'WAR THREATENS BRITISH EMPIRE'

Ship's Capture Is Problem For Russians

German War Prize, City of Flint, Involves International Law

By WITT HANCOCK
MOSCOW, Oct. 24 (AP)—Arrival of the American vessel City of Flint in a Soviet port as a war captive with a German prize crew in command confronted Russian officials with a knotty and ticklish problem in international law tonight.

United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt was assured by Vladimir Potemkin, vice-commissioner for foreign affairs, that full information would be furnished as soon as available concerning the captured 4,963-ton vessel.

The embassy pressed inquiries into the fate of the crew of 42 and the cargo of tractors, grain, fruit, leather and wax which she was said to be carrying for England.

Steinhardt described his interview with Potemkin as cordial and said he was promised details as soon as obtainable from Mursmansk where the City of Flint was taken, flying the German flag.

Delay of a day or two was expected since there are no foreign consulates at Mursmansk, Russia's northernmost port which is not ice-bound in winter. The German liner Bremen also is understood to be at Mursmansk, about 200 miles north of the Arctic circle.

Norwegian officials at Tromso said the German cruiser Emden captured the City of Flint as a contraband carrier only a short time after the American vessel had picked up 39 British seamen tossing in the Atlantic in open boats after the 5,044-ton freighter Stonegate had been torpedoed.

The City of Flint put into Tromso, Norway, last Friday in the hands of a German prize crew to land the Stonegate's crew and then disappeared Saturday bound for Mursmansk.

The German prize crew was interned by Russian officials on reaching Mursmansk, an act which the German embassy said was "perfectly correct" although embassy officials said they had no report on the incident.

Foreign sources here said they believed the Russians were as surprised as anyone when the City of Flint put in flying a German flag and that they probably were embarrassed by the situation.

There was considerable speculation here as to why the German crew put into a Russian port knowing that under international law they would be interned. One theory was that they had been pursued by a British warship. Another was that the Germans hoped Russia would purchase the City of Flint's cargo and then reship it to Germany in a Russian boat.

Recently Returned From Europe

Mrs. Emil Witschi, 311 Woolf avenue, who returned Friday from a trip to Europe and her native Switzerland, is shown inspecting two of six Bohemian wine glasses which she brought home with her. Each glass is different from the others in coloring, shape and design. The glasses, used only on very special occasions, are called Roman glasses and find the secret of their value in the fact that each is especially

Swiss Army Guards Neutrality-Mrs. Witschi

By BETTY GILLILLAND
"The Swiss do not want to fight for any crown; they love their independence too well. They don't want to take sides, even in this war. I have never seen them so determined before."

So a native of Switzerland who just Friday returned to the United States from a visit with relatives in Berne, Mrs. Emil Witschi, 311 Woolf avenue, summed up the Swiss attitude of present European conflict.

"They know good and well that if the war would end in the interest of France and England that it would be as hard on them as if Germany should win," she commented. "In fact, I was told by several high officers that troops had been placed on the French as well as on the German frontier."

Mobilization with clock-like precision has made the Swiss army one to contend with should a country decide to use Switzerland as a highway, she explained. They have some weapons which have never before been used in warfare, and in addition have the advantage of being used to maneuvering in the mountains and hills.

"They really are much more ready now than they have been before. Every Swiss who is able bodied has to go into the army and must go through a thorough training of some 16 weeks. Troops have been placed along all the frontier, and they mobilized very quickly this time," she said.

Mrs. Witschi, who came to the United States 12 years ago, was in Switzerland when they mobilized 25 years ago for the first World war. Mobilization this time was much more efficient and effective, she believes.

United States To Seek Release Of Captive American Freighter

No Information Of Ship's Crew Worries Hull

Acknowledges Half Of Cargo To Be Conditional Contraband

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The United States prepared tonight to seek the release of the captive American freighter City of Flint and at the same time worried officials strove to find out what became of the vessel's crew after she was seized by a German raider which sent her to Mursmansk, Russian port.

President Roosevelt said he had no word as to the whereabouts of the 42 sailors. Because of difficult communications with the far north city of Mursmansk, it was not clear whether they were aboard the City of Flint when the vessel arrived there flying the German flag and under command of a German prize crew. Secretary of State Hull appeared worried over the lack of information.

Reports from Norway said the vessel which captured the City of Flint was the fast cruiser Emden, named after the historic German raider of the World war days. Prior to the capture, Norwegian officials said, the City of Flint had picked up 39 British seamen who were adrift in open boats after their freighter, Stonegate had been sunk by the German pocket battleship Deutschland.

Secretary Hull denied the right of Russia to keep the City of Flint, and it was reliably learned that the state department would request the release of the vessel if Russia did not voluntarily permit it. (See FREIGHTER, Page 8)

Britain Wants More Publicity In America

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The British government promised the house of commons a "constant endeavor to secure the largest possible measure of publicity" in the United States today while newspaper placards reported the "U. S. A. angry" over German seizure of the steamship City of Flint.

Sir Edward Grigg, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of information, set forth the government's publicity aims in reply to a question in commons on the volume of "German propaganda" in America compared with the "shortage of information from British sources."

Earl Browder Evades Interrogation As Society Matron Posts $7,500 Bond

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—As communist leader Earl Browder emerged today from a federal detention cell under $7,500 bail supplied by a society matron, he shrugged off questions as to whether a man in a similar position in Soviet Russia might expect release in bond.

As to his experiences as an overnight prisoner—he was indicted yesterday of obtaining a passport through false representations—he was not much more communicative.

Senate Approves Neutrality Changes

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Done with three-weeks of oratory, the senate put on a tremendous burst of speed today, disposed of a long series of amendments to the neutrality bill and drew near to a final decision on the essential issue of repealing or retaining the arms embargo.

It approved changes which would permit American ships to go almost anywhere except to the danger zones of the north Atlantic, would make the bill more nearly a cash-and-carry measure, and permit ordinary trade with Canada across the border or through sheltered water and seaways.

With equal dispatch it turned down an amendment forbidding American vessels to go within 300 miles of the European continent or the British Isles, and rejected a proposal that no military aircraft should be sold to belligerents until American national defense needs had been satisfied.

On the dais, Vice President Garner, whose impatience at the length of the formal general debate was well-known, gleefully gavelled business along at a clip which brought protests from the floor and one particularly irritated exchange between the chair and a senator.

Garner had called for a vote on the aircraft amendment and pronounced it defeated. Senator Clark (D-Mo.) indignantly called to his attention that Senator Danaher (R-Conn.), the author of the amendment, was seeking recognition when Garner put the question.

"I don't believe," Clark said, "that business will be expedited by trying to railroad this body."

"The chair," said Garner in his characteristically shrill and penetrating voice, "is not trying to railroad anything, but there is not going to be any horse and buggy business in this senate as long as I'm running it."

There was laughter in the crowded galleries and a chortle from the floor, in which Clark joined. After hours and on most issues, he and the vice-president are the best of friends.

A. S. U. Leader To Emphasize Domestic Plan

Sessions, Joe Lash Will Debate Policies At Forum Tonight

The importance of emphasizing America's domestic policy will be stressed tonight by Joe Lash, organizer of the A. S. U. in the first student forum of the school year to be held in the chemistry auditorium at 7:30.

He will be opposed by Jack Sessions, one of the founders of the Youth Committee for the Oxford Pledge which later became the Youth Committee Against War.

Bill Bartley, managing editor of the University News bulletin, will act as chairman.

In emphasizing the policy of keeping the government in control of political groups sensitive to the needs of the people, Lash represents the view of the A.S.U., a national student group interested in the preservation of democracy in the United States.

The Youth Committee Against War, on the other hand, stresses a strictly isolationist policy of preserving peace.

Known as a lecturer and writer for labor, Sessions is a former chairman of the University of Michigan Student Workers federation and organizer of student workers at the 1937 national A. S. U. convention.

He was in Canada shortly before it mobilized for war, and brings from Washington, D. C., some first-hand impressions of the congressional neutrality fight.

Lash and Sessions will attend a dinner in their honor at the D and L grill at 5:30 this evening.

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The house committee on un-American activities voted today to make public the names of 900-cdd government employees who are members of the American League for Peace and Democracy, an organization which Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) said was dominated by communists.

Dies had accused the league of attempting to "penetrate" the federal government and said flatly the organization was "under the communists."

Rep. Mason (R-Ill.), who proposed that the names be made public, said that 136 persons on the list were receiving salaries of $5,500 to $10,000 annually.

The chairman read documents said to have been taken from the Washington files of the League for Peace and Democracy, which suggested that teas and Luncheons be given for "friendly" members of congress, proposed lobbying for and against legislation and give plans for formation of league units in all government departments.

Ribbentrop Declares Reich Will Win War

People of Germany Fighting 'To Assure Security of Nations'

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF
DANZIG, Oct. 24 (AP)—Germany is determined to fight Britain to the bitter end and is supremely confident of victory, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop told the world tonight.

In a 90-minute address von Ribbentrop warned Britain that by continuing the war she was "playing dangerously with the fate of her empire."

"The present British government may go down in history as the grave-digger of the empire," he told a group of veteran nazi fighters which formed his immediate audience in this one-time free city, now incorporated in the reich.

No Hint of Compromise
The nazi foreign minister let fall not a single hint of a possible compromise to end the war before the conflict at arms goes to its bitter conclusion.

"Chamberlain refused the hand of the fuhrer stretched out in a gesture of peace," he shouted at the climax of his address.

"Now the German people takes up the challenge. The German people is ready and is determined to fight until the security of the German people is assured for all time."

"The German people is a solid block, defended by its army, air force and navy which have just won bright laurels. The German people now will fight this war to the end."

"That this end will be a great German victory is guaranteed by the fuhrer," he shouted at the end of his address.

"The frontiers of the reich, north, east, south and west, are fixed," he said.

No More Demands
"Germany has no more demands against England and France except the return of her former colonial possessions."

But in her determination to bring about a new era in eastern Europe, including calling home her minorities, Germany will brook interference from no quarter, he warned.

Von Ribbentrop, making one of his rare public addresses, spoke with less fire than the better known nazi orators.

Finnish Envoy Will Deliver New Proposals

HELSINKI, Oct. 24 (AP)—Soviet Russia has modified her demands on Finland in new proposals being brought here by Finland's special envoy to Moscow, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, authoritative sources asserted tonight.

Germany Needs Oil, Iron, Food To Maintain Home Front

In regard to industrial capacity in determining the "staying power" of countries in war, Prof. Harold McCarty of the college of commerce maintained that Germany needs mainly petroleum, iron and food.

Possibilities of obtaining these materials from other countries, especially Russia, provided one of the main subjects for discussion. Assuming that Russia would trade with Germany, the question was introduced by Prof. C. Woody Thompson of the college of commerce as the most important factors in measuring a country's strength.

It was the conclusion of the group that only by an indirect and hazardous route could petroleum be transported from Russia to Germany. Lack of highways, poor railroads, and insufficient control of waterways were the bases for their opinion.

Prof. Joseph J. Runner of the geology department suggested that Germany has been making up for her lack of petroleum by the manufacture of certain synthetic products. He added that other natural resources in which Germany was noticeably deficient included copper and steel.

Comparisons of the dependence of England and Germany on outside sources for their food were introduced by various members of the forum. While Germany must import approximately 40 per cent of her foods high in fat content, it was seen that England depended on outside sources for 75 per cent of her food.

Prof. H. O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department, led the discussion on the air forces of respective nations now in conflict. Admitting Germany's present top-ranking position with regard to air forces, members of the forum questioned her ability to maintain this position in view of inadequate raw material supplies.

On the other hand, Prof. H. K. Newburn, of University high school, speculated from his study in England that her weakness lies in the number of trained pilots available. While technical training institutions are numerous, Professor Newburn asserted that enrollment in these establishments was surprisingly small.

Discussion of Germany's mobilization of industry and personnel during recent years, led by Professor Croft, revealed that it was nearly perfect. Skirting the economic issue for the moment, Professor Newburn proposed that Germany's dictatorial efficiency might be undermined by a break in morale. Although civilian population has yielded to domination for several years, he suggested that after a long period of time, morale would be weakened.

Additional factors in war strategy will be debated at the next round table session under the direction of Col. H. Slaughter.

In Praise Of Iowa's 'Red Book'

DAVID K. BROWN has been receiving the commendation of many Iowa editors in the past few weeks. The Iowa agrees that Mr. Brown is deserving of this praise.

As superintendent of printing, it is Mr. Brown's job to edit the Official Register of the state of Iowa. Editing the Official Register is not an easy job; often it is thankless.

When the 1938-39 Register appeared recently, there were many praises for it. There were, of course, those who attacked it—it's become a tradition for the party out of power or the insufficiently satisfied members of the party in power to make the "Red Book" a subject of controversy. They can always find that someone's picture was left out, and accuse the editor of doing it maliciously. Or they can find that too much money has been spent making color plates for a picture of the governor, whoever he may be at the time of publication. Or they can find that some important group of facts has been omitted (if it has been, it is probably because this same complainer kicked about the cost of the larger volume). Yes, there's always room for the critics.

But we don't quite see how they'll be able to find very many things wrong with this year's work. That's the reason we want to let Mr. Brown know we appreciate the kind of a job he has done. The book is well prepared and well organized. It is an outstanding volume in so many respects that we haven't space enough to mention them all. There are contained all the official figures and facts that are customary, with added feature articles about Iowa which make it a valuable advertisement for the state and an almost indispensable reference work for students. Again—our congratulations, Editor Brown!

India: A British Question Mark

ALTHOUGH India, by declaration of its victory, is technically at war with Germany, the support she may furnish in a prolonged war when her millions might have to be depended on to augment the troops of the empire, is a question. The chief gain made by the advocates of Indian independence is the laying aside of British plans for the "all India Federation," which is acceptable to few of the native factions.

India apparently is in a position to bargain with the government of Britain again, and this time on a more favorable basis than in the World War. At that time the price of Indian aid was to be eventual dominion status and timely aid she furnished. She sent more than a million of her sons to the battle lines, and the native princes contributed of their vast wealth to the common cause. But with India, as with Britain's Arab allies, the brand of independence that many Indians expected was not forthcoming. The long campaign of opposition to British rule led by Mahatma Gandhi followed. Gandhi, now older and more philosophical, stands as a buffer between Britain and the extremists in his country. But he still wants greater independence, and his word is law to millions.

India, if she is united, may drive a better bargain this time. To date she has sent a few troops to the front and Ghandi is continuing his talks with Linlithgow, who may have to give more than promises this time. In Gandhi's heart, however, may be the fear of Stalin. If he can be convinced that Russia is again driving southward into his country he may be restrained by a new element that entered neither into the World War understandings nor the controversies between Britain and India which followed.

Campus Cut-Ups Turn Tables

UNIVERSITY professors and teachers are at least confronted with their own medicine. For years they have been rating and grading students. Now the tables are turned, students have found a way by which they rate faculty members.

An anonymous group of students from the University of California have compiled a booklet called "Guide to Courses." This candid, irreverent, yet informative booklet was sold for ten cents at a campus bookshop. The guide, rating all professors, sold 515 copies in very short order.

The following are some sample ratings: Ernest Orlando Lawrence: "Prefers cyclotrons to lectures." Ronald L. Olson (methodical, oldtime anthropologist): "Interesting material, old jokes, detailed memory examinations." I. B. Cross (economics IA): "Grandstand lecturer; lots of talk but facts creep in."

This report apparently seems to have made a hit with the students for now plans are being drawn up for the publication of a better and bigger "Guide to Courses." According to reports from that institution, the faculty members do not object to this rating process. Says German Professor Franz Schneider, "Such student-controlled criticism might help the teaching staff considerably." This attitude is commendable on the part of Professor Schneider. He should get a "top" rating in the next edition, unless we miss our guess!

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

GERMANY: 1914 AND 1939 HOW does the Germany of 1939 compare in strength with the Germany of 1914? An answer to this question is sought in the Trade and Engineering Supplement of The Times of London. Despite the natural tendency of an enemy journal to take an unfavorable view, the comparisons made in the supplement carry considerable weight.

The Germany of 1914, together with its ally, Austria-Hungary, had 103,000,000 inhabitants, as against a present 86,000,000 for Greater Germany (including Czechoslovakia), a disparity of over 17 per cent. The absence of an enemy on the Russia frontier. Considerable supplies of raw materials that were then within the boundaries of the two empires are now held by neighboring neutral nations. Although still largely available, they cannot now be paid for with German marks or Austrian crowns, but require German exports or foreign money, a requirement which, under present circumstances, raises serious problems for Germany.

As for raw materials, Greater Germany, even without Bohemia-Moravia, turns out 30 per cent more coal, more than twice as much lignite, 80 per cent more iron and double the amount of steel produced in 1913. In coal she is self-sufficient, but even before hostilities began she was importing 68 per cent of the iron ore she used—a deficit that will doubtless be greatly increased by wartime needs. In certain commodities, such as rubber, textile materials and petroleum, she has developed a considerable synthetic industry, but in none has anything approached self-sufficiency. The costly processes at present involved represent an undoubted drain on her resources.

Financial resources today are a much inferior. The transportation system is in notoriously poor condition. The general economic organization is, of course, more highly developed, but against this must be set the fact that the demands that were being made on it even before September far more nearly approached its limits than was the case before war began in 1914. Prior to September there was already a labor shortage—a difficulty that did not appear until some time after the beginning of the last war.

That all these lacks will be decisive in a short war is improbable. That they will be determining in a long one cannot be said with certainty. But all the evidence available goes to suggest that Germany has entered the present struggle less well equipped for a protracted contest than 25 years ago. —The New York Times.

'BACK ON EASY STREET?'

Stewart Says Hull Faces Problem of Argentina In Making Trade-Pacts With Latin Americas

Argentina is the one western hemispherical country which makes complete Pan-American solidarity difficult. The Argentines and the rest of the Latin-Americans are middling harmonious, but said Argentines by no means are in 100 per cent harmony with us of the U. S. A. We, on the opposite hand, are in at least 99 per cent harmony with all the Latin Americas except Argentina.

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

As to the Pan-American, it's a policy which has received a wonderful fillip from present European conditions. All the new world republics were in perfect agreement, at the recent conference in Panama City, upon the desirability of a compact to compel the old world nations to do their fighting at a long distance from our pair of continents and adjacent islands.

It also was the universal judgment of the Panama delegates that now is the time for all of us new worldlings to get together in a commercial way. Argentina said so, too, as enthusiastically as anybody.

But here's how Argentina differs from the rest of the southern and insular Americas: The others all produce plenty of stuff that we Yankees need. Brazil, for instance, has coffee, tropical woods and a potential supply of rubber. Bolivia has tin. Chile has nitrates and various metals that are in demand here. The northerly hot weather republics offer equatorial fruits that don't thrive in our climate. And we have manufactured goods that they require. We can swap them to our mutual advantage.

Argentina also wants our manufactured articles. Hitherto it bought such supplies mainly in Europe, but the war has cut off that source. But what have the Argentines got to pay us off in? Practically nothing that we have not a super-abundance of already. The same kind of crops that we raise... plus meats and hides, which we likewise have lots of.

Trade Pact Trouble So when Secretary Hull undertakes a trade-pact between the United States and Brazil or Chile et al., it's easy enough to arrange.

But now the state department is trying to fix up a dicker with Argentina. The Argentines are perfectly ready to take our manufactures and our manufacturers welcome the opening of the Argentine market. Our farmers and stockmen are the folks who emit a terrific howl at the idea of admitting Argentine wheat, corn, flax, wool and meat at a time when we have such an over-supply of this same stuff that Uncle Sam is paying them to curtail their production.

The negotiation, accordingly, is tied up in a bow-knot. How it's going to be untangled is a problem.

Yet the Argentines will feel that they have been discriminated against if they don't get a treaty, like the others. And it will be bad Pan-American business all around if we antagonize as important a fraction of it as the Argentine republic.

TUNING IN with D. Mac Showers

JUNE WALKER and John Boles will be featured on the dramatic end of the Star Theater tonight at 8 o'clock over CBS in an adaptation of Lynn Riggs' "Green Grow the Lilacs."

BILLY ROSE, the mighty midget of modern entertainment, the mad madman of stupendous spectacles, (so they call him) will put his reputation at stake by facing Fred Allen and the Mighty Allen art players before the NBC-Red network microphone tonight at 8 o'clock.

FRED WILL TRY to induce Rose to move the aquacade into NBC's giant auditorium studio for the winter season. He wants to drop the Mighty Allen art players into the pool.

Miss Walker will recreate the role, "Laurie Williams," that she originated when the play opened on Broadway in January, 1931, under the auspices of the Theater Guild.

To make the evening of particular importance, Fred will head the demand of listeners, particularly the nation's radio editors, by restoring his discarded newscasts as the opening feature of the variety hour.

The music-comedy hour will be rounded out by the singing of the Merry Maes and Wynn Murray, the music of Peter Van Steeden and his Troubadours and the mirth of Portland Hoffa, Harry von Zell and the Allen art players.

IN THE HOLLYWOOD portion of the Star Theater, Ken Murray will present Tom Mix as his special guest while Frances Langford, Kenny Baker and David Broekman's orchestra handle the music.

ONCE AGAIN HE will satirize the headlines of the day, withering the names of the great with his biting wit. Allen dropped the newscasts at the beginning of the current season because the world affairs put such stringent restrictions on subjects that lended themselves to satirical treatment.

EDNA BEST will co-star with Herbert Marshall tonight in "There's Always Juliette" on the Hollywood Playhouse drama hour over the NBC-Red network at 7 o'clock. They did this drama together on the stage seven years ago.

KENNY BAKER, singing star of the show, will next be seen on the screen in the Marx brothers "At the Circus." The picture is to be previewed in Hollywood this week.

ROSE, who is about half the size of Allen, will be put through the mill to tell about his climb to fame with such spectacles as "Jumbo" the circus within a theater; the Cleveland Aquacade, the FL Worth exposition, and finally, his greatest triumph, the New York world's fair aquacade.

PAUL WHITEMAN will be heard in his weekly program over CBS stations at 7:30 tonight. Joan Edwards and Clark Dennis are vocalists on the show with the Modernaires.

ON TONIGHT'S show he will sing Grieg's "I Love Thee" and "Day In, Day Out."

KAY KYSER'S "College of Musical Knowledge" program tonight will originate on a broadcasting set at the RKO studios built especially for Kay's new picture.

AROUND THE TOWN

100 PER CENT AMERICANS AND SUCH We're at the place again where decent-minded folk shudder at the use of "Americanism." The world seems to be a kind of back-wash for reaction, representing the worst of the DAR, the American Legion, or William Randolph Hearst.

Yet it needn't, I think. That's the wrong approach. Progressives today can use the word "American" with pride and point at "un-American" activities with scorn.

Real Americans can point out that this has been a consistent haven for the oppressed of Europe. That the English slogan "Labor is Scarce, Land Plentiful" brought thousands here who were starving across the Atlantic because the reverse was the case there.

Liberals can point out that the revolutionary army was a people's army, and when the Daughters of the American Revolution refuse equality of opportunity to the Marion Andersons, we can open our histories, the true ones.

We can show that the Negroes played a tremendous part in that fight to lick the redcoats. We can say, truthfully, that a negro was the first patriot to be killed in the American Revolution.

We can assure the Jew-baiters that a revolutionary Jew left $300,000—his entire fortune—for freeing the slaves. And those were in the days when George Washington was accepting the institution as an irrevocable part of life.

The historian is an important man today. Perhaps I'd better amend that sentence to read, "should be an important man today." Most of those I've studied under haven't been.

They haven't seen that their real function, if they have one, is to explain the true American tradition. Fascism perverts history to its own ways. Mussolini did, and Hitler is following his example. That is exactly the thing the American Liberty League and its ilk have done in America.

The historian needn't be a politician, but he can't help being political.

Unless indications are wrong, there'll be at least 800 at tonight's student forum. The meeting ought to be the most exciting this year.

Held Back! Joe Lash is the guy who held the American Youth Congress together last summer as the Coughlinites tried to split it through. He was in the foreground when the Coughlinites from Cleveland snouted, "Will all true Americans now leave." Fourteen of 1,400 walked out.

Jim Carey of the C. I. O. saved the day, though. Carey immediately countered with a shout, "Will all true democrats please be seated!" About 1,360 of us sat down.

Good Mable thinks Dick Malbaum's "Middletown Mural" is about the best thing he's done. It's a satire that some Iowans might not find too comfortable, I guess. Dick'll be here for about a month more for the production.

Addenda Baldwin Maxwell is probably the most shirtd man on the campus. He has some 60 of different shades and styles.

Marion Saunders, the literary agent, represents a good many European writers as well as the ones whose manuscripts she picked up here last week. She sold the continental rights for "Gone with the Wind."

Miss Saunders brought back with Red Skelton, comedian.

AMONG THE BEST For Wednesday 6:30—Burns and Allen, CBS. 7—Hollywood Playhouse, NBC-Red. 7:30—Avalon Time, NBC-Red. 8—Fred Allen, NBC-Red. 8—Texaco Star Theater, CBS. 9—Kay Kyser's musical class, NBC-Red. 10—Dance music, NBC, CBS.

Parade of Opinion-- (By Associated Collegiate Press)

POOLS—The first three months of a new school year should be joined into one month to be called "Football," for this is the season of the year when the gridiron sport rules supreme. Reigning supreme right along with it is the football pool—and collegians and non-collegians by the thousands are spending thousands every week in them. Editorial campaigns are beginning to appear in many college newspapers against these rackets, and we pass on to you the particularly timely advice from the Northwestern university Daily Northwestern: "Perhaps you've heard that it's pleasanter (and cheaper!) to learn by another's experience than by your own. Take the advice, then, of luckless students who in past years have dropped their hard-earned dollar in the football lotteries racket. You can't win. "The odds stacked against you are five to 25 times the odds conceded on the ticket. That's a tremendous profit for your bookie right there. But even should you hit the jackpot, the chances are excellent that you couldn't collect. Professional gamblers have a way of vanishing into the atmosphere when a 'sheep' happens to crack the odds. Send the tempters on their way!"

STALIN—Red Russia, long a subject of collegiate study and undergraduate bull-sessions, is no longer in good standing with the student body of the U. S. The deal with Hitler seems to have changed the opinion of the majority, and editorial writers in the college press warn that all nations should keep a close eye on the U.S.S.R. in the future. Here's how the West Virginia university Athenaeum puts it: "The alliance between Germany and Russia is merely one that benefits them at the moment. With objects attained they will start again the work of spreading their doctrines and vilifying each other. With borders side by side neither will be at ease, and will be fearful of the other's aspirations of domination."

Everywhere, as early as last spring, the songs were being sung: "Some Day My Prince Will Come," "Whistle While You Work," and especially "Heigh-ho! Heigh-ho! It's Off to Work We Go." Now they've dropped the first two from most repertoires, but the last is more popular than ever. Only thing they've changed the words a little. Now it's, "Heigh-ho! Heigh-ho! It's off to war we go."

City High Levels Sights On Conference Crown

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—College football, in the main, is pretty grim and serious big business. Just to prove it hasn't lost its sense of humor, here's 1939's first issue of the gridiron's "screwy news."

Yankees' Joe DiMaggio Voted American League's Best Player

CHICAGO, Oct. 24 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, whose big bat earned him the circuit's batting championship and helped propel the New York Yankees to a fourth straight world title, today was voted the most valuable player in the American league during the 1939 season.

Hy Booth Makes Longest Heave In Discus Event

The first part of the Dutton discus throw was completed yesterday and the second half will get under way this afternoon. The carrying over of the throw until today has been done to enable those who did not have a chance to compete yesterday to do so this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Little Hawks Show Spirit; Coach Happy

Set on grabbing the Mississippi Valley conference title, a rejuvenated City high grid squad is hard at work this week in preparation for Friday night's tussle with the tricky Davenport Blue Devils at Davenport.

Veteran Jimmy Foxx Gets Second Place; Bob Feller Third

By EARL HILLIGAN
The 24-year-old Yankee centerfielder, who this year won a trophy from the Sporting News, received a total of 280 out of a possible 336 points in balloting by a committee of the Baseball Writers association of America.

Javelin Throw Will Be Tomorrow

The annual all-university javelin throw will be staged tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the athletic field east of the stadium.

Paychek Vs. Vinciguerra

OMAHA, Oct. 24 (AP)—Promoter Max Clayton announced tonight Johnny Paychek, Des Moines heavyweight ranked No. 4 by the National Boxing commission, will meet Carl Vinciguerra, Omaha heavy, in a return bout here Nov. 10. It will be 10 rounds.

Boni Recites Screwiest Gridiron Stories of Early 1939 Season

By BILL BONI
As umpire, it was Crowley's job to watch for any such infractions. The game started and, about 10 minutes later, the two teams were right in front of the Columbia bench. A play was called and Crowley, peering at it, detected defensive holding.

He called the penalty — on Columbia — then turned and bowed to Lou Little.
Insult and Injury
Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State's pass-snatching end, was having a good time and Fred Dykes, half-pint Loyola back, a bad one in last Saturday night's game. Kavanaugh was catching passes all over the place and Dykes was being bounced all over the lot, end over end as often as not. Finally, after one of his catches, Kavanaugh came back, towered over Dykes, and said: "Say, buddy, if you don't quit flying through the air like that I'm going to intercept you first thing you know."

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—Full many a football rose is born to blush unseen until it is replanted in the pot garden, leading to the conclusion that quite often the college team makes the star instead of the star making the college team.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—The pro gridiron is a true melting pot for the college footballers who have the brains to take the post-graduate course. The New York Giants, for instance, represent 27 alma maters. Twenty-five schools unofficially are represented on the Chicago Bears, and other rosters of National league teams show a like geographical distribution.

Schools widely known for their grid performances furnish a goodly portion of the talent, but there is a liberal peppering of youths from such Latin and law plants as St. Anselm, Niagara, Albright, Mercer, Oklahoma Central Teachers, Whittier, Xavier, Howard and Elon. (What, no Slippery Rock!)

Many a pro player will tell you he would rather be tackled every day and twice on Sundays by some highly-publicized ex-college star than be felled once a month by an unsung, piano-legged Joe Doakes from some freshwater school that would have to pitch camp behind its own goal posts if it played one of the bigger teams.

They will try to tell you that size doesn't make much difference in football any more so long as a player has speed, but pro rosters indicate that is so much 88-proof hokey. Any man under 180 pounds is a comparative midget, and as for Davey O'Brien, he's a little boy lost in the woods.

O'Brien is a fine passer, a rugged, tough little football player. But he needs a fence around him when he starts throwing the ball with 225-pound forward walls rolling in on him. He's under a terrific handicap, which means that everything he does do is that much more for his credit.

Davey Has Trouble
Little Davey is spotting 15 pounds to the next lightest men in the league — Bob Swisher of the Chicago Bears and Eddie Miller of the Giants. Bill Patterson of the Bears weighs 167, and Ace Parker of the Brooklyn Dodgers weighs 168, but the rest of the backs carry at least 170 pounds, with many of them forgetting to count after 200.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP)—Northwestern's Wildcats continued today their emphasis on offensive tactics as they prepared for the Big Ten game with Illinois Saturday. Joe Lokanc has taken over the guard spot formerly held by Don Guritz who is out with a sprained ankle.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Coach Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler stepped up the practice routine today for Michigan's inter-sectional encounter here Saturday with Yale. New plays came out of the bag, indicating the Wolverines, if extended, plan to "shoot the works" against the Elis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 24 (AP)—Minnesota's football team began active preparation today for its battle Nov. 4 with Northwestern with Coach Bernie Bierman giving the varsity a long session of dummy scrimmage in the fieldhouse despite ideal weather outdoors.

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Coach Clark Shaughnessy overhauled his University of Chicago backfield today, demoting Bob Howard to the second team and giving his fullback spot to John Davenport. Howard Jampolis and Bob A. Miller are battling for the varsity quarterback post with Wasem at right half and Letts at left half.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 24 (AP)—Blocking was emphasized as the Indiana university football team began practice today for its champion New York Giants last Sunday he showed enough to convince the most skeptical that had he had a Pittsburgh or a Duke or a Minnesota line in front of him last fall he would have been hailed as a star of stars.

Which just shows that when you want an apple you go to the barrel of nice polished ones, when the best one of all might be tucked away in the corner of an old crate.

Schmitz Seen As Big Threat To Iowa Team

Coach Eddie Anderson, hoping to catch the Wisconsin Badgers before they take a rebound from their early season showings, gave his gridriders a long workout against Badger plays yesterday afternoon, and then sent them through a snappy signal drill.

The Iowa mentor, who scouted the Badgers last week, believes that they will probably hit their peak soon, and fears it may be next Saturday.

The Hawks have consequently put added emphasis on their workouts of late and have concentrated on defensive improvements in the line and on their backfield pass defense.

The weakness of Iowa's defense is clearly shown by the fact that two conference opponents have scored 56 points against them so far this year. Main trouble center for the Old Gold eleven Saturday will be Bill Schmitz, veteran halfback who made plenty of agony for Iowa last year. Schmitz was used but four minutes against Northwestern last week but had time enough to throw a touchdown pass of 45 yards for the Badgers' only score.

Jack McKinnon returned to the Hawk squad yesterday afternoon after being kept out nearly a week with a sprained ankle. McKinnon limited his workouts to merely jogging around the field and watching his mates work against Wisconsin plays.

The remaining members of the Iowa squad are in good physical condition and no one was spared in yesterday's practice. Jim Walker will probably return to the squad either today or tomorrow. His knee is responding to treatment slower than expected and he will undoubtedly be kept from much action Saturday, because another recurrence of the knee injury might keep him out of uniform for the remainder of the season.

Wally Bergstrom, who had never played football before he reported for practice last spring, will probably get the starting call in Walker's position. Bergstrom, although lacking experience, should be able to handle Walker's vacancy in good fashion until the injured Negro returns to the team.

The Hawkeyes have but two more home practices before they train for Milwaukee at 9:16 Friday morning. They will work out on the Marquette university field Friday afternoon and will remain in Milwaukee until 9:30 Saturday morning. They will take a special train to Madison, arriving in Badger headquarters at noon.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24 (AP)—Dissatisfied with the team's showing, manager Rhodes of the St. Louis Gunners released eight players and set out today to find reinforcements for the American pro football league game next Sunday with Columbus.

The Gunners were defeated by the Green Bay Packers, 31 to 0, in an exhibition game two weeks ago and lost last Sunday to the Los Angeles Bulldogs, 24 to 0, in a league encounter.

Rhodes, who hoped to land two backs, a tackle and an end, was dickering with Bill Hofer, star Notre Dame quarterback last season, and Tony Ippolito, a back from Purdue.

It has long been the habit hereabouts to point to Iowa's football schedule, moan loudly and then quaver. "We ain't got a chance. Look at all these tough games ahead."

The effect of this is obvious. The Big Ten schedules are looked upon as a plot specially designed to whip Iowa, a conclusion that can hardly be looked upon as actually justified.

To be sure, the remainder of Iowa's grid contests look tough, with Wisconsin, Purdue, Notre Dame, Minnesota and Northwestern coming on successive Saturdays. A suicide schedule, it is admitted, but suicide is what nine of the Big Ten schools commit every year.

The Hawkeye schedule, with five games remaining, is a rapid succession of tough games — a condition that may tire the Hawkeyes, but right now we might as well advance our present belief — that, except for the advantage of more reserve power to carry them along, opponents are going to be just as tired.

Starting with Wisconsin, we find the Badgers as victims of a defeat by Northwestern just a week before their game with Iowa. The Hawks, meanwhile, were idle. We will, however, overlook that seeming advantage on the Iowa side. The Badgers have not been up to their best at any time this season. They might, conceivably, rebound terrifically this week end, but, if the ordinary course of thinking is followed, the schedule favors Iowa here.

Following Wisconsin comes Purdue, a highly rated team for the second successive opponent, but here is where Purdue's schedule comes in for a mention. The Boilermakers will journey to the west coast this Saturday to meet Santa Clara. Their tilt with Iowa will be one of those games in which either team might be tired, bruised or even be at the peak. The Hawks may be in for a clawing this Saturday, but it shouldn't be any harder on them than a gallop through west coast pastures with Santa Clara's Bronchos will be on Purdue's three B's.

"That may be well and good, but after the Purdue game comes Notre Dame," it might be argued.

Notre Dame, incidentally, also has a rugged schedule. The Irish meet Army on the same Saturday Iowa takes on the Boilermakers, and while the Hawkeyes play Notre Dame there are other things happening on mid-west gridirons.

Chief of these other happenings, from an Iowa viewpoint, is Minnesota's scheduled struggle with Michigan. The Golden Gophers have no advantage here Nov. 18, not theoretically. The schedule should leave them just as tired as the Hawks will be.

While the Iowa-Minnesota game is in progress, more football history will be in the making. Northwestern, last Iowa opponent of 1939, will square off with Notre Dame to balance Iowa's tangle with the Gophers, a condition which leaves no one with an advantage in the Hawkeye-Wildcat squabble.

All this, of course, is a list of calculations on paper, having little to do with actual conditions, but it proves one thing. The ruggedness of a Hawkeye schedule is not a plot formulated in petty spite. It is nothing more than the ruthlessness of the Big Ten, a conference which, without favorites, metes out its worst punishment to the schools with the least reserves.

Will Stay In League
CINCINNATI, (AP)—Officials of the American Professional football league announced yesterday that the Louisville Tanks would continue membership.

S.A.E. Touchballers Down A.T.O., 13-6

S.A.E. and A.T.O. battled through an overtime period game with S.A.E. on the long end of a 13-6 score. The first period was scoreless as both teams failed to connect, with the long passes that were thrown. It wasn't until the last part of the second period that S.A.E. started to march down the gridiron with Ward Welman, Al Armbruster, and Chuck Van Camp leading the attack to make the score read 6-0. The scorer for the S.A.E. team was Welman as he ran the ball over from the 10 yard strip. S.A.E. failed to convert the extra point.

S.A.E. kicked off to A.T.O. and the latter team started its march to a touchdown. It was Herb Olson, Bud Franks and Dick Cram that were responsible for the passing to Pete Hanson for the only tally for the Alpha Taus. The touchdown pass was from Cram to Hanson.

The game ended with a 6-6 deadlock and an overtime period was played. S.A.E. wasted no time scoring its final touchdown as Welman put his team in scoring position by intercepting a pass. It was a pass from Welman to Armbruster that accounted for the winning score. Again, S.A.E. threatened to score after Van Camp intercepted a pass but the rally was halted. The defensive play of Jacques Nixon was outstanding for the winners.

Delta Upsilon of class B swapped Phi Gamma Delta 33-0. Bob Blaylock was outstanding for the winners as he figured in every score. Four of the five D.U. touchdowns came on passes thrown by Blaylock.

The initial score came early in the game as Blaylock completed a long pass to Bob Pine who dodged his way over the goal line. The extra point was converted to make the score 7-0. Again Blaylock's accurate eye spotted a receiver in the end zone and the pass was promptly rifled into his waiting arms. The extra point was again converted to bring the score up to 14-0. Just before the half ended, a Blaylock to Duxbury combination clicked for another touchdown and the score was made 20-0. The try for the extra point was no good.

As the second half began, Blaylock promptly intercepted a pass at mid field and sprinted his way over the goal line for the fourth touchdown of the game. The extra point was not converted and the score stood at 26-0. With two minutes left to play, Blaylock completed another pass for a touchdown, this time to Bob Pine. The extra point was good and the game ended with the score at 33-0.

Parties Honor Isabelle Smith, Bride-To-Be

Mrs. M. McGovern, Daughter Entertain At Supper Tonight

Several local hostesses are entertaining at parties and showers this week feting Isabelle Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earle S. Smith, 613 E. Court street, who will marry Dr. Frank Robinson, Nov. 4 in Pico, Cal.

Tonight Mrs. M. J. McGovern and her daughter, Jayne, will be hostesses at a buffet supper in their home, Magowan and McLean street, at 6:30. Miss Smith will be the guest of honor. A bridal white color scheme will be carried out in the table decorations which will include tapers and chrysanthemums. Nine guests will share the courtesy.

Twenty guests were present last night at the miscellaneous shower which Mrs. L. G. Lawyer, 462 S. Linn street, gave in Miss Smith's honor. White and yellow chrysanthemums decorated the table, which was lighted by tapers of the same color.

Fall flowers were used in decorating the home of Mrs. R. A. Kuever, Melrose circle, Monday evening when she entertained at a buffet supper and shower for Miss Smith. Twenty three guests share the courtesy.

Brought From South in 1895, Christmas Apple Still Bears

Elizabeth Irish, 132 N. Dodge street, is shown here sitting beneath her famous, old Christmas apple tree, which stands south of her home at the corner of Dodge and Market streets. The chair in which Miss Irish is resting is over 100 years old and was brought to

Iowa City from Lexington, N. C., by her great-grandmother Stout. Apples from the tree pictured here are picked in the fall but are not edible as fruit until Christmas time when they are juicy and sweet. Many other old shrubs from North Carolina adorn the Irish yard.

The seed of a Christmas apple tree brought from North Carolina in 1895 by Mrs. Susanah Abigail Yarborough Irish and planted in the yard of the Irish home at Market and Dodge streets has grown to a tall tree with an interesting history.

Christmas apples are apples that are picked in the early fall and have all the appearance of edible fruit but must be allowed to mellow and ripen until Christmas time before they are fit to be eaten.

Mrs. Irish, wife of Gen. Charles W. Irish, was born in Lexington, N. C., in 1837 and with her parents came to Iowa to make her home when she was about 10 years old. In 1895 she returned to her native state to visit her grandfather's plantation and relatives.

Upon her return to Iowa City, Mrs. Irish brought with her a market basket of slips from shrubs that would lead a touch reminiscent of the old southern home to her northern home. Among these were several roots of sumac, quite a different variety from Iowa sumac, a handful of cotton seeds, a slip from a wild grapevine and six Christmas apples. The apples were stored away until the holiday season and were used to decorate the family's Christmas day table. The best of the apples was carefully saved until the next spring and one day Mrs. Irish decided to plant its seed in her yard.

Now 45 years old, the stately tree still bears the strange fruit which never attains its best flavor until Christmas. It is carefully tended by Elizabeth Irish now in memory of her mother.

Through these many years the sumac have flourished in large shrubs, the grapevine has spread and provided grapes for quantities of grape jelly to appear on the Christmas tables with the rosy apples. And the cotton seeds Mrs. Irish planted grew to bear great white balls of cotton, a novelty to many people who had never seen cotton growing in Iowa before. These plants from a southern home have been brought to Iowa and in growing have bridged the years in this state from the days of the covered wagons to today's modernization.

LONG DRESSES PICA BALL COMMITTEE REMINDS PARTY FANS

University women will wear long dresses to the Pica Ball Friday evening, the committee in charge of the dance re-announced last night in response to inquiries. University men will wear business suits to the party.

Tickets for this second all-university party are still available at the main desk of Iowa Union; a check-up last night revealed that more than 300 have been sold.

AMONG IOWA CITY PEOPLE

A.A.U.W. Unit Plans Meeting; Other Group To Study Buying

The drama study group of the American Association of University Women will meet in the home of Mrs. Charles Looney, 21 1/2 Woolf avenue, this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Looney will lead this afternoon's discussion on current plays. All A.A.U.W. members who are interested in this group are invited to attend.

Another of the A.A.U.W. groups, the social study club, will consider consumer problems this year.

Intelligent Consumers Believing that, since every woman is a consumer, it is important she be an intelligent consumer, the group will consider the question which faces any consumer — "How can I be certain that I am buying the best that is to be had with my dollar?"

The local group has been concerned with a study of labor problems for the last three years. It has investigated such matters as wages and hours of work, child labor, and employer-employee relationships, but this was only a small part of a nation-wide survey by college-educated women into the working conditions in their home communities.

"Fair Labor Standards" A guide for those engaged in this study is a new A.A.U.W. publication, "Fair Labor Standards—What Are They?" by Jean A. Flexner and Esther Cole Franklin, who not only present the pertinent labor problems of this country today, but also sketch in their historical background.

"University women no longer shy from the 'controversial question,'" commented Dr. Franklin, co-author, who is also a member of the A.A.U.W. headquarters staff. "Whereas once they devoted themselves to academic problems, they now are turning their trained attention to economic issues."

Growing Social Obligation "There is a growing sense of social obligation among those who have been blessed by educational opportunities. They feel the necessity of making up their minds on important public problems and of making their influence count."

"Industrial strife affects everybody. It is our belief that a real community contribution can be made by well-informed women who can approach these questions objectively. There has been too great a tendency in this country to leave labor questions entirely to those immediately concerned with one side or the other of a labor dispute."

Working Conditions The survey as suggested covers not only finding out about community industries and the conditions under which men and women work in them, but also how these standards affect family life and the health and safety of the workers. It takes up questions of wages in relation to current living costs; helping youth get jobs; just what collective bargaining means to the worker and to the employer; how far the problem of child labor has really been eradicated, and administration of state labor laws.

Interesting on this first anniversary of the fair labor standards act is the brief historical sketch given on that subject. The authors pointed out that 111 years ago, a bill to limit labor of children under 12 to 12 hours a day in English cotton mills brought the protest: "The bill actually encourages vice — it establishes idleness by Act of Parliament."

The 10-hour-day movement was active in England from 1830 to 1847. U. S. government employees got their 10-hour day by executive order of the president in 1840. The eight-hour day movement started right after the Civil war; the 40-hour week with the NRA codes in 1932.

Hockey Class To Make Trip

I. C. Club To Play Game at Chicago University Saturday

Nine members of the hockey officiating class of the women's physical education department will attend the mid-west umpiring conference to be held at the University of Chicago on Saturday, it was announced yesterday.

Students who will make the trip are Mildred Anderson, A3 of Las Vegas, N. Mex.; Betty Brown, A4 of Hutchinson, Kans.; Ina Copeland, A4 of Iowa City; Carol Dunger, A3 of Aurora, Ill.; Betty Embick, A3 of Hutchinson, Kan.; Jane Fink, A4 of Louisville, Ky.; Annabelle Hinkle, A3 of Valparaiso, Ind.; Neva Littlejohn, A4 of Sioux City, and Helen Poulsen of Iowa Falls.

In addition to the student officials, members of the Iowa City hockey club will make up a team to accompany the group to the conference. The local hockey team, which will play in an exhibition game on Saturday afternoon as a part of the conference program, is composed of graduate students, faculty members and townpeople.

The umpiring conference is a part of the laboratory work for the class in officiating, which is taught by Esther French. Accompanying the student group on the trip will be Prof. Lorraine Frost and Miss French, members of the women's physical education department. The local women will reside at International house located on the University of Chicago campus.

The student officials will attend group conferences, will watch demonstrations of umpiring by nationally rated officials and will discuss rules interpretations during the session.

Architect Horner To Address Acoustical Symposium Here

Vern Knudsen, Other Experts To Speak Here

Acoustical Problems Will Be Discussed At Meeting Nov. 3-4

Acoustical experts from the east, west and midwest will address a symposium on architectural acoustics, one of the headline features of the fall meeting of the Acoustical Society of America, when that organization meets for the first time on the Iowa campus Nov. 3 and 4.

The meeting will have double significance, for the Iowa Chapter of the American Institute of Architects will join in the session. The chapter will meet on the campus during the Nov. 3 week end.

George L. Horner, University of Iowa architect, discussing "Practical Application of Acoustical Correction in University Buildings," will be the only local speaker to appear.

Experts To Speak
But the roster of prominent experts who will speak includes Vern O. Knudsen, head of the physics department and dean of the graduate college at the University of California at Los Angeles; J. Woolson Brooks, prominent Des Moines architect; Hale J. Sabine of the Celotex corporation in Chicago; John S. Parkinson of the Johns-Manville research laboratories in Manville, N. J., and J. P. Maxfield and C. C. Potwin of New York's Electrical Research Products Inc.

Wallace Waterfall of the Celotex corporation, secretary of the Acoustical Society, will lead the discussion, which will convene at 2:15 p.m. Nov. 3 in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Panel members will include Amos B. Emery of Des Moines, F. V. Hunt of Harvard University, R. F. Norris of Norris Industries Inc., and Thorwald Thorson of Forest City.

Knudsen Prominent
Dean Knudsen, with a wide background of practical experience in west coast acoustical problems, consultant for radio stations and Hollywood sound studio engineers, will appear at the Iowa symposium to discuss such acoustical problems as the best shape of a room, the most advantageous distribution of absorptive materials, and will outline procedures in acoustical designing which have led to good and unsatisfactory results.

Horner, pointing out that the University of Iowa has long recognized the value of sound control and has dealt with its various divisions, will speak principally of the acoustical problems met in the construction of University theater.

Theater Procedure
He points out that after consulting acoustical experts, "a design was worked out whereby it was thought all acoustical treatment for addition qualities in the auditorium might be omitted. The design proved successful and no sound absorbing materials were required in the auditorium.

"Reducing the noise level was also considered in connection with rehearsal rooms; however, insufficient funds have prevented the carrying out of this correction 100 per cent.

Sound isolation, Horner writes in an abstract for the Iowa meeting, "was the most difficult in many ways to correct." It was corrected, he points out, "by the use of sound barriers. Most of these barriers are of structural materials, brick and tile. In ventilating ducts, duct lining was used and all air is handled at low velocities to reduce air noises."

Control of Noise
The most serious problem in the theater, the architect reports, was the control of noise generated by machinery. "Great care was used in mechanical design," and he writes, "and all motors were specified 'special quiet.' All machinery was mounted on rubber isolators."

Horner points out that various classrooms, lecture rooms and laboratories on the campus have been treated acoustically.

"It is obvious," he writes, "that a university is a fertile field for

Christian Century Editor To Be University Vespers Speaker

Dr. C. Morrison Will Appear Here Sunday Evening

Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, will be speaker for the next all-university vespers service Sunday at 8 p.m. in Macbride auditorium.

Prof. M. Willard Lampe, chairman of the senate board on vespers, announced yesterday.

"The Christian Century is the most widely read Protestant weekly, and is recognized as one of the most virile Christian journals in the English speaking world," Professor Lampe, head of the school of religion, commented in making the announcement.

Dr. Morrison is expected to present an analysis of a series of articles by outstanding religious leaders on the subject, "How My Mind Has Changed in the Last Decade."

The articles, currently appearing in the protestant periodical, probably reveal better than anything else in current journalism the present trends in religious thought and life, Professor Lampe said.

In addition, Dr. Morrison will add his own appraisal of the significance of religion in life today.

Dr. Morrison, onetime founder and editor of Christendom, a quarterly journal dealing with worldwide Christian thought, has also been closely identified with many contemporary religious movements, such as the recent conference in Europe and Asia for bringing the Christian churches closer together.

The service, which will not be broadcast, will be open to all persons.

acoustics, particularly its application, in fact too fertile. Too many classrooms and laboratories need sound control of some kind and insufficient funds usually hamper the completion of projected plans.

Brooks will discuss some difficulties experienced by architects in the selection and installation of acoustical materials, with suggestions for their avoidance or remedy.

Auditorium Acoustics
Maxfield, one of the men who worked on the acoustical problems of the General Motors building at the New York world's fair, will present, with Potwin, a study of the control of auditorium acoustics by the correlation of the internal geometry with the amount and placement of absorbing materials.

Sabine will describe and explain a number of typical examples of cases in which acoustical materials, installed for the purpose of quieting noise, produce results which either exceed or fall short of expectations.

Parkinson will deal with the increased use of acoustical materials for purposes of interior finish—adaptations to air-conditioning and improved lighting methods.

The symposium on acoustics is one of the prominent discussions to feature the two-day national meeting of the Acoustical society.

Dr. Magee To Be Inaugurated As President of Cornell College

Alfred M. Landon, Bishop J. R. Magee Will Be Speakers

MT. VERNON — Cornell college will on Friday morning inaugurate John B. Magee as eighth president of the 87 year old Iowa school.

Called one of Methodism's 10 best preachers, Dr. Magee assumed his Cornell duties Sept. 1 after seven years as pastor of First church, Seattle, Wash.

Alfred M. Landon, former governor of Kansas, will be the principal visiting speaker at the inauguration. Landon and Magee have for many years been associated as leaders in the Methodist church. Arlo A. Brown, president of Drew university, will deliver the charge to the new president. Bishop J. Ralph Magee, Des Moines, brother of John B. Magee, will also participate in the services.

In addition to the inaugural ceremony, John T. Flynn, economist-journalist, will lecture at 8 in the evening on "America Gambles with War." The program is open to the public.

Week end activities on the Cornell campus will continue on Saturday with the Homecoming Cornell-Grinnell football game at 2 p.m. and a presentation of the comedy "You Can't Take It With You" at 8:15 in the little theater of Armstrong hall. Dr. Georgia Harkness, only woman member of the American Theological society, will speak at 10:45 on Sunday at a special convocation service.

Winter To Attend Magee Inauguration

Dr. Charles A. Winter of the physiology department has announced that he will represent the University of Buffalo at the inauguration of John Benjamin Magee as president of Cornell college at Mt. Vernon Friday. A letter from S. P. Capen, chancellor of the eastern university, has notified him of his appointment.

Dean G. F. Kay To See Inaugural

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts will attend the inauguration of President John B. Magee of Cornell college at Mt. Vernon Friday. He will represent the Geological Society of America.

Dean Kay has an honorary doctor of science degree from Cornell.

27 Years Of Service

S. U. I. Began Work In Extension Service As Early as 1890

The dozen varied activities of the extension division in 1938-39 touched upon the lives of 3,089,750 persons.

This official estimate, based upon reports, was made Tuesday by Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, as the unit was well advanced on its 27th year of service.

Services of the division include educational research and service, visual instruction, conferences and institutes, radio broadcasting, and correspondence study.

The two branches involving the greatest number of persons, Director Mahan said, are radio broadcasting and visual education. At least 1,500,000 persons hear WSUI programs during a year and this number will be greatly increased if the proposed power boost is granted. Films and slides were seen by 1,565,250 persons last year.

Eight contests for high schools, junior colleges and community groups, ranging from music to play production, art and forensics, had about 10,000 persons as participants, the professor said. Another 10,000 attend the conferences and institutions for adults.

Director Mahan gave other figures as 2,000 enrolled in correspondence study, 500 in Saturday classes and 2,000 in radio child study. The university was one of the first of the American state institutions to enter extension work. As early as 1890 courses of lectures were started. The extension division was organized in 1913 and Professor Mahan has been director since 1934. Twenty-four persons are on the present staff.

WSUI To Feature Meardon Tunes

Bill Meardon and his orchestra will present a half-hour program of popular dance music over WSUI this afternoon at 4:45. The program will include "Baby Me," "The Last Two Weeks in July," "In an Eighteenth Century Drawing Room," "I Poured My Heart Into a Song," "My Little Girl," "What's New," "Always" and "At Least You Could Say Hello."

Tomorrow night Sessions, who helped found the organization which developed into the Y.C.A.W., will speak to the local chapter of the group at a 7:30 meeting in room 221-A Schaeffer hall. Sessions is known as a lecturer and writer for labor as well as literary magazines.

Engineering Article by Dean Dawson Warns Against Defective Plumbing

Dean F. M. Dawson of the college of engineering is a co-author of an article "Continuous Digestion of Mixtures and Sludges from Domestic Sewages and Packing-house Wastes" which appears in the current issue of the Sewage Works Journal, official publication of the Sewages Works association.

The article was written after experimental studies which Dean Dawson carried on with Prof. O. J. Knechtges and Prof. M. Starr Nichols of the University of Wisconsin in their hydraulics and sanitary engineering department.

Dean Dawson is also the author of an article, "Plumbing Free From Pollution," in the current issue of the Plumbing and Heating Contractor, publication of the Master Plumbers' association of Montreal and vicinity.

Dean Dawson points out that the drinking fountain is a fixture which should receive considerable attention from school authorities because it is possible for the vacuum in the water pipes to cause the drain waters to be siphoned back into the water pipes through a leak and be carried back up as drinking water. This, of course, would carry much disease.

In school laboratories many dangerous types of submerged-inlet fixtures may exist, Dean Dawson also states, citing as an example the 40 cases of undulant

School Journal To Go on Sale

First of Six Issues Offered to Students At Reduced Price

The first issue of the "Journal of Business," official publication of the college of commerce, goes on sale this morning in the corridors of University hall.

This is the first of six issues which will appear during the academic year. Subscription price to students has been reduced to 75 cents.

The "Journal" subscription campaign will continue throughout the week under the direction of William F. Bimson, editor, and H. William Rienow, business manager.

Dean Chester A. Phillips of the college of commerce, writes the opening article on "Inflation."

Prof. Paul R. Olson of the foreign trade department discusses "Neutrality and Foreign Trade Problems," giving the advantages and disadvantages of a neutral stand in the present war by the United States. The article further explains shifts in trade routes and changes in the types of imports and exports in world trade.

"Financial Structure of Iowa Banks from 1917 to 1937" is the title of the manuscript written by Prof. Lloyd G. Mitten of Manchester college.

Howard Gordon, an advertising writer for 15 years, contributes an informal article, "Practical Copywriting."

Prof. Walter L. Daykin of the college of commerce offers the latest developments along the labor front with his article "Back Pay Awards under the Wagner Act." Recent labor legislations along with decisions of the National Labor Relations board and the set-backs given it by the United States supreme court are discussed in the same article.

All articles appearing in the "Journal of Business" are written exclusively for it. It is published under the sponsorship of the Bureau of Business Research, Prof. Sidney L. Miller, director.

United Air Lines To Give Full Tuition For Best Papers

Four United Air Lines scholarships are being offered as awards to college men, who submit the best 3,500-word paper on some technical or non-technical aeronautical subject, it has been announced by the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Oakland, Cal.

The scholarships are being sponsored by the United Air Lines transport corporation for college men who have determined on aviation as a vocation. The awards, amounting to a tuition value of $11,500, consist of one nonflying course, plus 10 hours instrument flight training in Link trainer and 20 hours of dual and solo flight instruction.

The candidates for the awards must be undergraduate students in good standing and in regular attendance at some recognized university, college or junior college in the United States.

Papers must be submitted to the Boeing School of Aeronautics not later than midnight, March 11, 1940.

It Takes Six Traits to Make An Artist

Successful Artists Usually Come From Long Line of Craftsmen

Should you be in desert country and remark that it is the most god-forsaken country you've ever seen, chances are you're no artist. You, no doubt, missed the pre-dawn colorings, the colorful haze, the purple sage and the sunrise which Artist Thomas Benton describes as the most beautiful thing he ever witnessed.

Your reactions might disclose whether or not you have a high degree of perceptual facility—one of six traits of the artist-personality outlined in a new publication, "Studies in the Psychology of Art," a special number of the current Psychological Monographs of the American Psychological Association. 11 studies are included representing the work of Prof. Norman C. Meier of the psychology department and six of his former assistants. The volume is the third report, others having appeared in 1933 and 1936.

Schools Cooperate
Cooperation of public schools of Iowa City, Des Moines, Nashville, Tenn., St. Louis, Mo., Milwaukee Wis. and other cities have made these investigations possible, according to Professor Meier. They also had the cooperation of 40 well-known artists, thousands of children and adults, as subjects, and art schools all over the country.

In his final summary of special

Art Psychologist

ability in art, Professor Meier observes that successful artists usually come from a long line of craftsmen. The line traced back through generations may have included occupational interests such as woodcarving, diamond cutting, jewelry making—but all of a craftsman nature.

Marshalling evidence from all sources accumulating through the 10-year period, support is given the thesis that special ability is neither a result of nature or nurture alone, but rather a result of development made easy by stock inheritance, and that this inheritance tends to promote trait formations which in turn facilitate acquisition of skills and work habits needed in art.

The accessory traits of general intelligence, perceptual facility, general energy output, creative imagination and aesthetic judgment are all interlinked and are conditioned in their development by the work habits which in turn are more or less facilitated by the craftsman manner. The craftsman attitude of work, proposes Professor Meier, is more referable to stock inheritance than to any other possibility and is hence basic and indispensable to the artist-type.

One of the supporting bases for this position is an incidental finding of the study by W. McCloy, now instructor at the University of Wisconsin, that creative imagination is not directly correlated with age or training. By use of an apparatus making it possible for anyone without training to compose pictures in full color and infinite variation, compositions were obtained in some instances by children as young as nine years which were objectively ranked along with those made by mature individuals with considerable art training. Another study by Ellen Cahalan brought the finding that a person's aesthetic judgment is fairly consistent over a period of time, indicating that aesthetic qualities, once understood, determine subsequent judgments and hence are not dependent upon emotional and uncertain reactions.

Aesthetic Sense
Two studies disclosed that a relatively small proportion of the population even including art students sense the finer aesthetic qualities to be found in paintings by creative artists. The suggestion is offered that art education emphasizes two-dimensional painting and elementary phases of design to such an extent that the student seldom achieves an understanding of basic unity and three-dimensional organization.

The study of Gilbert Brighthouse, now a professor at Occidental college, concludes that individuals disclose great differences in aesthetic maturity and hence in their ability to experience the full hedonic qualities present in paintings.

Other studies of the 11 explore the little-known aspects of creative imagination known as re-creative and re-constructive imagination.

The volume is the third and final report of a research program known as Genetic Studies in Art Capacity, sponsored by the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching with the funds of the Carnegie corporation, beginning in 1929.

80 Students In Competition For Rifle Unit

Approximately 80 men will be chosen from a group of 80 who have registered for final tryouts for admission to Pershing Rifles to be given Friday and Tuesday.

Ratings will be based on the following scale:

1. Tests over the school of the soldier, including facings and rest movements; to count 30 per cent.
 2. Marching movements forward, flank, to the rear, and including the halt, will count 30 per cent.
 3. Neatness of appearance and carriage of body will count 30 per cent.
 4. A general military knowledge will count 10 per cent. This will include such questions as "Who is the commander-in-chief of the American army and navy forces, the secretary of war, the founder of Pershing Rifles?"
- Uniforms, unless complete, will not be required for tryouts.

Career Workers in South Offered Aid by Julius Rosenwald Program; Applicants Must Be College Grads

The 1940 Julius Rosenwald fellowship program designed to aid Negroes and white southerners who wish to work on some problem distinctive to the south and who expect to make their careers in the south, was announced yesterday by Edwin R. Embree, Chicago, president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund.

Application forms have been sent to President Eugene A. Gilmore's office where they are available to candidates.

The fellowships are open to both men and women and are intended to provide opportunities for advanced study or special experience to individuals who have already given evidence of exceptional ability and who wish to prepare themselves further.

Candidates must have completed their general college course or their general professional course before making application or give evidence of maturity and preparation which may be regarded as the equivalent of a general education of at least collegiate standard.

While many of the candidates will probably contemplate advanced university work, the fellowships are open not only to scholars and scientists but to persons who are now in or who may plan to go into the fine arts, creative writing or journalism, education, agriculture, business or public service. Persons in law, medicine or the ministry can be considered only for advanced work beyond the initial professional degree.

The term of the fellowships will be one year, and renewals will be considered only in exceptional cases.

Raincoats A Problem

Temperatures Stay Near Normal; Rain Falls at Intervals

To wear a raincoat or not to wear a raincoat was the problem confronting Iowa Citizens yesterday as rain came down in short spurts with alternate clearing and clouding throughout the day. A total rainfall of .23 of an inch was recorded.

Temperatures were near the normal mark, as yesterday's high of 57 degrees was only three degrees below normal. The low of 41 was three above normal.

A year ago yesterday the range was wider, with a high of 59 degrees and a freezing low of 28.

Large Attendance Expected at Welfare Conference Saturday

King Palmer To Give Talk During Dinner

Welfare Problems Will Be Discussed At Afternoon Session

A large number of Iowa City residents and delegates from the surrounding territory are expected to attend a southeast district meeting of the social welfare conference in the river room of the Iowa Union Saturday, it was announced yesterday by Frances Wilson, executive secretary of the Social Service League.

King Palmer, Des Moines, chairman of the state board of social welfare, will be the guest speaker at a dinner to be held in connection with this meeting, Miss Wilson said. The subject of his speech will be on some phase of the work and problems facing social service in its different branches. The state board of social welfare, which consists of three members, Palmer, Mrs. Mary Hunke and H. C. Beard, has recently been placed in charge of four different branches of relief, old age assistance, children's service, aid to the blind and public assistance.

The dinner, scheduled for 5:45 p.m., will follow the afternoon meeting which is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. The afternoon session will consist of a discussion of various social problems. Prof. Agnes McCreery of the psychopathic hospital, Dr. Arthur Steindler, head of orthopedic surgery, and Mrs. Rose McClellan, superintendent of the Sunny Slope sanitarium at Ottumwa, will also be included on the speaking program.

"This meeting is being held for anyone who is interested with or interested in social welfare," Miss Wilson said.

More Prizes To Be Given Youngsters To Get Greater Recognition In Hallowe'en Party

There will be fewer disappointed kids in Iowa City after Hallowe'en this year, according to Eugene Trowbridge, director of the Iowa City recreational center and member of the Hallowe'en frolic committee.

The reason is that the committee in charge of the frolic has changed the method of awarding prizes for best costumes in each of the seven divisions, Trowbridge said.

In previous years, Trowbridge explained, a first, second and third prize has been awarded in each division. "Many children had worked hard on their costumes and didn't receive the recognition they deserved. Too many were badly disappointed.

"This year, however, there will be no first, second or thirds. Instead a total of 35 awards will be made for outstanding costumes without attempting to classify them," he said.

This will mean an average of five awards in each costume class, but Trowbridge went on to explain that the judges would not be held rigidly to this. "In some classes," he said, "there will be seven or eight costumes which deserve recognition, whereas others will have only a few."

The drama department of the Iowa City Woman's club will again handle the judging of costumes. The five judges will be appointed by Mrs. Thomas R. Reese, chairman of the award committee.

The seven classes are:

1. Best animal costume (one or more persons).
2. Best impersonation of an historical story book or theatrical character.
3. Best witch, jack o' lantern or similar Hallowe'en symbol.
4. Best hobo, pirate or scarecrow.
5. Best comic strip characterization or clown.
6. Best couple or group impersonation of famous characters taken from life or fiction.
7. Open class — best costume other than those specified above.

This year's program, after the parade from the business section to the old Iowa City high school gym, will be entirely different from previous years, Trowbridge announced. At present, plans are definite for a one-hour free movie to close the evening of Oct. 31 to the youthful Hallowe'en merry-makers.

Dr. Petersen Opens Medical Series Tonight

The first of a series of informal group discussions planned for the Association of Medical students will be held at 7:30 this evening in the river room of Iowa Union, president Frederick Loomis announced last night.

William J. Petersen of the history department will tell "Tall Tales of the Mississippi." Refreshments will be served.

The series of discussion meetings to be given in addition to the regular association meetings, is planned for a dual purpose.

1. To provide for the establishment of a more intimate relationship between students and the faculty.
2. To widen the scope of student interest.

Jury Selected For November Court Term

Judge H. D. Evans Will Preside Over Next Jury Session

Sixty-five jurymen for the November term of court were selected yesterday by members of the ex-officio jury commission after issuance of a court order by District Court Judge James P. Gaffney requesting the action.

Presiding judge at the next court term will be Harold D. Evans, according to the court schedule. Jury members for the November term of court are to report for duty Nov. 27 at 10 a.m.

Solon Man Knew Zane Grey

James Wilson and Author Found Mutual Interest in Ocean Fishing

"I met Zane Grey, talked with him for a while, and almost went fishing with him."

That's what James S. Wilson of Solon, an employee at the Nall Motor company in Iowa City, said yesterday after hearing of the death of the famous author.

"Before I was first introduced to him," Mr. Wilson continued, "the man I was with told me that I'd probably not like him."

He explained this situation, telling how Grey was very abrupt in his answers and always stood with his hands behind his back often refusing even to shake hands upon introduction.

Meets Author
Mr. Wilson met the author at a gathering of friends in California a few years ago. Everyone, of course, wanted to meet the man, but Wilson boasted, "I had the advantage over most of them."

"I had just returned from a hunting trip through the Kaibab and while there had had as my guide the same man who had guided Grey through the area when he was gathering material for 'The Rainbow Trail,'" Wilson explained.

(The Kaibab is an extensive forest area on the north side of the Grand canyon. It is very dense and guides are employed by hunters going through the region. Only 16 hunters are allowed in the entire region at any one time. The place is very hard to get to, according to Mr. Wilson, who said that his party had to go 200 miles from Flagstaff, Ariz., at 10 miles an hour.

Grey Interested
"But when Grey heard of my trip and heard that I had employed his favorite guide, he was interested and told me he wanted to talk with me some more," Wilson said.

"This way," he declared, "I was able to overcome Grey's usual way of avoiding people and did get to talk with him and went so far as to plan a fishing trip with him in the south Pacific off the coast of Southern California." But these plans fell through when other business intervened, he commented.

Mr. Wilson explained what he thought was the cause of Grey's abruptness to strangers. "There were so many persons wanting to meet him that he became bored with them and had acquired a feeling of wanting to avoid them."

Wilson told how he had met many other real-life characters of Grey's books while he was visiting on the west coast among the author's friends.

"I didn't really get well acquainted with him," Wilson concluded, "but you can say that I was on his boat and did almost go fishing with him."

The record total of 1,081,743 copies of standard tests was sold by the University of Iowa to schools in every state and in 12 foreign regions during the past fiscal year, Prof. Harry A. Greene, director of the bureau of educational research and service, has reported.

He said that orders were received from Canada, England, Argentina, France, Hawaii, Cuba, Panama Canal Zone, Philippines, Nova Scotia, Switzerland, British West Indies and Guam.

Mrs. E. Mason Has Shower For Nell Ellis

Bride-to-Be Feted By Twelve Guests At Party Tuesday

Honoring Nell Ellis, who will be married Nov. 8, Mrs. Edward P. Mason entertained at a tea and shower in her home, 818 N. Linn street, at 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

Twelve guests shared the courtesies. Miss Ellis, who is the daughter of Mrs. Sylvester E. Ellis, 109 S. Johnson street, will wed Robert J. Thiel of Cedar Rapids.

Local A. F. of L. Hospital Mixer To Be Tonight

University hospital employees will dance to the music of Dusty Keaton and his orchestra at a "get acquainted party" from 9 to 12 tonight in the Varsity ball room.

Sponsored by the official organization of American Federated State, County and Municipal Employees, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the dance will be open to members at an admission price of 35 cents.

Leslie Talbot, 523 S. Johnson street, and Violet George, 1001 Rider street, have been in charge of dance committees.

The dance is the first of a number of winter parties planned by the organization and climaxed in the spring by an annual banquet at which several state legislators are invited to speak. It has been promoted for the purpose of getting better acquainted with the organization, which is still fairly new.

Frank Kunel, 326 E. Fairchild, is president of the local organization.

Prof. Louis C. Zopf Relates Progress Of Pharmacy to Club

H. H. Gibbs was elected president of the Iowa City Kiwanis club for 1940 at the weekly luncheon meeting yesterday noon at the Jefferson hotel. He succeeds Prof. Frank Luther Mott of the school of journalism.

Gibbs, who served as vice-president the past year, will assume office on Jan. 1, 1940, along with the other officers elected by the club.

Dean Mason Ladd of the college of law was elected vice-president. E. B. Raymond regained the treasurer's post. Prof. Walter F. Loehwing of the botany department and Attorney William R. Hart were elected directors.

Pharmacy Week
National pharmacy week occupied the center of the stage in the after-luncheon program as Prof. Louis C. Zopf of the pharmacy college spoke on "Pharmaceutical Progress."

"The fifteenth annual observance of national pharmacy week," said Professor Zopf, "is not put on with the idea of selling you anything, but rather with the idea of showing you the problems and progress of the pharmacist."

He then traced the history of pharmacy back to 1500 B.C., to the days when medicine was judged on the basis of "the more putrid the odor, the better the effect." He told of Galen, the ancient Greek medical man and pharmacist, "who gave us the formula for cold cream which has been carried down to this day with practically no change."

Modern pharmaceutical research, according to the speaker, has made phenomenal progress since the days when sawdust and plain, ordinary dust would be found in powdered drugs to give them weight. Our present high standards, he pointed out, assure the public of purity as well as potency in drugs.

War Affects Prices
"The war," said Professor Zopf, "affected the drug business first of all. It is difficult now to get India's opium, China's stibarb and Germany's belladonna. The price of all the raw materials used in making drugs has shot up since the beginning of the war."

Guests at the meeting included Prof. Edward Bartow of the chemistry department and A. Danciger, of Tulsa, Okla.

Walker Will Speak Before Rotary Club On 'U. S. Navy'

Myron J. Walker, former mayor of Iowa City, will speak on "The United States Navy" at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club tomorrow noon at the Jefferson hotel. His talk will be given in connection with Navy day, Friday.

Walker is a former navy commander.

Judge Gaffney Decides $5,675 For Plaintiff

District Court Judge James P. Gaffney granted a $5,675.76 judgment yesterday to A. M. Castle and company in a suit against Paul Schmidt.

The court decided that it appeared the equities were with the plaintiff and he was therefore entitled to the judgment with interest and costs.

W. Herdlicka Found Guilty

J. Gaffney Suspends All But Three Days Of 6-Month Sentence

Walter Herdlicka was found guilty of contempt of court yesterday by District Court Judge James P. Gaffney and sentenced to six months in the county jail, but all but three days of the sentence was suspended.

Action against Herdlicka was brought by his former wife, Leila, from whom he was divorced in 1938. Stipulation in the divorce decree prohibited the defendant from molesting the plaintiff or from entering upon her premises. The court decided that Herdlicka had violated these rulings on several occasions.

Judge Gaffney ruled that after the defendant had served three days in jail, the balance of the sentence would be suspended during good behavior. Herdlicka must remain away from the plaintiff's home, Judge Gaffney declared, or the full sentence would be put into effect.

100 Merchants Hear Address By Ames Man

Hedrick Describes Credit Development To Local Group

L. E. Hedrick, secretary and treasurer of the Associated Credit Bureaus of Iowa and director of the Ames division, spoke before more than 100 local merchants at the annual dinner meeting of the Iowa City credit bureau last night in the Jefferson hotel.

Describing such an organization's history and development, Hedrick said, "The credit bureau grew out of a recognition by merchants that modern credit is combining the function of banking with the merchandising aspects of retailing."

Unanimous praise was extended Mrs. Ada N. Bryton, manager of the local credit office, for her efficient work over the past year.

The local bureau president, Chris Yetter, was in charge of the meeting.

Cadet Officers Will See Movies At Union Tonight

Movies of the Scottish Highlanders at the world's fair in New York and of the Panama canal will be shown before junior and senior advance course military students tonight at a rush meeting of the Cadet Officer's club in Iowa Union.

Several talks on the ROTC will also be given in the conference room, where the meeting will open at 8 o'clock. Uniforms will be worn.

James Jones, A3 of Iowa City, is president of the Cadet Officer's club.

Hook To Open Group Meeting

Osteopaths Will Hear Dr. Jordan Discuss Health Plans Today

Dr. Holcomb Jordan, vice-president of the Iowa Society of Osteopathic Physicians will speak on "Public Health Programs" at the first district meeting of the society which will have its formal opening this morning at 10 o'clock in the Jefferson hotel.

After the opening of the meeting at which surgeons and physicians from 14 counties of eastern Iowa are expected to attend, Dr. Rolla Hook, president of the Iowa Society, will speak on "Administrative Affairs."

Dr. W. A. McVane, Dyersville, and Dr. E. C. Andrews, from the general hospital and arthritis sanitarium of Ottumwa, Ill., are also included on the speaking program.

An omelette made from one ostrich egg would feed six people. He was sent here from Des Moines.

$500 Promised As Solicitors Begin Drive

Mrs. H. S. Ivie Attains Unanimous Chest Subscription

The 1940 Community Chest goal of $17,850 was 2.8 per cent attained yesterday when solicitors braved a dark rainy morning and afternoon to collect more than $500 worth of subscriptions.

Jack J. Svamer, campaign director, said that the small amount did not represent the total of yesterday's achievements because not all divisional directors reported at the Jefferson hotel headquarters.

The drive, which was initiated by Monday night's "kickoff dinner," will last through Tuesday. The residential groups again showed signs of outdoing other divisions when Mrs. H. S. Ivie, a solicitor working under Mrs. Lloyd Howell, reported that she received 100 per cent subscriptions in her allotted territory.

W. L. Fagen Promoted By United Air Line

Company officials of the United Air Lines announced yesterday that Wallace L. Fagen, transport manager at the Iowa City airport, had been given a promotion to the dispatch department of the Chicago office, to become effective Nov. 1, and that no one has been appointed yet to fill the vacancy to be made by Fagen's transfer.

Fagen has been at the Iowa City airport for the past two months. He was sent here from Des Moines.
