PRESIDENT E. A. GILMORE RESIGNS

University Head Submits Resignation To Be Effective July 1

Roosevelt Highlights
Presidential Excerpts
As Nation's Head
Addressed Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Some of the highlights of President Roosevelt's address to congress today on the state of the union:

There is a vast difference between keeping out of war and pretending that this war is none of our business. We do not have to go to war with other nations, but at least we can strive with other nations to encourage the kind of peace that will lighten the troubles of the world, and by so doing help our own nation as well.

Never before has the government of the United States done so much as in our recent past to establish and maintain the policy of the good neighbor with its sister nations.

In almost every nation in the world today there is a true public belief that the United States has been, and will continue to be, a potent and active factor in seeking the reestablishment of peace.

Of course, the peoples of other nations have the right to choose their own form of government. But we in this nation still believe that such choice should be predicated on certain freedoms which we think are essential everywhere. We know that we ourselves will never be wholly safe at home unless other governments recognize such freedoms.

The trade agreements act should be extended as an indispensable part of the foundation of any stable and durable peace.

Even as through these trade agreements we prepare to cooperate in a world that wants peace, we must likewise be prepared to take care of ourselves if the world cannot attain peace.

In the light of continuing world uncertainty, I am asking the congress for army and navy increases which are based not on panic but on common sense.

The fact of unemployment of millions of men and women remains a symptom of a number of difficulties in our economic system not yet adjusted.

May the year 1940 be pointed to by our children as another period when democracy justified its existence as the best instrument of government yet devised by mankind.

Attorney-General Murphy Will Fill Supreme Court Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Despite his statement that he though others were better qualified, red-haired Frank Murphy is definitely slated to be appointed to the supreme court, it was learned authoritatively today.

Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson is to be elevated to attorney general, succeeding Murphy. Both men conferred yesterday with President Roosevelt, who is expected to send Murphy's nomination to the senate tomorrow for confirmation. Jackson's nomination probably would await Murphy's confirmation.

Murphy would fill the vacancy on the supreme court bench caused by the death Nov. 16 of Justice Pierce Butler and would become the fifth of the court's nine justices to be named by President Roosevelt. The others are Justices Hugo Black; Felix Frankfurter, William O. Douglas and Stanley Reed, who preceded Jackson as solicitor general.

Murphy has been high commissioner of the Philippines and governor of Michigan.

Roosevelt Seeks Stronger National Defense Measures

Urge Policies Of New Deal Be Continued

Promises Reduced Budget at Opening Of Session of Congress

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—A stronger national defense financed by new taxes, a constitution of new deal policies, and a national unity reinforced by "calmness, tolerance and cooperative wisdom," were urged upon congress today by President Roosevelt, in a message personally delivered to the newly convened session.

These things, backed by an extension of the administration's authority to reduce tariffs by agreement with other countries, should be sufficient, he said, to protect the nation against any tendency toward dictatorship at home and "world-wide forces of disintegration" as well.

Reduced Budget

For the rest, Mr. Roosevelt pledged anew his determination to keep the United States out of the war abroad, and let it be known, to the ironical cheers of the republican membership, that the budget to be submitted tomorrow would include a reduction in all important items except that of national defense.

House and senate and crowded galleries heard the president's earnestly delivered message with evident interest and intentness. There was a great cheer as he entered the packed house of representatives chamber, and another as he finished. There were cheers, too, for Vice President Garner, but the mightiest ovation of all came when, the speech ended, Mr. Roosevelt turned and clasped hands with Garner. The president was smiling broadly and Garner's blue eyes twinkled.

Third Term?

It was an audience sensitive to the slightest political implications which the speech might contain, such as a passage in which the president defended the new deal program against charges of "defeatism"—charges which had been uttered for one by Thomas E. Dewey, prominent candidate for the republican presidential nomination.

"... When we began to ridicule the story... something of color and imagination departed from American life. It is this something that I am interested in helping preserve."

"... The most effective way to do this is to frankly accept these historical tales for what they are known to be—folklore—and treat them in such a fashion that the realistic-minded, sophisticated people of our generation can accept them."

The painting shows Washington—with a boy's body and a mature Gilbert Stuart head—with a red and silver hatchet in his hand, gazing sternly at his father, who has one hand on the wounded tree and the other extended, palm upward, toward George.

In the foreground, drawing aside a curtain exposing the scene, stands the greater proportionately of Parson Weems.

With the Finnish forces near Lake Kianta, Jan. 3 (AP) — Swift and silent Finnish ski troops struck in the border snows today to pick off, one by one, the handful of survivors of Russia's defeated army in this frozen north country while their comrades in the south stood their ground against massed Soviet thrusts.

Victors in the greatest single battle of the war, the hardy Fin-

PRESIDENT EUGENE A. GILMORE

Capital Sources Disclose S. U. I. Official May Remain at Iowa On Faculty of College of Law

One-Time Vice-Governor General of Philippine Islands Succeeded Dr. Walter Jessup As President at Iowa U.

DES MOINES, Jan. 3 (AP)—Dr. Eugene A. Gilmore has submitted his resignation as president of the University of Iowa, it was learned authoritatively here tonight.

From sources close to the state board of education, it was learned that Dr. Gilmore had submitted a resignation to be come effective July 1.

However, he may remain with the university at Iowa City as a member of the law college faculty.

Reason for the resignation was not disclosed.

Dr. Gilmore, 69, widely known as a lawyer, diplomat and executive, came to the University of Iowa as dean of the law college in 1930 after nine years of service as vice-governor general of the Philippine islands.

On April 30, 1934, he was named acting head of the university. He was inaugurated as president Oct. 2, 1934.

Dr. Gilmore succeeded Dr. Walter A. Jessup, who resigned to become head of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching in New York City.

In Iowa City, Dr. Gilmore declined to comment on his future plans.

As head of the university, Dr. Gilmore is paid a salary of $12,000 a year. His salary was increased to that amount from $10,000 last July. The university provides the president with a home.

During Dr. Gilmore's service in the Philippine islands he acted as governor on three occasions, serving a total of 15 months as chief executive.

In his capacity as vice-governor general, Dr. Gilmore was head of the department of public instruction in the Philippines.

His longest period as a diplomat and executive came during his nine months tenure as acting governor general after the death of Leonard Wood in 1927.

Dr. Gilmore was born July 4, 1871, in Brownville, Neb., and was graduated from the Harvard law school in 1893.

Soviet Warns Against False War Reports

Declare Finns Have Twisted Facts To Disparage Russia

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Asserting that "fantastic anti-Soviet inventions" concerning the progress of the war in Finland are being circulated from Helsinki and other Scandinavian capitals, the Soviet embassy's press bureau tonight warned against "hasty conclusions based on doubtful evidence."

The press bureau also attacked reports of civilian casualties resulting from air raids on unfortified Finnish towns, which it said had been described in "lurid terms."

"After all," the bureau said, "reports of a leading news agency Dec. 29 estimate civilian casualties at only 100 killed and 100 wounded."

Calls Accusations Absurd

The statement, which did not identify the news agency, added:

"The absurdity of accusations against the Red air force are seen in comparison with the 72 killed and 3,637 wounded in a Japanese air raid on Chukking."

The report asserted that numerous discrepancies had appeared in reports from Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm and elsewhere.

Commenting on stories that Russian troops were inadequately equipped, the statement said that one newspaper had printed a picture of Finnish General Kurt Martti Wallenius talking to an alleged captured Russian air pilot who wore tattered garments.

"The pilot was not wearing a helmet such as all Soviet fliers wear but a Red army helmet of antiquated pattern which might have been in use during the Finn-Soviet war in 1919," the bureau declared.

Carried down the gangplank of a channel steamer through a line of sentries with fixed bayonets while three fighter planes dived overhead, the blonde daughter of a British peer looked pale. There was no bandage, however, and nothing visible to confirm reports she was suffering from a mysterious bullet wound.

She was placed in an ambulance and rushed away.

The ambulance broke down ten miles out of Folkestone on its way to the Redesdale Baronial country house at High Wycombe, Bucks, and she was taken back to Folkestone for the night by her family.

Her father, Lord Redesdale, had bent down and kissed her gently as her stretcher, carried by two sailors, was lifted ashore in this picturesque south coast port.

The sister-in-law of Sir Oswald Mosley, head of the British Union of fascists, was said to be too ill to talk coherently, but only her family was given a chance to speak to her.

She was reported to have been wounded strangely in Munich five days after the European war began. The London Evening News said surgeons would operate to remove a bullet from her neck.

Lord Redesdale, who waited at the quayside with a car and an ambulance, said his daughter's fondness for Germany and Nazi leaders had been much misrepresented here.

Ambulance Delays Surgical Aid For Friend of Hitler

FOLKESTONE, Eng., Jan. 3 (AP)—A broken-down ambulance tonight delayed surgical attention for Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford at the end of her strange wartime journey home from Germany, enemy land of the man who was her friend—Adolf Hitler.

Herr Ferdinand Von Bull

THE DIONNE quintuplets yesterday produced a solution to the war in Europe. It seems so simple that we're ashamed for not having thought of it before. The quints would tell Hitler about Ferdinand and the bull and how he would rather just sit and smell flowers than fight. Hitler would then see the wisdom of such a course, benefit thereby, and the German people and the whole world would be happy and prosperous forever after.

The only trouble is that people like Hitler and Stalin would not appreciate Ferdinand. They lack a sense of humor, the feeling of kindness and humanity that people have toward each other in a country where tales of people—or bulls—like Ferdinand are tolerated. Hitler would not only fail to appreciate Ferdinand, he would have him purged as pacifistic, degrading nonsense. Ferdinand could not contribute anything to the great power and prestige destined for Hitler's fatherland. There is room in Hitler's Germany only for things that exalt the state, and Hitler fancies himself as the state's greatest guardian. "We thank God for our führer" is the homage Hitler hears. Anyone in position of such exalted importance as the sole protector of the greatest destiny on earth cannot yield to trivialities. He must be stern, serious, aloof. That is why Hitler fails to see in Ferdinand a quality without which no nation can survive.

The quints have the right solution, all right. But who is to read about Ferdinand to Hitler? Who is to break down the wall which keeps Hitler from being human, kindly, tolerant? We have thought that it was impossible to break down the wall, but someone may yet teach Hitler that it is sometimes better to just sit and smell the flowers than to fight.

Where'll We Put The Prison?

SOMETIMES legislators have more fun than anybody.

But today's legislators are pikers when it comes to bickering. The pioneers in indecision were the pioneers.

The story by Editor John Ely Briggs in the December, 1939, issue of "The Palimpsest," the monthly publication of the State Historical Society of Iowa, is a good example of what we mean.

In his first message to the legislative assembly of the Territory of Iowa, Briggs relates, Governor Robert Lucas suggested the expediency of erecting a penitentiary. In July of 1838 Congress had appropriated a second twenty thousand dollars for the erection of public buildings in the Territory of Iowa. On Jan. 17, 1839, the house of representatives passed a bill appropriating this second twenty thousand dollars for a penal institution at Mount Pleasant.

According to the story of the bickering over the location of the penitentiary, the location of the penitentiary at Mount Pleasant was immediately challenged by the representatives of northern countries, when the council met the next day.

Stephen Hempstead of Dubuque proposed to substitute Davenport, but the motion was lost five to eight. Jesse Browne of Fort Madison was the only southerner to support the change. Hempstead then suggested Fort Madison as the site of the penitentiary but precisely the same councilmen voted against the change. Burlington, Bloomington (now Muscatine), and Dubuque were next proposed, but no agreement could be reached. After heated discussion on Iowa City, Mount Pleasant, and Fort Madison, the council finally agreed on Burlington by a vote of eight to five.

The representatives, however, were not pleased with this change. The name of Burlington was promptly stricken from the measure. Keosauqua was thereupon proposed but the suggestion was not adopted. The name of Iowa City met with a similar rebuff. The house finally agreed on Fort Madison. The council accepted the change from Burlington to Fort Madison, though the three Des Moines county members and Jesse D. Payne of Henry county voted no. In 1842 Congress provided an additional $15,000 for the penitentiary. Work on the structure began in 1839 and by November of the following year six prisoners were in the penitentiary, employed mainly in cultivating a large garden and in a cooperage shop.

We must not forget that it was considered highly important by these pioneer towns whether state institutions were located within their boundaries. Nevertheless, we repeat, "Sometimes legislators have more fun than anybody."

Russia accuses Finland of building tactics — news item. Next thing we know we'll read of the University of Chicago being accused of over-emphasizing football.

Feathered fans will soon be in use again after many years — fashion item. Ha! There's some one who never heard of Sally Rand.

All of us should maintain the spirit of Christmas throughout the year, according to an editorial. And then the whole world would be constantly broke.

Soon again we'll hear the excuse: "No we're not going to Florida because New Year's is not New Year's without snow on the ground." Yes, and Florida isn't Florida without dough in the pocket.

ADD to the fiascos of 1939 the peace resolution debate and vote of the American Student Union's national convention at the University of Wisconsin. For an organization which on this campus has always been militantly liberal, the conference delegates were strangely unwilling to commit themselves to anything at all.

Friday they passed a peace resolution after rejecting by a landslide vote of 322 to 49 an amendment which would hold Russia the aggressor in the war with Finland. The proposition to which so few of these young liberals were willing to subscribe read:

"While the American Student Union has no sympathy for the Russian attack on Finland and specifically condemns it as a clear act of aggression, nevertheless it does not want to see our neutrality prejudiced by those acts we consider to be unneutral."

Even with condemnation of an alleged aggressor qualified by so equivocal a phrase as the wish that our neutrality not be prejudiced by those acts which may be considered unneutral, the enlightened intellectuals in the vanguard of American liberalism found themselves unable to agree.

MILLER

Some of my best friends are Communists. . . I say that in all seriousness. In four years on the campus I have found in classes and in conversation left-wing minds are among the best and the most constantly functioning. . .

Yet— as with all great religions (And Communism is one of the greatest)— most of them lack a sense of proportion and a sensible evaluation of things as they are. . . That, to my mind, is probably what happened last week in Madison, Wis. . .

There's not much doubt that the members of the Young Communist League controlled the convention of the American Student Union, and defeated an amendment which would have placed the Soviet Union in the class of all international aggressors everywhere so, to my mind, killing the ASU so far as campus-wide, effective liberal student sentiment is concerned. . .

It seems to me an effective case can be made from the Russian standpoint to prove that Finland's death was necessary for the survival of the Soviet Union. . . But we in Iowa are not Russians or Communists. . .

And Mussolini could have made as effective a case for the bombings in Ethiopia, Hitler in Czechoslovakia and Danzig. . .

Aggression anywhere, somehow, doesn't fit into the democratic way of thinking. . .

The whitewashing of the Soviet foreign policy which occurred at the Madison convention of the American Student Union, leaves it a sectarian, restricted national organization to appeal only to Communists and devout believers in the Soviet way of life. . .

Here in Iowa we who are liberal, progressive democrats have no sympathy with either of these. . . That is why at the Friday night meeting of the Iowa Students' League I shall introduce a resolution asking the withdrawal of our campus group from the national A. S. U. . .

I think there is still— and more so— a place for liberalism among university students. . . But I believe its goals in Iowa City at least have nothing to do with the Soviet Union— except to keep the United States out of war against Russia. . . No holy war against Communism would appeal to me or to any American progressive. . .

On our campus students have three tasks before them— (1) Effective undergraduate self-government. . . (2) A Progressive national administration in 1940. . . (3) Continued peace for the United States. . .

None of these can be bettered or furthered by further affiliation with the national organization of the American Student Union. . . That is why I believe the Iowa Students' League should withdraw and shall do so on Friday. . .

If the Young Communist students at the University of Iowa want to cooperate with such a program, fine. . . In the United States our main task is to stick together. . . those of us who believe in more economic and political democracy, I mean.

Otherwise, we'll go on without their help. . .

When I'm appointed head of the Utopian university I'll immediately appoint a dean of men and a dean of women who are tolerant ex-rouses. . . How can anyone possibly understand sin who's never had any? . .

The same might go for almost any pulp fiction. . .

And, my favorite waiter has proved the effective morning-after antidote is a combination of sauerkraut and grapefruit juice. . .

A campus scout reported Duke Slater (the oxford-colored all-American footballer) has just been named counsel for the Illinois Commerce commission. Good job. . .

Bill Sener'll swear that "All the Things You Are" will top the hit parade by February. . .

One of the proudest of my brothers in the garnet-and-gold (Pi Kappa Alpha to the uninitiated) is a "Happy" Chandler who does things in Kentucky politics. . .

This fellow, whose name they are not at war with Finland. If they're right, then all we have to say is that the Reds are darn good at doing imitations. . .

In a frayed, foul-filled fracas, St. Mary's Ramblers strengthened their strangle-hold on the Big Five Catholic conference honors by sinking Catholic Central of Fort Madison, 28 to 23 on the old City high floor last night.

The teams shelled the bankboards incessantly with little effect, both sides collecting more than half of their total scores on charity tosses. Brack, Rittenmeyer and Chadec fouled out for the Marians in the fourth quarter, closely followed by Coons and Thorn, the latter receiving his walking papers early in the third period. However, these were not the only offenders for nearly every player on each team was carrying a heavy load of personal fouls at the final gun.

The opening chapter was spent in cautious sounding out by both teams. A close score of 9 to 8 for the Marians was the result.

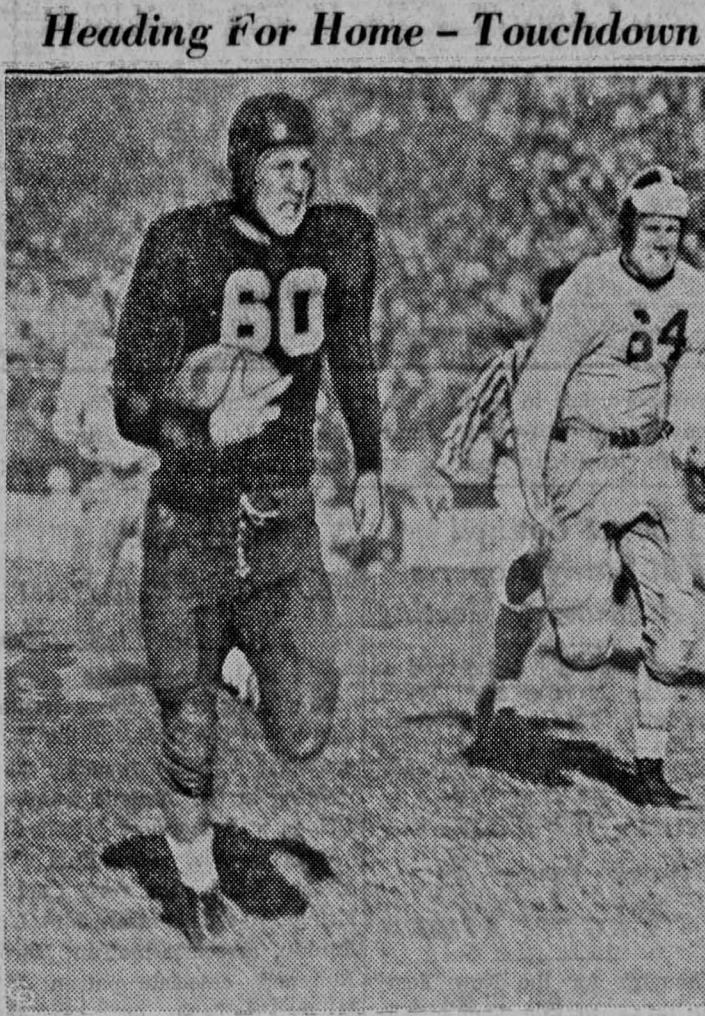

In the second canto Tony Brack hung up several buckets that touched off the fuse of excitement and extremely ragged play followed throughout the game. The second gun found the fellows from the fort trailing 9 to 13 at the half time.

For a few minutes following their cooling period both teams played ball in a rather evenly matched fashion, but control was soon lost and wild passes and frequent fouling became the order of the day. Captain Thorn of the prison city "Dionnes" was dismissed, and the third quarter score stood at 13 to 14 for the Suppelmen.

As the fourth round started the Ramblers tightened up for a short time, but soon lost three regulars by the foul route, and the game became a mad clash, the Maroons attempting a last desperate rally to save their cherished conference hopes. However, time to time, as it is wont to do, and the Fort Madisons hung their heads in a 23 to 28 defeat.

Rittenmeyer did a good job of filling in for Eakes who is out with illness. Brack and Chadec led the Marians in scoring with Captain Bock turning in a good record.

Coons paced the Catholic Central cagers in scoring by ringing up 10 points to his credit, closely followed by Dale Arie who turned in six points and a fairly consistent game.

Heading For Home - Touchdown

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL.

- West's Popular
- Valuable for Power
- Stengel Surprised

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — He was valuable enough to be rated an asset by a bank, which may have something to do with the fact that the name of Max West, the money from the bee hive, is right up front when the possibility of National league players deals is discussed.

Honestly, a bank once foreclosed on him like he was the old homestead and the money from Uncle John didn't arrive in time. The bank kept him as an ambling asset for a spell, then sold him, possibly figuring that was better than loaning him out at 6 per cent.

West's Popular

Anyway, all the National league clubs seem to want him now, including the Bees, who have him, and strangely enough he might prove even more valuable to the other teams than he is to the Bees.

In the first place, he's one of the two National leaguers to hit a home run in every park last season. Hank Leiber of the Cubs was the other.

West hit 19 home runs, and only two of them were hit in the huge park at Boston, where a visiting player's batting average shrinks about 10 per cent because the balls don't bounce off the fences very often.

Five of the home runs were hit at Brooklyn. He blasted out four at Pittsburgh and three at Philadelphia, so naturally these three clubs figure that if he could do that on visiting days he would be quite a lad if he played half of his games at any one of the parks.

West is a tall, loosely-connected youngster on the order of Ted Williams. He's a fairly good fielder, and although his batting average of .285 is not spectacular, the men who know about such things think he's about due to blossom out, and they also think that if he had a home ball park where the fences weren't in the next county he'd give anyone a race for home run honors. His specialty is long fly balls to right, which on the Bees' plantation are caught but which in many another park would be home runs.

Value for Power

From the Bees' angle, West is valuable for his power, particularly on the road, but because of the size of the Boston park a pinch hitter like Buddy Hassett is just as valuable.

It's a cinch that Boston will demand a lot of playing value in exchange for West. If the Bees could trade him for one or two pinch hitters there would be profit all around. The Boston club lost 31 games by one run last season, six more than any other club, and a man who could poke out those singles with a man on second would be just what the doctor ordered to remedy the situation.

A man like Gus Arnovich of the Phils, for example. In fact, that would look as pretty fair deal for all concerned, with West going to a park where his long hits would pay dividends, and Arnovich going to a park where his line drives would push over runs.

Stengel Surprised

Casey Stengel, then a Brooklyn coach, spotted West about seven years ago when the lanky youngster was playing schoolboy baseball at Alhambra, Calif., but it was not until the fall of 1937 that Bob Quinn, Bee proxy, said casually to Stengel: "Oh, by the way, I just bought that young fellow West who caught your eye a few years ago."

West, in the meantime, had had a varied career. He matriculated at U.S.C., but baseball was in his blood and he didn't stay. It was in 1935 when the ball club he was playing with—Sacramento—was liquidated that the bank grabbed up the contracts of West and two other players—Don Johnson and Harry Rosenberg.

The bank sold him to the San Francisco Missions, where he stayed until Quinn picked him up. Now everybody wants to pick him up.

Frost Promising

Wingback Bobby Pair and freshman Bobby Dodd will help with the running job and Dick Bates with the passing.

Added to physical bad news for the 1940 foes will be the extra confidence bred by success. Through long, lean years, many felt Tech teams at times seemed satisfied to put up a whale of a fight and lose narrowly to superior teams. Next fall's opposition need look for no such mental edge—those Engineers aren't going to believe there are any such teams.

Bob (Jitterbug) Kellogg, red-haired Tulane thunderbolt, is pictured above as he traveled 75 yards to a touchdown following a quick kick by Texas A. and M. which Kellogg caught. However, the Texans won the game—the annual Sugar Bowl classic in New Orleans, by a score of 14 to 13.

Hawklets Hope To End Slump On Wilson Floor Friday Night

Cagers Drill Hard For Coming Game; Want To Shake Jinx

Open DeHeer Shot Put Event This Afternoon

Defeated in its last three starts, City High breaks into conference competition again this week when the Hawklets invade Cedar Rapids to meet Wilson Friday.

This event is the winter portion of the annual contest, the event being held twice each year—one in the spring and once in the fall or winter.

The cup was won last spring by Milt Kuhl who will be unable to compete in the winter event today because he already has been named a winner and now holds the traveling trophy which was first put up for competition in the spring of 1937. Place winners in the event will be awarded medals in addition to the traveling trophy.

Floyd De Heer, who won the cup, holds the record with a toss of 43 feet 6 inches. Other winners have been Phil Strom, Bill Leuz and Harry Elsberg.

Track coaches George Bresnahan and Ted Swenson are looking for a big turnout this afternoon to make the meet an interesting one:

Bill Leuz, Lowell Baker, Walt Rouzer, Henry Luecke, Herm Wright, Hy Booth, Ed Thomas, George Gable and Charles Warner. All have been doing well throughout the fall and indoor season thus far in the various weight events.

Dick Culbertson is a fine, well-timed basketball machine, and teamed with dead-eye Ray Sullivan, who swishes them from all over, gives Iowa City good scoring punch. It's been a mystery and a big question mark, however, as to what happened to Bud Lemons, a former high-scoring forward. Lemons has scored only one point in the last three games, as compared to his former totals of 10 and 12 markers. Jack Feltig, Bob King and Mark Lillie have made a sterling attempt to make up for the loss of Lemons' customary high scoring antics, but it has been a losing battle. This could be the cause of the Little Hawks' prolonged slump, and on the turn of this scoring hinge City High's hopes for a new year return to form.

Wilson, one of the weaker teams in the Mississippi Valley conference, is also one of the most dangerous when aroused. The Ramblers have plenty to be up in arms about this Friday, too, for they have not won varsity athletic contests from Iowa City in the history of their school. It is a sore spot rubbed raw for Cedar Rapids, and they might be able to take advantage of City High's temporary weakness to come through with their first win.

Georgia Tech Fans Find Little To Cheer 1940 Opponents; Big Things Expected of Engineers and a master at smashing interference.

But these standouts won't have to go it alone against the customary rugged Tech conference schedule and such old favorite foes as Notre Dame and Duke, who gained the only two 1939 verdicts over the Engineers—by a total of four points.

Ready to help Ison with the end chores will be veterans Paul Sprayberry, George Webb, Harry Arthur and Joe Bartlett as well as freshman Paul Page, who may make the older lads hustle from their jobs.

Reinforcements Aplenty

Last will be first string tackles Elton Lachey and Charlie Wood, but seasoned Elmer Dyke and Albert Mueth will be back, bigger and better, and will be reinforced by Bill Carden of the frost.

Powerful punter Neil Cavette and Robert Aderhold, the first string guard, both return and will be backed by experienced Louis Perkerson, Huber Quigg and Charlie Sanders, the latter a punter about as good as Cavette.

Jim Wright will carry on at center after a first year in which he showed signs of becoming a really great pivot man. Also available will be reliable Slim Sutton.

Chief backfield losses will be captain and blocker Buck Murphy and signal-caller Howard Ector.

Ralph Plaster and a reserve, Hal Lamb, are being groomed for Murphy's job. Backfield Coach Bobby Dodd has had Roy Gore under his wing all year and thinks he is about ready to take over Ector's generalizing job.

Frost Promising

Wingback Bobby Pair and freshman Bobby Dodd will help with the running job and Dick Bates with the passing.

Added to physical bad news for the 1940 foes will be the extra confidence bred by success.

The terms were not disclosed, as usual.

Owen was first string catcher in 1939. He joined the National League club at the start of the 1939 season.

Ten University of Iowa Dolphins and their coach—Dave Armbuster—returned to Iowa City this week from the sunny southland where they spent the holidays enjoying the sunshine and some mid-winter swimming in some of the finest pools in the country.

Blue cagers had their initial workout on the new U-High floor last night, and the boys were so pleased that they displayed their best practice ball of the season.

The Rivermen just didn't look like the same ball club that doubled away its first few weeks of practice. Even Coach Brecher, who at the first of the season was almost certain that his protégés would wind up near the cellar in the Eastern Iowa conference race, appeared contented with yesterday's performance.

An article by Helen S. Moylan, university law librarian, appears as the leading article in the December issue of the American Law School Review, a magazine for all law schools and teachers. The topic Miss Moylan discussed was "Selected List of Books for the Small Law School Library." The article contains a listing of the present requirements of the Association of American Law Schools for libraries which have been recently revised, and points out that some books formerly recommended are now required by the executive committee.

A description of the various volumes and reports needed is outlined and the expense for such books estimated. Lists at the end of discussion contain complete lists of the table of reporters of the national reporter system and the states included, annotated reports, lists of statutory compilations and recommended treatises.

Only 12 victims had been identified as firemen prodded about in the wreckage of the three-story, 45-year-old building, seeking the bodies of possible additional victims.

Red Cross workers said there were 114 persons in the building when the fire broke out. Of these, 18 were known dead, 24 were registered at hospitals, 53 had registered with the Red Cross as either uninjured or slightly injured, and 19 were unaccounted for.

Explosion

First warning of the tragedy was a rumbling explosion shortly before 6 a.m., followed almost instantly by a burst of flame that choked the halls and stairways and blocked escape of many of the residents, who were sleeping when the fire broke out.

The blast, said Arthur Spottswood, head of the fire department's fire prevention division, apparently was caused by garbage smoldering in a storage chute in the center of the building, bursting into flame and blowing out of the chute in a "heat explosion." Spottswood said the garbage probably was ignited by a cigarette stub tossed down the chute some hours earlier.

Spreads Swiftly

The flames spread so rapidly through the brick-veneered building that many occupants had to leap from windows. Several died and many were injured jumping from second and third story windows.

The bodies of other victims, many charred beyond recognition, were discovered later in the ruins.

The temperature was 5 degrees below zero, the coldest this city has experienced this winter.

As firemen struggled to run ice-coated hose lines to the building the scene was one of hysterical tragedy. In the second and third floor apartments men and women smashed the glass out of windows and leaned out, screaming for help. Many jumped before ladders could be put up to them.

Scramble to Safety

Residents of rooms on the ground floor scrambled through the windows to safety, aided by neighbors and passersby who helped them to shelter from the intense cold. Many were dressed only in night clothes.

Otto Knaack, janitor at the apartment, said his first warning of the fire came when he opened the door of the boiler room and was knocked flat by an explosion that broke all the windows in the room. By the time he had run upstairs to rouse his family, he said, the hallways and stairs were already choked with flames.

Hours after the fire was controlled, firemen began digging

Un-Americanism In Dark Days-Dies

U.S. Vigilance Stamping Out Subversism'

House Committee Forecasts 'Complete Rout' of Groups

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The house committee on un-American activities, before expiring tonight, reported to congress that subversive organizations in the United States were in the midst of the "darkest days they have ever seen."

Their "confusion," the report continued, could be turned into a "complete rout" by proper law enforcement and revival of the committee as a force of "constant vigilance."

Congressmen of all political parties expressed the view that chairman Dies (D-Tex.) needed only to make a formal request of the house to obtain overwhelming permission to continue the inquiry for a third year. Dies, who is ill at his Orange, Tex., home, has advised friends he would return to Washington in about two weeks to make such a request.

Contending that Un-American organizations had lost both membership and prestige due to international developments and the committee's investigation, the 15,000 word report said that "the time may come when they will cease to be seriously regarded by anyone in the United States."

It went on to say that un-American activities affected only about 1,000,000 persons of the 132,000,000 people in the United States.

THEY MAKE NEWS Here and There

Representative Hall

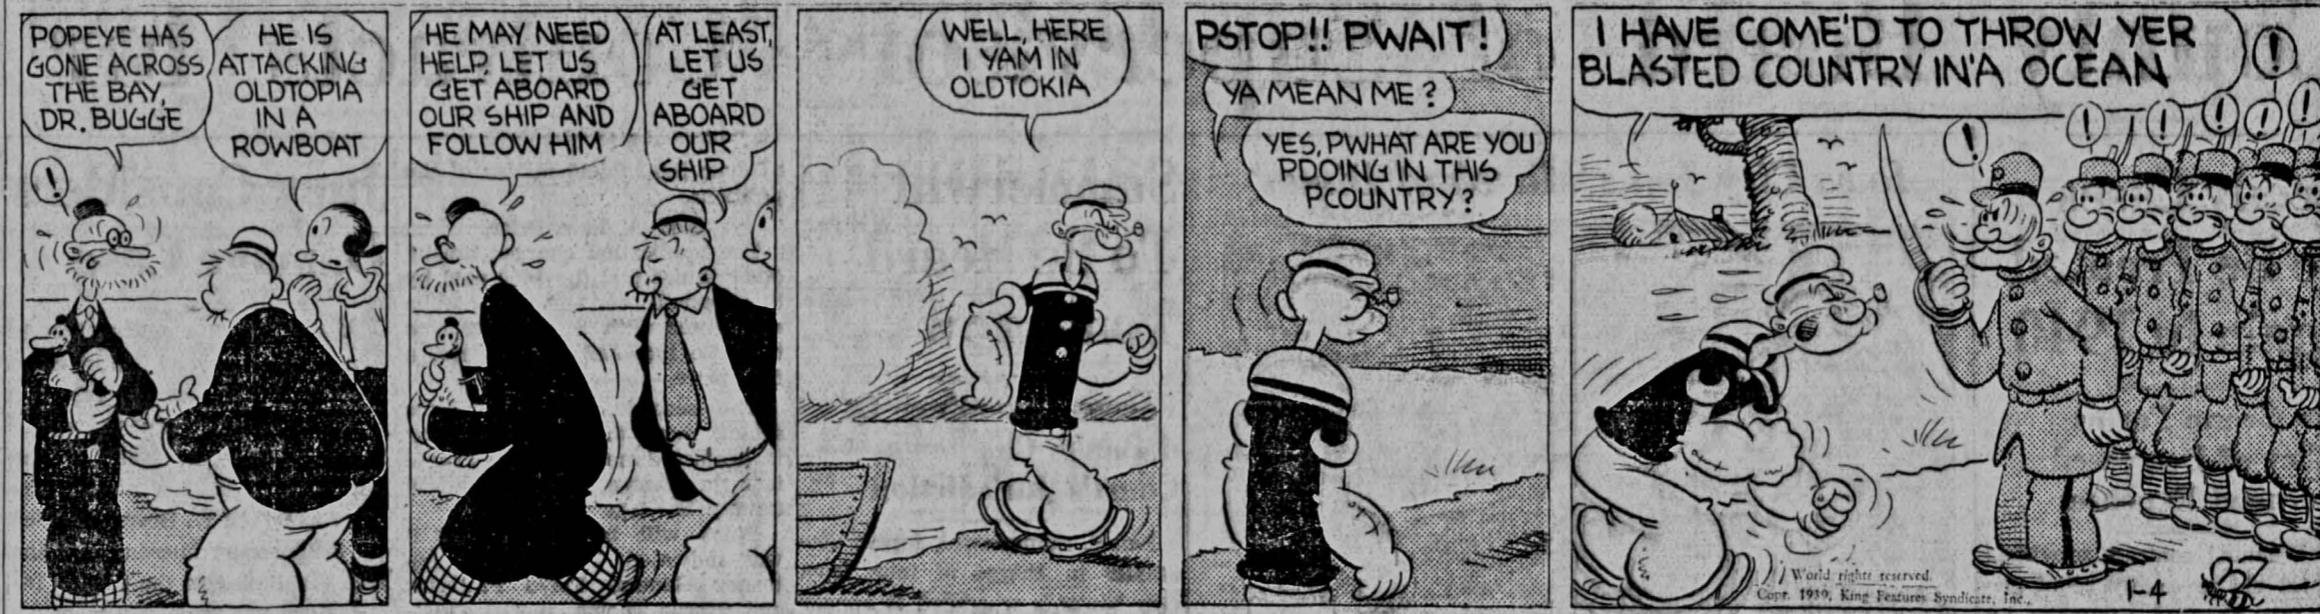

A young man who may become a welcome member of the Washington government "glamor boy" set is Representative Edwin A. Hall Jr., of New York, recently elected to congress to succeed the late Representative Bert Lord.

Senator Austin

Republican leaders received a surprise when they were invited by President Roosevelt to attend the $100-a-plate Jackson Day dinner in Washington, Jan. 8. Heretofore, the Jackson Day dinners have been exclusive democratic feasts. Sen. Warren R. Austin (R) of Vermont is pictured above studying his invitation.

County Board of Supervisors Contracts for Medical Relief

Needy Cases To Be Treated Again in 1940

New Group Forms Policy of Decreased Overhead Expenses

The annual contract providing medical aid to county relief clients was renewed yesterday by the Johnson county board of supervisors and staff of Mercy hospital and practicing physicians of Johnson county.

The contract calls for the payment of $2.40 a month by the county for each registered indigent and permanent indigent in the county. Patients to receive the benefit, the contract stated, would be determined by a list furnished by the social service worker at the beginning of each month.

Medical, Surgical Care

The doctors, the contract read, shall render such service as medical and surgical care. It further stated that such services would be performed by no more than one doctor, except at the request of the attending physician.

The paper was signed by the board of supervisors and members of the committee on independent affairs which includes Dr. J. H. Wolfe, Dr. A. W. Bennett and Dr. W. F. Boiler.

Swamped by an influx of business the new board of supervisors had not yet taken up the matter of whether or not it would issue any more beer licenses to county taverns, Earl Webster, the board's new chairman, stated last night.

Board to Vote

It is expected that the board will vote within the next few days on whether Johnson county will follow the example of many other counties in not renewing beer permits when they fall due. Webster declined to set any definite date.

Webster indicated it would be his policy to keep expenses at a minimum and reduce the overhead wherever possible. He said that there would be no great reduction in personnel immediately, but that many jobs would be shifted. This, he said, would be most evident in the highway department.

List Occupations Covered Under Social Security

Editor's note: Every worker who has a social security account number card should know how the recent congressional changes in the old-age and survivors insurance provisions of the social security act apply to him or her. For the benefit of the readers of The Daily Iowan, the social security board's field manager for this area has prepared a series of brief articles, each explaining one point of the new provisions. Following is the fourth of the series.

All employment except for certain specifically excluded types of work are covered under the old-age and survivors insurance provisions of the social security act.

For instance cooks, maids, butlers, chauffeurs and gardeners who are employed by private families are not covered. If these same workers should obtain jobs in hotels, restaurants, service stations or in other commercial or industrial establishments, they would be covered by this federal insurance system.

Covered employment generally speaking is a job in a factory, shop, mine, mill, store, office, American ship, national or state bank, building and loan association or other place of business.

Jobs not covered are in general as follows:

Agricultural labor, domestic service, government work, work for an educational, charitable or religious non-profit organization, work on railroads (this is covered by the railroad retirement system) work in the fishing industry, work as a newsboy, certain kinds of professional work, work performed for a son, daughter, wife or for a parent if the child is under 21.

Baptists Plan First Church Family Night Of Year Tonight

Members of the First Baptist church congregation will have the first church family night of the new year at a picnic-style supper at 6:30 tonight. A committee of the Baptist Women's Association, of which Mrs. Roy L. Mackey is chairman, is to supervise the arrangements.

After the supper, a talk by the pastor on "What Do You Want Most in 1940?" is scheduled as well as reports by various officers.

Iowa City Joins 'March of Dimes'

Citizens of Iowa are enthusiastically behind the "March of Dimes" drive in the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign, Henry A. Wallace, right, secretary of agriculture, tells George E. Allen, commissioner of the District of Columbia. Mr. Allen is chairman of the "March of Dimes" committee, for the celebration of the president's birthday, of which Keith Morgan is national chairman. Commissioner Allen will be in charge of the "March of Dimes" same 50-50 manner.

County Urged To Give Dimes In Infantile Paralysis Fight

The "March of Dimes," part of the national "Fight Infantile Paralysis" drive for funds, yesterday received the official support of Johnson county when Attorney Ingalls Swisher, chairman of the county committee for the celebration of the President's Birthday ball, urged Iowa Citizens to send birthday cards, especially prepared to hold 10 dimes, to the White House before Jan. 30. In Washington, Attorney Swisher said, the contributions will be audited and tabulated according to counties. One-half of the "March of Dimes" contributions will be returned to the counties where the money was raised. The other half will go to the committee for the celebration of the President's Birthday, and will be turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The local committee has announced Jan. 31 as the date for the Johnson county dances.

Following last year's precedent, Attorney Swisher said, the ball will be held on two dance floors. The Iowa City Community building has already been arranged for use. The other site is yet to be selected by the committee. The $1 tickets will be interchangeable between the two halls.

Proceeds from the local ball will be divided equally between the national and county foundations to be used for the common purpose of fighting infantile paralysis.

In answer to a previous petition filed by Bates Oct. 16 seeking payment by Summerwill of additional funds in the case involving Orville and Mattie Simmons and the Simmons Motor company, the defendant again answered that the court holds no jurisdiction over him personally.

He answered further that he personally cannot be made a party to a case which involves the bank of which he was examiner in charge because he had never before been a party in any plenary or other known or lawful proceeding "either to set aside the judgment involved in the order approving said final report and discharging receiver, or in a plenary known or unlawful proceeding whereby judgment in personam is demanded against him as to alleged liability respecting the matters alleged in the application."

Without waiving his contention that the court had no jurisdiction in the matter, Summerwill in his special appearance Nov. 20, 1939, contends that since two terms of court have already intervened since the official closing and approving by the court of the receivership, the "cause is now defunct and has been finally adjudicated."
