

BOMBS HIT 2ND BRITISH WARSHIP

Nazi Troops Drive Army Back, Hold French Soil

Germans Take First French Soil in War

Main Force Delivered At Northern Flank Of Western Front

PARIS, Oct. 16 (AP)—Waves of nazi troops in field gray today launched a long awaited attack in force against French positions on the northern flank of the western front, drove the French out of German territory at one point and although thrown back still held a precarious foothold on French soil for the first time since the European war began.

A French communique acknowledged tonight that the Germans fought their way into the French village of Apach before they were thrown back by a French counter attack.

The fighting lasted all day and as night fell the Germans apparently still were holding the heights of Schneeberg north of Apach on western slopes that reach into France.

The 9:05 p.m. (2:05 p.m. CST) communique of the French high command said merely that the Germans had withdrawn "to the north of Apach" after penetrating the village.

Although the German attack covered a front of four miles, the main force of the blow was delivered at the junction of the French - German - Luxembourg frontiers on the extreme northern flank of the western front.

Here the French established positions during the first month of the war to prevent the Germans from driving through neutral Luxembourg territory to outflank the whole French front.

Since the French had been holding advance positions some two miles inside German territory at this point, it appeared to military observers here that today's German attack obviously had driven the French back that distance.

The first real shock of the German attack hit the French on the Schneeberg heights, which form a bastion east of Apach.

Thin lines of French observation posts, guarded by land mines, were penetrated by the Germans.

Before the French were able to reorganize their defenses nazi troops swept into French territory, occupied the first houses of the village of Apach.

Immediately, however, the French artillery found the range of the advancing Germans and forced them to halt on the outskirts of the little Lorraine village.

The French reformed their lines and drove the Germans back to position 400 yards north of Apach, which left the nazis holding a line 100 yards inside French territory.

This would mean a total advance of between a mile and a quarter and a mile and a half for them during the day.

Unconfirmed reports said that in other sectors on the northern flank the French withdrew their most advanced posts to main line positions on German territory to be better prepared to repulse German attacks.

Today's fighting undoubtedly was the heaviest on the western front.

Soviet-Turkish Plans Secret, Kremlin Silent

Russia Negotiates Trade Agreement With Lithuania

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (AP)—The protracted diplomatic negotiations between Russia and Turkey kept up today but no inkling of conclusive results was forthcoming from the Kremlin.

Sukru Saracoglu, the Turkish foreign minister, consulted for two hours with Russian officials and there was no official announcement on what had occurred.

The two countries had been reported to have agreed on some sort of a pact.

The Turkish embassy declined to state when Saracoglu would leave here but admitted the possibility he might remain to confer with the Turkish minister of agriculture, Erkmen Muhlis, now en route to Moscow, ostensibly to see an agricultural exhibition in progress here.

Tass (official Soviet news agency) announced tonight a trade agreement between Soviet Russia and the Lithuanian republic for 1939-40 was signed here yesterday.

The agreement provided for doubling trade between the two countries," Tass said.

(The trade agreement followed by less than a week the signing of a mutual assistance pact involving Russia and Lithuania, which provided for return to Lithuania of her ancient capital, Wilno (Vilna), Poland, and the Wilno region. The Soviets were granted the right to place an undetermined number of troops in Lithuania.)

As to another field of Russian diplomatic activity, it was said the Finnish envoy, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, was not expected to return here any sooner than the latter part of the week.

(In Helsinki the Finnish government studied Russian proposals brought back by Paasikivi and a spokesman said "serious questions" for Finland were embodied in them.)

Billings Free; Olson Thinks About Pardon

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 (AP)—Warren K. Billings' life sentence was commuted to time served today by Gov. Culbert L. Olson after the California supreme court recommended such action.

The governor said he later might give a full pardon to Billings, for many years the "forgotten man" in the Tom Mooney case.

Billings was convicted with Mooney of murder for the San Francisco preparedness day parade bombing of 1916, in which 10 persons were killed and 40 injured. He has been in prison more than 20 years.

Steamer Crew, Torpedo Victims, Arrive in Port

LONDON, Oct. 16 (Tuesday)—Thirty-two officers and crew of the 3,677-ton Whittby steamer Sneathon, sunk in the Atlantic by a German submarine Saturday, were landed today at a south coast port.

A fireman was killed when the ship was attacked by a German U-boat.

The ship's sinking had not been announced previously.

Leaders Agree—No Credits

Administration Drops Credit Issue To Gain Borah's Group's Votes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—To strengthen their position in the fight for repeal of the arms embargo, administration leaders consented today to strip the neutrality bill of its provisions permitting 90-day credits to belligerent governments.

In addition, the leadership indicated strongly that it soon would be ready with an amendment intended to relax the measure's severe restrictions on the wartime operations of American merchant ships.

Separately, or in combination, these concessions involved a tactical maneuver of much significance in the present controversy. A number of senators who favor repealing the embargo are strongly opposed to the credit and shipping provisions of the bill.

By meeting their criticism, the leadership felt that it could nail down their votes on the more important embargo question.

Then, too, the leaders hoped that by reducing the points of controversy contained in the bill, much time-consuming debate might be avoided and a final vote correspondingly hastened.

Their earlier predictions that general debate could be finished by the middle of this week appeared, however, to be over-optimistic. Some opposition senators were expecting at least a fortnight more of formal speech - making before the bill could be taken up for amendment.

The formal speechmaking went forward today with, for most of the time, very few senators and a capacity gallery of spectators listening.

Senator Clark (D-Ida) said the real purpose of repealing the embargo was to help Great Britain and France in their war with Germany. The allies, he added, by refusing even to consider Hitler's recent offer of peace had become the aggressors in the struggle, and consequently did not deserve American assistance.

Repeal, he argued moreover, was the first step toward American involvement in the war.

Senator Shipstead (FL-Minn) asserted that "to repeal the embargo at this time would be directly or indirectly to take sides" in the war. If, he said, "we are going to take sides, let us be open and above-board about it," and not "do it by subterfuge."

Service for Nyle Jones This Afternoon at Oathout Chapel

Employment Service Director Collapses Suddenly in Office

Funeral service will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Nyle W. Jones, 58, 30 S. Governor street, manager of the Iowa state employment service office here, who died of heart attack at his office Sunday.

Mr. Jones was found in his office in the Community building about 4:30 p.m. and probably died about 10 a.m. Dr. George Callahan, Johnson county coroner, said.

Entering the state employment service in 1933, Mr. Jones served as manager in Johnson, Cedar, and Tama counties.

Climax of his four seasons of football at the University of Iowa came when he was elected captain in 1904. He was business manager of athletics at the university in 1905 and 1906.

Mr. Jones graduated from the college of law in 1905 after entering the college of liberal arts in 1901.

He was born Sept. 2, 1881, at Williamsburg, the son of Robert and Mary Ann Gittens Jones.

When he was 12, the family moved to Iowa Falls, where Mr. Jones later graduated from high school and attended Ellsworth junior college one year.

He married Virginia Haldeman of Iowa City, Aug. 30, 1906.

Mr. Jones abandoned the real estate business in Iowa City to accept a position as manager of the credit department of the Corno Mills company of St. Louis, Mo. In 1915 he was the same company's representative in New Orleans, La.

He returned to Iowa City in 1922 to enter the grain business, in which he was engaged until 1933, when he was appointed to the employment service.

A charter member of the University of Iowa chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, social fraternity, Mr. Jones was also past president of the Iowa City Kiwanis club.

He served as trustee, deacon, and treasurer of the local Congregational church.

Besides his widow, Mr. Jones is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Dwight Brown of Plainsfield, N. J., and Mrs. William S. Stickford of Iowa City; a son, Nyle Jr., A2, of Iowa City; three sisters, Miss Alice Jones of Cedar Rapids, Miss Clyde Holmberg of Duluth, Minn., and Mrs. Charles Reynolds of Iowa Falls; two brothers, Leonard Albert of Indianapolis, Ind., and Albert Jones of Des Moines; and five grandchildren.

Services will be at Oathout funeral chapel in charge of the Rev. Llewellyn A. Owen, pastor of the Congregational church.

Hungary Stops Planned Putsch

BUDAPEST, Oct. 16 (AP)—A projected putsch by Hungarian nazi extremists, which was said to include the assassination of 17 members of parliament, today was reported crushed with the arrest of 140 members of the outlawed Hungarian "death legion."

Finns Ponder Red Demands

Finland Continues Air Raid Precautions, Seeks 'Calm' Answer

HELSINKI, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Finnish government today studied undisclosed Soviet Russian proposals brought back by its mission to Moscow and a spokesman said later "we remain calm and believe a solution can be found."

There was no evidence of slackening in defense measures, however, and it was announced more air raid drills were planned shortly. These steps were described by the government as a precaution against possible violation of "our independence and neutrality."

"The Russian demands present serious questions," the spokesman said, "but a practical solution can be found, in our opinion, if both sides show good will. We are trying so far as possible to understand the proposals made by the Soviet and find a way to a peaceful solution."

Return to Moscow of Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, head of the Finnish mission, was not expected for several days. Meanwhile government observers described the negotiations as presenting the most serious crisis in the history of the republic.

Search Fails To Reveal Subs In Caribbean

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 16 (AP)—Lieut. Commander S. B. Cooke, commanding a United States patrol squadron 51, said today a continuous search of the whole eastern Caribbean area since Sept. 12 had failed to reveal the presence of a single submarine of a foreign power.

Torpedoing--'Cluster' Style

Naval Students Advance Theory in Sinking Of British Battleship

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Private naval students today offered a theory that the heavy casualties in the sinking of the battleship Royal Oak resulted from perfection of a "cluster" torpedo technique by nazi strategists.

Observers further suggested the loss of 786 men (latest official estimates) was influenced by darkness with nearly two-thirds of the crew below in sleeping hammocks.

A system of firing torpedoes in clusters like slugs from a shotgun is entirely plausible from a naval viewpoint, experts said. Many present-day submarines are capable of simultaneous discharges which would send three or four torpedoes streaking into a warship at vital spots.

(The official British announcement on Saturday of the sinking of the Royal Oak merely said it was believed she was the victim of "U-boat action." German reports said the battleship was torpedoed, but gave no further details. Announcements also have failed to state the time of the sinking.)

The "cluster" reasoning further was pointed to as accounting for the speed with which the Royal Oak apparently sank. On New Year's day 1915 when the relatively old British battleship Formidable was sunk by a German submarine under cover of darkness she took two and one half hours before going down.

In the sinking of the Royal Oak, naval experts said they believed the attacking submarine maneuvered directly in the path of the battleship between the customary screen of anti-submarine craft. The attacker's presence could not be detected in the darkness if she was half submerged. The bulk of a battleship makes a silhouette discernible as far as 600 yards, the experts said.

Violent renewal of Germany's under sea attacks after a lull in this type of warfare was regarded in one sense as a natural development.

Laws on River Are Unwanted, Says Midwest

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16 (AP)—Midwesterners who say they see "the handwriting on the wall" threw the combined weight of 23 state organizations into a fight tonight against proposed government regulation of river transportation.

Delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of the Mississippi Valley association applauded speakers who denounced attempts at such legislation on the ground it would literally knock the pins from under the growing barge lines business.

The Mississippi Valley association is an organization of commercial, industrial and agricultural interests and one of its chief functions is promoting expansion of the inland waterways system in the mid-continent area.

Nazi Bombers Appear Over Two Cruisers

Anti-Aircraft Fire By English Failed To Repulse Attack

BERLIN, Oct. 16 (AP)—Field Marshal Goering's warplanes and Grand Admiral Raeder's submarines pressed a lightning war against England today.

In a surprise attack, German bombers appeared over the Firth of Forth in Scotland and, an official announcement said, "two British cruisers were hit by bombs of heavy size."

Another official announcement declared the British battle cruiser Repulse had been torpedoed in carrying out Adolf Hitler's apparent determination to sink or disable one British warship after another until Britain gives in.

(A British announcement said but one British cruiser was hit, but admitted 35 casualties aboard three warships in the Firth of Forth. The German report of the battle cruiser Repulse being badly damaged was called an "absurd invention" by the British.)

The German communique said two British pursuit planes which rose to fight off the German raiders over the Firth of Forth were shot down, but admitted two of Germany's own planes had failed to return from the raid.

(British reports said four German planes were brought down.)

It was declared the attack was carried out despite heavy English anti-aircraft fire.

Treaty Makers Mustn't Harm U. S. Farmers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Blunt warning was served on the committee for reciprocity information today by democratic and republican members of congress that the law permitting the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements would be revised by congress if they were permitted to cause injury to agriculture.

More than a score of congressmen from the west and middle west opposed, at state department hearings to collect data upon which to base negotiations for a trade agreement with Argentina, any reduction in duties on farm and livestock products from that country.

They charged agriculture had borne the brunt of concessions in previous agreements and demanded this course not be followed in the present negotiations.

Only three witnesses favored the proposed trade agreement. Hugh Carnes Smith, counsel for the Puerto Rican government, urged the committee to effect an agreement which would permit importation of Argentine beef into Puerto Rico and decrease its price there.

500 Surgeons To Be Trained Yearly for Benefit of Masses

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16 (AP)—Plans to train 500 new American surgeons each year, to give the average income man the highly skilled surgery which has belonged largely to the rich and the indigent, were announced by the American College of Surgeons today.

The plan is a three-year system of super-training in surgery which it is hoped will ultimately raise the crop of completely trained new surgeons yearly to 600 or more and spread them into the rural districts instead of having only enough to concentrate in the cities.

Scots Witness Sudden Attack At Edinburgh

Southampton Damaged Slightly, British Say; 35 Casualties Listed

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Scoring the first admitted bomb hit on a British warship since the European war began, German bombers today slightly damaged the cruiser Southampton in a spectacular attack on the vital Edinburgh and Firth of Forth area of Scotland.

The British admiralty said the bombers caused 35 casualties aboard the Southampton and two other naval ships, the cruiser Edinburgh and the destroyer Mohawk.

A joint communique by the air ministry and the admiralty said at least four of the 12 or 14 nazi raiders were downed by royal air force fighters and anti-aircraft batteries during a fierce battle.

(A German announcement said two British cruisers were hit by bombs.)

The first German air raiders to reach Britain, the bombers struck in dive attacks in the face of heavy fire from ship and shore batteries.

The official announcement of the attack—issued some eight hours after the fight—said the Southampton, which escorted King George and Queen Elizabeth to Canada last summer, was struck a glancing blow by a bomb.

The communique said the bow of the 9,100-ton cruiser was damaged slightly by the bomb.

Bomb splinters caused three casualties aboard the Southampton, seven on the 10,000-ton Edinburgh and 25 on the 1,870-ton Mohawk. The communique gave no further details on the "casualties."

It was said, however, the bombardment from the air failed to inflict serious damage to any of the warships.

Air raid warnings were not sounded in the area of the attack, across the Firth of Forth from Edinburgh. Throughout the raid trains continued to cross the high bridge between Rosyth and the south bank of the Firth during the attack, giving passengers a chilling close-up of bombs exploding huge waterpots in the water 450 feet below.

Shortly before the aerial attack on British warships was disclosed by the admiralty and the air ministry, the admiralty had denied a German claim that the battle cruiser Repulse was damaged by the same submarine which sank the battleship Royal Oak Saturday.

Besides the slight damage to the bow of the Southampton, an empty admiral's barge and an empty pinnace moored alongside were sunk.

The British said one bomb fell near the Mohawk and burst on the water, the splinters hitting men on her deck. The Mohawk was returning to harbor from convoy escort.

The communique said the three ships were ready for the sea despite the raid.

(Jane's Fighting Ships, authoritative work on the world's navies, gives the Southampton a normal complement of 700, twelve 6-inch guns, eight 4-inch guns, one 3.7-inch howitzer, four three pounders and 18 smaller guns as well as six torpedo tubes. She was completed in 1937.)

(The new cruiser Edinburgh carried similarly heavy armament and was said to be designed to withstand 8-inch shell fire.)

An Old Man Talks About The Young Poets--

A kindly old man leaned back in an easy chair in the doorway of the Iowa Union library last night and talked of poets and poetry—of the young American poets who show great promise and then in a few years fade away into obscurity.

Sitting around him were the young writers of the campus who have placed all faith in the muse within themselves. They listened to stories about poets a keen soft-eyed old man had known, some he had known personally, some by their work.

They watched the light in his face as he opened a small book of verse, collected by the Yale press and chosen as the work of those poets in whom the oldsters had the highest hope. There have been more than 30 in all since 1917 who were told they might someday contribute truly great poetry. Most have been forgotten; few have written more than one book of verse.

There were a few exceptions, the old man in the easy chair told his listeners. He mentioned Paul Engle, who sat with the younger ones in the group of listeners. He mentioned Stephen Vincent Benet, a few others. But most of them have given up writing poetry.

"Why?" he asked the small and quiet group sitting in the book-lined room. "What has happened to them?"

Then he laid down the volume of verse and talked about its authors—those promising poets who have passed into oblivion.

Of course, some have gone into other fields.

And many, he thought, didn't care enough.

"The whole of writing is the will to write," the old man observed. "And most writers, he thought, have to take a lot of punishment."

Then, the white-haired New Englander offered another reason for the failure of so many of the younger poets.

"Not enough mental weight," he said. "The art of writing is having something to say." He added, "the art of having something to say is to have something in you."

As he sat in the quiet room, he philosophized on kinds of people. He threw little barbs at the world's ills, speaking always with that shaggy New England tang in his voice. "We live in a confused world and so we are confused."

This kind counts for little. Another group "makes up its mind every morning—like we make up our beds."

And the third group. Those who assert, "I'm not saying much till I see!"

Philosophizing ended, he came back again to the qualities that make for writing that is great and lasting.

"It's not commonsense. But naturalness."

The old man tipped his chair forward then, stood up, and read some of his own famous lines, seasoning these with a dry humor.

The little group sitting in the Union library beside the crackling fire stirred and rose to leave. They liked Robert Frost.

Sportsmanship In The Stands?

LAST SATURDAY the mighty Wolverines sent Iowa's Hawkeyes down to defeat 27-7 and gave Michigan supporters every reason to be proud of a great team that fought hard and deserved its victory.

The day was ideal for football, the stadium is one of the finest in the country, the Michigan band put on a great show. There was only one blot on the otherwise perfect picture—the sportsmanship-like conduct of the crowd.

Time after time the roar of the crowd drowned out the signals of the Iowa eleven. Time after time the Hawkeye quarterback raised his hand and waived for silence, a gesture almost universally respected by football crowds. And time after time the clamor would begin again as soon as he'd start calling signals.

At one point the entire Iowa team protested to the referee, but received little assistance. One such protest led to a five-yard penalty against Iowa for talking too much time before putting the ball into play.

To the Hawkeyes, playing under the Notre Dame system, inability to hear the signals and to catch their rhythm meant serious disruption of their plays. Satisfied that the crowd was determined to persist in the matter, the team finally resorted to the huddle before plays, a system that they had not practiced.

That the middle of a tough game is a poor time to be forced to adopt an entirely new system of calling plays can be readily understood.

The roar of the crowd is an accepted part of football and adds to the color and attraction of the game. And it is often necessary for quarterbacks to call for silence during signals. But last Saturday at Ann Arbor the crowd went beyond the bounds of sportsmanship in deliberately drowning out the Iowa signals before almost every play of the game.

Such conduct can quickly tear down the fine reputation Michigan has enjoyed in the Big Ten in past years.

Experiences In Understanding

FROM TIME to time The Daily Iowan has warned its readers to keep an open mind and to make clear judgments for themselves on the news from Europe. Again, we say that at no time in history has it been so necessary for Americans to keep themselves free from prejudice and to keep their heads clear for the understanding of events which are transpiring in the world.

In the last World war there were many things happening in America for which Americans repented in later days. We must not let our emotions rule our thinking in this war; that will not be easy. We have already seen the difficulty the representatives of the people are having in their arguments on the neutrality bill to let their minds rule over emotion.

First of all, Americans must not forget that Europe is playing no child's game. It is WAR. We must judge German actions in the war on the same basis as we do England's, no matter how bitter our hatred of the Nazi regime may be. We must not, further, let our feelings for a foreign government creep over into our feelings in regard to the people who are living under that regime, or even (as is conceivable again) to the people who live in this country but are descended from people of the disputed nation.

We are told in news stories which have gone through the hands of a London censor, that German gunners fired on lifeboats and showed a lack of mercy toward women and children. We have no right to accept this as a fact. We hold no brief for Hitlerism, but believe it is of prime importance that the American newspaper reader examine news stories carefully enough to discern that which is presented as proven FACT and that which is credited to a source which could easily be guilty of distortion or untruth.

Losing our heads in the present European crisis will only hasten our entry into a conflict in which we should have no part. It is conceivable that Britain would do everything possible to draw us into the war. Since the President has declared that we would fight for Canada, if she was invaded, it is possible that Great Britain would make Canada so strategic in her plan of preparation that Germany would seek to set forth machines of destruction in the dominion. While The Daily Iowan does not agree with certain of the theories set forth in the recent speech by Colonel Lindbergh, we do believe with him that America must take every precaution to avoid involvement in the conflict.

The most important factor in keeping us out of war will be the strength of public opinion in opposition to United States entrance into the battle.

Our sympathies naturally arise for Great Britain when we read accounts of the destruction of her once-great fleet. Our horror at the death of British women and children on boats which directly or indirectly are involved in Great Britain's blockade of Germany should be no greater than our horror at the starving of German women and children behind the British blockade.

Only the best judgment, the best of thought possible in the minds of Americans should decide issues in this second great world conflagration.

Don't forget, America: this is WAR!

What is that philosophy which Ghandi has applied to India, and which a young carpenter long ago applied to Palestine? I want to mention only one thing about it: the fact that it is smart.

Jesus has had a thousand adjectives hung on him, from "divine" and "redeeming" to "humble" and "self-giving." But I say that Jesus was clever. He was clever enough to see that you can't get rid of evil by using evil. He laughed that idea out of court. One day he "drove out the evil spirits" from a sick man, (in those days they believed in demons living inside a person, much as we believe that a demonic force, subhuman, resides in Hitler to make him a maniac) and the demons accused him of being Satan himself, because he had power over them. To that Jesus scoffed, "How can Satan cast out Satan?" How can evil drive out evil? Nothing can drive itself out.

Not even love. Love cannot drive out love. Here are Betty Coed and Joe College, a little daffy on each other. But Joe hasn't warmed up to the idea so much, and Betty's love for him gets a little embarrassing; he wants to put a stop to it. What shall he do? Buy her some flowers, send her candy, say infatuating things to her? Nonsense! That would only inflame her love for him. He can't stop it that way. It just doesn't work. You can't drive out anything by using that thing as a weapon. You cannot drive out evil with evil, violence with violence. How can Satan cast out Satan? That's a laughing matter now.

Jesus was clever enough to see that evil must be conquered by something more powerful than evil. Force can be stopped only by something more powerful than brute force. War can be stopped only by some method more potent than war. Whoever now wants to cast out war by the use of war is the laughing stock of the ages.

Jesus was clever, I say, in knowing that there is a strict connection between action and result. The weapon you use determines the result that you get. Use force, and a person retaliates. Use dishonesty, and a person suspects you. Use fairplay, and he learns to trust you. Give a person a break, and he treats you decently. What you sow, so shall you reap.

Jesus was smart enough to see that. His philosophy, which at least one college student last year felt would save us from marching in some gay colored shirts, has at least this one point to it: if you want to stop war, then use some instruments more powerful than war itself, such as real justice, co-operation, and mutual trust. And if you use them, they will reproduce and create results like themselves.

Walter Fleischmann, incidentally, plans to try Broadway again after first semester ends. He's still in North Carolina. Last year he was there for four months and didn't even see a manager or read a script. (Remember "Stage Door"?)

Max Ellis is playing one of the leads in the Erie repertoire production of "Susan and God." (Neither of the title figures, though.) And some people say Mr. Bristol's Lincoln play, scheduled for experimental theater production is better than Sherwood's. . . . Wouldn't have to be too good at that.

The reason Bob Whitehead feels the same way I do about the Saturday Post dates back a few years. In his Oklahoma days Bob wrote in suggesting he'd do an article on "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, then governor. . . . The Post replied no, wasn't appropriate. . . . About six weeks later the Post carried an article written on "Alfalfa Bill."

ONWARD AND UPWARD WITH WSUI: "Chuck" Volger's newscasting all over the schedule at Rock Island and Pat O'Brien had a summer reading a part in the Nick Carter thrillers over KFI, Los Angeles. . . . The latter the biggest station on the west coast.

Sylvia Westerman, who sings with Len Carroll, has one of the cutest styles on the air. . . . If only she'd stay away from torch songs. . . .

Karl Nillinger's "Hitler Is No Fool" is just about the best book on the subject yet written. . . . He's no much convinced by the naïveté of the man but thinks him one of the shrewdest politicians in history. . . .

Points to his two-sided program, anti-capitalist enough to appeal to the workers conservative enough to make big business bring out the marks to finance his rise to power. . . .

The anti-semitic part of the whole isn't accidental, Billinger thinks. . . . "Anti-semitism" can disappear only with fascism itself. . . . In nations which are still democratic the advance of anti-semitism can be resisted successfully only if the battle is carried on as a battle against reaction, against unemployment, for a battle for better living, for social progress, for a civilization which deserve its name."

WADLOW WILL . . . tell his difficulties in buying anything ready-made besides belts and pocket handkerchiefs. Everything has to be custom-built for this 21-year-old lad from Alton, Ill., who stands eight feet nine inches tall in his stocking feet and tips the scales at 485 pounds. . . .

Doctor Sanger, who is bringing his bride to New York with him from Ponca City, Okla., for his "We the People" appearance, lists the following mishaps on his wedding day: one dress suit burned, two white gloves lost, one fender bent, one ring misplaced and one bride's overnight bag lost, strayed or stolen. . . .

BOB CROSBY'S Dixie Song shop orchestra will open their regular Tuesday session tonight at 8:30 over CBS with their own version of that old southern jazz classic, the "Sugar Foot Stomp."

'The Foolishness of Force'

Editor's note: The following article, written by the Rev. Robert H. Hamill, minister to students of the Iowa City Methodist church, is the first in a series being published in observance of Peace Makers Sunday, Oct. 22. The series is being prepared under the direction of the Rev. Llewelyn A. Owen, minister of the First Congregational church and president of the Iowa City Ministerial association and the Inter-Faith Fellowship council.)

By ROBERT H. HAMILL, Asst. Pastor, Methodist Church

A little over a year ago, during the Munich crisis, a college student dashed off these lines: "DeValera in his green shirt riding for a fall, Mussolini in his black shirt back against the wall, Hitler in his brown shirt lord-ing over all, Three cheers for Gandhi, with no shirt at all."

And the gang laughed. "But there is more than humor to that," he protested. "Unless we get something of the philosophy of Ghandi here in America, God only knows what color of shirt we'll be wearing, and where we will be marching." That sobered them.

What is that philosophy which Ghandi has applied to India, and which a young carpenter long ago applied to Palestine? I want to mention only one thing about it: the fact that it is smart.

Jesus has had a thousand adjectives hung on him, from "divine" and "redeeming" to "humble" and "self-giving." But I say that Jesus was clever. Not even love. Love cannot drive out love. Here are Betty Coed and Joe College, a little daffy on each other. But Joe hasn't warmed up to the idea so much, and Betty's love for him gets a little embarrassing; he wants to put a stop to it. What shall he do? Buy her some flowers, send her candy, say infatuating things to her? Nonsense! That would only inflame her love for him. He can't stop it that way. It just doesn't work. You can't drive out anything by using that thing as a weapon. You cannot drive out evil with evil, violence with violence. How can Satan cast out Satan? That's a laughing matter now.

Jesus was clever enough to see that evil must be conquered by something more powerful than evil. Force can be stopped only by something more powerful than brute force. War can be stopped only by some method more potent than war. Whoever now wants to cast out war by the use of war is the laughing stock of the ages.

Jesus was clever, I say, in knowing that there is a strict connection between action and result. The weapon you use determines the result that you get. Use force, and a person retaliates. Use dishonesty, and a person suspects you. Use fairplay, and he learns to trust you. Give a person a break, and he treats you decently. What you sow, so shall you reap.

Jesus was smart enough to see that. His philosophy, which at least one college student last year felt would save us from marching in some gay colored shirts, has at least this one point to it: if you want to stop war, then use some instruments more powerful than war itself, such as real justice, co-operation, and mutual trust. And if you use them, they will reproduce and create results like themselves.

Walter Fleischmann, incidentally, plans to try Broadway again after first semester ends. He's still in North Carolina. Last year he was there for four months and didn't even see a manager or read a script. (Remember "Stage Door"?)

Max Ellis is playing one of the leads in the Erie repertoire production of "Susan and God." (Neither of the title figures, though.) And some people say Mr. Bristol's Lincoln play, scheduled for experimental theater production is better than Sherwood's. . . . Wouldn't have to be too good at that.

The reason Bob Whitehead feels the same way I do about the Saturday Post dates back a few years. In his Oklahoma days Bob wrote in suggesting he'd do an article on "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, then governor. . . . The Post replied no, wasn't appropriate. . . . About six weeks later the Post carried an article written on "Alfalfa Bill."

ONWARD AND UPWARD WITH WSUI: "Chuck" Volger's newscasting all over the schedule at Rock Island and Pat O'Brien had a summer reading a part in the Nick Carter thrillers over KFI, Los Angeles. . . . The latter the biggest station on the west coast.

Sylvia Westerman, who sings with Len Carroll, has one of the cutest styles on the air. . . . If only she'd stay away from torch songs. . . .

Karl Nillinger's "Hitler Is No Fool" is just about the best book on the subject yet written. . . . He's no much convinced by the naïveté of the man but thinks him one of the shrewdest politicians in history. . . .

Points to his two-sided program, anti-capitalist enough to appeal to the workers conservative enough to make big business bring out the marks to finance his rise to power. . . .

The anti-semitic part of the whole isn't accidental, Billinger thinks. . . . "Anti-semitism" can disappear only with fascism itself. . . . In nations which are still democratic the advance of anti-semitism can be resisted successfully only if the battle is carried on as a battle against reaction, against unemployment, for a battle for better living, for social progress, for a civilization which deserve its name."

WADLOW WILL . . . tell his difficulties in buying anything ready-made besides belts and pocket handkerchiefs. Everything has to be custom-built for this 21-year-old lad from Alton, Ill., who stands eight feet nine inches tall in his stocking feet and tips the scales at 485 pounds. . . .

Doctor Sanger, who is bringing his bride to New York with him from Ponca City, Okla., for his "We the People" appearance, lists the following mishaps on his wedding day: one dress suit burned, two white gloves lost, one fender bent, one ring misplaced and one bride's overnight bag lost, strayed or stolen. . . .

BOB CROSBY'S Dixie Song shop orchestra will open their regular Tuesday session tonight at 8:30 over CBS with their own version of that old southern jazz classic, the "Sugar Foot Stomp."

Stewart Says Law Proposed by Hoosier State's Louis Ludlow May Put Down Alien Agitation

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist

"THERE IS a great unassimilated alien mass in the United States," says Congressman Louis Ludlow, an Indiana Democrat. "Many of these foreign sojourners in our midst," he adds, "represent alien philosophies and are engaged in subversive activities."

So the Hoosier legislator has proposed a law, allowing aliens in this country a year within which each of them must apply for American citizenship or "face deportation," mind you. It isn't to be provided that he's to be deported merely because he's been here more than a year without asking for naturalization—not if he's an uninterfering, untroublesome alien, simply in the United States on legitimate business or as a well-behaved visitor. For all Congressman Ludlow cares, he can stay on indefinitely as a foreigner, provided he keeps out of our domestic politics. But if he wants a voice in our governmental affairs, the congressman holds that he ought to become one of us officially and genuinely—or be shipped back where he came from.

Now Louis Ludlow is no "baiter." He's a very high-type liberal, but he isn't a crank. I've known him for years. He originally was a newspaperman. As an Indianapolis telegraph editor I handled his Washington copy away back in the early 1900's. I've been associated with him as a press galleryite in the capitol. He's no conservative, certainly, but neither is he the type of lawmaker who looks under his bed nightly to make sure that a Communist or a Nazi isn't hiding whether or not newspapers should be indicted for printing news that incites to crime. Certainly it is not possible to judge faultlessly what stories will cause some reader to commit a crime. Any editor who could foresee an outcome such as the Repouille mercy slaying story brought would see that the story was either left out of his columns or tempered appropriately.

but one need only to listen to the talk of students and graduates to catch the truth. A man always says, "My university." He never says "The university I belong to." The university can be owned in total by one, each one of ten, by each one of a hundred, by each one of a thousand, and by each one of a million, and still be taken over in total by each member of the new freshman class. It is an inexhaustible sort of thing. — a perpetual fountain. There is in it the stuff of infinity. No matter how many times it is taken it always remains for the next claimant. It's strength depends upon the number of persons having ownership. Thus it happens that the smallest (in size) may be the largest (in ownership) and the weakest (in property) the strongest (in influence). Having selected your university you owe the same responsibility to it that a parent owes to his child or a ruler owes to his people. You must give protection, guidance, and inspiration. The more you give of yourself (not money) to your university, the more valuable the university becomes to you, as a part of your estate.

Barnes, head of the department of hygiene and preventative medicine, will be guests of the University of Cincinnati college of medicine at the 50th annual convention of the Association of American Medical Colleges to be held in Cincinnati Oct. 23 to 25.

Two important topics to be under discussion at the meeting are "Student Health Service," and "Internships and Residencies." Dean MacEwen will lead the discussion on the former with Paul H. Stevenson, assistant to the dean, University of Cincinnati college of medicine.

In an announcement of the subject, an association bulletin says, "Universities, colleges and medical schools are greatly concerned with the student health problem. In some institutions this problem has been virtually solved. Others are still groping for an adequate solution. There is general agreement that the university has a definite responsibility for the health of its students. Just how far this responsibility should go, has not been definitely settled."

Internship Topic
"Internships and Residencies," the other subject to be discussed at the three-day meeting, is of special interest to interns and to hospitals in which intern service is used. According to a plan formerly in effect, interns each year sent applications to five hospitals which they hoped could use their services.

It was required that the medical student accept the first offer in the inability to make a choice. Under this system large hospitals were flooded with applications, while many small hospitals which may have offered excellent opportunities for intern service were overlooked.

To iron out some of the problems connected with the selection and appointment of interns, a committee on internships was appointed by the executive council of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Definite Step
"The first definite step decided upon," according to the association journal, "was that a definite date should be set upon which all intern appointments will be announced by all hospitals." The date chosen was Nov. 15.

"Letters setting forth the aims of the committee were sent to 361 selected hospitals which give placement to 5,042 interns. Two hundred forty-three of these unqualifiedly agreed to cooperate in the suggested program." Others agreed to do so with certain reservations. A few refused to cooperate because they were already a part of some placement plan already in existence. Still others still have the matter under consideration.

R. C. Buerck, director of study, commission on graduate medical education, will speak at the Cincinnati meeting regarding this study. Further work of the committee, however, will be postponed until after this month, it was reported.

Speech Clinic To Meet
The speech clinic luncheon will be held this noon at the Iowa Union. Movies sponsored by the visual education department will be shown.

Radio Child Study Club, in Eighth Year, Gives Courses Which Include Family, Adolescents

Offering four different courses, the Radio Child Study Club has this year entered into its eighth year of broadcasting.

Organized in 1932, the club aims to supply parents with up-to-date material on child rearing direct from the child development centers of the state, the Iowa child welfare research station at the university, and the child development departments at Iowa State college and Iowa State Teachers college.

The courses this year include the family, the infant and preschool child, the elementary school child and the adolescent.

Each course is planned for two years, with 12 meetings in each annual series. The first half of the series will be presented during 1939-40. Consisting of a short presentation followed by a roundtable discussion, each course is broadcast every two weeks over stations WSUI, and WOI, Iowa State college.

The broadcasts concerning the family and elementary school age child are given on alternate

Tuesdays at 2:30 p.m. and those dealing with the infant and preschool child and the adolescent are scheduled for Thursdays at 2:30.

Prof. Ralph H. Ojemann of the psychology and parent education department is in charge of the series.

If 10 or more parents wish to organize a study group, they may enroll in the Radio Child Study Club and choose a leader who will report the names and addresses of the leader and members to the Iowa child welfare research station at the University of Iowa or to radio station WOI at Ames.

At the time of enrollment, each group should signify in which course it is interested. There is no charge for group enrollment.

Each leader is supplied in advance with a copy of the presentation which opens the discussion and a list of carefully selected reading references emphasizing articles in magazines published by national organizations. Problems which the group cannot solve may be sent to the Iowa child welfare research station. These questions will be taken up at the next broadcast.

To meet the needs of parents who find it difficult to join a group, the individual plan has been developed. A person may become an individual member by paying a registration fee of 50 cents for each series in which he or she wishes to enroll. He will then receive a copy of the talk which opens the discussion in each broadcast and a list of reading references.

The broadcast schedule for the remainder of October follows: today, the family takes part in social change, by Dean George D. Stoddard of the graduate college; emotional ties that bind, Dr. Thomas F. Vance of Iowa State college; infant beginnings, Prof. Orvis C. Irwin of the child welfare department.

On October 24, having fun at hallowe'en, Edith M. Sunderlin, Iowa State college; and Oct. 26, bodily changes in adolescence, Howard V. Meredith and Eleanor Methany, both of the child welfare and psychology department.

For these 5 Secret Agents in every bottle and about 65% of the pen troubles — save using a blotter!

These 5 Secret Agents—not fancied but real secret ingredients—make Parker Quink an ink that does what no other ink can do. It guards any pen—a Parker or any other—from inks that clog the feed, gum the point, and corrode the mechanism. And it cleanses your pen as it writes—keeps it working like a charm.

That's why Parker chemists spent 3 years developing this revolutionary ink. We wanted to protect our famous Parker Pens from being charged with faults due to ordinary pen-clogging, acid-carrying inks.

Ask for Quink—be "particular"—if you want these results:

- 1—An ink that makes your pen a self-cleaner
- 2—that digests gum and sediment left by ordinary inks
- 3—that dries on paper 31% faster than average
- 4—that does NOT dry in your pen
- 5—that starts in a flash!

Small Blackened Bulbs Make Lamps Look Dingy

"One survey that I remember distinctly was in a home where there were beautiful lamps and shades, but they looked dingy due to small and black bulbs.

"I replaced three 25 watt bulbs with three 60 watt bulbs and put a straight 200 watt in an indirect lamp in place of a 75 watt bulb. The lamps took on the appearance of their real value and ample foot candles were provided for reading.

"This change of lighting also added very definitely to some costly paintings.

"The personal appreciation of this woman was very evident as she still continues purchasing lamps and bulbs from me for the rest of her home."

Johnson County Contracts for Purchase of Juvenile Home

Sale Approved Through Recent Law

F. J. Krall States Home Expense Totaled $7,500 Last Year

Johnson county has contracted to purchase the county juvenile home, 538 S. Gilbert street, and will take possession of it by Nov. 1, according to a statement made by Frank J. Krall, chairman of the board of supervisors, yesterday.

The purchase of the building by the county, approved by the county attorney and the city council, is authorized by an amendment passed at the last session of the state legislature permitting counties of 30,000 population or over to build and maintain a juvenile home. During the 10 years that the building has been used as a juvenile home the county has been renting it, Krall said.

"This winter we will improve the inside of the home," Krall said. The three-story brick building which in the course of time has been a residential mansion and a fraternity house, contains large high-ceilinged rooms badly in need of paint, plaster and paper. Both flights of stairs will be used in to prevent the escape of heat in winter, Krall added.

The outside of the building also needs painting, and the wooden picket fence surrounding the home will be replaced by a new one. There is a fire-escape to the second story on the north side. Another may be added on the east side, Krall announced.

"The foundations of the building are in sound shape," Krall said, "so that no major repairs are necessary. The cellar however needs repair work."

All the necessary repairs cannot be accomplished immediately, Krall explained, but in the course of time the building will be put into good shape.

Previous to the new amendment which authorizes the county to maintain a juvenile home, the home was maintained by the county poor fund. Last year approximately $7,500 was spent from this fund for rent of the building, salaries of personnel and maintenance. During the last ten years the county has almost paid for

To Ask $15,000 For Damages In King Case

Michael J. Murphy Named Defendant In Court Action

First law case scheduled in the September term of district court, which requires impaneling of a jury to weigh the evidence, will be the action of Oliver King against Michael J. Murphy for damages.

King, administrator of the estate of Bert King, who was killed in an auto accident east of the city, is seeking $15,000 damages. The information filed by the plaintiff states that Bert King was a passenger in the car driven by Murphy which crashed head on with another.

District Court Judge James P. Gaffney, presiding during the September law term, said yesterday that other members of the petit jury would be excused until Thursday morning after impaneling of a jury.

A decision in the damage case is expected by Thursday.

the building with the money spent for rent, according to Krall.

Unable to appropriate funds for the necessary repairs the board of supervisors has made efforts to maintain a standard of cleanliness in the home. There has never been a death of any child since the home was established 10 years ago, records have shown.

Children in the juvenile home come from homes that are socially or financially unequipped to care for them. Brought to the attention of the probation officer, they are sent to the home on court order. When they reach the age of 12 or 14 years they are placed in foster homes which desire them, and the county continues to pay for their maintenance.

Superintendent of Banking Asks District Court to Collect Sum From Former Examiner

D. W. Bates Seeks Judgment Against Ben S. Summerwill

An application was filed in district court yesterday for D. W. Bates, Iowa superintendent of banking, asking the Johnson county court to order Ben S. Summerwill, former examiner of the Johnson County Savings Bank of Iowa City, to pay Bates, receiver of the bank, money claimed to be due.

The application stated in part that the indebtedness of Orville Simmons and Matte Simmons and the Simmons Motor company to the Johnson County Savings bank amounts to approximately $12,582.43 plus accrued interest of approximately $3,700 as of Oct. 14, 1935.

"At the time said Johnson County Savings bank went into receivership, and said indebtedness was accrued by collateral of 90 shares of common stock of D. C. Heath and company."

According to the application, a financial statement of Heath and company of Dec. 31, 1934 showed a book value in excess of $300 per share for its stock.

The application continued that Summerwill said he investigated the D. C. Heath company stock and found that it was worth more than from $1,500 to $2,000. Summerwill allegedly settled this indebtedness by receiving three 1935 Packard 120 and one Plymouth automobiles, contending that the automobiles were of more value than the stock.

Bates said he told Summerwill that if the findings were sound, "it would of course be better to take the automobiles and return the stock."

The application stated that Bates purchased "around Sept. 15, 1935," one of the automobiles received by Summerwill, paying $1000 for it. It further revealed that another of the Packards was sold the following April to a Des Moines man for $850. The Plymouth according to the application, was purchased by the state banking department for $550.

The application continued, "On June 22, 1939, Ben S. Summerwill left in the office of the receiver a cashier's check drawn on the Iowa City Bank and Trust company of Iowa City, in the amount of $600." This, it stated, was apparently in payment of the Packard automobile purchased by Ben S. Summerwill.

Bates said he now believes the D. C. Heath and company stock worth more than $2,000.

The applicant is asking the court to determine a valuation of the automobiles received by Summerwill.

It asks further that Summerwill be required to account for
