the loss of blood of one soldier. Now I ask you what did England and France gain out of the last war?"

"The English government has made mistake after mistake. I remember Abyssinia, at first they cry about Mussolini and his Empire but when Mussolini shows their teeth, they acknowledge his Empire.

"The same is about Spain, they cry about Franco and his bombers and do not say anything about the cruelties of Stalin's red and bloody mercenaries, who kill thousands of mothers and children with machine guns, like they do animals. And what is the end in the theatre of war? The English government and its newspapers acknowledge Franco and his National Spain. Do you think that all these things are victories for Great Britain?"

"As you know the German people like to live in peace with the English, I think you saw that with your own eyes when you were in Germany as did I when I was in England. But what the government of England does today is more than dangerous. Yesterday I saw in an English paper this bloody lie, that ADOLPH HITLER would take next Hungary, Poland, Holland and Yugoslavia. And what does England do in her swooning fury to get friends to help them against Germany, I must laugh that they can find no better than the lovely Stalin. I wish you much pleasure with him, perhaps he can help you against the Arabs and the Irish bombs. Here I make a mistake, I mean the English government and not you in person."

"Today in Europe we have the same position as in 1914. England against Germany with this difference, then we had a Kaiser Wilhelm and now Adolf Hitler with 90 million people and an Army such as the world has never before seen, such organization especially regarding the Air Force. What England is on the ocean, Germany is in the air. Goering says that if England makes a thousand planes we will make three thousand. It is well known all over the world that 90 per cent of all speed records are held by German airplanes. Do not think that the English with all their money can make more guns than we the Germans can for it is very interesting to know that in Germany today 20 million people are working in our armament industry against 10 millions in England and 6 millions in France. Perhaps you have heard of the Skoda Works in Bohemia?

"I believe that no one can win the next war, but if the English government should think to try to stop us on our way to a place in the sun and force us into another war, that would mean the end of Europe and the end of the British Empire too. OR DO YOU THINK THAT GOD SAID THAT A PLACE IN THE SUN IS ONLY FOR THE ENGLISH?"

Produces Hormones

Experiments by the Russian physiologist, Rosekor, have shown that stimulation of the cortex of the brain produces certain chemical substances—hormones—in the body, and that these are capable of producing the same effects as the stimulation of the brain itself. The injection of blood and spinal fluid, for instance, obtained after such stimulation, will affect the pancreas in such a way as to produce temporary diabetes.

A chemical called acetylcholine is apparently produced in the body as a result of fright. If this is injected into monkeys, it will cause the muscles of the face and the eyes, including the pupils of the eyes, to assume the reactions characteristic of fright. And this even though the nerves going to the muscles have been cut.

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The article today might almost be called "Science and Health—A Vindication."

While all physicians know that mental or emotional factors can make people feel ill, few of them are willing to admit that mental or nervous impulses can produce organic disease, such as ulcer of the stomach, goiter, arthritis or hemochromatosis.

Yet, there are some very queer and definite things that point that way. A truck driver who shifted gears with his right hand and braked with his left foot, had a paralysis from a hemorrhage in the brain which affected the muscles performing those actions and those alone. Cerebral hemorrhages usually do not do things that selectively. Could it be that this man's long habituation in one set of movements created nerve pathways that directed this accident when it came?

And many physicians go even further and maintain that chemical or reflex causes can account for all such nervous conditions as hysteria and nervous breakdown, even insanity. To this I cannot subscribe, because I believe that those conditions are due to the attempted reaction of the individual to the stresses and emotions of daily life and responsibility.

Obvious Lesson

But one lesson is obvious. The modern treatment of disease must attack from the chemical, organic and also the psychological approach. If a man has high blood pressure and is also worrying himself to death about his business affairs, you cannot treat one phase of his troubles without the other. You can treat some goiters successfully by surgery, some by iodine and some by psychology. So who would deny that they should be treated by all three?

The lesson in personal hygiene that these observations suggest is to attempt a vigorous control of your emotions.

WASHINGTON WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Until very lately recipients of persistently insisted that it was governmental salaries not had a constitutional. He regularly asked how Senator Couzens could oppose abrogation of exemption and yet invest in tax exempt securities. To which Senator Couzens' reply invariably was that he bowed to a higher constitutional authority—Senator Borah. He said he didn't believe in exemption, but that the Idaho senator knew best, of course.

Senator Borah's as recalcitrant as ever. Not that he believes in exemption but he believes in its constitutionality. This matter having been settled the question arises: How about taxes upon incomes derived from interest upon federal, state and still more local governmental bonds, now classed as wholly or partially tax-exempt? The fight won't end at the current session on Capitol Hill, but it will wax pretty hot, and is bound to continue until one side or the other is knocked out. It's a corkingly important dispute, too. It involves the interest upon more than $5 billions of Uncle Sam's securities and those of lesser governmental units. It also has a vital bearing upon business in general. Its outcome may spell the difference between good and bad times.

It might seem as if Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, whose job it is to popularize the sale of government bonds by making them as taxless as possible, should oppose sticking them with an income impost. He favors it instead. So have all treasury secretaries before him, since we have had an income tax. Such expert chaps see that the present system is an economic handicap.

The Couzens Case

One of the largest holders of income-tax-exempt securities we ever had was the late Sen. James Couzens of Michigan. Senator Couzens cashed in about 20 millions on his Ford auto holdings and put it into tax-exempt federal bonds. Yet he always held that tax exemption was a crime. Sen. William E. Borah thought so likewise (and does yet, no doubt), but he

I'd rather have my 75 cents immune to any investigation whatever.

It makes for lower taxes, if they make everybody mad.

Visible taxes are what are irritating. And if there's any more visible taxes than an income tax, I don't know what it is.

The blessings of life under the Nazis continue to increase. Hitler now plans, we read, to collect taxes in advance.

England and France continued to bait Poland and Balkan countries, while Hitler continued to scare them through Nazi troop movements.

United States military authorities prophesied war by not later than April 15—incidentally this Saturday. The war would be precipitated by Nazi's seizing control of Danzig and the Polish Corridor, said military heads.

South American Nazi headquarters were located, disposed of, and the Nazi agents imprisoned in Brazil and Argentina, while Mexicans burned effigies of Mussolini and Hitler, to domesticate foreign affairs.

Pope Pius and Vatican City, still shocked by Italian territorial extension and continuation of the war crisis, finally rewrote, satisfactory to all concerned, the Easter message. The speech typically clerical, welcomed Easter morning the text of the speech—"Peace."

Orchesis Club Plans Recital Monday, May 1

A two-suite dance recital will be presented by the Orchesis club of the women's physical education department Monday, May 1, as a climax of its year's work, it was announced yesterday.

Feature of the recital will be the midwestern suite which was composed and directed by Thelma Dodson, graduate student of Kirkville, Mo., the only person to receive a master's degree in dance from the University of Iowa. The work Miss Dodson did on the midwestern suite was a part of her thesis work.

A pre-classic suite set to the music of Bach will be directed by Miriam Rapheal, A2 of New York City.

Members of Orchesis and students in dance classes will participate in the final recital.

Officers Order
Children Under 16
Off Streets After 9

It's curfew bells for Iowa City's youngsters!

Beginning Monday children under 16 in Iowa City will obey a curfew law enforcing their attendance at home after 9 p.m.

Sgt. B. A. Hauber, who is in charge of juvenile work in Iowa City, said the police department will take action against parents or guardians who do not keep their children off the streets after 9 p.m.

The campaign has been started, according to Hauber, after police received numerous complaints from Iowa City residents concerning young children roaming the city streets at night.

By this action the department hopes also to check the number of juvenile criminal cases reported within the last several weeks.

Morse Operator Claims Ear Is Radio Station

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Since 1935 dots and dashes have been coming to George D. Leask of Oakland, he says—with no receiver save his ear. Leask, a former Morse operator in the army, has been able to identify words from the code and even copy whole messages.

"I don't think it is sound waves I get, because I have closed and plugged my doors and windows," he explains. "By pressing my ear drums I could even tune stations in an out."

Leask claimed in a lawsuit that an auto accident interfered with the gift and left him hearing only one operator. His claim was settled out of court.

The campaign has been started, according to Hauber, after police received numerous complaints from Iowa City residents concerning young children roaming the city streets at night.
