North Sea Disaster Spells Greatest Death Toll Since November

U.S. Senators Moved to Protest Over English War Censorship

One Declares U.S. Is Used As 'Doormat'

But England Stands Firm Despite Strain On Anglo-U. S. Relations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—England's wartime censorship of American mails and interference with American ships stirred some senators today to voice caustic protests.

Senator Lundeen (FL-Minn), frequent critic of British policies, said in an interview that England was using the state department "as a doormat."

Senator Mead (D-NY), in a lengthy floor speech, charged the British government with violating the international Hague convention on mails of neutrals and inflicting a "humiliating indignity" upon the United States.

Senator Reynolds (D-NC) suggested to reporters that repeal of the American arms embargo to permit sales of war materials to England and France led to the recent British policies.

Britain Taking Advantage "There were no unlawful seizures or interferences until we removed the embargo," Reynolds said. "We have gone further to aid Great Britain than at any time in history and she is taking advantage of our friendly attitude."

He suggested that the United States should "take retaliatory measures" but declined to say just what these should be.

Lundeen said this country should demand that Britain surrender Bermuda and other nearby British possessions "in payment of our war debts."

"Our officials continue to send censored notes and perfumed protests to England," the Minnesota farmer-laborer said. "What we need is a little of the old-fashioned, red-blooded diplomacy of the Andrew Jackson type."

"When the French failed to pay a debt, then Jackson threatened to seize their islands. We ought to try the same thing. There would be no war. They can't even fight the one they have on now and are howling for us to come over and do it."

Nothing To Do About It Other senators said there probably was little that this country could do but protest the British policies.

"I favor a vigorous protest," said Senator Lucas (D-LI), "but after all what can we do? They are at war and we know what that means. The American public probably is not much aroused by censorship of mails or interference with ships."

The state department had commented (See CENSORSHIP, Page 6)

Japanese To Prevent 'Incidents'

TOKYO, Jan. 24 (Wednesday) AP—Japanese indignation over a British cruiser's seizure of 21 Germans from a Japanese liner increased today and Domei, authoritative news agency, reported that ranking naval officials in Tokyo had discussed "measures designed to prevent a recurrence" of the incident.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita summoned British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie to an hour's conference yesterday during which, Domei said, Arita repeated his government's protest against the affair and also a request that Britain refrain from further halting of Japanese ships. At least three other Japanese ships now on the seas are known to be carrying Germans.

In London a British spokesman said the Japanese protest did not challenge Britain's right to halt and search a Japanese ship but expressed concern over the status of the Germans. The spokesman said Britain considered the captured seamen a potential part of a belligerent force because Germany has conscripted its manpower.

Grasshopper Threat to Crops To Be Less Serious This Year, Department of Agriculture Predicts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The department of agriculture predicted today grasshoppers would be a less serious threat to crops this year than last year but said there would be heavy damage in the great plains unless the pests were checked by adverse weather or control measures.

State agencies which cooperated with the department in the 1939 control program estimated total crop damage was $48,000,000 but crops valued at $128,000,000 were saved.

Dr. Lee A. Strong, chief of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, said today the recent egg survey showed a marked decrease in numbers and a shift away from areas where control operations were conducted last year. These operations, he said, were more effective than any preceding program.

He predicted the migratory long-winged grasshopper would appear in comparatively small areas in southeastern Colorado, northeastern Texas and western Oklahoma. The infestation in these areas last year was heavy, Dr. Strong said, but if another large-scale campaign were waged in this year, "future large-scale operations against them may be unnecessary."

SIGNS OF SPRING CHICKS CRACKING SHELLS IN IOWA HATCHERIES

DES MOINES, Jan. 23 (AP)—Iowans can find signs that spring is just around the corner—if they look in the right places. Those "right places" are hatcheries in which baby chicks already are cracking open their shells.

Iowa's $60,000,000-a-year poultry industry is off to an early start and numerous hatcheries reported today that first hatches of chicks were already peeping in their trays.

Four Airmen Die in Crash

U. S. Army Bomber Strikes California Hillside; Two Survive

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—Caught in a blinding rainstorm, an army bomber struck a hillside near here today, killing four of its six occupants.

Two, Sgt. Cecil C. Purvis, Glennville, Ga., and Private Frank Carroll, Hyde Park, Mass., parachuted to safety, the March field public relations office reported. They were unhurt.

Others in the twin-engine craft:

First Lieut. Raymond W. Sumi, of Nashwauk, Minn., the pilot; First Lieut. Benjamin G. Holloway, Columbus, Ohio; Sgt. Gerald D. Wilcox, Bennett, Iowa; and Private Leonard E. Riley, Wichita Falls, Tex.

The plane crashed two miles northeast of Riverside on Box Springs hill, only seven miles from its army air base destination at March field.

D. M. Stephenson of Riverside, only known witness to the crash, said Carroll landed near him by parachute and together they ran to the wreckage. Carroll was bleeding from the nose and mouth but appeared uninjured otherwise. Carroll's account of the accident, as told by Stephenson:

"We were flying high—about 9,000 feet, I guess—when the motors missed and the ship went into a spin, and we were all ordered out of the plane.

"Something apparently was wrong with the emergency door, and only two of us were able to get out. The ship was spinning, and there was nothing we could do to stop it.

"I landed in Piegion Pass, near the wreckage. Purvis came down on Blue mountain, some distance away."

Stephenson said the plane nosed into the earth but did not burn. "A doctor came along and pronounced the four men dead," Stephenson related. "That wasn't necessary though—they were all badly smashed."

Jury Returns 'Guilty' Verdicts to All Seven Counts of Indictment

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 23 (AP)—Norman Baker, 56, one-time candidate for governor and senator in Iowa, was convicted in federal court today along with two associates on a charge of using the mails to defraud in the advertisement of a claimed cancer cure.

The jury heard 16 days of technical testimony and legal argument relating to cancer treatments and returned guilty verdicts on all seven counts of an indictment returned last September.

Baker's conviction was based on the government charge that he used the mails in "falsely pretending" that he had, in 1929, "discovered and perfected a sure cure for cancer."

In his defense, a long string of former patients testified to "cures" or "great benefit" from the treatment.

Convicted with Baker were R. A. Bellows, 52, formerly of the Baker institute at Muscatine, now superintendent of the Baker hospital at Eureka Springs, Ark., and Dr. J. L. Statler, 56, technical advisor at Eureka Springs.

The jury acquitted a fourth defendant—Dr. O. L. Beatty, 42, Eureka Springs chief of staff. Baker was the farmer-labor party nominee for governor of Iowa in 1932 and in 1936 he campaigned for the republican nomination for U. S. senator in Iowa. He established a cancer hospital at Muscatine in 1929. The institution was moved to Eureka Springs in 1937.

Dies Given Another Year To Operate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Dies committee was given another year today to investigate un-American activities.

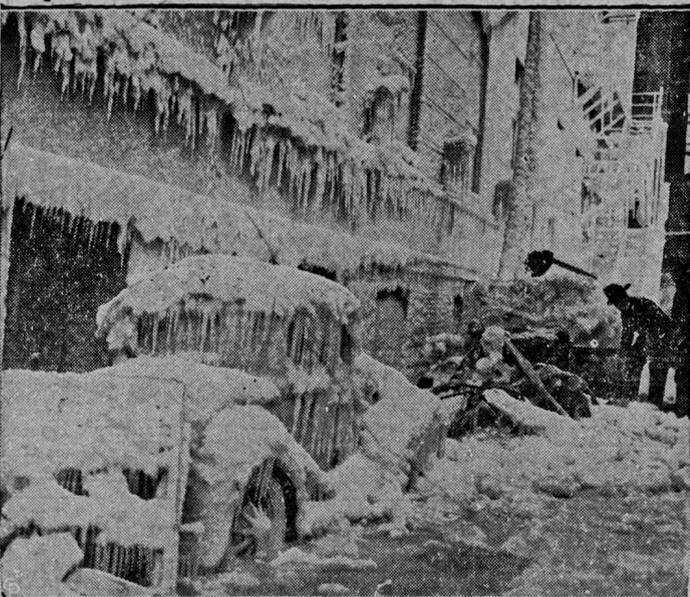

After two hours of loud and sometimes angry debate, the house voted 345 to 21 for continuance. The opponents were 20 democrats and Rep. Marcantonio (AL-N.Y.). All the republicans who voted—and most of them did—were for it.

The committee was organized in 1938 and extended in 1939. The vote continues it until the end of the present congress—Jan. 3, 1941.

The democrats who opposed extension—some of whom stated their positions vigorously—were: Bradley, Dunn and McGranery of Pennsylvania; Thomas F. Ford, Geyer, Havenner and Izac of California; Coffee and Wallgren of Washington; Fries, Keller, McKeeough, Mitchell and Sabath of Illinois; Hook and Tenerowicz of Michigan; O'Day of New York; Pierce of Oregon; Shannon of Missouri and Schulte of Indiana.

The continuance was voted in the absence of Chairman Dies, who is ill at his home in Orange, Tex., but the other six members were there and asked for the renewal. The committee's office and investigating staff also were out in force, occupying three rows of a public gallery. These employees were cut off the payroll on January 3, when the committee went out of existence temporarily.

Soviet Warplanes Score in Drives; Ground Force Falters

HELSINKI, Jan. 23 (AP)—Soviet warplanes swarmed over central Finland anew today, killing 19 persons and wounding many at the rail center of Nurmes with a single bomb, while the red army was reported to have lost upwards of 1,000 men in a furious but futile land offensive against unyielding Finnish lines.

The casualties at Nurmes were caused when a Soviet air bomb scored a direct hit on a crowded air raid shelter. Other persons were wounded in subsequent machine-gunning of the population.

The raid of Nurmes, which is on the northern shore of Lake Pielenen, apparently was aimed at the railroad which runs northward across the country to the Swedish frontier.

In another raid on Hyrynsalmi, 100 miles north of Nurmes, a hospital was reported bombed but there was no immediate report of any casualties.

Unofficial advices said that Hanko, Finland's "Gibraltar of the Baltic," and Tamisaari also were raided. Other Soviet raiders appeared over Helsinki and Rovaniemi in the northwest, but were driven off by anti-aircraft guns.

Among the victims at Nurmes was a doctor from a nearby hospital. The Finns are reconciled to the probability there will be thousands more of these raids. Already 102 of Finland's larger towns and cities have been bombed—some of them as many as 35 times—and hundreds of smaller communities have been targets for raids.

Another Cold Wave Predicted for Iowa; Des Moines Has Snow

DES MOINES, Jan. 23 (AP)—Snow flurries struck Iowa's capital city this afternoon and the weather bureau predicted intermittent snowfall tonight and tomorrow.

Temperatures dropped downward steadily after sunset, and the bureau warned shippers to protect for temperatures in the minus-reaches, ranging down to 15 below zero in the northern section of the state.

The current cold wave's tenacious grip which has held the state under a snow blanket and sub-freezing temperatures for 10 days showed no signs of weakening.

Lewis Flays Paul McNutt As Candidate

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 23 (AP)—The United Mine Workers of America virtually scratched Paul V. McNutt off its list as a presidential candidate today.

John L. Lewis, whose opinions are generally law to the 600,000 miners whom he heads, pictured the democratic federal security administrator as a "political adventurer" who hoped to buy the presidency of the United States.

Criticism also was directed toward vice-president John N. Garner, officers of the union asserting he is a leader in the movement for revision of the Wagner labor act and for enactment of legislation unfavorable toward labor.

Lewis, at the union's jubilee convention opening, compared McNutt to the ancient kings who, he said, sent out soldiers to protect strike-breakers.

Recognize Nation's Regulation

But Forbid Forcing Production of British, French Oil Companies

BUCHAREST, Jan. 23 (AP)—Rumania was warned by Great Britain and France today that "grave complications" might follow any attempt to compel British and French oil companies in Rumania to furnish oil for Germany.

Rumania recently created a national petroleum commission with sweeping powers over Rumanian oil production, and some foreign circles believed this was in response to German pressure to obtain all the oil possible from Rumania.

The new commission can control production, refining and export of all Rumanian oil "in conformity with the interests of the state," and has authority to tax oil companies not submitting to its orders.

The envoys of Britain and France were understood to have told the Rumanian government today that while their governments did not dispute Rumania's right to regulate the oil industry, they would not tolerate forced production by British and French-owned companies for the benefit of Germany.

At the same time reliable sources reported that two passenger trains from Bucharest to Berlin via Russian Poland would begin service early next month. This resumption, the informants stated, was made possible by Soviet consent to German operations and policing of some 200 miles of rail line through annexed Russian territory.

Germany's main object in getting control over this line was not resumption of passenger service, these sources explained, but to speed up much-needed shipments of Rumanian oil and wheat.

Montana Campus Has Freedom, President Replies to Censure

MISSOULA, Mont., Jan. 23 (AP)—George Finlay Simmons, president of Montana university, told a state board of education hearing today that "there is complete freedom of teaching and speaking on this campus."

Testifying at the board's investigation into faculty dissension at the university, Simmons replied to early witnesses who had accused him of being "vindictive and interfering," unfriendly toward the teachers' union and of lacking "veracity and integrity."

The association placed the university on its "censored" list after the board of education had requested resignations of five faculty men. The five were opposed to policies of Dr. Simmons, president since 1936.

SOS Heard; Coast Guard Sends Aid

But Radio Experts Believe Call From Cape Cod May Be Hoax

BOSTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A strange report that an unidentified vessel with 146 persons aboard was sinking off Cape Cod sent eight rescue ships scurrying to the scene tonight, but radio experts declared openly the "S. O. S." might well have been a hoax.

Four hours after the reported distress call the coast guard cutter General Greene reached a point between the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, just south of the Cape, where the vessel was supposed to be sinking, but found no trace of a possible sea tragedy.

"Seas smooth. Visibility good. No sign of distressed vessel," the General Greene radioed to coast guard headquarters here.

Seven coast guard vessels and the navy destroyer Breckenridge had raced for the islands after Captain Byron C. Brown, U.S.A., retired, telephoned that he had heard an S. O. S. call, followed by the frantic voice of a "captain" saying that his vessel was sinking off Cape Cod with "146 men aboard."

Captain Brown said he heard the call, which was cut off sharply, on the lowest band of his short wave radio. Radio experts from the radiomarine station at Chatham and the tropical station at Hingham said it would be highly unusual for a ship capable of carrying so many persons to send an S. O. S. on so low a wave length.

House Gives Economy Drive Boost With New Reductions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A house committee gave the current economy drive a $13,314,300 boost today and brought to $128,143,300 the reductions from administration estimates in appropriations already in the congressional mill.

The appropriations committee lopped $11,491,900 off the treasury-postoffice supply bill, recommending $1,032,154,612 to finance those two departments for the year starting July 1. At the same time it slashed $1,822,400 from an urgent deficiency measure for naval

'Exmouth' Becomes 6th British Destroyer To Succumb to Warfare

LONDON, Jan. 24 (Wednesday) (AP)—Great Britain early today announced that her swift destroyer Exmouth had been sunk by a torpedo or mine and that every one of nearly 200 officers and men aboard was believed to have perished.

It was Britain's 22nd naval ship loss since the war began less than five months ago; her second destroyer sunk within four days and her heaviest loss of life at sea since November.

An admiralty announcement, if anything more terse than is usual, said:

"It is feared there are no survivors." The 1,475-ton Exmouth had a normal complement of 175 men, but such complements usually are increased about ten per cent in wartime.

The scene of the sinking was the North sea where another British destroyer, the 1,485-ton Grenville, also a flotilla leader, went down Saturday with the loss of 81 men, Greatest Loss of Life

The sinking of the Exmouth with all hands was the greatest loss of life in a single naval blow since the German pocket battleship Deutschland sank the British armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi with 280 lost Nov. 25 off the east coast of Iceland.

The Exmouth, of the same class as the Grenville, was completed in 1934 at a cost of $1,320,956 of the "admiralty" type, she carried five 4.7 inch guns, seven smaller guns and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

She was the sixth British destroyer lost and the first to go down with all hands. Britain's acknowledged naval losses to date total 82,088 tons. The biggest casualties were the 29,150-ton battleship Royal Oak, torpedoed at the Scapa Flow naval base Nov. 14, and the 22,500-ton aircraft carrier Courageous, torpedoed in the English channel Sept. 18.

Only last December Captain R. S. Benson, commander of the Exmouth, received the distinguished service order for "successful action against enemy submarines." He was on the bridge of the Exmouth at that time.

In August 1937, Captain Benson figured in the Japanese-Chinese war during the Japanese attack on Shanghai, where he was stationed as commander of the British cruiser Danane.

He appealed unsuccessfully to Japanese Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa to move his flagship, the Izumo, from alongside the Japanese consulate-general at the international area on the ground it would induce Chinese bombing of the area.

Group Plans Petition Against Dam Cancellation

Petitions will be circulated in Iowa City today by a committee representing the local Building Trades council urging opposition to cancellation of the proposed $6,000,000 Coralville dam, project. L. L. Stoeber, president of the local trades union, last night met with his committee to word the petition as follows:

"To the honorable Gov. George A. Wilson, Statehouse, Des Moines: We, the undersigned, petition you in favor of the Coralville dam project. This project will create 500,000 man days of labor or more than three years of work for 500 men which will offset relief rolls of the county as well as the state of Iowa.

"The geological survey shows that it will restore the Iowa river valley water level which at the present is far below normal and receding each year. We believe that all Iowa river valley communities will benefit by this project."

The local group is seeking the backing also of the city council and chamber of commerce in an effort to affect the governor's overruling of an objection to the dam made Saturday by the Iowa conservation commission.

Stoeber and his committee, which includes Vernon Stutzman, secretary of the Central Labor union, and Everett Tompkins, head of the truck drivers division, visited the governor at Des Moines Monday with 25 from other parts of the state to express their verbal objections.

The governor told the labor leaders he would consult both the conservation commission and the attorney general as to his authority in the case.

Louisa In Favor According to The Associated Press, the Louisa county board of supervisors visited the governor yesterday to urge his support of the dam project in the Iowa river.

Accompanying the board members were Noah Schrock of Oakville, president of the Upper Mississippi Valley drainage association, and Joe Reiman, also of Oakville, representing Louisa-Des Moines drainage district No. 4.

Schrock, acting as spokesman, urged the construction of the dam as a "flood control project," saying it would benefit 100,000 acres of land in southeastern Iowa.

Every Man To His Own Opinion

IN 1881 John Pentland Mahaffy of the University of Dublin in his book "Old Greek Education," had this to say about the Greek Sophists:

"This is what the Greek Sophists really were, crammers not for special competitions, but for the general requirements of higher society, and of political life. They crammed more or less honestly, more or less efficiently, for a generation or two. Then the want of them passed away, as we may hope the want of the modern crammer will pass away with the superstition that we can find out practical merit by mere examinations."

The Census Keeps Tab On Labor

(Fourth in a Series) ONE OF THE most important divisions of the census of 1940 will be concerned with labor. Stress will be laid on questions dealing with unemployment, period of employment, type of occupation, age and social classification of the worker.

Information gained through census channels will afford a very accurate index of the changing economic and social status of American labor for the past ten years. By comparing these figures gathered in 1940 with those of earlier censuses, the department of commerce will have data for the constructive study of the country's most pressing problem—unemployment.

By testing the available labor supply, census takers will, at the same time, get the unemployment information. In this test, based on the questions asked, the labor force will be divided into four main groups, and will cover the working week of March 24-30. The divisions to be made are:

- 1. Persons actually at work on private nonemergency government work during that week.
2. Persons at work on, or assigned to, public emergency work during that week.
3. All persons seeking work and not in either of the above classifications.
4. Persons with a job in private or nonemergency government work, or with a business or professional enterprise, who did not work during that week because they were either on a vacation; temporarily ill; on a layoff not exceeding four weeks with instructions to return to work on a specified date; on a strike or lockout; or on a lay-off due to temporary bad weather.

Further questions will reveal the amount of experience and training that workers have had. Those unemployed will be asked if they are seeking employment. Other tests will reveal the number of those who have been forced by economic developments to continue in their work beyond the normal retirement age, and those who have had to prolong their period of schooling to await more favorable employment opportunities.

All persons not in the labor force will be classified according to their type of activity, whether it be housework, school attendance, or disability.

The census will also reveal, on labor, the percentage of married and unmarried men and women gainfully employed. This will help sociologists. A test of the numbers employed in the various labor fields, too, will be made. A comparison of present trends in the kinds of laborers and the types of work they do, with those trends of the past, will aid in corrective measures.

The importance of labor statistics to good business, and therefore to good wages and the general normal development of the individual worker and his dependents, is unlimited. Adequate and yet fair business control by government agencies and departments depends upon the census for its data. It remains for the worker, as well as for the non-worker, to furnish accurate information on the part he plays in the machinery of business. Without his cooperation, more panics may threaten.

What The Finns Really Need

THE Finnish government has appealed to the democratic nations of the world for aid in her fight against the premier communistic state. Two of the nations which are generally considered democratic have responded in an effective manner. Even Italy, which nobody considers democratic these days, has sent substantial help.

The United States, one of the world's great bulwarks of democracy, has done her part by extending aid in a non military way. The credit given Finland is probably a sizeable boon, but the emergency which now grips the Finns is a military one, and military assistance is what they need.

Legislative dignitaries in Washington are now bickering about giving the Finns new economic assistance, completely disregarding Finnish assertions that they have barely scratched the surface of the ten million dollars already available to them in this country, and this, together with the satisfactory food reserves now accumulated in Finland, makes further non-military grants of funds practically superfluous.

A museum head says that camels 12 feet tall once roamed North America. Did they really live or were they just some caveman's hangover?

College students are being taught aerodynamics by government teachers. There's one class they can't skip without parachutes.

It took a war to do it, but it has apparently worked. Herr Hitler, for some time now, has had nothing to say.

Perhaps the reason Mussolini is so full of sympathy for the Finns is that he remembers just how the Albanians felt when the same thing happened to them.

CLIPPED FROM OTHER COLUMNS

Was Lord Bryce Wrong? A "science" still in its infancy may prove the key to one of democracy's greatest weaknesses. . . .

Other "dangers" of the polls listed by detractors are, (1) the man in the street cannot be expected to decide intelligently on abstract issues; (2) published reports on the polls tend to set the public mind on an issue; (3) the polls may supplant party conventions.

But those favoring the surveys answer that, (1) the man in the street has been deciding issues, intelligently or otherwise, every election day for a long time; (2) the polls stir up more debate, centered on the really important issues; and (3) party conventions never reflected wishes of the rank and file anyway.

Crux of the technique used by Gallup and Roper is the attempt to get a truly representative cross-section of opinion in all classes rather than just to interview large numbers of people, chosen at random. The next step, no less important, is to include all classes of opinions in the proper proportion.

The polls were first tested in commerce, and today Dr. Gallup confidently predicts that within a few years merchants will use them to audit their public relations in the same matter-of-fact way they now audit finances.

Political implications of this new, informal and speedy method of accurately gauging the public will are almost infinite in scope. Ardent fans of Dr. Gallup and Fortune's Mr. Roper point to the Congressional Record to show the polls already directly influence the course of legislation.

But, like Samson, the polls' strength is its greatest weakness. So efficient a method of sampling public reaction is sure to be an irresistible temptation to those who wish to influence that reaction. Any attempt to corrupt the polls to the ends of propaganda should be squashed immediately.

With untainted polls, Americans need no longer take the word of presidents, politicians, editors or lobbyists.

EVIL GENIE OF 1940

Senator Nye Has No Chance at Presidency; North Dakota Has Few Convention Votes

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE of North Dakota took an entirely unnecessary precaution the other day when, in declaring his preference for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan as the Republican's 1940 presidential nominee, he added that, so far as himself is concerned, he isn't a candidate. He's perfectly safe; the G. O. P. won't name him—not at the head of its ticket, anyway.

Not that Nye wouldn't make a good president. His geography is what's the matter with him; not his quality. North Dakota hasn't enough convention votes to win a shotgun and it already is dependably Republican. There's no need for the party to make a bid for its few little handful of ballots by picking Gerald as its national standard bearer.

It's true that he's been presidentially mentioned, but not vociferously and not by any really practical politician. He always has been a first rate liberal and moderate leftist greatly approved of him. As author of our original neutrality law (now considerably altered) he's extremely popular among ultra-pacifistic folk. But these groups, even combined, don't dominate national conventions against craftier managers, who want to win primarily, and are guided accordingly. They may deem it expedient to agree on a liberal or pacifist or both when the G. O. P. picks its next leader, but not a liberal or a pacifist from a state like North Dakota. It would be too much like handing the prize to Rhode Island.

Infant Statesmanship. Nevertheless, it's greatly to Senator Nye's credit that he's talked about the least bit. It implies that he's very well thought of personally, regardless of his geographical availability. Gerald, since his advent in Washington, has labored persistently under the handicap of being classed as an infant senator. Originally he was appointed to the upper congressional chamber to fill a vacancy, at the age of 33. There have been younger senators, but not more than two or three. Now he's 48. But it always has been assumed that he's in the infant category. That stigma clings to him today, and will continue to do so if he lives to be 100.

For instance, who ever heard today of Senator Robert M. La Follette referred to otherwise than as "Young Bob"?—a mere kindergarten product. Senator Rush D. Holt is in the same group. Nobody rates him as anybody but a high school lad, and nobody ever will, senatorially speaking. It's related that Henry Clay similarly was discounted, but that's so far back that it's forgotten.

A representative can get in young and work up. Not a senator. If he's young to begin with, his fellow senators everlastingly patronize him as a junior. For the presidency a candidate mustn't be too old. A senator shouldn't be too young, if he's to be influential. John N. Garner is pretty old for the White House. Nye isn't too old, but he's too young. And of course his geography's wrong also. He was born in Wisconsin. He ought to have gone to New York, to become a presidential eligible, but he made the infantile mistake of locating in North Dakota.

Champion Investigator. Nye has been the best investigator that the senate ever had. He's been chairman of half a dozen important inquiries on Capitol Hill. His last one was into war profiteering and led to our present neutrality law, though it was somewhat tinkered with at the last congressional special session. Even as it stands, though, Gerald was the inspiration of it.

He doesn't investigate as a lawyer does. He investigates like a newspaperman. He is one. He goes after facts, without much regard for technical rules of evidence. It gets results, however. There never was a more consistent liberal in congress. He's an able senator, but at two score years and eight he hasn't lived down the fact that he was only 33 when he first arrived in Washington.

NEWS OF THE DAY—Fred Allen is taking no chances these days. Like an opera star who travels with a claqué, Fred will interview Arthur Barnett, who calls himself the world's greatest authority and demonstrator on laughter, as his "Person You Didn't Expect to Meet" on the "Fred Allen Show" tonight at 8 o'clock over the NBC-Red network.

MR. BARNETT claims to have studied the laugh per se for almost 30 years, spending six years on the snicker, eight years on the guffaw and majoring in the belly-laugh. Fred hopes to have him on hand early so he can warm up the studio audience in the gentle art of explosive mirth.

REASON IS, of course, that those tunes are cleared specifically for the "Hit Parade" and cannot be duplicated on the program immediately following.

SAMMY KAYE is the only maestro commercially broadcasting from New York City to air over all three major networks. That's a sign of popularity that many bands will have to go a long way to surpass. Even Art Hatter and his saxophone can't beat it!

New York Doesn't Care Immensity of City Precludes Sympathy Says George Tucker

NEW YORK—The rather shocking unemotionality of New York is frequently manifested in the apathy of crowds toward individuals who are dead, in distress, or merely drunk or sleeping. Perhaps this is due to the prevalence of "sleepers" or jerks who, being homeless or at least witless for the time being, think nothing of stretching out on the sidewalk or on the even cold pavements of the subway stations and dropping off to sleep.

The other morning about 8:30 a man was sitting on the curb at Chambers street at its intersection with Seventh avenue. He needed a shave. His clothes were pretty shabby. By the thermometer on the Erie station, just two blocks away, the temperature was 35, just three degrees above freezing.

This man suddenly toppled over in the street. He lay with that terrible inertness of the very drunk or the dead. But he wasn't drunk, because his breathing was imperceptible. Chambers street at nine o'clock in the morning is a busy street. It is the point of entry in Manhattan for thousands of commuters who live on the Jersey side. It would be no exaggeration to say that 300 people passed this man in the space of fifteen minutes, yet not a single one paused to inquire after him, or to give aid. They accorded him with that peculiar stare reserved for freaks or objects that inspire dread or loathing, but that was all. No one slackened pace.

These people were hurrying to their offices and no unidentified body on the red bricks of Chambers street was going to delay them. In a few minutes a cop ran up and bent over the man. Right behind him came an ambulance and a police doctor. A hasty examination revealed neither hunger, nor narcotics, nor foul play. The man had suffered a heart attack. His heart had simply stopped beating. The hundreds who passed him and accorded him a glance of curiosity mingled with loathing do not know this. In all probability most of them went home that night and told of a contemptible bum they saw in the gutter. That is New York's way. That is the city and the pity of it.

Perhaps there are no grounds for despair. The awful immensity of New York precludes the personal sympathy and warmth to be found in less populous localities. And yet, this peculiar sense of detachment always startles me when I come upon it. Why, I can not truly say. Maybe it is simply the vanity of mortals who grieve for those who have passed on. Probably it is some offshoot of fear, based on the subconscious realization that there, but for the Grace of God, lies George Tucker.

NEW YORK and its immediate vicinity has some lovely names and also some very hideous ones. There is Corlear's Hook, an elbow of land that jabs out from Manhattan into the East river that connotes the first gathering of the Dutch on these wilderness shores. For some peculiar reason this old Dutch name has always fascinated me. And so has San Juan Hill, a rather shabby section of New York now but replete with much two-fisted lore. The name that horrifies me is Flushing. It was on Flushing meadow that the Fair was held. I do not know who gave this locality the name of Flushing, but whoever was responsible most certainly went out of their way to uglify an innocent community.

Names of places should be musical and picturesque with softly flowing syllables such as Yellow Tavern (just say that softly to yourself) or Stoney Point. Great Neck I dislike. Weehawkin is a fine name and one that no one forgets.

Some folks read all those communiques issued by the warring European governments. Others prefer to stick to the old-fashioned fairy tales.

Among the many captives the Finns have taken there has been no mention, oddly enough, of Stalin's goat.

Hammerin' Henry to Defend Title Against Montanez

By SID FEDER NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)— Hammerin' Henry Armstrong puts his world welterweight championship on the line for the 15th time tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden against the stiff-punching body attack of Pedro Montanez of Puerto Rico.

The athletic situation hereabouts is, right now, a veritable rainwater puddle, stagnated and dull. The few minor splashes are of an intellectual variety, with the pool-wogs and algae quite serious about the situation—final exams have to be short, ended anything like competition for the week.

Next week, with tests out of the way, athletes will swing into the toughest part of the competitive year, with several contests scheduled. Included among those who will resume physical activity is practically everybody except the statuettes that adorn several campus buildings.

Football's final event from the season of 1939 will be the presentation to Nile Kinnick of the Chicago Tribune trophy for the Big Ten's most valuable player. Yesterday word was received from Wilfred Smith of the Tribune that he will be here to give Kinnick the silver football. Smith calls the Iowa plans for this year the most pretentious to ever accompany the award and he is immensely interested in the proceedings, scheduled for Feb. 12 on the night of the Ohio State-Iowa basketball game.

Dad Schroeder, Iowa's athletic director, just received a plaque commemorating the Golden anniversary of the national Amateur Athletic union, better known as the A. A. U. Given to him in recognition of years of service, it lists the past presidents of the organization. Schroeder has served several times on the Olympic committees of the union. Since the growth in late years of the National Collegiate Athletic association, however, he has been identified with this group more closely than with the A. A. U.

By WARREN CURRY Led by Red Miller, the fighting Irish of St. Patrick's last night out-fought the St. Wenceslaus Red Hawks of Cedar Rapids, 38-20, on the home floor.

It was the third straight victory for the Shamrocks, but the first won over a Cedar Rapids team since 1938. The St. Pat's outfit played hard, aggressive basketball to bottle up the opponents.

Miller's 14 points sent his total up to 118 points for eight games. His passing and defensive work rivaled his shooting for show.

Closely following Miller was Paul Holland, tall Irish center, with 11 markers. Five free tosses in as many chances boosted Holland's total.

Three quick baskets by the sharpshooter Miller put the Shamrocks into an early lead which was never relinquished. Ten of Miller's points came in the first period, and added to Grady's two charity tosses, brought the count to 12-6 at the quarter mark.

Holland scored all of the fighting Irish points in the second period with a field goal and two free throws. Polonsky dropped in a field goal for the Red Hawks and the half ended 16-8.

St. Pat's came back strong in the third quarter with every team member figuring in the scoring. Both teams doubled the half-time score and the count at the third quarter mark was 32-16.

Baseball Stars' Doctor Dies; Spencer Treated Them All

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP)— Dr. Charles H. Spencer, 65, nationally known osteopath who treated hundreds of baseball players from Ty Cobb to Joe DiMaggio, died yesterday.

The wiry, bald-pated "little doc" was recognized as a master in dealing with athletes' "glass arms," torn muscles and similar ailments.

Dr. Spencer spent his youth in Des Moines and attended Still college of osteopathy. An injury to himself playing ball interested Spencer in the subject, and he made it his life's work. He came to Los Angeles in 1905.

Omaha Coach Named Outstanding Man

OMAHA, Jan. 23 (AP)— A football, baseball and basketball coach today was named by the junior chamber of commerce as Omaha's "outstanding young man of 1939."

He is Maurice H. (Skip) Palrang, 33, of Creighton university. "Skip" was named chiefly for his leadership of the Omaha McDevitts to the National American Legion junior baseball championship last summer.

For several years he was Creighton prep athletic coach and now is head football coach for the university's varsity team, a job he assumed when Marchmont Schwartz resigned last month.

The award was presented to Palrang at a junior chamber luncheon today, with the Rev. Bernard R. Murray of Creighton, responding for "Skip," who regards making a speech in the same class with facing a firing squad.

Ice Carnival Planned Here Event Will Be Friday At Lagoon

Races, exhibitions and a number of other features will highlight the university ice carnival Friday night at the lagoon, it was announced last night by Charles Kennett, in charge of the event.

The tremendous interest in skating, helped along by the almost continuous presence of good ice this winter, has been instrumental in bringing about the event. Entries for the carnival, which starts at 8 p.m. Friday, will be accepted by Kennett at his office in the fieldhouse or at the lagoon.

Among the leading performers will be a pair of local skaters, Dorothy Keppler and Gusti Grayston. Both will figure in ice exhibitions during the evening. They were featured skaters in the carnival staged in Iowa City last year.

Also on the program will be several speed contests, with five medals, in all, offered. These races will include half-mile and mile skating events for men, with other races to be scheduled, providing there is a demand for them.

The events are open to anyone who wishes to enter.

Galento, Max Baer To Meet in April

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23 (AP)— Joe Jacobs announced tonight his protegee, Tony Galento, will fight Max Baer in Philadelphia's convention hall early in April and then—if victorious—may meet Joe Louis at municipal stadium next June for the world heavyweight title.

Entries Come In NEW YORK (AP)—Entries continued to pour in yesterday for the Millrose games, first of New York's big indoor track meets at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 3.

Heading the list were Charles Fenske, Wisconsin graduate and the country's outstanding miler last year, and Leslie Mac Mitchell, N.Y.U. sophomore star. They accepted an invitation to run against the nation's best in the Wanamaker mile.

He later coached at the University of Maine and officiated throughout the east. Several years ago he quit sports and entered the coal business at Madison, Wis.

Johnny Hoban, Washington's freshman football coach, resigned today with the brief explanation: "Now that he (Konzelman, who charged he was fired) is out, I don't want to be in."

Connie Wants Tiger Rookie

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23 (AP)— Connie Mack wants Benny McCoy, former Detroit Tiger rookie second baseman, so much that, he said today, he has offered to top any proposition McCoy receives from a major league club.

The 77-year-old manager of the athletics said he was "doing business" with McCoy, whom Judge Landis made a free agent Jan. 14, and would send his son, Earle, to Grandville, Mich., late this week with a blank contract.

"We want McCoy — we need Benny — for he would make quite a difference in my team," Mack said.

He declined to say how high he would bid to get him but recent reports had Pittsburgh offering $35,000 and Brooklyn and the New York Giants something about $50,000 for the young second sacker's services.

Lefty Gomez, Powell First Yankees To Sign Contracts for 1940

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—To Lefty Gomez and Jake Powell go the honors of being the first of the New York Yankees to sign their 1940 contracts.

Gomez, who won only 12 and lost eight last year, personally delivered his contract to President Ed Barrow today. Powell, relief outfielder who hit .244 in 31 games in 1939, mailed his in from Dayton, Ohio.

The Giants received the contracts of Pitcher Manuel Salvo, who was something of a disappointment last year when he won only four and lost 10, and Babe Young, first baseman who was runner-up for the Southern association batting championship while with Knoxville last year. Young joined the Giants late in the season and showed so much promise that Manager Bill Terry indicated he would be his first baseman this year.

Jayhawks Win LAWRENCE, Kas., (AP)— Bobby Allen dug in his spurs to send the Kansas university "pony express" basketball team galloping to a 40 to 24 victory over the tall Nebraska Cornhuskers tonight. The easy victory gave the Kansas undisputed claim to second place in the Big Six conference, which they had shared with Oklahoma.

Undaunted by 79 Years, Paderewski Pledges His Life to a New Poland

Musician Is Nation's New Leader

By TAYLOR HENRY
PARIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Weak with the weight of his 79 years but undaunted in spirit, Ignace Jan Paderewski stirred the Polish parliament-in-exile which elected him its president today to tears in pledging that body to raise Poland "from the ruins."

The slender pianist's hands which won Paderewski world fame but have not touched a keyboard since Germany invaded Poland, brushed aside the cobwebs of 20 years' political retirement to take the president's gavel of the national council.

I Do Not Know
"I do not know," the white haired musician said as tears streamed down the faces of the delegates in the grand ballroom of the Polish embassy, "if God will let me take part much longer in the work of the national council."

Although he had to be helped to his feet by a secretary, Paderewski's voice gained strength and rose almost to a shout as he cried: "Poland is immortal. We will deliver her from captivity and will raise her from the ruins. We take this engagement before God!"

The one-time premier of Poland declared the creation of a powerful army was the government's first aim and appealed for unity in internal matters to concentrate on rebuilding Poland.

Thanks Americans
He gave special thanks to America's Poles "to whose generosity we owe a great part of our power to aid the Polish refugees and population in distress."

Apparently the acceptance of the council presidency meant the end of the great pianist's musical career, which earned him millions and the adoration of music lovers all over the world.

Paderewski for the first time in two decades, left his piano at home in Switzerland when he came to Paris.

"I do not want it," he explained. "I have no need for it."

He retired as Polish premier in 1919 to devote his remaining years to music.

'APPLETIZERS' POINT UP SIMPLE MENUS

Appletizers are something new for the hostess who likes to give her parties touches of individuality which make them memorable. The inspiration of Cora Anthony, cooking expert for one of the nation's largest food chains, appletizers are featured in a group of recipes for the inauguration of Second National Apple week in February. Celebration of apple week marks the latest of the drives staged by food chains to move surplus crops and stabilize returns to farmers. During the week apples will be an important item for the housekeeper, who keeps an eye on her budget, says Miss Anthony. Here are the recipes for the appletizers shown in the picture:

Appletizers on a Toothpick
Cut apples in cubes, place alternately on toothpicks with cubes of cheese (sharp store or Roquefort); salami; pickled onions; cocktail sausages or frankfurters; pieces of crisped bacon or salted nuts. Stick toothpicks into a large apple.

Appletizers Canapes
Core unpeeled red apples; cut in slices; cut slices in half; cover with desired spreads such as caviar; cream cheese seasoned with salt, cayenne, Worcestershire and onion juice; cream cheese and anchovy; pot cheese and chives; Camembert cheese; toasted sharp cheese sprinkled with cayenne; smoked salmon or whitefish; smoked herring fillets; or deviled ham.

Appletizer Sticks
Cut apples into quarter-inch sticks; wrap with thin slices of smoked turkey breast; boiled or baked ham; dried smoked beef, or salami.

Dip all cut apples in lemon, pineapple or grapefruit juice to retard darkening.

Interpreting The War News—

Finland Awaits Imminent Soviet Mass Attack--A Danger to All Europe

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

A conjunction of elements, natural and political, is shaping to force a crisis of world significance on the narrow front of the Karelian isthmus that binds Finland and Soviet Russia together.

Every turn of the cards indicates that Russia must soon strike there in a desperate effort to smash Finnish resistance and retrieve the prestige of Moscow and the Red army. The incessant thunder of Russian air bombs, blasting at scores of Finnish towns and villages, is the rumbling prelude to that attack, according to the judgment of neutral observers.

Time is of vital consequence now to Moscow. Not only is aid for Finland coming from Britain, from France, from Scandinavia, even from the United States in the form of relief subscriptions; but Finland's great ally, the weather, is preparing again to intervene in her behalf.

Whether the Red army strikes alone or with Nazi aid, its effort to break through Finland's life-line defense on the Karelian isthmus cannot be long delayed. The weather history of central Finland forecasts that by mid-March there will be a break in the icy cold that has shattered records a quarter century old.

With the first thaws, a new and even more difficult problem of mechanized attack on Finland's stoutly defended Mannerheim line will confront Red army captains. Tanks and guns that could be moved up somehow in sub-zero weather over deep-frozen roads and fields and shallow watercourses, would be bogged in seas of mud.

In view of that, Finnish leaders expect an attack soon. The expectation is reflected in all press advices from Finland. It underscored recent Finnish pleas for practical and immediate aid rather than mere words of sympathy from her Scandinavian neighbors and from England and France. And it was the background against which Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, urged Europe's little neutrals, north and south, to unite with the allies against the "barbarisms of nazidom and bolshevism."

The western end of the Karelian isthmus, which may thus prove to be the ultimate battle ground of the Russo-Finnish war, is a small stage upon which to enact a drama so fraught with import for Finland, for Europe, and for the world. It is hardly more than fifty miles square, if that. Yet what happens there before the first thaws of spring may determine whether Europe's two wars are to merge into a new world war to engulf all nations, from Russia to Greece and Italy, in its deadly whirlpool, and perhaps overlap into the far east.

The certainty in Finland that Red Russia is massing for attack on the Karelian front throws new light on another utterance in Churchill's week end broadcast. Not only did Britain's most aggressive war leader repeatedly intertwine the Nazis and the Russians as a common enemy. He pictured ultimate Finnish defeat by her mighty Russian foe as perhaps heralding a "return to the dark ages" for the world.

That raises a question whether Britain and France can refrain from doing everything in their power to stave off such a defeat. It suggests that allied diplomacy is preparing to urge Scandinavia into the struggle as a means of opening the road for direct British and French military aid to Finland in the impending crisis on the Karelian isthmus.

There has been no clear indication of the part Hitler is to play in that battle, when and if it comes. There are increasing indications, however, that Berlin is seriously concerned over the situation developing for her as a result of the Russo-Finnish conflict.

A fresh indication of that came with reports that German military police and German railroad technicians had taken control of the railroad through Russianized Poland that links German with vital Rumanian and Polish oil and grain resources. Rebellious and inefficient crews operating that line were the avowed reason for the move, sanctioned by Moscow.

It is significant, however, that one reported result was the withdrawal of a considerable number of Russian troops from the region of the Polish-Rumanian border.

Those troops, picked by Moscow for the Polish invasion, may be needed in Finland. Or it well may mean that Moscow is ready to trade German supervision of the railroad for German cooperation in the Karelian fighting.

One thing now seems clear: In the light of the Churchill speech, active German aid to Russia in Finland might well mean allied entry into that conflict, thus welding Europe's two wars into one.

'Gentlemen's Peace Pact' Reported in Far-Eastern War

Document in Question Would Give Japan Sweeping Controls

SHANGHAI, Jan. 23 (AP)—As former Chinese Premier Wang Ching-Wei opened an oft-announced crucial conference at Tsingtao today to promote establishment of a Japanese-approved new central government in China, his followers here disclosed that a "gentlemen's agreement" already has been signed for a peace with Japan.

This agreement, they said, was signed by Wang and "unofficial" representatives of the Japanese government with the approval of the Japanese army. It contains reverse points under which Wang, who broke with the Chiang Kai-shek regime a year ago, would, in the name of China, make peace with Japan and grant her most of the objectives for which she invaded China.

It would give Japan economic dominance over China and sweeping military and political rights in several important special areas.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese leader, in a statement at Chungking said that the Wang-Japanese agreement was "invalid" but that it deserved the serious consideration of the world because it disclosed "the sinister Japanese ambition" to make China protectorate.

The Japanese cabinet approved Wang on Jan. 8 as head of a Chinese central government with which it would cooperate.

Wang's followers here said the principal terms of the tentative peace agreement included:

1. Recognition of the Japanese conquest of Manchoukuo.
2. Signature of a Japanese-Manchoukuo-Chinese anticommintern alliance.
3. Agreement by Japan to withdraw troops within two years from any area of central or south China where "the new government demonstrates its ability to maintain peace and order."
4. Joint government of inner Mongolia by the Japanese army and the Chinese.
5. Establishment of north China as a semi-autonomous area.
6. Maintenance of permanent Japanese garrisons in north China and inner Mongolia as defense against Russian and Chinese communists.
7. Drawing up of detailed plans for economic development of China's industry and resources through "joint Chinese-Japanese cooperation."
8. "Supervision" by Japan of Chinese customs, which is expected to be the chief source of revenue for the new government.
9. Permanent Japanese occupation of Hainan island, off the southern tip of China and opposite French Indo-China, for purposes of "national defense" and naval operations.

S. U. I. Men Now in Navy

Stepanek, Walters, Cortlett in Training At Pensacola, Florida

Three former students at the university of Iowa are now in the United States navy aviation corps training schools at Pensacola, Fla., according to word received here yesterday.

Two more former students have passed the physical examination necessary for entrance into the training program and are now awaiting word to go into the training in Florida.

The three men now at the naval air station in Pensacola are Ed G. Stepanek of Cedar Rapids, Robert C. Cortlett of Burlington and C. Ray Walters of Rockford, Ill. All these men were members of the 1939 graduating class at the university.

The two men presently awaiting call are Melvin D. Synhorst of Orange City and Kenneth James Bigelow of Waukon.

Upon the satisfactory completion of the flight and ground school course at Pensacola, each man will be commissioned as an officer and will be required to serve for a period of three years in the United States fleet as a naval aviator.

After completion of this enlistment period, each will have the option of continuing on in the navy at increased pay or return to civil life.

Marshal Kills Bank Robber

Neighbor Shot When Attempting To Flee After Second Robbery

CLAFLIN, Kas., Jan. 23 (AP)—Fred Adams took the most careful bead on his gun today that he ever did in 20 years as city marshal.

A man had robbed two banks in different towns within a space of 15 minutes. And there he was emerging from the second bank within Adams' firing range.

Four times the 64-year old marshal fired. The robber fell dead with three bullets in his body. Then Adams stepped forward to make a startling discovery—the man masked with goggles and adhesive tape, was his own neighbor.

"So I shot my neighbor; well, he might have shot me," Adams commented after identifying the man as Russell Hunter, 30, a flour mill worker who lived within a block of the marshal.

The loot of the two robberies—$452 from the State bank at Bushton, Kas., eight miles east, and $1,054 from the Farmers and Merchants State bank of Claflin—was found in the car in which he was attempting to flee when Adams opened fire.

Hunter's employer said he was in financial straits because of his wife's illness. He had no criminal record.

Snow Over Cotton Land Worst Snowstorms In Parts of Dixie

ATLANTA, Jan. 23 (AP)—The land of cotton shouldered an unaccustomed blanket of snow tonight and found it a wearying load.

In many areas it was the worst snowstorm of a generation. Atlanta's 9 1/2 inch fall set a new record for the city and 10 inches was an all-time mark for Jackson, Miss.

Shivering southerners dug in for several days' siege as meteorologists forecast temperatures considerably lower than the 25-30 degrees that accompanied the snow.

Have Financial Plans Clear-- Lee Kann Warns Students

Don't register for second semester work at the University of Iowa on a financial shoestring was the warning given yesterday by Lee Kann, manager of the employment bureau.

He stressed the fact that the job situation "generally is not encouraging" and that the student should have his financial plans clear for the entire semester, not just for a few weeks.

"Jobs which will open in most cases are those with unusual hours, and students who can fit their class schedule will be the ones to get the work," Mr. Kann said. He said it was important that schedules be filed with the employment office, thereby enhancing the possibility of placement.

Girls are more fortunate than men, especially if they have had previous experience in working in homes. There is a demand for students to do this type of work for board and room, Mr. Kann also added.

Those students with restaurant and soda fountain experience also will find it easier to secure work. But Mr. Kann emphasized the importance of registering with the employment bureau at once.

"The student who is in need of cash income, not board and room, should move very cautiously on his plans unless he has a definite outlook for the semester," Mr. Kann declared.

During the second semester, Mr. Kann expects the usual number, about 55 per cent of the campus students, to have regular or temporary jobs.

snow piled up. In some places it measured an official foot.

Air, motor car and bus, train and water transportation was hampered.

Unfamiliar with icy-road driving, Dixie motorists had tough going. They skidded into drifts and stuck. Most had no tire chains. City streets and country highways were dotted with marooned cars.

A coal shortage threatened domestic users in Birmingham, Ala., in the heart of the Alabama coal mining and steel manufacturing area.

Mining operations in recent weeks had been hampered by cold.

'Wireless' Corporation Now Sends Commodities to Reich

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Jan. 23 (AP)—A Council Bluffs resident who declined to permit use of his name said today the Fortra corporation, handling the "wirelessing" of food to Germany, was organized last fall after the U. S. post office department had barred regular parcel post shipments to Germany.

Council Bluffs is one of 15 cities having branch offices of Fortra, with headquarters in New York.

The Council Bluffs spokesman said most of the packages donated here would contain cheese, butter, coffee and laundry and hand soap for residents of Germany, with the cost at $8.50 per package, including cable and postal expenses. The same amount of commodities, he said, could be purchased in the U. S. "several dollars cheaper."

He would give no estimate of the amount of money collected here.

Collections, he said, are handled by representatives of German steamship lines. At Omaha, Val Peter, German language newspaper publisher, said the Council Bluffs regional headquarters are under the direction of a traveling representative of the steamship lines. Advertisements outlining the plan are being carried in German language newspapers.

The Council Bluffs spokesman explained that donations are sent to Holland where packages are made up, held until there are enough to make a train car load, then shipped into Germany where they are addressed to individuals named by the American donors.

Heirs of Deceased House Members Will Get Benefit Payments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The house appropriations committee approved today payment of $90,000 to the heirs of recently deceased house members.

Payments would be made to the widows of William A. Ashbrook and Chester C. Bolton of Ohio, George H. Heinke of Nebraska, Carl E. Mapes of Michigan, John A. Martin of Colorado, Edward W. Curley of New York, J. Will Taylor of Tennessee, and Resident Commissioner Santiago Iglesias of Puerto Rico, and the daughter of Wallace E. Pierce of New York.

Certification may be secured by calling at the NYA office, B-12, University hall, it was announced.

Dewey Flays F.R.'s Fiscal Policies

Hundreds Hear Address In Boston

Republican Aspirant For Presidential Race Attacks Administration

BOSTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the republican presidential nomination, charged the new deal with "maladministration" tonight, and declared it stood "condemned because its policies have prevented the employment of nine million Americans who want work."

Massachusetts republicans gave the young New York prosecutor a rousing welcome as he keynoted his drive for New England support with an attack upon the new deal fiscal policies.

Bunting - bedecked Mechanics hall, one of the largest in the city, was filled to capacity. Hundreds of persons stood and several hundred poured into an adjoining auditorium to hear Dewey over an amplifier.

Attendance estimates ranged up to the 16,000 that Lieutenant Governor Horace Cahill (R) said were there to "welcome the people's counselor." Police estimated capacity of the hall at 6,000.

The New York district attorney's speech—the third major address of his campaign—was broadcast nationally by NBC.

Dewey described the new deal fiscal policies as "unbridled and spendthrift," and he declared the Roosevelt administration was "fostering a defeatist attitude on the whole subject of our economic future."

He drew a round of applause when he said:

"The national administration which will succeed the new deal next January must again release the energy of private enterprise to transform unemployment into employment, relief into jobs."

"Budget Can Be Balanced" Again he was applauded when he asserted the federal budget "can not only be balanced, it can be brought down to a reasonable figure."

At another point, he declared: "Seven years of maladministration in Washington have temporarily held back the growth of our country. But I deny that the American people are finished. America is at the morning of its destiny."

In opening his attack upon the new deal spending policies, he asserted that "it is perfectly plain that the administration is too tired to do anything about its budget." And as he came to the end of his prepared address, he added: "Only a new boom can sweep clean the budgetary litter of the new deal."

The lawyer from Michigan, who rose to national prominence as a "rocket buster" in Manhattan, maintained that "in its first responsibility to the men and women seeking a livelihood, the new deal has utterly and completely collapsed."

First Duty "Here is the first duty of the national administration which will succeed the new deal next January," he said. "It must again release the energy of private enterprise to transform unemployment into employment, relief into jobs."

Dewey maintained that the federal government was spending $17,500 every minute, but was taking only 55 cents for every dollar spent.

He said that "even waste of money is not the greatest offense of this administration. The crime of the new deal is its denial of human opportunity to millions of people."

In this connection, he maintained that there had been a "startling" decline in marriage, a drop of 25 per cent in 1938 as compared with the period of 1922 and 1928.

"One out of every four young couples who would normally have married has been denied that opportunity by economic conditions for which the administration must be held responsible," he said.

Seven Lean Years Dewey declared the seven "lean" years have made it impossible for "any administration" to balance the budget "overnight," and added that "we are not going to economize at the expense of the unemployed or the aged."

"Just for a moment," Dewey said, "let us look at the new deal alibi for its unbalanced budget. The alibi is that recovery and relief monies keep the budget unbalanced. But look at the last completed fiscal year. All the money spent on relief, plus the money dissipated in the spending program, together amount to $3,100,000,000. Taking that from the total expense of $9,300,000,000, you still have $6,200,000,000 left for other expenses of the government."

"There Goes the Alibi" "Do the same thing to the first new deal which ended in 1934 and the other expenses were only $3,600,000,000. Wholly aside from relief and the spending program, that is a net increase of $2,600,000. There goes the alibi."

"We can and will again have a government which keeps the faith. We will keep faith with the needs

Ship Sinks--

Germany has admitted the loss of only the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Graf Spee, a few submarines and two 400-ton patrol boats. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, claims, however, that the Nazi sea losses have been much higher, including "half the U-boats."

The admiralty communique said: "The secretary of the admiralty regrets to announce that H.M. destroyer Exmouth, Captain R. S. Benson, has been sunk by either a mine or a torpedo and it is feared that there are no survivors. Next of kin have been informed."

Craft Cost $1,650,000 The craft, capable of 36 knots, was built at a cost of about $1,650,000 at the time she was built several years ago.

It was Britain's 22nd naval loss and the sixth destroyer sunk since the war began.

The other destroyers lost, besides the Grenville, were the Blanche and the Gypsy, sunk by mines; the Jersey, damaged by a torpedo and the Duchess, lost in a collision. The Grenville, like the Exmouth, was said to have been sunk "by mine or torpedo."

Officials did not immediately say when or where the Exmouth was lost.

Battalion To Hear Illustrated Speech A meeting of the 13th engineer battalion troop school will be held at 7:15 tonight in the university armory, it was announced yesterday.

F. B. I. Probe Of Insurance Discovered

Information Sought Regarding Activities In Company Election

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Metropolitan Life Insurance company declared tonight that federal bureau of investigation agents had "sought to extract information regarding sales and other agency activities" from its agents in Philadelphia and Newark (N. J.) last fall.

This line of inquiry, the company said in a statement, was in addition to FBI interrogation of agents in connection with testimony given by 13 Metropolitan agents before the federal monopoly committee a year ago to the effect that they had forged signatures of policy holders on ballots in an election of company directors.

The statement was issued after the justice department announced in Washington that it was investigating the possibility that civil rights might have been violated in the discharge of the insurance agents following their appearance before the committee.

The company asserted that after the hearing had been concluded, "the 13 agents, who had confessed their own guilt in forwarding ballots not properly signed by the policyholders purporting to have signed them, were for that reason discharged from the service of the company."

It added that the committee vice chairman declared in a statement that the issue had been given a "distorted emphasis and significance" and that he recognized 100-odd other agents were ready to testify that they had no knowledge of such practices.

"It was then understood," it added, "that this phase of the investigation was closed."

An investigator of the securities and exchange commission, the company went on, subsequently "demanded an opportunity to be permitted to examine the agency files."

"When the company gave its assurance there was nothing of the character in question in the files and it therefore saw no reason for the further examination of them, the investigator stated . . . that all agencies of the federal government, including the department of justice, would be used if necessary if the company refused his demand."

Censorship--

plained to Britain that she was discriminating against American ships, by delaying them longer than Italian ships. In reply, a British spokesman at London contended that American shippers have failed to cooperate with the British contraband control system.

America Cooperating Hearing of this today, a state department official said:

1. That American shippers are cooperating to an amazing extent to avoid unpleasant incidents.

2. That they are not obliged to cooperate at all.

3. That even if they did not cooperate, this would be no excuse for the British to delay American ships unduly.

Britain Explains Delay to Shipping LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP) — The British government stood adamant tonight in defense of its war blockade practices in an increasingly serious conflict with United States interests, even at the risk of new strain on Anglo-American friendship.

Britannia, confident it "rules the waves," indicated sympathy with American annoyance at lengthy delays of ships and partial seizure of cargoes, especially at Gibraltar, just as it did on the questions of the pan-American neutrality belt and interference with United States ocean going mails. Again, however, it had a ready and uncompromising reply.

In this case an official British spokesman replied to an aide memoire given to Lord Lothian, the British ambassador at Washington, last Saturday, by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. This diplomatic document, a formal reminder of preceding oral representations, objected to "discriminatory" treatment of United States shipping in the Mediterranean and expressed the United States government's "serious concern."

The British spokesman, on behalf of the ministry of economic warfare, gave four reasons why United States ships were delayed at contraband control stations three times as long as those of Italy, which, incidentally is the object of intensive British diplomatic courtship:

(1)—Failure to supply advance information concerning their cargoes.

(2)—The mixed nature of these cargoes, often including as many as 300 items, thus requiring a longer time for examination than those of Italian ships, which are largely bulk.

(3)—Varied destinations in the Mediterranean of United States ships, whereas Italian ships usually go only to Italy.

(4)—Neglect by United States shippers to take full advantage of various British schemes of guarantees that goods carried will not reach Germany.

The French government, at the same time, issued a statement refusing to renounce the right of allied ships to counter-attack if fired upon by German warships in the 300-mile Pan-American safety belt.

This followed a previous British declaration similarly reserving belligerent rights in the zone.

Like the British, the French suggested that the American governments give "satisfying assurances" against the presence of German warships or supply ships within the zone, if the Americas really want those waters respected. The French also demanded effective measures to keep German ships in American ports once they have taken refuge there, and complained of lack of control by the various American governments of "unneutral" activities by radio.

IT'S STILL COLD! LOW MERCURY READINGS CONTINUE

The cold wave which has been hitting all of Iowa each day and night for nearly a week continued in earnest here yesterday when temperatures ranged between 5 below and zero and 11 above.

Yesterday's warmest reading stood at the same level with the normal low for Jan. 23. Normal high for that date is 30 above.

Temperatures late last night were hovering a single degree over the zero mark with indications that minus readings would be recorded before this morning.

Mercury was nearer normal a year ago, from 9 to 22 degrees above zero.

With Harry G. Barnes, university registrar, in charge, Kiwanians heard the history, the progress and the aims of Kiwanis explained. Charles Bowman, secretary of the local club, read the names of the charter members of the Iowa City club formed on Feb. 21, 1921.

He Knows A Friend!

Share-Crop Leader Appreciates Shoes Sent to 90 Families

Walter Johnson, "camp leader" of 90 families of share-croppers on 90 acres of Missouri land, may not use good English but he knows a friend when he meets one.

He didn't exactly meet Joe Albert, local shoe repair man, but he received from Albert 50 pairs of used shoes for his neighbors who, he said were practically barefooted.

Joseph Chapman, who visited Albert recently, told of conditions among the share-croppers and took the shoes back to them.

Albert received a letter from Johnson which read in part as follows:

"I received the shoes that was brought here by Mr. Chapman. "I and all members of the camp want to thank you for them and in so far as the many needs, I feel embarrassed as to mention to you the fact that in camp we have about 90 families of ages ranging from four months to 80 years and sizes large and small in proportion of the many needs. And of course we will appreciate anything that the people in Iowa would do for us in the way of shoes, clothing, etc."

"Yours truly, Walter Johnson, Rt. 1, Box 33-A, Harvielle, Mo.

Lillian Burgess Files Petition for Divorce In Court Yesterday

Lillian Wineke Burgess filed a petition in district court yesterday asking a divorce from Ernest F. Burgess, charging cruel and inhuman treatment.

The petition stated that the couple was married at Iowa City July 6, 1933, and they had lived together until Dec. 25, 1939.

The plaintiff asks $15 a week alimony for the support of herself and three minor children.

Attorney Paul Toomey is representing the plaintiff.

Government Will Deport Alien Convict

Sebastian Vinciguerra, who has been serving a term in the Johnson county jail since Sept. 23 for the illegal transportation of liquor, was taken yesterday into the custody of P. E. Johnson, immigrant inspector from Chicago.

Vinciguerra, who will be deported to Italy, was arrested near Iowa City May 28, 1937, by Johnson county officials. A county attorney's information was filed in district court May 29, to which the defendant pleaded not guilty, and was released on a $2,000 bond.

While free on bond, Vinciguerra was arrested on a similar charge in Omaha, Neb., and was sentenced to the penitentiary at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

When Vinciguerra was returned after serving his sentence at Ft. Leavenworth, he changed his plea from not guilty to guilty. Judge James P. Gaffney imposed a fine jail.

No Verdict Reached Yet In Binz Case

Members of the district court petit jury had not reached a verdict last night after already spending six hours deliberating on the case brought by the state against William Binz, charging him with driving while intoxicated.

After final arguments by attorneys, the case was submitted to the jury at 10 a.m.

County Attorney Harold Vestmark argued for the state. Attorney E. A. Baldwin represented the defendant.

Fate Unkind Ohio Man Fined Twice—Same Trouble

Fate is not kind to William Collins of Akron, Ohio.

On Jan. 12 Collins was hauling a load of washing machines from Newton to Ohio for Motor Cargo Inc., of Akron. While passing through Johnson county he was picked up by state patrolmen because his truck was loaded nine inches higher than the 12 foot maximum set by Iowa law.

Collins was ordered to appear before Police Judge Burke N. Carson on Jan. 23, when he would again be passing through Iowa City enroute east from Newton.

When he arrived to appear before Carson yesterday he had a load similar to that which had been declared illegal 11 days before and again the long arm of the law reached out and for a second time he was fined for driving an overweight truck on the highway.

Judge Carson fined Collins $25 and costs on each count.

He Will Be 84 Years Old Friday

Attorney-at-Law William Murphy To Give WSUI Program

By BETTY GILLILAND

He's going to be 84 years old Friday, but you really wouldn't know it except for the varied pioneer tales he can tell of the university and early Iowa in general.

He is the genial and active William F. Murphy, attorney-at-law, who never was called "Willie," but plain "Bill."

Friday at 9 p.m. he's going to present his annual hour-long radio broadcast over radio station WSUI, where he'll play old-time violin dance music and sing a selection of songs in his strong, clear voice.

Mrs. A. J. Shaw of Pocahontas, his daughter, will assist with the broadcast.

He sums up his early pre-college life like this:

"I worked on farms by the month; I went with an old fashioned threshing gang; I taught school; I farmed as a tenant farmer, and then I went to school!"

In those days when a fellow wanted to study law, there were no pre-requisite courses to fulfill and the law school itself involved only one year's study. He graduated from the Iowa college of law in 1880.

He has always had a participant's interest in singing, with his first public performance in "The Chimes of Normandy," in the old Caldon Opera house on the southeast corner of College and Clinton streets.

In addition, he has directed, at times, the choirs of St. Mary's and St. Patrick's churches, besides other local choruses and choirs.

Last summer he was invited to sing at the Chicago and exhibition at the Stevens hotel. "There were about 3,000 people at that entertainment, and I never sang so well before. I think the reception was good," he added.

With an especially retentive mind, Mr. Murphy found school to his liking. "I was always at the head of the class. Another fellow always was at the foot of the class. Now he has $100,000—and I don't have a cent."

Whether he has a cent or not, Mr. Murphy has nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren of whom he is very proud. Two daughters, a son and two granddaughters have graduated from this university. One daughter has attained a Ph.D. degree from Oxford university, England.

Seeks Damages For Injuries to Plane From Alfred Ellis

Paul B. Shaw filed a petition in district court yesterday asking $1,050 damages from Alfred R. Ellis charging that the defendant took an airplane on Nov. 8, belonging to the plaintiff, from the Iowa City municipal airport without permission, and en route to Davenport and Moline, Ill., damaged the plane.

After arriving at the Davenport air field, the defendant, in an attempted take-off, ran into a fence causing damages to the plane amounting to $600, the petition stated. The expense incurred because of the loss of use of the plane amounted to $450, the petition continued.

The petition also charged Ellis with negligence in operating the plane when he endeavored to take off by traversing the short way of the field and with the wind, instead of against or into the wind.

The law firm of Byington and Rate are representing the plaintiff.

Friday, as Mr. Murphy presents his fifth annual broadcast he'll laugh at some of the jokes which are told about him. The radio audience perhaps won't realize he is laughing, for it is very young looking, good-humored grin.

May you tell many, many stories about Iowa, Mr. Murphy! Happy birthday!
