Festival Ends in Grand Array

Ten Thousand See 15 Bands In Last Event

4 Marching Groups Win First Divisions With Intricate Drills

Ten thousand people filled the central and front side sections of the west side of Iowa stadium yesterday afternoon as the 14th annual Iowa high school music festival came to an end.

The 1,000-piece massed band, which only a few moments before had played "America" while the 10,000 sang, came tumbling out of the north stands where they had

IOWA CITY WINNERS
Iowa City high school continued to rank high musically yesterday, with a first and a second division rating in state competition, and 13 first division ratings of 13 entries in the national auditions group.

The miscellaneous group of stringed instruments received a first division rating in the state contest. James Leeds, drum soloist, received a second division score.

Soloists who will go to the national competition in Minneapolis in two weeks, winners in auditions yesterday, are Jean Taylor, harp; Jean McKnight, cello; Donald Key, French horn; Richard Smith, alto clarinet; Vera Bales, English horn; and Jean Mocha, baritone saxophone.

Groups who won in the auditions yesterday were trombone quartet, French horn quartet, clarinet quartet, saxophone quartet, madrigal group of singers, and string sextet.

played under the direction of Victor Grabel of the University of Tulsa. They scattered in groups of brilliant color, playing a dozen different tunes, and went their various ways.

Last night, the piping flutes and almost all of the near 6,000 contestants had left Iowa City, and officials began to "dig out from under."

The grand finale of the university's biggest contest event of the year was colorful indeed. For three hours the spectators saw flashing, high stepping drum majors lead brilliantly-uniformed bandsmen of all sizes through intricate maneuvers on the green stadium floor. In one corner, 13 baton twirlers whirled their batons in competition.

The warm, sunshiny day was ideal for the contest, although a strong wind played havoc with the hats of contestants and the flag bearers.

The contest moved smoothly, as did all the events of the 14th festival. With all of the university's military units participating, the 15 competing bands marched on the field. The university Highlanders opened the program with a demonstration, and the Eldora training school band won its annual audience approval following the last band's performance.

Prof. Charles B. Righter, who announced the events and results yesterday, asked the lucky contestants who won first division ratings to control themselves when he read the results, but cheer after cheer burst forth as division one winners were announced, and many a tear of happiness was shed as contestants hugged one another and played wild strain on tubas and clarinets. Division one bands were West Waterloo in class AA, Albia and Iowa Falls in class A, Clarion in class B and Lost Nation in class C.

As Clarion's band, its flag unfurled, left the field playing "The Stars and Stripes Forever," Professor Righter voiced a comment which earned immediate applause from the crowd, and which voiced the elevated theme of festival competition.

"In this country," he said, "we march with horns, not guns." Here are the results of yesterday's festival competition:

Mott To Be Feted At Dinner

Iowa Citizens, university faculty members and Iowa editors will honor Prof. Frank Luther Mott, Pulitzer prize winner, at a congratulatory dinner in Iowa Union next Sunday evening.

The dinner is under the joint sponsorship of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi, professional sorority.

Professor Mott, director of the school of journalism, was awarded the Pulitzer prize for research in American history for his "A History of American Magazines."

Endorse Dinner
The dinner has been endorsed by President Eugene A. Gilmore of the university, Mayor H. F. Willenbrock, and Gov. George A. Wilson.

Originally planned as a private fraternity and sorority event, the dinner has been opened to the entire public due to the increasing interest in the affair. Invitations have been extended to all university faculty members, students and alumni of the school of journalism, and to Iowa City residents. Special invitations have been sent to service clubs and other Iowa City organizations. Professor Mott has been active in civic affairs for many years, and is at present president of the Kiwanis club.

Representatives of the national chapters of both journalism societies will attend the dinner. Coming to Iowa City as Sigma Delta Chi's representative is James C. Kiper, executive secretary.

Many Invited
Chapters of the two organizations at Iowa State college, Grinnell college and Drake university have been invited to attend the dinner. Prominent mid-western journalists will be here Sunday night, as will personal friends of Professor and Mrs. Mott.

Among the special invitations for the dinner is one sent to D. C. Mott of Indianola, father of Professor Mott. It was in the composing room of the Tipton Advertiser, published at that time by his father, that Professor Mott first became interested in newspapers, while he was still in grade school.

The dinner is being planned under the general chairmanship of Winston Allard, graduate assistant in journalism. Prof. Charles L. Sanders of the school of journalism is in charge of the program. James Fox, A4 of Boone, president of Sigma Delta Chi, will act as toastmaster at the dinner. The committee on arrangements (See MOTT, page 4)

F. R. Demands Soft Coal Pact

Collective Bargaining Would End Trouble, He Tells Both Sides

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt intervened today in the deadlocked bituminous coal contract negotiations, calling upon miners and operators to reach a workable agreement promptly to end the industry's worst shutdown in 17 years.

He told them that their "differences in viewpoint" did not appear to be insurmountable, and said "the orderly process of collective bargaining should suffice to bring about their adjustment."

"Because of this," the president said in a telegram to Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the U. S. department of labor conciliation service, "I urge that the present negotiations with the federal commissioner continue, and that all sit down with the intention to reach a fair, honorable and workable agreement in a spirit of give and take. Time is now important and agreement must be reached promptly."

While it was sent to Dr. Steelman, an observer at the negotiations since April 25, the message was directed to the joint labor-and-management negotiating committee, which continued its seemingly fruitless sessions today after being virtually commanded by Steelman yesterday not to abandon their efforts.

When today's negotiations session adjourned shortly before 4 p.m. (C.S.T.) Dr. Steelman again reported no progress and once more stressed the need of an "immediate settlement." He said he would meet individually with the operator and union groups beginning at 11 a.m. tomorrow and that another joint meeting would start at 2 p.m.

Crash Kills 2 Near Gravity

BEDFORD, May 6 (AP)—A semi-headon automobile crash three miles northwest of Gravity today killed Walter LaPorte, 11, his brother, Russell, 9, injured their father, Clay, farmer near Gravity, and two other men.

The LaPorte car was in collision with one driven by Dale U. Thomson, Gravity veterinarian, who was accompanied by his assistant, Kenneth Locke.

The elder LaPorte suffered several broken ribs and a severe scalp injury. Thomson suffered broken ribs and a chest injury and Locke a broken arm.

The LaPorte boys are survived also by their mother and three sisters.

NEWS-OF THE WORLD IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—With congress split into embattled and unrelenting factions by the controversy over neutrality legislation, members were talking in increasing numbers today of the likelihood of the session running into late summer, or even the fall.

LONDON, May 6 (AP)—Reverential "appeasement" talk in influential quarters close to the government today aroused political controversy in Britain coinciding with the tension between Germany and Poland over Danzig and Pomorze (the Polish Corridor).

VATICAN CITY, May 6 (AP)—Pope Pius XII was reported on good authority tonight to have put the moral force of the Catholic church and the diplomatic resources of the Vatican into a campaign to preserve the peace of Europe.

NEWTON, N. C., May 6 (AP)—A young convict captured four days after his escape from a prison camp here, told officers: "It was my vacation time and I just had to take a few days off."

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—For the first time since his abdication speech to the world in December, 1938, the Duke of Windsor will be heard on the radio in the United States Monday afternoon, the National Broadcasting company announced tonight.

MIAMI, Fla., May 6 (AP)—Westbrook Pegler, the columnist, was asked by G. Duncan Brossier, foreman, today to appear before the Dade county grand jury to support charges he made recently about crime conditions here.

U. S. Ponders Jap Demands

Request for More Power in Shanghai Settlement Studied

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Japan's demand for more authority in the Shanghai International Settlement is receiving close study here from officials apprehensive that if it is granted there may be impingement on American interests in the richest section of vast China.

Japan's request was made in a communication the Japanese foreign office handed recently to American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and the British ambassador demanding more representation on the Shanghai municipal council.

The importance of keeping trade with the Shanghai International Settlement open to all nations is reflected by the fact that in 1937 Shanghai's share of the foreign trade of China was 53 per cent in imports and 48 per cent in exports.

In 1937, United States exports to the Shanghai area totaled $34,700,000 and imports from that area $43,000,000.

During 1938, Shanghai trade fell considerably owing to the Sino-Japanese war.

Concern is felt here that if Japan is given the control of the International Settlement, American trade with that area may suffer. Such has been the experience of American merchants in other parts of Japanese-controlled China, as vehemently expressed in repeated notes by Secretary of State Hull to Tokyo.

The International Settlement is governed by a council consisting of five British, two American, two Japanese and five Chinese members, all elected by the taxpayers of the settlement. The United States government is not directly connected with the council; the Americans chosen are private citizens. Matters arising between the United States and the International Settlement are generally handled by the American consul general in Shanghai, now Clarence Gauss.

Nazi Strategy Aims To Get Seaport Back

Rumors of German Pact With U. S. S. R. Spread Over Europe

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, May 6 (AP)—Reports of quiet German soundings in the direction of Soviet Russia reached trained Berlin observers tonight while the world's attention remained fixed closely on the free city of Danzig and Poland.

Indications that German strategy pointed to a plebiscite in Danzig to decide whether it should return to Germany meanwhile were the object of diplomatic preoccupation.

It was believed that a German proposal for such a plebiscite, in which a vote to return to Germany was regarded as a foregone conclusion, had been taken by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to Milan for his conference with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Confers With Hitler
Von Ribbentrop conferred with Reichsfuehrer Hitler in his Bavarian mountain retreat yesterday for six hours and it was admitted officially today that Albert Forster, Nazi district leader in Danzig, and Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, were with the fuhrer at the same time.

Officials also admitted that Monsignor Cesare Orsenigo, papal nuncio in Germany, was with the fuhrer yesterday but they intimated his mission was concerned with Catholic matters rather than international political events.

Paradoxical as it may seem, indications were increasing that pointed to the possibility that Joseph Stalin and Adolf Hitler might yet, figuratively speaking, shake hands and make up.

Much water will have to flow over the dam, however, before this could be achieved.

Would Study Cash Demands

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—A proposal that congress set up a permanent investigative force to ascertain the need for requested departmental appropriations came today from Senator Adams (D-Colo.).

Adams, a member of the appropriations committee and a leader of the senate economy bloc, said such an agency would cost about $100,000 annually "and would save $100,000,000 a year by showing us where to cut appropriations."

The investigative unit, Adams told reporters, should be modeled along the lines of the budget bureau, which is responsible to the president.

'Eliminate Crime'
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Prentiss M. Brown (D-Mich) declared in a Jefferson day banquet address last night that elimination of international lawlessness and of crime within the United States would be great contributions to economy in government.

KNOW YOUR UNIVERSITY Will Show Campus Film Today

Under the joint sponsorship of the extension division and The Daily Iowan, the second in a series of University of Iowa newsreels will be presented tomorrow night at 7:30 in Macbride auditorium.

Released by the extension division, these newsreels in technical color represent a part of the "Know Your University" campaign, undertaken to acquaint students as well as the general public more thoroughly with campus life and campus scenes at this university.

The newsreel depicts the art department at work as well as various sport events on the campus, including the Iowa-Wisconsin swimming meet, and technicolor pictures of last year's federal inspection and celebration of Governor's day will be presented. As a beautiful and distinctive drama, the three-reel musical film "The River" will also be presented to give the audience a documentary story of the Mississippi, describing where it comes, where it goes, what it has meant and cost.

The story of cotton and slavery, of the lumber kings in the north, of barges of iron and coal on the Mongahela — the building of an entire continent is told by Thomas Chalmers, the opera singer.

Depicting how year in and year out the river has taken a toll of millions by erosion and flood, until finally the government awakened to the need for conservation and control, the film presents a persuasive indictment of the past, together with a dramatic presentation of what we must do in the future to avoid the disaster of soil and lumber loss.

The accompanying music, played by members of the New York Philharmonic symphony orchestra under the direction of Alexander Smallens, is composed of original compositions by Virgil Thomson and characteristic tunes of the Mississippi valley.

Free tickets are available at The Daily Iowan business office, Eastlawn, Hillcrest the Quadrangle, Currier hall, Westlawn, the Law Commons and at Iowa Union desk.

Ten thousand people filled the front section on west side of the Iowa stadium yesterday afternoon to watch the grand climax of the 1939 Iowa high school music festival — the marching band competition.

The day was an ideal one for the contest, and everything moved smoothly as the various bands executed their intricate formations to the strains of pieces well-known to all who ever witnessed contests of this type previously.

The festival culminated when the different high school bands merged into one unit to play "America" giving the audience an opportunity to play a small part in the afternoon's activities by standing and singing the words to the piece.

Prof. Charles B. Righter, amid cheers and contagious enthusiasm, then announced the bands which had won first and second division ratings. Division one bands were

West Waterloo in class AA, Albia and Iowa Falls in class A, Clarion in class B and Lost Nation in class C.

As the last spectators left the stadium and the last music case was packed, Iowa City became normal once again after having played host to the 6,000 participants for three days. All that remained were memories of scenes such as the ones shown above.

Royalty—And Democracy in Iowa

THE VISIT of the Danish and Norwegian royal couples to the state of Iowa emphasizes remarkably the nature of democracy. In the totalitarian states much ado has been made about "minorities." As much, or more, has been made of "race" theories.

The visits of both the Danish and the Norwegian couples to Iowa have been because large numbers of people of Scandinavian descent are citizens of the state. The enthusiasm of these people for their ancestral royal families is great; yet, these people are imbued with what we call "Americanism."

It is a strange thing that one finds in Iowa colonies of people of various descents throughout the state. They most certainly would be called minorities in Europe. Yet, we do not know them as such; they are Americans, imbued with democracy's philosophies and forgetful of the mother country.

The Decatur Public Opinion expresses a welcome to the Norwegian royal couple that carries the American spirit: "We are quite ignorant of court manners and customs, and don't know just how to act in the presence of royalty, so we'll just be ourselves, and trust our royal guests will make themselves at home. We extend to them a royal welcome... these our distinguished kindred from abroad are thrice welcome. The gates of the city, as also our hearts, are wide open."

Surely, the invitation is that of the nation. Because this is America we can all feel honored by the visit of Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha and accept them as our "distinguished kindred."

Democracy does not recognize minorities nor does it recognize racial discrimination. The people of Iowa will get no better opportunity to observe the privileges of democracy than as they are being emphasized in the state this week end.

We Like Music Festivals

THIS MORNING the last echo of hundreds of musical instruments will have died out in the halls of the university. The 14th annual high school music festival will be ended; some 6,000 ambitious high school students will have returned home.

We are always amazed at the scope of the state-wide event; not amazed so much because the event is large, but that the festival is kept from being unwieldy. No better demonstration of the efficiency of university administration is found than in the untroubled progress of these thousands of students through the hours of festival events. The events this year, particularly, have been so smoothly run off that the hours of preparation become invisible.

It has been predicted that this year's music contest will be the last large one. For the first time the festival was split in half this year, one group of contestants meeting at Carroll.

Unless the festival grows to even larger proportions than it has at present, unless it exceeds the facilities that the two cities can offer we believe the event should continue to be given as it has been this year. Splitting the state into regions would tend to distract from the magnificence of the festival as Iowa City knows it.

When the state organization meets to make plans for next year's festival, we believe it should remember the efficiency of this year's festival and the enthusiasm with which Iowa City and Carroll have welcomed the high school musicians.

Dean Ladd—Of The College

THE CHOICE of a successor for Wiley Rutledge Jr. as head of the University of Iowa college of law must have been a task of more than ordinary consideration. The university family, we believe, will say with us that the appointment of Prof. Mason Ladd to the post is the most agreeable one that could have been made.

Mason Ladd has made a record such as few professional men can claim in as few years. He received his Juris Doctor degree from the University of Iowa in 1923. His activities both in practice and in education since have distinguished him.

More renowned men might have been considered for the post, men from other universities. Certainly, we believe, there is no man better fitted for the deanship of the University of Iowa law college.

Wild-Flower Itch In Season Again?

WILD-FLOWER itch, that vicious spring disease which pervades home owners and garden enthusiasts, is in season again. The gardener thinks that "just one patch more of violets" will give the finishing touch, or the flower-arranger goes into rhapsodies at the beauty of a clump of wild plum blossoms.

The state conservation commission doesn't object to this so long as the clump of flowers or the branch of blossoms is taken from a legitimate location. But the state has set up some rather definite dos and don'ts in regard to the "legitimate places."

All ground and objects growing from the ground of state parks belong to the state. Flowers, plants, shrubs or trees in them are to be left in their native state. State ground includes all state parks, all land which has been taken over by the state (the Amiana lands are included here) and land along highways.

The public is also asked to respect private property and not destroy it unless the owner has been asked.

A special request has been made to protect the blood root. Merely picking the bloom destroys the plant as it bleeds to death as soon as a twig is broken.

The New York World's Fair is already a success. On opening day it made 600,000 eager-eyed Americans forget there was an international crisis.

We'll never understand women. The first really swell day of spring and she thinks it high time we tidied up the basement!

FATHER TIME DECIDES TEARS ROLLED down Lou Gehrig's cheeks Tuesday as he kept himself out of the ball game, and there's no doubt he still feels terrible that the end of the great record has been reached.

Gehrig is too old to keep on as he used to. In about six weeks he'll reach the advanced milestone of 36 years, and he must give place to youth. The incredible record of taking part in every game his team has played for 14 years is interrupted. He holds other records almost as unapproachable, but now the magic continuity is snapped.

There's no consolation, under the circumstances, in the thought that G. B. Shaw at 83 is wowing them even yet as a playwright, that Titian painted masterfully up to his death, at 99. The Iron Man knows those figures don't apply. In baseball the oldest arrive on the shelf early. Big Alex, the patriarchal hurler, is 61 now, and that stupendous gaffer Ty Cobb is 52.

Lou Gehrig is on his way now to join those old men. It won't be easy, and he must feel a let-down. On the other hand, he will have more consolation than almost any other player we can think of. He has won not only games and records which it will delight him to remember, but he has earned the respect and good will of millions of fans. His career is an occasion for pride and not for weeping.

AND NOAH SENT FORTH A DOVE

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

OF MICE AND MEN... Lym Bryson passed on a story to us about the "Great Profile." They told Bryson in Hollywood that Barrymore's last Paramount contract was signed with a clause providing a bodyguard whose only job was to keep John away from counters with rails at the bottom.

If John got away—and he did—the contract was to be cancelled without comment.

P.S. It was; hence the "four."

Of course, John's having no more stage fun than Ethel has been having for tours and tours. It's not just a Barrymore family trait either; it runs in the theater.

Anyway, so what? Those Omshans probably got the thrill of a theater-time out of their admission price. John's not the greatest actor of his day any more, drunk or sober.

A New Angle Paul Engle's "Corn" is getting a luke-warm press response in the eastern papers. The book was published Friday morning. They say he's best when writing of Iowa's fields.

Preview Thoughts I'm recommending a movie that'll get a mixed reception, I predict. It's Warner Brothers' "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

A lot of people are going to call it propaganda, and it is that. But I've never objected to propagating the truth.

It's the story of this winter's spy trials, the real story. And it's emotional, and probably you'll begin hating the men who are drilling private armies in America, propagandizing against democracy.

It's not a tolerant movie. But I've been convinced intolerance is indeed a part of the democratic way in times of crisis. I'm afraid it must be. Spain would be democratic today—but for its tolerance of fascism. And so for that matter would Germany itself.

"Confessions of a Nazi Spy" deserves support because it's a tense, bitter drama about truth. And Hollywood thus far hasn't been bothering much about reality.

Lewis Browne, who's non-Aryan, began a recent article with, "Some of my best friends are Gentiles," he wrote.

Ernie Hootens got a bombast on the subject in this week's Collier's. He wanted to know when he was on the campus if there were any of it about. I had to reply the truth, a three-letter word beginning with "y."

That was before a recent campus election in which prejudice reared its familiar head.

HOLLYWOOD—Distances are deceptive in Hollywood. You can drive all day and never leave Los Angeles, but in 15 minutes you can swelter on the Gold Coast of Africa.

You can trundle out Ventura boulevard, past the perennial real estate, orange juice, grape juice, hot-dog, turkburger, flower, dog and cat stands, make a sudden turn to the left, and there you are—as close to the Gold Coast as you please, and only 15 minutes from Universal City.

The sun never sets. That's the name of the picture on location there, and the Union Jack rustles faintly in the slight breeze that makes the heat bearable. In 10 minutes a softie begins to wish the sun would set, it's that hot. But the show must go on, to coin a phrase. Art must struggle forward, a movie must muddle through.

The native village of thatched huts is off there by the gently rolling hills covered with scrubby vegetation. Over here is the white house, also palm-thatched, of the British trail-blazers. Farther toward Ventura boulevard is the mine—full of valuable movie ore, and providing the bone of contention in the plot. They are shooting at the doorway of the big house. Basil Rathbone, in khaki shorts, khaki blouse, sun helmet is rushing in, calling "Helen! Helen!" and is met at the door by Helen (Barbara O'Neil) in khaki, boots and hat, on ready to go.

Departing from the current trend of previewing new pictures in middlewestern towns, the Benny picture will strike a unique note by staging its premiere in Hollywood, of all places. Furthermore, the attending celebrities will be asked to wear evening clothes in place of the currently popular preview costumes consisting of 10-gallon hats and gats.

Jack is especially anxious to find out how Phil Harris happened to get box seat passes for opening night. The comedian, who was anything but pleased when he received a single ticket for standing room in the forecourt of the theater, declares he'll get inside if he has to play fiddle in the band.

Jack hasn't spoken to Phil since the maestro started the rumor that Benny has had to dispense with filling requests for locks of hair until he finds his misplaced toupee. He says he wouldn't have minded so much if the remark had come from anyone but a guy who will pose for nothing but close-ups so he doesn't have to wear shoes.

The sentimental ballad, "Memories," is Kenny Baker's vocal choice, and Phil Harris will observe musically that "The Lady's in Love."

LOOK at the guest star line-up for the Screen Guild program at 5:30 tonight over the Columbia network—Joe E. Brown, Melvyn Douglas, Claudette Colbert and Phil Regan, rosy-cheeked Irish tenor.

DAVID SARNOFF, president of RCA and chairman of NBC's board, will officially open the 16th annual observance of National Music week on Frank Black's "Magic Key" program at noon today.

C. M. Tremaine, secretary of the music week committee, will also be present. Soloists with Black's concert orchestra will be Rose Bampton, soprano, and Robert Weede, baritone.

JOAN CRAWFORD stars in an original play by Charles Martin on "Silver Theater" over the Columbia network at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Martin is no stranger to radio scripting, having penned the dramatizations on "Johnny Presents" before going to Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD—Distances are deceptive in Hollywood. You can drive all day and never leave Los Angeles, but in 15 minutes you can swelter on the Gold Coast of Africa.

You can trundle out Ventura boulevard, past the perennial real estate, orange juice, grape juice, hot-dog, turkburger, flower, dog and cat stands, make a sudden turn to the left, and there you are—as close to the Gold Coast as you please, and only 15 minutes from Universal City.

The sun never sets. That's the name of the picture on location there, and the Union Jack rustles faintly in the slight breeze that makes the heat bearable. In 10 minutes a softie begins to wish the sun would set, it's that hot. But the show must go on, to coin a phrase. Art must struggle forward, a movie must muddle through.

The native village of thatched huts is off there by the gently rolling hills covered with scrubby vegetation. Over here is the white house, also palm-thatched, of the British trail-blazers. Farther toward Ventura boulevard is the mine—full of valuable movie ore, and providing the bone of contention in the plot. They are shooting at the doorway of the big house. Basil Rathbone, in khaki shorts, khaki blouse, sun helmet is rushing in, calling "Helen! Helen!" and is met at the door by Helen (Barbara O'Neil) in khaki, boots and hat, on ready to go.

The director, Rowland V. Lee, wears a battered straw hat, open shirt. He's waggish today, when Barbara and Basil, whose dialogue doubts to be thrown on this suggestion. These doubts were increased when some of the children, after removal of the tonsils and adenoids, regained their hearing for high tones. In others, long after tonsils and adenoids had been removed, and in those in whom the hearing for high tones was not regained, numerous nodules of adenoid-like tissue, or lymphoid tissue, were found around the lower end of the Eustachian tube.

Hollow Passageway The Eustachian tube, remember, is a hollow passageway that goes from the back of the throat to the middle ear. It provides an escape for air so that the ear drum can move freely and allow perfect hearing. But it also provides a passageway for germs in the throat, especially in the adenoid tissue that surrounds its lower end, to enter the middle ear, causing middle ear infection and disease.

Even after thorough removal of the tonsils and adenoids some islands of adenoid tissue may grow back around the throat end of the Eustachian tube and cause obstruction which alone would impair hearing. But they also threaten the middle ear with chronic inflammation and as time goes on this gets worse; in adult life it may lead to deafness.

Unnoticed at First In the beginning the deafness is unnoticed because only hearing for vibrations of 10,000 to 16,000 is impaired. Ordinary conversation or singing can be perfectly understood if there is no impairment in the middle range of from 250 to 3,000 vibrations.

Perhaps what's a bothering Mussolini these days is that he hates to see that nice, big Spanish army go to waste.

A New Yorker at Large

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Any representative selection of colorful characters in Manhattan must include these names: Sasha Stemel, Plomtos, J. M. Stewart, and the mult-tattooed Barney Quam.

Sasha is the tiger man and hero of this strange book, "Green Hell." His hobby is stalking 400 pound jaguars in the upper reaches of Bolivia with a spear and bow and arrow. On these jaunts he scores firearms. ("They're erfte!"), because they interfere with his technique, a spine-tingling bit of jungle by-play that only modern Tarzans would appreciate.

His custom is to engage the beast until it charges. Sasha calmly stands in the cat's path until it springs. Then he quickly places the spear butt on the ground, holding the point at a 45-degree angle. By the force of the beast's own charge it is impaled on the spear. Nothing to it, he assures you, if your nerves are steady and you hold the spear just right.

Sasha is a cultured Russian and speaks seven languages fluently, but to observers, with his full sandy beard and calm penetrating gaze he looks like a refugee from Swiss Family Robinson.

Then there is Plomtos, who gave up his Greenwich Village studio not long ago and went to Paris. Probably no more bizarre character ever came out of the Village than he, a consummate clown and mimic. It was at gatherings that his genius for mimic became evident. He never lost an opportunity to gently lampoon absent members of the group.

But his chief hobby is music and he has some notable concertos to get tattooed. No cost.

Each year the parade begins at the McAlpin hotel and continues down Broadway, and this in itself is a fitting thing. It was Old General McAlpin who became the band's first pipe major.

Then there is Barney Quam, tap expert, who runs a little shop in the shadow of Brooklyn Bridge, on the Manhattan side. But he doesn't sell chest murals to wandering sailors. He sells straw mats and uncured tobacco. His beautiful (?) entwined snakes, dancing Pegasus and voluptuous ladies, which he will transcribe to chest thigias, and arms, are for his friends only. If he likes you, you

Health Hints

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

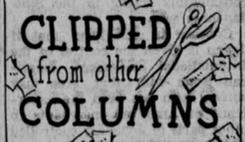

An impressive report on the prevention of deafness has just been published. It is impressive because it is based on a study which has been carried on for 15 years, because it has behind it the authority of Johns Hopkins medical school, and finally because it points out a constructive method of procedure in order to prevent deafness.

In a laboratory established in 1924 there have been accumulated a record of 15,000 tests with follow-up observations.

By means of audiometers, such as have been devised by the Bell

Telephone laboratories, very accurate tests which detect the hearing reaction to sound vibrations of from 32 to 16,384 have been made.

In Children, Too As the studies progressed it became evident that impaired hearing for high tones is extremely common in children as well as adults. The classic teaching has always been that "impaired hearing for high tones with good hearing for low tones" means an inner ear disease. But the frequency with which this condition was found, especially in children, caused some

FATHER TIME DECIDES TEARS ROLLED down Lou Gehrig's cheeks Tuesday as he kept himself out of the ball game, and there's no doubt he still feels terrible that the end of the great record has been reached.

Gehrig is too old to keep on as he used to. In about six weeks he'll reach the advanced milestone of 36 years, and he must give place to youth. The incredible record of taking part in every game his team has played for 14 years is interrupted. He holds other records almost as unapproachable, but now the magic continuity is snapped.

There's no consolation, under the circumstances, in the thought that G. B. Shaw at 83 is wowing them even yet as a playwright, that Titian painted masterfully up to his death, at 99. The Iron Man knows those figures don't apply. In baseball the oldest arrive on the shelf early. Big Alex, the patriarchal hurler, is 61 now, and that stupendous gaffer Ty Cobb is 52.

Lou Gehrig is on his way now to join those old men. It won't be easy, and he must feel a let-down. On the other hand, he will have more consolation than almost any other player we can think of. He has won not only games and records which it will delight him to remember, but he has earned the respect and good will of millions of fans. His career is an occasion for pride and not for weeping.

Mortar Board Party To End Social Season

Frank Dailey's Music To 'Stop and Go' As Women Open Purses

Dancing to the "stop and go" dance rhythms of Frank Dailey and his orchestra will climax the all-university party season Friday night when Mortar Board entertains university students and their parents at the annual May Frolic. Opening the activities of the annual Mother's Day week end, the party will take place from 9 to 12 p.m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Reversing the usual dating procedure, university women will serve as escorts. The party is informal and women will wear dinner dresses.

Dailey's "stop and go" rhythm was introduced in 1937. It is a combination of brasses, saxophones, piano, bass drums, guitar, a minute pause or "stop" and then dropping to a normal rhythmic "go" harmony.

Tickets for the party will go on sale tomorrow at 8 a.m. at the main desk of Iowa Union.

And they played lots of things, from "The Donkey Serenade" to "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Fashion Houses Answering Demand For Bright Styles in Play Clothes

With practically everyone wandering around under the first hot sun in the perennial laziness that May days bring, the whole country is turning its attention to play clothes. From the smallest of children to the most dignified of adults, we Americans believe in smart, comfortable play clothes for all and any kind of activity and the fashion houses are obliging with a bright new assortment of style.

The run-about little girl from the ages of 3 to 14 years will spend many happy hours in the illustrated Cinderella sports ensemble, combining a seersucker coverall and a butcher-boy jacket. The coverall is light striped and on hot days can be worn without the jacket. Another advantage is that the seersucker overalls may be washed and worn without the fuss and bother of ironing, a happy boon to the mother who can also find some hours for play. All the colors are fast, naturally.

An early favorite of the resort season that is moving north along with the warmer weather is the semi-slack suit. The trousers extend halfway below the knee and have a wide turned up cuff. Bright colored halters are worn with them and there is also a bolero jacket that fastens high at the throat with rope frogs. This costume is executed in a Hawaiian print in brown, blue and beige on unbleached muslin.

The gypsy carnival theme that has been so popular in the bright evening frocks is carried over into summer. One play suit has a blouse with simple squared collar of brightly striped material in rose, green, yellow and beige. A full gathered skirt of matching material is worn over simply tailored little shorts in a solid color matching one of the colors in the stripes.

The Polynesian theme is repeated in the shells printed over pale clear pastel tones in sturdy linens and cottons. Bright giddy bracelets and necklaces of shells are worn with the outfit or repeat the print and add frivolous accent.

Fishnet appears in shorts. The netting is applied over the tailored solid color shorts worn with a plain blouse. And one of those casual little turbans on your head is also made from the fishnet.

But, don't let anyone tell you that there is any one predominating theme in the play clothes for this summer. For when you

Compile Facts Of '39 Festival

This is the final tabulation of all those schools who won at least two division 1 ratings in the 14th annual high school music festival.

The top schools here are not winners of the 1939 festival. There are no winners. The excellence of each individual school cannot be easily determined. Schools who won a division 1 rating in the only event they entered, and there were many of them, achieved the finest record in relation to the festival which can be attained.

Prize Photos Printed Today

College Amateurs' Pictures Published In Collegiate Digest

The outstanding prints of student and faculty amateur photographers, selected from 485 entered in a special nationwide contest, are featured in this morning's issue of Collegiate Digest, The Daily Iowan's weekly pictorial section.

The salon edition, presenting the beautiful and the unusual masterpieces of collegiate amateurs, is an annual special feature of our rotogravure section and it pays special honor to the high artistic and technical excellence of the work of the camera artists on college and university campuses.

The prize-winning photos reproduced in the special section were selected from those entered in the largest collegiate amateur photographic contest ever conducted. The record-breaking number of entries is an accurate indication of the widespread interest in photography on campuses in all sections of the country, the contest judges stated.

Of all the photos entered in the contest, the judges stated that the winners of the scenic, candid camera and portrait divisions are the most unusual from the standpoint of composition and subject matter, and were judged to be the most perfect technically. The special honor award photo on the front page, "Grumpy," was given such a prominent position because it combined photographic excellence with great reader appeal.

The editors of Collegiate Digest, active in furthering the interests of good photography, announce that the salon edition will be featured again next year. Students of the University of Iowa are invited to enter their prize pictures in the contest.

The deadline for this third national contest will be about March 1, 1940.

TIPS on the Shopping Market

By Betty Harpel

WHAT would please her more for Mother's Day than a new summer frock! There's a style for every Mother, old or very young, at STRUB'S. She'd be impressed with a Famous Press print in silk crepe and delighted with the practical 2-piece coat frock in cool sheers. If she's the tailored type, surprise her with a Paul Sargent shirtwaist dress. We loved the new polka dot crepes. STRUB'S features a lovely crop of lace frocks. One of the most striking—a jacket frock in navy with two crisp white carnations perched on each lapel, white patent belt with a row of sparkling white buttons marching up the front. Or give Mother a handsome of smartness with a new hat. The sailors in black and white twisted ribbon are new and smart. All types at STRUB'S, from feminine veiled styles to patent-trimmed bonnets! One of the new Raftel pastel frocks as featured in Vogue is a thrilling gift for Mother's Day!

Don Moore, Senior Law, was stepping pretty high last Wednesday night when he stepped into the fire extinguisher case. Result—eight stitches taken.

At STRUB'S this week... a lovely rose free with every pair of Rollins hosiery... just grand for Mother's Day! Mother will adore Rollins' fine, smooth, flattering texture and long wearing qualities. Select her gift in 2, 3, and 4 thread... in the newest summer shades. Each pair in a smart gift folder. She'll like the added sentiment of the rose, too!

Red Cross Life-Saving Course Will Begin Monday at 7 P.M.

Baker of St. Louis Will Conduct Third Four-Day Session

Harold Baker, St. Louis, will arrive in Iowa City tomorrow to conduct a four-day life-saving course under the auspices of the Johnson county Red Cross chapter. The first session will be held in the fieldhouse tomorrow at 7 p.m.

HAROLD BAKER

Baker, who is a representative of the life saving service of the National Red Cross, is returning here for the third consecutive spring.

Sessions of the life-saving course will be held each evening from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the fieldhouse for both men and women, beginning tomorrow night and continuing to Friday.

Those eligible to attend the class are university students and other persons who have qualified for the senior Red Cross life-saving award, Coach David A. Armbruster, chairman in charge of the local Red Cross chapter's life saving service, said last night in announcing details of the swimming expert's visit.

Candidates in the course will be instructed and tested for a teaching program in beginning and advanced swimming as well as life saving and diving.

Those who successfully complete the course will be presented with a certificate which is awarded by the American Red Cross of Washington, D. C. It is signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, honorary president of the American Red Cross.

Other awards include a medalion as well as an emblem for bathing suit wear. Each of the awards shows successful completion of the course by the candidate who has qualified to teach, instruct and pass others in both beginning and advanced life-saving.

The water safety course is being conducted to replace the examiner's course, according to Coach Armbruster. The departments of physical education in the university cooperate with the Red Cross in courses which prepare men and women for the water safety course, instruction being volunteered by the staff of both departments.

Festival Side Lines

Marching Feet

When the 14th annual high school music festival closed yesterday, and well over 6,000 persons had registered.

The wind that kept sweeping in gusts across Iowa stadium yesterday afternoon created somewhat of a disturbance. There was the little boy from Albia, carrying a big flag and having a very, very long time. Then there were the numerous hats blown off, and collected by very young sideline watchers after the bands had passed.

There were surprisingly few dropped batons.

Prof. Charles B. Righter, who announced yesterday's events for the festival crowd of 10,000 who watched the marching bands, struck a common note when Clarion's class B organization, with its American flag, left the field.

"The American flag," he said, "suggests an observation. In this country we march with horns instead of guns." His statement brought instant applause.

Yesterday's crowd seemed to demand the spectacular in marching. Quietly appreciative of technique in plain marching, applause broke out as bands formed circles, strokes and rotating wheels.

Unfortunate incident: Fairfield's band got the timer's whistle right in the midst of its final formation, wherein a drawn bow of bandsmen were about to shoot an arrow of marching musicians at an apple on top of the head of one of the youngest members at the opposite end of the field.

The university's Scottish Highlanders, who presented a demonstration before the contests in Iowa stadium began yesterday afternoon, took the field without their regular drum major, Joe Belehrad, A3 of Cedar Rapids, who underwent an appendectomy yesterday morning. Substituting in his place was Owen Blexrud, A2 of Iowa City.

Everyone agreed that one of the finest bands was West Waterloo, who introduced novel march music and formations from beginning to end. Entering the field to the strains of a "hello" song, they played "Bells of St. Mary's" and used bells of different tones for a chorus. "Donkey Serenade" was another of their march tunes, and they left the field singing "Good Night Ladies."

Candid and Action Photos
The Human Side

The great popularity of action and candid photography in the U. S. is not reflected in the number of prints submitted in Collegiate Digest's special competition. Entries in this group fell far below the mark set by the other classifications but the standards maintained in the division are equally as high — as the winning prints on this page prove. The spontaneity and liveliness found in these prints reflect accurately the two chief qualities of the candid photograph that make this branch of the art so intriguing. So difficult to attain in any photograph, these pictures have the warm human interest that makes all who view them commend the fine results obtained. More often the result of a happy circumstance than of careful planning, the taking of a candid or action photo that wins top salon honors is indeed a great achievement for any photographer.

Pictorial Division

Marvels of Nature

Most popular of all photographic subjects among the collegiate amateurs of the nation are scenes of nature, for this division in our special contest had the greatest number of entries. The general excellence of the photos submitted made the task of the judges of this division particularly difficult. If space had been available, this issue would have contained almost three times the number of scenic pictures, for that large number of almost equal high quality were in the semi-finals division in the judging. In the three photos on this page we present the final selections, photos which we believe pay high compliments to the ability of college photographers to beautifully and accurately record the scenic wonders of the world about us. Many are the elements considered in judging pictorial photographs, but chief qualities considered are composition, technical excellence.

Unusual Camera Studies

Most unusual are the results obtained when the photographer sets out to create his own pictorial subjects without relying on the set limitations of an individual or a scene. With an opportunity to form his own compositions, to regulate his lighting, to control movement and form, the photographer gains results that are always interesting and usually technically perfect. Second most popular division in the Collegiate Digest competition, the still life section winners on this page reveal again the important place the student and faculty amateurs have attained in the ranks of the non-professional photographers. The chess picture is an excellent example of a composition that has been formed and lighted in such a manner that a perfectly inanimate scene assumes life and brilliance. The remarkably sharp picture of the sleeping cat is one of the most photographically perfect photos entered. The water lily print is an excellent example of an outdoor still life creation. All in all, these three photos accurately reflect the range of interest that is obtainable in still life photography.

Special mention should be made of the photograph below, for it is an excellent example of self-portraiture, a branch of portrait photography which has a special appeal to a great many college amateurs.

Coal Miners Accept Invitation To Have Talk With President

Roosevelt To Intervene In Labor Dispute

Secy. Perkins Says Operators Violated Bargaining Ethics

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP) — Conferees representing the United Mine Workers and Appalachian coal operators tonight accepted an invitation to confer tomorrow with President Roosevelt in an effort to end their long dispute over a new labor contract.

Only a few hours before, John L. Lewis, head of the UMW and of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, had put the blame on the Roosevelt administration for the long shutdown of the bituminous industry which followed the failure of operators and miners to reach a new labor agreement to replace that which expired March 31.

Hour Not Set
Acceptance of President Roosevelt's invitation to meet him in Washington was announced by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. She said the exact hour for the conference had not been set. Announcing the president's direct intervention in the dispute, Miss Perkins said she believed the operators, in refusing, as she put it, to continue operations under the old union contract pending negotiations, had made a "violation of the principle of the ethics of collective bargaining."

A Blunt Letter
In contrast to her statement, Lewis had said earlier in a blunt letter to Dr. John R. Steelman, labor department conciliator: "Failure of the Roosevelt administration to approve or sustain the mine workers' offers to keep the industry in operation caused many coal operators to believe that they had carte blanche to disembowel the mine workers union if they could. In consequence, your (labor) department must accept responsibility for its own administrative blunder."

GOLFER'S DREAM

Man Hits Eagle, Birdie, Hole in One

PONCA CITY, Okla., May 8 (AP) — Roy Miller of Tonkawa finds his golf game improves with practice. Playing here yesterday, he birdied a 287-yard par 4 No. 5 hole on his first round, shot an eagle on it his second time around and capped his performance with a hole in one on his third trip.

Hitler Scorns British Hope Of Mediation

BERLIN, May 8 (AP) — Informed German sources tonight scorned the possibility that Britain might arbitrate Polish-German differences over the free city of Danzig as Nazi press interpreters thundered that the Rome-Berlin axis now was made of steel and others must accept it or "break their teeth on it."

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper, Der Angriff, gave the latter keynote to other publications and officials after the declaration at Milan, Italy, yesterday, that Germany and Italy had decided to write their partnership into a formal military and political alliance as an instrument for peace.

"Are the English living on the moon or what?" exclaimed a high official at hints in the British house of commons that Britain might be willing to arrange arbitration in the Danzig issue.

"They certainly seem to be awfully naive. The Danzig trouble arose because Great Britain mixed in and now the same Great Britain stands piously by and offers to mediate! Can you beat it?"

"Poland accepted the British guarantee pact (Britain's pledge to help defend Polish independence) on condition that she was to decide what constitutes a case where its provisions may be invoked."

War Prevention
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ludlow (D-Ind) proposed yesterday that congress stay in session all year to keep America "out of threatened foreign entanglements."

Clark To Join S. U. I. Faculty

The easterner won his doctor of philosophy degree at Harvard and is noted for his researches in European history. One of his best works is "Franz Joseph and Bismarck" published in 1934 by the Harvard press. He will report at the university for the opening of classes Sept. 25.

German-Italian Issues Hinted

ROME, May 8 (AP) — The fascist press hinted today that Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini now were prepared to negotiate Europe's "open problems."

Virginia Gayda, authoritative editor of Il Giornale d'Italia and often a spokesman for the foreign office, indicated the readiness of the Rome-Berlin axis to negotiate was a result of the projected pact of Milan, agreed upon over the week end between German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

The new German-Italian military and political alliance was pictured by Gayda as a counter-balance to the British - French front. Gayda hinted that after achieving a balance by the weight of their combined military, economic and political resources, Germany and Italy now were ready to negotiate.

Veteran Foreign Correspondent Sees No War

BOSTON, May 8 (AP) — Nearing the end of a 50,000-mile tour through many of the world's trouble spots, James A. Mills, a foreign correspondent for The Associated Press for 22 years, said today he felt there was no immediate prospect of a general European or world war.

Although touching upon potentialities in widespread areas where political unrest and "extreme nationalism" have been evident, he said there were heavy economic factors that weighed against war in Europe. In addition, he said, the people of almost all countries were against war.

"In all parts of the world," he said, "I have heard people in the street express horror and dismay at the prospect of war."

Mills arrived here today on the American export liner Exeter, en route to New York from Palestine, Syria and Mediterranean ports. He had spent a year and a half in Japan, and many months in Soviet Russia, Manchuria, China, India, Egypt, Abyssinia and Europe.

CHARLEY ROSS? Phoenix Man Seeks To Prove Identity

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 8 (AP) — The civil action by which Gustav Blair, 69-year-old carpenter, seeks to establish his identity as kidnaped Charley Ross went to trial today in superior court.

A jury will rule on his identity. Blair seeks only to establish his identity as the central figure in the Germantown, Pa., kidnaping which shocked the nation in July, 1874. The Ross child was kidnaped when four years old and the mystery was never solved.
