Secretary Swanson's Death Leaves Cabinet Vacancy

U. S. Navy Director Dies In Virginia

Assistant Secretary, Governor L. Stark Mentioned for Post

CLAUDE A. SWANSON
Secretary of the navy

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Secretary Claude A. Swanson, 77-year-old secretary of the expanding navy, died today, leaving a gap both in President Roosevelt's cabinet and in democratic party councils.

The senate recessed after voting to hold a state funeral at the capitol Monday at 1 p. m. for the long-time legislator who entered the cabinet at the beginning of the first Roosevelt administration in 1933. Death came at 8:06 a. m. at the Blue Ridge mountain camp at Rapidan, Va., where he was spending the summer. For three years he had been in ill health, forced to turn over to aides direction of many phases of the navy's greatest peacetime expansion.

Maintained Good Standing
Nevertheless he was credited with helping maintain the navy in such good standing with congress that legislation and appropriations of record proportions met with little opposition.

Forty-four years of public life, including a term as governor of his native state, and 23 years in the senate, made the handsome, erect Virginian an elder statesman to party associates.

Assistant Secretary Charles Edison, himself ill for two months this spring, automatically became acting secretary, and decreed for all ships and navy yards a period of mourning to last until Aug. 7. President Roosevelt ordered national mourning. Flags on federal property will be flown at half staff until after the burial.

Edison to Cabinet?
There was widespread expectation in official circles that President Roosevelt would advance Edison to the cabinet. However, Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, a naval academy graduate, also was mentioned for the post, although Rep. Cannon (D-Mo) said he believed Stark desired to remain in the governorship.

Swanson suffered a cerebral hemorrhage early yesterday at the Papidan camp, which was President Hoover's summer White House and a favorite retreat for the naval secretary. Death came 25 hours later, with Mrs. Lulie H. Swanson, his second wife, at his bedside.

He had been partly incapacitated by a stroke of paralysis since a fall at his home in Washington in February, 1936, and had to be assisted to his desk at the navy department and to cabinet meetings.

Nothing Political
WASHINGTON, (AP)—Secretary Hull said yesterday the United States government had nothing political in mind when it imposed extra duties Wednesday on Italian silk exports.

Flood Toll Rises to 61

Fourteen Additional Bodies Recovered; 35 Still Missing

JACKSON, Ky., July 7 (AP)—The death toll in the eastern Kentucky mountain "flash" floods rose to 61 tonight with recovery of 14 bodies here.

By counties the total recovered bodies was:
Breathitt 34, Rowan 25 and Lee 2.

Thirty-five persons were reported missing.

While health authorities, fearful of disease that usually follows a disaster, put a 12-mile area around this stricken community under quarantine, Gov. A. B. Chandler appealed to Kentuckians to contribute money and clothing for relief of the sufferers.

"More than 4,500 families in eleven counties have been stricken by what I believe is the worst calamity of its kind ever to visit Kentucky," the governor said in a statement.

"It is impossible to describe conditions. All of the state's facilities are being used to alleviate and rehabilitate."

Japanese Bombs Damage British Gunboat in China

CHUNGKING, China, July 7 (AP)—Repercussion from Japanese bombs blew in doors of the British gunboat Falcon and kicked up water over its lower deck today when the invaders ushered in the second anniversary of the Chinese-Japanese war with a moonlight air raid on the Chinese capital.

Great Britain Will Try Out Air Defenses

Government Heads Watch East, Danzig, Balkan Danger Sites

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—Great Britain will give her air defenses a thorough test this week end while government leaders keep a careful watch on Danzig, the far east and the Balkans. The Balkans are believed by many to be Europe's next danger spot.

Chief developments today were:
1. New instructions were sent to Sir William Seeds, American ambassador to Moscow, in an effort to speed negotiations for a British-French-Soviet Russian mutual assistance pact. Diplomatic circles said the government had decided not to insist on guarantees for The Netherlands and Switzerland, one of the points holding up the talks.

2. Prime Minister Chamberlain postponed a statement he was to have made in the house of commons defining Britain's position on Danzig. Informed quarters said he now plans to make it early next week, probably Monday, and it was understood he would state that any German-supported attempt to change the status of Danzig without Poland's consent would be resisted.

There were no developments reported in Danzig to cause new alarm and government circles expressed the belief there was no immediate danger in the far east.

Some quarters, however, expressed fears Adolf Hitler soon might shift his attention from the Free City of Danzig to southeastern Europe. These fears were voiced in the Rumanian press which raised the question whether Germany might back Bulgaria's claims to Rumanian territory.

Balkan State Fears 'Axis'

Rumania Disturbed By German Efforts To Create New Bloc

BUDAPEST, July 7 (AP)—Rumania, richest of the Balkan powers, was openly alarmed to-night over what diplomatic circles described as a German plan for a "little axis" in southeastern Europe.

Rumanians charged that the cordial reception given Bulgaria's premier, George Kiosseivanoff, in Berlin this week was indication of Germany's efforts to weld Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary into a pro-axis bloc. Hungary and Bulgaria were Germany's World War allies; Yugoslavia (or Serbia) was on the other side.

Significantly, Rumanians said, Kiosseivanoff's visit coincided with attendance of Gen. Henry Werth, chief of staff of the Hungarian army, at German maneuvers.

The regent of Yugoslavia, Prince Paul, made a similar trip to Berlin last month. Enroute home to Sofia, Premier Kiosseivanoff is scheduled to confer with Prince Paul at Bled, Yugoslavia, Sunday.

Nazis Order 3 Theological Schools Closed

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—Three of Germany's 16 Protestant theological schools today were ordered closed by Oct. 1 in a move which churchmen said was part of a Nazi campaign to the church to the wall. Bernhard Rust, minister of education, issued the order.

No official explanation was issued, but the order coincided with an article in the Nazi magazine "Nordland" which declared that the study of theology was "without value and unnecessary."

Security Program Pays $844,649,116, Collects $1,483,813,360 Total in Taxes

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The federal social security system, which soon may be broadened by congress, already has paid out $844,649,116 in the three years and four months of its operation.

During this same period, a total of $1,483,813,360 has been collected in social security taxes. Most of this has gone into government bonds which have been placed in a reserve fund for old age insurance benefits. Expenditures so far have been chiefly from appropriations made by congress from general funds.

Treasury reports show that the bulk of the expenditures—$665,358,118—went to the states as grants to match state contributions for the care of the needy aged, dependent children and the blind.

There also has been an expenditure of $17,844,954 in payment of benefit claims arising from the death of workers insured in the old age insurance system.

Second Former L. S. U. Official Arrested for Embezzlement

Caldwell Accused Of Diverting Funds For Private Uses

NEW ORLEANS, July 7 (AP)—A charge of diverting WPA materials and labor to private uses brought the arrest today of a second former member of troubled Louisiana State university's official family.

Bulky George Caldwell, former university building superintendent, was accused on this score in the first formal charges growing out of a 10-day-old federal grand jury inquiry into WPA affairs at L. S. U.

The 300-pound contractor, who carried on an extensive home-building business outside his $6,000-a-year university job, was arrested when he left the jury room. He pleaded innocent and was released under $10,000 bond.

Almost simultaneously with the latest of the many developments which followed Dr. James Monroe Smith's resignation as L. S. U. president, a second member of the school's board of supervisors resigned.

Gov. Earl K. Long, who succeeded Leche just as L. S. U.'s troubles were coming to light 12 days ago, accepted the resignation of L. P. Abernathy, who said his duties as chairman of the state highway commission made it impossible for him to give proper attention to the school board work.

Organized Group Threatens Neutrality Measure Filibuster

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The administration campaign to revise the neutrality act at this session of congress suffered a stunning, if not fatal, blow today with a statement from the opposition that an organized group of 34 senators stood ready to fight such legislation to the bitter end.

In the opinion of many persons at the capitol, the development amounted to a death knell. It was immediately assumed that the group would filibuster if necessary. And it was pointed out that 34 senators, or half that number, could keep a filibuster going for months, if not indefinitely.

Administration leaders, while disposed to consider the 34 an over-estimate of the strength of the opposition, nevertheless could not conceal their gloom.

The administration wants to repeal the embargo which the present neutrality law imposes upon sales of certain war materials to belligerent nations. In its place it proposes to impose a system under which American markets would be open to nations at war, provided the purchasers took title to the goods before they were shipped. In addition, it desires authority for the president to fix war zones into which American ships and citizens would venture only at their own risk.

Its argument has been that the most constructive course is to do all possible to prevent the outbreak of a war abroad. It believes that its neutrality legislation would act as a deterrent upon Germany and Italy, since it would leave American markets open, in case of war, to France and Great Britain, because of the latter's control of the seas.

Cleveland Man Confesses One 'Torso' Slaying

Authorities Believe Suspect Implicated In Similar Murders

CLEVELAND, July 7 (AP)—A short, heavily-muscled brick-layer tonight signed a confession of one of Cleveland's 12 "torso murders." Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell announced. Authorities continued to grill the prisoner in an effort to solve the deaths of other butchered victims.

"We think he is involved in at least two more," O'Donnell said. "He signed a confession but I don't think all of it's truthful. When he signs one we're satisfied with, we'll charge him with first degree murder."

The prisoner is "Frank Dolezal, a Bohemian," the sheriff said.

O'Donnell asserted the 52-year-old unmarried suspect admitted killing Mrs. Florence Polillo, 42, by knocking her unconscious with his fist and then cutting off her head with a butcher knife. The body was then dissected, the sheriff quoted his prisoner as saying, the hands, legs and an arm being thrown in Lake Erie and the remaining parts dumped on a rubbish heap 250 yards away from his four-room apartment.

Dolezal was manacled and taken today to both the lake site and rubbish heap to point out where the parts of the body were thrown.

"He showed us where he threw the torso on the rubbish heap," O'Donnell continued, "and then we got neighbors to point out where it was found, and it was right on the very spot."

Sheriff O'Donnell asserted, however, he was seeking a second signed confession "because I want one that will stand up in court."

WPA Workers Leave Jobs

Additional Thousands Protest New Hours, Sub-Union Wage Cuts

By The Associated Press
Works projects administration employees in unnumbered thousands left their jobs throughout the country yesterday in protest against lengthened hours, while the New York WPA administration asked the U. S. attorney to determine whether law violations were involved.

Estimates of those idle ranged beyond 100,000, but WPA officials generally disagreed with American Federation of Labor and workers alliance reports on the extent of the strike, which grew from the new federal relief act fixing flat wages for a 130-hour month irrespective of union scales.

In Washington, Col. F. C. Harrington, head of the WPA, said the work stoppage was "growing, but not very rapidly." He and others of the WPA declined to refer to the situation as a "strike."

Among some members of congress, revision of the act was considered.

'Stop Helping Japan!' - Judd

By D. MAC SHOWERS
Daily Iowan Campus Editor
If America is to emerge from "eternal depression," she must stop playing favorites in the Japanese-Chinese war.

With this indictment of America as a whole—an indictment "for her own good and her own protection"—Dr. Walter H. Judd, medical missionary to China for over 10 years, delivered the third summer university lecture on Old Capitol campus last night.

New Claims For America

F. D. R. Commissions Rear Admiral Byrd For Antarctic Trip

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, conqueror of the two poles, was commissioned by President Roosevelt today to lead an expedition which will stakeout American claims to a vast area of the Antarctic continent.

The president directed government departments to expand every effort to equip and dispatch the expedition at the earliest possible date. Byrd said he thought it could sail between Oct. 1 and 15.

The expedition will undertake to map and clinch for the United States Antarctic lands on which the Byrd and Lincoln Ellsworth polar expeditions of recent years planted the American flag. It is regarded here as important because of the possible value of the southernmost continent of future air travel.

citizens by the hundreds "are every bit American but the pilots."

"If we discontinued completely the exportation of all our goods to Japan—less than three-tenths of one per cent of our entire foreign trade—it would be the biggest single contribution we could make to the world and civilization," he declared.

According to Dr. Judd, our exports to Japan represent one-third of all her goods. If this support were stopped, she could not continue her war in China. "She is scarcely getting along now," he pointed out.

From the American viewpoint, Dr. Judd explained, democracy is on trial and it is up to the people of America to decide what to do.

"If we can wake up to the situation and act," he said, "act now—we can save our nation, save China, and probably find a cure for the American depression," which, he exclaimed, is "eternal with the present situation."

The foreign missionary-doctor allayed all fears of a conflict with Japan in case of such American action. He pointed out that since Japan "can only break even" carrying on her war with American aid, she could never carry it on against American opposition.

Much less would be her chances of harming China further, he said. Republican opponents doubted the legality of continuing President Roosevelt's power to devalue the gold dollar and operate a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund. The

Strike May Delay Models

Corporation Suspends Income Security Plan Of G. M. Employees

DETROIT, July 7 (AP)—General Motors corporation, saying that a strike of skilled workers "threatens definitely to delay production of 1940 models" and bring idleness to "thousands of production workers," announced tonight immediate suspension of its employe income security plan.

The plan provided for advances by the corporation to employes "to avoid the complete loss of income during these periods of enforced idleness." It was designed to help workers during the slack seasons in the automotive industry and did not apply in case of strikes "or circumstances beyond the control of the corporation."

William S. Knudsen, G. M. president, issued a statement saying that the strike, called by the CIO United Automobile workers and applying only to skilled workers preparing for new model production, "threatens definitely to delay production of 1940 models and cause thousands of productive workers to suffer unnecessarily in layoffs and the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in wages."

Bandits Get Cash, Checks In Cedar Rapids

CEDAR RAPIDS, July 7 (AP)—In a daring holdup, two bandits this afternoon took $99.96 in cash and several checks from a grocery store operated by Amil Farah. The bandits forced Farah's daughter, Dolores, to open the cash register, which they rifled, taking $52.21 in cash. When Farah entered the store, they took from him his wallet containing $74, of which $26.25 was in checks.

The two men escaped in a car parked nearby, in which a woman was reported waiting. Neighbors said the car had Illinois license.

Hail F. D. R. Money Victory

Senators Robert Wagner and Alben Barkley

Presidential powers over the monetary system, lost several days ago by an adverse vote, are once again restored by a slim senate margin. Republican opponents doubted the legality of continuing President Roosevelt's power to devalue the gold dollar and operate a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund. The

Miraculous Escape From Death

Miraculously, Pilot C. B. Thomason escaped death when his plane flew into these high tension wires as he attempted to land at San Diego, Cal., burst into flames and left only the framework, as shown. Thomason shinned down the pole at right before the ship caught fire.

Intelligence—Its Nature AND NURTURE!

DR. GEORGE STODDARD sat on the speakers platform at the NEA convention at Palo Alto last night and listened to one of his most noted colleagues, Dr. Lewis M. Terman, ridicule more than two decades of meticulous research in the Iowa child welfare research station laboratories.

If we know Dr. Stoddard as well as we think we do, he sat there unblushing.

It isn't the first time that Iowa psychologists have been asked for proof of their claims that intelligence can be nurtured, in spite of the fact that it's born in people. It isn't the first time they've had to show proof of their claims that here is a variation in the inherited intelligence of individuals, making it possible to raise a person's I.Q. through a stimulating environment.

Dr. Terman certainly knows that even the Iowa scientists were skeptical of what their figures showed when they stumbled upon this new fact regarding age-old theories. He must know, too, that these new facts were accepted by the Iowa scientists themselves only after files of case histories were built to an extent that nothing but the new truths could be believed.

Discoveries which disagree with age-old beliefs are always looked upon skeptically for years before the world believes. Dr. Terman must know that Iowa research has met every challenge placed before it in the past. We believe that Dr. Stoddard will find no insurmountable difficulty in meeting Dr. Terman's challenge.

Dr. Stoddard has gone to every educational and scientific meeting he has attended in recent years equipped for battle. His victories have been decisive.

We admit that Dr. Terman will be hard to convince. We believe that Dr. Stoddard will convince him.

Japan: Diplomatic Problem Child

THERE is such a startling difference in the sentiments expressed by Japanese ambassadors-of-good-will at the New York world's fair and by the reports of exchanges between our state department and the Japanese government as to cause bewilderment.

Speaking at the ceremony of transferring "the flame of friendship" from the lauro shrine to the fair pavilion, Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador, said:

"This gesture is a symbol of an end toward which I have devoted my most earnest efforts during the past seven years: the promotion and consolidation of friendship between the United States and Japan."

The ambassador spoke of our friendship based on "mutual respect and mutual understanding."

The Tientsin difficulties would make almost any American feel that Japan was not a friend but an enemy of the United States.

Our state department officials must be as puzzled as the public at times on how to take this Oriental empire. From day to day we know not whether to expect a gesture of friendship or of enmity.

What appears to be a dilemma is not at all. The explanation of Japanese actions is found in news stories of this sort:

"Japanese leaders plan an effort to overthrow the cabinet unless government leaders reconsider their refusal to enter an outright military alliance with Germany and Italy, it was said in authoritative quarters today."

"It was said that military chiefs had decided to spend two weeks in a campaign of argument, hoping to induce the government to ally the country fully with the 'axis' nations."

Japan is both friend and enemy of the United States. Japan is a land of peace and a land of war—only because Japan has a dual government.

On the one hand there is a weak civil government that wants the friendship of the democracies and wants to follow a policy of peace. On the opposite hand is a strong, power-drunk military government that easily overcomes the rules and commands of the civil government.

It is this militaristic unit that wants to ally with the fascist states; it is the militaristic unit which has carried on the shameless rape of China.

How a democracy is to deal with such a nation is a problem requiring the greatest intelligence of her statesmen. It is difficult to condemn an entire nation, knowing that in that nation there are some elements of the highest in man.

The Mississippi's Hey-Day: Past or Future?

THE LOCKS of the Mississippi river were opened for the first time in 22 years Thursday to an old-fashioned packet boat making its way from St. Louis to St. Paul.

Included among the voyagers were several well known Americans eager for the thrill of beauty along the old Mississippi. They had the same destination in traveling as did the thousands who used the river in the early days when it was the only available means of transportation. But they also had the security of knowing they would reach St. Paul safely with none of the dangers of the upper rapids and unmarked perils that were part of the pioneer's voyage.

But more significant than the appearance of this picturesque old packet is the revival of commercial transportation on the Mississippi river. With the government's strategic roller dams and improvements all along the river it does appear feasible that commercial river traffic may again enter a paying era.

Government figures for last week show that river traffic through the new channel was the heaviest in seven years. With the encouragement lent by the government it may be that the pride of the Mississippi is a thing of the future, not a memory of the past.

Motorists! If you drive so fast that you cannot stop your car in the distance you can see clearly ahead, you are subject to arrest. This means the law requires slower driving at night and on side roads.

Italy must be a happy country again now that all those troops who weren't in Spain have returned home.

YOUTH AND THE COMMUNISTS

Literally-minded people may find the reports of proceedings of the American Youth Congress puzzling. On Monday the congress voted down a resolution to condemn communism as "opposed to the principles of a belief in God, the inalienability of human rights, private ownership of property and internal peace."

Following this a group representing 14 of the 135 participating organizations walked out. On Tuesday the remaining delegates passed a substitute resolution supporting the basic freedoms, keeping the doors of the congress open "to all young people, regardless of race, creed, religion or political label, whether republican, democratic, socialist, communist, fascist or any other kind," but also denouncing "all forms of dictatorship, regardless of whether they be communist, fascist, Nazi or any other type."

Surprisingly, this resolution received support from communists, one of whom, Mr. Gil Green of the Young Communist League, stated that "communism does not stand for dictatorship but for the greatest democracy," and pledged his organization against "all forms of dictatorship." Mr. Green did not explain what is meant by the "dictatorship of the proletariat" at the present moment, nor just how Joseph Stalin enforces his living. However, the reconciliation of Russian communism with American notions of democracy is his worry, not ours.

Taken at their face value, the words of the resolution are good words, regardless of Mr. Green's attitudes. They acknowledge every one's right to talk. They denounce forms of government which make free discussion, in Youth Congresses or elsewhere, a crime. If the young people, who will soon enough be middle-aged people, cling to these beliefs, we can be easy in our minds.

'SAY AH-H'

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By George Tucker

NEW YORK — I have been trapped in New York against my will, foregoing a journey through the Mohawk country to fish with Mel Graff, the comic strip tradesman, and so if my views are tainted with acid, forgive me.

At this moment I should be 200 miles up-state, in an old pair of pants, trolling for walleye in the Saandanda watershed. My pants are still old, but I'm not in a boat. No far-flung panorama of upland countryside meets my eye. I'm looking at a fleet of trucks with "meat" painted on their sides.

But the only place this moon will wane will be behind the Flatiron building. The scent in my nostrils will be the Fulton street fishmarket. The trail I follow will be Broadway.

On quiet nights in the Mohawk valley the ghosts of immemorial Indian braves rise silently from the grass and slip through the trees. They build campfires. They spear fish in the moonlight. Occasionally one of them says, "Ugh, ketchum squaw," and sets his eyes on some dark maid.

On quiet nights in Central Park, or on nights not so quiet in the dime-a-dance halls, and on crowded bus-tops, pale-face braves, ketchum squaws, too. Only they do it a little differently. They adopt a softer tone than the primitive "Ugh." They say it with flowers, or a trip to the movies. But it all adds up to the same thing.

To reach the Mohawk country from New York you drive up the Hudson, past the Bear Mountain bridge, past Hyde Park, the President's home, and past West Point. After a while you come to Albany. You turn left. You head toward Amsterdam, and after awhile you come to the Mohawk river.

It isn't the same river the Indians knew. A hard paved road runs along its bank, and every few miles its waters tumble over locks and dams. The Mohawk now is a power river. It generates electricity for factories and industry and entire communities. But the communities are widely scattered.

There are rolling fruit farms. It is an apple country, and a country of hills and valleys.

Along the highway embedded in rock are bronze plaques reciting legends of the Indian wars. "On this spot eleven settlers from Germantown were slain and scalped by the Mohawks."

"Here rested Bromley and his raiders after an all-night running fight with the Indians." ... If you gathered them up and put them into a book they would make good reading.

Sacandaga itself is man-made. It is a vast reservoir covering a score of miles. They say its waters cover an old town, and when fishermen come in with pike or bass they like to say, "I got this one at Third and Main street. And this one I hooked on the front steps of the First National bank. But, man, you should have seen the one I snagged in front of the Methodist church. He dragged me clear over to the warehouse before he got away."

Enough of this—I'm spluttering tears all over the typewriter.

There is some definite indication for it, in excoriated or irritated skin.

The less interference with the nose and mouth and eyes the better. Some mothers make a severe ritual of this part of the toilet.

Sunshine. In the summer the sun bath can be given the baby beginning at the age of two weeks. The best time of day to expose the baby to the sun's rays in the summer is before 10 o'clock in the morning. The baby's head should be shaded. On very hot days the sun bath should be omitted entirely. The length of the sun bath will depend on the day's temperature—it is easy to overdo it.

Exercise. Babies require exercise just the same as adults. Move its legs and arms around, pull it and make it roll itself over.

And some of the streams' proponents argue that our streams' fish couldn't survive but for pollutionary stuff to feed on. It may be bad for humans, though.

There's a National Anti-Steel Trap association, of long standing, with headquarters in Washington. Its contention is that steel trapping is an inhuman way of catching wild animals. It doesn't object to spring-trapping of mice, however.

Stewart Says—

Water Pollution Open to Argument As Bill Faces Congress

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist—Do you fish? Lots of folks don't. Do you bathe? It's quite common. Do you, occasionally, drink water?—even if only as a chaser? It's almost universal.

Anyway you don't want it polluted. Well, there's an anti-pollution bill pending in congress.

General Manager Kenneth A. Reid of the Izaak Walton League of America recently broadcast a "press release" on the subject. I haven't seen the newspapers picking it up much. This is an injustice to Manager Reid. I've seldom read a more snappy "release" by any press agent.

Does Mr. Reid plug for the pending measure? Believe me, he does not.

He says it's pro-pollution. He says that, if we try to un-pollute our streams by the proposed method, we'll pollute the oceans that said streams trickle into. He says that sharks and whales and seals and walrus and clams and oysters, as well as trout and catfish, will suffer wholesale from the effects of that law, if it's enacted. He says we'll contract contagious diseases from washing ourselves with such water; that we'll half-poison ourselves if we consume any of it internally.

Newspapers Scared, What? I don't wonder that the papers are hesitant to print what Manager Reid alleges.

He provides a list of our leading national water polluters—and, take it from me; they're prominent and influential people. If a paper mentions them, and they gang up on it and resentfully pull out their advertising, that paper may as well discontinue publication.

Who does he refer to? Well:

The United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturers' association, the Manufacturing Chemists' association, the National Paper Board association, the Institute of American Meat Packers, the Tamers' Council of America, the American Iron and Steel Institute and the American Petroleum Institute among others.

He avers that these outfits (plus a few more) do 99 per cent of the water polluting—and yet they're the foremost sponsors of our anti-polluting legislation.

The conclusion he draws is that they want to keep the water polluted—maybe not maliciously but for their own selfish purposes.

Is It Deliberate? Personally I'm not sure that all this influence is deliberately pollutive.

A packing house naturally has to have some place to discharge offal into. Ditto, I suppose, tanners and miscellaneous industries—waste their waste. Even municipal sewers—their outlets.

Possibly it could be done by incineration. I don't know.

But the Izaak Walton league is red-hot on the subject. Manager Reid lists anti-pollution supporters:

His own league, conservation organizations, women's clubs, educational groups, sportsmen's clubs, fishing clubs, the American Nature association, Audubon societies, the American Wildlife institute, the American Fisheries society.

There's a National Anti-Steel Trap association, of long standing, with headquarters in Washington. Its contention is that steel trapping is an inhuman way of catching wild animals. It doesn't object to spring-trapping of mice, however.

And some of the streams' proponents argue that our streams' fish couldn't survive but for pollutionary stuff to feed on. It may be bad for humans, though.

HEALTH HINTS

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Aside from the infant diet, the upper part of the spine extending the fingers up to support the head.

A daily tub bath should be given after the cord separates. The best time for the bath is half to three quarters of an hour before the second morning feeding.

Water Temperature: The temperature of the bath water should be 98 to 100 degrees F. After the first three months this can be reduced to 95 degrees. Use just enough soap to insure cleanliness. Never leave the baby in the water more than three or four minutes. Dry with a clean, soft cotton towel. Never use powder on the skin unless the greatest number of infant deaths come from two sources—improper feeding, and infectious disease. The feeding problem we have already considered.

General bodily care of the baby will do much to minimize the dangers of infection. Infection comes from contact with other people, dirty clothing, dirty skin, from insects, such as mosquitoes, flies and fleas.

Good Advice: "Keep other people away from babies as much as possible," says Dr. O. F. Bradford, an experienced pediatrician, "especially those who are sick or who have colds or sore throats."

Clean: clothes an decan bed clothes made of cotton are fundamental requirements. They should be thoroughly washed in soapy water and rinsed four times in clear water and then boiled from ten to 20 minutes. This scrupulous cleanliness prevents man infections in the form of boils, colds and diarrheas. It also prevents excoriated buttocks and diaper rash.

The baby's bath. First, how to lift the baby: Until the baby is able to sit up alone—that is, until the sixth or seventh month—he should never be lifted without supporting the head and spine. Place the palm of the right hand under the buttocks with the fingers extended up to the spine, and put the left palm under

Balloting for College All-Star Football Positions Begins Today

Balloting will open today in the nation wide poll to select a fitting team to oppose the New York Giants, champions of the National Professional Football league, in Chicago's annual charity game at Soldier's field the night of August 20.

The contest is sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in conjunction with The Daily Iowan and 265 newspapers throughout the nation. Voting for places on the all-star team, expected to number 60 to 65 players, will continue until midnight, July 22. After that a poll will be held to select the coaching staff.

The two ends, two tackles, two guards, center, quarterback, two halfbacks and fullback receiving the greatest number of votes will start the game against the professional titleholders, providing they accept invitations and come through training in good condition. After the opening kickoff, coaches may make any changes they desire.

The all-star professional series has enticed from 75,000 to 85,000 customers through the turnstiles for each contest. So far the collegians have an edge, having won two, while the professionals were capturing one, and holding the money players even in two games. Last year the all-stars handed the Washington Redskins a 28-16 beating.

Last year, The Daily Iowan presented an open ballot. This year, however, assurance from Chicago that Frank Balazs, crashing fullback on last year's Hawkeye team, will receive a tremendous vote in his home town where his popularity is great, has prompted the placing of his name on the ballot as a reminder to fans that he has a good chance of being selected on the collegian team.

Should the reader wish to vote for another player for the position, however, Balazs' name may be scratched over and the voter's favorite substituted.

The campaign, so far as The Daily Iowan is concerned, will be one of placing Balazs on the squad. This is done simply because the paper feels that Frank has an edge on the other Hawkeye candidates in the matter of having active organizations campaigning for his election to the squad.

Not since 1936, when Dick

Crayne carried Iowa's colors into the game, has a Hawkeye player been represented on the all-star team. Several candidates have received heavy support in the meantime, but none have made the grade.

Every Iowa football fan is urged, therefore, to clip the ballot from The Daily Iowan or secure a ballot at Racine's cigar store number one or Whetstone's Drug store number one.

Ballot boxes will be placed in the above locations as well as The Daily Iowan so as to make voting as simplified as possible.

It must be kept in mind that each ballot must necessarily have the voter's signature or the ballot will be cast out.

VOTE TODAY!

Today Is The Day To Start Voting for All-Star Team

Mail or Bring Your Vote to The Daily Iowan, Racine's No. 1 or Whetstone's No. 1

By ARCH WARD

This is the day the United States begins its annual voting spree. For widespread interest, enterprise and enthusiasm the coast to coast football poll which opens this morning takes its place with national, state and civic elections.

There are no racial, religious or geographical restrictions in this contest. It is open to everyone who wants to have a voice in naming the team of All America collegians who will face the New York Giants, champions of the National Professional league, in Chicago's sixth annual charity game at Soldier's field the night of Aug. 30.

All you have to do is survey the field, jot down your selections on a postcard or letter and mail them to the nearest newspaper (The Daily Iowan) which is serving as a qualifying center. There are 327 polling places in the United States. They are located in 47 states and the District of Columbia. Delaware is the only state not included in the poll.

This is your opportunity to show you know as much about the comparative worth of the national gridiron headliners as sports writers, coaches or other pickers of All America teams. It is the only event in sport which recognizes the competency of the fans in shaping the personnel of a squad. Until the teams line up for the opening kickoff at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 30, the fans are in complete command. They will name the starting line up and also the staff of coaches who will lead the collegians.

The player poll opening today will continue for two weeks. The two ends, two tackles, two guards, center, quarterback, two halfbacks and fullback who receive the greatest number of votes will start the game, provided they accept the invitation to join the squad and survive the training workouts in good physical condition. In the event one or more athletes are unable for any reason whatever to take their place in the opening battle front, the man or men next in line in the national poll must be moved up to fill the vacancies.

It has happened before and probably will again that some of the players chosen by the fans are not the best the nation produced. The coaches find this out in the three weeks of scrimmage which precedes the game. They are obliged, however, to respect the voice of the fans. If the voters—the people who pay the freight—want Joe Bloke of Union Seminary at right tackle instead of Spike McAdams of Yale, Joe Bloke will be at tackle. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the All Star game, never has broken faith with the fans and that policy will be continued as long as the enterprise endures.

Once the coaches have fulfilled their obligations to the millions who cast votes in the poll they are free to make substitutions as they see fit.

Every voter must sign his address as well as his name in submitting his ballot. All votes are cleared through newspapers or radio stations and these agents make every effort to guarantee the honesty of the count. It frequently happens that organizations supporting a particular candidate turn in as many as 5,000 votes to the Tribune at one time. The contest department checks a certain number, probably five per cent, at random. If they are found honest, the entire block is recorded in the players' total. If five per cent is found fraudulent, all 5,000 are discarded.

Only players who completed their collegiate competition last season are eligible for the game. A list of leading candidates will be printed from time to time to help guide voters whose only desire is to recruit the strongest possible team to oppose the New York Giants. It is understood that a fan is not limited to the published list in arriving at his line up.

It makes no difference to the sponsors from where the players come. No expense or inconvenience is considered in responding to the wishes of the fans. The players you want you will get. We seek the best talent the nation provides, because it will take the best to whip the champions of the National Professional league. The New York Giants never have lost an All Star game.

Get busy today. Send your lineups to Sports Editor, The Daily Iowan. You can make 11 young Americans happy by electing them to the greatest event in sport.

Red Ruffing Charged With Third Defeat

Victory Is Third In Last Four Games Over World Champs

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — For the third time in their last four meetings the Boston Red Sox managed to trample on the World Champion New York Yankees today, 4 to 3, to give big Red Ruffing his third defeat.

The scoring was dribbled along no more than a run in inning for either club and even though the Bronx Bombers outhit their foes 10 to 8, Jake Wade and Emmerson Dickman kept out of serious trouble.

Dickman went to the mound in the sixth when the Yankees tied up the score with a run on a walk, a single and Joe Gordon's double. He retired the champions with the bases loaded and got credit for the victory when the Sox pushed across the deciding tally in the eighth.

Daffiness Boys Defeat Giants

Score 3 to 2 Victory Before Record Crowd Of 36,444 Partisans

BROOKLYN, July 7 (AP) — Peace—but not quiet—reigned at Ebbets field today while 36,444 iron-lunged fans, the largest crowd of the season in Brooklyn, watched their beloved Dodgers beat the Giants, 3 to 2, in the opener of their red-hot four-game series.

The park was crammed with cops in anticipation of a busy afternoon, but nothing happened to mar the occasion, the local rooters apparently having been cowed by glaring signs warning them that the first spectator to toss a bottle would be judged.

The victory, strengthening the Dodgers' hold on third place in the National league was the eighth straight pitched by Whitlow Wyatt, 30-year-old rookie from Milwaukee. He has yet to be defeated. The Dodgers scored all their runs off Cliff Melton in the first two frames when they ganged him for five of their seven hits.

Brown Bomber Seeking 'Revenge' From Bob Pastor and Tony-Pandy Tommy Farr

Blots in Record Worry Champ

Signs Papers For Pastor Contest In Detroit Next Fall

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—Determined to clear up what he considers the only two blots on his illustrious record, Champion Joe Louis has persuaded Mike Jacobs to let him fight Bob Pastor in September, probably at Detroit, and then give Tommy Farr, the Welshman, his lumps one night next winter.

The Pastor fight was assured today when the young New Yorker, who stayed 10 rounds with Louis in 1937, dropped down from his home at Saratoga Springs to sign the papers. He and the Brown Bomber will go at it for 20 rounds this time. The tentative date is Sept. 21 and the site Briggs stadium in Detroit, though the details are to be ironed out here Monday in a conference between Promoter Jacobs and officials of the Detroit baseball club.

Far-Sighted

So certain is Louis that he will stop Pastor this time that he already is looking forward to another tussle with Farr, who confounded him for 15 rounds here in the fall of 1937. Promoter Mike, ever anxious to appease his best meat ticket, virtually has promised the champion another shot at Farr's chin and already has begun negotiating with the Welshman's American manager, Joe Gould.

Louis, it was learned, has been demanding that his managers give him return matches with Pastor and Farr for more than a year, and that he fought his last three title defenses against John Henry Lewis, Jack Roper and Tony Galento under serious protest. He didn't have anything against any of that trio, but feels that he has a grievance against Pastor and Farr.

Louis, our informant hastened to explain, is not ducking his promise to meet the winner of the Tony Galento-Lou Nova bout, which will be held either here or in Philadelphia on Sept. 7. That merely will be put off until next summer, Nova having finally decided to wait that long for his crack at the titleholder and Galen-

Error Paves Way as Cubs Defeat Pirates

PITTSBURGH, July 7 (AP)— An eleventh inning error by Cather Ray Berres of the Pirates lowered the bars for a Chicago Cub victory, 5-4, today and sent the Cubs up to fifth place in the league standings and the Pirates back to sixth.

In the eleventh Stanley Hack raced from first to third when Berres threw low in an effort to catch him on base. Hack had singled with one out.

Billy Herman, who earlier scored the game for the Cubs with a diving stop of a grounder, sacrificed to Chuck Klein and scored Hack.

In the tenth, Paul Waner had singled with two out and Fletcher on second. Herman dove for the ball, knocked it down, threw to Hartnett and caught Fletcher with the winning run.

Hawkeye Highlights

Way back in 1931, Ed Gordon made the best broad jump of his career at the University of Iowa—25 feet 4 3/8 inches — he won the Olympic title in 1932 at 25 feet 3 1/4 inch. . . thereafter he remained in competition although seldom clearing 24 feet. . . but won two National A.A.U. indoor titles. . . Gordon, now 31 years old and living in New York, achieved 25 feet 1 1/2 inches for third in the outdoor national A.A.U. July 4. . . imagine nearly equalling his best personal record eight years later. . . he will try for the 1940 American Olympic team. . . made it in 1928 and 1932, missed in 1936 when he could jump only 24 feet 1-4 inch.

Taking a football team on trips will be somewhat of a new experience for Dr. Eddie Anderson. . . his Holy Cross teams played most of their games at home. . . in 1938 the Crusaders went only to Pittsburgh. . . Iowa's '39 team will travel to Ann Arbor, Madison, Lafayette and Evanston.

Iowa was one of eight Big Ten universities to win a team championship in 1938-39. . . for the first time in several years no titles were shared. . . Hawks were baseball champs. . . Wisconsin and Purdue failed to break in. . . Michigan was the leader with three crowns. . . Some 75 men are studying six-man football under Kurt Lenser in Iowa's two-week short course. . . work ends July 14.

The usual "flood of entries" is expected for the Mississippi Valley tennis tournament at the University of Iowa July 12 to 15. . . only seven men entered up to Friday afternoon. . . players are notoriously slow to file nominations.

Outfielder Sold

TORONTO, July 7 (AP)—Toronto baseball club officials announced today that Ted Petoskey, outfielder, had been sold to the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association. Petoskey has been used but little by the Toronto clubs in their International league games lately.

This sale leaves the Leafs with four outfielders, all left-handed hitters.

Bagby Released

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox tonight released Pitcher James Bagby under option to Little Rock in the Southern association and recalled Pitcher Bill Sayles from the same club.

Bagby was a freshman star of last year in the American league, winning 15 and losing 11, but in recent weeks had been unable to show anything like his old form. He pitched only three complete games this season and had a record of three games won and four lost.

Sayles will join the club when it goes west after the all-star game next week.

Three-Eye League Scores

Cotton Surprises

The biggest surprise of all was the presence of Henry Cotton at 298. The glamour guy of British golf failed signally in this tournament, trimming par only once in four rounds. The "Cotton-is-greater-than-Jones" society is not in session tonight.

Bracketed with the majestic Jim at this plebeian figure was Henry Bruen, the young Irishman who made the best finish among the amateurs. He made a tremendous noise in the qualifying rounds with a pair of 69's but, like Cotton, he beat par only once after that and took a 75 and a 76 today.

Girl Scout Session at Camp Cardinal To Open Tomorrow

Camp Periods Scheduled To Close July 23

Over 25 Local Girls Already Registered For First Session

Twenty five members of local Girl Scout troops have registered for the sessions of Camp Cardinal which will open tomorrow, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mrs. Hugh Carson, local acting Girl Scout secretary, who is in charge of camp registration.

The camp session, which will close July 23, is divided into two equal periods. The camp is located two miles west of Coralville at the Boy Scout Rotary camp. The girls will sleep in tents and eat in a screened dining room. A lodge with fireplace and a craft house will provide shelter for rainy days.

Gladys Merriam of Spearfish, S. D., is camp director. Other staff members include Mrs. Janet Fesler, Mrs. Dewey B. Stuit, Katherine Corso, Laura Mae Miller, Mrs. Elizabeth Schilling and Billie Young. The leaders have been at the camp for several days preparing for the session.

Camp will be divided into two units of 16 girls each with two adults in each unit. Swimming will be in charge of a Red Cross life saving examiner. A registered nurse is a regular staff member.

Visitors will be welcome in camp Wednesday from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Registrations for the session which opens tomorrow may still be made at the Girl Scout office, room 8 in the Schneider building, from 10 to 12 o'clock this morning and from 1:30 to 4:30 this afternoon.

Registrations for the second session which will open July 16 may be made next week.

Girls who have registered for the first session include, unit 1, Elizabeth Nolan, Margaret Lee, Lucile Kron, Mary Barbara Kubic, Betty Douglas, Virginia Neuzil, Betty Schaeffer, Barbara Baldrige, Barbara Mary Kanak and Lois Jean Miller, all of Iowa City.

Unit 2, Betty Armbruster, Dorothy Armbruster, Gloria Shone, Eunice McLaughlin, Nedra Smith, Betty Pokorney, Marcella Asenbrenner, Ruth Hay, Mary Evelyn Neuzil, all of Iowa City, and Lois Buchwalter of Riverside.

Two Iowa City girls will attend both camps. They are Gertrude Futterbaugh, unit 1, and Marian Wendth, either unit 1 or 2. Two Riverside girls, Marjorie Gwinn and Glenys Marner will attend the first session, they will be in either unit 1 or 2.

The camp committee includes Mrs. Kirk Porter, chairman; and Mrs. Helen McMahon, Mrs. James W. Jones and Mrs. Carson.

Gladys Mills Wed Sunday

Bride Was Student At Iowa University; To Live in Davenport

St. Mark's Lutheran church in Davenport was the setting for the marriage of Gladys Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Mills of Long Grove, to Lloyd E. Pollitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pollitz of Davenport, Sunday.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon fashioned with a shirred bodice, long sleeves and a round neckline edged with lace. The skirt flared into a sweeping train. Her finger-tip veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses, delphinium and baby breath.

The bridesmaids were Catherine Wick, Nancy Patton, Thora Pollitz and Rachel Smith. Norma Mills, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Henry Reichert served as best man.

Mrs. Pollitz was graduated from Davenport high school and attended the university. For the past year she has been a teacher in the Long Grove school.

Mr. Pollitz was graduated from the Davenport high school and is employed by the Sherwin-Williams company.

After a wedding reception at the Mills home the couple left on a motor trip to California. They will make their home in Davenport.

Picnic Planned For Electa Circle

Members of the Electa circle of Kings Daughters will meet for their annual picnic luncheon Thursday at Hillcrest.

Mrs. Jessie Saunders will serve as hostess. Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. May Flynn, 9162, according to the committee, who desires full attendance.

...only this time it's paddle your canoe as these three university women seek relief from the week's heat wave in a canoe on Iowa river near Iowa Union. Many university students sought relaxation in canoes on the river as temperatures and humidity percentages soared. Canoeing, always a popular outdoor sport on the Iowa river near the campus, this summer is even more popular. Swimming in university pools, relaxation in air-conditioned Iowa Union and "cooking" on the sunporch are other popular "cooling off" procedures.

No, Not Reserve Library—It's Iowa Union

The heat of the past several days brought summer session students and faculty members flocking to air-conditioned Iowa Union as the picture above shows. Books, papers and notebooks were spread out as students deserted libraries to study where conditions were comfortable. The cool dry air of Iowa Union is 15 degrees below outside temperatures. The humidity has been reduced thus bringing greater comfort to the occupants of the air-conditioned main lounge. For the past several days every chair and every table in the main lounge and on the sunporch has been occupied, a record unequalled in the history of Iowa Union.

Principal's Office At City High School To Close 'Til Aug. 15

The principal's office of Iowa City high school will be closed until Aug. 15, W. E. Beck, principal, announced yesterday.

The high school head asked that persons wishing to obtain credits should try to obtain them today at the office. Until August 15, credits may be obtained at the superintendent's office in the nurse's quarters in the old high school building.

Engagement Announced By Iowa Alumni

Maurine Rogers Will Marry Henry Miller Aug. 8 at Indianola

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Rogers of Indianola have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Maurine, to Henry C. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Miller of Amana. The wedding will take place Tuesday, Aug. 8, in the home of the bride's parents.

The announcement was made recently at a luncheon given by Mrs. Rogers in her home.

Miss Rogers was graduated from Simpson College. She received her Ph.D. degree from the university. She has been an instructor in remedial reading at the University of Chicago the past year and is teaching at the University of Missouri this summer.

Mr. Miller received his B. S. degree in pharmacy and chemistry from the university and is working on his Ph.D. degree at the present time. Mr. Miller will be employed as a chemist with the Eli Lilly company in Indianapolis, Ind. They will make their home in Indianapolis.

Gaffney Will Preside In District Court

Beginning today, Judge James P. Gaffney will hold Johnson county district court each Tuesday and Saturday morning throughout the month of July.

He is acting in the absence of Judge Harold D. Evans, who plans to vacation with his family this month in Clear Lake.

Mardell Sell, Donald Beneke Married Here

Announcement Made Of March 11 Affair At Lutheran Chapel

Announcement was made recently of the wedding of Mardell Sell, only daughter of Oscar E. Sell of Gowrie, and Donald Beneke, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Beneke of Laurens, St. Paul's Lutheran chapel in Iowa City. The Rev. L. C. Wuertel, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride wore a street length frock of two-tone blue silk with blue accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses. Her attendant, Mrs. Lorraine Strauss, wore a street length dress of blue silk with gray accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses and sweet peas. Brewer Wilson served as best man.

After the ceremony, the bridal party went to Cedar Rapids where a wedding dinner was served at the Hotel Roosevelt. The couple then left for a short wedding trip.

Mrs. Beneke, who is a graduate of the university school of nursing, has been employed by Dr. Arthur Steindler in the orthopedic department of the university children's hospital.

Mr. Beneke was graduated from the university college of law, where he was affiliated with Gamma Eta Gamma legal fraternity.

The couple are making their home at 320 River street.

Mrs. Messner Will Entertain Two-Two Club

Mrs. Fannie Messner, 1105 Keokuk avenue, will entertain the members of the Two-Two club Monday in her home at 8 p.m.

Mrs. George Stevens will conduct a business meeting after which there will be a social hour.

Women's Corps To Hear Report On Convention

Reports on the Iowa department convention of the Women's Relief corps will be made at a meeting of the group Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the community building. This will be a regular business session of the group.

The local group received the first prize for publicity throughout the past year at the convention, which was held here recently, according to an announcement made by the local chairman.

Tally-Hi To Meet With Mrs. Harmon

Mrs. A. C. Harmon, 121 E. Fairchild street, will be hostess to the members of the Tally-hi bridge club when they meet tonight at 7 o'clock in her home.

Issues License

R. Neilson Miller, county clerk of court, issued a marriage license to Walter Anderson, 34, and Mitchie Roberts, 26, both of Dallas, Tex.

Friends Honor Betty Puckett

Prospective Bride Feted at Shower Wednesday Evening

Honoring Betty Puckett, who will become the bride of Herbert Williams tomorrow, Dorothy Ann Kendall, 230 E. Fairchild street, entertained a group of Miss Puckett's friends at a towel shower Wednesday evening.

The group spent the evening marking towel sets for the bride elect.

Guests at the affair included Josephine McElhinney, Florence Rohrbacher, Annetta Connell, Jean Leinbaugh, Margaret Leuz, Helen Wright, Alma Ruth Findly, Marilyn Leighton, Vilda Spolar, Dorothy Smith, Frankie Sample, Bea Davis, Emmy Lou Davis and Mrs. Glen Kennedy.

Maids of honor at the court of Henry VIII received an allowance of eight gallons of beer—to make them more pleasingly plump.

Clothes Made The Man

At Least, Tibbett Had Need of Them If He Intended To Sing

When an artist is due on the stage to sing and finds no evening clothes to sing in, that's a situation which calls for instantaneous ingenuity. That was once Lawrence Tibbett's fix, the famous American baritone, who will be heard at the field house, July 19, at 8:15 p.m.

The place was the dignified Metropolitan Opera house; the time, a Sunday night last season.

Tibbett, arriving to sing in concert, suddenly discovered that his evening clothes were missing. They had been entrusted to a tailor or for pressing. He was to deliver them at the opera house Saturday. Doubtless, Monday morning, the tailor would give a whole flock of excuses; but one cannot wear excuses, at least not in public. The man's shop, of course, was closed; there was no reaching him.

Quickly Tibbett ran through in mind the list of men singing that night at the metropolitan. There were only a few, and alas, of every other shape and height but that of Tibbett — all but one — a leading basso!

Taking the stairs three at a bound, for already the overture had started, Tibbett reached the basso's dressing room.

"Please give me your clothes!" panted Tibbett, as he burst into the room.

The basso looked alarmed; Tibbett looked wild-eyed. Here was a colleague demanding his clothes when he, himself, had need for them. Realizing that explanations were in order, Tibbett hurriedly made them. Shaking with laughter, his basso friend slipped out of his evening clothes and Tibbett slipped into them, for better or worse. Evening shirt and tie, he had already on.

Fortunately, several numbers came between those of the two men, enabling both to burst forth in song in the same clothes on the same evening.

By EDWARD MANNION
Faculty members of the State University of Iowa will watch the publication sometime in September of a new book, "The Treasury of American Prints," with more than just scholarly interest.

A personal motive will also prompt them, for included in the volume of reproduced etchings and lithographs are six original by Grant Wood. This in itself would center interest, but the intriguing part lies in the fact that Mr. Wood has used certain instructors on the campus as subjects for two lithographs, "Shrine Quartet," and "Honorary Degree."

Their likenesses are not literal representations, however. Since his concern is not with portraiture, the artist relies on a certain amount of distortion for his formal patterns.

This is not the first time he has mirrored some resemblance to university and town people in illustrations for publication. Several more were subjected to this same skillful stylization a few years ago in drawings for the Limited Editions club's "Main Street."

Although seven members of the faculty are thus immortalized, close examination of the one entitled "Honorary Degree" will reveal Grant Wood himself as the recipient of the diploma. The nature of the picture is obviously aimed at certain business men whose academic accomplishments have been the endowment of a new football stadium. "We all know who they are," said Mr. Wood. "We can be thankful that such a scene is unknown here."

The other lithographs by the Iowa regionalist to be reproduced in the coming edition are "Tree Planting Group," "July 15," "Seed Time and Harvest" and "January." The latter was recently selected by the jury of "Prints" magazine as an outstanding example of contemporary lithography, receiving the unanimous decision of the judges.

The volume which is soon to appear is edited by Thomas Craven, noted critic of art history, best known to the general public through his articles in Scribner's magazine. It was in such an article in 1937 that the critic stirred comment by praising Wood's "Woman With Plants" as far superior to Whistler's "Mother."

Thomas Craven's judgement has been proven correct time and time again. Recently, the mention that "Seed Time and Harvest" and "Tree Planting Group" were to be presented was enough to exhaust the supply. It is unusual in the history of art for editions to be exhausted sight unseen.

This is a unique tribute to the artist, and so it is no wonder that faculty members will look eagerly for their own likenesses, submitted as they are to the good humored surgery of the artist. And all six may be excused for reminding the less fortunate colleagues that now they have something in common with the apples and madonnas of history.

On 'My First Trip to New York'

Iowan Reporter Says 'Thousands Do It, Why Shouldn't I?'

Editor's note: Art Goldberg, daily Iowan staff member, recently returned from his "first trip to New York," begins today a series of stories on his impressions of the trip and the New York world's fair. The Daily Iowan prints these stories in the hope you will find them helpful in planning your vacation trip this summer.

By ART GOLDBERG

Thousands of people are doing it, why shouldn't I? So I made my "first trip to New York."

It's fun to leave Iowa City in the morning, headed for Chicago, and find yourself that night in Cleveland. That is, it was fun until I reached Cleveland, but I didn't like Cleveland—a crowded, dirty city, full of old buildings and too many uncouth people.

Then it's off the next day for Philadelphia. But, after all, anyone might have stopped in Kane, Pa., to get some gasoline. And anyone might have entered into a friendly conversation with the station attendant and heard about lovely Kane Manor. And anyone might have thought it sounded like a nice place to see it. I stayed there overnight.

High up in the heart of the Allegheny national forest, Kane Manor, once the old home of General Kane, has been converted by his grandson into a wayside inn. The general's magnificent library and the interesting collection of Grinnell Expedition paintings, together with the many other rare curiosities, are all things of interest at Kane Manor. Put, drinking man or not, anyone might have found the basement barroom of special interest. I did. Its tremendously large, hand-hewn oak tables depict the histories of the United States and other countries by means of Kane-drawn cartoons. Other quaint, and original, cartoons cover the walls and ceiling and give the place an atmosphere unequalled, so far as I am concerned, throughout the east.

Philadelphia, of course, holds many sights for the visitor—things like Constitution hall that everyone has heard about. But there's an institution there that is rarely publicized outside the city of Philadelphia. The Girard school for fatherless boys might well be a model and ideal for philanthropists.

Donating six million dollars of the earnings of his lettuce business, its founder launched an institution that was later to become the ninety-million-dollar gift to fatherless boys, who may come to beautiful new buildings, be clothed, educated, fed, and receive any other benefits of an expensive preparatory school. It costs the boys or their mothers nothing at all—but never let them hear you call it a charity institution or an orphanage. They don't like that.

Eventually, of course, I reached New York. The five o'clock traffic jam that seemed to await my arrival to get into full force, added a great deal—both to my amazement and consternation. Looking for a less confusing route than 5th avenue, I went down to 6th avenue and found very few cars on that street. Of course there were few cars there—laborers were in the process of removing what had once been the elevated lines of downtown New York. Anyone might have driven over boarded pavement, dodging bricks and iron rails, just to get to the World of Tomorrow. I did.

Anyone might have had some difficulty finding a place to stay in New York at a nominal cost. I didn't! Within one hour after my arrival I was comfortably situated in an apartment in Flushing with the nearest gate to the fair just four blocks away.

Any inquisitive person can learn quite a few things in one afternoon. I did.

Police officers in New York and its suburbs are ultra-polite; food and lodging are both plentiful and reasonable; the metropolitan inhabitants are willing, if you give them a start, to be polite, friendly and helpful; business is turning its collective eye to attracting and pleasing the fair-going visitor; this is neither the time nor the place to sleep; tomorrow I must go to the fair.

Short Course To Be Given

Federal Agents And State Officers Lead Instruction July 17-21

Federal agents and state law enforcement officers are among the appointees to the staff of the University of Iowa's peace officers short course here July 17-21. Prof. R. M. Perkins of the college of law has announced.

R. H. Hicks, Kenneth Logan and A. T. Potter are F.B.I. men who will appear to instruct Iowa officers in the technique of their profession.

The Iowa Bureau of Investigation will send E. F. Brown, Joseph De Read and Harold Gesell, while Capt. Tom Pettit of the Des Moines police department and Roy Dahl of the Woodbury county sheriff's office also will appear.

From the state university faculty the participants will include Prof. J. J. Hinman, Major James Butler, Dr. Frank Peterson, head of the surgery department; Dean Mason Ladd of the college of law, and Dean Emeritus Wilber J. Teeters of the college of pharmacy.

Summer Students Will Be Entertained At Recreational Play Period Tonight

All summer session students are invited to participate in the third all-university recreational play night to be at the field house tonight. Out-of-door games will start at 7 o'clock and indoor activities will start at 8 o'clock.

Dr. G. B. Johnson's recreational class in the men's physical education department will be in charge of the games and a variety of other activities.

On the program will be badminton, softball for both men and women, volleyball, crossball, cage ball, horseshoes, kicking football, darts and deck tennis — all of these outdoors.

Indoor activities will include social dancing, ping pong, table tennis and box hockey.

The committee in charge of arrangements consists of S. A. Schmidt of Winona, Minn., Pete Parks of Little Sioux and Frank H. Walker of Jacksonville, Ill.

Music and Drama To Highlight Fine Arts Festival July 16-23

Accent upon the balanced productions of significant music and drama by ensembles and casts of students will feature the University of Iowa's first fine arts festival July 16-23.

In a statement yesterday, Prof. Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts, pointed out that the "festival will focus the interest and attention of its audiences upon musical repertoire, dramatic composition and creative art rather than upon virtuosity."

The affair, of course, will have its stars, with a recital to be given by Lawrence Tibbett and talks by Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect.

"But for the most part, the professional artists participating will remain in the background. They will make their contributions through musical ensembles and dramatic casts which have been in training since mid-June," Professor Harper said.

He said that two symphony orchestras, two choruses, a symphonic band, an artists chamber music ensemble and several string quartets are now in rehearsal, as are two complete play casts.

"The state university is utilizing the festival to extend its educational and cultural influence to its constituency and to the general public. The festival is in no sense a show. It is an extensive emphasis upon the fundamental educational philosophy of the university and an extension to the public of the teaching and service of the institution," said Professor Harper.

Speech Group To Give Play

'Hundred Years Old' Will Be Presented At University Theater

All-state high school speech students now enrolled for dramatic work will make their only public appearance of the summer at the University of Iowa in a play July 23 and 24.

They will give "A Hundred Years Old" by Serafin and Joaquin Alvarez Quintero in the newly air-conditioned university theater.

The cast has been chosen from a group of nearly 50 pupils. These boys and girls, here for six weeks of intensive study, represent six states.

This play is the third and last of the summer productions in University theater. Others are "Paul and the Blue Ox," July 13, 14, 15, 17 and 18; and "The House of Connelly," July 21, 22, 24 and 25.

Young Indian Hurler Chalks Up 14th Win

Yields Seven Hits, Fans Three; Trosky Leads Tribe Attack

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—Young Bob Feller pitched his Cleveland mates back into a tie with the Chicago White Sox for fourth place today by holding the Chicagoans to seven hits and beating them, 7 to 3, for his 14th victory. Feller, who has lost three decisions, fanned only three.

A ladies' day crowd of 18,000 saw the Cleveland star stop the White Sox' five-game winning streak and salvage the finale of the three-game series for the Indians.

Hal Trosky drum-majored Feller's 12-hit support with his ninth homer, a double and a single. Feller himself drove in the first Cleveland run with a double in the fifth inning after Oscar Grimes singled, and then scored twice, the second time after singling in the seventh.

Kurt Lenser, Six-Man Football Expert, Tells of Thrilling Games He's Seen

Editor's note: today's is the second of three articles dealing with six-man football. The series is prompted by the rapid growth and popularity of the new game.

"If it's thrills you're looking for on the gridiron, then get out and see the spectacular scoring battles staged by six-man football teams," says Kurt Lenser, currently conducting a course on the latest grid innovation at the fieldhouse.

Lenser, when prompted, can tell tales of six-man football that make the older, 11-man game seem like a croquet contest at a social gathering.

Reminiscing
Pressed for something specific, Lenser told of a game played at Palisade, Neb., in the fall of 1937.

Palisade, with a high school enrollment of approximately 90 students, was playing host to Hamlet, Neb., the town bearing out its name to the letter, having an enrollment of only 35.

The home team was heavily favored to win the game, the opposition up to that time having been dispensed with as it came.

Good Start
Within four minutes of play the Palisade team had shoved across two touchdowns and seemed well on the way to another win.

In order to save his regulars for the following week, the Palisade coach withdrew them from the contest. The second string, however, proved just as tough for the Hamlet squad which failed to make much progress and trailed 25 to 7 with only seven minutes of the game remaining.

At this point, the Palisade coach decided to throw his first string back into the game to give it a workout and build up the score.

Taking the ball, Palisade elected to pass. The pass was intercepted by a Hamlet man and raced back for a touchdown.

Not particularly worried, the Palisade outfit attempted another pass and again it was intercepted and again raced back for a touchdown.

The Hamlet line, though it had been battered for the better part of the afternoon, became aroused

Riggs Defeats Elwood Cooke For Net Crown

Stakes Claim To Ranking as World's No. 1 Net Amateur

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 7 (AP)—Robert Larimer Riggs, an impish and indifferent 21-year-old boy from Chicago, beat his roommate and doubles partner, Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., 2-6, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, in the finals of the all-England singles championship today and thus staked a claim to No. 1 ranking among the world's amateur tennis players.

Trailing by two sets to one and fighting against a cramp in his right arm, Riggs started going to the net for the first time in the fourth set and rushed a weary but willing Cooke right off the center court.

Both were so badly seized by cramps at the finish they had to see a doctor and drink down a concoction of grapefruit juice and salt before they could continue in the mixed doubles championship.

Alice Marble is a strong 2-1 favorite to complete the United States slam in singles tomorrow, when she meets Kay Stammers for the women's title, and the United States also has a good chance of carrying off all three doubles championships for its second successive clean sweep.

The treasurer of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association, Russell B. Kingman of East Orange, N. J., sat in the royal box with Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and kept a chart which pretty well summed up the Riggs-Cooke match. Kingman kept a record of the number of times each player went to the net and what he did when he got there.

His chart showed that Cooke led at the start because he was forcing the play and that when he got too tired to go to the net and Riggs started going up, the tide of the match changed.

Riggs made two other appearances during the day, teaming with Miss Marble to gain the finals of the mixed doubles. First they defeated Britain's C. M. Jones and Eryntrude Harvey 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 in the quarter-finals and then eliminated Camille E. Malfroy of New Zealand and Betty Nuthall of England 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 in the semi-finals.

Cooke also paired with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Pabyan to go into the semi-finals with a 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, decision over A. D. Russell of Argentina and Mrs. Freda James Hammersley of England.

Joe Gallagher Slams Homer To Nip Tigers

ST. LOUIS, July 7 (AP)—Joe Gallagher made only one hit today but it was a life saver—a seventh inning homer driving in three runs for enough margin to give the St. Louis Browns an 8 to 6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The victory broke a Browns' losing streak which had reached five and evened the two-game series.

But the game wasn't in the bag for the Browns even after that big seventh in which five runs came over the plate. In the ninth Earl Averill's home run scored the singling Cullenbine ahead of him before any Tigers were out.

'Hartnett's Job Safe'-Wrigley

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—The Chicago Times quoted Owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs today as saying Manager Gabby Hartnett's job was not endangered by the slump of the National league champions into the second division.

The Times said the chewing gum magnate declared he had "not the slightest intention" of changing managers at the present time.

The Cubs changed managers in mid-season last year, giving the veteran Hartnett the pilot's job then held by Charley Grimm. Hartnett drove the team to the flag with a sensational winning streak in September.

Wrigley was quoted as saying he hadn't "even talked to Hartnett recently," and adding: "I'm even staying away from

Another Headache

CLEVELAND, July 7 (AP)—Cyril C. Slapnicka, 61dsh, $17,900-a-year worries for the Cleveland Indians had another free agent case today.

The latest headache was inspired by Frank Scatzi, 23-year-old shortstop with the New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association, who asked Commissioner K. M. Landis to unharness him from the Cleveland farm system on the grounds that the Indians had controlled him four years.

Deacon White, Oldest in Baseball, Recalls 'Old Days'

Dies Shortly After Interview; Played With Connie Mack on Buffalo Team in 1888

(Editor's note: James "Deacon" White, baseball's patriarch, died today. By strange coincidence, this, his final interview, was obtained on the eve of his death.)

By CHARLES DUNKLEY (Pinchhitting for Whitney Martin) AURORA, Ill., July 7 (AP)—The gentle tapping of a cane on the stairs became more distinct.

In the living room doorway presently appeared a bent, aging figure—"Deacon" James White, 92, and the oldest living player of baseball, which this year is celebrating its centennial. The "Deacon" seemed to have been entirely overlooked in the hulla-balloo.

Slowly, the bespectacled old gentleman lowered himself into his favorite chair. Almost as old as the game itself, the "Deacon" was hard of hearing, his memory uncertain but he loved to talk about the game he learned from a Union soldier, just returned from the Civil war back in 1865.

White, started playing professionally 71 years ago—with the Forest City club of Cleveland in 1868. He was A. G. Spalding's catcher at Boston in the game's first professional league, the National Association of Professional Ballplayers in 1873. He was a member of organized baseball's first Big Four—Spalding, Ross Barnes, C. A. McVay and himself.

With Spalding he formed the game's first great battery. When the National league was organized the "Big Four" left Boston and joined the Chicago White Stockings, leading Chicago to its first National league pennant in 1876. He played first base in Buffalo in 1888 when Connie Mack, ally leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, was the chief catcher. He also pitched and played third base for Detroit in 1887, when the team won the first world series from the late Charles Comiskey's St. Louis club.

Yesterday White's gnarled fingers—he was a barehanded catcher—bore trademarks of the game he played for 21 years. He wound up his career with Pittsburgh in 1889.

This kindly old man, calmly awaiting life's end in the home of his daughter here, played the game he loved until he was just too old to run and catch.

He reminisced: "Batters of my day would have little success with present day pitching, but, by golly, you haven't got any better fielders now than we had in the first days of the game. We fielded bare handed and that took a lot more skill than the present day fielders need with their gloves. The science of batting and pitching have advanced a long way in 70 years. When the game was first originated, we never had fast ball pitching as the pitchers do today when they wind up and throw overboard or side-arm.

"Back in the old days pitchers were forced to throw underhand with a stiff arm, if the pitcher bent or twisted his wrist he was disqualified."

Fined $500
DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—George Schepps, president of the Dallas Baseball Club, Inc., received notice today he had been fined $500 and put on two years probation under a suspended sentence by President William G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. The fine resulted from an investigation of the salary of Outfielder Walter Cazen.

R. Beales, Iowa City, and Blanche Lukosky, at home.

Fair Weather Yesterday's Rain Gives Scant Relief

"Fair" weather forecast for this vicinity for today by the weather bureau at Des Moines threatened continued warm, humid conditions for Iowa Citizens, who last night turned to porches and lawns as "at least cooler than indoor quarters."

Rain, measuring .44 of an inch, according to the university hydraulics laboratory, which fell yesterday between 7:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. failed to stop the mercury from climbing to a peak for the day of 91 degrees, just four degrees below the 95 degree high for the year established Thursday.

The humidity reading was back to normal yesterday noon, reading 23 per cent above normal Thursday noon, weather bureau officials reported.

Sergeant Faber Transferred To Des Moines

Transfer of Sergt. Edgar Faber to the No. 1 district station at Des Moines was announced yesterday by the Iowa public safety department. He had been in charge of the West Liberty state highway patrol office since its establishment two years ago.

Replacing Sergeant Faber is Sergt. Donald Thimmesch, who is now stationed at Ft. Dodge. The transfer, it is expected, will become effective July 15.

Sergt. Russ Fisher, former football captain at the university, will fill the vacancy left by Thimmesch.

The debutantes are wearing their finger and toenails colored with "heartbreak" red, which is matched by hearts on their hats, on girdles and in jewelry.

Dr. Frank M. Carroll, Seattle city health commissioner, believes that laughter is a sign of good health rather than an aid to health.

Faber Blames Speedy, Slow Auto Drivers

Sergt. Edgar Faber, Iowa highway patrolman, placed the blame for the majority of accidents on the combination of slow and fast drivers, when he outlined causes for accidents in a talk before the Masonic service club yesterday noon.

Not slowing for curves, traveling too fast at night, not giving hand signals soon enough, following motorists ahead too closely, inability to judge distances accurately and weaving in and out of the cars on the highways were some of the causes listed by Sergeant Faber.

Motorists should use the car ahead as a "spacer" in traveling on the highways, allowing about 150 feet between the cars, he said.

Turning to the causes of accidents, the speaker placed the blame on children.

Sergeant Faber, in explaining duties of the highway patrol, said that "we are not credited with arrests. Our duty, instead, is to see that traffic moves slowly and evenly." He advised maximum speeds of not over 60 and 50 miles per hour for day and night driving respectively.

Judd--

speaker explained, "history will judge us."

If Japan succeeds in taking over China with American aid, she will develop the natural resources of the country and make the United States a subordinate nation, the speaker said, using cotton as an example. "If Japan developed the cotton industry in north China, American cotton exports would be cut one-third," he declared.

Dr. Judd cited China as an important potential American market in the world if protected from Japanese aggression. China has always trusted America, he said, and will continue to favor her with trading privileges if she is permitted to remain free from Japan.

U. S. Trumps

"The United States still holds the trump cards," Dr. Judd stated, "and it is not yet too late to play, but it must be done now."

Dr. Judd outlined our "musts" for the American people if Japan is to be checked:

- (1) Stop financing Japan by buying Japanese goods. "We send Japan money with which to buy bullets," he said, "and then contribute to missionary funds to send men like myself to China to pick the bullets from the Chinese."
- (2) Exert our functions as members of a democracy—appeal to the lawmakers in Washington to act against Japan.
- (3) Base our actions on the situation by the present and the future, not by the past—be alive to the situation today.
- (4) Give financial support to victims in China.

Dr. Judd explained the true situation in China today.

True Picture

He said that as a soldier abroad in the World War, he knew that reports sent home were untrue, but as a man on the spot in China, he knows that reports and pictures we get in the United States are truthful.

Dr. Judd explained that all social life in China is, and has been for 5,000 years, centered around the family—the home. The present conflict has caused a national unity but it is not to the satisfaction and liking of the Chinese people.

The Japanese, realizing this, aim at the social order as a unit, not uniformed men or military points. He said that bombings are not centered on forts or munitions plants, but on the slums, the population centers and the public squares where the most harm can be done toward breaking up Chinese families.

He explained that every Chinese citizen is a military object—this is a war to destroy Chinese society—it is not a "gentleman's war" as was the World War, where certain conditions govern the fighting machines.

Japanese Cruelty

Dr. Judd cited examples of cases in which Japanese soldiers would not permit him as an American Red Cross doctor carrying an American flag and a Red Cross flag to remove injured Chinese from the battlefield. The Japanese left them there to die, then and only then permitting their removal to hospitals.

Dr. Judd said that his only purpose in touring the United States presenting this lecture—and he is now on his third tour of the country—is not to openly criticize the United States, but to warn it of the danger at hand and to explain what must be done and that now is the only time to act effectively.

"Our Far Eastern policy must be to back China and boycott Japan," he declared.

of orphanage children" whose mean I.Q. was 64.3 and mean age 17.1 months.

Ridicules Stand

"The problem was," said Dr. Terman, "to find for these children a more stimulating environment than the orphanage. The situation was desperate, as all were considered too retarded for adoption, and all but two or three had been classified as feeble-minded."

"Where they sought and found the necessary stimulation you would never guess. Believe me or not, it was in an institution for the feeble-minded!"

"The cure was carried out by moron nursemaids, and well did they do their job. They set, indeed, a distinguished mark for the educational profession to shoot at, for in a year and a half they stimulated the I.Q.'s from a mean of 64.3 to a mean of 91.8."

Strikes at Nonchalance

"One is appalled by the confidence, even nonchalance, with which Iowa psychologists are willing to label young infants 'feeble-minded,' 'border-line,' 'average,' 'superior' or 'genius' on the basis of a brief mental test at the age of 12 or 18 months."

"It is a degree of confidence not shared, so far as I am aware, by any other workers in the field of clinical psychology."

Dr. Terman asserted there have been seven recent investigations outside of the Iowa institution on the I.Q. effects of nursery school training and that "six fail completely to confirm the Iowa findings and the seventh offers only the mildest support."

Mrs. J. M. Smith

Returning with her husband to the United States from their self-imposed exile, is Mrs. J. M. Smith, loyal wife of Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president of Louisiana State university, who disappeared when charges of embezzlement were filed. When Smith surrendered to Brockville, Ontario, Canada, police authorities Mrs. Smith was with him.

Discusses Hitler

Prof. Samuel Harper, of the University of Chicago, is pictured on arrival in New York aboard the Polish liner Batory. Back from Europe, he said the determined opposition of Poland to the German attempt to absorb Danzig has broken the vicious circle with which Hitler had planned to ring Central Europe.

Deadline Set for Monday On Morningside Paving Bids

Sealed bids on the $2,896,670 contract for the sidewalk paving project in Morningside addition must be filed in the city clerk's office by the deadline, 2 p.m. Monday, it was announced Friday.

The bids for furnishing labor and material for the construction will be opened at that time and submitted to the city council which is to hold its regular monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Monday and award the contract.

Aug. 31 is the time set in the contract for completion of the undertaking.

Work on the project, originally to have begun July 4 and completed Aug. 15, was delayed when the council at an adjourned meeting June 19 rejected all bids received that day on the work, the low bid for the project not complying with specifications set by the council.

Moving up the finishing date of the project 16 days would not hinder completion of the paving before school started this fall, Fred Gartzke, city engineer, told councilmen at the meeting.

Sidewalks to be paved are on the north side of College street from the east side of Fairview avenue to the west side of Morningside drive and on College street from the south side of College street from a point 73 feet east of the east side of Fairview avenue to the west side of Morningside drive.

Regular monthly bills and reports are to be approved by the council at the meeting Monday.

The choir, under the direction of Prof. Thomas Muir, will sing "Send Out Thy Light" by Gounod. Organ selections by Mrs. Muir will be "Lento et Espresso" by Schumann and "Allegro" by Lemare.

Note: families are invited to share in the shortened and unified service together, coming for the church school and remaining together for worship. A nursery and an expressional period are for the convenience of parents with smaller children.

6:30—Prof. Earl E. Klein of the sociology department will speak to the Roger Williams club at the Student center on "Religion and Social Work."

Saturday, 7 p.m.—Choir rehearsal at the church.

Unitarian Church
Iowa and Gilbert
