DR. F. D. R. DIAGNOSES 'LEADERS'

Noted Trio Performs Brilliantly in Iowa Union

By THOMAS SCHERREBECK
When three musicians get together and each, in his own right, is a world famous soloist, something extraordinary is bound to result. And last night was no exception. When Harold Bauer, pianist; Albert Spalding, violinist; and Gaspar Cassado, cellist, joined forces at Iowa Union they gave an enthusiastic university audience an unforgettable evening of chamber music.

and the Scherzo, seemed to contain ideas too large for adequate expression through the rather limited medium of piano, violin, and cello; they appeared to be conceived in terms of symphonic rather than chamber music. But the third movement, the Adagio, contained both the most beautiful music and the most finished ensemble playing of an evening, full of beautiful music and finished playing.

If the Brahms trio furnished the musical meat of the evening, the Haydn Trio which followed it furnished the dessert. Dependent upon flawless execution, delicate, restrained (except in the last movement, the famous Gypsy Rondo, with its joyous abandon) contrast with the giantism of the Brahms was startling. Again in a slow movement, the second, the Poco adagio, the musicians played most memorably, although the first movement, a set of variations, ran a close second.

broken with the tradition. They approached the music of the evening with humility, with an air of wanting the music to be heard rather than their particular playing. One had the feeling that they were enjoying themselves, one of the first requisites of chamber music playing. There is no need to comment on the artists individually: their playing was uniformly superior.

The Generation's Greatest Discovery

SULFANILAMIDE has been heralded in the last few months as this generation's greatest discovery, for the chemical has proved very versatile.

When Gelmo, an industrial chemist in Germany's vast dye trust, the I. G. Farbenindustrie, first classified the chemical, he had no idea of its medical power. It was through chance that its helpfulness was discovered in a German laboratory after it had been tested first in Germany, then in Paris and New York.

Even now, scientists are not certain just how the drug works, but they do know it doesn't perform in strict accordance with rules set up by pioneer chemotherapists. Not only is the drug responsible for killing more than one species of bacteria, but there is good reason to believe that it can't act wholly on its own and needs the body's help in its war against germs.

The man at the next desk thinks that what the Russians forgot to include in their military equipment is a workable atom smasher.

The Russian Bear, Soviet apologists would have us believe, is really just the dove of peace in disguise. Well, all we can say is that the disguise is perfect.

President Gilmore On Football

Two events relevant to Iowa football occurred in the season so recently ended.

1. Iowa climbed from the cellar to second place in the Big Ten. 2. The University of Chicago, in the cellar, dropped intercollegiate competition in football.

These two occurrences gave both the pro-football and anti-football arguers good examples to support their opposite contentions concerning the place of football in colleges. Both or neither may be right, but we're inclined to agree that the "middle course" which President Eugene A. Gilmore talked about in the Chicago Tribune's interview yesterday seems by far the most sensible approach.

If university officials "decide that football isn't worth the effort necessary to cope with the problems it involves," there certainly is no other course than that taken by Chicago.

On the other hand, there are the educators such as President Gilmore who believe that the sport has much intrinsic merit, and can become a highly valuable element in the scheme of education when the extremes of commercialization are avoided as surely as abolition.

Sunday in these columns we quoted from a speech by Nile Kinnick, commenting that if anyone knew the values in football, a man like Kinnick should know them. In the Tribune interview there is an echo of Kinnick's statement which, we observe, shows recognition on the part of educators of the values that the players themselves have found in football.

"I have little patience with those who pick out individual instances to support an argument that football doesn't do a young man any good," President Gilmore said. "It depends entirely on the person concerned. Some students don't get any good out of history or economics because they don't approach their studies in the proper spirit. It's true of any activity. On the other hand, if a boy is properly disposed he can derive immeasurable benefit from football. The game brings out endurance, stamina, the spirit of cooperation, the ability to take it on the chin—all of which are important in later life."

Football at Iowa can be for players and onlookers both more than an empty contest so long as it is approached by educators with recognition of its values. It is gratifying to have the administration reiterate this stand.

The man at the next desk thinks that what the Russians forgot to include in their military equipment is a workable atom smasher.

The Russian Bear, Soviet apologists would have us believe, is really just the dove of peace in disguise. Well, all we can say is that the disguise is perfect.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Daily Iowan: In your front page story on Saturday regarding the action taken by the Iowa Students League (still affiliated with the ASU) at its meeting Friday, I feel that the significant points in the resolution submitted by Lee Robinson, and passed with but two dissenting votes, were not sufficiently clarified.

First I should like to point out that the group was pretty solid and that the insurgent action referred to was negligible in numbers. No action was taken on withdrawal for the great majority of the members agreed that our withdrawing would further weaken the progressive student movement nationally.

We were in agreement with all points of the peace resolution adopted at the national convention but felt that, as the Robinson resolution stated, it notably failed in that it did not condemn the Soviet invasion as an act of pure aggression.

It was decided that the wisest move would be to stay in and work with the members in the union to build an opposition within the framework already set up so painstakingly.

I might add, that the convention resolution was not, as the press has interpreted it, a "whitewash" of Russia, but rather a refusal on the part of many ASUers to join in the war hysteria which they felt was being whipped up in this country to go to the aid of "little" Finland. They simply wanted no recurrence of the "little" Belgium propaganda.

As a delegate I did not agree with this analysis and felt we could do just as much toward keeping America out of war if we recognized the attack for what it was.

In reference to your editorial Sunday, if the public is not reassured by our action the fault lies in that our decision was grossly misinterpreted by the press. Also I was not aware that the convention expressed any sympathy for European political moves, whatever or wherever they may be.

"THE FUTURE OF WAR"

Nippon's Military Class Must Indorse Treaty With United States Before Japan Can Sign

It's notable that Kensuke Horinouchi, Japan's ambassador in Washington, has informed the state department that the Tokyo government can't conclude an effective treaty with the United States until it's indorsed by Nippon's military class.

Everybody who knows anything about Japan is aware that this always has been the case. However, no responsible Japanese spokesman ever has admitted it before. "The Jap civil administration undoubtedly means as well as any other country's. It intends its word to be good internationally. The qualification is that its pledge invariably is subject to the militarists' veto."

A deal with the Tokio foreign office is different from a deal with, say, Herr Hitler. It's generally recognized that Adolf's word isn't good for much. Still, if he gives it, and wants to keep it, he can do so. If he breaks it, he does it intentionally. If the Jap civil government's word is broken, it's because the civil government can't help it.

In the past, though, Tokio hasn't been in the habit of giving an advance warning that there are military "strings" on its dickers. It's a deal with the Tokio foreign office is different from a deal with, say, Herr Hitler. It's generally recognized that Adolf's word isn't good for much. Still, if he gives it, and wants to keep it, he can do so. If he breaks it, he does it intentionally. If the Jap civil government's word is broken, it's because the civil government can't help it.

AROUND THE TOWN

By MERLE MILLER

EDUCATION FOR WHAT?

I'd like to hear Dean Stoddard match his mild charm with the rapier-wit of Chicago's Bob Hutchins... 'Twould be a first-class debate, and my own money would be on Stoddard to win, though Hutchins might talk louder...

You see, Dean Stoddard hasn't much good to say for the stereotyped, ivy-tower kind of education. He thinks students ought to be trained to meet the world they're going to live in...

He favors more novel-writing, lots of creative scientific pioneering, more originality in every field of study... That's one of the reasons his graduate college is leading the nation in the flourishing-of-the-valley kind of scholarship...

Probably, if Dean Stoddard's right (and I think he is), the long-haired artist, writer or scientist who starves in attics and cockroach laboratories is on the way out... From now on, he'll be in a university, learning some history, some philosophy, some social science and creating in his own field as well...

Probably, too, he'll be a better scientist or artist for it... He'll know what he's after and why.

Dean Stoddard thinks that universities can strike out in political and economic fields and turn out men who'll sit on the high seats in Washington, leading the country into new frontiers of thinking...

More an education with meaning than anything else... And one of Dean Stoddard's most promising notions is that customs aren't good just because they're old.

Or ideas because they're new... For instance, he's poles apart from Hutchins' theory that smart students should move faster and finish quicker than dullards and the mediocre...

Foreign Minister Nomura gets along with United States Ambassador Joseph Grew all right. There's nothing the matter with these diplomatic conversations. Minister Nomura makes concessions to the United States very readily, but the Jap militarists in China don't respect 'em.

It takes what I've had, something of a residence in Japan, to appreciate the country's peculiarities. Superficially it's quite civilized. That's because the short-time visitor meets only businessmen, newspapermen and civil statesmanship...

In all, maybe Hutchins' education theories are a contradiction of his definition of a university—"A university is a community of scholars"... How can it be, if the scholars hurry away and only the grinds stay on?

Dean Stoddard's feet are where they ought to be, two on the ground... Not comfortably settled on a musty office desk... And when he talks he says his say.

HOUSEMAIDS... are the topic of tonight's "Americans at Work" dramatizations and interviews at 9:15 over CBS.

The early American square dance, its popularity, decline and regained popularity will be dealt with in today's music lesson over the "American School of the Air" heard over CBS stations at 2:30 this afternoon.

R. P. HARRIS... will be interviewed on his book, "The Foxes," this afternoon at 3:15 on the CBS "Of Men and Books" program. Also on the program, Francis Griswold's "Sea Island Lady" and Louise McNeill's "Gaulay Mountain" will be reviewed.

JOHNNY MCGEE'S orchestra, one of the best today for trumpet work, will be heard this afternoon at 5:30 for a 15-minute program of dance music over KSD, 550 kilocycles, of the NBC-Red network.

THE SUBJECT... of tonight's "Human Side of Literature" will be "Split Vision—the Power to see it All." The program is heard over the NBC-Blue network at 8:30.

When Ed Burke was pretty indignant about the French Revolution, Tom Paine had a comment with contemporary significance... "Mr. Burke," he said, "is dressing for the funeral of the old way of life..." What man-with-an umbrella does that remind you of? And Walter Daykin tells the one about the local business man whose Christmas tree lights were stolen... "Another one of those Communist saboteurs," he reported.

Those Loch Ness fishermen who were always seeing the sea serpent certainly have capable rivals in those Norwegians who are always hearing a big sea battle. Judging by the length of time it took those movie producers to produce "Gene With the Wind," had they themselves fought the Civil war we'd still be in it.

NOT TO CHANGE THE SUBJECT... But Dorothy Bradbury was fooling around on a typewriter, finishing an assignment for Winston Allard's "Magazine Article" class... She whipped up an article on Child Welfare and wanted to send it to "Good Housekeeping."

Allard was discouraging... You can't break those big markets, he advised. Try something smaller... But Miss Bradbury sent the manuscript to Hearst's publication... And three days later came a special delivery letter, a check for $100, and a request for half a dozen more articles on suggested subjects... Which proves?

Martha Lois Koch, I'd say, is one of the rare girls who combines beauty with efficiency... And who's to say which is the more important?...

BLOOMINGTON, IND., Jan. 8 (AP)—Indiana University's basketball team rang up its ninth straight victory, its second in Big Ten play, at the expense of Iowa here tonight, 45 to 30.
The Hoosiers were in front at the half, 26 to 15, and used reserves most of the second period.
Paced by Bill Menke and Bob Dro, Indiana's best scorers with 11 and 10 points. Indiana rushed into a 23 to 9 advantage before the regulars were replaced after 12 minutes of play.

Long shots by Lind, Siglin and Siegel midway in the final half cut the Indiana margin to nine points, but Bob Menke, pinch hitting for brother Bill, hit three quick baskets and the Hoosiers pulled away again.

JEFFERSON NIPS ROYAL CAFE

Miller's Truckers established themselves as the team to beat in the City League last night, as the Sharon quintet defeated the hitherto undefeated Moose five 39 to 33. Jefferson Hotel proved to be stronger than Royal Cafe as they won a thriller 30 to 29, in the second game played on the Community building floor.

The truckers took the lead early in the game and with Glenn Snider setting the pace were never on the short end of the score. Jim Jones and Dick Ash also displayed fine basketball, with George Van Dusen, former Iowa cage star, sinking several last quarter baskets to clinch the victory.

Despite the superior basket eye of Ernie Krogh, sparkplug of last year's U-High quintet, Jefferson Hotel managed to eke out a 30 to 29 victory in the closing minutes of play. The game was rough and tumble all of the way, with neither team displaying an organized defense or offense.

Ducky Will Sign Big Salaries Expects A Raise

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP)—Joe Medwick has departed for the south without signing his 1940 Cardinal contract, a fact which, from the standpoint of the unexpected, is equivalent to saying a man took a bath without wearing an overcoat. If Joe Medwick had signed a contract before departing, that really would have been an item.

Medwick Will Sign
There probably will be a couple of months of Joe Medwick says this and Sam Brandon says that in the papers, but a free-wheeling guess as to how it all will end is: 1. Medwick will not be sold or traded. 2. He will sign with the Cardinals, probably at a slight salary increase.

In the first place, the Cardinals are too close to having a championship club to jeopardize their chances by turning loose one of their stars, no matter how juicy the offer. If they had nothing better in prospect than a second-division club, they might be willing to turn Medwick into immediate cash.

Big Salaries
In the second place, few other clubs would be willing to pay Medwick the salary he demands, and which the Cardinals probably will come close to paying. For, with all the loose talk about the Simon Degree tactics of the Cardinal management, the fact remains the club has put out big salaries.

For instance, Dizzy Dean was paid more for a year's work at St. Louis than Carl Hubbell ever was paid in New York. In 1937 Dizzy's pay check was $25,000, just $5,000 more than Frankie Frisch got for managing the club.

Medwick, as a result of his fine 1937 season, when he was the league's leading batter and most valuable player, signed a $20,000 contract for 1938, but he took a $2,000 cut last year, signing after a long holdout.

Expecting a Raise
He was a big factor in the great battle the Red Birds made for the pennant. Knowing his own value to the club in its bid for the 1940 flag, and also knowing it drew $11,000 cash customers at home in 1939 and is stout enough financially to pay a dividend of $10 a share, he probably figures that he is within his rights in expecting at least a moderate raise.

His $18,000 last year topped the club's salary list, with Lon Warneke reported in the No. 2 spot and large John Mize, with a $15,000 wage, third.

From the front-office standpoint, other players might be as much entitled to more money as Medwick. Mize, for instance, and Terry Moore, and Jimmy Brown, and those other fellows who did their best to make the Cardinals come close to close the holding out for first money.

If all the boys who might be entitled to raises got them, Mr. Brandon and Mr. Rickey might have to look about for a nice quiet cellar where they could make their own money, as it's a cinch they wouldn't have enough to go around otherwise.

He Signs or Else
Rickey himself has said emphatically that Medwick would not be sold or traded, and that just about leaves everything up to Medwick.

The Rambler cage machine was working smoothly last night as it easily rolled over St. Paul's of Burlington to the tune of 35 to 22 on the old city high timber.

Recently scarred by illness, the Marians were back in the old form with the return of the two trusties, Cole and Eakes.

The Supleen started their well planned fireworks early in the opening period. A smooth passing offensive netted them 14 markers, leaving only one charity tosser to the credit of the amazed boys from Burlington at the first gun.

In the second chapter the Blues opened their bag of tricks, but failed to find the bank-board range, most of the shots slipping harmlessly off. However the Marians soon nipped the Burlington spurt in the bud and continued to work the ball smoothly in under the net, sending the Blues to the showers at the sad end of a 23 to 9 halftime score.

As the third canto opened Burlington made a last desperate stab at the Marians' superior defense but the opposition was too much for river front five as Captain Sailing left by the foul route, closely followed by Roger Frieberg, the five foot spark-plug of the invaders. As the third gun sounded the Rambler had the game in the bag with 30 tallies and the Blues were left holding the sack with only 15.

Early in the final period Coach Francis Supleen sent in a detachment from next year's Rambler squad to finish the tilt. Fouling was frequent on account of the young Rambler's inexperience. The final gun found the Burlington boys wanting, 35 to 22, another conference victory for St. Mary's.

Gehrig Takes Treatment
ROCHESTER, Minn., (AP)—After visiting Mayo clinic for a checkup today, Lou Gehrig, former New York Yankee first baseman, said he would not return to New York before Wednesday. The former New York Yankee slugger explained that a new series of treatments for a ailment that forced his retirement from baseball last summer would require at least three days.

He either signs or else, the "or else" meaning he can start looking for another job which pays upward of $18,000 for a few months work.

He not only can start looking, he can keep looking. That's a lot of money, whether you get it or not.

Track Carnival Saturday

Inter-Sorority Relays To Feature Twentieth Annual University Meet

The twentieth all-university relay carnival will be held in the fieldhouse Saturday starting at 2 o'clock. One of the feature events for past years has been the Inter-Sorority Relay which gives 76 men an opportunity of competing, representing some 15 sorority-dormitory groups on the campus.

Other events on the schedule for the afternoon are the 60-yard high hurdles, 60-yard dash, 60-yard low hurdles, the interfraternity 660-yard relay, in three heats, the university dormitories relay in two heats. The field events on the program include the pole vault, shot put, running broad jump, high jump and the 25-pound weight throw.

Interest is running high around the fieldhouse as the day of the big race draws near—the big race being the inter-sorority relay—and to pick the winner of the event would almost be suicide as most of the 15 teams are matched about even. The "experts" seem to be leaning a little toward the Alpha Delta Pi squad with Captain John Graves at the helm and running the all important last leg—the 880-yard grind, aided with the fine running of Joe Moore, Art Schlauder and H. Davis.

There are a number of so called "dark horses" in the meet who have an excellent chance of coping the first place spot—Ed Baird's Alpha Chi Omega team; Merl Erickson's Kappa Kappa Gamma squad and the group of men composing the Pi Beta Phi team headed by Cam Campbell. It'll be a close, exciting race in both heats.

The first man running in the inter-sorority event will run three laps or over 660 yards; the second will skim around the 220 oval just once; the third runner will take 440 yards, or 2 laps, and the anchor man will pound around for four laps, making up a half-mile.

Wesleyan Wins
MT. PLEASANT, (P)—Iowa Wesleyan cagers drove to a 39 to 37 victory over the St. Ambrose college basketball team tonight in the first Iowa conference game of the season for the visitors.

Full-Fledged Members
SPOKANE, WASH., (AP)—J. Fred Bohrer, Washington state athletic director, said yesterday Montana State University and the University of Idaho had been raised to full playing memberships in the Pacific Coast conference.

Little, now of Bretonwoods, N.H., won $1,500 first money. It was his second major tournament victory since he abandoned the amateur ranks after winning the national and British amateur titles in 1934 and 1935. He won the Canadian open in 1936.

CEAR RAPIDS, Jan. 8 (Special To The Daily Iowan)—Five streamlined sharpshooters from Immaculate Conception poured through 34 points to stop the Shamrocks of St. Pat's at Cedar Rapids tonight, 34-20.

The Greyhounds outscored the fighting Irish in the second quarter six to four and the half ended 11-0, with I. C. in the lead.

Coming out in the second half the Greyhounds took control. Holding the fighting Irish to three meager points the Cedar Rapids lads poured through 11 markers to hold a 22-13 advantage at the end of the third quarter.

Falling to come around with the usual final quarter rally, the Shamrocks trailed. Showing seven points for the last period to add to the previous 13 made the final count 34-20.

Housing Is State Problem Says Professor Johnson

Possible Aid Cited In Zoning Laws, Federal Subsidies

"The housing problem should begin, as most other things, at home," said Dr. Jack T. Johnson, professor in the political science department, in discussing "The Problems of Housing" at the League of Women Voters luncheon yesterday noon. He discussed the purposes and chief weaknesses of the present housing administration. The primary purposes of the FHA and other housing administrations, Dr. Johnson explained, are to stimulate and encourage sound mortgage markets, encourage building as an answer to depressions, and to promote low-rent housing in the clearance of slum districts. Government More Reluctant

He went on to explain the increasing reluctance of the national government to enter into the housing problem and cited an example which occurred in Louisville, Ky., in 1936. The federal government undertook to condemn and tear down certain slum districts in the city to replace them with suitable housing conditions. The state and city courts decreed that, according to natural division of power, the federal government had no right to undertake such an act. Dr. Johnson proposed several plans whereby this difficulty could be worked out. "To get a sound housing program," he asserted, "it is necessary for the states to be granted federal subsidies. Each state could then take care of its own city slum districts, and put up in their places modern low-rent houses."

Zoning Laws "Then, too," he explained, "the states could pass zoning laws, which would require all buildings of a certain age to be condemned."

Dr. Johnson also stressed the need for organization and coordination in the housing administration and the necessity of promoting sound home financing. The problem rests mainly with the states, not the national government, he concluded.

Prof. Grace Ferguson of the social welfare department and chairman of the department of government and economic welfare introduced the speaker.

Inter-Dorm Council Plans Play Night for January 26

First in Series of Social Events, Co-Chairmen Reveal

The new Inter-Dormitory council will sponsor an all-dormitory play night on Friday evening, Jan. 26, in the women's gymnasium, climaxing the forthcoming examination week, it was announced yesterday.

Plans for the event were made by the dormitory council at the first official meeting Saturday afternoon at Iowa Union. The play night will be the first of a series of social events to be sponsored by the recently sanctioned dormitory council, according to social co-chairmen, Virginia Franquemont, A3 of Des Moines, and John Dillinger, G of Avoca.

Three representatives from each dormitory and three from the joint co-operative dormitory council make up the organization, headed by Joe Lebeda, A4 of Belle Plaine, president of the Quadrangle.

The purpose of the new council is for closer co-operation between the dormitories on the campus, to encourage extra-curricular activities and to further local governmental units and social activities.

At the first meeting, the group discussed, in addition to the play night, provisions for the new constitution and plans for other social events for the coming semester. Tentative plans are under way for an all-dormitory skating party and mixer, Lebeda announced. The next meeting of the group is scheduled for Feb. 3 at 1:30 p. m. in the old music room of Iowa Union, at which time an election of officers will be held.

Chess Club Will Meet Tonight at 7

University Chess club members will hold their first meeting of the year tonight at 7 o'clock in room E-204 of East hall.

Further plans for a ladder tournament will be made by the group at tonight's meeting, Henry Teicher, A2 of Newark, N. J., executive secretary, announced yesterday.

The club, which has been formed recently on the campus, has had an increasing attendance with each meeting. It is the first successful organization of its kind since a similar chess club was active at the university 35 or 40 years ago.

Ups, Downs Revealed Business Charts Mostly Favorable, But Losses Recorded

Present figures in Iowa business are predominately favorable, although gains and losses are mixed on the current charts, according to Prof. George R. Davies of the university bureau of business research.

Although figures for December are not complete, Professor Davies said that the marks for the 11 months of 1939 compared with the same period of 1938 indicate a probable gain of 5 per cent for the year.

Residences Built "A marked advance in residential building has been an outstanding feature. On the negative side, a decline in farm prices is apparent," Professor Davies declared.

He pointed out that early reports of the holiday trade in the nation indicate it as 8 per cent above last year, and the best since 1929. However, this probably will not prove as true of midwestern agricultural areas as of industrial regions.

November Gains In November some of the Iowa gains over October figures were total building contracts, 15.7 per cent; department store sales, 5.2; employment, 3.5, and industrial payrolls, 3.4. Most of the lines definitely were ahead of November, 1938.

Professor Davies said that reputable financial writers are looking forward to 1940 with "tempered optimism," as far as domestic business is concerned. They assume that war orders and wage rolls will reduce swollen inventories and create demand for more goods.

Basketball Games Scheduled Tonight At Women's Gym

Four intramural basketball games for women are scheduled for 7:15 and 8:15 p. m. tonight in the women's gymnasium in the closing rounds of the tournament, according to Helen Poulsen, A4 of Iowa Falls.

Teams scheduled to play in tonight's games are Tau Gamma vs. Gamma Phi Beta and Currier No. 2 vs. Coast house at 7:15 p. m. Alpha Chi vs. Currier hall (No. 3) and Westlawn vs. Zeta Tau Alpha are the listings for the later competition.

Former Student Of Iowa Shows Colorful Display

A colorful and decorative exhibition of paintings and metal plastics, the work of Edmund Kinzinger, is now open to the public in the auditorium of the university art building. The exhibition will remain until Jan. 31.

Kinzinger's cosmopolitan record as an artist includes many exhibitions in Europe and America, and years of teaching in art schools. He studied in Munich, Stuttgart and Paris. For seven years, 1920 to 1927, he lived and painted in Munich, exhibiting in all the principal German exhibitions.

In 1928 he became exchange teacher at the Minneapolis Art institute. On his return to Europe he conducted the Hans Hofmann school of fine arts at Munich from 1930 to 1934 while Hofmann was at the University of California.

War Cuts Tour Short Crooks To Appear At Music Festival Here May 2

Richard Crooks, Metropolitan opera star, who will appear here in connection with the University of Iowa high school music festival May 2, has recently completed what was intended to be a concert tour of the world. When "complications set in" in Europe, however, he had to confine his concerts to the more peaceful countries such as Australia and New Zealand.

Returning home by way of South America, the famous tenor flew from Rio de Janeiro and stopped at Montevideo where the German pocket battleship Graf Spee was sunk several days later. He was accompanied on the tour by his wife, son and daughter.

Aside from his outstanding voice, the fact that he is an American distinguishes Crooks, for most of the Metropolitan stars are from Europe. He has been making concert tours for several years and appears regularly on a Monday night national broadcast.

Art Works Available

More than 40 pieces of art work done by outstanding students at the University of Iowa now are available for distribution as exhibits throughout the state.

Lee Cochran of the visual education department, who is handling applications for the exhibits, said that lithographs, etchings, water colors and framed oil paintings are available. Only cost to the borrowing organizations are transportation charges.

Consulting Engineers Offer To Evaluate Water System

City Council Refers Volunteer of Service To Water Committee

W. J. Gallagher, Rock Island, representing an association of consulting engineers, last night offered the services of his men in an investigation of the local water company setup and predicted he could provide an accurate estimate regarding the value of the system in the event the city proposes to buy it.

The only action taken by the council was reference of the petition to the water committee.

Gallagher said the estimate ultimately arrived at by his group would be sworn to by two licensed engineers of the state and based on a comparison with plants in other cities as well as the present layout.

A letter from Attorney Ingalls Swisher, representing Barbara Zakostelsky, asking damages for leg injuries allegedly caused by a defective sidewalk, was referred to the claims committee and city solicitor.

Two petitions from the fire department, one asking the council to authorize the purchase of a Federal "66" siren with flasher, the other requesting that the council call for bids on fire hose, generator and oxygen breathing apparatus, were received. The latter was referred to the fire and water committee and fire chief.

A committee of three was appointed by the mayor to investigate the claim of Prof. and Mrs. Fred M. Pownall, who submitted a petition last night questioning the legality of changing the course of Iowa river in front of their residence at 1602 N. Dubuque street.

Besides his sister, Mr. Heede is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Burial will be in Unity cemetery near Windham.

The post will be host to the Johnson county meeting of the American Legion, Jan. 29, it was announced.

FEWER ACCIDENTS IN DECEMBER, POLICE REPORT

The monthly report of the police department submitted last night to the mayor and members of the city council disclosed a total of 12 auto accidents in December, the same number as in October and nine fewer than November's sum.

Twenty-four cases of intoxication were reported during December as well as nine cases of breaking and entering, seven robberies, 13 thefts from motor vehicles, nine cases of reckless driving, and 165 traffic violations.

The sexton reported eight burials last month.

Harold Monk, city inspector, reported the issuance of four residence building permits during December on property estimated at $15,750, along with three permits for non-residences and three for additions and alterations.

In his month's summary, City Engineer Fred Gartzke stated: "The new WPA sewer project which was started Nov. 29 has to date 1,620 feet of sewer completed and seven manholes constructed. All of this work was in the Chautauqua heights addition.

Fire Chief J. J. Clark announced the appointment of H. T. McNabb as fire department mechanic, his position to take effect Feb. 1.

Mrs. Stika Asks $300

Brings District Court Action Against Local Carpenters Union

Mrs. Amelia Stika brought a $300 action in district court yesterday against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and Local Union No. 1280 of Iowa City.

Mrs. Stika, as administratrix of the estate of Frank J. Stika, asked the court that she be awarded the amount due on beneficial donations which Mr. Stika, she alleged, should have received as a member of the local union when he died.

Mr. Stika had been a member of the lodge and union since 1913.

Attorney Will J. Hayek is representing the plaintiff, Mrs. Stika. The defendants are represented by Attorney Edward F. Rate.
