Nature of Hearing, Hearing Defects To Take Spotlight at Meeting

Alley Cat Started It! Acoustical Society Plans Discussion Of Ear Researches

A number of years ago two research workers at Princeton, tremendously interested in the functions of the ear in normal hearing, embarked upon an experiment to investigate the electrical changes occurring in the ear during stimulation.

Their subject was a cat. They attached electrodes to the auditory nerve of the cat and rigged up an auditory apparatus in the next room. One of the experimenters whispered into the cat's ear.

The whisper was heard distinctly by his associate in the adjoining room.

Since that time, research on electrical changes in the ear as a guide to the nature of hearing and hearing defects has been a subject of intense study by psychologists and physiologists throughout the country.

Lurie Prominent One of the leaders in such research at the present time is Dr. M. H. Lurie, professor of otology at the Harvard medical school. Dr. Lurie will be the principal speaker at a symposium on hearing defects, one of the outstanding sessions of the fall meeting of the Acoustical Society of America, scheduled to meet on the Iowa campus for the first time next week end.

Other speakers who will share the symposium rostrum with Dr. Lurie are N. A. Watson of the University of California at Los Angeles, Scott N. Reger of the otology department at University hospital, H. C. Montgomery of the Bell Telephone Laboratories and Willis C. Beasley of the United States Public Health Service.

Lewis To Preside Prof. Don Lewis of the psychology department of the university, member of the executive council of the Acoustical Society, will preside at the session.

Professor Lewis' major field of research is human hearing. Members of the symposium panel will be Dr. Heinrich Kobrak of the department of surgery at the University of Chicago; Prof. L. A. Pennington of the psychology department at the University of Illinois, and Dr. John C. Steinberg of the Bell Laboratories. For the past six years, Dr. Lurie's work at Harvard has been carried on in collaboration with Dr. Hallowell Davis of the physiology department there. Experimentation has disclosed that it is (See HEARING, Page 6)

Iowa High Court Reverses Local District Action

DES MOINES, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Iowa supreme court today reversed a Johnson county district court refusal to review an Iowa City board of adjustment decision revoking Dr. F. J. Crow's permit to construct a building to be used for veterinary offices and a dog hospital. Dr. Crow claimed the board of adjustment denied him a permit after he had been given assurances by the city building inspector and an informal opinion by the city attorney that he could erect the building. Consequently, he said, he started construction, but later was denied a permit by the board of adjustment. The board said that "hospitals and sanitariums, as defined in the city ordinance, are not intended to include animals."

Lash Favors, Jack Sessions Opposes Arms Embargo Repeal

Two Points of View Aired at First 1939 Campus Forum

Two points of view on international questions were presented by speakers at the first of a series of campus forums in chemistry auditorium last night. Joe Lash, organizer of the American Student union, and Jack Sessions, Youth Committee Against War leader, were the speakers on the program and answered questions from the audience following their talks.

Siding almost completely with administration viewpoints, Lash nevertheless pointed out that "we can not say that Hitler alone made this war. We must also recognize that Chamberlain had a part in making this war possible." Lash asserted that the only hope for the future lies in the possibility of the peoples making the peace. Delineating American policy, Lash said, "because there is no justice or democracy in this war, America must keep completely clear of it."

A major part of the discussion during the forum centered around the arms embargo repeal, which Lash favors and Sessions opposes. In his remarks Sessions took a strongly anti-administration viewpoint and suggested isolation as an American policy.

Chairman of last night's forum was William Bartley, managing editor of the University News bulletin.

Germans Back Ribbentrop In Danzig Talk

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP)—Military leaders met at the chancellery today and observers wondered whether the conference was concerned with Germany's avowed "fight to the finish" against Britain and France. More than 20 generals and staff officers attended the meeting, which lasted several hours. Foreign circles said Adolf Hitler participated in at least part of the conference.

The German press with one voice echoed Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's fight speech at Danzig last night with such assertions as "there will be no stopping now."

The National Zeitung of Essen, close to Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, intimated once again that bombs may shower on the British Isles as Nazi patience over Britain's "inability to understand" apparently neared an end.

"The moment has come when the war desired by England must rain down upon the British Isle itself," National Zeitung said.

Ladd Backs Council DES MOINES, (AP)—District Judge Loy Ladd yesterday held the city council has authority to deny a class C beer permit to a building less than 300 feet from a church, denying an appeal by J. Asarch, grocer, from the city council's decision of refusal.

Senate Majorities Stand Firm On U. S. Neutrality Question

Law Makers' Quick Action Shows Strength

Day's Trend Brings Embargo Bill Issue Nearer Final Vote

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Big senate majorities bowed over one neutrality bill amendment after another today, disclosing a firm disposition on the part of the administration to stick to the bill as it now is and submit to the house in that form.

In rapid fire fashion, the senate rejected:

An amendment by Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) to abolish presidential discretion in making the provisions of the act effective when war break out in other lands. The proposal was beaten 61 to 26.

Kills Second Suggestion Another Johnson amendment to eliminate the bill's provision that congress as well as the president may make a determination that a state of war exists abroad, and invoke the neutrality law. The vote was 75 to 14.

These amendments were quickly disposed of, but the senate then ran into prolonged debate on a proposal by Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis.) that exports to belligerents and neutrals alike be limited to normal, peace-time quotas. He said this should be done to prevent "a distortion of American economy, a post war deflation and the exhaustion of natural resources." The proposal was beaten 67 to 22.

Congress Irked By Wallace

Secretary's Campaign For F.D.R.'s 3rd Term Considered Untimely

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Secretary Wallace's advocacy of a third term for President Roosevelt, coming at a time when the administration has asked adjournment of politics and non-partisan consideration of neutrality problems, irritated some republicans and democrats in congress today. Administration leaders generally refrained from public comment, but Senator Minton of Indiana, the democratic whip, observed that this was no time to discuss such matters—that there would be plenty of time to do so next year. And Senator Thomas (D-Utah), an administration supporter who heads the senate labor committee, observed:

"This is the very worst time to be talking about politics, while the senate is discussing a non-partisan neutrality measure. Therefore, I have nothing to say at the present time."

Wallace said in an interview at San Francisco that the war abroad had made plain the desirability of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. "Since the outbreak of the war in Europe," the agriculture secretary said in answer to a press conference question on his attitude toward a third term, "it has become apparent that the country needs the talents and training of Mr. Roosevelt not only in meeting problems of the country that arise out of the situation abroad, but in handling domestic problems."

Dies' Report Arouses Bitter House Debate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Dies committee stirred up a storm of controversy today by making public what it described as a "membership and mailing list" of the American League for Peace and Democracy which included the names of some 500 government employees. The committee previously had branded the league a "communist front organization."

The storm broke in the committee room, on the floor of the house of representatives and in the offices of federal agencies where those named are employed. Britain Sweeps Seas for German Raiders

Nation Bolsters Naval Position in Preparation for Winter Campaign

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—British naval forces, cast for a leading role in the near-at-hand winter campaign, hunted the seas tonight for elusive German submarines and surface raiders combining in new attacks on the nation's vital shipping.

In a heavy blow off Spain, German raiders were credited with sinking four merchant craft yesterday, strengthening the belief that Nazi submarines raiding the sea lanes had been augmented by the pocket battleship Deutschland and the Emden II, namesake for the famed World war "phantom cruiser."

These sinkings, in which Britain lost 17,671 tons of ships in a single day, bringing her losses thus far to 45 ships, also gave rise to speculation that an entire convoy had been attacked.

The news of these losses reached British leaders at about the same time the air ministry announced royal air force scouting expeditions had succeeded in reaching Berlin, Hamburg and Magdeburg in night works, 200 miles from the German coast.

The full extent of the day's shipping losses was not passed for publication until today when a cryptic admiralty statement said that three of the victims, the 4,413-ton Tafna, the 3,528-ton Ledbury and the 2,474-ton Menin Ridge had been "fired upon."

The British Press association said the fourth ship, the 7,256-ton Clan Chisolm, was sunk "presumably by a U-boat while on a homeward voyage to Britain."

Russia Refuses Recognition Of Britain's Contraband List

Union Nationales in Quebec Defeated In Election by Dominion Government

QUEBEC, Oct. 25 (Canadian Press)—The union nationale government of the province of Quebec, fighting for provincial autonomy, was defeated in a wartime election today by the liberals, the party of the Dominion government at Ottawa.

Results of balloting for 86 seats in the provincial legislature stood as follows at 8 p.m. (CST): Elected: Liberals 49, union nationale 8, independent 1; leading, liberals 13, union nationale 8, unreported 6, deferred 1. Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis had called the election for support in his contention that war expenditures of the dominion government were being made at the expense of relief and other problems in his province.

His supporters said the union nationale administration was Quebec's only safeguard against conscription.

The election result was a victory for the party of Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, under whose leadership Canada went to war at the side of Great Britain.

Soviet To Ask Compensation For All Losses

Claims New Action Violates Principles Of International Law

MOSCOW, Oct. 25 (AP)—Soviet Russia tonight refused to recognize validity of Britain's contraband regulations and informed the London government that she reserved the right to claim compensation for any losses incurred in enforcement of them.

In a note handed to British Ambassador Sir William Seeds by assistant commissar of foreign affairs Vladimir Potemkin, the Soviet government declared it considered the British contraband list a violation of the principles of international law.

The Russian note, replying to British notification of the contraband list and the establishment of contraband control ports, said: "The peoples commissariat of foreign affairs, on instructions of the government of the U.S.S.R., has the honor to state the following:

"The announcement by unilateral act of the British government list of goods proclaimed war contraband in the note of Sept. 6 violates the principles of international law which found their general expression in the international declaration of regulations of naval warfare of Feb. 26, 1909, gravely impairs the interests of neutral countries and destroys international trade.

"By including in its lists of contraband such articles and goods as fuel, paper, cotton, fodder for agricultural animals, footwear, clothing and materials for their manufacture and even all foodstuffs—bread, meat, butter, sugar and other foodstuffs—the British government in fact proclaims contraband basic articles of mass consumption and create the possibility of unlimited arbitrariness in classing all articles of popular consumption as war contraband."

British Source Calls Objection 'Fantastic'

LONDON, Oct. 26 (Thursday) (AP)—The British Press association quoted an unnamed London authority on international law today as saying Soviet Russia's objection to the British contraband list was "fantastic."

"The old time distinction of contraband as such articles as rifles and ammunition has gone by the board," he was quoted. "Any government can declare that anything of use to the enemy is contraband."

Betty Johnson Wins Approval For New Course in Flying

BETTY JOHNSON

Red Oak Junior Begins To Study Aeronautics Text

By BETTY GILLIAND Amelia's taking up flying. But the funny thing about it all is that this young woman, Betty Johnson, A3 of Red Oak, whom some have called "Amelia" since they learned of her interest in aviation, really has that for her middle name.

Last night as her phone rang and people came in with excited congratulations, Miss Johnson told how she decided to take the government-sponsored three-hour aviation class, where she was announced yesterday as having been accepted for training under the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Instructions from Washington, D. C., said that of the pilots allotted this university, two per cent (one person) could be women. All women who applied were eliminated in aptitude of physical exams—all, that is, except Miss Johnson.

She has a text book given her by her instructor to prove it, and she's very enthusiastic, although until the time of the first class meeting early this fall, she'd never thought of training to be a pilot.

A transfer student from the Red Oak Junior college in Red Oak where her father is city manager, the Currier hall resident works between classes as secretary to Prof. George R. Davies of the college of commerce.

Between her freshman and sophomore years she was out of college working as secretary to the president of the Packard Bowling association, and so developed her hobby, duck-pin bowling.

American Boat Still in Port At Murmansk

Hull Reports U. S. Will Establish Case On International Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Ambassador Laurence L. Steinhardt reported to the state department tonight that the foreign office at Moscow had assured him the American officers and crew of the City of Flint were safe aboard the vessel at Murmansk.

The state department made public Steinhardt's report that the crew was safe immediately upon its receipt here and indicated further details were expected within a short time.

The status of the crew had been the principal concern of authorities since the City of Flint was seized by a German raider.

German Crew Free The remainder of Steinhardt's bare report that the American crew was safe, however, dealt with information that the German prize crew had been released from internment and gave no further details on the Americans.

The ambassador relayed a Tass (Soviet news agency) dispatch from Murmansk as follows: "The vessel is remaining at Murmansk pending definite establishment of the nature of her cargo. Ambassador Steinhardt immediately telephoned an official of the foreign office and was informed that the German prize crew had been released from internment but were not being put back on board the City of Flint."

Machinery Damaged Steinhardt quoted the dispatch as saying the City of Flint had put into Murmansk because her machinery had been damaged.

At the same time, Secretary Hull told reporters that the government would follow the case through to its logical conclusion from the standpoint of international law and American rights.

He did not amplify this statement, saying he preferred to wait until all the facts were ascertained before announcing the principles of international law upon which the United States would base its case.

Expect Freighter Back

Officials previously had made clear that the United States expected to get the vessel back. The freighter, which is owned by the maritime commission and operated by the United States lines under charter, was seized by a German raider and sent into Kola bay, northern Russia, with a German prize crew aboard.

Secretary Hull asserted that what he wanted to hear most right now was news about the crew of 41 or 42 men.

He added that this government was relying on the Russian government to give full information and was not sending a representative directly to Murmansk, near where the ship is supposed to be.

Trunk Slayer Flees Asylum To See Mate

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 25 (AP)—Trunk murderer Winnie Ruth Judd, who engineered a clever ruse to flee the Arizona state hospital, left with Gov. Bob Jones tonight a promise to surrender after she sees her husband.

She added the condition, however, "that you promise me Dr. Saxe (Dr. Louis J. Saxe, hospital superintendent) will be forced to leave me alone."

The golden-haired, 34-year-old slayer of two youthful nurses explained in a letter to the governor that she planned the escape only to see her parents here and her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, patient in a Los Angeles veterans hospital.

She paid her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, a hurried, 15-minute visit, then vanished into the night. Her father is ill and bedfast.

Behind her she left a letter addressed to Governor Jones. Mrs. McKinnell who delivered it to the governor's office said the latter advised the governor Mrs. Judd would return to the hospital "when they quit persecuting me."

Leave Tarzan Out Of This!

DR. ROY L. ABBOT, professor of biology at Iowa State Teachers college, would not like to have us write this editorial. Dr. Abbot is the professo who not so long ago was challenged by a Minneapolis pastor to a debate on the question of evolution; Abbot fittingly declined the invitation.

In Cedar Falls Monday night this same pastor assailed the teaching of evolution, atheism and infidelity in state-supported schools.

"Soon they will be teaching Tarzan as history if this evolution hypothesis continues being taught," the minister is quoted as saying.

We don't know where our minister friend has been all these years. We suspect however, that he's not so ignorant of the situation in college towns as he implies. We imagine rather that he found himself in need of a sermon subject that would attract listeners and get response.

We're not one to deny that evolution is taught at the University of Iowa. We believe, on the contrary, that the course in evolution is one of the best on the campus.

Neither will we deny that there is included (not just one course, mind you) an entire school of religion.

It would do our alien minister friend a great deal of good, if he wants to be fair about it, to watch the operation of the churches in Iowa City, since he has included all the state institutions in his sweeping generalization about schools.

Since he apparently is not acquainted with the Iowa City situation, he would undoubtedly be surprised to find that this city's church youth organizations are among the most alive and vital in the state.

He would undoubtedly be surprised to learn that in Iowa City—in fact in most of the modern religious world—there is no friction whatsoever between science and religion.

He would be surprised to discover that some of the most sincere and hard-working church workers in Iowa City are members of the faculty or students in the science departments.

It would be extremely simple for him to observe the facts in operation by watching the work of the fine ministers and churches in a town like Iowa City.

Then, if our Minneapolis pastor friend were sincere, he would hesitate, we believe, to make such obviously unjust criticisms as he made in Cedar Falls Monday.

We Can Not Back Shipping To Belligerents

THE CAPTURE of an American vessel, The City of Flint, by the German navy and its internment by Russia is the cause of a diplomatic tangle that has German and Russian officials as worried as are the members of the United States maritime commission and state department officials.

There is only one answer, unless we've been misled by the administration: the United States is not responsible for the ship.

President Roosevelt has warned American shippers that our vessels were to travel in war zones only at their own risk. That a vessel owned by the maritime commission would be involved in such a violation is difficult to understand.

American ships that persist in running the dangers of carrying supplies, particularly contraband goods, to belligerent nations must continue to do so at their own risk. We do not believe the United States should isolate herself from Europe, but we insist that Germany or any other belligerent can not be blamed for interfering with such shipping activities.

It is more important that the United States avoid becoming involved in this embroilment than it is for such commerce to continue.

We Comment A Fellow Editor

IT IS WITH increasing interest that we have watched the work of a colleague in the Student Publications division of the University, Editor Edward McCloy, chief engineer on Frivol, "magazine of collegiate Iowa life," deserves commendation for the innovations he has made in the publication he heads.

The job is far from done, but Editor McCloy has felt that pulse beat of the campus, found it unresponsive to the stereotyped fashions in college humor magazines, and proceeded to revamp his publication along more modern lines. We believe that Frivol has found a job to do—and is doing it well.

McCloy has described his product aptly in calling it "a magazine of collegiate Iowa life." Shaping it along the lines of popular publications filled with light articles, with just enough of humor and cartoon saved from the old Frivol to give the new magazine spice, McCloy has done his job with such a degree of professional skill that we take this opportunity to say:

"You're doin' O.K., Ed!"

Even Football, Fellows!

IT'S GOING TOO far, we think, all this stuff about the new women's football teams.

It was all right when the weaker sex started to smoke, even though most of them are still a little self-conscious about it.

We grinned tolerantly when they started to wear pants.

Girls' softball we thought was a healthy, vigorous form of recreation for the lassies.

But now they're starting to play football, and golly, man, that's going too far.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

MR. BROWDER'S INDICTMENT Indicted by a Federal grand jury on the charge of using in 1937 and 1938 an American passport obtained on the basis of a false statement, Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in America, and the candidate of that party for President in 1936, has the same right as any other American citizen to the presumption of innocence until he has been found guilty.

The government's investigation into his case, however, was based on his own admission, before the Dies committee, that he had traveled abroad with an American passport under a false name. If convicted of the offense as charged, he would face maximum penalties of five years in prison and $2,000 fine on each count.

If a Communist has the same rights as any other American citizen to the protection of our laws, he is also subject to the same penalties for flouting those laws. Members of the Communist party have often been known deliberately to court arrest for the advertisement they felt that it brought to themselves and to their case. They could then raise the cry that they were in reality being persecuted for their opinions.

For this very reason some law-enforcing officials have been known to lean backward in dealing with Communists—to allow them, for example, to create with impunity disturbances for which others would be haled into court. This policy has encouraged some Communists to act as if they were exempt from the laws that control the common citizen.

There is only one point at issue in the present case, and that is whether Mr. Browder is guilty of the unlawful practices with which he is charged. The case should not be allowed to become obscured by the raising of any spurious issue of civil liberties.

Stewart Discovers That America Has A Great 'Peace Complex' - - Stronger Than Any U. S. Law

Representative John W. Flannagan of Virginia discussed over the radio a "peace complex" over the radio a few evenings ago. The lower congressional chamber will be starting its discussion of the neutrality modification issue shortly.

As Congressman Flannagan remarked, we can't help having our sympathies as between belligerents, but we evidently are dead against being actually drawn into their quarrel.

What we're afraid of is that we'll change our minds later.

Not a Peep Throughout the entire neutrality debate there hasn't been a warlike peep on Capitol Hill. There won't be either.

There has been a different opinion as to our arms embargo, but the difference has been between exponents of the opposing theories that an absolute embargo is the truest kind of neutrality and that modification will be more neutral than that is. Both groups seek passionately to be NEUTRAL.

It pays a senator or representative to be thus. He has his ear to the ground and knows how his home folk feel about it. Even if a few did experience a slight bellicose yearning they wouldn't dare to admit it.

The senate has been pro-modification by a considerably larger proportion than the house is likely to be.

Possibly that's because representatives are somewhat closer to their constituencies than senators are, and have a hunch that the popular demand is for the absolute embargo.

At any rate, it was obvious from the first that the senate was pro-modification by a big majority. The absolute embargo-ists have had hopes of victory in the lower house. I think they'll be disappointed, but they'll lose less overwhelmingly in the lower chamber.

But will we get into the current conflict?

Well, I sailed for Europe late in 1915. I'd been all over the United States and reckoned that I had a correct notion of American public sentiment. After a few months at the front, observing the crazy character of the struggle (Uncle Sam having continued still to keep out of it), I grew tired of the mud and bugs, and asked the new association I represented to transfer me to South America.

Landing in Buenos Aires I effected an alliance with La Nacion, the leading newspaper there.

La Nacion asked me to write an article, forecasting our developing Yankee policy. I wrote it, to the purport, "We by no means are so cuckoo as to break into this war."

Shortly afterward President Wilson was re-elected on the slogan, "He's kept the peace." I won lots of eclats for my perspicacity. Shortly later we were in.

After that experience, I've abandoned prophesy. I was legitimately fooled, though. Our American "complex" had completely readjusted itself during my absence from the country.

I think not. Subjugation by force merely means storing up trouble for later on. It always comes. Munich didn't succeed.

Nations will continue to fight wars, no matter how horrible, so long as there is no other way of getting what they want—or think they want.

William Penn saw that in the 18th century, but a good many of those who call themselves "isolationists" haven't seen it yet.

Would it be peace if America were to arm herself to the hilt, disclaim her interest in what happens to the rest of the world and try her way among international chaos?

Penn thought not, and I think he's right.

Peace is more fundamental than that. It means more than not fighting. That's why it's wrong to say that Spain today is at peace. That's why it's wrong to say that Spain today is at peace. There's been a temporary cessation of hostilities. No more.

Sammy Sloan, in a philosophical moment said it best, I think. "Milt Feisen had just returned from Spain, and the three of us were talking . . ."

"It's not peace they have over there," said Sammy. "They've just stopped fighting because one side beat the other down by force. . . But real peace can never come that way. . . Real peace comes from the heart, from the inside out, not the other way around."

I like to remember that in looking at Europe today. . . And in being certain that Sen. William E. Borah and his kind are as wrong today as they were in 1919 when they made the League of Nations a dirty political issue instead of a hopeful world vision. . .

The world will not find peace by shutting its eyes and ears, by refusing to recognize truth, by refusing to be militantly forceful in international affairs, by following national interest as an end in itself. . .

It would not be "peace" in gram, Glenn Miller will take over the responsibilities he vacates.

AROUND THE TOWN With MERLE MILLER

WORD WITHOUT MEANING Last night's forum proved several things. . . It showed mainly that the word "peace" needs a re-conditioning. . . It's probably been misused more than any other in the language.

Mr. Hitler, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Roosevelt and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh describe its virtues in glowing terms, but they don't mean the same thing. . .

I'm convinced now more than at any other time that we have to judge not by what people say but what they do.

Seems to me a good many "peace" organizations are wasting their time. . . They're still retreating to the horrors of war, still saying we shouldn't fight them because they're morally wrong. . . It's a case of unnecessary salesmanship.

By now nearly everyone agrees. . . Probably not since the days when cavemen beat each other over the head with clubs has anyone been over-fond of war as a way of settling disputes. . . Yet we're fighting the 4,000th major one in history right now.

The point is, how shall we define peace? . . . Was it "peace" that Neville Chamberlain achieved at Munich? . . . Is it "peace" when they prevent strikes in Washington state by passing an anti-picketing law?

I think not. . . Subjugation by force merely means storing up trouble for later on. . . It always comes. Munich didn't succeed.

THIS COLLEGIATE WORLD (By Associated Collegiate Press) ODDITIES IN THE NEWS—Here's a real believe-it-or-not-dug up by the Navy's crack football publicity department: "Two games were on Navy's schedule for 1893. Navy won the first game 28-0. Johnson of Navy starred in this game and was largely responsible for the victory. Soon thereafter he resigned from the Naval academy and went to Virginia. When Navy played Virginia for the second time that fall, Johnson was the mainstay of the Virginia team. Virginia, with Johnson, won the second game 12 to 0."

Even lipstick has at last found a reason for existence in the educational scheme of things. Eleanor Sims was writing a Michigan State college examination when her pen ran out of ink. What did she do? She callied reached into her purse, pulled out her lipstick, and finished her blue-book. And was her paper red!

Now that Kansas State college scientists have invented a true-false test that is scored by colors, we suppose a lot of students will be developing color-blindness!

The University of Iowa Dolphins will again highlight their annual show, "The Dolphin Follies of 1940" with a colorful trapeze act that will be performed from atop the fieldhouse pool on the eve-eraman caught the above four as they went through their daily drills in the fieldhouse gym. The first three photographs show Parry, wearing white trunks, and Sherman, wearing black, flying breath-taking acts. Larry Hayes and Lyle Feldman will provide plenty of comedy for the trapeze acts and promise an evening full of thrills—and spills. The Dol-

Hawkeyes Sharpen Their Talons for Badgers

Dr. Anderson Seeks Power In Last Drills

Scoring Will Depend On Kinnick's Passing, Speed of Backfield

Iowa's gridgers turned their attention toward improvements in their offensive yesterday afternoon as they romped through a long signal drill in almost summer weather.

Hoping to take full advantage of the accurate right arm of Nile Kinnick and the speed of Russ Busk, Bill Green, Ray Murphy, "Oops" Gilleard and the rest of his backs, Coach Eddie Anderson wants his offense down to perfection.

Kinnick, Murphy, Cousse, and Busk occupied the first team backfield yesterday and it is quite probable that this combination will start for the Hawkeyes against Wisconsin.

Cousse, who has been favoring an injured shoulder for the past two weeks, was back to his usual good form as he barked signals and ripped through the defensive dummies.

Anderson had his entire squad working on signals during nearly all the practice, spending the latter part of the afternoon working on defense against Wisconsin pass plays.

Iowa's line will be without the services of Big Jim Walker, giant negro tackle who is one of the stalwarts in the Hawks forward wall. Walker's knee has responded to treatment slower than was expected and it is doubtful whether he will return for practice this week.

Bill Green was forced from the field late in the practice. He was reported to have been suffering from a stomach disorder.

The Hawks will take their last workout on home soil this afternoon. They entrain for Milwaukee tomorrow morning at 9:16 and will take their last workout Friday afternoon in the Marquette university stadium.

Badgers Improve On Pass Defense

MADISON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Looking especially effective on pass defense, the University of Wisconsin Badgers went through a long drill today against a freshman football squad using Iowa plays. Coach Harry Stuhldreher was pleased with the snap and precision displayed during a session on blocking.

Wolverines Fear Yale's Passing

ANN ARBOR, Oct. 25 (AP)—Michigan's football team preparing for Yale, worked on pass defense today on a theory expounded by Coach Fritz Crisler, to wit:

"Yale will keep pitching passes at one spot, usually short, over-the-line passes, as a 'build-up' for a long shot."

Dave Strong, playing the role of Yale's Fred Burr, had trouble getting any success with passes.

Anderson had his entire squad working on signals during nearly all the practice, spending the latter part of the afternoon working on defense against Wisconsin pass plays.

Iowa's line will be without the services of Big Jim Walker, giant negro tackle who is one of the stalwarts in the Hawks forward wall. Walker's knee has responded to treatment slower than was expected and it is doubtful whether he will return for practice this week.

Bill Green was forced from the field late in the practice. He was reported to have been suffering from a stomach disorder.

The Hawks will take their last workout on home soil this afternoon. They entrain for Milwaukee tomorrow morning at 9:16 and will take their last workout Friday afternoon in the Marquette university stadium.

Hoosiers Get Defensive Drill

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 25 (AP)—Indiana university's football team tried out new defensive formations today as Coach Bo McMillin laid plans for stopping Ohio State's versatile backs at Columbus Nov. 4.

Maroons Scrimmage Against Freshmen

CHICAGO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Coach Clark Shaughnessy sent three Chicago varsity elevens through their heaviest scrimmage of the season against the freshmen today. The Maroons concentrated on offense, particularly running plays. Idle this week, Chicago plays at Virginia Nov. 4.

U-High Workouts Irk Brechler; Blues Favored Over W. Branch

U-High will probably be limited to the use of only four or five plays at West Branch Friday, if the team functions as it did last night.

The first string spent nearly an hour trying to run a few well-timed plays, but only in two or three tries did the Blues show any smoothness. Something seemed to go wrong on every play.

The errors alternated in a cycle of poor timing, uncertain ball-handling, and faulty blocking.

Coach Brechler finally gave up in disgust and let the reserves take the offensive with West Branch formations. The regulars gave a good account of themselves in the defensive department, however, for they stopped the seconds cold on each play.

U-High's hopes of having its big fullback, Owen Morgan, ready to start Friday's contest are fading rapidly. It seems that Morgan's injured ankle will not respond to treatment; thus weakening the rivermen's running attack for at least another week.

By comparative scores the Blues are favored to win the West Branch encounter tomorrow afternoon, but after taking into consideration the happenings of the past week, the northsiders are not much more than even money.

The absence of Morgan plus practices like last night have made Coach Brechler wonder whether his eleven will even be able to stay in second place for the remainder of the conference season.

Any doubt of this can easily be settled by a chain of events which reads something like this. Bradley tied Illinois, Indiana beat Illinois by one point, Iowa defeated Indiana by three points, leaving the Hawkeyes only four points ahead of Bradley.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1939 PAGE THREE

Little Hawks Try Plays

Among the things no one should do, but that everyone who knows better does, is try the comparative scores method of forecasting future grid games. It sounds simple and it looks like a perfect system for rating strength of teams—until you try it.

We don't know for sure that the system is all wrong, but it seems to have two major failings, the first, and most important being inaccuracy. The second, and incidental, failing of the system is its danger, for it leaves a trail of mental destruction in its wake.

That the system may work in its most destructive manner you must pick a home team as a starting point, follow the team's contests and all the contests in which opponents have engaged.

It seemed quite all right when we discovered Iowa to have a 17 point edge over Wisconsin. After all, the Hawkeyes outscored Indiana three points and the Hoosiers took the Badgers by 14, but there were some other figures to compute.

Any doubt of this can easily be settled by a chain of events which reads something like this. Bradley tied Illinois, Indiana beat Illinois by one point, Iowa defeated Indiana by three points, leaving the Hawkeyes only four points ahead of Bradley.

But, Bradley's overwhelming superiority over coast teams was rudely shattered by Southern California's 26-0 win over Illinois, one of the key teams in the previous figuring. And, this week, Southern Cal is rated but six points better than its next opponent, the Bears of California.

When the two sets of figures are brought together we find that they fail by approximately 50 points to agree. Under the first calculations Iowa would have the better of California by 36 points, but by starting out and making a slightly different circuit, the Hawkeyes would be extended to hold the Bears to a 15 point margin.

In the end we suffer little, but science has lost another advocate, through disillusionment. Two and

M. Kuhl Leads In Rotary Club Javelin Throw

Due to a good turn out of men for competition in the annual Dutton discus throw, completed yesterday, university men began the Iowa City Rotary club javelin throw which was officially scheduled to open this afternoon.

M. Kuhl, winner of the Dutton discus throw for this year is leading the many contestants in the javelin event with a throw of 146 feet 8 inches. Close behind in second standing is Hy Booth, doing 144 feet 6 inches and in third spot is Youel holding his distance of 143 feet 4 inches.

The Rotary javelin event will be continued this afternoon and possibly tomorrow afternoon. All university men are eligible to compete.

Kuhl Victorious In Discus Throw

The finals of the Dutton discus throw were completed yesterday afternoon as Milt Kuhl came through on his last toss to better the efforts of Hy Booth, who two days ago led the field with a fling of 121 feet 7 inches.

The winner, M. Kuhl, will be awarded the Dutton traveling trophy.

Wildcat Tickets Now Available

According to Charles Galier, ticket sales manager, there are 2,000 tickets available for the Iowa-Northwestern game Nov. 25. The tickets may be had at the ticket office in the fieldhouse.

Designated as the official student trip by university authorities, the last game of the season will be attended by the Iowa band and Scottish Highlanders drum and bagpipe unit.

A special train will carry the Iowa rooters to Chicago.

Cormack Plans New Attack For Friday's Tilt

Iowa City high invades Davenport Friday night in the climax game of the Mississippi Valley conference schedule, but Coach Herb Cormack apparently is not going to let his Hawkleet gridgers get roasted as they attempt to take the Blue Devils on foreign soil.

Last night, Cormack concentrated on fixing the new play assignments in the minds of his charges. A long scrimmage made up the entire practice session, as the Little Hawks learned a practically new system of offense.

Scouting will just be wasted time for the Davenport mentors, because the team which takes the field for Iowa City Friday will be practically the same in substance, but entirely changed in style.

Davenport has probably the most dangerous passing attack in the conference, completing seven out of 14 passes in the Mooseheart, Ill. tie last week.

This setup will undoubtedly give the Cormack backfield a busy evening as evidenced by the results of the Franklin game three weeks ago.

The Red and White will undoubtedly be prepared for such an offensive strategy, however, for their passing offense and defense, and the line play is far superior to that displayed in the Franklin game.

Ted Lewis and Bob Caywood, both of whom have been missing from practice all week, showed up at the drill last night. Both will probably be in shape for the Davenport clash, with Lewis' gashed lip healing rapidly and Caywood's sprained ankle and bad cold still in the uncertain stage.

Schmidt Works Bucks Indoors

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25 (AP)—Bowing to an all-day rain, Coach Francis A. Schmidt moved his Ohio State university backs off the turf today and sent them through formations under the protection of the stadium.

two may make four, but no football follower will believe it. For everyone that does you can find a Napoleon with cocked hat and lute sword marching through the corridors of state institutions.

MacPhail Favors Free-for-All Should Be Eight Play-Offs for League Titles, Says Larry

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—Never at loss for an idea, General Manager Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers came out today in favor of turning the world series into a free-for-all between the 16 big league clubs.

Specifically, the red-haired genius of Flatbush said he would suggest at the mid-winter meeting in Cincinnati that there be eight play-offs next October instead of the customary one, thus settling the question of supremacy between the National and American leagues with a vengeance.

Under the MacPhail plan the world series between the flag winning clubs would be played exactly as at present. Then there also would be a play-off between the second place teams, the third placers, and so on down to a fierce inter-league struggle between, say, the Phillies and the St. Louis Browns.

"Each game in the inter-league series would count equally," Larry proposes, "and the league winning the greater number of games would hold for one year a trophy emblematic of league supremacy."

"No fair-minded person questions the world series accomplishments of the Yankees," he added. "But the Yankees have also overwhelmed the American League. Their unbroken string of successes has created an impression in some quarters that the American is the stronger league. This does not necessarily follow. Many are convinced the National is the better-balanced league.

"I hope the National league will challenge the American league to such a series, the games to be played under the jurisdiction of the commission of baseball, with players participating in the net receipts."

The idea apparently was MacPhail's own brain child, for President Ford Frick of the National league said this was the first he had heard of it. In other words, it must not be assumed that this is a National league plot designed to take some of the curse off its pitiful showing in recent world series.

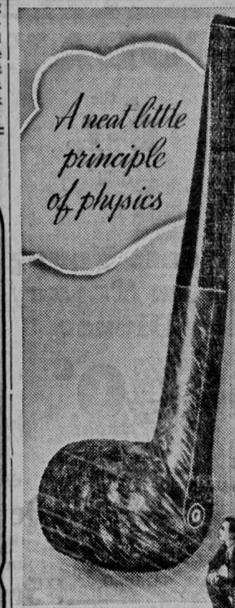

"I don't think I should comment before Larry proposes it at the meeting," said Frick. "But I don't think it sounds so silly. Theoretically, I should say it's a good idea. Off-hand, the only objection I foresee is that all the other series might detract from interest in the world series, and that some of the play-offs between clubs near the bottom might require league financing."

MacPhail had a pat answer for this one: "Why should it lessen interest in the world's championship?" he asked. "The series between the pennant winners can be played in only two cities and only a comparatively small number of fans can attend. In any event, profit is not the only yardstick with which to measure the value of such a series to baseball."

President Horace Stoneham of the Giants said it wasn't a bad idea, but that it needed to be toned down. He suggested that series between the first three or four clubs in each league would be ample for the purpose.

Cyclones Seek Punch AMES, (AP)—Iowa State's football team concentrated on offense drills yesterday as Coach Jim Yeager sought to develop snap and punch in the Cyclone attack before the homecoming game with Missouri here Saturday. Cyclone blocking showed considerable improvement. The coach said he would devote most of tomorrow and Friday to work on running interference, a weak spot in the Iowa State offense.

Refuses Comment CHICAGO, (AP)—William Harridge, president of the American league, last night withheld his opinion of the proposal of Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn general manager, that the world series be turned into a free-for-all between the 16 major league teams.

Prof. L. B. Higley Will Give First Baconian Lecture Tonight

To Tell Development In Treating Dental, Facial Deformities

Prof. L. B. Higley, head of the orthodontic department of the college of dentistry, will explain the recent developments in the treatment of dental and facial deformities in the first Baconian lecture of the year at 7:30 this evening in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Slides and movies will be used by Professor Higley, widely known in his field, to illustrate his talk.

"Many youngsters, who have facial or dental deformities are psychologically hampered by these defects in that they become backward, shy and even morose," remarked Professor Higley.

"Through new methods of study of the way a child grows, we have been able to institute preventive and corrective measures. In some cases this new knowledge has even made corrective work unnecessary."

Professor Higley added, "Some of the results that have been obtained because of the recent developments in treatment have been nothing less than amazing. Results have been procured in a comparatively short time, six weeks to two months."

Benton Exhibit Closes Sunday

Painting, Lithograph, Drawing Exhibit Will End This Week End

Sunday, Oct. 29, will be the last day to see the Thomas Benton exhibition of paintings, lithographs and drawings in the exhibition lounge of the university art building.

After that date the collection will be taken down to make way for the November show of paintings by Jean Charlot. The Benton exhibition has been one of the most popular in several seasons and has required a second printing of programs, it is reported.

Few know how Benton secures the feeling of space in his paintings. It is partially due to his revival of the old practice of making miniature sets in clay of the designs and studying the lighting effects.

Benton often models the figures and the landscape backgrounds in clay, paints them in naturalistic colors, and props them up in his studio as experimental models.

Charles Dalton Walked About 30,000 Miles in Past 10 Years

By EDWARD E. JEBOUSEK Do you know how far 30,000 miles is? It's once around the world with a good start on the second trip!

Charles Dalton, university mail carrier, knows how far it is and most of the distance has taken him up and down the stairs of the university buildings. The university post office is located behind the law building.

For the past 10 years, 6 a.m. has found Mr. Dalton at the local post office awaiting the mail truck. At 6:30 he begins his main route, at 7:10 his south route, and so on until 4 p.m. when he hangs his mail bag on the hook until the next day.

On a route which extends from the music building to the fieldhouse, there has to be some kind of system. Mr. Dalton has two systems — a government mail route and an exchange mail route. The government route consists of first class mail matter, picked up

A DAY'S WORK

6:10—Meet mail truck.
6:30—Main route.

10:20—Business office route.

at the Iowa City post office. This mail is delivered to all administration offices and in Old Capitol.

The exchange mail route consists of mail matter for the entire university. Mail from every department of the university is collected and distributed to its respective places. Although Mr. Dalton picks up the fieldhouse mail, a truck is employed to deliver the mail there.

These two systems are divided into two routes. Each route is carried twice daily. Mail for Old Capitol, the business office, the registrar's office and the Old Dental building requires four deliveries daily.

According to Mr. Dalton, the largest part of the mail comes from the extension division, the registrar's office and the administration department of Old Capitol.

Contrary to a government postman's rush season, Mr. Dalton becomes "snowed" under with mail at the beginning of each semester. Class cards and registration material comprise the bulk of the mail matter.

When the postman has some spare time he is occupied with wrapping library books which are sent to various parts of the state. The rest of his spare time is spent trying to find owners of improperly addressed mail.

Recently a letter was received at the post office addressed: "Benjamin Franklin, Old Capitol." The average person would be completely baffled by this situation. But Mr. Dalton calmly walked to Schaeffer hall and deposited the letter in the hands of Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh.

"We have received many letters addressed to Europe and South America," he stated, "and some of the rightful owners have been found."

Mr. Dalton has recently become the proud owner of a shiny leather mail bag — his third since entering the university service.

While talking about the effect of weather conditions upon the mail service, Mr. Dalton warned: "Do not wear leather heels during slippery or icy weather. I can truly recommend this."

A trip around his route always proves interesting to Mr. Dalton. He is the source of information to people searching for different buildings on the campus.

"I have been eyed with suspicion while carrying mail through the buildings," he said. "Some thought I was peddling undesirable literature over the campus. And after readily giving this information, Mr. Dalton slung his mail bag on his shoulder and started on his second 10 years of service for the university."

Lawyers Use Toys In Reconstructing Scene of Accident

Damage suit brought by Mrs. Freda S. McCarthy, asking for judgment of $20,250 against Charles Mandery and the Watson Brothers transportation company, went to the jury late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. McCarthy is administratrix of the estate of her husband, John McCarthy, who was killed in an auto-truck collision near Wilton Junction in 1938.

The case, which began Monday, was argued on the point of whether fault lay in the mechanical breakdown of a section of the undercarriage of the truck's trailer, or the possibility that Mr. McCarthy lost control of his car due to fatigue.

Lawyers for the defense tried to convince the jury to their point of view during the final arguments of the case by reconstructing the accident with toy cars. The plaintiff's attorney used a miniature of that section of the trailer figured in the mishap.

The plaintiff was represented by the law firm of Dutcher, Ries and Dutcher. Attorney Will J. Hayek and the firm of Miller, Huebner and Miller, of Des Moines, represented the defendant.

Jack Swaner Urges Support For 5 Groups

Expresses Feeling That $17,850 Target Will Be Surpassed

With Community Chest proceeds totaling $1,200 last night, Jack J. Swaner, campaign director, issued an appeal to all Iowa Citizens to give freely to the Chest during the present drive, which will last through Tuesday.

"Every dollar subscribed to the Chest fund is contributed by individuals," Swaner said, "who know that without the Chest Iowa City could not possibly be so fine a community in which to live. Try to picture in your mind Iowa City without the benefits your subscription affords."

Swaner reviewed the need of each of the five benefiting organizations as follows:

"The recreational center proves to be a place where youngsters can meet and enjoy supervised games, entertainment and work. The center keeps them off the streets and out of street gangs, avoiding in some cases a tendency towards juvenile delinquency. Children learn craft work and the use of power tools. A library is provided for reading enjoyment.

"The Social Service league supplies the many needs of the unfortunate that cannot be met through public funds from taxes. The organization helps to tide folks over until they can get jobs. When a needy person finds work outside the city, the league provides the moving costs. Medical attention is assured by the group.

"Many homes burn each year. Occasionally the Social Service league has been able to help families with bedding and clothing, replacing that lost in the fire. The league provides care for the family during the mother's illness.

"The Girl Scouts' organization contains 23 groups with a total of 400 girls under the guidance of specially trained persons. These girls learn to care for themselves physically, emotionally and mentally. Members enjoy hikes, swimming classes, parties, dramatics, craft work, international programs and camping.

"The Boy Scouts, consisting of 750 men and boys, learn primarily, through their 'good deed every day,' to be better citizens. Cooperation is stressed. They collect flowers each Memorial day and decorate the graves. During the Iowa City centennial celebration last summer, the Boy Scouts served 1,500 hours.

"The rest room, located in the city hall, was visited last year by 21,395 persons from more than 44 cities in Iowa. Young children may be left there while their mothers shop. Working girls may gather there during their noon hours. Committees may gain permission to hold meetings at the rest room."

Concluding his appeal Swaner said, "You can readily realize that the Community Chest drive is more than a matter of dollars. Nearly 200 busy persons are taking a great deal of time to canvass the city raising this fund. We respectfully ask you to give what you can. We sincerely believe you will."

From this year's quota of $17,850, potential allotments are: recreational center, $4,150; Social Service league, $4,850; Boy Scouts, $4,150; Girl Scouts, $2,550; rest rooms, $750; administration, $650, and campaign expense, $650.

Survey of 5 Townships Shows Few Pupils Immune to Disease

The protection against smallpox and diphtheria of 20 per cent of the school children of Madison, Penn. Clear Creek and West Lucas townships was announced in a survey presented at the monthly nursing advisory committee meeting of district No. 2 Tuesday at North Liberty, according to a statement yesterday by County Nurse Hilkea K. Thompson. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Briceland.

The following reports were made:

In Clear Creek township, district No. 3, 23 per cent of the school children have been protected against diphtheria and six per cent against smallpox; No. 4, 21 per cent against diphtheria and none against smallpox; in Madison, district No. 1, 50 per cent against both diseases; No. 3, none against diphtheria and 8 per cent against smallpox; No. 6, no preventive treatment was recorded and in No. 4, 22 per cent against diphtheria and none against smallpox.

In Penn township district No. 2, 9 per cent were protected against diphtheria and 45 per cent against smallpox; No. 3, 55 per cent against diphtheria and 65 per cent against smallpox; district No. 4, 14 per cent against diphtheria and 29 per cent against smallpox, and in No. 6, 27 per cent against diphtheria and none against smallpox.

In West Lucas township, 13 per cent of the children in district No. 1 have been protected against both diseases; No. 2, 20 per cent immunized against both diphtheria and smallpox, and in district No. 3, 4 per cent against each disease.

North Liberty reports show 50 per cent of the school children protected against diphtheria and 53 per cent against smallpox. Mrs. Carroll Colony, presenting a report of the present status of smallpox in Iowa, stressed the fact that although smallpox vaccination has been known for 140 years, Iowa had the "disgracefully high rate" of 1,170 known cases in 1938.

The interest of the nursing advisory committee in encouraging more parents to have their children vaccinated is in accordance to the state-wide campaign for smallpox immunization during October and November. Members of the committee are urging each family to see their own physician for immunization against smallpox and diphtheria.

Mrs. B. D. Cogan discussed diphtheria prevention. An account on activities in Washington county to reduce the maternal birth rate was presented by Mrs. E. L. Baker.

The next meeting of the nursing advisory committee, whose function it is to interpret the work of the county nurse to their own community and assist in calling attention to local conditions that need improvement, was set for Nov. 21 at Tiffin.

Talks on tuberculosis control and tuberculosis testing are to be given by Mrs. Frank Colony and Mrs. H. E. Briceland. Mrs. E. L. Baker will discuss the Christmas seal campaign.

Most of the vessels were held for a few days or a week for examination of papers or cargo and then released. Two, however, still are being detained by the British. These are the Sundance, of the South Atlantic S. S. company, which was detained in London Oct. 11; and the Oakman, of the Lykes Bros. S.S. company, detained on Oct. 13.
