Allied Action Aimed To Halt Iron Transport

Blockade in Arctic To Prevent Refuge Of German Vessels

By ELMER W. PETERSON
COPENHAGEN, Feb. 23 (AP)—Allied action in thrusting an arm of the blockade against Germany into the Arctic off northern Norway, Finland and Soviet Russia was interpreted here tonight as possibly aimed primarily at halting German transport of high-grade iron ore from Kirkenes, northern Norwegian port. Scandinavian commercial circles said they believed a secondary motive was the blocking of any effort by German vessels which may be taking refuge in Murmansk, Russia's ice-free port in that region, to get back to Germany.

No Comment
(Authoritative British sources in London declined to discuss Scandinavian advice that allied warships had begun a blockade of Arctic waters off Murmansk. The admiralty said any comment might give information to the enemy. French officials said they had "no information.")
Scandinavians shrugged off rumors that the British intended to land troops and equipment in the Petsamo area—occupied early in the Finnish-Russian conflict by Russian forces—as an aid to Finland on the grounds that weather if no other factor would be against such a procedure.
Likewise there was no support for rumors that a clash with the Soviet Arctic navy already had occurred.
Both Norwegian and Swedish iron ore is loaded at Kirkenes, a modern little port with a good harbor.
Commercial circles pointed out that as a rule ships must proceed outside territorial waters there, on account of the weather, before gaining the shelter of the numerous islands dotting the Norwegian coastline.
Safeguard Shipments
They said they believed the British intended to safeguard their own shipments of ore from Kirkenes while trying to check the flow of supplies to Germany.
Meanwhile, with Baltic Sea transport stopped by ice, Germans were reported busy shipping Swedish high-grade ore from Narvik, on the west coast of Norway. From Narvik German ships have the protection of Norwegian territorial waters, merging into Swedish and Danish waters en route to Germany.

$50,000 Given For Investigation Of Wagner Act

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Without a word of debate, the house voted today to give another $50,000 to its special committee investigating the Wagner act and the national labor relations board.
Chairman Smith (D-Va) disclosed later that the first $50,000 the house appropriated last year "already has run out."
"We will use this new money to complete our inquiry into activities of the labor board and to do the other things the resolution which created the committee calls for," Smith said.
He referred particularly to sections which instructed the investigators to determine what effect the act itself has had on employer-employee relations and on unemployment.
The committee devoted its hearing today to a labor case at the Consumers Power company, Jackson, Mich. Four employees of the company testified that their AFL union would be supplanted by a rival CIO organization under procedure of the labor board.

'To Make Real War on Russia'

Hore-Belisha Urges Safety of Finland In Devonport Speech

By ROBERT E. BUNELLE
LONDON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Great Britain and her French ally, feinting cautiously at Germany in western Europe, were exhorted boldly tonight by Leslie Hore-Belisha, ousted war minister, to make real war on Soviet Russia on land, air and sea—to save Finland and to shorten their own ordeal by fire.
This revealing and vigorous speech was delivered by the forthright, unchastened Hore-Belisha to his parliamentary constituents at Devonport on a proud day for this island at war.
Great Crowd
The greatest crowd since the coronation, with scarcely a glance at the inscrutable and dangerous sky, jammed London's old streets from Westminster to the Guild hall to acclaim the men who won the Rio Plata victory over the Admiral Graf Spee, while Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, spoke with mingled exultation and sober warning of "this hard and novel war" at sea.
King George himself came to horseguards' parade to review and decorate the men of the cruisers Ajax and Exeter—and widows of the dead.
Warships Bomed
Beneath the morale-building blare of bands and beat of drums, the war went grimly on at its curious tempo. British warplanes were disclosed to have bombed German warships in Helgoland Bight on Tuesday night and to have flown last night over Austria and Czechoslovakia. German planes made their first moonlight raid on British coastal shipping, machine-gunning the 2,429-ton British Gothic and wounding her captain.
The British lost one plane over Helgoland; blamed it on the weather. The R.A.F. fighters believed they had shot down one German plane on the same flight. The Germans lost two planes in daylight attacks on the British coastline Thursday.
Risk Great
Hore-Belisha (whose resignation, on request, from the war cabinet on January 5 was a result of just such aggressive beliefs and expressions as he displayed today) told his Devonport audience:
"The risk of helping Finland may be great, but the risk of not helping her may be greater."
"She is holding the pass of civilization."
If Russia wins the war in the north, he went on, she will not be satisfied with her spoils in Finland—she will force advantages for Germany in Scandinavia, where both Britain and Germany are hungry for food, iron ore, timber and other supplies.

Finns Assert Russians Lost 3,000 in Battle

Red Army Reaches Within 10 to 12 Miles Of Viipuri in Advance

HELSINKI, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Russian army thrust forward at several points along a jagged 30-mile front in an intensified drive through the western half of the Mannerheim line today, but at tremendous cost, losing nearly 3,000 killed in a single day's bitter combat.
The Russian penetration at one point reached to within 10 to 12 miles of Viipuri—to the vicinity of Naykki lake, roughly four miles northwest of the Kamara railway station, where fighting began Thursday, according to today's communique.
It is meant that the Soviet advance was part of a major effort to celebrate today's 22nd anniversary of the forming of the Red army, it was a costly one.
The Russian dead, said the communique, approximated two battalions—about 2,000 men—in one sector and 800 in another in the fighting on the isthmus.
Front Widened
The widened front and the indication of the slight Soviet advance toward Viipuri, together with the fact this was acknowledged by the Finns, might seem to present a highly serious picture for the defenders, but there were several additional factors weighing strongly in their favor.
These are:
1. The Finnish army is making the most of its man-made fortifications, aided by deep gullies between forested plateaus and along ice-crust lakes through which a large army can penetrate only slowly. The Finnish retreat from frontal positions was calculated to save men; it was done slowly and, according to Finnish military sources, with loss of thousands of men to the Russians.
2. The Russians have advanced only a few miles against the Mannerheim line, although their concentrated drive already is 23 days old and the Finns mentioned fighting in the Summa sector as far back as Jan. 22. According to foreign military observers, there is no reason to believe the advance will be speeded up in the near future.
Natural Barriers
3. Should the Russians penetrate the Finnish line and capture Viipuri, the Russian army would gain a considerable advantage, but to reach Helsinki it would still have to drive through natural barriers of lakes by the hundreds and through a series of well-laid military fortifications.
4. Finnish military strategy appears to be to hold every position as long as possible without causing heavy Finnish losses, then to withdraw slightly, exacting from the enemy heavy tolls in dead and taking from their artillery and vast quantities of war materials.
5. The Finns are receiving some foreign help, and although it is not now bringing the quantity of planes and men they would like there always is the prospect that great quantities of either or both would change the picture quickly.

Red Army Wish of Smashing Victory Fails To Materialize

Hope of Celebrating 22nd Birthday Anniversary Fades With Strong Finnish Defense; Allies May Intervene

By KIRK L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
The red army's hopes of celebrating its 22nd birthday anniversary yesterday with a smashing victory over the Finns fell far short of realization.
Not only were the stout-hearted Finns still holding out on that date along a bent but unbroken Mannerheim line, but there were insistent rumors in Scandinavia that the Franco-British allies were preparing to take a more direct and aggressive hand in the Russo-Finnish conflict.
That impression grew out of reports that Franco-British warships and air craft had appeared in force in the Barents sea which washes the northern coasts of Norway, Finland and Russia.
Allied naval activity on the Petsamo-Murmansk coast, is significant, although it may not actually be incident to the Finnish-Russian conflict.
Murmansk, Russian ice-free port on that frozen coast, is the refuge of many German ships caught at sea by the outbreak of the war. It is also the most likely destination of many of the 300 or more German ships still scattered in neutral harbors all around the world and priming for attempts to run the allied blockade when conditions are favorable.
The time when the Russian White Sea will be free of ice is approaching. When winter's grip along the northern Russian coast breaks, chances of German shipping escaping the allied blockade and reaching friendly Russia waters will be greatly improved.
Strengthened allied naval patrols on the Norwegian-Finnish-Russian north coast may be a routine step of the sea blockade against Germany, but it could have far more serious implications for Berlin and Moscow.
Provided London and Paris are getting ready to take on Russia, if necessary, as well as Germany, the Finnish arctic corridor could be useful to them not only to help the Finns, but to deal telling blows at Germany in the Baltic area. It seems doubtful, however, that Finland would welcome any such allied move since it might lead to German military cooperation with Russia, in the attack on her. Petsamo itself is now in Russian hands.

Session Votes For Extension Of Program

Iowa Congressmen Follow Party Lines In Accepting Program

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—The house gave the administration its first great victory of the session tonight with a vote extending the reciprocal trade agreements program for a period of three years.
The continuation resolution, passed 216 to 168, goes next to the senate, where the finance committee plans to begin hearings on Monday, with Secretary Hull as its first witness.
The republican leadership fought the legislation to the end, assisted by a scattering of democratic members from farm and cattle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)

—Iowa congressmen followed party lines in voting on the resolution to continue the reciprocal trade program for three years.
Democrats voting with the majority for passage of the resolution included Harrington and Jacobson of Iowa.
The Iowa republicans against the proposal were Gilchrist, Wynne, Jensen, LeCompte, Martin and Talle.

Administration Victory

In addition to being a victory for the administration, the vote was in the nature of a personal triumph for Secretary Hull, and one which some thought might increase his prestige as a potential democratic presidential nominee.
Hull had fought for such a program for years before he became secretary of state in the Roosevelt cabinet. Arguing that a revival of world trade depended principally on the elimination of such trade barriers as high tariffs, he obtained congressional approval for a three year trial of his policy in 1934. The time was extended another three years in 1937.

Rate Reductions

Under the legislation, Hull has negotiated agreements with more than a score of nations, which have reduced their tariffs in return for reductions in the rates of the Smoot-Hawley law, enacted in 1930.
Republicans came to the present session of congress resolved to end the policy, which without the legislation approved in the house today, would expire next June. In addition to the members from particular areas which felt that their constituents had been hurt by the reductions, there was a large group which has contended as a matter of policy for high tariffs.

Restrictions Sought

Realizing some days ago that the battle was lost, the opposition concentrated today on a series of amendments intended to place restrictions upon the program. The new deal administration held command throughout a day of voting, however, and, one after another, the proposals were rejected.
Of particular interest was an amendment offered by Rep. Crowther (R-NY), which would have changed the program into the tariff system advocated by the republican platform committee, in the report submitted by its chairman, Glenn Frank, early this week. He proposed a reciprocity system, but one under which all the trade agreements would have to be approved by both houses of congress before they could become effective.

Ratification Required

Crowther told the house that most of the countries with which such agreements had been concluded required ratification by their own legislative bodies.

Hitler To Receive Roosevelt's Personal Emmissary in Berlin

BERLIN, Feb. 23 (AP)—Adolf Hitler will receive United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles today when he arrives in Berlin, possibly next Tuesday or Wednesday, on his fact-finding tour of European capitals as President Roosevelt's personal emissary.
Welles' tentative program here, as disclosed today, calls for a meeting first with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. The conference with the fuhrer will follow immediately.
United States Charge D'Affaires Alexander Kirk conferred for 40 minutes today with Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, German undersecretary of state, apparently to arrange details of Welles' visit.

Welles Making Tour Of European Capitals To Stop in Germany

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23 (AP)—Alice Faye, blonde film actress, filed suit for divorce today against Tony Martin, radio crooner. She charged cruelty.
Her two - page complaint alleged that for 18 months, Martin "inflicted grievous mental suffering" upon her, causing her "to become physically and mentally ill." "Such treatment, it added, "was without cause or provocation" on her part.
Filing of the blond actress' suit bore out her declaration that "it was inevitable" she and Martin should part, and gave weight to Hollywood's axiom about long distance marriages seldom being successful.

National Farm Speakers Say Neutrality Is Boom Antidote

DES MOINES, Feb. 23 (AP)—National farm institute speakers tonight expressed belief that United States neutrality and the condition of world markets constitute effective antidotes against the possibility of a war boom in this country.
"Certainly there is no present need to plant or breed another pound of grain, fiber or meat because of any war orders in sight," Chester Davis, member of the federal reserve board of governors, said in a prepared address.
"American farmers haven't completed the adjustments made necessary by the last war."
"If they expand their plantings in anticipation that higher prices and enlarged demand will result from this one, they will be headed for more trouble than this generation is going to be able to mop up."
Howard Conoley of New York, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers, said industry is vigorously opposed to a war boom and at present could not pro-

Tibetans Install Peasant Offspring as Head And 14th Dalai Lama

LHASA, TIBET, Feb. 23 (AP)—British army radio to Delhi (AP)—A scene unparalleled in 60 years, the installation of a peasant child as the 14th Dalai Lama, civil and religious head of 3,000,000 Tibetans, was unfolded in a five-hour drama yesterday and prolonged today through the rejoicings of a multitude.
Focal point of the pomp and pageantry was the "skyscraper" Potala palace, the fantastic dimensions of which overshadow all the forbidden city.
The 17th century mansion hewn out of a hill of stone soars 440 feet into the air. Its full breadth of 900 feet overlooks the vast plains of Lhasa.
The immediate predecessor of the round-faced little boy was the 13th Dalai Lama, installed about 1880.
Yesterday's twentieth century ceremony began before dawn in the light of a full moon and lasted until the sinking sun enflamed the golden pavilions decorating the roof.
To the right of the seven-foot throne stood the Dalai Lama's golden food table, inset with great rubies and hundreds of pearls and turquoises.
Already in the hall were abbots and hundreds of monks in dark maroon robes, over which the abbots wore voluminous cloaks of stiff gold and silver brocade.
To the left on raised cushions sat the Dalai Lama's father, 41,

Under a Shower Because He Complained to University Officials

DES MOINES, Feb. 23 (AP)—A Drake university faculty investigating committee announced today that student government at the school's new men's dormitory has been abolished because of "too much hazing and horseplay."
The committee also announced five students must pay the medical bills of a freshman who was in a hospital for a week following a "hazing" incident at the dormitory.
School officials said the freshman was James Black, 18, of St. Joseph, Mo.
Students at the dormitory said that on Feb. 11 Black was forced under a shower because he complained to university officials when his mattress and bed clothing had been thrown in the shower earlier in the day.
The students said Black fainted while he was being put in the shower, was revived and taken to his room, and then fainted again. He finally was removed to a hospital.
School officials and doctors declined to comment on possible reasons for the boy's condition.
President D. W. Morehouse last week named a faculty committee to investigate the "hazing" and also reports that students at the dormitory, which was erected several months ago, were indulging in too much "horseplay."
The committee this week dissolved the student council which had been elected to govern dormitory residents because of its alleged failure to supervise the residents' conduct properly.
Names of the other students involved in the "hazing" incident were not disclosed.
Dean Lynden Hoffman, chairman of the faculty investigating committee, said no action would be taken against the boys who played the prank on Black, other than that they would be required to pay the hospital and doctor bills, which he estimated would total $40.

Iowa's Declining Birthrate

Is Iowa losing its literacy or its population?

Records show there has been a decline of more than 7,000 in Iowa grade school enrollment during the past year. Seeking the causes, statisticians have found that it is not a negative attitude towards education on the part of either parents or children that is causing this serious decline, but rather, it may be directly blamed upon the birth rate.

If this condition continues with the rapidity with which it has started, it will not be many years until we will have to make educational plants into old people's homes and start looking for another California "ham 'n egg" plan.

In Which 'We View' With Alarm

ONE OF the most ardently feared sins of the person who wishes to write effectively and distinctively is the glorifying of a cliché. It is a French word, with an acute accent over the final 'e' and refers to such banalities of expression as "a good time was had by all," and "local boy makes good." A cliché in a carefully composed paragraph is as unpleasant a surprise to the discriminating reader as would be the terminating of a highly intellectual lecture with the interjection, "It's a small world after all."

In this book, "Editing the Small City Daily," with which we enjoy a busman's holiday (another cliché) in a leisurely Sabbath hour, Robert M. Neal has assembled a few of these "stoop-backed bromides," which might have been effective in 1890, but which are now eligible for an old-age pension.

"Riot of color" is on this list, which also includes these wheezy descriptions: "Avenge justice," "burly Negro," "quick as lightning," "infuriated animal," "news leaked out," "city fathers," "pillars of the church," "breathless silence," "breakneck speed," "prominent citizen," "host of friends," "sea of upturned faces," and "points with pride."

He does not include "viewed with alarm." Perhaps in 1890 there were not so many things to "view with alarm."

75 Years Of Leadership

THE MODEST appearing but powerful journal of liberalism, The Nation, celebrated 75 years of publication early this month. Often the champion of minorities, the Nation today, as in the days of Godkin and Villard, holds the respect of millions. "It has seldom vindicated the principle," President Roosevelt said of it, "laid down by Voltaire: 'I disapprove of what you say but I will defend to the death your right to say it.'"

The Nation has demonstrated that liberals are necessary in "a democratic structure resting on competition of various viewpoints, freely expressed, and a resolving of differences into peaceful evolutionary adjustment and change."

A vital journal in democratic America, The Nation deserves salute for its long continued leadership in the field of liberal writing.

Freighters Steal Away Ships Take Cargos Home To Replenish Wartime Supplies

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., Feb. 23 (AP)—Grim-looking freighters, painted in dull, flat grey and streaked with rust, glide silently alongside Hudson river piers, take on mysterious cargoes and steal just as silently away.

Mounting guns and flying the British or French flags, the ships head for the Atlantic and home to replenish wartime supplies. Day and night winches roar and cranes swing. When a ship, there at dusk, has gone at dawn, more freight is moved to the never-idle pier from seemingly endless rows of cars in the New York Central and West Shore railroad freight yards.

For almost a mile, from Weehawken northward to West New York, these cars stretch out—box, flat and gondola, loaded with crates, food, machinery and scrap iron. One can only surmise the contents of many crates but harder-to-hide objects like motor trucks and tractors are easily discernible.

At other waterfront cities there is similar activity.

Brotherhood in a World of Conflict

(Editor's note: This is the fifth in a series of articles arranged by Llewelyn A. Owen, president of the Iowa City Ministers' association and minister of the First Congregational church of Iowa City, in observance of Brotherhood week.)

THE ISSUES ARE CLEAR

By A. Steindler, M.D., Children's Hospital, S. U. I. It is not only highly appropriate but also deeply significant that there should be at this time a close communion of the religious leaders and thinkers of all denominations.

Never have the times been more propitious, the need for such a movement more crying than now.

The issue is, today, whether we shall or shall not henceforth be bound by new and old testamentary commandment and precepts, as a nation as well as individuals, or whether man should follow his primordial inclinations of brute force. The issue is whether or not we shall harken to the small, still voice of conscience or to the loud and peremptory bark of the dictator.

The issue is whether Might is Right, or Right is Might. Christianity and testamentary belief is the soul of the one and the antithesis of the other.

Now that the fog of sham or pretense which shrouded the relations among nations is lifting, everything has become more elementary. It is either full acceptance or full rejection of what is implied in the tenets of Christianity.

The meeting of the ministers of the gospels of all denominations and the preaching of the brotherhood of man assumes a deeper meaning under the signs of the time. It is a crusade against atheism and paganism which threaten our national and individual lives from within as well as from without. What is it to be? To recognize divine authority or to defy it; to assume truculent arrogance or faith and humility; to believe or not to believe?

It is small wonder that under the pressure of the times denominational partitions fall; that sectarianism means little and faith means everything.

In uniting all believers of all creeds under one roof the ministers have a high mission to fulfill. Let us hope that the response to this call will be eloquent proof that the people still hold dear and sacred the practice of honest faith in any creed.

Republicans' Lincoln's Birthday Performance Outclasses Democratic Jackson Day Efforts

ON LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY, the Democratic party organization got a sample of the kind of Republican attack it will have to deal with during the coming political campaign.

Democratic leaders aren't admitting for publication that the Republicans' initial barrage gave them anything to worry about. Confidentially, however, their chats are to the effect that that Lincoln Day performance foreshadows a fight for which they must tighten their lines.

They must realize that the Republicans' Lincoln Day blow-out knocked their Jackson Day affair into a cocked hat.

Jackson Day festivities weren't prepared for on a major scale. There were some big banquets, but they were social events rather than popular rallies. They weren't publicized capably, either before they were held or afterward. Their avowed purpose was to raise money for Democratic campaign activities. A $5 dinner at from $25 to $100 per plate isn't calculated to draw a crowd of voters.

Their speeches were good, but not particularly thrilling. Moreover, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.) didn't do the celebration much good by reminding the country that the Democrats' original Jackson Day celebration, Republican oratory, in fact, was so copious that the radio couldn't carry all of it. It couldn't be listened to all around. Interested folk had to read a lot of it in the next morning's newspapers. Probably they DIDN'T read all of it. Just the same, the newspapers had three or four pages of Lincoln Day stuff in comparison with three or four columns of Jackson Day Rooseveltianism & Co.

In short, Lincoln Day made a good deal more of a "splash" than Jackson Day did.

There's another consideration.

Broadway Governor? Harold G. Hoffman Out-Shines Veterans Under Spotlight

By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK — I forget the exact nature of the occasion, but late one night in one of the hotels the highly paid entertainers of the theatrical and musical worlds began to congregate, and before things had gone very far the m. c. was dragging all the stars of the stage and the screen out on the floor and each was making a speech or doing pantomime, or doing whatever their specialties happened to be.

It was one of those unprogrammed, unscheduled, unanticipated windfalls that happen every now and then on Broadway, and I can remember being rather surprised when somebody yelled to a man in the booth, "Throw that spot over to the left . . . put it on that man over there."

By the time the spot reached this man the m. c. had him by the arm, and it turned out to be Harold G. Hoffman, who had once been the youngest captain in the U. S. army and was a former governor of New Jersey.

The ex-governor, having no say in the matter, walked out into the middle of the floor and proceeded to give one of the wittiest and funniest talks the crowd had ever heard. Although he was preceded and followed by stars whose salaries run into five figures, people who are highly paid because of their wit and charm, Hoffman walked off with the whole show.

Probably it is because of this ability and also because he is president of Saints and Sinners, and because he knows practically everyone on this side of the river, that Hoffman is almost as well known on Broadway as he is in the political waters of Jersey.

He makes no bones about his ambition to become governor of New Jersey again. His career ran into an unfortunate ramification of the Lindbergh-Hauptmann kidnapping case several years back and because of this he came up with what the boys on the city desk call a "bad press." It was a sorry turn for a man who only a few years before was widely referred to as "presidential timber."

Well, Hoffman is 44 now, after 23 years in politics, and he has never been defeated at the polls. He is a liberal and his political enemies, even in his own party, sometimes make references to what they call the "Hague-Hoffman alliance." His answer to this on at least one public occasion was, "My relations with Hague are the same as they are with Haig & Haig. I can take either or let them alone."

In a way he is something like Mayor LaGuardia in that he says what he thinks, irrespective of party. For instance, if Roosevelt does something he likes, he says so. Conversely, republicans get the bird when he does not approve of their policies.

What the political future holds for this husky, quick-witted young father of three daughters, I wouldn't know. But I can tell you this: if he ever wants a job he can move over to Broadway and make bumps out of half the stars who are the elite on a street that, justly or not, is the most famous in the world.

PRESSBOX PICKUPS BY OSCAR HARGRAVE

There's possibly an exception or two around, but your last plate of beans worth the money can quite safely be placed in a bet on the number of points a leading basketball scorer can get in any one night.

Take Vic Siegel, for instance. The sophomore forward has scored 150 points for Iowa at an average of nearly nine to the game.

In practically all the games, Siegel has been within two points, one way or the other, of his happy medium, so it is always worth about four to one that he will score at least six points, but not more than ten.

If other scorers were to be checked, they would come in nearly the same class. Benny Stephens, as another example, averaged 13 points per game last year and scored between 10 and 15 in all but a handful of the contests.

Back to another sport, Iowa's swimmers walloped Wisconsin last night for their third win in four dual meets. It proves quite conclusively that the Hawkeyes rank well up toward the top insofar as Big Ten swimming goes.

Not only does Michigan have a powerful team, but the Wolverines can throw in a second team capable of holding almost any outfit in the country. They just naturally have too tough a machine for anyone else to buck.

Town Cage Loop Wants Entries The recently formed town intramural basketball league, with four teams already in action, will have new additions soon.

Students living in private homes, who are not playing intramural basketball at present, are asked to report to Curt Abernathy, phone 5444, before Monday if they are interested.

Miller, a junior and a veteran from last season's campaign, marked up 20 points in the first three quarters of the one-sided game to erase the high record of Russ Hirt, city high star of last year.

The Fighting Irish piled up 15 more points in the third quarter, which saw Miller's eighth field goal and a new record go up. The Parnell outfit was fighting hopelessly but gallantly with a meager 12 points to show for three periods' work.

Coach Father Harry Ryan sent in four substitutes at the beginning of the fourth and from then on it was a see-saw battle.

Ambers Hands Bummy Davis Neat Pasting

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP) - Lightweight champion Lou Ambers played "little man who wasn't there" tonight as he bewildered, befuddled and, thoroughly beat Brooklyn's Bummy Davis in a 10-round non-title scrap before a standing-room-only crowd at Madison Square garden.

Bummy, the product of Brooklyn's hard-bitten Brownsville section who had come through 37 bouts without defeat, never was in it after the first four rounds.

80 Women Compete For Table Tennis Intramural Honors

That is if the list of participants competing in the present women's intramural tournaments in the two popular sports is any criterion.

List of participants in the table tennis shows over 80 women competing for honors. Thirty-two are registered in the advanced singles, while 38 women are included in the beginners singles.

Professor Peterson Says Schools Should Take Responsibility in Solving Youth Unemployment

The public schools will have to take the major responsibility in solving the problem of four million young people who are now out of school and unemployed. Such is the belief of Prof. Elmer T. Peterson of the University of Iowa college of education.

Temporary national agencies developed since the depression cannot solve the entire youth problem, he feels. He points out that while the CCC, for example, will probably be made a permanent governmental agency, there still will be some three and a half million young people uncared for, and the school must supply a varied program of educational activity until they find employment.

Budgets Reduced
In facing the problem, the university man says, the school is

Supervisors To Convene With College Group

Members of the Johnson county board of supervisors and the Johnson county board of social welfare will be guests at the dinner.

Bette Embick Wins Rating

To Receive Honorary Basketball Certificate For Technique Ability

Bette Embick, A3 of Hutchinson, Kan., was selected from a group of seven university women to receive a national basketball official's rating in the annual written and practical examinations given here this week.

Judged by the local board of national rated officials, Miss Embick will receive an honorary certificate, acknowledging "excellence in ability and technique of basketball officiating." The award is offered by the National Women's Athletic section of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Other university women who took the examinations and were given "local" ratings were Mildred E. Anderson, A3 of Las Vegas, N. Mex.; Mary Jane Hulian, A2 of Cedar Rapids; Ortha Neff, G of Nichols; Jane Fink, A4 of Louisville, Ky.; Neva Littlejohn, A4 of Sioux City, and Annabelle Hinkle, A3 of Valparaiso, Ind.

Judges at the basketball officiating examinations were Prof. Gladys Scott, Esther French and Agnes Best, instructors in the women's physical education department, and Louise Kuhl, graduate student from Beatrice, Neb.

Prof. C. P. Berg Gives Lecture

"The Building Stones of Animal Body" was discussed in an illustrated lecture by Prof. C. P. Berg of the chemistry department before the Science club of Cornell college at Mt. Vernon Thursday evening.

Gavel Club Panel To Discuss Problem Of U. S. Isolation

"Economic and Military Isolation for the United States" will be considered in a panel discussion of Gavel club members Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Y. M. C. A. room of Iowa Union, David Sayre, A3 of Ames, president of the club, announced yesterday.

An open forum will follow the discussion.

Nine teams are vying for top position in the doubles table tennis division.

The first round of the badminton tournament is scheduled to start next week. Fifteen teams will compete in the doubles and 35 singles in the advanced and beginners tournaments.

Expansion Recommended
To meet this problem of four million unemployed young persons, Professor Peterson recommends expansion of the budget, curriculum, and personnel in the public school system. In his opinion, there will be public opposition to such expansion.

First, however, he thinks the school must change its opinion, "for we cannot meet the question with our narrow, academic notions; but neither will vocational education or character education provide the complete solution." The university educator said that the four basic objects of American education remain the same—self-realization, economic efficiency, civic responsibility, and human relationships.

The purpose of the tea is to enable all Iowa City women interested to meet Mrs. Beye and Mrs. Thoen. Presidents of the respective clubs giving the affair will act as hostesses. Further plans will be announced later.

Meier To Address Convention Of Art Education at St. Louis

Psychology Professor To Discuss Ability, Artistic Aptitude

Prof. Norman C. Meier of the psychology department will address the department of art education on "Special Ability with Particular Reference to Artistic Aptitude" at the National Educational association convention in St. Louis, Monday.

Based on 10 years of research in which 20 research assistants collaborated, Professor Meier will present the view that special ability is explainable as an interaction of hereditary influences and conditioned learning. This point of view is related to the product theory, but goes farther in showing how the factors are specifically interlinked, placing the emphasis upon heredity. The artist type is regarded as primarily derived from craftsmen ancestry which obviously determines manual skill, but in a way hitherto unsuspected, craftsman ancestry conditions the manner in which the individual develops. His habits of observation, the evolution of his aesthetic judgment and the major bases of his creative imagination come about through his particular personality type which in turn is a resultant of the craftsmen heredity.

Effects on Theory
Professor Meier will show how this view affects current educational theory in regard to the selection and training of special ability in the educational system.

One effect will be a revision of the prevalent notion that anyone under proper circumstances may become an artist. Far from being against democratic principles, it should tend to save embarrassment and disappointment by an early reorientation of the student toward those things in which he has some reasonable chance of success and a deflecting from activities where little chance of eventual success is likely.

The theory as worked out by Professor Meier is in accord with known principles of genetics and heredity.

Edis Monograph
In this same field, Professor Meier has recently edited "Studies in the Psychology of Art," a special number of the current Psychological Monographs of the American Psychological association.

Appearing on the same program at the convention will be Prof. Ray Faulkner and Prof. Harold Rugg, both of teachers college, Columbia university.

Mayor Willenbrock Asks NYA Assistance for Local Youths

Council Orders Him To Sign Application

State, Federal Offices Must Approve Project Before Aid Is Granted

At the order of the city council at a special meeting, Mayor Henry F. Willenbrock late yesterday afternoon made a formal application for NYA assistance for non-student boys of Iowa City.

It was indicated, upon the announcement that the application would go before the state and federal headquarters for approval, that the project, if approved, would take effect locally about May 1.

The application asked that 60 boys from 18 to 24 inclusive who meet the standard requirements of NYA be paid $28 for about six half-days of work a week, $20 of which would be used to furnish housing and food.

Although no official plans were mentioned, general announcements had it that the youths would be employed in civic and local governmental improvements.

Using surplus army supplies as equipment, the boys, according to the city's application, would, as a matter of related training, be permitted to study aeronautical mechanics.

To Seek Approval
If the state and federal administrators approve the local project, it was announced, both a supervisor in charge of subsistence and a licensed pilot mechanic in charge of training would be appointed.

Before drawing up the application yesterday, the council deliberated and asked questions of William S. Herbst, field NYA consultant, for nearly two hours.

NYA officials said such projects are designed to enable youth to acquire basic experience and sound habits of work. Projects are all sponsored by local units and are so planned, they added, that when completed they will bring definite benefits to the community in which they operate.

Improvement of educational and recreational facilities, health and safety, conservation and activities enlarging the services of charitable institutions were said to have been among the important physical accomplishments of the works project program of the National Youth administration during the last fiscal year.
