HAWKEYES TAKE INDIANA, 32-29

Iowa-Indiana Play by Play

FIRST QUARTER
Captain Prasse of Iowa won the toss and chose to defend the south goal. There was a hot south wind whipping through the stadium.

Prasse kicked off over the Indiana goal and the Hoosiers put the ball in play on their own 20. Toffl made five yards on a plunge. He was stopped by Walker. Toffl added three yards on another plunge at the line. He struck the center of the line for a first down on the Hoosier 32. Toffl went around left end to the 40 and lateraled to Zimmer who was pushed out of bounds on the Indiana 43. Walker smashed through to clip Zimmer for a yard loss. He hit Zimmer, a 140-pound back so hard that the Indiana back took time out. Hursh threw a long pass to Zimmer who caught the ball on the Hawkeye 35. He finally was downed on the 18-yard line.

Zimmer dodged several Hawkeye tacklers on his surge through the secondary. Couppee replaced Gallagher in the Iowa back field. The Hawkeyes took time out. Zimmer, behind powerful interference, went around Iowa's right end to the Iowa 7-yard line and a first down. Zimmer was halted at the line of scrimmage on a plunge. Toffl fumbled but the Hoosiers recovered. The Hoosiers did not gain. A pass into the end zone was wild. Herbert dropped back and booted a field goal from the 14-yard line. Score: Indiana 3; Iowa 0.

White kicked off for Indiana to Kinnick on the 15 who ran to the Iowa 40 where he lateraled to Busk who ran to the Indiana 30 before he was brought down by Hursh. Green made two at center. Busk was good to the 25 on a play over tackle. Prasse dropped Kinnick's pass on fourth down. Toffl made nine yards to the 33, barely missing a first down but another try gave the Hoosier the required yardage on the 35. Hursh's pass to Harris was incomplete but Busk was called for interference and Indiana was given the ball on the Iowa 43. Herbert lost a yard at right guard. Brooks was good to the 39 over the center of the line. Hursh's pass to Zimmer was good to the Iowa 15 as Zimmer eluded Couppee. Brooks faked a pass and then turned his right end for 15 yards and a touchdown. Herbert converted from placement. Score: Indiana 10; Iowa 0.

Kinnick returned Indiana's kick-off from his five-yard line to the Iowa 25. Kinnick quick-kicked and the ball rolled to a stop on the Indiana three-yard line. Kinnick took the Hoosiers return punt on the Indiana 40, juggled the ball and then recovered on the 30. Kinnick faded back and then tossed a perfect pass to Prasse who caught the ball on the nine-yard line and went over for a touchdown. Prasse was completely in the clear when he grabbed Kinnick's peg. Kinnick added the extra point by a drop kick. Indiana 10; Iowa 7. Brooks, substitute back, was downed on his 24 after taking the Iowa kick-off. Indiana made a yard on a drive at Iowa's right end. Brooks lost 6 yards when Enich, big Iowa tackle, smeared him. Hursh's high punt soared out of bounds on the Indiana 30. The kick was hurried. Ankeny replaced Couppee at quarter for Iowa.

Kinnick got two yards on a smash at center. Green lost two yards on an end run. Kinnick's long pass was incomplete. It was intended for Captain Prasse but the ball sailed over his head into (See PLAY BY PLAY, Page 4)

United States Moves To Tighten Defenses

Full Peacetime Army Strength Is Possibility

War Department To Train 70,000 Troops This Winter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—In a new move to reinforce national defenses, the war department today ordered unprecedented mass training this winter for more than 70,000 troops—a procedure intended to weld new army divisions into a mobile fighting force.

At the same time an intention to ask congress to expand the regular army by an additional 53,000 men to its full peacetime strength of 280,000 was indicated by disclosure of plans for additional divisions "when and if" increases are authorized.

No Reference To War
Approved by President Roosevelt, the announcement for organization of the fighting force came from Secretary Woodring. It omitted reference to the European war or to earlier defense measures taken since Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency.

There was no hint whether the request for further army expansion would await the regular session or would be presented to the special session of congress after conclusion of the neutrality debate.

The extraordinary winter training was described by Woodring as "essential" in view of "the extremely limited numbers available for the defense of the United States as an initial protective force."

Troops To Be Welded
In the most extensive war games in army history, some 60,000 or more troops of five new "streamlined" divisions and special units are to be moved in the next few weeks from scattered posts, first to different concentration points in the south and northwest, it was announced.

Then they will be massed late in the winter at a central point—probably at Fort Benning, Ga., officials thought—for training as the first actual American army combat corps organized since the World War.

Yacht Bursts Into Flame In Hudson River

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—(Sunday) Aircraft designer Anthony Fokker's streamlined yacht "Q. E. D." burst into flames on the Hudson river late last night, but a newly married couple aboard and the crew of nine apparently escaped. Several suffered burns and shock.

F. B. I. Probes Sabotage On U. S. S. Arizona

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover's federal bureau of investigation agents are looking into reported sabotage aboard the U. S. battleship Arizona. Its machinery and water tanks were rumored damaged during gunnery practice off Southern California.

Hoover also said his department is keeping close watch on the steamship Iroquois, en route to New York with American war refugees, because a German official advised that the vessel would be sunk before it reached this country.

The head of the FBI said that what happened aboard the Arizona was "one of those things I can't discuss."

A Casualty
One rumor told of damage and another mentioned a "casualty." Hoover did not say sabotage had been discovered but explained an investigation had been ordered to determine whether there had been any. The Arizona is flagship of Rear Admiral Russell Willson's battleship division.

Discussing the Iroquois, Hoover said the German report had been given him at Washington and he thought there were good grounds for investigating.

"It is a matter on which we could not afford to take a chance," Hoover said.

As Hawks Whipped Hoosiers

The upper photograph was taken just as Nile Kinnick, Hawk left halfback, went over for the second Iowa marker in the second quarter of the Iowa-Hoosier game yesterday afternoon in Iowa stadium. Kinnick had previously moved the ball from the Hoosier 20-yard string to the 32 and plunged over on the next play. The lower photo shows fleet-footed Harold Hursh, Indiana triple-threat back, skirting the Iowa end in the third period of the game. Hursh was brought down by Jens Norgaard, Hawk end, and Herman Snider, Iowa guard, with no gain.

The figure of Nile Kinnick, newest warrior saint of Iowa football, towered mightily above the sod of Iowa stadium yesterday as a wave of touchdown madness brought the embattled Hawkeyes a 32-29 victory over Indiana's Hoosiers in a conflict that raged through gridiron highways and skyways for a panicky 60 minutes.

Before a thrill shaken Dad's Day crowd of 16,500, the Hawkeyes, twice apparently shattered by the power of a high-geared Hoosier scoring machine, blasted forth in a series of long range scoring thrusts to snatch victory in the closing moments. And, through this scene of the most bitterly contested warfare Iowa stadium has ever seen, it was Kinnick, the sturdy and invincible pacemaker of a conquering Hawkeye team, who led the victory march in corroboration with Capt. Erwin Prasse, pass snatching Iowa end.

Finland Boosts Army, Delays Moscow Reply

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 7 (AP)—Finland tonight announced the calling up of new army reserves while delaying a reply to a Russian invitation to a conference in Moscow.

Although the two developments were not linked officially, observers said they regarded as significant the timing of the call to the colors.

Invitations to Finland's small Baltic neighbors to send envoys to Moscow have cost them sweeping concessions to Russia's expanding power. Northern European capitals were speculating on whether the summoning of reserves meant that Finland would attempt to stand against this trend.

The reserves were called for "defense of the national neutrality," the defense ministry announced, adding that since they crowded the regular barracks, "some troops have been sent to rural areas where they might also be used for work on fortifications."

The number of reserves was not disclosed. At the same time it became known that the Finns have been strengthening their Russian border since last spring. The Finnish cabinet met today to discuss political and economic questions, and presumably the Russian invitation to Foreign Minister Eljas Erko to visit Moscow.

Reliable Helsinki quarters expected after the cabinet meeting that a representative would be sent to Moscow in answer to the Soviet proposal but it was believed almost certain it would not be Erko.

Senate Sees Roosevelt In Peacemaker's Roll

Favors Chance To End War; F. D. R. Silent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—A strong wave of sentiment developed in the senate today for President Roosevelt to step into the role of peacemaker in Europe.

Senators on both sides of the neutrality controversy expressed the opinion that the chief executive should take advantage of any clear opportunity afforded by overtures from Berlin to aid in ending the European war.

Administration quarters, however, remained silent. Secretary Hull declined to comment on the dispatches from Berlin indicating that Chancellor Hitler would welcome a move by Mr. Roosevelt to effect a European settlement.

Dutch, Belgian Monarchs Would Mediate War

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Oct. 7 (AP)—The sovereigns of the Netherlands and Belgium were represented today as willing to act as mediators in Europe if belligerent powers ask them to do so.

It was said in informed quarters that neither Queen Wilhelmina or King Leopold would take the initiative. These quarters said the initial move must come from the warring nations.

Allies Await Winter Aid For Blockade?

PARIS, Oct. 7 (AP)—French and British sources indicated today that the allies were playing a delaying game to prevent the start of major German operations on the western front in order to let winter weather aid the blockade of Germany.

These sources indicated that allied leaders were convinced that if Germany had to face a winter siege without sensational land battles to bolster morale, the nazis would be much weaker when weather cleared for military operations in the spring.

French military observers set the end of October as the outside limit for the German offensive to start. While there often is "Indian summer" weather in Alsace-Lorraine through October, the weather turns bad with the beginning of November and stays bad through February.

Balkan States Reduce Forces

BUCHAREST, Oct. 7 (AP)—Southeastern Europe witnessed a new trend in its post-World War history today with a simultaneous reduction in armed forces agreed upon by Yugoslavia, Rumania and Hungary.

Particularly significant was this unified move by Rumania and Yugoslavia against Hungary because of her claims to their World War gains.

Corn Glut On Iowa Farms To Be Relieved

DES MOINES, Oct. 7 (AP)—Federal agricultural agencies announced steps today to relieve congestion of corn on Iowa farms, where some 15 to 18 million bushels of seed corn are reported awaiting liquidation to satisfy the owners' corn loans.

The AAA and the Commodity Credit Corp. announced that shipments of steel bins to Iowa are being speeded up and that corn will be shipped to terminal elevators for the next few days to relieve pressure until the bins arrive.

Farm Benefits Boost Income

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—A five-million dollar boost in federal farm benefits over the same month last year brought Iowa's farm income up to a total of $392,661,000 for the first eight months of 1939, the August report of the federal bureau of agricultural economics said today.

When In Germany

ADOLF HITLER has spoken again.

There are some new statements in his speech but mostly refrains and echoes of past speeches which have become farcical in the light of subsequent developments in Europe.

He said a lot of other things—mostly foolish because of their inconsistency. Poland—a modest demand—the modesty of which has been judged differently by neutral observers.

THE PHILIPPINES Want Trade With America

THE INTEREST in the United States in the Philippines will show little decline, even though the question of re-examination dies in congress and the Philippines become independent in 1946.

President Quezon of the Philippines wants the independence. But he also wants a continuance of the economic ties that have bound the islands so close to the States.

THE BOOK PARADE

'The Heritage of America'

THE BOOK... 'The Heritage of America,' a history of America which can be read for pleasure.

THE EDITORS... Henry Steele Commager and Allan Nevins, ranked among the top historians of America.

THE REVIEWER... Harrison John Thornton, an associate professor in the history department.

'The Heritage of America' continues the recent lively improvement in the manner of presenting the documentary sources of American history.

But, two years ago, Henry Beston in 'American Memory' illustrated a fresh and lighter mood of documentary compilation.

And earlier this year, Marjorie Greenbie's 'American Saga' showed us how the sources could be used as the sturdy warp for the woof of scintillating narrative.

In selecting the documents that make the body of 'The Heritage of America,' the qualifying test has been that of broad human interest.

The consequence is a rich and vibrant picture of the American scene as it unfolds its mighty panorama from the beginning until now.

Leif Ericson is seen sailing to Vineland almost five hundred years before the 'discovery' of America.

Here is an excerpt from the Journal of Columbus recording the excitement of the sailors when, in October, 1492, they sighted brids in flight, and a small branch 'covered with berries' floating on the water.

A passage from William Bradford's 'History of Plymouth Plantation' describes the landing of the Pilgrims on the lonely shore of Massachusetts bay.

Cotton Mather himself tells the disreputable story of the Salem witch hunt, and of poor Martha Carrier's alleged compact with the devil to make her Queen of Hell.

There is a racy account of Sarah Knight's journey from Boston to New York in 1704, and Benjamin Franklin's autobiography is culled for the story of his arrival in Philadelphia as he walked along Market street carrying an unwrapped loaf of bread under each arm, and munching on a third.

Mary Rowlandson tells the stark facts of her capture by and sojourn among the Indians, long before the redman had been ennobled by the romantic authors.

Several documents illustrate graphically the struggle for independence, and Thomas Jefferson, who helped so much to secure it, is heard prophetically to declare the new government to be 'the world's best hope.'

The heritage of America is seen in terms of the widening west. A French nobleman gives an eyewitness description of pioneer life in the Connecticut Valley, and Grandmother Brown tells her brave tale of the Iowa frontier.

Here is James Marshall's own account of the discovery of California's gold, and Robert Louis Stevenson's narrative of his journey through the last American west.

Both the Civil and World wars are seen through the eyes of participants.

For example, Sherman makes a personal report on the march from Atlanta to Savannah; Eliza Andrews describes the desolation of the 'burnt country' after the 'infamous wretches' had passed; the haggard Wilson is seen in anguished vigil the night before he asked for war on Germany; the A. E. F. reduces the salient at Saint-Mihel, Gen. John J. Pershing reporting.

The post-World war section is opened by Warren G. Harding, and in it are seen Calvin Coolidge taking the oath of office; Lindbergh flying to Paris; the bonus army in Washington; Franklin D. Roosevelt announcing a new deal in his first inaugural address.

Henry Steele Commager and Allan Nevins know their country's story intimately and expertly. The fact has been proved many times before, and it is here displayed again.

They belong to the most select company of American historians, and their collaboration has given us a magnificent book. One must judge the selection of the final item in 'The Heritage of America' to be an act of faith: Walt Whitman's noble poem—'Sail, Sail Thy Best, Ship of Democracy.'

In these distressing days, such an act, by men who know the shadows as well as the lights of history, is significant and heartening.

Stewart Says Senator Arthur Capper Is About Most Effective Pacifist in Country

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

Senators Nye and Capper submit that, if we don't sell arms to any belligerent at all, that's neutrality.

As good a pacifist as the best of them, is thoroughly rational. Rather than fighting for peace, he evangelizes for it.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

Memo Spann's German grammar is completed, but it may not be published for awhile.

Good grammar, they said, but at this time—int'l events being what they are—it probably isn't a very good idea to publish any German books.

Was it anybody's idea that the doors at the T. V. Smith lecture be kept closed?

Surely wouldn't have mattered much if an uninvited soul or two had crept in.

There's quite a group around the campus who're more than ordinarily thrilled by Smith's political possibilities.

Not this year, say his backers, but by '44, he'll be 54. That's young for presidential timber.

He's a man of the people, too, was born in Blanket, Texas.

Just the kind of man FDR may be looking for to take over in '44, when he retires to Hyde Park after 12 short years.

One of the main troubles in the senate "peace" debate is a fault in my own over-the-coffee discussions.

I honestly think about 90 percent of us don't want a war at any price, as long as our own skins are intact anyway.

Which is exactly the reason I'm more than a little over-fed with the ones who shout at my lift-the-arms embargo plea.

The only answer is, "No." I'm as sincere in my saying we must keep war out of our hemisphere as any of the others.

I begin with three assumptions. (1) "Cash-and-Carry" is a less dangerous policy than the present "neutrality."

(2) To those who argue that such a policy means a "war" economy, I reply that completed airplanes are no more a "war" economy than sheets of steel.

And (3) We may as well admit, privately anyway, that it's better for England and France to win.

There's something to be said for the "status quo" against the combined totalitarianisms of Europe and Asia.

I go back to my original thesis, then. We all want peace, I believe.

And the United States had a '29 and a Roosevelt. A '49 might mean a Browder at the mildest.

Tucker Thinks It A Coincidence That British, French Steamships Dock Side by Side in N. Y.

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—What a waterfront New York has. One hundred and thirty-nine steamship companies dock here.

This helps explain the presence of so many squat, ugly tugs in the harbor.

When one of the big liners, say the Queen Mary, docks here, twelve tugs are required to warp her into her berth.

For this service each tug is paid $35. That makes $420 just for being shoved into a pier.

Speaking of skippers, there's Capt. David William Bone, boss of the Transylvania, flagship of the Anchor line.

All the big passenger liners put into sumptuous piers on the Hudson, or west side, of the Manhattan waterfront.

clinging to the East side. A few freighters and fruit lines cater to an adventurous sort of passenger trade.

people who want to "slum it" on the high seas, but the freighter business is largely based on bananas, oil, hemp, cocoa, and coffee.

An interesting coincidence, if it is a coincidence—is the alignment of the major foreign steamship lines along the Hudson piers.

The British and the French lines are side by side, just as they are, politically, in Europe, while a few steps away, side by side, are the German and Italian lines.

Hawks Show Offensive Power

over to his captain and teammate for the final six points just four minutes before the game's end.

All Sensational

Sensational as it was, the ending had nothing on the early stages of the game, which saw gods of football fortune withdraw their fickle smiles from one side and then the other.

The game was barely under way before Iowa received its first taste of Hoosier power. The red shirted invaders rolled from their own 20 to deep within Iowa territory with a quick succession of dazzling plays, including Zimmer's 20 yard dash after catching a 30 yard pass from Harold Hursh, Hoosier ace. It appeared that the Hawks would stop this threat when the Indiana attack bogged down on the seven, but Herbert booted a field goal to snatch a 3-0 lead.

Progress by Air

Still finding progress easier by air, the Hoosiers took the offensive again and raced the length of the field in half a dozen plays, climaxed by Herbert's dash around right end for the touchdown. The extra point left Indiana on the long end of a 10-0 score.

A terrific boot by Kinnick on the first play after the kickoff drove the Hoosiers back into the danger zone. The kick, from Iowa's 25 to the Hoosier two yard line, was good for over 70 yards. A poor punt by Hursh gave Kinnick the ball on the 40 from where he blasted back 10 yards and on the next play whipped a perfect pass to Prasse on the 15. Prasse, taking the ball in stride, rocketed into the end zone for the first Iowa marker and Kinnick converted to make the first quarter score 10-7.

Two More Touchdowns

Once under way, the Hawkeyes thundered through to two more touchdowns before halftime rolled around. Early in the second quarter, Kinnick found a hole in the Indiana line, broke through behind his interference and raced a blistering 55 yards to the Hoosier 3, from where he went over on the next play. His dropkick for extra point, followed by another successful march ending in a pass to Prasse gave the Hawks a 20-10 lead.

The time was all too short, before Indiana again struck, and again it was through the air, with Tipmore scoring on a pass from Hursh. The half ended shortly after Toffil's kick for extra point brought the score to 20-17, with Iowa still in the lead.

Indiana's Quarter

The third quarter was all Indiana, two touchdowns coming with startling suddenness. From the Iowa 47 the Hoosiers launched the next scoring drive. Hursh passed to Red Zimmer, 145 pound speedster, on the 15 and Zimmer breaking through the Indiana secondary for a fifteen yard gain in the first quarter of the game. The lower picture shows Floyd "Buzz" Dean skirting the Hoosier end in the fourth quarter of the game. An Iowa lineman blocks out a Hoosier end while Bill Green and Kinnick lead Dean's interference for a 10-yard gain. Iowa scored two touchdowns in the final quarter to win the contest 32-29.

Brown Has Accident, Almost Misses Game

Those of you who listened in to the broadcast of the game through the facilities of WHO, Des Moines, yesterday almost missed the voice of the ace commentator, Bill Brown, because Bill and his party of four, which included Harold Fair, the program director of the station, his wife Ruth, Lois Wilson and an unidentified high school student from Des Moines were involved in a highway accident at Eldora. The car in which they were riding was badly damaged but no one was hurt. They were forced to continue their journey into Iowa City via the hitch-hike method.

Mighty Men Of Minnesota Humbled, 6-0

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 7 (AP)—Nebraska, dripping with raw power, relied today on a surprise play and a misdirected block by Minnesota's captain to tarnish the Golden Gophers, 6 to 0.

Fleet Robert de Fruiter scurried 21 yards to the 3-yard line on a reverse midway in the second period of a bruising football game to find himself surrounded by a horde of Minnesotans. An attempted block sailed the substitute halfback into the end zone.

All afternoon a trio of Nebraska backs rammed and rambled through and around the flabby Minnesota line that was as mild as the weather—and it was such none of the 33,000 spectators needed a top coat.

First it was Hermie Rohrig, then it was Harry (Hoppy) Hopp and late in the game Henry Rohn who knifed through the team which last week crushed Arizona, 62 to 0.

And it was this Nebraska regularity of depending almost entirely on one ball carrier in each set of backs that brought Minnesota's downfall.

Hopp had slanted through the Gopher forwards for gains of nine and 13 yards in the series of downs preceding the touchdown play.

The Gophers were set to stop Hasty Harry who took the ball again but this time he handed it to de Fruiter for a sweep around Nebraska's right end.

The sophomore threaded his way through the Gophers like a nudist in a bramble patch until the three yard line where he was hemmed in. Then Capt. Win Pedersen's sideblock catapulted him across, inches from the sidelines.

27. Kinnick drove inside his right end to the Indiana 10-yard line. It was a first down for Iowa. Dean failed to gain around left end. Kinnick's pass to Gallagher was incomplete. R. Dumke came into the Indiana backfield for Herbert. Kinnick lost 5 at right end. Kinnick's long pass to Prasse was caught in the end zone for an Iowa touchdown. Prasse's catch was right off the fingertips. Kinnick's attempted dropkick was wide.

Score: Iowa 32; Indiana 29.

Vollenweider replaced B111 Gallagher for Iowa. Dean kicked off for Iowa to Hursh who lateraled to Zimmer who was brought down on the Indiana 19. Hursh passed to Harris who was slammed down on the Indiana 27 for a first down. Moeller replaced Gahn at center for Indiana. Dumke gained a yard at center. A short pass, Hursh to Harris, was good for a yard. Hursh's pass to Harris was incomplete. There was less than two minutes to play. Dean was hurt on the play and Gilleard replaced him for Iowa. Tipmore and M. Dumke came in the Indiana lineup. Hursh's fourth down pass was incomplete and Iowa took over on the Indiana 31. Kinnick lost 6 yards around an attempted end run. Maddox came in for Indiana and Ankeny replaced Vollenweider for Iowa.

FOURTH QUARTER

Herbert replaced Tipmore at quarterback for Indiana. Diehl intercepted Bringle's pass on the Iowa 20 and returned to the Iowa 27. Kinnick's pass to Prasse was incomplete. Kinnick passed short to Dean who ran the ball to the Iowa 40. It was a first down for Iowa. Green picked up five yards at his own right tackle. On the same play Green was good for 2 yards. Dean went through his own left tackle for five yards and a first down on the Indiana 47. Prasse shifted into the backfield and swept the Indiana left end for seven yards.

Green picked up 2 yards into the left tackle. Green made seven yards out side right tackle for a first down on the Indiana 31. Green was pushed out of bounds by K. Smith after picking up 5 yards around Indiana's right end. Kinnick's pass to Gallagher was incomplete. Tofil came in at fullback for Indiana and Rehm came in at tackle for Indiana. Kinnick was just shy of a first down on the Indiana 21. Green hit center for a first down on the Indiana 19. Dean ran his left end to the 13-yard line for a 6-yard gain. Prasse went to the 10 on an end around. He was hit by Tofil. Dean cut back outside tackle to the Indiana three for an Iowa first down. Green split the guards for three yards and an Iowa touchdown. Kinnick's drop kick was wide.

Score: Indiana 29; Iowa 26.

Dean's kick off was caught by Herbert on the five and he returned to the Indiana 22. Tofil picked up two yards at guard and K. Smith gained a yard at left end. Enich who had played the entire game was hurt on the play and was replaced by Bergstrom. Logan and Hursh came back in the Indiana lineup. Green leaped high in the air to intercept Hursh's pass on the Indiana 31. He returned to the Indiana

Wolves Check State Rivals In 26-13 Tilt

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 7 (AP)—The University of Michigan football team pushed across four touchdowns in the first half today and then halted a desperate attack by Michigan State, its traditional rival, to win 26 to 13, before a crowd of 68,618.

Forest Evashevski scored two touchdowns and Tom Harmon and Paul Kromer one each for Michigan, while Center Bill Batchelor and Wymen Davis tallied for Michigan State.

Kinnick made a yard over center. Kinnick split the guards for a first down on the Indiana 21. It was a 14-yard gain. Kinnick failed to gain in the line, and Indiana was penalized 5 yards for offside. Kinnick failed to gain as the game ended. Final score: Iowa 32; Indiana 29.

Home Runs Give Champs Third Game

Keller, DiMaggio Find Easy Pickings In Junior Thompson

CROSLBY FIELD, CINCINNATI, Oct. 7 (AP)—The New York Yankees' powerhouse after traveling in low gear before masterful pitching for two days, broke lose its home run lightning today to smash the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 3, for the third straight victory in the 1939 world series.

With the pitching giving way to the attack on both sides, the first time in this series, the bombing squad from the Bronx blasted four home runs—two by rookie Charley Keller—and gave a strongly partisan crowd of 32,723 home-club rooters a display of the dynamite which has made it famous in its last three straight world championship triumphs.

In near mid-summer weather, the Yanks made only five hits to ten for the national league kings—but they didn't waste one, as rookie Junior Thompson served his "boom boom" ball to them in just the right spots in the first five innings.

Keller clouted his first four-bagger after Frankie Crosetti had walked in the opening inning. Then clouting Charley drew a pass with two out in the third, and Joe DiMaggio snapped out of his series doldrums with a towering smash that soared over the 383-foot mark on the center-field fence and into the street beyond.

Cats Upset Sooners Score 23-0 Triumph

EVANSTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Oklahoma's Sooners, the boss team of the Big Six conference last year, did everything right today to fashion a staggering 23 to 0 upset triumph over Northwestern, in spite of some brilliant operations by Bill DeCorrevont.

The biggest opening day turnout in Northwestern's gridiron history, 45,000 spectators, came to see how DeCorrevont, the nation's most publicized prep school star two years ago, would do against the big boys, they saw the blond youngster stage a brilliant performance after an unhappy start but, nothing DeCorrevont could do, was anywhere near enough to offset mistakes. The Oklahoma Sooners, underdogs in spite of their sensational record of 10 straight victories last year before losing to Tennessee in the Orange Bowl, were prompt to take advantage of errors.

Oklahoma, coached by Tom Stidham who used to tutor Northwestern lines clamped a strangling defense on Northwestern's highly regarded crew of backs, and produced stunning offensive power when scoring opportunities arose.

Iowa City's Clock That Didn't Tick

Time Passes—Landmark Stands

Attention of many Iowa City residents has been drawn recently to a stone about three feet high and 18 inches square standing in the front yard of the home of Elizabeth Irish, 132 N. Dodge street.

The curious piece is covered with a wooden crate to protect it from becoming chipped or broken. Years ago the stone carried many legends among children of the neighborhood who noticed it standing there near the sidewalk as they passed to and from school. Some thought it was the marker of a famous Indian chief's grave and others were told it was a base mark placed by a surveyor who laid out Iowa City.

But the true identity of the stone was revealed recently by Miss Irish, who explained that her father, Gen. Charles Irish, once mounted on the stone instruments which he used to tell time. There are still four holes in the four corners on top of the stone where he set his sextant.

General Irish, she explained, recorded time with a series of very delicate instruments using the sun, moon and the stars. He then set a large master clock from his observations and from this master clock all of Iowa City and the University of Iowa were supplied with the correct time.

But there was no radio, telegraph or telephone in those days—80 or 90 years ago—by which the time could be learned. Those who wanted to set clocks brought their timepieces to the Irish home and set them according to the large Swiss master clock.

The service was carried on for the convenience of the university and for Marquardt's Jewelry store, then the leading jeweler in Iowa City, who also maintained a time service with the aid of General Irish.

General Irish, it was explained, was a noted engineer. He surveyed and laid out the routes of the first railroads in the northwest, including lines through Iowa City.

Famed Works Of Benton To Be Displayed

Mid-West Character Interpreted in Many Portions of Exhibit

The art of a famous mid-westerner will be presented to the public when the university art department opens the exhibition of oil paintings, water colors, lithographs and drawings by Thomas Benton, Wednesday, in the exhibition lounge of the art building.

The collection will include his painting of "Susanna and the Elders," which started a battle of words in the press when it was exhibited for the first time. Thomas Benton is a member of the triumvirate of Wood, Curry and Benton, a group that has done much to draw the attention of the whole world to the middle west and interpret the character of the whole world to the middle west and interpret the character of its people and country.

Benton has not confined himself to the Mississippi basin, but has roamed through the vast range of American life to gather impressions and record them with vigor and clarity on canvas.

He has been called by Thomas Craven "an inveterate explorer of the interior of America." Craven further describes his art in the writer's newest book, "A Treasury of Art Masterpieces." "His Murals are alive with living characters reflecting the broad humor, the occupational differences, and the inextinguishable gusto of his people. His painting is a complex instrument; in popular appeal, a folk art elaborated from a structural mechanism, derived from the Renaissance."

Benton's fame first spread when he did a set of murals at the New School of Social Research. His theme was America, and it has continued throughout his later work.

The painting in the exhibition at the art building will include "Susanna," "Self Portrait,"

One of yesterday's colorful formations (bottom) found the bandmen forming a diamond with a blocked "I" in the middle. Most impressive was a large heart formation, pierced with an arrow formed by the Scottish Highlanders. In the formation the band dedicated "Marching Along

Prof. Posey Writes Article

Civil Engineering To Publish Work By Faculty Man

An article entitled "Photographic Technique for Recording Direction of Surface Currents in Models" by Prof. C. J. Posey of the college of engineering is appearing in the October issue of Civil Engineering which also includes an article by Prof. Sherman M. Woodward formerly of the Iowa faculty.

Professor Posey's article describes a method of recording the direction as well as the velocity of surface currents, using a method which the Iowa Institute of Hydraulic research found more satisfactory and much cheaper than the old method.

By the new method, a time exposure is taken, showing the motion of confetti on the water surface as streaks on the photographs. Just before the end of the time exposure, the model is brilliantly illuminated by a flash bulb.

This puts a bright spot on the downstream end of each streak and thus shows the direction of surface currents.

Professor Woodward, now chief water control planning engineer of the Tennessee Valley Authority, traces the development of an early formula during the course of 135 years in his article entitled "Vicissitudes of an Engineering Formula."

Students Have Right to Know, Understand University Regulations, Dean Kay Believes

"It's more fun to know." That slogan may hold a very serious truth in more ways than one and also may serve as an introduction to an explanation of university regulations that should be, but probably are not, understood by every student. New and transfer students particularly, are usually not aware of many university rulings that nevertheless apply to them at all times.

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts has sent a copy of certain of these rules to each member of the faculty of that college and they should be of equal interest to the students. For in reality, it is the students that make such rules, insofar as the faculty always considers such regulations only in the light of their fairness to the whole student body.

A definite policy has been established and is followed in dealing with certain situations and outlined rules apply to them.

Do you know what the university rules are regarding dishonesty? They apply to everyone and are among those that should be carefully observed by both students and faculty for absolute fairness.

They are as follows:

"1. Instructors or proctors appointed by them shall remain in the classroom the whole period of the test, and exercise due care in the supervision of the examinations.

"2. Students shall be seated in alternate seats when possible; otherwise it is recommended that alternate sets of questions be used.

"3. (a) Cases of apparent dishonesty involving written tests or class work of equal importance should be carefully scrutinized by the instructor in charge of the course, and if evidence seems to establish guilt, the case shall be reported to the staff of instruction of his department.

(b) The staff of the department when the evidence warrants, presents to the dean of the college a formal charge of dishonesty.

(c) The dean, if he adjudges the student guilty, shall impose either a minimum penalty or a severe penalty.

"The minimum penalty involves the three following features: first, exclusion from the course for the semester with the grade of failure; second, the addition of the number of semester hours so failed to the standard number of semester hours required for graduation; third, notification to the student's parents or guardian of the offense.

"Penalties shall be graduated according to the nature and gravity of the offense. Heavier penalties will be imposed whenever the dishonesty shows evidence of the result of premeditation or the offense is not the first one.

(d) In every case of dishonesty the nature of the offense and the penalty shall be made public to the student body it being understood that the name of the offenders may be withheld at the discretion of the dean.

(e) A student shall not be penalized for dishonesty except through this procedure."

Goebel Wins High School Mile in 4:50.9

Three new champions were crowned in the annual interscholastic high school mile race here yesterday afternoon in the first of three events on the fall program for state high school trackmen here at the University of Iowa.

Harold Goebel of Knoxville was the individual winner of the meet as he ran the mile in 4:50.9 in the Class A division for the fastest time of the meet.

The class A crown was won by Clinton with Knoxville placing second, and Ottumwa and Wilson High of Cedar Rapids tying for third and fourth.

Williamsburg walked off with the class B title. University High—last year's winner—placed second with Adel third. Dick Wilson was the individual winner with a time of 4:53.8.

Martinsburg finished first in class C. Cantril, titlist last year, was second with Stanley copping third place honors. Raymond Edmondson of Thornburg won the race in 5:03.5.

The comparatively slow times were partly due to a southeasterly wind that whipped across the 440-yard cinder track.

The running of the 18th annual interscholastic cross-country run of 1.9 miles will take place here October 21 in classes A, B, C.

Irish Win, 17-14
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 7 (AP)—The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, squelching a desperate last quarter rally, squeezed out a 17 to 14 victory today over an underrated Georgia Tech eleven in a brilliant offensive battle before 33,000 spectators.

The inspired southerners scored the first touchdown and the last, but in between the Irish drove to their two scores, which with a first period field goal, gave them a hard-earned decision.

Texas Whips Badgers
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Losing its power in the third period, to score two touchdowns, the University of Texas staved off a University of Wisconsin fourth quarter rush to win an intersection football game here yesterday 17 to 7. Wisconsin scored late in the game. Two safeties added to the Texas total.

James Hilton's GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS

SYNOPSIS
After 20 years of unpopularity among the boys at Brookfield School, Chipping, the master, got married after a romantic episode in the Tyrol, and was taught how to get along with the boys by his bride who died a year afterwards in childbirth. But she had taught Chipping to overcome his diffidence, to understand the boys and soon the whole school was using her nickname for him—Chips. After 20 more years he retired, but when the war in France started, the Governors called him to carry on as headmaster when he was past 80.

Chapter Twelve

"GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS"
Those four years were difficult years at Brookfield, what with the scarcity of masters, the military activities of the school, for it was training the older boys to be officers with the army in France—and an occasional air raid. But Chips was happy; he, too, was serving his country in a way, despite his more than forebore years. He found time to keep his promise to young Peter Colley; every few weeks he ran over to Chipping to see Helen and her baby son who had the blond hair of Peter and a head that promised to develop into one just like his father's.

Chips refused Helen's urging to have another piece of cake. "No, thank you. I always eat too much when I come here. Well, young Colley," he said to the baby in his high-chair, "that's a fine fellow you are making! This young fellow must come to Brookfield, Helen."

"Of course. The Colleys have gone to Brookfield since Queen Anne died. Peter counts on that for his son. Peter always asks after you in his letters." "We're even then. His letters to me are full of you." "I like to think...to hope...that he'll be back before the leaves fall."

"There's every hope, Helen—hope of peace. Beats me," he added, smiling, "how any war could last so long with a Colley in it." "Oh, to think of living without fear again—without trembling at the sight of a letter or telegram. Surely, we shall never again take our happiness for granted."

It was but a few weeks afterward that Chips stood at a lectern in the school chapel. In his hand was the latest casualty list. Trying to master a great emotion, he spoke: "From every point comes news of hope—we can say at last without fear that the end is in sight."

But even when victory was a cruel news to bear—losses that are the more tragic because peace is so close at hand. He looked at the casualty list, braced himself as though against a sudden shock, and continued: "Peter Colley, Lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards, was killed in action during a trench raid on the night of November 8th. He remained in full view of the enemy in order to rescue his batman, Perkins, who had fallen fatally wounded. Both men died before they could be brought in." His voice quivered and tears stood in his eyes. "It is a great honor to Brookfield that his Majesty the King has posthumously awarded to Lieutenant Colley the distinguished Service Order."

Chips laid down the list of names, and after a moment said: "None of you here will remember Max Staefel. He was German master at Brookfield from 1898 to 1902. He was popular here and had many friends, among whom I was proud to include myself. I received a letter from Switzerland this morning informing me that he had been killed advancing with the Saxon Regiment on the 15th October last. He was fifty years of age."

"Funny, old Chips reading a German soldier's name out with the others. After all, he was an enemy," said one of the boys when chapel was dismissed. "One of Chips' ideas," commented his fellow. "He's got lots of funny ideas like that."

At last the armistice was signed and Brookfield School, like all other schools in England, like the towns and cities throughout the United Kingdom and of her allies, went frantic with delight. Brookfield had a bonfire, bells clanged joyously, rockets went up into the air and burst into brilliant flares of light, whistles screamed, and Chips was borne upon the shoulders of the bigger boys—for wasn't Chips a sort of hero, too, a friend, a tradition, as well as Headmaster of Brookfield?

But Chips was an old man, worn and weary, and he welcomed, though with a deep twinge of regret, his final retirement from Brookfield upon the appointment of Marsham as Headmaster. He maintained his rooms at Mrs. Wickett's and welcomed the boys who had been in school under him, and the new boys, too, for most of them knew of Chips from their fathers, or uncles or brothers or cousins, and those who didn't were quickly apprised of Chips' place at Brookfield by the upper classmen.

Why, it was almost as though Chips' statue stood in the Quadrangle along with the other Headmasters of Brookfield! Only Chips could be seen walking about the school grounds, cracking his jokes with the youngsters, feeding them cakes and buns with tea at his rooms. A sort of game developed among the boys, during the years: they would invent new boys to Mrs. Wickett's to knock at his door and say: "Here, I am, Mr. Chips" and wait to see the boy's astonishment when Chips opened the door.

One fall, some years after the war's end, a new boy, rapped at Chips' door, as he had been instructed. "Here I am, Mr. Chips," he said, when the door was opened. "What on earth...I can see you are there. What is all this?" "They told me you wanted to see me," said the crestfallen boy. "Oh, so they told you, did they?" He looked out into the darkness or the light, and spoke loudly, to be overheard by the waiting boys: "That's quite right; I did want to see you. Come in and have some tea."

When tea had been poured and cakes placed on the table, Chips sat down. "Son, you're a new boy? Name?" "Colley, sir." "You're not...Peter Colley?" "Yes, sir."

"I knew your father." "Yes, sir. My father was here, and my grandfather." "Take your cup and sit by the fire. Have a piece of cake...What do you think of Brookfield?" "It's...it's big, sir."

"You'll like it though when you get used to it. It's not half such an awful place as it seems the first day. Bit afraid of it?" "A bit, sir."

"So was I to begin with. But that's quite a while ago. Sixty-three years. Tell me, how is your mother?" "She's...You'd like my mother, sir. She's funny...I mean, she makes quite good jokes. Won't you come and see us some day, sir?" "It's good to have a mother that makes jokes. I was there one autumn when the leaves were turning...There, that's the bell for tea. You'll have to go. Just walk by the master and call your name. Don't let it scare you."

"You must come again, some day, Colley. Let yourself out. I'm a little tired of you." "That tiredness failed to go away. And one day, Chips opened his weary eyes, coming to from oblivion, to find Marsham, the Headmaster, and Dr. Merivale talking in low tones. "Poor old chap. Must have had a lonely life all by himself," he heard Marsham say. "Not always by himself," responded Merivale. "He married, you know."

"Did he? I never knew that." "She died, a long time ago." "Pity," said Marsham. "Pity he never had any children." "What was that you were saying about me?" asked Chips weakly. "Nothing, Chips, nothing at all," Marsham hastened to assure him. "We were just wondering when you were going to wake out of that beautiful sleep of yours."

"But I heard you. You were talking about me. Pity I never had any children, eh? But you're wrong. I have...Thousands of 'em...and all boys..." Chips smiled, and drowsed away again. Confused memories floated through his mind: boys passing him, calling their names. Max Staefel saying something...I would be happy to have you come with me...Smart, Sampson, Saville, Scott...The mist was rising, hiding the valley below...Owen, O'Hare, Pearson, Pringle, Pascall, Pierce...A voice coming down through the mist: Hel-lo!...a girl's voice... "You kissed me!"...Kathie... "You are a very sweet person"...Cooper, Craven, Castle, Colley... "A boyish, treble voice... young Colley—Peter's son... What is he, saying?...Goodbye, Mr. Chips..."

A low sigh fluttered from the dying man's lips. Dr. Merivale pressed down the eyelids.

THE END.

ROOM AND BOARD

OF COURSE, THE WORLD HAS CHANGED SINCE THE JUDGE'S STUDENT DAYS AT ETON—

Mrs. Stimmel, Victor Oliva File Petitions

Seek To Restrain Supervisors From Revoking Beer Permits

Mrs. Ellen Stimmel and Victor Oliva, Johnson county tavern operators, filed petitions in district court yesterday asking that a temporary writ of injunction be issued against the board of supervisors restraining the board from proceeding with any action which may tend to revoke their class B beer permits.

Hearing on the application for the temporary injunction was set for Wednesday at 9 a. m., by Judge James P. Gaffney.

The board of supervisors revoked the permits of the two plaintiffs and another tavern operator, Arthur Smith, Tuesday. Their action followed a written opinion of County Attorney Harold Vestermark in which he stated that the taverns in question were not located on legally platted areas.

Vestermark's recommendation that the board revoke the beer permits centered around an interpretation of the Iowa beer law. Both plaintiffs, however, contend that revocation of the permits "is illegal and contrary to the provisions of the Iowa law regulating the dispensing of beer."

The plaintiffs also state that if the defendants are allowed to proceed with the action their business will suffer "irreparable damage."

The defendants in the case were named as Frank J. Krall, Earl Webster and Dan Peters, all supervisors of Johnson county, and Ed Sulek, county auditor.

According to the petitions, Mrs. Stimmel's beer permit was issued May 1, and Oliva's, on June 11.

Medical Society Announces County Campaign for Smallpox Vaccination

Plans for a countywide vaccination campaign to prevent smallpox were announced yesterday by officials of the Johnson county medical society. The drive, scheduled to begin late this month, will extend through November.

It was disclosed that at a recent meeting the society voted to cooperate with the Iowa state medical society and the Iowa state department of health in a statewide movement to eradicate this disease.

Complete details of the campaign have not been fully developed as yet, members of the committee in charge said, but the program will be called "Smallpox Prevention Days," and adults as well as children are urged to respond to vaccination plans. Interested lay organizations have been asked to participate.

In making this announcement, officials of the local society declared, "Iowa has had far too much smallpox. This disease has killed infants, scarred adults, kept the breadwinner from his work, and, where epidemics have raged, injured business in the community."

"There is no need for smallpox. It is among the most easily prevented of diseases known to medical science, yet it thrives in Iowa. Modern vaccination which is simply a painless application of vaccine to a slightly roughened area of skin will prevent this disease. The trouble is that vaccination has not been given a fair chance in this state."

The medical society based the above statement upon statistics collected by the state health department which show that approximately 11,000 Iowans have had smallpox during the past nine
