A New Textbook For Writers

FOR YEARS NOW, college English teachers have been telling their students that the prime requisite for success in writing is thorough knowledge of their subjects. The best authorities have written textbooks by the gross, telling their readers to write about their friends and neighbors in familiar situations and settings.

Now along comes Alva Johnston to confound the professors. Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Johnston points to Edgar Rice Burroughs as the most successful writer who ever lived, judging from the number of books he has sold and the amount of money he has amassed.

Let Mr. Johnston tell the story: "Burroughs is clearly the man to tell the 130,000,000 American writers how to write. His life story ought to be the supreme textbook. The main rules for literary training that can be gathered from the experiences of Burroughs are:

- 1. Be a disappointed man. 2. Achieve no success at anything you touch. 3. Lead an unbearably drab and uninteresting life. 4. Hate civilization. 5. Learn no grammar. 6. Read little. 7. Write nothing. 8. Have an ordinary mind and commonplace tastes, approximating those of the great reading public.

With these sterling qualities, Mr. Burroughs has managed to create a character that will probably live as long as any other, and has proved more popular in motion pictures than any other fictional character.

Taxing The Jalopy To Death

CLEARING IOWA'S highways of unsafe jalopies is to become an objective of the state department of public safety, Commissioner Karl Fischer announced this week.

Unique is the system proposed to bring about the disappearance of aged cars. Fischer advocates legislation which would place higher taxes on automobiles so old they create traffic hazards.

In other words Fischer believes that high taxes on jalopies would lead the owners of such cars to cease driving altogether or trade for newer models almost certain to be safer.

There is sense to the safety commissioner's idea. If carried out it will make two contributions in addition to decreasing the safety hazards presented by jalopies. Most important, it will help remove one of the unsightly things which cultivate the impression that many Iowans are poverty stricken.

Shame On Congress

CONGRESS HAS KILLED the lending bill. That may put industry back to its old habits of laying off, reducing production and adopting economy policies. It may mean that of every $100,000,000 which congress might have loaned and which might have produced 34,400,000 hours of labor in the factory and 5,700,000 additional hours in mines, forests and transportation systems now may produce just that many hours of unemployment for the thousands of workers involved.

In retaliation to those members who opposed the lending bill, other members of congress saw to it that sufficient votes would be garnered to defeat the housing project. Going further, congress rejected the loan of $119,000,000 to sustain the prices of farm commodities. Wallace stated the truth of the defeat when he said corn prices would go back to 1932 levels, wheat quotations would fall sharply and the prices of cotton, dairy products, wool and rye would be "seriously" affected.

The farmers can blame the members of congress who hail from cities for the defeat of this bill, and they in turn can blame the congressional members representing the farming areas for the defeat of the lending and housing bills. It has gone beyond a battle of democrats against republicans.

Since when has the United States been divided into such separate entities that the farmer's problems are not the city's, and the city's problems not vital to the farmer?

Shame on congress for the narrow jealous attitude of biting back. Shame on congress for laying off America's laborers, for crippling America's farmers, and for showing off so disgracefully in public.

Radio Goes To Congress

RECENTLY THE house of representatives approved a resolution granting radio correspondents equal rights with newspaper correspondents in covering its activities. It was the first time in 150 years that congress had opened its galleries to a news gathering agency other than the press.

The first broadcast was staged just two hours after the request was granted when H. R. Baughage, Washington observer for the National Broadcasting company, made the following comment: "This broadcast signals the opening of the radio correspondents' gallery—that is, its first use by a broadcaster. The long cherished freedom of the press is officially extended to embrace the freedom of the air."

Today the radio gallery numbers 25 official members with a waiting list to be approved—about the same number as made up the press gallery in 1839—a hundred years ago when seats in the senate gallery were first set aside for newspaper correspondents.

Radio's introduction into congress produces a complexity of questions. Will our congressmen change their customary manner of speech and eliminate the profanity which accompanies their discourse and which radio now prohibits, or will radio change its standards? Or, will the mikes be turned off every time the congressman utters an "unutterable" and make more static than anything else? Will broadcasts be limited to certain sessions on certain days or will the people hear the general run of events? If radio brings all the representatives before the people will the listeners set up the prerequisite that a candidate must be a good radio speaker to be elected? Developments will be awaited with intense interest to see how radio proceeds after its introduction into both houses of congress.

THE AMBITIOUS FISHERMAN

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By George Tucker

NEW YORK — The heat waves dropped across Harlem and he had to cut down on his daily quota of six quarts of ice cream, so Bill Robinson boarded a tram car the other day for the cooling sands of California. Incidentally, a secondary reason for deserting the Harlem of which he is unofficial mayor was to flutter his flying feathery tail in his next movie.

"I used to eat six quarts of ice cream a day," the grinning ebony-hued Robinson explained just before he headed for Hollywood. "Now I eat only four. It isn't doctor's orders, I'm in fine health, but I just figured I should be moderate about everything."

Robinson's breakfast is ice cream and hot biscuits. His lunch is ice cream and steak. It must be good for him because on his 60th birthday he ran backwards for 60 blocks down Broadway and wasn't even winded, while a lot of young fellows who run forwards the same distance with him were puffing like exhausted whales.

Well, the diner was Marty Fortkins, the theatrical manager, and he has been directing the career of Robinson ever since.

Bill says that was an exciting moment. Another he recalls with particular vividness was the night he was doing a dance on a Broadway stage and a rat, as big as a cat, crawled out onto the stage. Bill never missed a step in his rhythmic dancing and that calmness of mind probably prevented a panic among the women in the audience.

Bill danced over to the wings, whispered to a stage hand to hand him a club used backstage to tighten ropes that pulled up the curtains. With club in hand, Bill danced back to the center of the stage and whanged the rat over the head, killing him instantly.

He is also a man who believes in dreams and he should. He frequently dreams about a new dance step, awakens in the middle of the night and gets up then and there and perfects the step he has been dreaming about.

Did you ever see a dream walking? Bill sees 'em dancing.

Now, this road building is complicated with the self-liquidating philosophy.

The hope is that money from EVERYBODY is in a different class from everybody split up into 48 and smaller classifications. Then—average it. Will it average? The census bureau is trying to do it.

The American Federation of Investors thinks otherwise. So does the American Manufacturers' association — also a conservative outfit. There isn't any dispute that these folk are conservatives — whatever they're wrong.

But you have to weigh the census bureau.

giving my daughter orange juice and beaten raw egg every morning. She has refused them now, declaring so many raw eggs are injurious. Also, she is a great eater of fresh tomatoes. Some tell her they cause cancer. I want her to continue on these eatables, because she is a working girl and eats very sparingly most of the time.

Answer: First, as to the beaten raw eggs. When the idea that a raw egg—plain or beaten—is more nutritious or digestible than a cooked egg started, I don't know. But I do know it is not true, any more than cooked meat or, in fact, nearly any cooked food, is less nutritious. Researches have shown that raw egg white is very digestible and no more nutritious than a cooked egg. And, of course, it becomes monotonous and, as in the case of your daughter, you turn against it. Certainly give her eggs and orange juice, but cook the eggs, and in a different style every day of the week. As to raw tomatoes and the comments made by those who tell her that they cause cancer: This type of advice is enough to make any dietitian angry. Fresh tomatoes have a most splendid nutritional value. They replace orange juice as a source of vitamin C. As to the cancer theory, people had cancer by the droves when everybody thought tomatoes were too poisonous to eat.

Stewart Says—

Finding Average Of States Spending Doesn't Tell Story

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central-Press Columnist

A few days ago we considered a statement by the American Federation of Investors to the effect that federal taxes take approximately two-thirds out of every dollar that the country's corporations earn after paying their running expenses, leaving only the remaining one-third to be passed out in dividends to their stockholders.

Now the census bureau comes to bat with a report showing that the 48 states' local expenses in 1937 were nearly twice what they were in 1932. Their state taxes and indebtedness increased correspondingly, of course.

The bureau undertakes to strike an average among the 48 commonwealths, but it doesn't mean a thing, locally speaking.

It's possible to say that the federal load is so much per capita. Even that isn't much of an average, because some individuals are hit far harder than others. For instance, I'm socked like sixty by the tobacco tax, since I smoke a lot of cigars. But some non-smoker, who drinks more than I do, catches Hades by the levy on his booze. So that's a certain sort of an average.

Averaging the states is a different proposition.

State Versus State All the states have hiked their taxes, but some have hiked them more than others. Suppose state No. 1's hike has been two-thirds. And state No. 2's has been only one-third. What satisfaction is it to state No. 1 to be told that the average hike has been only 50 per cent? — if my arithmetic's right.

Then there are city taxes. They vary every which way. Ditto county taxes, and school district taxes.

If a citizen lives in a relatively economical community he's lucky locally, but he doesn't represent an average.

In a way, he's stung. To illustrate: A few years ago there was an epidemic of interstate road building.

The federal government said, "If you individual states will do such-and-such road building, Uncle Sam will match your state appropriations."

States which wanted road building jumped at the chance.

Yet there were some states that knew better. They realized that they'd be financially overdoing themselves.

Folk Pay Anyway But what about those states, if they balked? They wouldn't get roads. Yet they'd have to help, through the federal government, to pay for the roads in the states that did want them.

The nub of it is: Congress figures that federal money is different from local money.

Now, this road building is complicated with the self-liquidating philosophy.

The hope is that money from EVERYBODY is in a different class from everybody split up into 48 and smaller classifications.

Then—average it. Will it average? The census bureau is trying to do it.

The American Federation of Investors thinks otherwise. So does the American Manufacturers' association — also a conservative outfit. There isn't any dispute that these folk are conservatives — whatever they're wrong.

BETTE DAVIS, the movie star, will appear on the "Raymond Paige, 99 Men and a Girl" program tonight at 7 o'clock over CBS.

She will be on without fee — reason is that she has a protegee, a west coast youngster named Pam Caveness who will make her big-time singing debut with Paige tonight and Miss Davis wants to be on hand to lend encouragement.

A NEW FEAT for radio goes into the records when Miss Caveness makes her appearance tonight. For the past week, Raymond Paige has been rehearsing with her via long-distance telephone to Hollywood.

She is flying to New York today and will arrive just in time for dress rehearsal. Maestro Paige and his composer — arranger have prepared a new number titled "Pam" in honor of her appearance.

IT DEALS biographically with the screen actress' protegee, Miss Davis who will be on hand to read to the accompaniment of the orchestral background.

Another "Johnny Presents" show tonight at 6 o'clock over MBS followed by an entirely different show at 6:30 over CBS.

BEVERLY AND her sister, Judy Freeland, singers on the "Johnny Presents" program, have composed the lyrics for a new novelty tune and Maestro Johnny Green will supply the music for them.

A rugged bartender who won two prizes for knitting and crocheting will be on Bob Ripley's "Believe it or Not" program tonight at 8:30 over CBS.

HARRY HABERMAN of Wisconsin is the man. Incidentally, he also doubles as a bouncer. In addition, John F. Cann, a truckdriver, will tell how he entered his self-made dollies in a Boston contest and won first prize over 100 women entrants.

Ripley's dramatization will revolve around a French painter who, after losing the use of his hands in a duel, learned how to paint with his feet and was decorated by the French government for his masterpieces which now hang in the Louvre and British art museum.

RIPLEY WILL ALSO present a rhyon who claims he's almost as buoyant as cork and nearly as unsinkable. Ripley will put him to the test in a New York City pool as he gives listeners a word-by-word description.

The man is William Claybrook, who will tie heavy weights to his bathing suit to prove they can't pull him under.

LINDA LEE, the singer on the Ripley "Believe it or Not" programs, came to the "oddtitorium" after the radio show last Friday night and passed out cold when the fire eater put a blow-torch into his open eye.

The "Cities Service concert" tonight will present a very interesting and varied program over NBC-Red at 6 o'clock directed by Frank Black.

THE ENSEMBLE will sing "A Boy Named Lem" from "Yokel Boy," Lucille Manners will sing "Estrelita," "The Sunshine of Your Smile" and "I Dream Too Much." Ross Graham's solo will be "Song of the Open Road."

Miss Manners and Mr. Graham will present as a duet "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Additional ensemble numbers are "Rockin' Chair," "Indian Love Lyrics" including "Temple Bells," "Less Than the Dust," "Till I Wake" and "Kashmiri Song."

THE ORCHESTRA will present "Hungarian Dance number one," "Waltz and Finale from Faust" and "Malaguena" from Boadill.

"The Ringing of Stone's Ranch" tonight's drama on the Death Valley Days drama program at 7:30 over NBC-Red will star NBC's "Television girl," Sue Reed.

HEALTH HINTS

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Among all the doctor books and medical reminiscences, such as the Horse and Buggy Doctor, by Dr. Arthur Hertzler, and Consultation Room, by Dr. Loomis, one recent addition stands out because of the uniqueness of the writer's experiences. The title is Elizabeth Garrett Anderson, by L. G. Anderson. It is the fine story of a brave fight against prejudice and malice and hypocrisy.

Elizabeth Garrett was an Englishwoman who decided 50 years ago to be a practicing physician. Today such a resolution would not be noticed. Then it was considered not only a peculiarity, but a breach of good taste and good morals. I have had in my classes in medical school at least two women a year for the past 15 years. Nobody in the classes considers whether they are women or men. We never think of their sex. Questions and problems that are common to all human beings are discussed as all such problems should be discussed, frankly and factually.

Cruel Oppositions But it was not so in the days that Elizabeth Anderson matriculated at the University of Edinburgh Medical School. She suffered snubs, rudeness, silliness, bitter opposition and downright insults. It does not seem possible, reading her record, that

When Elizabeth Garrett applied for matriculation at the University of Edinburgh, the senate voted to withdraw her request. When she was up for her finals, the Society of Apothecaries tried to refuse her the right of examination. When they were forced to give way, by the threat of legal action, they at once passed resolutions to attempt to prevent any other woman to be qualified.

This was, of course, only the beginning. After her entrance into the medical profession she found prejudice against her on all sides. Sick people did not want to go to a woman doctor. She slipped into the British Medical association at the meeting of 1875, and those so-called liberal men were so appalled that they proposed and passed a resolution to keep women out of their assemblies and their debates.

But Elizabeth Garrett, resolution or no resolution, went to every assembly and spoke at every meeting, year after year, until the rule was at last expunged in 1892. She was an indomitable woman and this record, told largely from her letters, is good reading and a most pointed reminder against such unsubstantial things as the hates and prejudices that are rife today.

human beings could be as cruel as they were. But when one thinks of the pogroms and horrors that have gone on in our time, one can realize that we have a long road to go to rise completely above the ape.

Elizabeth Garrett had a strong supporter in her father. And she had an inspirational meeting with Emily, another rebel against man, who was the first mistress of Girtton, the first girls' school in England. They were both against the tyranny that ordained that a gentleman could get no paid job except that of a government; needwork and Magnull's Questions did not satisfy their souls.

For the first time in the history of the university, tickets have been issued for guest admission to the summer convocation exercises. This was made necessary because of the number of relatives and friends coming for the record-sized summer convocation.

Any candidates for degrees who have convocation tickets in their possession which will not be used are urged to return them to the alumni office in Old Capitol because there is a large waiting list for tickets. Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, director of university convocations, has announced.

Admission to the event will be by ticket only up to 7:45 this evening. After that time, the doors will be open to the public and ticketholders will not be guaranteed admission.

Jittery Indians Massacred By Bosox, 17 to 6

BOSTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox made it three out of four against Cleveland today, taking the series finale, 17-6, by merely letting the Indians beat themselves.

Six errors were charged up against the jittery Clevelanders, who gave one of their worst performances here in years. Skeeter Webb, who is shortly to be assigned to Buffalo, committed two of the misplays, bringing his total for the Boston series to four.

The Red Sox, who poked out a total of 19 hits, led by only 8-6 as they went into the last of the eighth. At that point, however, they pounced on Johnny Broaca for the start of a nine-run spree. Manager Joe Cronin coming to bat twice during the inning and doubling twice.

Johnny Allen was the losing pitcher, but he was more sinned against than sinning, for most of the seven runs the Sox scored off him could have been averted with air-tight fielding. Although touched for 10 hits, Jake Wade, the second of three Boston pitchers, was credited with his first victory of the year.

The Answer

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Joe Medwick's home run the first time at bat against the Boston Bees, after the fans had cheered his appearance at the plate, was a resounding answer today to reports the St. Louis Cardinals outfielder was disgruntled and was not doing his best.

Sez Jim to John—

—How's prospects for your team out at Colorado State Teachers college this year? And John Hancock, right, tells Jim Harris, Iowa line coach, that things appear "just fair." Hancock, former Hawkeye football star during 1922, '23 and '24, stopped in Iowa City yesterday to visit friends. In a bull session, Hancock recalled his high school days at Superior, Wis., where he played with Ernie Nevers, current coach of the Chicago Cardinals in the National pro football league. Nevers at that time played in the line, Hancock holding down the fullback job.

Cards Take Twin Bill From Bees; Cub Rookies Lead Way to 9-6 Win

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Running their winning streak to five in a row, the St. Louis Cardinals cut a full game off the National league lead of the idle Cincinnati Reds today by defeating the Boston Bees in both halves of a doubleheader.

The victories by scores of 5-1 and 4-3 placed the Cardinals more securely in second place, 9 1-2 games behind the front-running Reds, who were rained out this afternoon.

Blades and Medwick Feudin'

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP)—They are keeping the home fires burning in St. Louis, particularly under Joe Medwick, and boy, is he hot!

When Ray Blades sent in a substitute to field for Duck-Wucky Tuesday it practically was the same as sending someone in to run the last lap for Glenn Cunningham, or fight the last round for Joe Louis. An insult, no less, and it added to the growing belief that when the snows come Medwick will go.

As a matter of fact it would not be necessary to wait that long for the Cardinals and their star outfielder to part company, although the closing date for player deals was June 15.

Here's what could happen through a little political hooch trading:

Brooklyn is known to be a little moon-struck over Medwick. Last summer Larry MacPhail is reported to have offered $200,000 for him, which may be the same as a boy saying: "Betja a million dollars," but is a fair indication that MacPhail would like to have Joe.

Brooklyn was in sixth place today, with only Boston and Philadelphia lower. The Dodgers and Cardinals could arrange their deal, and then MacPhail could go to like he'd snap right away from the club, but finally signed for a figure somewhere between $17,000 and $20,000.

However, he apparently hasn't been happy about the whole thing, and when Blades fined him $25 for failing to hustle after a ground ball, Ducky's relations with the club became more or less strained. It is reported he and Blades, after that incident, wouldn't even say: "Pass the salt" to each other.

Tuesday's incident was something of a climax, and something is likely to pop any day.

Leo Durocher and Medwick were team mates at St. Louis, and remain very close friends. In fact, Durocher tossed a party recently when the Dodgers were in St. Louis, and among those present was Joseph Medwick. Just passing by and dropped in, of course.

All in all, the parting of the ways seems due sooner or later. The Cards probably could use a little ready cash right now, what with weekday attendance under 1,000. But if they did try to put over that waiver deal with the Dodgers, there's always the chance that Mr. Nugent might bob up with:

"Just what was that you were saying about the Phils, Larry?"

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers pulled themselves back into a tie for fifth place in the National league today with a 4-1 victory over the Pirates in their series finale.

Tot Pressnell, aided by three double plays, pitched a steady 2-1 game. The only run against him was scored by Max Butcher, the Pirates' newly acquired pitcher, on two singles in the third.

Rookie Art Parks celebrated his elevation to Brooklyn's cleanup slot by getting a triple and scoring on Dolph Camilli's single in the sixth to knot the score, and driving in a run with a single in the ninth after two singles and a double had put the Dodgers in front with two runs in the seventh.

Loses Ground In Fight To Catch Leaders

Waldorf, Stuhldreher Stage Battle For Big 10 Top Honors

Holding fourth place in the Big Ten standings but losing ground in the fight to overtake the pacesetters, Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa's head football coach, seemed assured of no worse than the position he now occupies as the nationwide poll to select a coaching staff for the all-stars enters its final stages.

Boasting a point total of 683-928—each first place vote counting for three points—Anderson trails Mal Edward of Purdue, in third place, by 125,317 points.

Harry Stuhldreher, Badger coach, closed in on Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern mentor, by running his total points to 883,634, while the pace-setting Waldorf boasted a total of 1,073,778.

As the battle in the conference settled down into a dog fight for first place, Elmer Layden, the nation's choice for the head coaching assignment, soared over the two million mark, his tabulation revealing 2,041,701, apparently more than enough to assure him of top honors.

Layden's closest rival in the middleweight section, Biff Jones of Nebraska, trails Layden by nearly two million points, having 218,657 to his credit.

The eastern section is paced by Carl Snavely of Cornell; 547,743 points give Snavely a commanding lead over Jimmy Crowley, Fordham, who now has 249,928.

Bob Neyland, Tennessee, is making a healthy bid for southern honors, pacing Dana Bible, Texas, with 608,225 to Bible's 124,109.

In the far west Slip Madigan is engaged in a nip and tuck battle with Tiny Thornhill, Stanford. Madigan has 355,959 to Thornhill's 325,999.

With but two days of voting remaining in the poll, Anderson must receive a flood of last minute votes if he is to replace any one of the three that lead him in the conference race. Anderson's state vote yesterday, including Iowa City's, was 18,877 first place ballots or 56,631 points.

City Council Approves $256,047 Budget For Next Fiscal Year

One Dissenting Vote Cast By H. Shulman

Expenditures To Be $5,056 Less Than Those of Last Year

With but one objection voiced, the proposed $256,047 city budget for the fiscal year of April 1, 1940 to March 31, 1941 was approved by the city council at an adjourned meeting last night in the council chambers at the city hall.

The objection came from Harry Shulman, president of the library board, who stated that the board's estimated expenditure for the year was $15,000, $1,000 more than provided in the proposed city budget.

Officials explained that the board's request could not be granted in that the proposed city budget had been advertised and that according to law the council was prohibited from raising any individual item.

An estimated $181,047 must be raised by taxation, according to the approved budget, and will necessitate a tax levy of 14.06 mills which is .03 of a mill less than a year ago.

Amounts to be raised by taxation are set forth here:

Consolidated, $101,733; fire maintenance, $16,944; firemen's pension number two, $600; sanitary district, $6,190; library, $13,500; park, $7,400; policemen's pension number one, $2,100; policemen's pension number two, $800; general bond and interest, $7,983; and community building, $2,500.

The budget lists an estimated balance of $49,763 on hand at the end of the current fiscal year, including $25,941 in the consolidated fund; $4,045, fire equipment fund; $3,489, cemetery fund; $1,779, sanitary district fund, and $5,771, bridge maintenance fund.

The following amounts are listed in the budget as estimated income from sources other than taxation; consolidated, $23,850; cemetery, $3,200; library, $500; general bonds and interest, $33,000; airport, $300, and community building, $1,500, a total of $62,550.

Expenditures on the approved budget are: consolidated, $127,583; cemetery, $6,200; fire equipment, $1,500; fire maintenance, $20,944; firemen's pension, $600; sanitary district, $6,940; bridge maintenance, $3,500; library, $14,000; park, $7,400; police pension, $2,800; general bonds and interest, $8,597; airport, $8,483, and community building, $4,000.

The proposed expenditure last year was $262,103, $5,056 more than the newly approved budget.

Donald W. McCavick of Cedar Falls was named science instructor in the Iowa City junior high school last night at a special meeting of the Iowa City school board.

The meeting was called to accept bids for coal contracts for the independent school district of Iowa City for the 1939-40 term. These are junior high school mathematics and English positions, the fourth grade position in Longfellow school and a director of the opportunity room for junior high school. Applications to fill these positions will be presented to the board for acceptance at the next regular meeting next Wednesday.

Dates Set For U. Hi Exams

Prospective Students Will Take Tests Next Tuesday, Thursday

Entrance examinations for pupils expecting to enter University high school will be given next Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 8 and 9, prior to the opening of the 24th annual session, Principal M. W. Stout announced yesterday.

Registration for the coming session to open Sept. 18 will also take place on these dates.

According to the schedule announced yesterday, seventh grade pupils will report for the examinations at 1 p.m. Tuesday. All ninth grade pupils and pupils in eighth, 10th, 11th and 12th grades who have not previously attended University high school will take their examinations Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. It will be necessary for these pupils to be present all day.

The examinations are not entrance examinations for pupils in grades seven, eight, 10, 11, 12 or those in nine who were enrolled in the eighth grade of University high school last year. For these pupils they will serve for the purposes of classification and guidance.

Because of the large number which has applied for entrance, the examinations will also provide information to assist in the selection of new applicants for admission to the ninth grade.

No student who has not been previously enrolled in the school will be considered for admission to the ninth grade unless the examinations are completed. All examinations will be given in room 224 of University high school.

Additional information can be had by calling Principal Stout at University high school, it was announced.
