HAWKS SET FOR WILDCAT BATTLE

They're All Set to See Those Wildcats Subdued

Movie Industry Threatened By General Strike

Theaters in U. S., Canada May Close; Ask Wage Increase

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 24 (AP)—Movie producers rejected the demands of studio unions for 10 per cent wage increases today and union officials countered with an announcement they would call a strike closing every motion picture theater in the United States and Canada.

William Bioff, chairman of the Conference of Studio Unions, said that unless the wage increases were granted tomorrow, there would be a "general strike closing all studios and theaters."

Bioff did not mention specifically the projectionists employed in the 20,000 movie theaters in the United States and neither he nor his associations would discuss strike strategy. But in previous negotiations Bioff said bluntly the pay increases would be obtained, if all other means failed, by the expedient of closing the theaters.

Possible Walkout

No hour was set for the walk-out tomorrow at the movie studios, where 35 pictures are in the process of production. There are 35,000 technicians in Hollywood who would be subject to the strike call.

Referring to a statement of producers in rejecting the demands, "due to the necessity of a complete readjustment with which the industry is faced," the union announcement said:

"We feel that the underpaid workers should get that increase now."

Twelve thousand studio employees who are members of unions affiliated with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage employees were granted a 10 per cent wage increase recently.

When the producers asked that they consent to its withdrawal because of demoralized condition of the foreign film market, the unions refused and delivered an ultimatum demanding the same increase for 23,000 other union employees with the alternative of a strike.

Third Term Creeps in Again

City Mayor Strikes Note for Four Years More for Roosevelt

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24 (AP)—A third term note, struck by the mayor, picked up by the women's civic club, and sounded again by President Roosevelt, ran through ceremonies at which the village community center was dedicated today.

What it all meant, if anything, was not quite clear. Mr. Roosevelt himself, who has joshed reporters several times lately about "biting" at chances to speculate about a third term, gave no definite hint today about his intentions.

He merely remarked, in an informal speech, that "You good people (of Warm Springs) are not at all grasping," adding that at every meeting he had attended in his home town, Hyde Park, N. Y., for four or five years, someone always wanted to know when the village was going to get a new postoffice.

"Well, what have we got?" Mr. Roosevelt went on, "we've got a little over a year left. I don't know that the next administration would give Warm Springs a new postoffice."

"Maybe if I get (Postmaster General) Jim Farley and get him firmly by the neck, I might squeeze a postoffice out of him."

Just as a suggestion, he said, the people of Warm Springs ought to "start the ball rolling" so that their congressman would "get in line."

No one's afraid of the big bad wolf, not even when he's dressed like a wildcat. When the first battalions of Hawkeye fans took over the LaSalle hotel in Chicago yesterday as Iowa's official headquarters for the out-of-town game trip, these four Hawkeye followers were found discussing the situation in one of the more quiet corners. A new era of Iowa pep seemed opened when Iowa fans arrived in Chicago. Predictions are that this will be the most enthusiastic and largest crowd ever to follow a Hawkeye team for an official band and students trip. Shown in the above picture are P. D. Van Oosterhout of Orange City, Prof. George Haskell of the college of commerce, Bruce E. Mahan, alumni secretary, and M. D. Van Oosterhout of Orange City. P. D. Van Oosterhout, an Iowa alumnus, was editor-in-chief of the old Vidette Reporter, college newspaper at Iowa in the early 90's and predecessor of The Daily Iowan. He played left tackle with the Hawkeyes in 1892-93. His son, M. D. Van Oosterhout, was a representative for Sioux county at the last general assembly. Professor Haskell, who was chairman of the Homecoming committee, is a member of the trip committee, and in that capacity carries part of the responsibility for the 5,000 more or less fans who'll be watching their Hawkeye team battle Northwestern today. This picture and those which appear on page 4 of today's Iowan were made by John Mueller, Daily Iowan photographer, and brought to Iowa City on Rock Island trains. Original plans to have these pictures rushed to Iowa City by plane were cancelled when foggy weather prevented the planes from landing in Iowa City last night.

Iowa Students, Bands Take Over Windy City

Engage in Pep Rallies in Loop

By LOREN HICKERSON
Daily Iowan Managing Editor
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 24 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—Iowa moved into Chicago today, and settled in the midst of the Windy City shouting "Beat Northwestern" in no uncertain terms.

Within five minutes after the Hawkeye special reached the LaSalle street station in Chicago, the LaSalle hotel, headquarters for the Iowans, was turned into a bedlam. Students by the hundreds, among them members of the University of Iowa bands and Highlanders, surged into the lobby shouting and cheering for Iowa's team in the game against Northwestern tomorrow.

The festivities got underway early in the day. At noon at the Bismarck hotel, a joint luncheon honored both universities, with prominent speakers of Iowa and Northwestern appearing on the program.

Speaking before the 200 who attended the affair were Northwestern's Coach Lynn Waldorf, Line Coach Bert Ingwersen and Director of Athletics Tug Wilson. For Iowa there were Dean Emeritus Carl E. Seashore, president of the University of Iowa club of Chicago; George Frasier, prominent alumnus; Virgil Hanscher, past president of the Alumni As-

Nazis Damage British Cruiser

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Breaking a three-day silence, the admiralty admitted tonight that "a torpedo or mine" had damaged the new, 10,000-ton cruiser Belfast last Tuesday at the Fifth of North naval base with injury to twenty men.

The admiralty had withheld comment on reports abroad since Tuesday that the Belfast had been damaged and the announcement today by the German high command that a Nazi submarine commander had confirmed a raid on the Fifth of North.

Nazi air raiders bombed three warships at the strategic Scottish naval base Oct. 16, inflicting casualties on the cruisers Southampton, Edinburgh and the destroyer Mohawk.

The admiralty's statement said the Belfast now was undergoing repairs.

Meanwhile, the sea lanes on which Britain depends for food bore new losses and there was increasing tension over neutral complaints against the threatened British blockade of German ports. The latest victim of east coast mines—some of which the British assert were laid by Nazi planes—was the 8,886-ton British steamer Mangalore, whose crew of 77 was saved.

Magnetic Mine Feasible

Yet Idea of Mine Loaded With Magnetism Appears as Fantastic

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—As to weigh little in water, the magnetic mine is scientifically feasible, but it is not the kind which the public visions in the British reports of a new German magnetic mine.

This idea is of a mine so loaded with magnetism that it is attracted to the hull of a steel ship. That, said both scientists and commercial magnet experts today, is fantastic.

In explaining why magnetic attraction will not be used, they pointed out there are two kinds of magnets available, permanent, and electro-magnetic. The newest permanent magnet, an alloy containing aluminum, nickel and cobalt, is so powerful that half a pound of it will hold 10 pounds of steel.

The electro-magnet, run by batteries, is feasible in a sea mine. It would, moreover, be about five times more powerful than the new permanent magnet.

But again the inverse square law interferes. For example, the huge electro-magnets used to pick up scrap iron are effective mostly within only a foot. One of these magnets six feet in diameter can pick up only 30 pounds at 10 inches. Even with a mine so buoyant

'Watch Kinnick' Is Battle Cry Of Fans During Celebrations

Dr. Eddie Anderson Puts Gridders Through Final Workout of Season at Loyola U.; 'Iron Men' Ready

By OSCAR HARGRAVE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 24 (Special To The Daily Iowan)—Dr. Eddie Anderson put his Hawkeye gridders through their final workout on the Loyola university field this afternoon and the stage was set for what may be a football finale that will far outshine any of the mid-season spectacles.

The general opinion here is that Northwestern has a tough ball team, but everybody says, "Watch Kinnick." An unpredictable ball game, one might call tomorrow's contest. The experts string with Northwestern — there aren't enough Hawkeyes. But even those experts admit the chance of a mistake.

Wildcat Power

Kinnick, whose all-American spot is bought and paid for, has a lot more backing than anyone suspects in Mike Enich, Wally Bergstrom, Capt. Erwin Prasse, Bill Green, Dick Evans and the rest of the "Iron Men." But the Wildcat backs, with Hahnenstein, Bill De Correvont and Don Clawson leading the parade, have power, which is claimed to be rolling now after a slow start at the beginning of the season.

Confesses To Double Killing

First Degree Murder Charges To Be Filed Against Iowa Man

County Attorney Harold Vestermark said last night that first degree murder charges will be filed against Charles Becicka, 28, Ely, who confessed early yesterday morning of the fatal shooting of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Novotny, near Shueville Sept. 9, as soon as federal authorities now holding him in Davenport on extortion charges turn him over to Johnson county officials.

Vestermark said it is not probable that definite action will be taken until next week since Becicka is scheduled to answer extortion charges in a Des Moines federal court Tuesday.

Becicka signed the confession at dawn yesterday stating that he arrived in Iowa City by bus from Des Moines the night of the murder and rode to the Shueville farm home in a taxi.

He told authorities he went to the house intending to rob his relatives but his uncle's threat to call the police resulted in the slaying.

Sheriff Don McComas said Becicka obtained less than $20 from the aged couple.

Becicka said he walked back to Cedar Rapids after the murder, eight miles from Shueville after failing in an attempt to start a small car. He said he returned to Des Moines the next morning.

The alleged murderer was arrested in a Des Moines postoffice Nov. 15 while, officials said, he was awaiting $200 in $20 bills which he had demanded in a letter to Wesley Novotny, recently appointed administrator of the estate of George Novotny.

Becicka is a former Des Moines restaurant employee.

Stanley Englert Admits $862 Bank Robbery

CHEROKEE, Nov. 24 (AP)—County Attorney Archie R. Nelson said tonight Stanley Englert, 29, Remsen, farmer, had signed a statement admitting he robbed the Cleghorn State bank of $862 this afternoon.

Nelson said Englert told him he needed the money for bills and other expenses and had been planning the holdup several days.

Happy Ending?

The Hawkeyes, who have been the underdogs in every game they have played since the season's opener with South Dakota, may put a happy ending on the story book thrillers they have been writing every Saturday afternoon.

With practically every source of material on the squad tapped to capacity, Anderson will send a fighting, fearless team that doesn't know what the word quit means, against the Wildcat powerhouse.

The Hawkeye attack will depend as usual, on the ability of Nile Kinnick, the 170-pound dynamo that does everything with a football including autographing it. With Kinnick lies the task of keeping the invaders back in their own territory with his 40 yard punts, passing and running the enemy all over the field, drop kicking the extra points, directing the team in case Couppee is forced to leave the field and sustaining the full 60 minutes of pounding and battering against the Purple stalwarts. He's proved his worth though — he hasn't been relieved, taken time out or forced off the field during the past six games, a total of 360 minutes on the gridiron without relief.

Helping Kinnick in the Iowa backfield will be Al Couppee, Floyd Dean, Ed McLain, Ray Murphy and Bill Green. All have played their share of the games this year and are expected to give the vaunted Wildcat attack plenty of trouble. Indications are that Iowa may stay to the ground, as they did against Norte Dame, relying on the fast charging and hard running of Murphy, Green, and Dean.

Anderson has been giving special attention to Green the past week on power plays into the line and it may be that victory will hinge on the Newton speedster and the plunging Murphy.

The Iowa line, which has withstood the pounding of the finest forwards in the nation, will receive another stern test this afternoon. Outweighed as usual and lacking in reserve strength, the Hawks will have to rely on the endurance of Prasse, Evans, Enich, Bergstrom, Tollefson and the showing of George Frye, untried sophomore who will get the center call.

Frye will fill the vacancy left by Bruno Andruska when he was (See HAWKS, Page 4)

Teaching

Ban for Him

Twelve hundred people packed Macbride auditorium to hear a man who led a revolution in education, "Billy" Phelps of Yale. Officially he's Prof. Emeritus William Lyon Phelps, who since 1892, when he began teaching freshmen at New Haven, has done more than any other man in his time to promote the love of books.

Teaching was a serious business before Billy Phelps appeared on the scene. Outworn pedagogical tradition and formal discipline made study a dry and uninteresting pursuit for most college students. Even young instructors of thirty did their best to keep in step with the time by trying to act like old men.

But Billy Phelps would not act like an old man. He resolved to be exactly the same man in the classroom that he was out of it. As a result the personality of the teacher himself rose above any prescribed method of teaching.

Billy Phelps not only shares the responsibility for making informality in college teaching as common as it is now, he also has several "firsts" connected with his name. He was the first American professor to present a course on the modern novel at a leading American university, the first American critic to introduce the great Russian novelists to an American audience, and, of course, he introduced the famous "brek-ek-ek-coax-coax" as a college cheer.

But Professor Phelps is not so well-known for his "firsts" as for his ability to appreciate almost anything. It is this, together with his amazing gift for friendship, that has caused his host of friends to drop the "My Dear Professor Phelps" when addressing him, and to adopt the familiar "Dear Billy."

What

Of Tomorrow?

WE CAN study the growth of government up through the ages, we can see its errors and improvements, but the question upmost in everyone's mind today concerning government is "What of Tomorrow?"

The only way in which we can even attempt to prophesy the future is to examine the tendencies of the present in the light of the experience of the past. The only thing we can be sure of is change. Our forefathers imagined that the democratic form of government which they had set up would last for all time, and the prevailing opinion 50 years ago was undoubtedly that the future would in all essential points resemble the present.

This generation has seen too many illusions shattered and too many institutions wiped away to have much confidence in any form of government. There is just one thing that we can be sure of, and that is that democracy will not live without an intelligent interest on the part of the citizen in the affairs of state, and this interest has too often been on the wane. If we are not interested in preserving our liberty, no one else will be. If we do not get out and vote, no one else will see that our rights are upheld.

Because we think we are just too busy to waste time in seeing that our democracy is maintained, we will turn our backs and shut our eyes, and someone who was not too busy will worm his way into power.

The tendency today is toward dictatorships, government of efficiency, not liberty, but Americans still hold liberty above all else.

Let's keep our freedom by showing a little interest in it and more appreciation of it.

Hitting

The High Spots

THE trouble with moderns is that they're always in a hurry. They have achieved something of the hotel-transient attitude to life. They travel light and hardly unpack their grips. They say, "I'm only here a while, where are the high spots?" And they go out after the high spots, watch in hand.

The slang phrase, "I'll try anything once," reflects this modern viewpoint — wanting to experience anything. Statistics influence and contribute to our hysteria. Tell a man, for instance, that he has only so many billion heart-beats in a lifetime and he wants to make every one count. Look at the faces one meets. With very few exceptions they are all intent on making the next leap.

If by chance you encounter the rare, calm person with a relaxed attitude towards life, it is sufficiently arresting to give rise to comment. He confuses us. His pace guns up the parade, as a person driving slowly holds back the procession of the rest of us who are bent upon burning up the road.

With the relatively few cares that we college students have, we are ever in a hurry. We do not confront ourselves. We want to forget ourselves. Perhaps we are afraid of ourselves. We are afraid of being alone. We are afraid of silence. We have lost the music of our merely being alive, so we turn on the radio. We must bring ourselves together, and then, regardless of the turmoil of the world, we will know peace.

NO TIME TO LEARN

Always, or so students are told, educators are striving to perfect old methods and discover new methods and principles of education. Always, or so students are told, this search has resulted in perfection of educational technique and progress which benefit the student. Always, or so students are told, the way to get the most out of their education is not just to read the text and parrot back the instructor's notes. Read outside books.

It is not enough that they are often given assigned "outside" reading lists to complete in a quarter which no mortal man could possibly complete and remain in good health and in good standing in other courses. No, this is not enough, because to top this they will be encouraged to read other books often with a dubious relationship to the subject under consideration.

Of course, it is easy to say that students who can't get through a course without having to resort to additional reading are behind the intellectual eight-ball to begin with, and there may be something in this. But those students who really want at least to sample the extra reading, and especially current books, to secure the "bread" education for which this reading is said to be so necessary, find themselves blocked by one thing that most "progressive" educators seem to have overlooked — time. By the time most students have satisfactorily completed their ordinary assignments, they can't do the very things they are told they should do. They have had time to do everything but to complete their education.

Progressive educators have set up many new courses to meet changing conditions — courses such as those in marriage problems which some universities have instituted. Instead of permitting students to select electives whose only function is to check off, so many credit hours in the college office, maybe the smart thing to do would be to create an advanced reading course — a course devoted purely to an examination of worth-while current books. From the point of view of ultimate benefit, a liberally conducted course of this kind would be of more benefit than many elective courses now offered.

When a farmer gets shot at by a "city" hunter, he naturally prefers to have been mistaken for a bull moose and not a rabbit.

Star Drinks 'Bitter Cup' One Day --- Up Next; Tucker Finds Bits of Life in A Restaurant

NEW YORK — There is a Child's restaurant on Fifth avenue where interesting little things sometimes happen, and if you are lucky enough to be passing at the time you may run into them.

The entire front of this restaurant is glass, and once while passing there about four in the afternoon I saw a girl sitting at a table, with a cup of coffee at her hand in which, for some reason, she seemed no longer interested. There was an aura of melancholy about her, and her face bore such an expression of utter loneliness that I retraced my steps for another look at her. She seemed vaguely familiar, but after awhile I went away. I didn't know who she was, but I was sure of one thing — if I ever came over her again, I knew that I would recognize her.

It was, consequently, with a great deal of interest that I saw her picture in all the New York papers a few days later. She was Julie Hayden, of the films, and she had been given a part in "Shadow and Substance." This part made her a star, and today she is on Broadway in a most unusual drama called "The Time of Your Life."

Why she seemed so utterly dejected that afternoon in Child's I don't know. In any case, I never pass there without glancing at that table where she sat and thinking of the poor forlorn little girl who let her coffee grow cold while she brooded over the vagaries of life in Manhattan.

Today, about four, I passed there again and a little old lady, with a hat that looked like a small bonnet, only it wasn't a bonnet, was sitting at that same table — sound asleep. She must have been 80. I kept thinking about her, and again I retraced my steps. This time I went inside. As the waitress placed an order in front of me I motioned to the tiny figure of this very old little lady, and the waitress smiled and nodded. "She comes in here several times a week," she whispered, "and always goes to sleep. She's quite a wonderful old lady. And very sweet. Her family's in the breakfast-food business. Her name is Kellogg."

Later — several hours later — I crawled into a cab and named an address on the east side of town. After we had driven, or rather fought our way through traffic for awhile, I asked the driver if he had the time, and the way he said, "Twenty minutes to nine," caused me to look at his watch, and wonder who he was.

He was a Negro with white hair, and I said, "Uncle, are you making any money?" "Not doing bad," he chirped, "pick up a dollar now and then."

"We had quite a talk. I was trying to place that peculiar blur in his voice. And after awhile I said, 'You a New Yorker, Uncle?' "That's right, New York. . . I been here 40 years."

"But this man had soft, round corners to his words that no New Yorker ever had, and so after awhile I got back on the subject. I said, 'Forty years is a long time, Uncle.' "Right long time," he agreed, "but I made a mistake. I been here 42 years last July."

Again there was that whisper of something that maybe was Tennessee, or Georgia, in the way he said "faw-ty-two years," but it wasn't Manhattan.

"Yes, I know, Uncle — but where were you before that—Savannah?" He swung clear around in his seat and his fine old face spread into a pleased grin. "Jacksonville," he said, "Jacksonville." The rains and the snows of 42 Yankee winters had brought wrinkles to his face and added white to his head, but only by a job had they altered the "possum and the muscadines that have always been wrapped up in his voice.

AROUND THE TOWN

With MERLE MILLER

THOUGHTS FROM A DESERTED VILLAGE!

Half a dozen local women's club leaders are the nucleus of a serious investigation into student working conditions. . . The whole thing is developing in a quiet way, but already the groundwork is laid for a wholesale reform movement, I understand. . .

These women, backed by their organizations, may present a formal report to the university about the restaurant employers who impose four hours daily for the regulation three meals, who serve their help day-old food and kitchen leavings, who take half a week's salary in broken-dish fines. . .

There's one downtown student employer who's taken four social security payments during the last year — instead of the customary, legal one. . .

Out at City high there are a few who're pretty angry about that assembly last Tuesday, the one that cast aspersions on "good sportsmanship" simply because they joined the university in celebrating Iowa's and their own week end victory. . .

Win or lose, history or not, the University of Iowa will hold classes come Monday. . . But definitely. . .

Uncle Sam's apparently taken a tip from the advertiser's notebook. . . Those signs at the post office urging Christmas card sending by use first-class are a little misleading. . .

The sign says, "Third-class mail is not returned. First-class is returnable." . . Maybe that's because the first-class envelope picture has a return address and the third-class card hasn't. . .

"Lecture for One" Professor Nybakken's class in "Greek Life" had two students when the semester got underway. . . But the boy enrolled had to drop school. Now Betty Gilliland's pencil-scratching is the only one there. . . Kind of an eerie, deserted feeling, I guess. . .

LEGENDS by the score were left by Billy Phelps' 30 hours on the campus. . . Such as his high tribute to Prof. "Tommy" Thompson as one of the most brilliant of his students in 43 years of teaching. . .

His shaking hands by the hundreds, from bus-boys to Gilmore. . . His declaring he remembers more names by the dozen than any Jim Farley. . .

His close resemblance, in manner as well as appearance, to our own Shambaugh. . . (Professor Shambaugh's Thursday evening introduction was a masterpiece (as almost always). . .

Seeing Sammy Sloan slip out of the lecture as the applause rounded-up on Thursday reminded me Phelps is to Yale what Sammy's to us. . .

ON LEAVING IOWA CITY. . . One of those who's been around the campus for half-a-dozen years is leaving for a new job and a new town. . . We were reminiscing last night, listing the features we'd miss on going. This is my partial compilation — . . .

The hospital tower after 7 p.m. . . The libraries, inconvenient, stuffy, drafty as they are, still Iowa's best. . . An afternoon in Iowa Union's library (when the librarian isn't chattering). . .

An opening night in University theater. . . The daubing artists in the art building, trying to decide which ones are the to-be Grant Woods and Michelangelos of our generation. . .

A raw Saturday afternoon during the football season of the year 1939 A.D. . .

CITATION FOR BRAVERY Edwin Kelle's book on the Abe Lincoln Battalion in Spain mentions Rog Hargrave for special bravery, tells the story of his days in the hospital when he was the only English-speaking patient there. . . Rog's wounds from the Spanish affair may, soon, be only a memory, I'm glad to report. . . He's better

Hollywood's Got The Autumn Dithers Again; Candidates Ballyhoo Claims for Film 'Oscars'

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — The first breath of what passes for autumn weather in this remote territory brings on again the town's annual attack of Academy Award blues and dithers.

The big banquet honoring the selections comes off in the spring, but the deadline for "candidates" is not far away. The academy awards "year" ranges from January 1 to December 31, and the films that have not been shown in this area during that period are out in the cold for the spring voting.

Another few weeks, during which the major contender yet unreleased but set this side of the deadline is "Gone With the Wind," will tell the tale. This offering, regardless of its critically and popular reception, will surely weigh heavily in the final verdict: First, because it cost about $4,000,000, and there's no balloteer in town who'll sneeze at that dough. Second, because it'll be freshest, with all its ballyhoo, in the memory of the voters—the workers in the film industry.

Awards for "bests" in a field of competition so varied and many-faceted as the movies are rather silly to begin with. To determine the "best performance" angle, for instance, it would be necessary to have the contenders each play the same role or a similar role. If Charles Laughton is so good, say, as "The Beachcomber," let's see what he'd do in James Stewart's spot as "Mr. Smith," and vice versa. Every actor, I mean, is limited by his type and role — although more frequently it happens that the role is limited by the actor.

For all that, there's a likely list of candidates for top honors in both actor and actress divisions. The men sure to rate heavy consideration include Stewart, for "Mr. Smith," Laurence Olivier for "Wuthering Heights," Robert Donat for "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," Spencer Tracy ("Stanley and Livingstone") is never to be overlooked, nor is James Cagney ("The Roaring Twenties") and "Each Dawn I Die," nor is Henry Fonda ("For Young Mr. Lincoln"). Inevitably, Clark Gable will come up for "Gone" — and stand a good chance. And Muni is always with us.

The ladies of the town are easier to list, as fewer have had roles of a caliber to merit unusual attention. Including Vivien Leigh of "Gone" as a certain contender, the field otherwise belongs practically to Bette Davis, who has three notches in her Oscar-shooting rifle — "Dark Victory," "Jezebel," "The Old Maid." There is Anna Neagle (an 18-carat job in "Nurse Edith Cavell") and there's Garbo, a topper for "Ninotchka." As for the rest, I can't see one other performance, however successful, which represents anything more than competent work, pleasant personality, and the ability to take good direction.

The other most-limelighted award is the director's. Here the old-timers, with one exception, have the field to themselves. The exception is young Garson Kanin, who put up "The Great Man Votes" and "Bachelor Mother." The old-timers, few of them strangers to award nominations, are Frank Capra for "Mr. Smith," Victor Fleming for "Gone," Ernst Lubitsch for "Ninotchka," Leo McCarey on "Love Affair," Michael Curtiz for "Elizabeth and Essex" and others, Edmund Goulding for "We Are Not Alone" and "Dark Victory," John Ford for "Stagecoach," and "Drums Along the Mohawk," and William Wyler for "Wuthering Heights." Probable winners (but I haven't seen "Gone" yet): Stewart, Davis, Capra.

PHIL SPITALNY and his "Hour of Charm" ensemble, now on tour, are due to broadcast again from New York a week from tomorrow, Dec. 3.

IT IS EXPECTED that all three major networks will air the New Year's day Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena, Cal., this season. NBC had an exclusive on it last year.

The record players are raving about that amazing improvisation and slow groove tempo of Bobby Hackett, trumpeter on the Horace Heidt "Pol O' Gold" programs, on the new Vocalion waxing of "I Surrender, Dear" and "Ja Da."

THE ABOVE came from a publicity agent. Personally, I never heard of either of the particular recordings, much less the ravings.

Boni Picks Hawks to Win; Irish To Beat Trojans Muscatine Overpowers

Three Major Championships To Be Decided

Buckeyes Favored Over Wolverines; Purdue To Triumph

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Three major conference championships and the eastern "Ivy League" title come up for settlement tomorrow as college football reaches its next-to-last major Saturday. But chief interest will be attached to the gridiron festivities at South Bend, Ind., where no championship of any sort will be at stake.

Irish, Trojans Meet

There Rose Bowl-minded Tennessee's scouts will be in the jam-packed stands as unbeaten, onced Southern California deploys against Notre Dame. It promises to be a battle of potent backfields with manpower likely to decide the issue and both teams amply equipped in that respect.

Two conference races will come to a close in the middle west, Ohio State, which has gained the momentum of a streamlined steamroller, will stack up against Michigan and can be tied for Big Ten honors only if upset by the Wolverines while Iowa is dumping Northwestern. Missouri can sew up Big Six honors by beating underdog Kansas.

A tie seems the likely finish in the Southern conference, where Duke and Clemson, all-winning in league competition, will be favored to win their final games from North Carolina State and Furman, respectively. Cornell, third in national rankings this week, will seek its second straight Ivy league championship and first all-winning season since 1923 in its annual battle with Penn; Harvard and Yale will meet in their traditional clash, and on the Pacific coast U.C.L.A. seeking to keep up with Southern California in the race for the Rose Bowl, is likely to strike a tartar in Oregon State.

While a number of top teams can hold their fire until the second Thanksgiving day or next Saturday, this observer is not as fortunate and therefore puts the following predictions on the line (probable attendance figures in parentheses):

Forecasts

Notre Dame-Southern California (56,000)—They said the Trojans have been priming for this one all fall. Despite the awesome reputations of Messrs. Schindler, Lansell and Nave, this vote goes to Notre Dame.

Penn-Cornell (70,000)—This vote is for Cornell.

U.C.L.A.-Oregon State (60,000)—Tossing out last week's tie with Santa Clara, U.C.L.A.

Ohio State-Michigan (75,000)—We like the Buckeyes' all-around strength and plunk down for Ohio State.

Iowa the Choice

Iowa-Northwestern (40,000)—Probably because we've picked against them the last two weeks, Nile Kinnick and Co., will double-cross us this time. Still, those Hawkeyes should be rolling for fair and Iowa is the choice.

Harvard-Yale (57,000)—Harvard.

Duke-North Carolina State (10,000)—Shouldn't be hard for the Dukes.

Nebraska-Oklahoma (35,000)—The Huskers are improving rapidly, and are the choice to surprise Nebraska.

Carnegie Tech-Duquesne (30,000)—Duquesne.

Clemson-Furman (16,000)—Clemson.

Purdue-Indiana (25,000)—Purdue on superior attacking strength.

Kansas-Missouri (24,000)—Missouri, which proved a week ago that it doesn't need Christman's passes to win.

Texas Christian-Rice (10,000)—T.C.U., which is beginning to rally.

Princeton-Navy (35,000)—The choice is Princeton, beaten only by Cornell.

Stanford-California (70,000)—California.

Boston college-Kansas State (20,000)—Boston college.

Wisconsin-Minnesota (40,000)—Not too hard for Minnesota.

Chicago-Illinois (5,000)—Chicago won one last week, but not this Illinois.

Penn State-Pitt (15,000)—Tabbing Penn State for an upset.

Elsewhere: Columbia over Colgate; George Washington over Bucknell; Temple over Michigan State; Creighton over Oklahoma A. and M.; Drake over Tulsa; Baylor over Southern Methodist.

Bulldogs Meet Tulsa

DES MOINES, Iowa, (AP)—Thirty Drake university football players left last night for Oklahoma to play Tulsa university today.

From Tulsa, the players will go to California to play San Jose state college Nov. 30.

Hawkeye Highlights

Iowans were much worried about the Big Ten scoring record of Gordon Locke, 72 points, made in 1922, when Terrible Tommy Harmon was on the rampage. . . the Michigan lad, however, now has only 52 points. . . and is most unlikely to make 22 against Ohio State Saturday.

R. R. Davis of London, England, ardent follower of Iowa football teams, will receive his annual copy of a Hawkeye football program. . . he's Iowa champion long distance fan. . . Davis is with a squad which mans searchlights and anti-aircraft guns in London each night. . . he writes that when the program arrives he probably will be in France.

Expect to see Bill Green on the Hawkeye track team next winter and spring. . . the fullback is a 309.8 sprinter and a broad jumper good for around 23 feet. . . state prep champion in both events.

As a fan remarked recently, what a drawing card Iowa's basketball team would be should Nile Kinnick become a member of it. . . Nile, you know, was a mighty good forward as a sophomore, scoring 75 points in conference games. . . but he gave up the sport to concentrate upon his studies. . . and he is not likely to change his mind this year.

Some of the Iowa swimmers will go to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., during Christmas vacation for the national aquatic forum. . . Hawks have made the trip regularly in recent years.

Dr. Anderson could not possibly fill all of the football dinner requests he has received. . . but he will do the best he can. One of his prize requests in a recent mail was from a Massachusetts girl who wanted him to write a short history of "Iowa College."

Writers Voice Praise of Iowa And Anderson

These fighting Hawkeyes and their coach Dr. Eddie Anderson have been receiving more recognition than a movie star at a world premiere. Here are a few paragraphs clipped from some of the papers:

Henry McLemore—United Press—"Kinnick is the player of the year as far as this section is concerned, and after 24 hours of listening to accounts of his prowess I am convinced that if he doesn't get the Heisman memorial trophy for the standout gridiron performance of the season, then that award might just as well be split into kindling wood to start somebody's fire."

Roundy Coughlin—"This Coach Anderson he is the king of the nation. With its corn and Anderson it is the biggest state in the Union now."

Grantland Rice—"Whatever happens, Eddie Anderson's Iowa team, Nile Kinnick and Ernie, have put through the master job of the year—one of the finest accomplishments in the game."

Herb Barker—Associated Press—"One of the season's most sensational teams."

St. Louis Ekes Out 6-0 Victory Over South Dakota

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24 (AP)—Held at bay for 54 minutes by brilliant punting, the St. Louis university Billkins finally put on an 88-yard touchdown drive for a 6 to 0 non-conference victory over the University of South Dakota here tonight.

Johnny Gall, St. Louis fullback, plunged the last foot for the score after the Billkins had advanced for their own 11.

The Bills' march came after they had halted the Coyotes' closest bid for a touchdown. Don Forney, South Dakota right half, intercepted Cletus Roemer's pass on the 50 and galloped to the St. Louis 20 before he was dropped. The Coyotes reached the 11 on plunges before St. Louis braced to take the ball on downs.

Bill Noehr dove to the 15 on the first play, and Gall broke through center to the 50 on the second. Emmett Rensing skirted end to the 40 and Roemer to the 35 before Gall again found a hole at center and smashed to the 16. Roemer slipped off tackle to the 10, and in three more plays Gall went over.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24 (AP)—George Pace, the National Boxing association's world bantamweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Jimmy Webster of Toronto in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout tonight.

Last Game for Hawkeye Ends

Two Hawkeye players will return to their home town this afternoon when Iowa tangles with Northwestern. The two men who hail from Chicago are Capt. Ervin Prasse and Dick Evans, regular ends on Dr. Eddie Anderson's "wonder team." Prasse, a potential nine-letter man and an all-conference end last season, has been one of the spearheads in the Iowa defense all season. He has accounted for 24 of his team's points so far this year, clinging to four of Nile Kinnick's tosses. He is also tied for third position in the conference scoring race. Evans, Prasse's mate at right end, has also accounted for himself in the Iowa attack this year. Evans is big, rugged and also a fine pass receiver.

Olympics Abandoned

BRUSSELS, Nov. 24 (AP)—The winter Olympic games, doomed from the start of the European conflict, have been abandoned and will not be transferred from Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, to another site, it was announced today by Count Henri de Baillet Latour, president of the International Olympic committee.

Latour's announcement followed an earlier one from the German Olympic officials, saying they would be forced to resign as hosts to the skaters, skiers and bob-sledders because of the rule forbidding a warring nation to stage the games.

Light-Heavy King Almost Unanimous Choice for Honor

By SID FEDDER
NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Edward J. Neil memorial trophy for 1939, honoring the memory of the late Associated Press foreign correspondent and boxing writer, was awarded today to Billy Conn, dark-haired world light-heavyweight champion.

Excellent Record

Conn, who is 22, has been fighting professionally only since 1935, and has campaigned actively as a light-heavyweight for less than eight months. He won the title from Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., in Madison Square Garden last July, and defended it successfully against Bettina in Pittsburgh in September and against Gus Lesnevich of Cliffside Park, N. J., here several days ago.

In their rankings for each division, the boxing writers voted Bettina and Lesnevich as leading challengers for Conn's crown.

Garcia Recognized

Among the middleweights, where a controversy over champions exists, the writers named Ceferino Garcia, recognized in New York state and California, as their titleholder, with Al Hostak of Seattle, who holds National Boxing association recognition, voted the leading challenger. Vic Delicurti of New York, was second challenger.

Henry Armstrong, who defends his welterweight championship against Lightweight Titleholder Lou Ambers here next Friday, headed the 147-pound ranks, with

McIntyre Puts Muskies Ahead In Rough Tilt

By BILL BUCKLEY
Daily Iowan Sports Reporter
Putting up a great fight all the way, a vastly improved City high basketball five succumbed to a superior passing, sharpshooting quintet from Muscatine last night, 40 to 27 at the new high school gym.

Coach Francis Merten's quintet gave a show of future promise throughout the game, as they kept hanging away at the huge Muskie total with plenty of heart. Outnumbered, but never outfought, the Hawkleys played a rough and ready ball game, making it close all the way. Thirty four personal fouls were called in the game, but Muscatine committed 20 of them, with Iowa City capitalizing on 11 free throws.

Muscatine jumped away to an early 8 to 2 lead in the first quarter, and never relinquished it. The Hawkleys kept even the rest of the first half, trailing 14 to 8 at that point. The experience and polish of the Blue and Gold gave the fans the impression that they were toying with Iowa City, as they scored on every opportunity given them.

Apparently angered by the close guarding and ball hawking by Muscatine, Iowa City got a minor rebellion under way almost immediately. Led by Ray Sullivan, a lanky, loose-jointed sophomore, and Dick Culbertson, elongated Negro center, the Red and White brought the house down in a last, futile rally which pulled them to within 5 markers of the rampaging Muskies at one time. Superior ball handling and coolness under fire spelled victory for Muscatine, however, as they repeatedly kept the ball away from the Red and White in the closing minutes.

In the preliminary game, the City high sophomores trounced the Muscatine yearlings, 29 to 12, in a walkaway. Ray Sullivan scored 14 points for Iowa City to lead the play.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

- Traditional Rivalry
- 14th Anniversary
- Rockne's Manpower

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 24 (AP)—The smoke-veiled dusk of a crisp fall day 18 years ago was wrapping the placid countryside as the late Knute Rockne walked slowly across the old University of Iowa football field. He had just seen his Notre Dame team's 26-game winning streak snapped by Howard Jones' Hawkeyes.

"I want to see a lot more of that fellow," he remarked. "He's got some tricky maneuvers. Nothing was too good for Rockne's boys, and that included the quality of competition."

That remark was the seed of what has grown into one of the greatest of inter-sectional football rivalries. It took five years to sprout and blossom, and then half the setting was changed with Jones' westward trek, but since 1926 the USC-Notre Dame game has come along year after year as regularly as a birthday.

Tomorrow will be another crisp fall Saturday, everybody hopes, although today was none too promising with rooftops dunking in sullen gray clouds and the heavy atmosphere threatening to break out in a cold sweat any minute.

And tomorrow will see the 14th renewal of that inter-sectional rivalry, no less because Rockne has been gone these many years. Jones is bringing all his old tricks—say his Trojans run from five formations—but the Notre Dame team, although ably coached by Elmer Layden, one of Rockne's more famous pupils, isn't in all respects a Rockne team.

Layden has ideas of his own. Whereas Rockne sent in a team of shock-absorbers to start a game, and sent in his runners after the opposing team had worn itself down to a nubbin, Layden leads with his aces.

Rockne used from 50 to 80 plays a season. Layden has used about 22 this year, a vivid contrast to the 144 Hunk Anderson used to toss at the boys. Rockne used men by battalions and regiments. Only about 26 will qualify for letters this year, and in the tight games that's about all Layden uses.

On the quiet campus on the flats at the edge of town, along the banks of the St. Joseph river—which for some reason got its directions mixed and flows north—and in the downtown shops, the idea prevails that if the Irish take this one it will be by spirit alone.

Paul Bunyan tales of the prowess of the mighty Trojans have drifted back.

"They say it's the best USC team since 1921. Doyle Nave and Al Kreuger, who won three games for them last year, are only third stringers. They'll be shooting for that $100,000 Rose Bowl bid."

That's just a cross-section of the conversation. And against such an ogre Layden is sending a Notre Dame team which has been defeated once, has had more

Razzle Dazzle Texas Preps Put One In The Books

HARLINGEN, Tex., Nov. 24 (AP)—Take a deep breath and then wade into this bit of razzle dazzle concerning the football championship of district 36-B, Texas interscholastic league.

Rio Hondo won the lower bracket title and the right to meet Freer, the upper bracket winner, for the district championship.

Rio Hondo had beaten Lyford and Edcouch-Elsa but was found ineligible by the district committee for failure to turn in some game reports.

This gave the title to Lyford which had won over Edcouch-Elsa. But—

An ineligible player was discovered on the Lyford team, so Lyford forfeited the title to Edcouch-Elsa. But—

Edcouch-Elsa, having failed to win a conference game and having little material, forfeited the title game to Freer.

Which made Freer the champion.

Buckeyes Meet Wolverines In 17 Game Today

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 24 (AP)—For the first time in a decade the amalgamated order of self-appointed football forecaster neglected to award Ohio State the Western conference championship in September.

And so tomorrow the Buckeyes, one of the surprise eleven of an astonishing season, play Michigan here certain of walking off the field with no worse than a tie for the title.

This was to be Michigan's year, the forecasters said two months ago, but all the Wolverines can salvage out of their 36th meeting with the Scarlet and Gray is prestige, and the possibility of having knocked the Buckeyes out of their first undisputed conference championship since 1920.

If Ohio State defeats or ties Michigan, the title belongs to the Buckeyes alone for the first time since 1920.

If Michigan wins from Ohio State then Iowa, the No. 1 upstart of the fall warfare, can gain a share of the championship by beating Northwestern. A loss or a tie by Iowa will hand the crown to Ohio State all alone regardless of how the Buckeyes fare.

tight squeezes than a fist, and which is pretty much a team without a star.

You hear kind words spoken for end Bill Kerr, and one fan declared Mill Piepul, 217 pounds of thunder on the hoof, is the best fullback he's seen, but when Layden wants to win a game he just reaches into a bag and pulls out a hero for a day, so all is confusion when it comes to naming a standout.

The Irish are the underdogs, even their best friends will tell you, but 56,000 of the faithful bought up every ticket two weeks ago and will jam the stadium tomorrow with the hope of witnessing another of those breath-taking games which have made the series famous.

Hargrave Finds Chicago Fans Climbing on Iowa Band Wagon

There'll Be A Hot Time In The Old Town

'A Hunting We Will Go'

Chicago may have thought a cyclone had hit, but the enthusiasm of Iowa fans on this official students and bands trip to the Northwestern game knows no bounds. Enthusiasm which was first displayed when the team received a send-off at the station here yesterday morning continued when students arrived at the official Iowa headquarters in Chicago. Members of the University band and the Highlanders made themselves at home last night at the LaSalle hotel. The above picture shows a quintet of Iowa band members in a huddle for a little jam session. If Iowa's Iron Men come out on the winning end of the score tonight, the 6,000 Iowa followers in Chicago for the game will have even more cause for celebration. The band and Highlanders are scheduled to parade in Chicago's loop district this morning.

Wildcats are in season, and these laughing hunters were photographed as they began their journey to the happy hunting ground in Evanston. No Indian's heaven, Evanston is in Illinois. And it's the home of the Wildcats. When the Northwestern gridders trot onto the field today they'll find nearly 6,000 Iowa students and football followers waiting for them in the stadium. "Eleven Iron Men" will be waiting for the Wildcats on the field. Shown in the above pictures are groups of students who boarded the Rock Island special which left for Chicago yesterday noon. Thousands of other students drove to Chicago, and many more are expected to leave early today. A second Rock Island special is scheduled to leave Iowa City at 6:30 this morning for the Evansville encounter.

Finds Kinnick Has Captured Public Fancy

Chicago's Sing Corn Song Like Natives, Watch 'Miracle Men'

By OSCAR HARGRAVE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 24 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—The bellhop who took us to a Chicago hotel room looked at the Iowa badges and said, "I hope you win tomorrow."

That was the tipoff. These people around the windy city look you over, cogitate briefly and tell you their hopes ride with Iowa in tomorrow's struggle against Northwestern's Wildcats.

Much as we at Iowa City thought of those Hawkeyes, we could hardly realize the extent to which Nile Kinnick, as chief conquering hero, and the other Iowans have stepped out into the number one spot in 1939 public fancy. Why, they can't explain, but it is probably the same mixture of feelings which brought nearly 100,000 people to Iowa City in a period of eight days.

They are looking for a band of warriors of approximately Tom Thumb size who foil, outguess and outspeed any and all opponents. They are looking for a band of miracle men—the team that battled its way to six victories this year against only one defeat and with the cards stacked.

Eddie Anderson, mind you, is the nation's number one football coach and his Hawkeyes are the team everybody pulls for. You don't have to be from Iowa to sing the corn song any more. We would guess that in a couple years we might have a land boom out there if the football luck continues.

forced from the squad with a broken wrist suffered in the Minnesota game last week. Anderson and the squad have confidence in "Red" however, despite his lack of experience, and he may prove to be the spark needed to keep the "Iron Men" in the thick of the fight.

Northwestern's attack will be centered around the fast, hard-charging backfield of Bill De Correvont, Don Clawson, Red Hahnstein and Richards. De Correvont, a fine open field runner with speed to burn, will be the man for Iowa to watch. Teaming with De Correvont will be Clawson, plunging fullback who leads the Wildcats in total yardage and who will be a constant thorn in the side of the Iowa forward wall.

Purple Line Tough
The Purple line, which has replacements by the carloads, is a combination of power and speed. With a pair of fine ends in Grefe and Daly to snag passes and knock down enemy interference, Coach Waldorf has a set of veteran guards and tackles and an all-conference center in John Haman. Haman's right hand man, Hal Method also received all-conference recognition at right guard.

'We're Here Because We're Here'

That is what the Hawkeyes have to face this afternoon when they make their final bid for a possible chance at the conference crown and a fitting finale to a successful season.

It will be a smaller, less-experienced team with but a handful of players against a power house gang of bruising linemen and speedy backs. Iowa still has its spirit, courage and confidence left, and also a chance to share the conference title so the fireworks may fly fast and furious before the afternoon is over.

Light Rain .03 Inches Fall in City Yesterday

A light rain, measuring .03 inches last night, fell in Iowa City yesterday, starting about noon.

The mercury varied only eight degrees, from a low of 37 to a high of 45. Normal Nov. 24 extremes are 43 and 25. A year ago Iowa Citizens shivered as temperatures ranged from 12 to 26.

Thousands Go To Windy City To See Game

Hawkeye Fans Offer Cheers for Hawkeyes Before Chicago Exodus

After seeing the Hawkeye team safely on its way to Chicago, some 6,000 disciples of Dr. Eddie Anderson and his 1939 up-to-the-minute gridders boarded special trains and climbed into already loaded automobiles so that they, too, might be on hand when Iowa's chances for the Big Ten trophy are tried this afternoon at Northwestern.

Last night Iowans and Iowa fans in Chicago were led by the Iowa cheerleaders in an all-Iowa rally and dance at the Blackhawk hotel in Chicago. Featured were the guests of honor, Marshall Goldberg, all-American team member from Pittsburgh, and Henry Luebke.

This morning at 10 o'clock the Scottish Highlanders and the university football band will lead an Iowa parade through the Chicago loop before going to Evanston where the game with the Northwestern Wildcats will begin at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Immediately following the game, Iowa alumni will gather for a reception at the Edgewater Beach hotel from 5 to 7 o'clock. Special hotel accommodations have been arranged with the LaSalle hotel, official Iowa headquarters, for special student rates, offered when the student presents an identification certificate obtained from the university business office.

Rock Island railway officials made possible a special round trip ticket to the "Windy City" for the week end, and in addition provided two special trains, one which left yesterday noon and one which is scheduled to leave at 6:30 this morning from the Rock Island depot.

One train will leave Chicago tonight at 7 o'clock, reaching Iowa City at midnight. Other Saturday night trains will leave Chicago at 8:50 and 11:50.

There will be no train leaving Chicago for Iowa City between 1:15 a. m. and 8:50 p. m. tomorrow, the committee in charge has announced.

ize such a club as recently as two years ago have not succeeded, committee members feel that today the local interest in chess has developed sufficiently to warrant organization of a new club.

At Tuesday's meeting, plans for future meetings will be settled and officers elected.

'Now Bring On Those Wild Wildcats Of Yours'

It's fairly certain that this Iowa line would never hold the Wildcats this afternoon, but then these aren't the Iron Men. This group of Hawkeye fans staged a grid contest of their own in the lobby of Iowa's Chicago headquarters last night as they looked forward to the real thing this afternoon. Approximately 6,000 Iowa fans are making the trip to Chicago for the Iowa-Northwestern game. Leaving by auto, train and even airplane the fans who've seen Iowa rise to the top in one season under Eddie Anderson's type of football, greeted Chicago with impressive displays of loyalty to the fighting Hawkeyes. The bands will parade through the loop this morning as a preview of the pageantry that will take place at Dyche stadium in Evanston this afternoon.

Iowa Classical Teachers Meet Next Weekend

Prof. Martin P. Nilsson of the University of Lund in Sweden is among the guest speakers scheduled to come to Iowa City next Friday and Saturday for the 22nd annual conference of the classical teachers of Iowa.

Recreational Center Table Tennis Leaders Maintain Contest Positions

Standings in the Iowa City Recreational Center ladder ping pong tournament at the end of the week showed that the leaders in the junior and senior divisions had retained their positions. Changes were evident only in the lower brackets of the ladder.

The junior division for those 14 or under, includes, in order, Bill Lee, Dick Lee, Don Miller, Ken Gluesing, Robert Hull, Don Teefy, Dale Lee, Melvin Glaser, Richard Pelechek and Billy Olson.

The senior division for those 15 and up, reading from the top of the ladder down, includes Allen Wallen, Carl Williams, Garland Kircher, Jack Livermore, Winston La Porte, Ed Budreau, Isaac Searl, John Brown, Chuck Ellett and Bob Kelley.

Iowa - Purdue Debates Top Day's Events

Speakers To Argue Federal Ownership Of U. S. Railroads

Registration for the annual Iowa High School Speech Institute will reach the hundred mark by the time the 8:15 discussion groups open the program this morning, according to Carroll Arnold, program director. Attendance is expected to double before the day is over.

The early delegates will represent 11 Iowa high schools—Catholic Central high school of Ft. Madison, St. Angela Academy of Carroll, Muscatine high school, Wilson High school of Cedar Rapids, Mt. Pleasant High school, Iowa Training School of Eldora, Oelwein High school, Sioux City Central High school, Newton High school, Iowa City High school and Teachers College High school of Cedar Falls.

The main events of the day's program will be the two Iowa-Purdue debates on the question, "Resolved, That the Federal Government Should Own and Operate the Railroads." The first will be a non-decision debate to be held in the house chamber of Old Capitol at 9:15 this morning. Iowa will take the negative side. Prof. Karl Robinson of the Northwestern university school of speech will judge the second, scheduled to begin at 1:15 this afternoon in Macbride auditorium. Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department will preside as chairman. Iowa will take the affirmative side.

Dick McMahon, A3 of Ft. Dodge, and Norman Krause, A3 of Hutchinson, Kans., will represent Iowa in the morning debate. Malvin Hansen, of Iowa City, will act as chairman. McMahon, who is participating in his second year of varsity debate, is a former state champion debater in the high school league. Krause established a reputation in debate at Hutchinson junior college from which he transferred to the university.

Purdue's affirmative speakers will be Maurice Karnowsky, a senior in chemical engineering, and Donald Paarlberg, a senior in the school of agriculture. Both are engaging in their fourth year of varsity debate.

Home Debate
David Sayre, A3 of Ames, and William Rivkin, A3 of Davenport, are to represent Iowa in the second home debate in the western conference series to be held this afternoon. Both were on the varsity debate squad last year.

Purdue's negative team is composed of Seymour Udell of New York City, a sophomore in the school of science, and Gordon Belles, of Terre Haute, Ind., a sophomore in the school of mechanical engineering. Udell was chosen outstanding member of his debate squad last year.

After the demonstration debate at 9:15, the morning program will be as follows:
At 10 o'clock five graduate assistants in speech will participate in a round table discussion on debating techniques, to be conducted by Prof. A. Craig Baird, university debate coach; at 10:45 Prof. Franklin H. Knower of the speech department will speak on "Desirable Speaking Standards for Prospective Debaters." Prof. Sidney Miller of the college of commerce will discuss "Representative Arguments in Support of Government Ownership of the Railroads" at 11:15.

Cups Arrive For Winners In Tournament

University Bridge Contest Attracts Ninety-Two Couples

The Union Board announced yesterday that the silver cup awards for the winners in the 14th annual all-university individual bridge tournament have been received. The tournament is being held in the women's lounge of the Iowa Union.

Seventy couples have entered the contract division and 22 couples have registered for the auction bridge contest in the tournament which began Nov. 14. Teams are composed of two students who remain partners for the entire series. To the auction and contract champions will go individual silver cups as awards, it was announced.

The next rounds of contract and auction bridge are scheduled for Tuesday evening, according to Jocelyn McRoberts, C4 of Columbus Junction, chairman of the Union Board bridge committee. The rounds scheduled for this afternoon have been postponed because of the Iowa-Northwestern football game.

The bridge committee has announced that from now on no notices will be given competing teams of impending matches. The players will have to consult the schedule at the Union desk to find out the time at which they will play in the future.

S.U.I. Women Have Play-Day Here Today

Four volley ball teams from the Cedar Rapids Y.W.C.A. will be guests of the women's physical education department at a play day at the women's gymnasium this afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

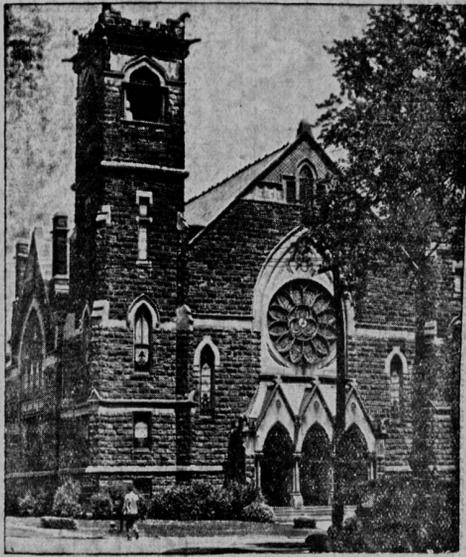

Twenty-four visiting women will compete against local student groups, composed of physical education majors, according to Helen Poulsen, A4 of Iowa Falls, chairman.

Recreational swimming will follow the volley ball games. A social tea at which Dr. Gladys Scott, sponsor of women's intramurals, will pour, will conclude the afternoon's activities.

Prof. Ethian P. Allen of the political science department has been selected as the guest speaker at the Phi Beta Kappa dinner.

Welcoming the new members will be Prof. J. W. Ashton of the English department, president of the local chapter. Ruth House, A4 of Iowa City, one of the newly elected members, is to deliver the response to the welcome.

Sermon, Oratorio To Start Church Centennial Celebration

When the Rev. Edwin E. Voigt speaks on "The Church, a Memory and a Hope" tomorrow morning at the Methodist Episcopal church, he will be referring to a church that begins its centennial celebration in Iowa City. The sermon, at 10:45 a. m., is the starting point for a week of varied festivities including every phase of Methodist church life.

At 8 p. m. tomorrow, the long-awaited oratorio, "The Evangel of the New World," will be presented under the direction of Prof. Herald Stark and composed by Van Denman Thompson, dean of music at DePauw university. The oratorio is said to be one of the finest of its kind ever written and has been rehearsed for several weeks in anticipation of the centennial.

The principal participants in the performance will be Mrs. Herald Stark; soprano; Hazel Chapman, alto; Thomas Muir, tenor, and Robert Blaylock, baritone. Other singing will be furnished by high school, university and townspeople affiliated with the church. The organist for the evening is to be Maud Whedon Smith.

Each day at 8 p. m. starting Monday over the radio chapel of WSUI, Dr. Ruth Gallaher of the state historical society and Prof. Earl E. Harper will review alternately the progress of the Iowa City Methodist Episcopal church. Incidental music will be included on the programs, it was announced.

The oratorio, called "The Symbol of Protestantism" by Professor Stark, is divided into four movements. The first of these voices the first Christian movement of pioneers into the west. It is done in marching rhythm and gains momentum throughout the work. It progresses into the entrance of the frontier circuit-riding preacher and his realization of the estab-

Thanksgiving Service Plans For Community Now Complete

Presbyterian Church Selected as Site For United Worship

Plans for the community Thanksgiving day service to be held at the First Presbyterian church at 10 a. m., Thursday, reached completion yesterday, it was announced by the Rev. Richard E. McEvoy, pastor of the Trinity Episcopal church.

The offerings at the service, which is sponsored by the Iowa City Ministerial association in cooperation with a group of Iowa City churches and the inter-church student council, will be given to the Social Service league to assist in caring for Thanksgiving day needs, it was planned.

"It is hoped by those in charge that a special effort will be made by the community to respond to the need of the Social Service league in caring for Thanksgiving day baskets," the Rev. Mr. McEvoy said. "Those who would like to make such contributions are requested to take them to the Social Service headquarters, 19 E. Market street, the day before the service."

The committee in charge of this special service consists of the Rev. John B. Dalton, the Rev. Elmer E. Dierks and the Rev. Richard E. McEvoy of the Ministerial association and Rollo Norman of the inter-church student council.

Both Share The Profit

So Says Minister In Speaking About Exchanging of Ideas

If two men, each with a dollar, exchange their dollars, neither man profits by the exchange. But if each of them has one idea which he shares with the other, they both profit by the exchange.

This example was used by the Rev. Axel G. Pearson, pastor of the Bethel M. E. church of Moline, Ill., in a speech on "Broader Views—Bigger Men—Better Country," at the regular luncheon meeting of the Masonic service club yesterday noon at the Masonic temple.

The Rev. Mr. Pearson emphasized the importance of greater knowledge and broader views in helping men to understand the world in which they live.

Dr. Latimer first began his six-year period of evangelistic work in Huchow. Previously he had received his B. A. degree from Des Moines university and his M. A. from the Rochester Theological seminary in 1914. The Des Moines institution awarded him an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree.

After an armed uprising in 1927, Dr. Latimer joined the staff of the army and navy Y. M. C. A. as executive secretary in this organization he did work in Shanghai, Peking, Hankow and Chungking. Returning to the United States in 1938, Dr. Latimer found that it was impossible to return to China because of the war, so he accepted his present position at the Sioux Falls college.

He is a frequent contributor to magazines and newspapers, has done extensive lecturing on things Chinese and has written several books on Chinese life.

In addition to the evening meeting which will be addressed by Dr. Latimer, the Roger Williams club will have open house tomorrow from 3 to 5 at 230 N. Clinton.

National Guard Cavalry Unit To Be Trained

The 65 men enlisted in Troop I, 113th cavalry of Iowa national guard will begin a seven day period of field training tomorrow lasting through Dec. 2, Capt. Elmer Hay announced yesterday.

The training for field work which cannot be accomplished in the army will take place near Eagle Point and Hills, Captain Hay said. All operations will be from the armory, he added.

It will include practice in such types of army work as scouting, patrolling, communications, night marches and bivouacking, which is camping at night without tents prepared for sudden attack. A 15-mile march is also part of the plans.
