China Puppet Proclaims Policy

Asserts Hand Of Providence Still With Nazis

Sees Victorious Germany as a Result Of Invincible Leadership

-FROM MUNICH-

By EDWIN SHANKE
MUNICH, Feb. 24 (AP)—Adolf Hitler cried out tonight that Germany will fight "until the terror of the plutocracies has been broken," declared the "three mighty states" of Russia, Italy and Japan to be his friends and proclaimed his trust that God is with him and his Nazi Reich. To his old guard, in an hour's speech broadcast over the world, the Fuehrer asserted "the hand of Providence" saved him from death in a bomb explosion in this very city last November 8 and declared the same providence "has especially blessed us" for six years. "Do you think Providence would have blessed us only to drop us now?" he asked. "There is a God—he creates people with equal rights."

Germany Stronger
Today's Germany, he said, is stronger in every way than the imperial Reich of 1914—but, especially in its leadership. Preceded by the blood-stained flag which headed his marchers in the abortive beer cellar putsch of 1923 and surrounded by old party fighters, Hitler came to Munich's Hofbrau hall tonight to commemorate the founding of the Nazi party and its adoption of a 25-point program 20 years ago. It was his first speech in Munich since the Burgerbrauhaus explosion wrecked the scene of the original beer cellar plot and killed eight persons shortly after Hitler had left.

On the eve of United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' arrival in Europe for a feeling-out of possible ways to peace, the Fuehrer gave a defiant war message to his nation and to the world—threatening to smash anyone who seeks to deny Germany her rightful living space, jeering at "these Chamberlains and their top hats," sneering at Winston Churchill and disdainfully revealing specific war aims. He did mention his terms prior to the start of the war and described them as modest—"security of our living space, return of our colonies." But his present price for peace went unnamed. "What we are fighting against," he shouted amidst cries of approval, "is the idea that one or two peoples of the earth should have everything. God didn't make the world for Englishmen alone. . . it simply cannot be that the German people are destined to be slaves of the English and French."

Omits France
Significantly, Hitler reverted to his early-war practice of leaving France almost out of his strictures. Going back to 1914, he intimated Germany would have won the World War had he been at the helm. The nation's leaders then, he declared, were "second rate." But today—"we all know that neither militarily nor economically can Germany be defeated. The decisive thing is leadership."

More than in any recent speech, the Fuehrer claimed God as his ally—the ally of the German people.

Russians Strike Furiously at Viipuri

Finland Slows, Does Not Halt 5-Point Attack

Red Units Strive To Engulf Viipuri In 'Pincers' Offensive

-FROM HELSINKI-

HELSINKI, Feb. 24 (AP)—A strategically spread Red army, its dead littering the snow at the rate of 6,000 in two days, was reported tonight by the Finnish high command to be striking massively at the island environs of Viipuri from a captured coastal base only 7 1/2 miles away.

From Kaislahti, nestled on the war-wrecked Gulf of Finland railway just below Finland's erstwhile second city and Koivisto, 17 1/2 miles further south, once the western anchor of Finland's Mannerheim line, the Soviet offensive stretched out over the gulf ice to hammer at Finnish defenders on the remaining islands in Viipuri bay.

Eastward, other divisions pressed on against the Finnish land defenses between the gulf and Lake Muola, striving to complete a pincers action on Viipuri. This city, once a modern town of 74,000, now is a virtual combat area, its buildings wrecked by shells and its non-combatants moved away.

The Finns said these gulf and land attacks, directed at Viipuri from five points, resulted in heavy Russian losses; that six tanks and six batteries were destroyed. But the Finns did not, this time, say the attacks were repulsed.

On the Finns' left flank, east of Lake Muola, two Russian detachments, of unspecified size, were declared to have been "wholly annihilated" Friday after piercing the Finnish lines. At Kuhmo, on the central eastern front: "The enemy lost 350 killed."

Sachar, Noted Author-Lecturer, To Be Vesper Speaker Tonight

Hillel Foundation Director To Speak On New Paganism

Speaking on "The Challenge of the New Paganism," Dr. Abram L. Sachar, author and lecturer and national director of the Hillel foundations of America, will give the university vespers address tonight at 8 o'clock in Macbride auditorium.

Educated at Washington and Harvard universities, Dr. Sachar spent three years of research at the University of Cambridge, England, where he received his Ph.D. degree. Before he resigned to take over the Hillel work, he was an associate in European history at the University of Illinois.

Dr. Sachar is author of several books, including "Suffrage is the Badge," the story of the Jewish race since the World War. He is a contributor to several periodicals, including "The New Republic," "Books," and "The Menorah Journal."

Soviet Reports Newest Gains

-FROM MOSCOW-

MOSCOW, Feb. 25 (Sunday) (AP)—The occupation of the strongly fortified islands of Koivisto, Turinsaari and Pissaari with the capture of 12 heavy coastal guns was claimed today by the Russian army in a communique issued by the Leningrad military headquarters.

The communique said that while fighting yesterday Soviet troops "occupied the islands of Koivisto, Turinsaari and Pissaari, strongly fortified with iron and concrete forts."

"Twenty-two guns, including 12 heavy coastal ten and six inch tower guns and field and zenith guns and a great number of heavy machine guns and dumps of munitions were captured on these islands."

Russian troops captured 28 Finnish defensive fortifications on the Karelian isthmus, the communique added. However, a strong snowfall and fog handicapped operations, it asserted. Unfavorable weather held the Soviet airplanes to reconnoitering flights, the army reported.

Turkey Takes New Emergency War Measures

ISTANBUL, Feb. 24 (AP)—Taking steps amounting virtually to civil mobilization, Turkey today applied new emergency measures as the possibility of war in the near east was regarded with increasing apprehension in this country.

The government coordination committee, which was formed to place industry and commerce on virtual wartime basis, inaugurated obligatory labor system in the Eregli coal basin.

Under the plan, expected to be extended quickly, workers in all industry would not be permitted to leave their jobs.

which makes it of interest to all sects and races, an announcement from the school of religion said. Dr. Sachar will be the guest of the Hillel club at a 5:30 dinner in the river room of Iowa Union preceding the lecture.

Coming to Iowa City to hear Dr. Sachar are three trustees of the school of religion, E. P. Adler of Davenport, Robert Lappen of Des Moines, and Rabbi Eugene Mannerheim of Des Moines.

Professor M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion and chairman of the senate board on vesper services, will preside at tonight's service.

An Iowan In California

Governor Wilson Grets Picnicking Hawkeye Natives

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24 (AP)—Former Iowans—130,000 or so of them—got together today in a city park to eat potato salad, reminisce about the land of the tall corn and greet the state's governor, George A. Wilson. It was the annual Iowa picnic.

Wilson was kind to California when he said "two and one-half million stay-at-homes wish you well. It is a brotherly gesture to you: bungalow of the sweet orange groves from the tall corn rows and the big red barns."

He put in a plug for home, too, telling cheering listeners: "Iowa is a good state in which to be born. It is a fine starting place for the quest of the better land, and still better for returning, to find the 'better land' at the doorstep of the old homestead."

Early in the morning the throng began to arrive, carrying packed picnic chairs, thermos jugs, folding campers and infants. As always, everyone wore a badge. Red ones were for Iowa natives, blue for former residents. There were more red than blue. Printed on them was: "I love you California, but O U Iowa."

William Roy Litzenberg, president of the Iowa State Association, presided at the afternoon program. Former Governor Frank F. Merriam of California, a transplanted cornhusker, gave the welcoming address.

Wilson told the Iowans living in California that "the latent string is always out."

F.D.R. - Garner Primary Race Seen in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 24 (AP)—A test of popular strength in Illinois between President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner took definite shape tonight.

The contest was regarded as assured when the midnight deadline for withdrawal from the April 9 presidential preference primary approached and neither the chief executive nor Chicago democratic leaders who filed petitions to place his name on the ballot made any move to withdraw them.

Eleventh hour developments left Thomas E. Dewey alone in the republican field. Representative Hamilton Fish (R-NY) announced that he would not remain in the race. Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York made a similar decision earlier.

No other presidential aspirants had chosen to seek support in the Illinois vote. The petitions for Fish, LaGuardia and Roosevelt had been filed without the customary signed declarations of candidacy. The president's name was entered by the organization captained by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and National Committeeman P. A. Nash. Their action has elicited no comment from Mr. Roosevelt.

Sen. Bankhead Urges F. D. R. To Take Stand

Administration Aide Says Statement Would Be Better All Around

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Senator Bankhead (D-Ala), an administration supporter, said today that "it would be better for all concerned" if President Roosevelt announced at once his attitude toward a third term.

The Alabama senator, who is supporting his brother, Speaker Bankhead, for the democratic presidential nomination, told reporters:

"The president should give expression to what he is going to do. I don't think there is much disagreement on the point that he should make his intentions known. It would be better for all concerned, including the president, if he would make a statement."

Bankhead asserted that if Mr. Roosevelt should seek renomination "then he can have it without much question." The Alabama senator added:

"People don't like second choices and as long as Mr. Roosevelt is at large in the situation there is no way for the people to make up their minds on other candidates. There can be no test of sentiment so long as the president remains silent."

Bankhead is the first new dealer to suggest that Mr. Roosevelt declare his intentions. Similar suggestions were made this week by Senators Johnson (D-Colo) and McCarran (D-Nev).

Smith Reavis, Noted AP Man, Dies In East

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 (AP)—Smith Freeman Reavis, 46, for 20 years an editor and writer of The Associated Press, died at Post Graduate hospital tonight following an operation a week ago to remove a blood clot.

He was internationally recognized as the man who, as an Associated Press correspondent in Paris, inspired the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war.

Although Reavis always depreciated his part in the history-making development, the French government issued a book giving the documentary background of the treaty—disclosing Reavis as the "behind-the-scenes" instigator of the pact which was signed by virtually every civilized nation in the world.

staggering property destruction losses been piled up. Only at sea has there been ruthless bombing of non-combatants, neutrals as well as belligerents, in the German effort to break the economic stranglehold of allied sea power.

Even there — on the only active front of this war — there has been no real pitched battle of the air or between aircraft and battleships to indicate certainly whether air power is to be the new decisive element of world power, displacing sea power.

Chamberlain Voices Anew Determination To 'Fight to Finish'

LONDON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today flatly ruled out any peace with the present German government as incapable of guaranteeing future security to Europe.

As he pledged a fight to the finish "until we are satisfied that freedom is safe," the conflict with Germany produced these new results:

The naval trawler Benvolio, 352-ton vessel engaged in mine-sweeping, sank after hitting a mine with ten of her men lost. The vessel was the 30th of the British navy to go down since the war began.

The air ministry announced royal air force planes scouted deep into greater Germany for the second successive night, ranging as far afield as Prague, capital of dismembered Czechoslovakia. Officials said besides Prague, points scouted included Kiel, Hamburg and Bremen. One plane was forced landing in Belgium; the crew of six was arrested.

German hopes of victory over the Franco-British alliance were rested squarely on the assumption that air power had outstripped sea power. Chancellor Hitler risked all on his confidence of German superiority in the air when he signalled the Nazi march into Poland.

The first dreadful days of the German-Polish war went forward convincing non-military world opinion that Germany's boast of a decisive air superiority over her Franco-British rivals might prove well founded and quickly shape the outcome of the war.

Iowa Official Praises Reciprocal Trade Pacts

Italy, Turkey Sign New Pact For Commerce

ROME, Feb. 24 (AP)—Italy signed a new trade pact with Turkey today while another agreement was reported by informed sources to have been completed between Italy and Germany revising their 1934 commercial accord to cope with wartime conditions.

One communique said an Italian-Turkish commission completed its work of "determining the exchange between the two countries for the current year" and that a protocol had been signed by Senator Amadeo Giannini of the Italian foreign ministry and Turkish Ambassador Huseyin.

Suggests Veto Over Trade Agreements

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Senator Brown (D-Mich) suggested today that congress be given the same veto power over trade agreements that it has over presidential orders reorganizing government agencies.

The reorganization orders go into effect automatically after a 60-day period unless either house disapproves.

Brown is counted as a "doubtful" member of the senate finance committee, which will start hearings Monday on legislation to extend the reciprocal trade act for three years from next June 12, the present expiration date. The house approved the measure, 216 to 168, last night.

Democratic leaders hoped for an early senate vote, probably within a week.

Berle Sees U. S. Leading Way to Peace

DES MOINES, Feb. 24 (AP)—A. A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state, said tonight that the United States was seeking "to show the world a peaceful way of life in which war will become silly, disarmament will become possible, and the process of imperialistic expansion will become simply absurd."

In an address prepared for delivery before the national farm institute, Berle said that the United States must recognize that its former "glorious isolation" has vanished and that it cannot escape being affected by world conditions.

Consequently, he said, the United States "must set about making the democratic economy possible for ourselves and for other peoples."

To accomplish that, Berle continued, the United States "is bound to make every endeavor possible to reopen the channels of beneficial trade" and to assist in creating a world situation in which "men may choose their own lives, rather than be forced to adopt a method of living imposed on them."

Berle cited reciprocal trade pacts as one of the major instruments in achieving economic peace. As a result of the trade pacts now in effect, he said, "The United States has profited from this gradual reopening of commerce and it is a fair conclusion that the rest of the world has benefited in approximately equal degree."

and for much of Poland almost as soon as it began. It was over for all Poland before the more cumbersome Franco-British alliance could display any real force to save its Polish ally from dismemberment.

Six months later, however, Germany has not risked wholesale attack on France or Britain by air. She is still husbanding that air power as carefully as the British and French have husbanded theirs, still in doubt about its real war mission.

Why Not Drive A Truck?

STUDENTS who find job hunting discouraging should consider, of all things, driving a truck.

That, at least, is part of the advice which Chester G. Moore, chairman of the board of directors of the General Motor Freight association, gave to University of Illinois students recently.

He doesn't think college graduates should necessarily begin by driving a truck, but warns that it is wise to start at the bottom in any field. In the trucking business, he believes, lies a wealth of opportunity for competent men looking for positions of responsibility in a new and growing field.

There's one catch, and it's a natural one. You'll have to have some specialized training in this motor truck business if you expect to get in there, and especially if you expect to get up to one of those responsible jobs.

If you find such specialized training hard to get, Mr. Moore says it's not your fault—that schools should teach it.

Such a challenge to colleges and universities deserves some thinking. Have colleges failed to keep up with economic changes in their specialized courses? Mr. Moore thinks so.

"In the light of our experience in seeking to supply the needs of our members," says the trucking executive, "I can truthfully say that there is a shortage of competent and experienced men to fill good positions in the trucking industry. In many instances there is not only a shortage—the supply does not exist.

"While transportation subjects are included in the curricula of this and similar schools throughout our country, few—if any—include any subjects dealing directly with this new industry. Frankly, I believe the time has come to introduce courses on highway transportation and kindred subjects in our schools of commerce and business administration.

"I believe the day has come when students should be warned against entering certain fields of work—for the reason that they have ceased to be an important employment factor. Untold numbers of students are training themselves today for jobs that do not exist. They are looking forward to finding employment in industries or professions that have been throwing people out of work for years, instead of hiring more persons. At the same time, certain lines of work—such as the trucking industry—that are crying for competent and well trained recruits, are being totally ignored."

Fine Goldfish: For Gulpng, Et Cetera

Little did he realize the ultimate destiny of the descendants of the first goldfish in America, but it was he who brought this college delicacy from the Orient in 1887.

ployment to hundreds, and supplies entertainment for some 300,000 visitors annually.

The feed bill at the farm totals about $75,000 yearly. For the first ten days the fish are fed powdered egg yolk, then they graduate to a diet of a cheap grade of wheat flour until they are ready for water fleas. As much as 21,000 pounds of cornmeal mush goes into the daily diet of the fish after the second month.

The fish are originally olive black, and although the goldfish farmer has tried to speed the change of color to the best commercial gold, nature still knows the only solution. Hatched in June, the fish are ready for the market in October.

Freaks—silver goldfish, specimens in odd, abnormal positions, partial albinos—are segregated during sorting. In all the millions of fish which have crossed the sorting tables at Grassyfork, no perfect albino has been discovered. The Martinsville prices run from a nickel apiece for the small common goldfish, to $25 apiece for the relatively rare Moor teleosts.

Thus an American industry grows, the ingenuity of a sales manager and a farm owner combining to make the goldfish industry a profitable one.

Success, even though it be measured in the number of goldfish gulped on college campuses, sometimes grows in strange soil.

Shark fins, we read, are full of vitamins — news item. Hmm, shark fins, eh? They can't be the kind we'd be interested in.

We've seen few pictures of Hitler lately. Maybe that uniform he wasn't going to take off until Germany won the war is beginning to need a little pressing.

Why He Doesn't Speak Out
Mr. Roosevelt, in our opinion, enjoys being president. The job has by no means exhausted him. It agrees with him. He finds it stimulating. After more than seven years of it, he would like, no doubt, to continue. By temperament an innovator impatient of restraints, he is not impressed by precedents. He would probably take pleasure in being the first president to have a third term.

He will run again because he could not be re-elected. Even if he were a candidate now for only his second term, he probably could not be re-elected. As it is, the third-term issue alone would be enough to defeat him. On this issue all Republicans and many Democrats would be united. He would find arrayed against him, if not a crushing, at least a sufficient majority. And if there is one thing Mr. Roosevelt does not relish, it is defeat.

By saying he will not run he could clear the atmosphere. But why should he want to clear the lines of work—such as the trucking industry—that are crying for competent and well trained recruits, are being totally ignored."

Knowing Your University Faculty—

Women Had to Fight for Their Rights When Professor Clara Daley Began Teaching Here

(Editor's note: The following is the first in a series of sketches of faculty men and women.)

PROF. CLARA DALEY

Everyone knows Miss Daley—that sedate looking white-haired lady who knows just about anything a student can ask concerning history, as well as a number of other things. She is one professor who appreciates a good joke and she believes that humor is just as important in a history lecture as historic dates. However, there is no whispering football player that is too big, or snicker-er "cut-up" that she cannot quickly hush with one sharp look.

Clara M. Daley, assistant professor of history, as her title reads, has been known to Iowa students for more than a generation, having joined the faculty of the history department 34 years ago this summer.

Next to teaching history Miss Daley says that she likes best to travel and she has done just about as much traveling as teaching, although it hasn't taken up as much time.

Miss Daley's travels have taken her throughout western and Mediterranean Europe, as well as most of Canada and Central America. She has also become a local authority on Mexico, having made periodic trips to that country.

Concerning her knowledge of these United States—she has left only five of them unexplored, but she plans to tour them as soon as she finds time.

As a result of her trips Miss Daley has made a very fine collection of photographs that are representative of the art, architecture, and civilization of the places that she has visited. These pictures she uses in classroom work and they have become an interesting and helpful feature of the courses that she teaches.

Miss Daley recalls an interesting incident that happened in Mexico City when she and her party asked the native guide what a certain bronze memorial of three men represented. "They," he returned vehemently, "are the heroes of the American invasion." Naturally this sounded strange to her since she said, "I remembered all the stories my grandfather told me of the glorious battles of the 'Mexican War.'"

On her last trip to Mexico Miss Daley became acquainted with Rivera, the famous mural painter, with whom she enjoyed quite a lengthy discussion. She also had the occasion to go on several archaeological field trips which ruined some of the well known ruins of the Aztec civilization.

Nevertheless, Miss Daley says to her that she will never forget the time that she received her appointment to the history faculty here at the university. It was one day almost at the close of summer school 31 years ago this year that she was called into the office of Dean Wilcox, who was then dean of the college of liberal arts. Dean Wilcox seemed rather stern and a little preoccupied. He stood up and walked to the window, gazing out over the still, summery campus. He began to speak slowly, but firmly. "You are a woman, so don't expect to become more than an instructor. You will be paid on the regular instructor's wage scale, so I don't suppose that you will want to stay long. However, I guess the job is yours if you want it."

It is needless to try to describe Miss Daley's feeling when she heard this, since after all she was only an unknown graduate student then, and a teaching position in the university for a woman was a rarity.

Among her other interests, Miss Daley has a hobby of collecting plants, books, and walnut furniture.

Sometimes if you have a free hour, drop into 227 Schaeffer hall for a short visit, for Miss Daley says that a student is one person that is always welcome in her office.

Charles P. Stewart Has Some Things To Say About Newspaper Reporters Who Can't Spell

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

I saw a newspaper reference the other day to ex-Senator "Buckley" of Ohio. "Buckley" was the way it was spelled. Of course I knew that ex-Senator Buckley was the individual referred to. But in the six years that he was in Capitol Hill I don't think I saw his name so spelled half a dozen times, except in the Congressional Directory, which specializes on not making that kind of mistake.

Whenever a political writer mentions a prominent public man and spells his name incorrectly I always wonder if that writer knows, in general, what he's talking about.

But that suspicion probably's unjust to the writer. Even if his spelling is right, it's a safe bet that some editor or printer or proof reader will "correct" it for him, in a certain class of cases, in the "Buckley" category.

Incidentally, Buckley's (or Buckley's) first name and middle initial are Robert J. Yet somehow, while he was in Washington, the impression got abroad that his front name was Roy. Most capital correspondents fell for it. It's as "Roy J. Buckley" that he'll go down in history.

More of the Same
Then there was Representative John M. Robison of Kentucky. He was a highly notable legislator. There was no more excuse for misspelling his name than there would be for misspelling John N. Garner's. But of course he always figured as "Robinson" or, oftener, "Robinson."

For a long time in congress, as a representative from Tennessee, was one Ewin L. Davis, now a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Can that bird get his first name spelled "Ewin" in the newspapers? I should say not. It goes in "Edwin" regularly.

Not so long ago I ran across a newspaper reference, right in a Washington daily, to Joseph T. Robinson as a late senator (he's dead) from Alabama.

Senator Robinson was enough of a notability to have been democratic majority leader of the upper congressional chamber. He occasionally was suggested as a presidential possibility. "Sic transit gloria mundi!" Only a few weeks after his death he was obituaried as from Alabama. He hailed from Arkansas.

Not Strictly Apropos
"Hailed!" That reminds me (though it's not strictly apropos). It always makes me sore to read that some culprit was "hailed" into court.

A newspaperman has no business to use a word that he hasn't the least notion of the meaning of. Obviously "hail" is the term he's groping for. It's archaic English for "haul." Why not look it up in the dictionary?

We also read constantly of gunmen, armed with "automatic reusers" of "volunters."

Dorsey Band Misses Jack

J. Leonard's Break With Tommy Too Bad, Says Tucker

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Too bad about the break between Jack Leonard and Tommy Dorsey. Dorsey had just the right touch to make Leonard click. And Leonard had a low, catchy way of singing ballads that was strictly his own.

They tell me Dorsey used to take him to one side and make him sing into a trombone for hours. In that way his style was perfected.

Dorsey worked with him for months like that. Tommy would play and Leonard would sing into the trombone. If you ever noticed, he sang just the way Dorsey played. They were a great combination, and both, I fear, will lose by the break.

What the trouble was is a matter that concerns only them, but to those who liked Leonard's wistful, confiding songs against the Dorsey background — well, it's too bad.

Oscar Levant's book, "A Smattering of Ignorance," isn't as funny as Oscar Levant in person. . . They say he drinks 36 cups of coffee a day. If that is true, Oscar is an extremist.

Twenty-four cups are enough for any man. . . A post card from Kay Kyser says "Everybody so good," in Florida. . . Line describing a heart-broken girl in a radio drama: "Her face is like a white sheet with holes burnt in it for eyes."

Have you heard John Chapman's story about the four Finns who were playing bridge by candlelight in a trench up above the Arctic circle? They heard a noise, and one of them looked out. "It's another regiment of Russians," he said. One of the other men got up and said, "I'll go, I'm dummies!"

In a recent interview Doris Dudley said this about John Barrymore: "He often says women marry him but he never marries them."

John has been wed four times, has had many reconciliations. This makes me think of another frequently wed actor of the films who, undaunted, started in search of his seventh bride. But the young woman demurred.

"You've been married so often," she said. "I hear so many strange stories about you."

"My dear," interrupted the actor, "you mustn't believe those old wives' tales."

There are three men who have done more to popularize Hawaiian music in New York than any others — Andy Iona, Ray Kinney, and Lani McIntyre. Andy is part Chinese. Ray is part Irish, Lani is half Scotch.

EVANSTON, Ill. (Special to The Daily Iowan)—The University of Iowa's offense wilted in the last half here tonight as Northwestern's cagers defeated the Hawkeyes, 39 to 29, in Paten gymnasium.

After trailing Northwestern 23 to 22 at the half, the hitherto powerful Hawkeye scoring machine flew apart and the Purple held a safe lead during the entire final period.

The contest, which was the final game to be played in Paten gymnasium, was exceedingly rough with four players leaving the game via the foul route.

Vince Harsha, Iowa guard, left the game with four fouls in the first period with only eight minutes gone. Don Clawson, giant Purple center, fouled out shortly before the half ended while Dick Evans and Erwin Prasse were forced out late in the final period.

Vic Siegel paced the Iowa attack with a 15-point total. The little forward was held to but one free throw in the final half.

The first half started fast with Siegel opening the scoring with a one-handed shot from the corner, but baskets by Capt. Ad Vance, Kruger and Klein put the Wildcats into a seven to two lead before Lind and Siegel put a pair of buckets from the side.

With Siegel and Klein putting on a scoring exhibition, the two teams wound up the first half with a 22 to 23 count after Iowa was unable to hold a short-lived 19 to 14 lead.

Time and Place: Tomorrow night at 7:30; Lafayette, Ind. Broadcast: Station WSUI.

Tomorrow night, at Lafayette, Ind., Iowa's cagers face the Big Ten's pacesetter, Piggy Lambert's powerful Purdue quintet, in their last game of the season away from home.

After that, the Hawkeyes return to Iowa City to face Illinois Saturday night and Northwestern next Monday in the last series of the season.

The Boiler-makers, the best balanced outfit in the conference, are highly-favored to take the Big Ten title, with Indiana, their fellow Hoosier school, as the main rival.

offense helpless as Northwestern chucked in 10 out of 13 free throw attempts and field goals by Kruger and Klein to easily outdistance the Hawkeyes.

The defeat leaves Iowa in the second division bracket with three victories and six defeats, tied with Minnesota for seventh place.

A total of 39 fouls were called during the game, 23 of which were on Iowa men. The Wildcats made 22 points on free throws while the Iowans were only able to get six.

An all-day session is in store for the survivors of the parochial tournament tomorrow at Davenport. Thirteen teams are entered in the diocesan basketball tournament to be held in the St. Ambrose college gymnasium.

There will be four survivors after Monday's session, with St. Mary's of Iowa City a favorite to be one of the quartet. The Ramblers were drawn in the upper bracket and in the lower bracket will be another Iowa City representative, the Fighting Irish of St. Pat's.

Off to the Wars

When the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament begins this week, a University of Iowa fighter, Vance Basler, above, will be among the entries. Basler, winner of the 160-pound title at Cedar Rapids, will be fighting for the second straight year in the tournament of champions. The Hawkeye battler swept through the Cedar Rapids tournament on three knockouts and a decision this year and is considered one of the more potent middleweights to reach the Chicago meet.

scheduled to meet St. Mary's of Muscatine at 3 p.m. and should survive to meet Catholic Central of Ottumwa at 9 p.m.

St. Mary's Ramblers' first round opponents will be St. Peter's of Keokuk at 11 a.m. Monday and, in case of a win, they will play the winner of the St. John's of Victor - St. Joseph's of Ft. Madison battle.

The winner, runner-up and winner of the consolation will represent the Davenport diocese at Ft. Dodge in the state finals.

Clipper Changes His Mind Smith Wants To Stay at Villanova In Spite of Loyola Job

VILLANOVA, Pa., Feb. 24 (AP)—Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith changed his mind today and precipitated a cross-country controversy over whose football coach he is.

Two weeks ago "Clipper" and his sidekick, Vincent McNally, announced they were leaving Villanova college, where they coached successful teams for the past four seasons, to accept irrevocable offers from Loyola university, Los Angeles.

Today the former Notre Dame stars said they would stay at Villanova if they can withdraw their commitments to the Pacific coast university. Villanova officials chimed assent.

"Pressure on the part of the authorities of Villanova college, together with a resolute unwillingness formally to accept the resignation, has revealed to us that our commitments were premature," Smith and McNally said in a statement.

But Loyola looks at the matter differently, according to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. The newspaper quotes Father Lorenzo Malone, in charge of Loyola athletics, as saying in a transcontinental telephone talk:

"We are counting upon Clipper Smith and as far as we are concerned, he is our head coach. I'm amazed that Clipper isn't already on his way out here—and we're not taking a back seat for anybody."

Father Malone told the Bulletin Smith and McNally had not signed formal contracts but that he doubted if these were needed in view of verbal agreements and correspondence he said he had with the coaches.

Purdue Cagers Shade Badgers To Hold Conference Lead

Win Overtime Game; Illini, Bucks In Big Ten Victories

MADISON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Purdue took a firmer grip on its Big Ten basketball leadership tonight by downing a stubborn Wisconsin team, 48 to 45, in an overtime game.

Field goals by Caress, substitute guard, and Tierney, a forward, and a free throw by center Don Blanken gave the Boiler-makers the edge after the regulation period ended with the score tied at 43-41.

Hoosiers Nose Chicago, 38 to 34

BLOOMINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Indiana university stayed in the scrimmage for the Big Ten basketball championship tonight, defeating Chicago, 38 to 34, for its seventh triumph in nine conference tilts.

Approximately 3,500 fans saw the Hoosiers cut off a second half Maroon rally and win their 18th consecutive victory on their home floor.

Illini Humble Michigan, 51-28

CHAMPAIGN, Feb. 24 (AP)—Illinois threw up one of its stoutest defenses of the season here tonight to sweep aside Michigan, 51 to 28. It was Illinois' sixth win in nine Western conference games and kept the Illini in the running for a share of the title.

Seabiscuit Triumphs LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Seabiscuit won the $10,000 Santa Anita handicap at Santa Anita today, with Kayak II second and Viscounty third.

Me and Paul To Fade Out

Tired Pitching Arms Push Dean Brothers Into Retirement

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT DALLAS, Feb. 24 (AP)—Two hunking country characters who gave baseball some of its greater moments—Diz and Daffy Dean—nearly the finish tonight.

The solid combination of "Me and Paul" is half broken.

Only a few days since and Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean may follow Paul (Daffy) Dean into tragic retirement. Of Diz is only 29; Paul, just 26.

Tired pitching arms, arms that threw big country boy hearts behind every pitch, have dragged the brothers from a peak they barely grasped before tumbling back into the shadows.

Paul, a mellow kid who pitched a no-hit, no-run game in the National league when only 19 back in 1934, quietly quit the game over in Russellville, Ark., a couple of nights ago. He telephoned Manager Bill Terry in the middle of the night to give his decision.

Brother Diz, here in Dallas, confirmed Paul's retirement today.

"Don't know just what happened," he said, "but it seems Paul wasn't quite satisfied with his Giant contract."

Diz, himself, isn't satisfied with the Chicago Cubs' offer of $10,000 and is on the verge of leaving baseball for the life of a gentleman farmer.

The story behind the Dean brothers isn't the dollars and cents squabble over a contract. Diz talks it and quieter Paul echoes it meekly, but neither digs down to the truth.

Both threw their arms away in a burst to the top.

Diz started pitching his arm and heart away while a soldier boy down at San Antonio, Tex., in the late twenties. He tried out for the San Antonio team in the Texas league and got nowhere.

The manager, irked by his persistence, grabbed Dean's tattered glove, threw it over the fence and urged him to follow it.

Dean followed that glove—straight to baseball's loftiest heights.

Out of the army, he started pitching sandlot baseball in San Antonio. Soon he was with Houston and one of the greatest pitchers of modern times was on his way. But, in 1937, he began wearing out.

Paul's story is no different. He pitched with every ounce when he pitched; burned himself out at 24.

Now both are figuring on going back to farming—still in their twenties.

Big Ten basketball game before a crowd of 3,667 here tonight.

Trailing 14 to 28 at halftime, Minnesota came back with a rush in the second stanza to outscore the Buckeyes, but was unable to control the ball often enough in the closing five minutes to sustain its scoring drive.

Whatever you want that's NEW—you're MOST APT to find at STRUB'S!

Strub's Fashion Floor

When I stopped up at STRUB'S Fashion Floor this week, they were busily unpacking just oodles and oodles of new Spring frocks—and what's more they are just the type you will be wanting to wear to the Barrister's Ball or Interfraternity Dance. As much as I wanted to wait until they were all unpacked, I just didn't have the time so chose the first four that popped out of the box to tell you about. Each style became more exciting than the first as they were being shown to me. First was an adorable Mallinson printed sheer jersey frock of bright colors having a molded waistline and full skirt with two large pockets dangling from the waistline and was accented with a lovely white chain necklace. Highlights in the new two-piece Spring frocks include a new print of wine, grey, and yippee yellow (one of Spring's new color creations and an ideal shade for a hat to wear with the outfit) having a shirtwaist styled blouse with a wine grain band accenting the waistline and a full pleated skirt—and another which is sure to catch your eye has a beautiful spotlight red woolbrock jacket fastened with large pearl buttons, a strikingly printed pleated skirt of red, white, blue and green as well as a detachable white shirtwaist blouse. Then, too, we must tell you about the lovely pastel blue sheer dress with hand smocking at the shoulderline having 44 tiny pearl buttons marching down the front. These Carlye frocks mentioned above are all styled by McCoy and include only one of the many famous lines featured at STRUB'S. Be sure to visit STRUB'S right away and see these many new arrivals and choose yours for the Barrister's Ball or Interfraternity Dance.

Begin your treasure hunt now for the lucky camera which will produce the winning snapshot for the Hawkeye. Highest quality Cameras and Kodaks with instructions as to how to get best results are always on hand. Furthermore, Mr. Scharf will gladly give you the advantage of his many years of photographic experience by helping you with his many tips.

Have you spotted the two new cars that have just arrived on the Iowa campus this week to add a new Spring influence? They are Marilyn Warner's (Kappa) flashy wine Chrysler convertible with plaid upholstery and Jim Ecklund's (S.A.E.) grey convertible with red leather upholstery. Oh, come Spring!

The generations come and go but there are some institutions that go on serving Iowa undergrads forever. REICH'S CAFE is one of the best known and most popular of these campus institutions. REICH'S have served many generations of Iowa students only because they have served well and have justly earned a famed reputation for good food properly prepared and temptingly served. REICH'S are known for that true campus spirit, so drop in after the Barrister's Ball or the Interfraternity Dance.

THAT'S RIGHT — You're Wrong if you miss a single opportunity to dine at FORD HOPKINS. It's a wonderful place for food and the pleasant surroundings add much to the enjoyment of a satisfying meal. FORD HOPKINS caters especially to particular people who prefer quality without having to pay extravagant prices. Drop in for a snack after the Barrister's Ball or Interfraternity Dance.

It's the smart thing to do—be thrifty—take advantage of the low prices on all your toilet and cosmetic needs — always to be found at GIBBS' DRUG STORE — a Walgreen System store. S. U. I. Symphony Orchestra To Play 'Romantic Symphony' In Concert Wednesday Night

Anton Bruckner's "Romantic Symphony," to be played by the university symphony orchestra in its concert at Iowa Union Wednesday night, is a work which is "almost never played by students because it requires so much musical maturity," according to Prof. Philip G. Clapp, director of the university orchestra.

In fact, Bruckner's compositions are not very well known in the United States although they have enjoyed great popularity in Europe, Professor Clapp said yesterday. Bruckner is chiefly famous for his composition of nine orchestra symphonies. "The Romantic," the fourth of the compositions, was written in Vienna, Austria, where he was, no doubt, inspired by the "poetic beauty of his surroundings," Professor Clapp added.

"The Romantic" is well named, the conductor said, for it is "very sunny and melodious with impressive climaxes."

Born in 1824 in a tiny Austrian village, Bruckner got a small amount of education in the church school of a local monastery. Because of extreme poverty, he was not able to begin his training in musical composition in Vienna until he was almost 30 years old—an age at which most musicians have finished such training. However, he eventually became a professor in the Vienna conservatory of music, wrote his series of symphonies, and became famous. He received many honors from Austrian royalty during the latter part of his life.

The "Poem for Violin and Orchestra" by Chausson, another number on the program for Wednesday night's performance, was written especially for Eugene Ysaye, a Belgian violinist of the last generation, who was considered during his life to be the greatest violinist in the world.

Prof. Arnold Small of the music department will be the featured soloist in the "Poem." Professor Small, who became head of violin instruction this fall, received a prize for his composition, "String Quartet in B minor" in an Iowa composers' contest, sponsored by the National Federation of Musical Clubs, last April.

"The Bartered Bride" is a Bohemian folk opera with plenty of comical situations. The overture to the opera, the other number on the Wednesday night concert program, is a "riot of jollification," Professor Clapp commented yesterday.

New Furniture in Iowa Union Lounge

Shown above is a group of University of Iowa students trying out part of the new furniture, which was placed in Iowa Union lounge this week. The new furniture, replacing the old pieces in about one third of the large room, is the first part of Iowa Union redecoration and refurbishing project. The new pieces of furniture are brighter colored and of a different style than was formerly in the room. According to the refurbishing plans, the lounge will be divided into several "family groups" by the arrangement of the furnishings. The large, semi-circular divan shown above constitutes the center portion of one group. With the brighter colors in the furniture, the lounge will take on a more modern appearance in accordance with student life.

Dismantling of Journalism Building Progresses

Dismantling of Close hall, better known as the journalism building, down to a level below the second story windows, progressed during the last week as workmen removed the entire top part of the tower and completed removal of the south portion of the roof. The fire-damaged supporting beams which were weakened by the fire badly enough to cause condemnation of the 50-year old structure, have now been taken down and workmen are now taking down the walls. A temporary roof has been constructed on the second floor level. This will serve as a roof for the building for the present. Only the basement is in use, this including the university printing service and The Daily Iowan composing room. Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, has arranged for preservation of the three identification stones from the tower, the "Close Hall" sign and the "Y. W. C. A." and "Y. M. C. A." tile fronts.

War Affects Fungi Exchange

Botany Department's Collection, One of Best, Practically at Standstill

The European war conditions are having their effects on the University of Iowa.

That's what they'll tell you over in the botany department, and they know.

They'll tell you that the fungi exchange, carried on with the countries at war since 1926, is now practically at a standstill and is effecting the local collection of fungi, considered as one of the largest and most extensive in the world.

Containing over 4,500 different specimens, the mounted and classified fungus group here is equaled only by the British Museum in London. Exchanges of the plant group, identified by the lack of green coloring matter and reproduction by spores, takes place between various institutions abroad and in the United States.

An active exchange is still maintained with South Africa, South America and Australia, since the bulk of the fungus belong to the temperate zone. Most of the lower form of plant life are included in this botanical group.

Universities participating in the "exchange" are Harvard California and Michigan. Valuable specimens have been received from the Missouri botanical gardens and the New York botanical gardens.

Heading the collection here is Prof. George W. Martin, who started the accumulation and classification of the material over 14 years ago. Orderly filed away in cases on the fifth floor of the pharmacy-botany building, the fungi collection is used as research and reference material by students here.

It's no simple task, either—the labelling of the hundreds of specimens of mushrooms, molds, mildews, rusts, smuts, and toadstools and many of the "exchanges" are lying dormant waiting to be arranged in proper grouping, according to Professor Martin.

Present graduate students who came to the University of Iowa to use the local fungi collection as basis for their research on these include Myrlyn McGuire of Iowa City, Ina N. Stanley of Indianapolis, Ind., and Donald J. Emery of Pawtucket, R. I.

A separate collection of the fungi plants is the Morgan exhibition collection, left by an early student in the botany department here to Prof. Thomas H. Macbride for student use. It was the first extensive collection of the fungus to be made in the Mississippi valley region, the botany professor explained.

Nine music students will appear in a vocal and instrumental recital at the north music hall tomorrow at 4 p. m. The program will be the 16th of a student series.

The participants and program will be:

Concerto in B minor (first movement)..... Handel

Hayne's Class To Broadcast Religious Talk

Radio chapel speakers for the week are members of the Rev. Donald Hayne's classes in the school of religion, where Father Hayne is a professor. The morning radio chapel is heard each week day morning over radio station WSUI at 8 o'clock.

Father Hayne's talk will be "Introduction" when he speaks tomorrow. Other speakers, their subjects and the days when they are heard, include Arlene E. Ritz, A3 of Pierson, on "What Can Christian University Students Do?" Tuesday; Phyllis M. Gilchrist, A1 of Iowa City, "The National Conference of Christians and Jews," Wednesday.

Mary Kennedy, A4 of New Hampton, "Religious Education of Pre-School Children," Thursday; Lorna M. Grulke, A2 of Avoca, on "Home Bible Study," Friday, and Wanda I. Wiebler, A2 of Davenport, on "An American Woman: Elizabeth Seton," Saturday morning.

The morning chapel series is under the direction of Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion.

Dick Barrie To Play

"Music of the moment" will be featured by Dick Barrie and his orchestra at the Barrister's Ball Friday from 9 to 12 p. m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union. The orchestra specializes in sweet music without ignoring the lively swing trend of the day. Before forming his own band, Barrie was a trumpeter and vocalist with Kay Kyser. Tickets for the party are available at the law office and from members of the committee to law and pre-law students.

Engineers Will Sponsor Flanders' Talk

Famed Mechanical Engineer To Appear Wednesday Afternoon

Dr. Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Jones and Lamson Machine Tool company of Springfield, Vermont, will speak on "A Design for Living in America," at a lecture sponsored by the college of engineering Wednesday at 1:10 p. m. in chemistry auditorium.

Past president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Dr. Flanders is one of the great contemporary mechanical engineers and is well qualified to discuss this problem. Prof. H. L. Goddard of the mechanical engineering department said in his announcement of the lecture yesterday.

The speaker has done original work in the field of machine design and standardization of screw threads and was a member of the industrial advisory board of the NRA and a member of the advisory board of Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper. At the present time he is a lecturer at the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth University.

He is a member of the American Engineering Council and a director of the Social Science Research Council. The lecture will be of public interest, in that Dr. Flanders will discuss some of the relations between engineering and the social studies, Professor Goddard said.

November Election Tops List Of America Student Interests

AUSTIN, Texas, February 24—Student thought on the college campus, like public opinion elsewhere over the nation, is now turning towards the November elections and the issues that are likely to be involved. The college of the country agree with the American voter that the most important problem of the day is how to keep the United States out of war. Unemployment comes next.

Interviewers for the Student Opinion surveys asked students over the nation "What do you believe is the most important problem facing the United States today?" From every section, New England to the deep South, Middle Atlantic to the Far West, the answer of the greatest number was the same: how to stay out of war. Many other problems were mentioned, as follows: 1. Keeping the U. S. out of war—43% 2. Solving unemployment—17% 3. Balancing the budget—7% 4. Solving labor problems—3% 5. Recovery of business—3% 6. Threats to democracy—2% 7. Inequality of incomes—1% 8. Solving world problems—1% 9. The 1940 elections—1% 10. Relief—1 per cent 11. Others and no opinion—21%

In this instance, as has been the case in many surveys, college people show practically the same sentiments that other studies of the general electorate have pointed out. The question of war and finding employment for the jobless are paramount in the minds of most Americans, young and old. Business recovery, however, seems to be more important to the average voter, who placed that third in the latest sampling of opinion, while the collegians gave third place to the budget.

It is significant that the college student has consistently demonstrated parallel feelings regarding Europe's troubles, for the surveys, using a scientific cross section that represents the total U. S. enrollment, has found:

1. In October most students said we should not send troops to help

A Trip Through Germany Today---The Difference Between War and Peace!

By ELMER W. PETERSON
COPENHAGEN (Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Transit through Germany. There was a time when it meant a smooth, pleasant journey, a brief glimpse of a people at peace. Today, a transit journey from Budapest to Copenhagen provides a striking object lesson in the difference between peace and war.

It has much the same effect as plunging into a tunnel on a train, leaving brightness and light at one end and then having it burst upon you suddenly at the other.

Over the Border
Immediately across the Hungarian-Austrian frontier, you sense the hold which war has on Germany, the grimly serious efficiency with which the reich has organized itself for conflict. You sense it in the soldiers who swing aboard your train, in the faces of the people on the station platforms. You feel rather than see the manner in which everything is dovetailed into the pattern of war.

This no longer Budapest, where both music and people are yet gay, where good food abounds, where normal living still pertains.

No, this is the greater reich as it has been lined up for battle. Across the thin line of a frontier and you are in a different world, where every detail of living has been arranged.

Two hours from that frontier and your train grinds to a stop in Vienna's famous east station. You push your way through crowds of soldiers and officers. The steam from the locomotives seems to swirl around steel helmets and rifles and kit bags, but you are ever conscious of discipline. There is a confusion—but a confusion in which everyone appears to know where they are going, and in which the only false note seems to be the elderly foreigner who is frantic to know where he can get his food rationing cards.

"Have patience, Mein Herr," an old gatemaster admonishes. "You will not starve. But have patience."

And the advice is good. Under war conditions, trains for civilians may be late, and taxis and porters scarce. You must learn to take things easy.

Outside the Vienna station it is eerie black. Full blackouts have just been ordered, you are told, and the once gay capital of Austria seems to resent the curtain that has been pulled over it. Vienna—without lights at night! Vienna streets deserted almost, except for pedestrians fumbling their way about. The famous "ring" is but a blur. It seems incongruous, and as you strain your eyes in the darkness the ghostly buildings appear to be bending as though in apology. Your taxi driver mumbles to himself as he tries to pass a heavy truck.

Food-Rationing
At your Vienna hotel you find the main dining room closed, and you have dinner in a small breakfast room for the first time you meet food rationing tickets. You sign a document to acknowledge that you have received so many tickets, and then learn to look at the menu to discover what you must give in tickets to obtain certain dishes.

You find yourself gazing at the butter, and realize that all your life so far you have taken food for granted, with bread and butter something that existed quite naturally, and not to be questioned.

You have your first experience with "war coffee," served with elaborate care by the head waiter from a silver pot. With handsome knife and fork you attack a portion of fish fried in artificial fat. Not only are you eating food but you are eating so many grams of essential food. And, prompted by some curious instinct, you are careful not to waste.

Reminders of War
From Vienna to Berlin, then, you have only occasional reminders that the third reich is at war. Your railway car has been used in German-Polish travel. You sit and stare at framed tourist photographs of Krakow and Warsaw—photographs that show peaceful, tree-shaded parks and new buildings. And in the dining car, where you have an ample lunch, you sit across from a young Austrian officer who served on the Polish front, and who is now on his way to the western front.

He is clean-cut, intelligent, enthusiastic. He is reading a book on the social and agricultural problems of the United States, and is curious to know how America will ever solve its problems.

"Here," he says, "we have the fuhrer. We have problems, of course, but we say to ourselves—the fuhrer will take care of them."

Throughout you meet with friendliness, but a friendliness under restraint. Over your head always is the redlettered warning to Germans—"Be careful how you speak. The enemy listens." But the friendliness is there, even in the tired porter who takes your bags as you arrive in Friedrichstrasse station in Berlin and find yourself in weather so cold your teeth chatter.

In the end you bless the porter. For to arrive in Berlin at night is a problem. Beyond the station, swept with cold winds, Berlin is swallowed up in impenetrable darkness, and there are no taxis. With the porter as a guide you stumble through the darkness to a nearby hotel.

But the hotel is full. The shortage of fuel, you afterwards learn, has sent people to hotels in preference to their own homes.

You lurch through darkness to another hotel, colliding with other pedestrians. Again you are turned away. At last the porter takes you by subway to Unter Den Linden for a weary march from hotel to hotel until you at last find a room. . . . And you find it by virtue of being an American. An old hall porter takes you aside and whispers, "Wait, Mein Herr. You will have a room. I have been in this hotel 28 years and never let it be said that an American was turned away from the Adlon."

The next day, as you travel northward from Berlin, still ruminating on Berlin today, as compared with several weeks ago, the feeling of war pressure seems to grow less. The snow-covered countryside seems to become more cheerful. And at Warnemunde, where the ferry to Denmark waits, you take a last look at war-time Germany.

Iowa City High School Band, Chorus Program Tomorrow

Second Concert Of This Season To Begin at 8

Numbers Will Include Those To Be Played At Music Festival

A series of numbers including some that will be featured in the forthcoming music festival this spring will be presented by the Iowa City high school band and chorus tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the high school auditorium.

This will mark the second concert in the 1939-1940 series of concerts. Both performing groups have received highly superior ratings for the past two years at the regional tournament in Minneapolis, Minn.

The band, under the direction of William Gower, will play a march, "Father of Victory" by Ganne; overture, "Hero" by Johnson (required of class C bands); "Niobe" by DeRubertis (required of Class B Bands), and "The Traveler" by Buchtel.

Overture, "Manx" by Wood (required of Class A bands) will also be played. In the solo group Donald Key will play "Horn Solo" by Mozart; "Concertino" by C. von Weber, will be played by Robert Caywood, Marjorie Sidwell, William Gower Jr., Mildred Burger, Robert Merriam and Donald Reha.

Ansel C. Martin will direct the chorus in a chorale, "Come Soothing Death" by Bach; "Day-break" by Gaul; "Death on the Hills" by Edward Elgar; "Kashmir Song" by Anji Finden (arranged by Wane Howorth for modern choir). In the solo group Lester Taylor will sing a bass solo, "O Iiss and Osiris" by Mozart.

There will be no reserved seats for the concert. The doors will open at 7:15 p. m.

Novel Suppers, Discussions Planned by Student Groups

Methodists Will Have 'Snowstorm'

Novel supper hours, thought-provoking discussion groups, informal song fests and candlelight devotional periods are planned for the meetings of the various student church groups to-night in local churches and student centers.

Episcopal . . .
Students will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in the rectory, 212 S. Johnson.

A Snowstorm . . .
A ski jump and edible "icicles" will be a part of the "winter sports" dine-a-mite supper of the Wesley Foundation at 8 o'clock tonight in the church parlors. Food will be served from a toboggan.

"Why Be Good?" will be answered by Rev. Robert H. Hamill at the candlelight vesper at 7 o'clock in the main auditorium of the church, and "Men and Women Relationships" will be a topic of the last in a series of three discussions led by Prof. and Mrs. William H. Morgan at 8 o'clock in the student center.

Defendants File Action

Ask $496.63 From Arne Bidstrup In City School Case

A cross-petition establishing a counter-claim of $496.63 was filed in Johnson county district court yesterday by the attorneys of the Steenberg Construction company, the Independent School District of Iowa City and the Aetna Casualty and Surety company of Hartford, Conn., the defendants in an action which was instigated by Arne Bidstrup.

The original petition filed by Bidstrup asked $257 allegedly due him for work done in the new Iowa City high school building.

Bidstrup stated in the petition he had not received payment for laying paper on 41,000 square feet of space in order that flooring could be laid, and in addition he had not been paid for laying and finishing the floor in the band room of the building.

The cross-petition filed by the defendants asked that a judgment of $496.63 be levied against Bidstrup. This amount represents the sum which was allegedly spent for repairs on work done by Bidstrup.

According to the cross-petition, Bidstrup had already been paid for the work which he performed.

Attorneys for the defendant who filed the petition yesterday are Guy M. Kimball, St. Paul, Minn., and Arthur O. Leif.

Iowa City One Of Top Schools In Debate Meet

Iowa City, Burlington, Mount Pleasant and Davenport schools ranked as the top schools for the second consecutive year in the district debate tournament of the southeastern district which was held Friday and yesterday in Ottumwa. Ten schools participated in the event.

The Iowa City team included Marilyn Glassman, negative captain; Judith Worlon, affirmative captain; Lois Marlas, Tom Wuriu, Gordon Christiansen and Shirley Jeanne Miller.

Iowa City has competed in the tournament during each of the nine years it has been held.

New Recreational Equipment Provided For Quadrangle Men

How about a game of chess, bridge, cribbage, checkers, ping-pong or ping pong? There are few limits to the ways in which 700 Quadrangle men can while away their spare time since a new recreational experiment was started in the dormitory this week.

It all started with a "bunch of fellows" who got together to deplore the low ebb which Quad recreational facilities had sunk and suddenly decided to do something about it. That "something" turned out to be the purchase of a chess, a checker and a cribbage board, a ping pong table and paddles, two bridge sets and two ping-pong sets. The purchase was made from Quadrangle funds.

A committee of three supervises the project. It is made up of George W. Crowell, C3 of Des Moines, Wayne M. Henkle, M3 of Afton, and Robert L. Miller, E3 of Waverly.

The recreational facilities were placed in the Quad office and are checked out for use in individual rooms or in the Quad lounge. Their use is contingent upon the following rules: (1) All equipment is to be checked out from the office. (2) Persons checking out equipment will be held responsible for its return as well as for its breakage or loss. (3) All equipment must be returned to the office by noon of the next day.

All of the equipment is now available for use except the new ping pong table which is expected to be placed in the basement game room by Wednesday. Upon the "Quadrangle" response to the of New York City, university student secretary for the board of education for the north Baptist convention, will be guest of honor at an informal reception given by the Roger Williams club of the Baptist church from 3 to 4:30 this afternoon at the Roger Williams house. She will speak briefly on her experiences as a speaker at a series of meetings on college campuses similar to last year's religious emphasis week.

"Brotherhood" will be discussed at the 6:30 meeting of the club with Wayland Fuller, G of Marshall, Tex., leading the discussion. Others participating will be James Morris, A3 of Des Moines; Priscilla Nicholson, A3 of Scranton; Robert Crose, A3 of Baldwin Park, Cal., and Ching Szu Chen, G of China. Lewis Lapham, A2 of Charles City, will lead the worship service.

Fred Blessin . . .

E3 of Iowa City, will be guest speaker at a devotional meeting of the student association of the English Lutheran church tonight at 6:30 in the church parlors. He will discuss "The Creed, a Source of Power."

The social hour and luncheon will begin at 5:45.

Housing Conditions . . .

for foreign and colored students on the university campus will be surveyed at 6:30 to-night when the student group of the Christian church meets in the church parlors. This is one in a series of discussions on racial problems. Laren Tesdell, A3 of Des Moines, will be in charge.

A social hour was given for the student group last night instead of the usual Sunday night project rests the possibilities of its enlargement and expansion. Eventually the Quad council hopes to have enough equipment on hand to satisfy all demands at any time.

Judge Gaffney Issues Foreclosure Decree For 10 Mortgages

Judge James P. Gaffney yesterday issued a court decree of foreclosure for 10 Johnson county school fund mortgages held against the properties of Bert E. Manville and Martha Manville.

The mortgages are held by the state of Iowa as collateral for money loaned to the Manvilles from the school fund of Johnson county.

The petition for the decrees was filed by the attorney for the state, W. J. Jackson.

Attorney Henry Negus represented the defendants.

Local Resident Dies at Home Here Yesterday Afternoon

Funeral services for Anton Nerad, 66, 619 E. Fairchild, who died at his home at 1 p. m. yesterday, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Beckman funeral home. The Rev. E. E. Voigt will preside. Burial will be at Oakland cemetery.

Lodge 44 of the I.O.O.F., to which Mr. Nerad belonged, will take part in the service.

Born in Czechoslovakia in 1873, Mr. Nerad came to the United States and to Iowa City in 1891. He had been employed for many years at the University of Iowa medical laboratories.

Survivors include his widow, three sons, Walter J. and George, both of Iowa City, and William J. of Cedar Rapids; one sister, Mrs. Julia Soucek of Iowa City, and two grandchildren. One son died in infancy.

He was a member of the C.S.A. and Z.C.B.J., Bohemian lodges of Iowa City and of the Good Samaritan Encampment.

The remains are at Beckman's.

Sentences Two To Eldora For Stealing

Gaffney Sends Youths To Training School In Saturday Action

Two Iowa City youths, 15 and 16 years old, were sentenced to the Iowa training school for boys at Eldora yesterday by Judge James P. Gaffney after they had signed confessions to police admitting a part in a series of thefts throughout the city.

The boys, who were arrested earlier in the week, were brought before the juvenile court where they admitted thefts of men's clothing, electric razors, small amounts of money and other articles taken from private homes, apartment houses and fraternity houses on the campus.

Judge Gaffney said both of the boys had been arrested on similar charges before, and had been warned at that time of the seriousness of their actions and the penalty which would be dealt them should they ever be arrested again.

The articles allegedly taken by the pair were sold to second hand stores and individuals in the city, police said. Most of the stolen articles have been recovered from the stores and persons to which they had been sold.

Judge Gaffney in his order stated that persons who knowingly provided a market for such types of stolen goods were guilty of a more serious crime than the one of which the youths had been convicted.

Farm Group Plans Meeting For Wednesday

Members of the Johnson county junior farm bureau will meet for a business meeting and social evening at 9 p. m. Wednesday in the C. S. A. hall, it was announced yesterday.

After the business meeting there will be dancing and a question quiz.

The program committee for the event includes Marvin Sass, chairman; Fern Plecker, Gerald Hudson, Orville Hora and Iona Schenk.

Bi-Partisan Committee To Name Candidates For School Election

The Iowa City Bi-Partisan school committee will meet at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the council chambers of the city hall, officials announced yesterday, to nominate candidates for the board positions held by Prof. Thomas G. Caywood and Elza Means, whose three-year terms are expiring.

A democrat and a republican from each of the five city wards and from University Heights make up the committee membership.

Donna Boorman Granted Divorce From J. Boorman

Mrs. Dora Boorman was granted a divorce in Johnson county district court yesterday from James B. Boorman, charging non-support.

The couple were married in Muscatine on Aug. 15, 1922.

Mrs. Boorman was given custody of two minor children, according to the decree, and the defendant is required to pay $240 a year for their support.

Attorney Glenn R. Bowen represented the plaintiff.

Legion To Meet

Roy L. Chopek east of the American Legion will hold a chow-meeting at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Community building. After the dinner, Lieut. Col. Jack J. Hinman Jr., will give an illustrated talk.

Center Plans Open House February 27-28

Open house will be held at the local Recreational Center Tuesday and Wednesday for the purpose of showing Iowa City residents the activities available for youth and adults, it was announced yesterday.

Supervised individual or group tours will be conducted to show visitors both the activities and the quiet hours of the center, Eugene Trowbridge, director, said.

Invitations to all fraternal, service and civic organizations of Iowa City have been issued by the Recreational Center board under the supervision of Trowbridge.

The open house will be held from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. with the exception of the hour and one half between 5:30 and 7 p. m., it was announced. Trowbridge revealed that the best time to attend the open house will be between 3 and 9 p. m. when the youth will be there.

The Center's new rooms include the game room, gymnasium, rifle range, dressing rooms for women and girls and men and boys and the craft shop. The Kiwanis club donated the power tools for the craft shop.

BETTE DAVIS FILM AT PASTIME

Award Winner Gets Most Complex Role In 'The Old Maid'

By KEN WHITMORE
We found Bette Davis sitting idly in her cubicle of a dressing room at a Warner Brothers Studio stage during the filming of "The Old Maid," which opens Sunday at the Pastime theater.

It was unusual to find Bette unoccupied.

It seemed a good time to ask her a few questions about several things we wanted to know so we knocked on the opened door, smiled back at her beaming invitation to come in and sit down, and started right in.

We asked her about her current film, Edith Wharton's story of "The Old Maid" as later dramatized by Zoe Akins to win the Pulitzer Prize of 1935. In it she appears with Miriam Hopkins, George Brent, Cecilia Loftus, Donald Crisp and Louise Fazenda. Edmund Goulding, who handled "Dark Victory," directed it.

"The Old Maid" is one of the most complex problems of human relationship ever conceived by a novelist and a dramatist," Miss Davis explained. "It is the story of two female cousins, portrayed by Miss Hopkins and myself, who are not overly fond of one another but who are forced by circumstances to share profound life secrets and carry heavy burdens together, while secretly hating each other.

"One really ruins the other's life, then tries to patch it together again. One has a child by the man the other loves. Neither gets to marry the man she loves. And the one who has the child can never claim it as her own. It sounds really terrible, doesn't it? But actually it's not. All we have to do is to keep the characters from becoming the slightest bit inhuman in that atmosphere of lady-like intrigue. It was, I believe, one of the most interesting characters I've ever had the opportunity to play on the screen."

Cheshire cheeses were once molded in the form of a cat, bristles being inserted around the mouth for whiskers; from these old-time cheeses comes the expression, "to grin like a Cheshire cat."

STEWART FILM NOW AT ENGLT

James Shares Honors With Margaret Sullivan In 'Shop Around the Corner'

Margaret Sullivan, James Stewart and the famed "Ernst Lubitsch touch" contribute equal shares to one of the most delightful entertainments ever filmed, "The Shop Around the Corner," when it opens today at 1:15 p. m. at the Englert theater.

That Lubitsch is the master of comedy in all its various phases, whether of satire as he so ably demonstrated with his direction of Greta Garbo in "Ninotchka," or of human, gentle humor in the everyday lives of everyday people, has been proven for all to see in this new picture.

It is a pleasure to see Miss Sullivan back on the screen again, and this most charming and talented of actresses is perfectly teamed with Stewart who makes the most of another fine acting opportunity to compare with his great performance in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." They are clerks in a little Budapest leather goods and novelty shop, both seeking romance. They look for it outside of their own small world, quarreling constantly, and then discover that they are quarreling because they are in love.

"The Shop Around the Corner" is a pleasant departure from the usual film epic. It is as real as real life, flavored with honest truth. As the likable employer and his interesting employees move in and out of the picture, they give it life, warmth, suspense, comedy and romance, which makes for entertainment at its best.

Spelling Bee March 16

Plans for the third annual Johnson county spelling contest to be held March 16 in the Johnson county courthouse have been announced by Frank J. Snider, county superintendent of schools.

To Hold Match In County Courthouse; Expect 80 Entries

Both city and rural schools will be represented in the contest, and one winner from the Iowa City schools and one from another county school will be entered in the state contest to be held at Des Moines on April 20.

"According to the rules of the contest, any county which has a city of over 10,000 population has a right to enter two contestants in state competition," Snider said. "Consequently there will be a contest for Iowa City schools held at 10 a. m. and a second contest for other schools of Johnson county will be held at 2 p. m. The winner of each of these contests will participate in the state," he said.

There will be oral and written examinations for the participants. The champions of each of these contests will meet and spell orally to determine the grand champion. According to Snider, there are usually around 80 students entered in the county contest.

hit and they receive marvelous support from a cast including such winners as Roland Young, Mary Boland and Cesar Romero. Darryl F. Zanuck was in charge of production and the film bears his expert mark. It bears also the deft touch of Director Roy Del Ruth who handles this comedy in just the way it should have been done. The screen play by playwright Sam Hellman, veteran scenarists Darrell Wayne and Lynn Starling, and author John O'Hara, is packed with perfect situations and repartee gems that make the dialogue constantly sparkle.

County Red Cross Group Meets, Elects Officers March 5

Mrs. Martin Pederson, executive secretary of the Johnson county chapter of the American Red Cross, yesterday announced the annual meeting of the chapter to be held in the board room of the public library on March 5.

The election of officers for the year will be the feature of the meeting, and the annual report of chapter business will be made. Don A. LOVE LAUGHS AT LAWS

Locksmiths have been getting their share of being laughed at by love, and now along come laws to share the ridicule! It's all a happy part of Paramount's bright new comedy-drama, "Remember the Night," starring the popular players above, Fred MacMurray and Barbara Stanwyck. Jewel Thief Stanwyck falls into the clutches of the law — and the embrace of District Attorney MacMurray. The film opens at the ENGLERT Theater next Wednesday.

GINGER ROGERS STARS AT IOWA

'Fifth Avenue Girl' Depicts Family Life Of Millionaire Connolly

How to Fix Up Your Family in Ten Easy Lessons—this is the hilarious basis of Ginger Rogers' newest starring vehicle, "Fifth Avenue Girl." The family belongs to Walter Connolly, an amiable but discouraged millionaire whose wife and children have become too selfish to pay any attention to him.

A chance encounter in Central Park with a penniless but quite philosophical girl, interests the millionaire. He takes her out on a gay night-clubbing evening to celebrate his birthday and wakes up the next morning to discover that he brought her home with him.

The incident awakens his wife's deepest suspicions, which in turn gives the millionaire an idea. He secretly pays the girl to stay on as a guest, and to pose as something of a gold-digger. The scheme works brilliantly. Wife and children immediately become very solicitous over his welfare, give up their personal pursuits to attend to this new problem. And in the working-out of the affair, the picture reaches unusual heights of comedy.

The Cast of the RKO Radio Picture includes Verree Teasdale, James Ellison, Tim Holt, Franklin Pangborn and Kathryn Adams, a "Gateway to Hollywood" discovery. Gregory La Cava both produced and directed.

'Day the Bookies Wept' Is Co-Hit
"The Day the Bookies Wept,"

'A CHILD IS BORN' NOW AT VARSITY

Geraldine Fitzgerald, Jeffrey Lynn Star In Warner Brothers Picture

"A Child Is Born," the new Warner Exos, production with Geraldine Fitzgerald, sensational discovery of "Dark Victory" and "Wuthering Heights," Jeffrey Lynn, Gladys George and Gale Page in the leading roles, opens at the Varsity today.

The setting for the film is the maternity ward of a city hospital. This does not mean, however, that the setting itself is the matter of main interest in the screen production. It was produced as a dramatic entertainment, and like any good piece of drama, its chief concern is with the fates of the various characters who people its story.

Of chief interest is the tragic tale of the devoted young couple depicted by Miss Fitzgerald and Jeffrey Lynn. The wife has been sentenced to a long term in prison for a murder of which she is legally though not ethically guilty, but she was an expectant mother at the time she was sentenced, and now she has been sent to the hospital to have her baby.

All is not sadness or tragedy, however, in the maternity ward. There is plenty of humor traditionally associated with young couples going through their first experience as expectant mothers and fathers, and there is, in the person of a woman who has come to give birth to her seventh child, a beautiful depiction of serene and healthy motherhood.

In addition to the players mentioned, the cast includes Spring Byington, Johnny Davis, Henry O'Neill, John Lital, Gloria Holden, Johnny Downs, Eve Ar-

Lupe Velez Stars In Varsity Co-Hit

Lupe Velez, vivacious screen star who hails from below the Rio Grande, portrays one of her famous firecracker roles in RKO Radio's "Mexican Spitfire," in which she plays the title part. The popular Latin actress is seen as a madcap Mexican song-and-dance girl newly married to a staid New York advertising man. The efforts of the groom's jealous ex-fiancee to break up the marriage with the aid of the husband's scheming aunt, provide the basis of the hilarious story.

Featuring in prominent roles Leon Errol, Donald Woods, Leda Hayes and Elizabeth Risdon, "Mexican Spitfire" is a sequel to Lupe Velez' recent "The Girl From Mexico."

"SPEED'S fine in hockey but not in cigarettes"—Roy, how right you are!

Research men may use fancier language—but they say exactly the same thing about cigarettes.

Scientists know that nothing destroys a cigarette's delicate elements of fragrance and flavor so mercilessly as—excess heat. And cigarettes that burn fast also burn hot.

Slow-burning cigarettes don't burn away these precious natural elements of flavor and fragrance. They're milder, mellower, cooler!

And the slowest-burning cigarette of the 16 largest-selling brands tested was Camel... they burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested. (See panel below, right.) So... why not enjoy Camel's extra mildness, coolness, and flavor? ... And extra smoking equal to 5 extra smokes per pack.

Bottled Music Is Blown Out Here

Using knowledge gained from a physics laboratory experiment, these Lawrence College co-eds have formed their own bottle symphony, and perform at many student affairs. They combine exercise with their music by bending knees as they sound notes. Bottles are "tuned" by adding water until a desired pitch is obtained.

When Gopher Students Wanted Thrills They Traveled To Winter Sports via Train

Eleven hundred college students on one train is not a picnic for the railroaders running that train — but it was more than just a picnic for the University of Minnesota collegians who jammed themselves and their winter sports equipment into the cars for a recent outing trip to small-town Glenwood City, Wisconsin. Between the coming and going trips that harrassed the railroaders with collegiate pranks, the winter sportsmen played hard and enjoyed the hospitality of villagers who did everything for them from easing their frostbites to feeding their empty stomachs. Here is a picture-story of the fun trip that was a climax to the Gophers' second annual Snow Week.

Collegiate Digest Photos by Halseth & McBrady

• All cars were jammed with skis, clothes — and collegians.

• The sports-bound eleven hundred jammed the streets when they disembarked after their train-ride.

• Snow Week Queen Faith Alexander, a Tri Delt, smiled the thanks of her fellow-collegians when she received the key to the city.

• Diets were forgotten by eds and co-eds alike, and Jean Antletz' exercise-inspired appetite did great justice to this heaping plateful.

• Glenwood City citizens set up a special first aid station for injured or frozen collegians. Lorraine Neff is being "doctored" by Thelma Haaya.

• Night before the train trip, real winter sports enthusiasts sleighed for 15 miles, performing pranks like the above en route.

Collegiate Railroaders Are Builders, Too

A complete railroad system — built, owned and operated by student engineers — is now running on the Dartmouth College campus. The complicated and intricate mechanisms of the Nigger Island & Pompanosuc Railroad make it one of the most unusual miniature systems in the U. S., for it was constructed in its entirety by members of the club sponsoring the unique project.

Conceived only a year ago by Al Hazen, a student in Dartmouth's Thayer School of Engineering, the project has set out to duplicate the methods of the larger railroads. The layout is housed in the Thayer School, and consists of 185 feet of track arranged in the form of a complex series of figure eights. Engineering problems galore have been introduced to make the curves safe for high speed travel.

Its equipment is entirely hand made and represents an enormous amount of time and labor. In the picture below that blueprint which Hazen and his associates are studying is part of a roll at least ten feet long and is just for one locomotive! Even the track is all hand made; each tie being separately stapled in place and the track being made from narrow gauge rolled steel. The switchboards are a complicated mass of electrical engineering, but are so efficient that one operator can handle the entire system.

Digest Photos by Neefus

• Notice the excellent workmanship in even the smallest detail of construction.

• Three switchboards control activity on 185 feet of track and all operations of the system are electrically directed from these central stations.

• This engineer is working on an intricate operating mechanism of an engine. All rolling-stock is hand made.
