

Scientific Realtor Gives Presbyterian Minister The Bird-Trillions of 'Em!

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — William Floyd, retired real estate dealer, filed suit today for $1,000 and costs from Dr. Harry Rimmer, Presbyterian minister who advised he would pay $1,000 for "a scientific error in the Bible."

Accompanying his petition in municipal court with citations of what he claimed were scientific untruths in the Bible, Floyd said he was not interested in the money but wanted to force Dr. Rimmer to stop making "irresponsible statements about the Bible." Dr. Rimmer, head of the research science bureau which investigates "the antiquity of man and the origin of the Bible," said the bureau offered the $1,000 principally to arouse interest. The former pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Duluth, Minn., said he was not worried about the suit. Floyd's petition set forth the exodus story of the quail as a scientific error. The Biblical account, Floyd said, told of a camp measuring "a day's journey" on each side which was hemmed in by a flock of quail which blew in on the wind and fell to the ground to a height of two cubits. Campers gathered the quail.

Floyd said that according to the Bible there would have been "approximately 305,288,552,448 cubic feet of quails," which, allowing 27 cubic inches per quail, would have amounted to 19,538,467,356,672 birds.

Records showed, he said, that there were 2,414,200 persons in camp who gathered quail for 36 hours. Floyd deduced that each person would have had to gather 83 quails a second, which he termed an impossibility.

Floyd also contended that scientific evidence disproved the Biblical account of the earth's being created in six days and the account of Noah's ark containing two individuals of every kind of living thing.

Armistice Program Planned

Annual Parade Will Precede Public Service

Iowa Band, Pershing Rifle Unit To March Saturday Morning

Plans for Iowa City's annual Armistice day parade and public services, sponsored by the American Legion, were formulated last night by Judge Harold D. Evans and L. E. Clark, members of the special events committee. The parade will begin at 10:30 a. m. Saturday in front of the Community building. Because of the added thousands of persons here for the Iowa - Notre Dame football game, Clark said, planning the course of the parade from its starting point to the east approach of Old Capitol, where the services will be conducted, has been referred to Police Chief Frank Burns in order that the march will not interfere with traffic.

Participants in the parade will include the university band, Iowa City Grenadiers, Pershing Rifles, American Legion auxiliary, American Legion junior auxiliary, Red Cross and possibly representatives of other civic organizations.

Dr. George Marsh, commander of the Roy L. Choquet post of the American Legion, will preside at the public services near Old Capitol. The program in the order of performance was announced as follows:

University band playing "America" while the colors are advanced; prayer by Frank J. Mezik, post chaplain; ritual service by presiding officer; and representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion auxiliary; musical selection by the band; discharging of one bomb at 11 a. m., and two at 11:01; three rallies by a squad chosen from the local unit of the Iowa national guards; taps; short address by a representative of the university.

Frank Miles To Speak

Highlight of the morning services will be a talk by Frank Miles, Des Moines, editor of the "Iowa Legionnaire." "The Star Spangled Banner," played by the band, followed by benediction by a local clergyman will conclude the services.

Officials said the entire program will be staged in 50 minutes. This year's event, it was further announced, will not be broadcast by WSUI because re-arrangements for the football game will be prepared at the stadium before parade time. After the parade, Clark disclosed, the local post of the American Legion will serve dinner to members and guests in the organization's club rooms. Invitations to the dinner have been mailed to Legionnaires in various parts of the state, he said.

Members of the beard judging committee announced last night are Adele Ronan, Helen McCrory, Mary Jane Rivkin, Margaret Hunter, Emily Shaw, Mary King and Jean Grossman.

Don't Worry Housing Service Has Room for Fans

Visitors who come here for the Notre Dame game Saturday and the Homecoming game with Minnesota Nov. 18 won't have to worry about housing even if the hotels are full. The University of Iowa housing service announced yesterday that it will have a list of rooms in private homes which will be available for Friday and Saturday nights. It is recommended that visitors who need places to stay call the housing service upon arrival in Iowa City.

Nine campus organizations, led by the local chapter of the Youth Committee Against War, will sponsor an Armistice day program Friday at 11 a. m. before the east approach of Old Capitol. Feeling that Armistice day should mean more than a militaristic reverberation, the groups sponsoring the program wish rather to express a hopefulness for a peaceful order in the future. Pat Sleszer, A3 of Freeport, Ill., president of the local Y.C.A.W., said yesterday in the announcement of the program.

P.E.P. Women To Select Best Of Beard Crop

Seven women members of Pi Epsilon Pi will weigh the comparative merits of the beards resulting from "Men's Week," it was announced last night at a meeting of the pep organization. The winners will be announced at Friday night's pep meeting.

Plans for the meeting have been made and all that remains is the question of speakers, among whom, it is hoped, will be Gov. George Wilson and members of the Iowa football team and athletic department, along with other notables.

Friday Program

The program for Friday's meeting will begin at 7:30 and will be on the west approach to Old Capitol. The Dolphin show's second performance will be set back until 8:10 that evening to allow students and out-of-town people to attend both the show and the pep meeting. Besides the judges, Pi Epsilon Pi last night named committees for the purpose of distributing signs and painting the town with announcements of the meeting. Word has been sent to campus organizations, which are expected to furnish nearly 1,000 per cent attendance. Nearly 5,000 alumni are also expected to be at the meeting.

Autos Collide At Intersection

Collision of two automobiles at Gilbert and College street was reported to police at 6 o'clock last night. Harold J. Reike, 308 S. Johnson street, said as he was turning west onto College street his car struck a car driven by Leo G. Fordice, R.F.D. 7, in the right rear. Damage on the left front of Riecke's car was estimated at $7, and on the rear fender, tire and wheel of Fordice's, $35. Neither driver was reported injured.

Councils Plan Armistice Day Peace Session

Prof. Paul Schillp Of Northwestern U. To Address Meeting

Prof. Paul A. Schillp of the Northwestern university philosophy department will address the meeting, using as his theme "Keeping Safe With the Boys of 1917-18."

Organizations cooperating include Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Women's Panhellenic, Inter-Fraternity council, Quadrangle council, Inter-Church council, Hillcrest council, A.F.I. and the Youth Committee Against War.

The Rev. Robert H. Hamill, G of Iowa City, will present a short message on "The Real Challenge of Armistice Day." Miss Sleszer will act as chairman of the meeting, open to all townpeople, faculty members and students without 11 o'clock classes on Friday.

Milo Himes, A3 of Normal, Ill., is chairman of the committee in charge, which also includes Virginia Ivie, A2 of Shenandoah; Grover Platt; Terry Rae Tomeson, A1 of Baltimore, Md., and Ruth Subotnik, A4 of Cedar Rapids.

Dutch Queen, Belgian King Make 2nd Plea

Officials Say Hitler Will Welcome Plan Of Neutral Nations

BERLIN, Nov. 7 (AP)—Adolf Hitler tonight pondered an offer by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Leopold of the Belgians to mediate the European war. The surprise offer came shortly after Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, talking informally with foreign newspapermen at a Soviet embassy reception, had declared "Germany is winning" the war against France and Britain.

Officials said Germany's reaction to the peace offer would not be known "until after the highest source has spoken." Favorable Reception Hitler "welcomed" a mediation offer the same monarchs made three days before the German invasion of Poland started Sept. 1 and officials left no doubt a similarly favorable reception would be given this time. The initial nazi reaction, however, was that the neutral nations had missed their best chance to mediate after Hitler's "peace" speech Oct. 6 when he said Germany had no war aims in the west.

Blockade Pinches Neutrals

German officialdom and the press had presumed that King Leopold's visit to Queen Wilhelmina was to discuss the British blockade which pinches their countries in its attempt to close Germany's sea lanes. With unanimity the press took the king's trip to the Hague as an opportunity to question the sincerity of the neutrality stand of Germany's sea lanes.

R. Livingston Talks to Local Junior C. of C.

"Great Britain can exist as it is now only in a world of law and order, and it is a government of law, not an 'ism,' that holds the United States together," Prof. W. Ross Livingston of the history department told junior chamber of commerce members meeting in the private dining room of Smith's cafe last night.

"The British empire is a world system of independent, autonomous nations that believes in settling differences by conciliation and cooperation," he said. "The fleet doesn't hold the empire together, but it maintains order. That order made the United States' Monroe doctrine and foreign policy possible." Penny parking meters were discussed at a business meeting which followed the dinner. Olin Hauth, director of the trade promotion committee, displayed a meter which was also shown at the Oct. 17 meeting. Committees will continue a survey of local parking conditions and the feasibility of parking meters.

"Goat day," a scheme for promoting new memberships, was set for Tuesday. A billy goat will be tied at either the home or place of business of the chamber member whose name appears first alphabetically on the mailing list. When he produces a new, paid-up membership, he will be relieved of the goat, and it will pass on to the next member who has not obtained a new member.

Soviet Lashes U. S. Neutrality

Dimitroff Accuses America of Being Allied Arms Factory

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP) — The United States came in for another Soviet blast today as Russia celebrated the 22nd anniversary of the communist revolution with a mighty display of military power in flag-decked Red square. Georgi Dimitroff, secretary-general of the communist international, writing in the official magazine of the organization attacked American neutrality as "completely hypocritical."

He accused the United States of becoming the "arms factory for England and France" and added: "The American bourgeois actually is the main supplier of war materials to Japanese imperialism, thus kindling the war in the far east in order to weaken both Japan and China — then consolidate her own position in China."

Dimitroff's attack followed Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov's keynote speech of the celebration yesterday in which he belabored the United States, Britain and France, predicted the end of capitalism and by inference urged communists in foreign countries to strive toward that goal.

Chest Funds 80% of Goal

End of Drive Seen Early Next Week As Donations Mount

Reports last night indicated that proceeds from the 1940 Iowa City Community Chest campaign have held even par so far in proportion with the $17,850 goal. Yesterday's subtotal, according to Jack J. Swamer, campaign director, showed that 80 per cent of the solicitors have reported to their respective divisional directors. The total of their collections equals exactly 80 per cent of this year's expected mark.

The drive, now in its third week, is expected to end early next week. Russian Party Ignored WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Top-flight government officials and all but two of the congressmen and senators invited were absent tonight as the Soviet embassy gave its annual party celebrating the 1917 Russian revolution. No cabinet members, few ambassadors, and no senators joined the throng of 800 guests who moved up the red carpeted embassy staircase past a painting of the revolution just transferred from the New York world's fair.

F. R. Postpones Shipping Move

Wishes To Investigate Possible Effects Of Boat Transfers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt intervened and postponed a showdown today in the conflict boiling within his official family and in congress over the United States Lines' proposal to place eight of its ships under the flag of Panama so that they could ply European waters closed to American vessels by the neutrality act.

Although contending that there could be no international episode involving Americans if the ships were sunk while sailing under the Panamanian flag, Mr. Roosevelt disclosed at Hyde Park, N. Y., that he had telephoned the maritime commission and asked that action on the proposal be delayed. He told reporters that the commission had approved the plan yesterday but that it had later called the shipping company owner and requested them to hold everything for a while.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated he wanted time to study any effects the company's plan might have on national defense, as well as the influence of ship transfers on maritime competition.

Kangaroo Court Convenes Tomorrow

Beards, Old Clothes and Pipes Give 'Hobo' Air to Men's Week

With all the dignity of a hobo convention, the kangaroo court, one of the most colorful activities of Men's week, will convene for its first session at 8:50 tomorrow morning at the intersection of the campus walks leading to Schaeffer hall, Old Capitol and Macbride hall. From the time the judge mounts his arm chair to preside over a motley audience of bewhiskered confederates, university women and male non-conformists are expected to give a wide berth to the court and its unique penalties for trespassing.

Ed Glazer, chairman of the proclamation committee which set forth the rules for Men's week, stressed two points in announcing the opening of the Kangaroo court tomorrow: 1. The court will definitely be under the direction of the judge. 2. The length of the sessions shall not extend beyond the regular ten-minute between-class intervals. The kangaroo court gained additional backing last night when Bob Sandler, president of the University "I" club, announced his entire organization in support of Men's week activities. Although the court will continue between classes throughout Thursday and Friday, the crowning activities of Men's week will be the contest for the most unique, the lightest, the heaviest and the longest beards, which will be held Friday afternoon. Prizes will be presented to the winners at the pep rally Friday night. As symbolic of Men's week as beards and the kangaroo court are the corn cob pipes which are available to all university men free of charge at Iowa Union fountain. Men's week, which opened Sunday, was introduced here last year by Pi Epsilon Pi, national pep fraternity, to promote spirit on the Iowa campus. Rules for Men's week forbid the wearing of neckties and suit coats, and require the unrestricted growth of beards among the male half of the student population. Those exempt from the proclamation rules this year besides medics and dentists are men who work board jobs in eating places.

Al Kavelin and his orchestra will provide a musical background for the annual Homecoming Party Nov. 17 in the main lounge of Iowa Union from 9 to 12 p. m. This fourth all-university party will be an informal affair and part of the annual Homecoming activities. Union Board members will serve as the committee for the affair. Bill Sener, G of Chicago, president, will serve as chairman. Tickets for the party will be available Monday at the main desk of Iowa Union.

What Kind Of Peace Did You Say?

THE PROBLEM OF finding a lasting peace for the world is no small one. It is not very encouraging, in addition, to find that the depth of the thinking that America's leaders have done on the subject is not very great.

M. R. Robinson, publisher of Scholastic magazine, asserts, "Americans are rightfully interested in the kind of peace that may emerge from this war and are deeply concerned about the essential principles that should underlie any settlement of future reorganization."

We are in thorough agreement with Mr. Robinson; but, as we said, a practically concrete plan for a solution to Europe's ills has been offered. The only one that we are familiar with is Clarence Streit's plan of federal union, which echoes the Briand plan for a "United States of Europe."

Scholastic magazine in its current issue presents the results of a survey of what American leaders believe would be a basis for lasting peace. The article presents exclusive comments by such students of current European affairs as U. S. Senators Key Pittman, Gerald P. Nye, and George W. Norris; Raymond Clapper, Quincy Howe, James T. Shotwell, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Lewis Mumford, and Rosika Schwimmer.

To the question, "What kind of peace can America support?" all commentators were agreed that America should keep peace herself. And all favored peace without vengeance.

"A peace which leaves the way open for the development of a constructive federation is the only peace possible for Europe—except the peace of death," was the way Mrs. Fisher summarized her statement.

"Any honorable peace" was acceptable to Senator Pittman, who added that "violators of peace treaties, conquerors of peaceful countries, oppression of nationals by dictators, depriving their nationals of every human right, is not honorable or moral."

So We'll Legalize The Sinking Of American Ships

THE MARITIME commission of the United States government will find it difficult to answer to the American public for permitting the United States lines to transfer the greater part of its transatlantic fleet to registry under the republic of Panama, a step to allow American ships to carry goods to the belligerents of Europe.

The public believed that the government was sincere in its reasons for passing the neutrality bill. If the maritime commission is allowed to grant permission to this private shipping agency to circumvent the neutrality law, it will be difficult to convince the electorate that all is so on the "up and up" as we have been led to believe.

Even before the public has had time to forget the connection between the maritime commission and the City of Flint incident, the commission has taken steps toward legalizing the sinking of the American ships. If explanations are made, they will be hardly convincing.

"Congress," observes the innocent commissioner, "unquestionably intended to keep the United States flag from going down in the brine and to keep United States seamen from losing their lives."

We can not question the honesty of his bland observation. We do, however, question the morality of a move such as that contemplated by the commission Monday. International immorality may become Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia—even Great Britain; it remains odious to the citizens of the United States. If we have repealed the arms embargo to fill the coffers of our great industrialists, then it should not have been repealed.

We know that the past of the United States in foreign affairs is not always as uplifting as it is enlightening; the school-boy concept of American character is not always accurate. While we can not change the past, we can be a moral nation in a world of immoral nations today, if we so desire, and without risking our security.

For a government commissioner, after passage of the neutrality bill, to justify the use of American ships in arms trade by stating "But nowhere in the act does it say an American citizen couldn't operate a foreign flag vessel with a foreign crew" is too naive for an American public to accept.

That is not our conception of what democratic conduct should be, nor of the plane to which democracy can be lowered and still win in her struggle against the cancerous growths we so emotionally refer to as the "isms."

With the Thanksgiving days (Old-Fashioned and Roosevelt) rapidly approaching, the family looks forward again to that annual autumnal classic battle—Dad versus the turkey.

"Germany spends $5,000,000 monthly on maintaining its spy system"—news item. We don't believe it—no nation's secrets were ever worth that much dough.

But this year, with two Thanksgivings days, it looks as though Dad and his carving knife must play a double-headed.

Now that Hallowe'en is over, Junior again has developed that violent aversion to soap.

GERMANY BUYS FROM RUSSIA The German government manifestly is bending every effort to capitalize on its new commercial agreement with Russia. Nazi agents are reported to be placing large orders in the Soviet Union for wheat, timber and minerals, while Communist representatives scour Germany for machinery and other commodities to be accepted in payment.

That is understandable. Presumably the British blockade has already begun to make itself felt. Except in the Baltic, Germany's sea-borne commerce with her normal sources of supply is at a standstill. And however substantial may be the reserves accumulated for such an emergency, the Germans may be counted upon to overlook no bet for supplementing them, particularly in view of the present prospect for a long war.

Moreover, access to Russia's raw materials was one of the few advantages that the Nazi dictatorship apparently stood to gain from its recent political accord with the Soviet. Most neutral observers think the Germans paid an exorbitant price for that accord. When it failed to break down the resistance of Great Britain and France and permit Germany to knock off Poland, without incurring a war in the West, indeed, this economic tie seemed to remain the chief justification for Adolf Hitler's abrupt change of policy toward Russia.

It is not yet clear how much Germany will be benefited. Orders, after all, are not the same thing as deliveries. Careful studies of the extent of Russia's natural resources, of the difficulties of transportation and of the problems arranging for repayment, even under a barter system, all suggest definite limitations on what the Nazis may expect. But in any case they appear to be losing no time in testing the possibilities.

ARE WE GOING TO PULL ANOTHER 'BONER'?

Through With Neutrality, Washington Parties May Turn Soon to Politics, Unless War Grows

With congress' adjournment politics shortly will be rampant again. It's been pretty well muzzled during the neutrality debate on Capitol Hill. True, there's been a conflict on the embargo and related issues, but it hasn't been on party lines. Republicans have bolted G. O. P. ranks to vote for embargo repeal, as desired by the Democratic administration.

Not all of them, but a fair proportion. Contrariwise, some Democrats have been as vehement anti-repealers, against White House wishes, as any anti-repeal Republican.

The anti-administration Democrats might have been expected to be solidly against repeal, simply because the administration was asking for it, but they've split also. For instance, Senators Clark of Missouri and Glass of Virginia have been rated as anti-New Dealers, despite their Democratic labels. They disagreed as to the arms embargo, however. Clark opposed repeal as vigorously as Republican Senator Nye of North Dakota, who invented the embargo. Glass has been an equally vigorous repealer.

President Roosevelt knew he couldn't prevent a neutrality fight but urged the scrappers to waive partisanship, on the well-known ground that politics ought to "end at the water's edge." The lawmakers complied. They pulled one another's hair energetically, to the extent of indulging in some very unparliamentary language. There was talk to the effect that the discussion was kept on a "high plane," but considerable of it hasn't sounded so to the press gallery. Nevertheless, it's a fact that the rumpus hasn't been politically partisan.

There probably never has been a case in which senators and representatives have voted their individual honest convictions as generally as in this one.

A Truce Only But this inter-party truce has been a truce only. Plenty of ugly domestic differences of opinion still are hanging fire. They're well within our water's edges.

The New Dealers are as determined as ever to go ahead with their program. The Democratic anti-New Dealers, most of the Republicans and a scattering of independents (not all) are as determined as ever to block it.

They'll go to the partisan mat in January. Unless, possibly— If the war gets worse than it is at present. If it does get worse, who can tell? If it does, there may be some more water's edging, with the New Deal forgotten.

But the chances are that it won't get much worse during the winter. The weather will be adverse to very fierce military operations for the next few months. Politics will have time to boil and bubble throughout the rest of November, on through December, January and February, and well into March. By then partisanship will be so red-hot, war or no war, that it'll be too late to cool it off ahead of the national conventions.

Or supposing that the war, happily, does frazzle out in the meantime, that ends it; we'll have politics anyway.

The 1940 Republican convention promises to be comparatively peaceful. Of course there'll be rival candidates, but they're not vicious rivalries.

The Democratic affair, thought Oo, all the two Democratic groups hate each other worse than Democrats hate Republicans or vice versa. John N. Garner now looms as the conservatives' outstanding "white hope." If he's out-nominated, it wouldn't be surprising to see a third party ticket. Even if not, a lot of conservative Democrats are sure to prefer a Republican to another New Deal administration. Or if Garner (or some other old-timer) wins, there's certain to be a shoal of New Dealers who won't support him.

Naturally the Republicans will do their darndest to capitalize on this anticipated Democratic division. Doesn't this forecast a mean partisan campaign following the conventions? At that stage of the game the water's edge consideration may only complicate matters.

Attorney General Frank Murphy, whose defeat in Detroit was helped along by Mr. Dies, has actually praised his "present work." "I think it's vicious, dangerous, and un-American. How about you, Mr. President?"

You've put a military man in the wage-hour leadership. I don't like that. I don't like military men dealing with labor, and neither does labor. Neither does the C. I. O.

Apparently you're pretty concerned with what is happening in Europe, and so am I. I think part of our hope is in democracy there.

But I don't think that's what Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Daladier are sending their boys to fight for, and I don't think the results will be democratic. . . . A "revolution of the right," as the English put it, would be nazism under another name. . . . A nazism that Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Daladier could control.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

"DEAR MR. PRESIDENT" -An Open Letter to the President -Dear Mr. Roosevelt: I guess I'd better begin by explaining about myself. I'm a new dealer and have been since the beginning, probably before you yourself were quite sure about things. . . . I was the only one in my modern history class who didn't think Mr. Hoover could solve our problems back in '32. . . .

I was a sophomore in high school then, and the teacher agreed with me, so her contract wasn't renewed next year. . . . That was in Marshalltown.

And I've been with you ever since, Mr. President. I always thought government, if it had any purpose at all, was to meet the needs of the people. . . . I thought we ought to abolish the constitution if we couldn't bring it up to date. . . .

Since I'm going to be a newspaper man, I've always been for the Newspaper Guild. That's why I've been behind the Wagner Labor Relations act. . . .

My dad works for a living. So I've supported your attempts to raise the living standard of that lower one-third of which we've part. . . .

My mother works for a living too. So we've been hoping the wage-hour act really meant what it said. . . .

We've supported you on the supreme court bill, the fight for more WPA, more NYA (because that made it possible for me to come to college in the first place), and more PWA projects. We have a new high school building here in Iowa City.

You see, Mr. President, you've been our kind of man in the White House. . . . My family and I've liked you too because we once owned a bond or two and lost them because there wasn't an SEC to keep us from getting kipped. . . .

My dad's not a very good business man, I guess, and neither am I. . . . We're just three of the people, the ones whose imagination you've captured and held through seven years. . . .

My dad and mother still swear by you, and so, I notice by the Gallup polls, do about 65 per cent of the rest of us who're Americans and citizens of the United States.

I'm going to vote next year, first time. . . . And I've been wondering, Mr. President, I hope I'm wrong.

But it seems to me you've been careless lately. . . . You've been lethargic about Mr. Martin Dies, for instance. You spoke out clearly and simply last year. . . . Now, you've just called us a "sordid practice" and stopped with that. . . .

Attorney General Frank Murphy, whose defeat in Detroit was helped along by Mr. Dies, has actually praised his "present work." . . . I think it's vicious, dangerous, and un-American. How about you, Mr. President? . . .

You've put a military man in the wage-hour leadership. . . . I don't like that. . . . I don't like military men dealing with labor, and neither does labor. Neither does the C. I. O.

Apparently you're pretty concerned with what is happening in Europe, and so am I. . . . I think part of our hope is in democracy there. . . .

But I don't think that's what Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Daladier are sending their boys to fight for, and I don't think the results will be democratic. . . . A "revolution of the right," as the English put it, would be nazism under another name. . . . A nazism that Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Daladier could control.

I've always believed a nazist victory would be disastrous for Europe and for us. . . . I still do—but not now, until the Chamberlain-Daladier crew start meaning what they say themselves. . . .

And I believe we're likely to get in trouble at home if you don't start looking west of the Potomac. . . . Westminster palace is nice and should be democratic. . . . But so should the United States.

Yours, Merle Miller

Hawkeyes Work On Defense; Notre Dame Pass Plays Work

Hofer Works With Reserves Against Firsts

Vollenweider Returns To Squad; Walker May See Action

Defensive work was again the major issue in the Hawkeye camp yesterday afternoon as Dr. Eddie Anderson worked his first and second teams against the third string using Notre Dame passes.

Henry Vollenweider, lost to the Hawks last week because of sinus trouble, returned to practice and was used at fullback on the second team.

Lineup Stays Intact
The first team lineup remained the same with Nile Kinnick, Ray Murphy, Floyd Dean and Al Couppee in the backfield with the line composed of Capt. Erwin Prasse and Dick Evans at the wing posts, Wallace Bergstrom and "Iron Mike" Enich at the tackles, Ken Pettit and Ham Snider, guards, and Bruno Andruska at the center position.

Jim Walker, who seems to be recovering from his knee injury rapidly, took another light workout, but his injured partner, Bill Diehl, did not suit up for the practice.

Team Shows Fire
The spark and fire that has characterized the small band of Old Gold gridlers lately was not missing in yesterday's practice as Anderson worked his men in defensive drill throughout the major portion of the workout.

Bill Hofer quarterbacked the third team as they took the offensive against the first and second team. The Hawks had little difficulty stopping the Irish running plays but Hofer managed to slip passes through the varsity secondary almost at will, with Joe Moore, Burdell Gileard, and Russ Busk doing some fine jobs of receiving.

Anderson worked his men at top speed during the entire practice, giving them a session with the tackling dummy and running them through signals before showing them on defense.

Iowa, which has had one of the most acute injury lists in many years, will face a Notre Dame eleven which will also be minus several veterans in their starting lineup. Lou Zontini, one of their best backs, will probably miss the contest with Kerr, end, Harvey and Gallagher, tackles, also likely to miss the game.

Sagau May Play
Bob Sagau, the Denison, Ia., standout on the Irish eleven may be used sparingly against the Hawks due to an ankle injury which has been bothering him all season.

With the Iowa-Notre Dame tilt causing more than the usual amount of comment among sports writers and fans throughout the nation, Coach Anderson and his boys will quietly spend another three days in preparation for Saturday's headliner while the some 50,000 odd ticket holders

They'll Meet Saturday in Iowa Stadium

Iowa-Notre Dame Game Here This Week End Promises All Elements of Gridiron Drama

The elements that make for great gridiron drama will all be present Saturday at Iowa stadium when Iowa's Hawkeyes, hotted since July 4th in the Belgian Congo, face the rambling Irish of Notre Dame in a contest of national import. There are, to begin with, the strictly football angle, the human interest side and the matter of rivalries, with the historic Iowa - Notre Dame struggle of 1921 as a background.

From the football angle, there seems to be excitement in store with the Hawkeyes, rated as a versatile and high-powered scoring machine, facing Notre Dame, famed for its hard and sure blocking, its tackling, along with the lengthy list of stars on the Irish roster.

Attending the contest will be a host of former Iowa greats, some of whom will be introduced between halves of the game. Heading the list will be Duke Slater, great Negro tackle on the 1921 team, Glenn Devine, halfback in 1921, who is in charge of freshman athletics at the university, Craven Shuttlesworth of Cedar Rapids, Glenn Miller of Waterloo, Max Kadesky of Dubuque, Paul Minick of Mexico, Mo., and Lester Belding of Sioux Falls, S. D.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, member of the Notre Dame team which played here in 1921 and now Iowa grid mentor, will again be up against a former Notre Dame player, the third he has faced this year as a rival coach. Elmer Layden, of the famous "Four Horsemen," coaches the Irish, still unbeaten and untied.

The meeting of Anderson as a coaching rival with Layden is another of the coincidences which have brought Anderson against former Irish stars in Mal Elward of Purdue and Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, another member of the "Four Horsemen." Another part of the Iowa football trail this year was the meeting with Indiana, which has as head coach "Bo" McMillin, a member of the all-American team of 1921 along with Anderson. McMillin was graduated at Centre college.

With this bill ahead, the advance ticket sale assures that nearly 40,000 will attend the game. It was announced last night that approximately 4,000 seats remain, which means that 40,000 have been disposed of before this week and the orders have been pouring in since last week's victory over Purdue.

Coach Armbruster will see whether his yearlings are quite what they are cracked up to be, when three frosh dashmen take on a trio of varsity performers in a medley relay. Robert Nens-bern, Al Poviltis, and Clyde Kennitz will compose the frosh team, with Al Armbruster, George Poulos and Carl Ahlgren the members of the veteran team. The frosh trio are the best of an above average freshman squad, while the veterans have already made a name for themselves. Armbruster won the Mid-Western A.A.U. back stroke championship, with Ahlgren the best distance swimmer in the same meet. Poulos is the breast stroke artist on the varsity squad, with an A.A.U. title tucked under his belt.

The race will be 300 yards, with each man swimming his specialty 100 yards. The potential strength of the 1940 swimming team will be shown in this event.

Although the Dolphins will not feature any half-witted San Francisco bridge diver, there will be plenty of high diving in this outstanding water show. Eight varsity and freshman divers will be featured in the high diving exhibition. Most of the dives will originate from a 30 foot platform, with others at various other heights. This act takes perfect timing, with a slight miscalculation meaning quite a strenuous belly or back flop. Russ Doston, Vic Vargon, Nick Connell, Frank Brandon, Leo Biedrzycki, Don Van Camp, Jim Cupp, and Larry Hayes will perform on the high board.

Most of the acts mentioned above feature the skill and precision of the swimmers, but many feature acts have also been planned for this year's bigger and greater Dolphin show. The three Russians will give an act all by themselves, with anything from a revolution to an old fashion Russian sing fest liable to take place. The Dolphins will go in for the more cultured things as six masculine beauties are covered with silver paint and are stationed before the spotlights. In the intermission the spectators will get some valuable information from Harold Baker, Red Cross instructor, on how to save the other fellow when a canoe tips over.

Dolphin Follies Takes Shape for First Night

Carnival Opens Tomorrow

Dolphin Queen Will Reign Over 1940 Water Festivities

All the hearties who think they have great strength and fortitude should come to the "Dolphin Follies" opening in the field-house Thursday, and take a look at the varsity swimmers as they take to underwater tactics.

The main event featured under the surface, will be the 50 yard underwater swim, with six Hawk swimmers scheduled to go the route. George Brown, Cyril Moon and Al Armbruster have proven that they can go the distance, with the remaining three performers to be picked later.

Chuck Brandkamp will direct the clowns as they go through their acts on the high and low diving boards. Most swimmers believe that they have hit the water in nearly every position imaginable, but the clowns will add a few uncomfortable dives to everyone's collection. The double dive from the high board will be one of the clown attractions. Russell Dotson will ride a mysterious "diving horse," with Lyle Felderman, Larry Hayes, and Carl Brandon appearing in other stunts.

Coach Armbruster will see whether his yearlings are quite what they are cracked up to be, when three frosh dashmen take on a trio of varsity performers in a medley relay. Robert Nens-bern, Al Poviltis, and Clyde Kennitz will compose the frosh team, with Al Armbruster, George Poulos and Carl Ahlgren the members of the veteran team. The frosh trio are the best of an above average freshman squad, while the veterans have already made a name for themselves. Armbruster won the Mid-Western A.A.U. back stroke championship, with Ahlgren the best distance swimmer in the same meet. Poulos is the breast stroke artist on the varsity squad, with an A.A.U. title tucked under his belt.

Bucks Run Over Frosh

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Freshmen using University of Chicago formations offered little resistance yesterday as Ohio State regulars and reserves practiced offensive maneuvers.

Third and fourth stringers got more action than usual, indicating Coach Francis Schmidt intended to let the regulars warm the bench against the big ten's weakest member Saturday. Both aerial and ground plays were used for consistently long gains through the frosh.

Hoosiers Undergo Complete Shakeout

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP)—Indiana university's first string backs were shifted into three different combinations today as Coach Bo McMillin's threatened shakeout materialized. The Hoosiers play Fordham at New York Saturday.

One backfield had Bill Tip-more at quarterback, Harry Brooks and Tim Bringle at halfbacks and Ray Dumke at fullback.

Dumke also worked at halfback beside Mickey McGuire, with Eddie Herbert and Joe Toft at quarter and full, respectively. Another combination had Page Benson, quarter; Hal Hersh and Kenny Smith, halves, and Brooks, fullback.

Gradisnik Lost To Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 7 (AP)—Tony Gradisnik, fleet left halfback, will be prevented from playing with Wisconsin against Illinois next Saturday because of a leg injury, it was announced today.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher also stated that James Riordan, letterman end on the 1937 team who has been changed to the tackle post this year had decided to devote all of his time to his studies and had turned in his suit.

Winter Diamond Meetings May Be 'Tight' Talent Markets

Reds Expected To Be on Lookout For Outfielders

By EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP)—No one likes to get trimmed, least of all the manager or owner of a baseball club, so there's a good chance the winter meetings at Cincinnati next month may set some sort of record as a "tight" diamond talent market—on the cash side of the ledger.

Potentially, the approaching assemblage of minor and major league officials shapes up as the most active in years. The Cincinnati Reds won the national league pennant, yet they are expected to do plenty of dickering, aiming particularly at outfield strengthening. Even the incomparable New York Yankees have indicated they might try to swap first baseman Babe Dahlgren to the St. Louis Browns for George McQuinn.

But the gentlemen who control the purse strings may be very wary of unloosening them next month. There've been too many instances of big money being passed out for high-salaried talent that failed to deliver. The Chicago Cubs, a year ago last April, paid the St. Louis Cardinals $185,000 and three players for Dizzy Dean—and the Cubs will go into next month's meeting still wondering what to do with '01 Diz.

Henry P. Edwards, of the American League service bureau, believes more and more owners are being won over to the idea that it's safer to take chances of developing younger players rather than risk trading for or buying established stars.

"Anyway, several teams which did sell stars found out later they couldn't play the cash at first base or in the outfield," said Henry, take the newly pounded track well, conditioning themselves for their scheduled exhibition 2-mile team race with Minnesota here on Saturday morning, Oct. 18, at 11 o'clock. This exhibition run will be another big feature of the Homecoming day events and everyone is invited to watch the two conference teams go into action.

Tracksters Drill For Iowa-Gopher Two Mile Run

Coach George Bresnahan sent his distance men, both varsity and freshmen, through their paces yesterday afternoon on the re-conditioned outdoor cinder track.

The 440 yard oval has just been raked and re-cindered and has been the object of an experiment in the respect of the addition of walnut wood saw-dust to the material laid down. The saw-dust should hold in the moisture better and provide a fuller spring in the cinders. A similar test has worked well on the indoor dirt track.

PRESSBOX PICKUPS By OSCAR HARGRAVE

When the Iowa football spirit is analyzed this year, it might not be a bad idea to toss in a credit point or two for the training table, now allowed in the conference for the evening meal. To the old proverb about the army and its stomach we will add a thought of our own, which is in effect, "Stomachs travel best in an army."

As backing for that belief we have the opinions of authorities on football and food, chief among whom is none other than Dr. Eddie Anderson, who we feel knows his football, dietetics and psychology well enough to write books about them if he had the time. Plus the words of authority on the subject we have the observations made during a couple meals taken with the team at its evening round of steaks at Iowa Union.

"It's a great thing for the boys," Anderson comments. "They have a chance to meet somewhere besides on the practice field." He further elaborated on his belief that the best team is one in which there is comradeship as well as desire to win ball games.

The visits to the team's eating quarters prove beyond doubt that there is an atmosphere very "one" in development of the old "one for all, all of spirit so necessary to a football team. The coaches, Anderson, Frank Cardies and Jim Harris, drop their authority of the practice field, and eating is made enjoyable.

We might also mention that the food is of a type chosen as ideal for men who are going to fight a war or try to whip Joe Louis. At least, after doing away with one of the steaks we felt quite able to play right tackle on any man's team.

We have been quoting the rating systems of late, but feel quite disillusioned at present. Of three systems examined, two have Notre Dame, Iowa's opponent for Saturday, right next to the top, but the third system places the Irish down the line below Southern Methodist, one of the Irish victims of this year. Iowa rates from 20th to 27th.

Another sign of the new personality of the Iowa team is the growth in numbers of nicknames. Nile Kinnick could now sign a belt register as "The Cornbelt Comet," and would be known, Al Couppee is called the "Dictator," Mike Enich is known as "Iron Mike," and names are taking shape for others.

Mace Brown, a former Hawkeye baseball star, was around the field house yesterday, where Brown's former coach, Otto Vogel, is working out the squad that will attempt to take the place of last year's Big Ten title winners. Brown, who became a pitcher under Vogel, was one of the mainstays of the Pittsburgh pitching staff during the last few seasons.

Fraternity Touchballers Enter Final Week

Phi Epsilon Pi Crushes Gamma Eta Gamma, 31-14; Deltas Win

Teams of the fraternity league in the intramural touch football tournament entered their final week of play yesterday afternoon.

Phi Epsilon Pi won its fourth consecutive win and took the undisputed title in section IV, class A division when it came out on the long end of a 31-14 score over Gamma Eta Gamma. Sandler was the outstanding player for the Phi Eps as his passing accounted for the majority of the touchdowns.

The first two touchdowns for the victors were passes from Sandler to Ray Rosenberg and the third was a long pass from Sandler to Abe Rosenberg. Deway passed a long touchdown pass to Kreithe for the losers and then added two more points as an intercepted pass by Galinsky over the goal line of the Phi Eps was ruled a safety. The score stood at 19-9 before Sandler let loose with a pass to Glazer to make the score 25-8.

The final touchdown for the victors came when Abe Rosenberg took over passing duties and completed his first pass to Sandler. But before the final whistle, Deway of Gamma Eta Gamma completed his last pass to Lettow to make the final score read 31-14.

Deltas Win
Delta Tau Delta of class A trounced over Phi Delta Theta to the score of 32-0. It was the passing of Manush that was the squad through a dummy scrimmage today and announced there will be no further contact work in preparation for Saturday's game at Iowa.

Irish Finish Contact Work

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP)— Coach Elmer Layden sent his battered Notre Dame football

With both Lou Zontini and Steve Bagarus out of action with injuries, Sophomore Bernie Crimmins may get the call at right halfback against the Hawkeyes.

Coach Herb Cormack of City high last night started tapering off on his drills in preparation for the Wilson high of Cedar Rapids conference battle there Thursday night.

Cormack continued his intensive drills to fix the new plays he has given out this week in the minds of his charges. A long signal drill was followed by a snappy scrimmage using the new plays entirely. The Hawklet first string enjoyed a measure of success against a stubborn reserve team.

Passes came in for their share of attention again last night indicating that Cormack will undoubtedly try out his new running game and improved passing of fence against the Wilson crew.

Wilson boasts a strong ground attack led by Don Konigsmark in the backfield, and Moose Janos in the line. Konigsmark is a veteran of three seasons of conference play with Wilson, and last year accounted for the Blue and White marker against Iowa City on a pass. Iowa City won 7 to 6, with Herman Miller accounting for the margin of victory for the Little Hawks.

'China Clipper Trip' Will Be Theme For S.U.I. Foreign Student Dinner

The tenth annual dinner for foreign students, sponsored by the University club, will be tomorrow at 6 p.m. in the clubrooms of Iowa Union. Reservations must be made at the main desk of Iowa Union as only the first 50 can be taken because of limited space.

Guests will be Mr. and Mrs. William Waldrop, directors of International House, and 45 foreign students from 13 countries. There will be 10 from the British Dominions, three from Panama, one each from Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, the West Indies, five from Turkey, four from Hawaii, 14 from China, and one each from Holland, France, Hungary, India and Estonia. Most of the students are engaged in graduate or professional work, especially in engineering and medicine.

The theme of the dinner will be a Pan-American airway clipper trip. Wall decorations will be of Pan-American posters and foreign flags. Model airplanes will hang from the chandeliers. For table decorations, the tablecloths will be representative of the foreign countries. Foreign dolls, and leis will add to the general "foreign atmosphere." The hostesses and many of the guests plan to wear foreign costumes. A great deal of material has been sent by Pan-American airways to make this an authentic Yankee clipper ship party.

Mrs. Charles Looney, formerly an American student in the French university at Lyons, will be the directing airplane hostess.

The clipper ship will stop at the foreign countries represented, for foreign entertainment. The United States will not be included in the menu decorations or in the trip.

The annual foreign-students dinner is given near Armistice day as an expression of international peace. The University club sponsors the dinner to afford an opportunity for becoming acquainted with outstanding students of foreign countries. The students after studying in American universities usually go back to their own countries to positions of influence in government and education.

Lab Technicians To Study 'Typing' of Pneumonia Germ

Three-Day Program Will Include Lecture By Carl F. Jordan

A tiny Pneumococcus germ is playing for its life today on a miniature stage without footlights or curtain before an audience of 25 Iowa laboratory technicians who have come from as far across the state as Sioux City, just to watch this tiny living atom perform under a microscope and betray the habits and characteristics that will spell its doom.

The Lilliputian performer will receive scant sympathy from an audience to which he is so deadly in the war of pneumonia he is capable of waging.

Dr. M. E. Barnes, director of the state hygienic laboratory, revealed an interesting background for the three-day Pneumococcus "typing" course which will be given to about 25 state laboratory technicians today and tomorrow.

Pneumonia Causes
Science has discovered that Pneumococcus is only one of the things that cause pneumonia, but there are many kinds of pneumococcus, each of which is susceptible to but one particular serum.

Thus to combat a case of pneumonia, according to Dr. Barnes, it is necessary first to determine whether or not pneumococcus is responsible and, if so, which type. To complicate matters, speed and accuracy of "typing" is essential if the disease is to be headed off in time, and expensive serum is to be budgeted.

The state department of health hopes to solve the problem through "typing" stations which can, if necessary, offer 24-hour service in every county for the convenience of local doctors.

To train the technicians who will staff these laboratories in recognizing Pneumococcus types, the Pneumococcus "typing" course was first offered last year to 70 people from over the state. This year the number was reduced to 50, half of whom attended the first section offered last week.

The three-day program, which is being repeated this week, includes, besides laboratory periods for the study of Pneumococcus, the following lectures:

Will Lecture
A lecture and demonstration by Dr. Barnes and Dr. I. H. Boris, "Problems Involved in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Pneumococcus Pneumonia" by Dr. Fred M. Smith, professor of theory and practice of medicine; "The Plan of the Iowa State Department of Health for the Control of the Pneumonias" by Carl F. Jordan, director of Epidemiology, division of preventable diseases, Iowa state department of health.

University Men To Lead Groups At Conference

Dean F. M. Dawson, Prof. F. L. Waterman and Prof. J. J. Hinman, all of the college of engineering, will lead discussion groups at the State Sewage Treatment conference being held in Ames from tomorrow through Saturday of this week.

Dean Dawson will conduct the discussion of "Industrial Waste Disposal." The conference is being sponsored by the Sewage Works association for the benefit of anyone who is interested in or has management of municipal or industrial sanitation.

Crime Earns A Diploma!

Criminologist Tells Of Russian School For Pickpockets

An "Academy of Pick-Pocketing," said to be located in Odessa, Russia, gives doctor's degrees to its graduates. One of the requirements of graduation is to pick the pocket of a coat, hung with bells, slung over a chair, with such deftness that the bells will not ring.

This was one of the illustrations used by Dr. Hans von Hentig, professor of criminology at Colorado university, and director of a Colorado survey of crime, in his talk at a luncheon meeting of the Sociology club yesterday, on the subject of "Criminal Tactics."

Criminals, in order to survive as self-sustaining practitioners in such highly-specialized crimes as pick-pocketing, must develop great skill achieved through systematic practice and long experience, Dr. von Hentig maintained. They must also be psychologists in order to evaluate their victims and take advantage of the best possible situation for picking pockets.

The best situations for pocket-picking, the speaker continued, are in crowds of moving people whose attention is diverted. Such situations exist at fairs, fireworks displays, theater lobbies, department stores and night clubs. The criminal must reduce "mental or psychological distance" between him and his prospective victim by dressing well but not showily, and by taking rooms in the better hotels where his victims congregate.

"A pick-pocket's hands must be of a certain type, and need careful training," Dr. von Hentig explained. Their hands must be small and muscular with long slender fingers. The sense of touch must be highly refined so that the fingers may discern in an instant the objects they touch in a pocket or hand-bag.

After picking a pocket, the criminal usually "floats it on" immediately to an accomplice, so that if he is caught and identified, he will not have the stolen goods with him.

Dr. von Hentig formerly was professor of criminology at Bonn university in Germany. He also was an expert advisor to the German government in the field of criminology. For three years he was associated with the department of justice in Washington.

Student Group Will Promote Peace Activity

Organization Adopts 'Iowa Student League' For Official Name

The Iowa Students League has been chosen as the official name of the Iowa branch of the American Student Union which was recently established on the University of Iowa campus, according to Jim McConnell, president of the League.

The Iowa Students League, a thoroughly democratic organization, will be exactly what its members, the progressive students and faculty on the Iowa campus, make it, McConnell added. Its basic assumption is that Iowa students are in favor of peace, freedom, security and equality. The program tentatively scheduled for the year has been designed to arrange discussions on definite topics to promote these ideas.

Student self-government on the Iowa campus will be studied and specific proposals made. Student artists, dramatists, musicians and writers will have a channel through which to display their creative efforts.

"We are affiliated with the American Student Union because its democratic philosophy concurs with ours. In addition the A.S.U. will furnish information, ideas and speakers to stimulate our discussions and will serve to coordinate the University of Iowa with other progressive student organizations. Moreover, the A.S.U. with its 20,000 undergraduate members is a valuable national force for expression of organized student opinion on important national, educational, economic and political issues," McConnell stated.

The I.S.L. is more than a debating group or society, McConnell added. We welcome ideas and energies. We need financial help to carry on our program. The only requirement for membership in the I.S.L. is an interest in one phase of its program and a willingness to contribute toward the realization of its goal — a more perfect democracy for the students of Iowa and America.

Outlines Work On Sanitation

Architectural Forum Contains Article On Engineers' Research

Outstanding research and experimentation recently done by the university sanitary engineering department on "back siphonage," a dangerous condition caused by unsafe plumbing facilities, is given a great deal of prominence in the October issue of the nationally known magazine, Architectural Forum.

The article is accompanied by pictures of the test equipment used both here and at the University of Wisconsin in the investigative work. Sponsored by the plumbing equipment manufacturers of the National Association of Master Plumbers, the sanitary engineering department here has, according to the article, done much to augment the formerly meager knowledge of the existence and nature of this condition.

"Back siphonage" is a process whereby water standing in certain types of plumbing fixtures may become contaminated, then be drawn back into the supply pipes by suction and used again. The dangers of such a condition are obvious, the discussion continues, since disease germs, having once entered the water supply system, may spread to any point, regardless of flow and pressure.

The findings of the experimental stations at the University of Iowa, the University of Wisconsin, the National Bureau of Standards and the American Medical association, and their suggestions for future guarding against the same sort of thing, are outlined in the article.

"The Private Lives OF ELIZABETH AND ESSEX"

A Warner Bros. First National Picture Starring Bette Davis and Errol Flynn Screen Play by Norman Kelly Raine and Annesa Maxwell From the Stage Play by Maxwell Anderson Produced by the Theatre Guild, Inc. Directed by Michael Curtiz.

Serialized by HARRY LEE

THE STORY THUS FAR: London, 1596. The British fleet is in the harbor just returning from the successful storming of Cadix in Spain. The young Earl of Essex, leader of the expedition—with his two subordinates, Sir Walter Raleigh and Lord Howard—are summoned to appear before the tempestuous Queen Elizabeth, whose mad infatuation for Essex is notorious. Essex is enraged when the Queen, instead of praising him for his heroism, denounces him, claiming that his deeds were actuated by selfishness. She elevates Raleigh and Howard to high places in the Kingdom, and when Essex angrily protests, strikes him across the face. He retorts insultingly, turns his back on the Queen, and exiles himself from London.

CHAPTER II

"WELL, DO SOMETHING! Sing! Play for me! Amuse me!" Elizabeth arose testily from the table where she had been playing at chess with Lady Penelope Grey, and swept rustlingly across the firelit, tapestried chamber, past her ladies-in-waiting, her glittering, high-ruffed, brocaded form reflected in the mirrored walls.

The lovely Penelope, still harboring her secret grudge against the Queen for her appropriation of Essex—although he had galloped away to heaven-knew where after Elizabeth had delivered the stinging blow to his person and his pride—responded to the Queen with sweet duplicity. "By Your Grace, Your Majesty, Sir Walter Raleigh has lately written an answer to Master Marlowe's 'The Passionate Shepherd to His Love!'"

"Well..." retorted Elizabeth from the semi-seclusion of her dressing room, where, mirror in hand, she was scrutinizing her aging face. "What about it?"

"With your permission, Your Grace, I'll sing it—if Mistress Margaret Radcliffe will take Marlowe's verses against me!" "By all means..." called the Queen, "A tournament of song!"

"Are you mad, Pen?" Margaret whispered in terror. "She'll hear or send us to the Tower!"

All went well until Penelope's exquisitely malicious voice sang: "But could youth last, and love still love—had joy no date, nor age no need..." A terrific crash interrupted, and Elizabeth, the remains of the shattered mirror in her hand, burst into the room and stood staring insanely at Penelope.

"So you brazen wench!" she screamed. "You defy me! You dare hold your Queen up for ridicule! You forward hussy, look at you! Because a gentleman once glanced at you, does it entitle you to come into my presence dressed like an indecent hedge drah? Out of my sight, you shameless baggage!"

As the trembling Penelope edged away, Elizabeth, her rage not yet spent, turned on the others. "And the rest of you! Do you stand like a herd of stupid cattle while I am treated so! Do you, too, think I am too old, too ugly, for a man to look on with love?"

Whirling toward one of the long mirrors she hurled the broken hand glass at it, splintering it into a thousand bits. She wrecked another with a vase. "Take them down!" she shrieked hysterically. "Do you hear me? Smash them! Destroy them! Break every mirror in the Palace! Never let me see one in Whitehall again!"

Mistress Margaret Radcliffe, her beautiful eyes heavy with tears, was following the others out, when the Queen, her hard face softening, called to her. "Why are you crying, Margaret, my dear? You, the most innocent of them all! You've nothing to fear! Look at me—or do you also think your Queen's face too harsh for kindly glances?"

"Oh, no, Your Grace! I think you're lovely! I really do! I was crying because... because I was so frightened and lonely... and I... I cried a little bit for you, too! Forgive me, Your Grace, but you see I, too, know what it is to love some one... and not to be able to see him even... to know what..."

Elizabeth soothed the girl, asked her about her lover, and finding that he was fighting with Bagenal in Ireland, promised to have him recalled to England at once. Then, with a heavy sigh, she told Margaret to thank her stars she was not a queen—and brusquely bade her fetch Master Francis Bacon without delay.

The witty Master Francis had no sooner bowed before Elizabeth than she asked him sharply whether he was a friend of the Earl of Essex.

"I am," he answered suavely, "whatever Your Grace desires!"

"And whatever your own interest dictates!... Anyway you know Essex better than any other man does. Tell me, why doesn't he return to court?"

"Pride, Your Majesty!" "A pox on his pride! He's got to come back! I command it! Matters of State require his presence! He's so obstinate he'll never come back unless I humble myself and ask him—and that I'll never do!"

At the moment a spent and travel-stained courier arrived. "We have been annihilated in Ireland, Your Grace. Tyrone surprised us, Sir William Bagenal is dead... every company... troop... arms... stores... everything... utterly destroyed!"

"All dead!" gasped the Queen. "All! Poor Margaret Radcliffe... poor... poor child! Always wars, blood, and death in that unhappy country! I'll put an end to it! Not another man goes to Ireland!"

"Whoever holds Ireland, Madame, points a danger at England's heart!" "Oh, Bacon," moaned Elizabeth. "I'm only a woman! Must I carry the weight of the world alone?"

"No, Your Majesty! You will form a new army! If you form a new army you'll need a new leader! Order Essex home! He can no longer refuse! It is his duty!"

"What!" cried the Queen, "And send him to ruin and death in Ireland! No, Master Bacon! No... no..."

"As your Grace wishes..." "But go to him! Go tell him I have need of him—great need! And go at once!"

(To be continued tomorrow)

Police Chief Urges Drivers To Exercise Caution Saturday

75,000 Expected In City Saturday

Police Force Enlarged To Handle Increased Traffic for Game

Chief of Police Frank Burns joined forces with the university athletic department yesterday in urging all persons attending the Iowa-Notre Dame football classic this week end, particularly Iowa City residents, to exert the utmost caution in their driving Saturday to hold automobile accidents to a minimum. Many lives have been lost by fans on their way to and from grid tilts this year, he said.

Commissioner of Public Safety Karl Fischer is cooperating with the local police force by assigning 25 state highway patrolmen to bolster Iowa City's police force sufficiently to make it capable of coping with the traffic problem and help preserve order if necessary.

Muscatine plans to do its bit by sending its extra patrolmen to Iowa City for the occasion. An undetermined number of Iowa Citizens are expected to be added to the reinforced police department.

Parking stalls in the business district will be kept vacant as much as possible, Chief Burns said, and residents of Iowa City are requested to leave their automobiles at home and walk to Iowa stadium. Because nearly 75,000 people will crowd Iowa City streets prior to and during the contest, Chief Burns has asked local delivery trucks to complete their rounds before 10 a.m. in order to facilitate parking and traffic regulation.

Petit Jury Dismissed as Trial Of Club 88 Owner Continues

Prosecution Quizzes Five Witnesses On Liquor Raid Details

Judge James P. Gaffney issued a court order yesterday dismissing the petit jury for the rest of the September term as the state's case against John Agnew, proprietor of Club 88, who is charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance, went into its second day in district court.

State's Attorney Jens Grothe and County Attorney Harold Vestmark questioned Highway Patrolmen David Herrick and William R. Bennett, State Agent E. F. Brown, Sheriff Don McComas and Prof. James Wilson Jones of the pharmacy department during the afternoon yesterday.

The county and state officials who testified identified liquor exhibits which were allegedly taken from Club 88 during a raid in July. Professor Jones told the court that the liquor had been brought to his office in August for the purpose of determining its alcoholic content.

Attorney E. A. Baldwin is defending the case for Agnew.

Rocky Mountain Rocket Train To Be on Exhibition Thursday

Rock Island railway officials have explained several features of the mail apartment cars of the new Rocky Mountain Rocket trains, one of which will be on public exhibition in Iowa City from 8 to 11 a.m. tomorrow.

The mail car itself is said to be a model in its arrangement, constructed of stainless steel to standard specifications furnished by the federal government. Built by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company of Philadelphia, the mail room is 30 feet and 10 inches in length, forming the closed head-end of the first coach in the Rocket train. Storage space is provided for 140 sacks of mail.

Forming a part of the seven-car, Diesel-powered train, the mail apartment provides equipment which will facilitate the handling of mail in the most modern manner. It is expected that the new fast Rocket service will advance by many hours the delivery of through mail to and from the territory in Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado and beyond.

Officials claim that the inauguration of the new Rocket trains Sunday will provide one of the fastest mail services in the middle-west. The seven-car train is made up of a baggage car, two coaches, one of which contains the mail section, three light-weight Pullman sleeping cars and a lounge-buffet-drawing room observation car. It is powered by a 2,000 horsepower Diesel locomotive.
