Your Thoughtfulness Will Prevent Fires

SET AS THE anniversary of the great Chicago fire, for which Mrs. O'Leary's cow has been taking the blame since 1871, Fire Prevention week is now being celebrated by the nation.

The theme of the 1939 program is "Your Thoughtfulness Will Prevent Fire." Your thoughtfulness will prevent 10,000 lives being lost, 17,000 persons being injured, and $300,000,000 being lost in property damage.

The outstanding fire prevention authority of the nation has issued a set of seven fire prevention rules which, intelligently observed, would go a long way toward keeping the fire demon under control.

1. Use electricity safely. That means that all electric wiring and equipment should be installed in accordance with the National Electrical code, and that repairing and installation should be done by an expert workman.

2. Smoke in safe places only. That goes for your home, your office, the factory in which you work, for the outdoors and everywhere else.

3. Remember that great fires were small fires to start with. Proper building construction, plus good fire protection, would make it possible to prevent almost any fire from seriously spreading.

4. Fire breeds in oily waste—keep all such waste in a closed metal container.

5. Carelessness and ignorance are often the cause of explosive fires. Here is a rule especially applicable to workmen in industry, who should thoroughly understand the possible fire dangers involved in their particular jobs.

6. In many factories and places of business special fire hazards exist, which require unusual precaution and vigilance.

7. Cleanliness is a great aid to fire prevention. Keep your basement, garage, attic and closets clear of litter.

Now is the time to start fire prevention—for 52 weeks of the year.

A Nation Of Bleacher-Sitters

MAJOR JOHN L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner, asserted in a recent speech that "if the soft boys remain in the ascendancy" in the United States, "world supremacy will not long remain with this country."

Griffith gave his statement a political interpretation by saying that "the radicals believe that there is an easy way of life. They prefer collectivism to individualism, supervision to independence, and regimentation to competition."

The problem is more than one of whether we are to be weeded out as a nation in the process of Darwin's "natural selection." We stand, as individuals, to be weeded out in the competition.

to the purposes of the conquest. Mental development is dammed behind the wall of nazi censorship.

Major Griffith has issued a challenge to America which should not go unheeded. We must not put less emphasis on mental education and religion; but the lack of physical activity of most Americans is appalling.

Many of the nation's schools have emphasized "athletics for all" in place of intramural sports for the few. This same trend is evidenced in playground activities.

German youth has been forced to do hard labor and physical exercise under the Hitlerian regimentation. The need for such development in America is great, as Major Griffith has pointed out, but we can never seek to achieve it through the methods Hitler has used.

Opportunity For The 'Lost' Generation

THERE IS a vocal minority in the generation which graduated from American high schools during the depression's height who do not see the words "lost generation" as an epithet for their group.

Quite the contrary from being a "lost" generation, today's youth has the greatest opportunity any generation has had.

There never has been a time when there were greater problems to be solved. The need for great minds has never been more than it is today.

The world, instead of having closed its doors to American youth, has opened them wide.

Reminding them that "your generation on another continent is marching off to the front," Pres. C. A. Dykstra of Wisconsin recently told university students that "our primary interest is to make our democracy work successfully in this country and for Americans."

President Dykstra told the students that not only is it "incumbent upon each of us to know ourselves," but that we must also know our fellows and our common problems.

Doing each day's task as it comes to us, living as normally as possible—keeping healthy, strong and sane—doing all in our power to make our democratic government real and lasting—there is a man-sized job for the best among us.

Opportunity? There's plenty of it in America.

It's As Clear As A Mud Puddle

THE LATEST complicating and perplexing element in this puzzling European war is the announcement by the British ministry of supply that a trade pact has just been signed with Russia.

Britain is to trade rubber and tin to Soviet Russia for timber. At the same time it is announced that 158,000 British soldiers and 25,000 vehicles of war are in France to fight Russia's friend and partner, nazi Germany.

The reason for this friendly bargain is no doubt simple to the British statesman, but to the neutral who is trying to find out who is who in the mad poker game the whole situation is nothing short of amazing.

Britain is conducting an extensive blockade of Germany. In doing so she assumes the belligerent's right to sink neutral ships carrying to her enemy what she has declared to be contraband goods or war materials.

tin and rubber were used by Germany's partner, Soviet Russia, in the mopping of Poland. So, in order to obtain some timber at bargain rates of which Canada has a plentiful supply, the British ministry of supply brightly nullifies the British admiralty's efforts to blockade Germany.

Is this 1914 all over again?

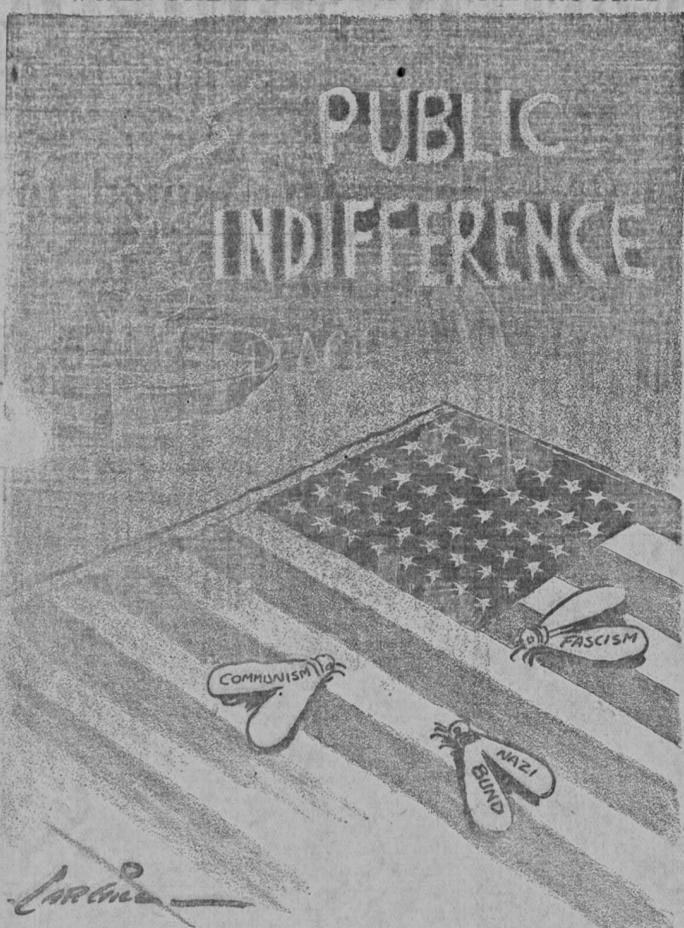

Mussolini is certainly having his difficulties these days. He wants to pose waving an olive branch, yet he hates to give up wearing that natty steel helmet which is so unbecoming.

A six-year old boy is ruler of Tibet. Some European countries have childish rulers, too.

European men are gradually giving up the custom of wearing beards—item. Naturally, they don't fit into a gas mask.

An Iowa town plans to celebrate three Thanksgiving days this year. Well, we've got plenty of turkeys but will the cranberries hold out?

WHEN THE LIGHT OF AMERICANISM DIMS

Stewart Says Styles Bridges Hires Press Agent, Booms Self as 1940 G. O. P. Nominee

JUST WHAT reminded Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire that he wants the Republicans' 1940 presidential nomination isn't very clear.

Plain Styles Bridges was his choice. According to this story he reckoned that America's foremost public men in the past have had but two names apiece—like George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and Herbert Hoover, for instance, but Senator Bridges' theory was said to be that their superfluous initials handicapped them politically; therefore they threw them overboard.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg was Republicanly prominently mentioned. So were Senator Robert Taft of Ohio and Leader Joseph W. Martin of the G. O. P. forces in the house of representatives. And Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Al M. Landon likewise was spoken of as a suitable selection for another crack at the job. Even Herbert Hoover was suggested for a fresh try.

Various Republican governors of today (there are darned few of 'em) were proposed. But Senator Bridges? Not a hint at him!—then.

When he began to be hinted at, he furnished the initial hints. Presently it developed that he had a regular press agent—Charles Baegeron, a well-known Washington newspaperman. "Barge" has turned out some good dope—broadcast mimeographedly. All the Washington correspondents get it two or three times weekly. The thing has transformed itself from a josh into a genuine stab for the Republican presidential nomination.

Now there's a full-fledged Bridges-for-President organization in operation.

By CHARLES STEWART, Central Press Columnist

It's a wonderful stunt for a single individual to have put a good word in.

He has a drawback or two. He's a little conservative and his geography is wrong. Styles' (not H. Styles) home state hasn't many votes in a Republican national convention. All New England is insufficient for him. And, anyway, Joe Martin, another New Englander, is his rival.

Yet Styles (not H. Styles) is vigorously boosting himself for the G. O. P. presidential nomination in 1940. For one thing, he has the nerve.

A congressional friend of mine has a wife who thought her husband ought to get up at 6 a. m. to hear the radio-broadcast of Herr Hitler's speech in Berlin.

So she asked the telephone folk for an early-morning wake-up call. "Gladly," replied the hello girl, "I'll cost 21 cents."

"Oh, my!" answered my friend's wife. "That's too much. Pass it up."

The poor bird tells me that he was waked up nevertheless. The phone company got all the benefit of it.

Nijinsky, Ballet Master, Insane 20 Years, Returns to America—But Not on Parole Now

NEW YORK—Who does not know of the great Nijinsky, about whom so much has been spoken and written. Those who made a custom of studying or following the ballet of 20 years ago are quite sure that no one has even approximated his talents. It was claimed for him that he could leap higher than anyone else, and when he had attained his maximum height, that in some mysterious and inexplicable fashion he could break the speed of his fall and just sort of drift back toward the floor. I have heard men swear this. They had seen this with their own eyes. Science says that that nothing that isn't powered by some force, or body, can affect gravity.

BUT this strange talent was claimed for Nijinsky. Nijinsky, who went mad and was committed to an insane asylum in Switzerland. For 20 years he has been in this half-world, sometimes, seemingly, fighting his way back to the very threshold of sanity—but never quite making it. Some time ago a fine modern dancer visited him. There was music and this young worshipper of the old master began to dance, to leap in the old Nijinsky fashion. Suddenly a strange excitement seemed to glow in his eyes, and he too began to leap high but, that quickly, the light died, and Nijinsky was no longer interested.

By GEORGE TUCKER, Editor of the New York Times

I mention this because Nijinsky came to America about 20 years ago, not as an artist, but as a prisoner of war—on parole. He was paroled from an Austro-Hungarian concentration camp.

Well, Europe is at war again, and Nijinsky is coming back to America too. But not because of the war. He would have been here now if war hadn't disrupted the sailing schedules and so many other things in Europe.

They say he will remain here the rest of his life.

MOST nurses wear white uniforms, but not the ones in Henry Street. They are different. They wear blue uniforms, probably because they are in the open so much. I do not know that this is the reason, but it seems logical because they go into the slums and into every part of the city, whether you have money or no money at all.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

The ones of us who haven't anything better to think about wonder why the university doesn't expand the "dry-night" club idea. Once a week during a short winter season is only a scratch on the surface of the real recreation problem here.

For example, one of the naive freshmen was wondering about what to do on a date tonight—besides attending a show. And the only alternatives in my mind aren't very healthy ones.

Instead of thinking people shouldn't go to the shadier spots outside the city limits, why wouldn't it be a healthier idea to open the union lounge once a week for free dancing—or the river room—for unaffiliated groups.

The Thomas Benton exhibit seems an excellent one to me, with only one semester of "art appreciation" under my hat. Judged by the standard of "What kind of a story's it trying to tell," "Ploughing It Under" and "Susanna and the Elders" were my favorites.

That George Bellows in the lobby is worth stopping to glance at.

They've forbidden portable radios at the Yale games. But someone counted more than 50 in the Iowa stadium Saturday.

Most radio announcers wish the fans didn't have quite such a close check on their eyesight.

People who worry about such things aren't too happy about the apparently forgotten "limited national emergency" President Roosevelt has proclaimed.

The legal minds can't find any precedent of statute concerning "limited" emergencies. It's either all the way or none, and if it's a full-way emergency, Mr. Roosevelt has about as much theoretical power as Joseph Stalin.

The other point even the new dealer admirers haven't liked is Frank Murphy's attitude. Seems he was supposed to give a legal interpretation of the presidential proclamation and hasn't yet. Has said it "wasn't ready" when asked.

Yesterday's Washington visitor also said the White House grounds are guarded like an oriental palace these days, and the police at the capital break up every street corner congregation without pretext.

As my informer put it, "You'd think we were already in it."

That last line in Senator Norris' autobiography might be a perfect motto for most rebels around.

"I know that I am always trying to keep out of fights and controversies and yet I seem to be always in them. The reason why I cannot be successful in keeping out is because I cannot remain quiet and live."

Alvah Bessie's "Men in Battle" is a swell book, the story of that war hundreds of American college boys helped fight. But the college angle itself hasn't yet been told.

The ones who left the campuses quietly, dropping out of classes and getting pass-ports to southern France. Pretending on the boat going over, that they were art students and writers interested in medieval cathedrals.

Then, arriving in southern France, waiting days to cross the Pyrenees, walking for hours because there is no auto transportation across. Knowing you're a man without a country if you die.

Finally arriving, being very sick from the food because all of it's dripped in olive oil. Maybe not coming back; about a third of them didn't.

And when you do, having fought your best in the most misunderstood war since the American revolution, being imprisoned, and coming back without drums or cheers. Only a few not undisguised Jews from the far right. It's a swell story.

Wolves, Hawks Match Power

It's a battle of high power offensives again tomorrow afternoon as Iowa's outnumbered Hawkeyes attempt to deliver their second major blow to pre-season favorites of the western conference, with mighty Michigan, defending its own battleground, as the foe.

Rated since last week's stirring Hawkeye victory over Indiana as one of the nation's most glittering gridiron attractions, the Iowa-Michigan clash has, besides major Big Ten significance, the prospect of a colorful scoring duel as box office appeal.

Both teams now have the name of powerful point-getting outfits, and both have prospective all-Americans in the offensive positions. Against Nile Kinnick, scoring genius of the Hawkeye team, the Wolverines will present a flashy halfback, destined, and already chosen by many, for all-star berths as their man behind the touchdown drives.

Backing Tom Harmon, one of the nation's most highly considered backs, Michigan will have the remainder of its "charm" backfield, with the possible exception of Paul Kromer, who is reportedly on the sidelines with an injury. But, while Kromer may be missing, the Wolves will probably be strengthened by the return of the brilliant Fred Trosko, who has been ineligible.

Added to the power of the backfield, will be the pass snatching genius of Edward Fruitig and John Nicholson, Wolverine ends, who will be to Harmon what Capt. Erwin Prasse and the other Iowa ends are to Kinnick.

Between the ends there may be a difference for Michigan has a definite advantage, in numbers, at least. Upon the shoulders of Mike Enich and Jim Walker, Iowa's rock wall tackles, Ham Snider, Max Hawkins and Charles Tollefson, at the guards and Bill Diehl at center, with the aid of a handful of reserves, falls the task of checking the powerful Wolverine running attack.

All told, the contest cannot, conceivably, be of the low scoring variety.

There is terrific power concentrated in both scoring machines, with both outfits geared for either passing or running attacks. Iowa's streamlined backfield and deadly aerial thrusts will be matched against a rugged team with the balanced power that brought Michigan a high pre-season rating in the Big Ten, the conference that interestedly awaits the outcome.

U-High, Monticello Meet This Afternoon

Today's Clash May Determine League Champ

The eventual champion of the Eastern Iowa conference may be determined this afternoon when U-High and Monticello display their gridiron talents on Iowa practice field at 3:30 in U-High's Homecoming game.

U-High players are in fine shape for the battle and the team's morale is high. A lengthy dummy scrimmage tapered off the week's practice activities last night. Practically all of the drill was spent in offensive tactics as little is known of Monticello plays and formations.

The Blues are aware of the fact, however, that they must use all their available defensive strength to stop the smooth - working passing and running attack of Monticello. Up to this point the northsiders have been successful in stopping most of the scoring thrusts of their opposition. Today's game, though, will definitely determine the defensive ability of the Blues, as Monticello will probably present the strongest punch that the locals will encounter all season. In all its previous

De Correvont Slated To Start Against Bucks

EVANSTON, Oct. 12 (AP) — Sophomore Bill De Correvont, who gave a good account of himself in his intercollegiate football debut last week despite Northwestern's loss to Oklahoma, will start at left halfback against Ohio State Saturday, Coach Lynn Waldorf said today.

Games Monticello has subdued opponents with ease. The only other conference team that can boast of such a record is Mt. Vernon.

Monticello can not sell U-High strength too short, however, as the Blues have been improving tremendously in every contest. If the U-High improvement continues in the game this afternoon, it is very likely that Monticello will wind up on the short end of the score. The northsiders haven't attempted to use a passing attack in their previous conflicts, but considerable time this week was consumed in the development of a suitable aerial barrage that Monticello will have to wary of, if they expect to stop the locals.

Irish Hopes Locals Seek Victory At Keota Tonight

St. Patrick's fighting Irish will journey to Keota tonight for another try at victory.

Coach Father Ryan put his charges through a light workout last night in preparation for tonight's game. The practice opened with loosening up exercises followed by signal practice before the gridirers were sent to the showers.

Quarterback "Red" Miller who suffered a broken nose in the game with St. Joseph's Sunday has returned to bolster St. Pat's lineup.

The southsiders are still working for the first victory of the season. This looks as though it might be the game since Keota lost its last week's tilt to Sigourney 26-0. Sigourney, however, is tabbed as having one of the best teams in its sector.

Game time is set for 7:45.

Errol Flynn To Select Dolphin Queen, Attendants

Errol Flynn, popular motion picture idol of movie goers throughout the nation, will select the 1940 Dolphin queen and her four attendants it was announced by Dolphin executives yesterday afternoon.

The queen and her four attendants will be selected by Errol some time this month with the presentation taking place at the opening night of the show on Nov. 9.

WEST BEND, Wis. (AP) — Larry French and Gabby Hartnett, Cubs' southpaw and catcher-manager who reportedly had a feud on late this season, collaborated as a battery yesterday to give West Bend a 7 to 6 victory over a team of Milwaukee minor league players. French fanned 16, but yielded a homer to Stan Galle, Milwaukee Brewer shortstop. Hartnett also homered.

Hawkeyes Rate Headlines Big Ten, Ivy League, Far West, Engage In Saturday's Biggest Battles

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP) — Top attractions on the eastern Ivy league slate is Cornell's invasion of Princeton.

Right back of this game in point of attractiveness comes Yale's stand against Pennsylvania which, with Princeton, is expected to give Cornell the run for Ivy league first money. Dartmouth and Columbia, other Ivy charter members, meanwhile will be giving Navy and Army their first tests against accredited football powers.

On the coast, where the inter-sectional headliner will be Southern California-Illinois, sectional attention will be directed chiefly to California's attempt to get out of a two-defeat slump against Oregon, and U.C.L.A.'s try for its third straight triumph, this time over Stanford. Washington against State, one of those bitter backyard battles, also is on the schedule.

Conference activity otherwise will be sporadic.

Only Auburn-Mississippi State is booked in the Southeast circuit. Tulane will make its stand against Fordham, Georgia against embittered Holy Cross, and Louisiana State against Rice in Saturday's non-conference games.

At least one of the teams in each of these games is conceded a chance at winning the Big Ten title. The biggest display of offensive fireworks should result from the meeting of Michigan's "Three Musketeers," Harmon, Kromer and Evashevski, with Iowa's all-around Nile Kinnick, while Northwestern is likely to be gunning for bear against the Buckeyes after its surprise defeat by Oklahoma.

Frat Touchballers Battle Through Six Tilts; Sigma Chi Outscores Delta Upsilon, 18 to 8

Intramural touchball teams had another big day yesterday as fraternity teams battled through six games.

Sigma Chi defeated Delta Upsilon of class B, 18-8. The Delta Upsilon defeat was due mainly to inability to pass and block. Delta Upsilon opened the scoring with a touchback which was good for 2 points. Sigma Chi then got into stride and made it 6-2 on a run by Weiss. Delta Upsilon then took the lead by scoring on a pass from Burton to Morrison, thus making the score 8-6. After that Sigma Chi kept Delta Upsilon scoreless for the remainder of the game. Sigma Chi scored twice more, once on a pass from Weiss to Rude and again on a pass from Jack Althouse to Weiss.

Phi Gamma Delta downed Sigma Phi Epsilon in a low scoring game, 12-6. All touchdowns of the game were made on passes. The Clark to Reunet combination clicked for both the Phi Gamma scores. Sigma Phi Epsilon made its only score on a pass from Powley to Nazette.

Phi Kappa Psi shut out another Phi Gamma Delta team 14-0. Both Phi Kappa Psi touchdowns were made on passes. The pass from Hoak to Douthette was, however, the main reason for the Phi Psi win.

A Delta Upsilon class A team outscored Phi Epsilon Kappa in a close game 13-12. Dick Mestayer sparked the Delta Upsilon team. His pass to Don Humphrey opened the scoring, and a long run of his brought the score up to 13. Phi Epsilon Kappa fought back hard however and narrowly missed tying the score, with its initial touchdown on a pass from Kantor to Graves. Its only other score was also on a pass by Kantor, this time to Leffler.

Phi Delta Theta kept S. A. E. scoreless throughout their game in the intramural tournament and defeated the S. A. E's, 20-0. Frank Murphy of the winning team was responsible for the good showing of his teammates. Murphy started the scoring by passing a long one down the field to Sleeter. After an interception by the Phi Deltas, Murphy took the ball on the 15 yard line and scored the second touchdown of the game. The second half was more S. A. E. but Murphy let go another one of his long passes to Springer in the end zone to finish the scoring for the game. Although the S. A. E.'s were unable to score, the passing of Kirk and defensive work of Holmes and Willis were the standouts for the losing team.

Phi Epsilon Pi displayed a powerful team built around Norman Sandler and trounced Pi Kappa Alpha, 27-0. The highlights of the game were the long passes unleashed by Sandler. On the receiving end of these passes were Abe and Ray Rosenberg. The first two touchdowns were made on sleeper plays by A. Rosenberg from Sandler. The teams held a punting duel and,

Hawkeyes Leave Today For Tilt at Michigan

Max Hawkins, Snider, Guards

Tollefson, Couppee Likely To See Some Action Tomorrow

The presence of Al Couppee and Chuck Tollefson in the first string lineup put new life and fire into the Hawkeye gridirers yesterday as they sped through their final practice session before entraining for Ann Arbor, Mich.

Although Couppee and Tollefson are not listed as probable starters in tomorrow's tilt, it is very likely that they will see some action.

John Maher and Ken Pettit continued to alternate at the guard positions held down by Max Hawkins and Ham Snider, who will start the Michigan battle.

Dr. Eddie Anderson sent his men through a long signal and defensive drill yesterday as he sought to polish up a rough spot here and there and test his defense against Michigan plays that were dished out to the varsity by the third team.

The entire squad, with the exceptions of Couppee and Tollefson, appeared to be in good physical condition.

Probable starters for the Michigan battle tomorrow afternoon will be Capt. Erwin Prasse and Jens Norgaard, ends; Jim Walker and Mike Enich, tackles; Herman Snider and Max Hawkins, guards; Bill Diehl, center; Bill Gallagher, quarterback; Bill Green, fullback; Nile Kinnick, left halfback; and Floyd "Buzz" Dean, right halfback.

Anderson named a squad of 34 players that will leave here at 9:16 this morning for Chicago, where they will take their last workout before Saturday's encounter. They will stay overnight in Dixon, Mich., and continue to Wolverine headquarters shortly before game time Saturday afternoon.

Harmon Works Passing Arm

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 12 (AP) — Tom Harmon exercised his forward passing arm to great effect today as Michigan took its last hard workout preparatory to the Iowa game Saturday which may see an aerial duel between the veteran Wolverine halfback and Nile Kinnick, Hawkeye sensation.

Coach Fritz Crisler availed an eligibility report on Fred Trosko, veteran half who may be chosen to supplant the injured Paul Kromer.

Defeat By Franklin Brings Big Shakeup In Cormack's Team

Dubuque high school coaches are going to get the surprise of their lives when they look at Iowa City high a week from tonight in the Hawklet Homecoming battle.

Dubuque has scouted every Little Hawk start, but it looks like their notes and diagrams aren't going to do them a bit of good, for during the past week at Shrader field, Coach Herb Cormack has completely revamped his lineup, his positions and his plays.

Cormack, stung by the Franklin defeat, started Monday night by shaking up his first string lineup so that it included more reserves than former regulars. He continued on through the week, trying different combinations of men at new posts, and meeting out a bunch of new plays to be used in the Dubuque clash. The drills have been long and stiff, and last night it looked as though there might be some results.

Stressing that his squad must be in tip-top shape by next week, Cormack gave the entire squad several laps around the field and then sent them through a short, snappy signal drill.

As assistant coach Fran Merten chased the linemen through a session with the blocking sled, the backs tackled the sliding dummy. It was the tackling that looked especially bad in the Franklin game and Cormack won't be caught napping again.

Two teams of Hawklets then went through a 40-minute scrimmage which showed just how far Cormack had progressed with his "new deal." The running attack looked good, first with Ted Lewis and then with John Schuppert and Bob Towell. The aerial game also clicked to a fair degree, Schuppert throwing some nice passes to Jay Walden, Towell and Clark. Dick Martin did some nice work at defensive end, and John Graham was the main-

PRESSBOX PICKUPS By OSCAR HARGRAVE

The calm before the storm hangs over the Big Ten now as the conference goes wild tomorrow in what will probably be a combination of thunderstorm, tornado and professional wrestling match. We can look for anything in the Western conference, from free scoring battles to teams locked in tie games at 0-0.

Interest lies, and that of the en-

The game in which our main fire middleweight at the moment, between Iowa and Michigan at Ann Arbor, looks like one of the first variety. Michigan, with a 26-13 victory over its state neighbor, Michigan State, isn't a team to end a game with a net less in yardage, and the Hawkeyes have the speed to run from one end of Michigan to the other in one afternoon of ball-carrying.

Which means, of course, that spectators at Ann Arbor will probably see one of the biggest afternoons of football they ever witnessed and both teams will have plenty of chances to try out their booters on kickoffs. The cash customers will go home satisfied, with every intention of coming back some other day.

We find, after proper investigation, that the Hawkeyes, not noticed before the season began, are rapidly becoming a drawing card. They will play before twice as many fans this year as last, and next year promises to exceed this season's total by some thousands attendance. The improvement as a team, beyond doubt, has much to do with the upturn, but doesn't explain all of it.

Experts talk of the perfection of defensive work, but spectators think in terms of touchdowns. They want action, and while hyping critics praising a no-hit, no-run baseball game, secretly hope for someone to slam a homer over the fence.

Such fans have been renewing their interest in football at Iowa, with good reason. They haven't in some time seen a team that will toss the works and turn on the scoring heat with the same gambling willingness of the Hawkeyes, and they are now living up to their avowed intentions to come down to Iowa stadium some day. Football followers won't bother coming for a free sightseeing trip around a stadium, but they will play plenty for a look at a scoreboard decorated with large numbers.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Coach Elmer Layden, concentrating on pass defense, put three Notre Dame teams through a lengthy workout yesterday, with reserve units supplying Southern Methodist plays. Harry Stevenson, who will start at left halfback Saturday against S.M.U. in place of the injured Bob Saggau, of Denison, Ia., and Steve Bagarus, sophomore right halfback and understudy for Lou Zontini, showed up well in the drill.

ened to ease those runners who are not in the best of condition. The 220 and 100 yard dashes will be added and, too, the high and low hurdles.

This meet will be held on the afternoons selected on the track east of the stadium. All men wishing to compete in the affair are requested to be in uniform at that time.

Town Charter 100 Years Old

Davenport's Act of Incorporation Defined Duties of Pioneer Town

On Jan. 25, 1839, Gov. Robert Lucas signed a bill incorporating the town of Davenport. The act was approved just two days after Bloomington (Muscatine) was incorporated.

While the two acts were alike in some respects, they differed considerably in others. Davenport's charter was shorter, containing one less section than Bloomington's. It could be amended or repealed by any future legislative act. Indeed, this charter remained in effect only three years.

The Davenport charter designated the "original town plot" and provided for its future expansion. Elections were to be simple and inexpensive — polls were to be open two or three hours on Saturday afternoon and the results "proclaimed at the door of the house" in which the election was held. The rights and duties of the town officials were clearly defined. The mayor, recorder, and trustees, constituting the council, were declared to be a political and corporate body.

The council could adopt a common seal, levy taxes, establish a fire department, regulate and improve all streets, alleys, sidewalks, and drains, sink and keep in repair public wells, remove nuisances, regulate markets, and grant licenses for retailing ardent spirits.

The first election was held on April 6, 1839. Three meetings were held in rapid succession but on May 4 the trustees decided to meet thereafter at 3 p.m. on the last Saturday of each month. Meetings were held wherever convenient.

So few were the problems confronting the council that the first year's work fills only eight pages of the journal. The highway problem and fire protection were apparently the most acute issues before the trustees.

Brothers Offer $500 Reward In Novotny Murder Mystery

Judge Gaffney O. K.'s Posting of Reward Yesterday in Court

A $500 reward is being offered for any information leading to an arrest with regard to the Novotny murder case, it was announced yesterday when Judge James P. Gaffney granted an application authorizing permission to Wesley Novotny, brother of the slain man, to post this sum.

Up to this time little substantial information has been submitted as to the identity of the person or persons connected with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. George Novotny, which occurred at their rural home one-half mile east of Shueville Sept. 9 or 10.

Officers believe that the reward will greatly facilitate the location of the criminal and increase their opportunities to follow various clues. The only pertinent information in regard to the shooting, according to Sheriff McComas, was offered by taxicab driver Dick Coon of Iowa City who stated that he had taken a passenger to the Novotny farm home about 9:30 Saturday evening, Sept. 9.

Other clues in the case include the recovery of a revolver holster at the Novotny residence, a partially filled bottle of beer found not far from the holster, and the bullets which killed the aged couple.

That robbery furnished the incentive for the crime is the contention of officials on the basis that the Novotnys had been known to keep large sums of money in their home.

Rebuilding the United States—

Rosetta Ahrens, A1 of Marengo, traces some of the progress of the PWA on the above map, which indicates how the federal public works administration has aided local communities in rebuilding projects. Thousands of PWA improvements and structures have modernized cities, conserved and developed resources, refurbished school systems, improved public health, advanced recreational facilities and helped to create a stronger, better-equipped nation for the people. "These useful PWA projects," the caption states, "in nearly every county in the United States, have stimulated industry and employment. As permanent national assets they are dedicated to the service of the American public."

'PWA Rebuilds Nation'

Iowa City, University Show Results Of Widespread Public Works

"The PWA rebuilds the nation," giving work to thousands of men and making the American public the beneficiary.

From the construction of Boulder dam, the world's highest, to the New York housing program, the federal Public Works administration has been conserving and developing our resources, modernizing our cities, enlarging educational advantages, improving health conditions and facilitating transportation by air, rail, water and automobile.

It has been repairing old and creating new memorials and improving social conditions for the American Indian, for the inmates of penal institutions and for people residing in the slum districts of large cities.

This is not a purely national program however. States and individual cities are benefiting too. Along the Mississippi the PWA has dredged channels and constructed numerous dams and bridges for improved water transportation. Fourteen flood control dams protect Ohio river towns.

The famous bridge highway from Miami to Key West was a PWA project, as were the breakwater off the Pacific coast at Los Angeles and the man-made seaport at Brownsville, Tex.

In western United States the Ft. Peck dam, the Bonneville dam and many others have increased irrigation, navigation and water and power supplies. The amount of electric power alone that is produced from these dams makes them worth while.

At almost every university in the country is some construction which owes its being to the PWA.

The University of Iowa has had several such projects, among them the fine arts building, the theater building, the athletic field, Hillcrest, Currier's new addition, the WSUI studio building, the biological laboratory and air-conditioning systems in the theater building and Iowa Union.

Court houses, city halls, armories, libraries, public schools and recreational centers or some other form of municipal buildings have been built in hundreds of cities in every state.

Iowa City's new high school is an example of what is done along this line.

Prominent within the state as examples of the program's work are the armory at Des Moines, the school at Sioux City, the bridge over the Mississippi at Dav- enport and the project for making the Missouri river navigable as far north as Sioux City.

The stimulation to employment has given jobs to skilled and unskilled workmen and has provided work for a daily average of 150 men in Iowa City alone.

Radio Station WSUI To Have Power Increase

Prof. Harshbarger Explains Directional Antenna to Rotary

Iowa City listeners might find it more difficult to get radio station WSUI after the power increase of from 1000 to 5000 watts in the day time, and 500 to 1000 watts night time power goes into effect, Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department told members of the Rotary club at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday noon at the Jefferson hotel.

"After the power increase there is a period of 20 days in which other radio stations may file complaints," Professor Harshbarger said. "If there are no complaints or exceptions filed, then the temporary finding of the communications commission will become permanent."

New Antenna The reason it will be more difficult to get the university station on local receiving sets is that a new directional antenna will be moved west of the city, and so constructed as to increase the signal strength toward the west, the speaker said.

Professor Harshbarger pointed out that a great deal of the mail now being received shows that more and more people are beginning to depend upon the university radio station for certain types of information. However, he said, the audience will always be a relatively restricted one.

Main Intentions

"There are three main intentions of WSUI," Professor Harshbarger said.

"These intentions are presenting educational programs to the public, helping Iowa's useful campaigns and local service clubs and training students in radio." The school, however, is not thinking only of commercial radio, he explained, but it is also working in terms of teachers of radio and speech.

Guests at the meeting included Lloyd Papenthien, West Liberty; William L. Flint, Des Moines; Earl Sallenbarger and Rogers Jenkinson.
