Russians Closing In On Strategic Finnish Port From All Sides

—FROM HELSINKI—

MOSCOW, March 2 (Saturday) (AP)—The Russian army reported its troops were advancing into the southern outskirts of Viipuri last night and that the Finns were setting fire to the ancient port.

The Leningrad military headquarters communique said that the enveloping offensive against Viipuri "continued successfully" from two directions and that five Karelian isthmus towns were taken during the day. The communique said 922 Finnish defensive fortifications had been captured from February 11 to March 1.

By WADE WERNER HELSINKI, March 1 (AP)—The great Russian drive upon Viipuri—by far the biggest offensive of the war—went into its second month today with the invaders fighting almost on the outskirts of the city.

The Russians, according to the daily army communique of the Finns themselves today, are smashing up from the southwest over the islands and ice of the bay of Viipuri and are closing in from the south and east by land, the Finns fighting bitterly as they withdraw.

Yesterday's Karelian isthmus drive, which reached to the extreme eastern end of the Mannerheim line with an assault on Taipale and was accompanied by the biggest Russian aerial onslaught in many days, resulted in especially heavy fighting near Nuora, five miles due south of Viipuri, whose buildings now are mere empty shells and whose civilians long ago were hustled away to safer points.

There was fighting yesterday too at Sanice, on the Pero river and at other points eastward as far as the Vuoksi river. In general, tonight's line, as made known by the Finns, lies along the east-west railway connecting Limatta on the main railway southeast of Viipuri with Ayrappa, on the Vuoksi.

The Finns said the Russian losses were heavy on this critical western front and that at Taipale, on the shore of Lake Ladoga, more Red soldiers died in new unsuccessful attempts to win this pivotal position.

Bomb Troop Trains Finnish army meanwhile were bombing Russian troop trains bringing reinforcements to the front and also dropping bombs on "a certain air base."

At least 14 and probably 19 of "several hundred" Russian bombing planes over Finland were shot down, the communique said. The Russian raiders killed 14 civilians and wounded 16, according to the statement.

James' Wife Finds Divorce Not Contested

LOS ANGELES, March 1 (AP)—Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, without opposition from her film-producer husband, James, went to court today to seek a divorce under which she may receive $65,000 immediately and $50,000, if she wants it, five years hence.

She testified that relations had been strained between her and the president's eldest son since he first asked for his freedom in May, 1938. After hearing her, the judge set the case over until Monday so her brother, Henry K. Cushing, stricken suddenly ill, could appear.

In October, 1938, Mrs. Roosevelt related, her husband left their home in the east and came to California without asking her to accompany him. She followed a month later, then: "He said he wanted a divorce and asked me to leave California."

Senate Asked To Aid Farms

Southern Tenants Desire Restrictions Favoring Migrants

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—A demand that the federal farm program be revised so as to return thousands of migrant farm laborers to the land was made today before a senate agriculture subcommittee.

Spokesmen for the southern tenant farmers union said present laws caused mass evictions of sharecropper families from their homes. They proposed restriction of farm benefit payments to any one landowner to $5,000 and a requirement that employers of farm labor pay a minimum of 25 cents an hour in order to qualify for the government subsidies.

R. Butler, Memphis, Tenn., president of the tenant union, said such a program would make it unprofitable for wealthy land owners "to buy up, force out and squeeze out small land owners in order to increase their government payments."

Senator Bilbo (D-Miss), a committee member, sharply criticized the proposal to require a 25-cent minimum wage. He said it required 250 hours of man labor to produce a bale of cotton. This, he added, would make labor costs for a bale total $62.50 whereas if cotton sold for ten cents a pound a bale would bring only $50.

Bilbo also said greater restrictions on payments, now limited to $10,000, would "wreck" the farm program. Senators Gillette (D-Iowa), Hatch (D-NM), and Frazier (R-ND), other subcommittee members, agreed that the payment provisions of the farm act needed tightening up, or stricter administration, to prevent ouster of tenants and sharecropper families.

Fairfield Man Admits Crime

Fairfield, March 1 (AP)—Jefferson County Attorney George Van Nostrand said tonight Lee Z. Williams, 33, had admitted the fatal shooting of Elmon Harter, 32, during an argument at a beer tavern here early today.

The county attorney said a charge of second degree murder probably would be filed tomorrow against Williams, former Ottumwa resident, who is being held in the county jail.

Van Nostrand announced that Williams signed a 15-page statement admitting he killed Harter after the two had argued about a woman.

Harter, a laborer living on a farm near Stockport, died instantly of wounds inflicted at close range with a .32 pistol, authorities said.

Williams at one time lived at Lucerne, Mo. Van Nostrand and Harter had argued about Mrs. Mable Shelton Murdy, 38, of Ottumwa, who had accompanied Williams to the tavern.

Undersecretary To See Hitler This Morning

German-American Relations in Berlin In Deplorable State

—FROM BERLIN—

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER BERLIN, March 1 (AP)—Sumner Welles will see Adolf Hitler tomorrow morning already made aware that Germany is determined to fight until she is liberated from what she regards as a British "stranglehold" on world economy.

The United States undersecretary of state, making his first stop in a belligerent capital in his fact-finding tour for President Roosevelt, also was understood to have learned German-American relations were considered here to be in a deplorable state.

Fresh from talks with leaders of Germany's axis ally, Italy, Welles conferred for two and one half hours with foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and later had an hour's chat with Baron Ernst Von Weizaecker, state secretary in the foreign office.

Editorial utterances at the same time indicated Hitler would be steadfast in rejecting any talk of peace except upon Germany's terms.

German Attitude Meanwhile Germany was reported to have informed neutral states through diplomatic representatives that "acceptance of English sea control cannot be regarded as corresponding to the neutrality and sovereignty of a state."

The German attitude was said to have been conveyed to the neutrals orally and not by note. The move apparently was in accordance with the current intensive nazi press campaign directed at Europe's non-belligerents to "actively defend" their neutrality against the allies instead of "useless paper protests."

A London report that hereafter seagoing German coal shipments to Italy would be halted by the British was cited by the authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland as "another proof of the disregard with which Britain proceeds against neutrals."

German quarters described today's contacts by Welles as devoted to "clarifying issues and preparing ground for those large questions which the fuhrer alone can answer."

The climax to Welles' Berlin visit is to come at 11 a.m. (4 a.m., CST) tomorrow when Hitler is to receive him in the new chancellery.

Von Ribbentrop was understood to have made clear that Germany was in a determined mood to continue to fight against the British-French allies until her principal war aim is achieved—the breaking of Britain's "stranglehold on the economic life of the world."

Senator Opposes Census Quiz

William L. Austin and Senator Charles Tobey protesting against what he termed "census snooping," United States Senator Charles Tobey (R) of New Hampshire has announced he will call witnesses from "all walks of life" to appear before the senate committee on commerce to dispute the propriety of projected census questions. Tobey, right, is shown talking to William L. Austin, director of the census.

Census Queries Prove 'Hot' Income, Marital Questions Claimed Too Personal in Senate Discussion

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Arguing that a divorcee has an inalienable right to keep her past marital difficulties a secret, Senator Tobey (R-NH) today launched a new assault on "personal" queries to be included in the 1940 census.

"Suppose it means the loss of a job for a woman to tell that she was divorced?" the senator demanded at a hearing before a senate subcommittee. His attack on questions about divorcees was a new development, since he had previously concentrated his fire on questions about individual income. The subcommittee is considering a resolution by him to delete the questions about income.

Dr. Leon E. Truesdell, census bureau statistician, defended the question about divorcees, saying it had been asked in every census since 1850. He said the purpose was to "classify population according to marital status."

Another witness, Edward J. Noble, undersecretary of commerce, spoke in defense of the income questions, pointing out that millions of Americans make no objections to disclosing their income when they fill out income tax blanks.

But Tobey was unappeased. Stormily, he announced he was taking the issue to the country. "I have just begun to fight," he shouted. "I have talked to the people and I am going to talk to them again. Before God, I am."

Fear that the census might become "notoriously political" unless demands for elimination of the income questions were satisfied was expressed by Senator Maloney (D-Conn), who added: "This census can be completely discredited by the kind of agitation that can be stirred up. People don't understand the reasons for the questions, and their mind is closed."

Maloney remarked that he knew a banker who would prefer being jailed to telling a census enumerator how much money he made last year and Senator Davis (R-Pa.) said that things are reaching the point where housewives will have to keep track of their pots and pans and sportsmen will have to list their fishing tackle.

Bombers Attack Ships

armed merchantmen were attacked and several large ships sunk.) Several unattended vessels fell prey to the German war at sea. The 7,418-ton British liner Pyrrhus was reported sunk off the west coast "by enemy action"—presumably by a submarine—and several neutral vessels were sunk or damaged.

The nazi air raiders attacked trawlers which the British said were fishing boats from Yorkshire to the Thames. Eight men were lost with the Pyrrhus. Sources close to the ministry of economic warfare announced that midnight was zero hour for the start of a blockade on German coal shipments to Italy. Reliable shipping sources here said there were 16 Italian colliers now loading German coal in Rotterdam. All must sail by midnight to escape contraband control and confiscation.

The royal air force, whose scout planes slipped over the battle lines into Germany again last night for the sixth time in seven days to plot communications, bridges and factories on general headquarters maps, sent fighters against air raiders. Pursuit planes repelled a German plane which bombed and machine-gunned the fishing boat Courage.

20 Million Dollar Loan Given Finland To Purchase Staples

Flood Crisis Appears Ended In California

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1 (AP)—Although water still poured through broken dikes tonight and hundreds of thousands of acres of rich farm lands remained submerged, the crisis appeared passed in northern California's devastating flood.

Damage will be reckoned in millions of dollars, but loss of life among the 5,000 or more flood victims was no more than five tonight.

"It looks like the crisis has passed," the weather bureau reported, "although the water may rise in the lowest part of the Sacramento valley for the next 24 hours." Cool, dry weather in the mountains was most favorable.

The town of Meridan, about 40 miles north of Sacramento, became the crisis center today as levees breached, unleashing a torrent on 700,000 acres of crops, and forcing hundreds of families to vacate their homes. The town was isolated.

Export-Import Bank Allocates Finn Fund Without Signature

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Hastening to provide funds for hard-pressed Finland, the export-import bank allocated $20,000,000 for that nation today, even before President Roosevelt had signed the bill under which the loan was made possible.

Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, announcing the action of the bank's trustees, said the president had advised him that he would sign the measure, by which congress yesterday increased the bank's capitalization $100,000,000.

Hjalmar Procopce, Finnish minister, expressed gratitude for the loan and declared that his country had just begun to fight.

"Don't think that Finland is beaten because we've suffered a few reverses," he said, "Finland is a land of 70,000 lakes and we'll fight at every one."

He said a considerable portion of the $20,000,000 credit would be spent for American oil, gasoline, wheat, corn and lard.

Jones announced also that the export-import bank had allocated $15,000,000 to the Bank of Sweden to finance American exports to that country, and had confirmed a $10,000,000 loan to Norway, which previously had been announced.

The proceeds of these loans may be expended only for purchases in this country, and none of the money may be used to buy implements of war. Commercial aircraft may be purchased.

Roosevelt Completes 4,000-Mile Cruise

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt completed a 4,000-mile cruise today when he disembarked from the destroyer Lang at the naval air station here at 4:15 p.m., CST.

On the combined pleasure and business trip, which took him to the canal zone and as far as Cocos island in the Pacific, Mr. Roosevelt acquired a good coat of suntan, some new fishing lore and what he regards as valuable information on both nearby and distant defenses of the Panama canal.

U. S. Directs Rescue Of U-Boat Victim In Neutrality Zone

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—The British freighter Southgate, a 400-foot vessel of 4,862 tons, wireless tonight that she was attacked by a submarine about 130 miles northeast of Porto Rico. The message, intercepted by Mackay radio at 5:09 p.m. (CST) gave no details and there was no immediate word from the vessel or elsewhere as to the outcome.

The position given by the ship—latitude 19.58 north and longitude 64.00 west—would place her about 1,100 miles southeast of Miami, Fla., a spot in the trade lanes between Central America and Europe, and well within the American neutrality zone.

Swift Action The United States government, which maintains the base of its tenth naval district at Porto Rico, swung swiftly into action. First, the coast guard cutter Unalaga, sped to the scene of the reported attack when the Southgate flashed its call.

Then the navy ordered all vessels in the district to stand by and give such assistance as their positions permitted and sent three destroyers—the McLeish, the Statterlee and the Mason—to the scene.

This was the first definite report of a submarine attack in American waters. Four months ago, a vessel identified by its call letters as the British Coulmore sent out a distress call indicating she had been attacked by a U-boat about 600 miles east of Boston but the Coulmore was reported safe the next day and the attack was unverified.

Inside Neutrality Zone Surface ships of belligerents, however, have engaged in numerous skirmishes inside the neutrality zone—the zone set up around the western hemisphere for the avowed purpose of keeping the Americas out of the European war. Most spectacular of these clashes was the battle between the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee and British war vessels off the South American coast.

The reported submarine attack on this side of the Atlantic was not unexpected, however, as a German U-boat campaign against British trade routes to the West Indies had been predicted by informed marine sources more than a month ago. Since that time, these sources said, British warships have been searching for the nazi undersea craft in the Central and South American area.

Details Unavailable A British admiralty spokesman said in London the reported attack on the Southgate was "news to us"; in Berlin, German authorities declined comment.

From San Juan, Porto Rico, came word that the position given by the Southgate was but a short distance north of the present maneuver area of the U. S. Atlantic squadron.

Must Be Sunspots!

METEOROLOGISTS, alias scientific weather sharps, have been slow in coming forward to explain the amazingly cold weather prevailing in both Europe and America.

So here goes. It must be the sunspots, for two very simple reasons.

First, there are more and bigger spots on the sun this winter than there have been for years.

Second, if it isn't sunspots, what is it? Wherefore, as the boys in geometry say, Q.E.D.

Sunspots in wholesale lots always mess up our earthly weather. They are likely to make it colder and give us what the weather men call "precipitation," meaning rain or snow.

If you do not think this impromptu analysis fits the picture, just ask any realist between North Dakota and Key West, or in Germany or on the Finnish front.

But, don't ask us what makes the sunspots.

The Significance Of the Coming Play Festival

RECENTLY we heard an interesting argument between two dramatic arts students in which one stubbornly maintained that amateur theatrical production will ultimately become one of the most important cultural components of our national life.

Since 1926, when the first play festival was held in Iowa City, each year has seen an increase in the number of entries by community groups, junior colleges and high schools coming from every section of the state.

Perhaps that's for the bureau to decide!

This Paddling Has Nothing To Do With Canoes

"CHUCK, we can't play now, All the paddles are checked out!" Yes, it's the echo from Iowa Union once again. The tea dances are popular, but so is the ping pong room.

Not all the styles for 1940 bathing suits have been revealed, a fashion expert points out. Don't worry, says Zadok Dumbkopf, when summer comes the bathing suits will do their own revealing.

Do We Practice What Some People Think We Do?

MARCH 13 will be an interesting day on the Iowa campus. On this date the officers who will head three women's organizations for next year will be elected.

Then many issues will come forward. Are students really interested in what happens to their associations? Do they really participate in democratic movements when they have a chance?

Once upon a time there was a fellow who never complained that the weather in his town was too hot, too cold, too wet or too dry. He was a winter resort press agent.

ment program will have the feeling that many students want what they want?

The membership of University Women's association consists of every registered woman in the university. Records show that it is a good election if 500 cast ballots. That proportion is poor if one considers all the women in the university.

Without a doubt, if people believe in democracy like they so often claim they do, here is one chance for the university women to prove the point. If college women are so disinterested in close-by campus affairs, it is no wonder that masses of people fail to become interested in public affairs when put to a vote or in mere discussion or controversy.

March 13 is hearing—university women. Will you declare your interest in the future of campus organizations by voting?

Once Again We'll Hear The Sing

PLANS ARE once more under way for the all University Sing, an event which University Women's association hopes will become a lasting campus tradition.

Each year the event has grown in size, in accomplishment, and in worthwhileness. Last year eleven women's groups and nine men's groups, the most ever, entered and the rest of campus and the town people of Iowa City really appreciated their efforts.

When the finals of the Sing roll around, the art campus is filled to capacity. There is music, there is silence, there is warmth and there is beauty. The Iowa river is indeed an appropriate setting. No one goes to nor comes away from the Sing unsatisfied.

Every university student should want his group to be a part of such a beautiful, a unique and a lasting campus tradition.

The Date Bureau Was Sure To Come

IT HAS come. The Beaux Arts Ball brought it.

The date bureau, the sure sign of real promotion, has made its debut this year upon the University of Iowa campus.

It was heralded not by flowers, not by ringing of bells—but by "Picasso-like paintings, and suitable music." Truly, it is blessed with pageantry divine.

But that isn't all. Most certainly it is not. The bureau not only obtains a date for you, but obligingly tells you what to wear, and (of course) how to get a ticket.

There's only one "catch" in the whole thing. With the party billed as a masquerade ball, you couldn't be sure whether you were getting a blind date or a modernistic cube.

Efforts of Congress To 'Civilize' FBI Sherlocks Meets Strong Opposition of J. Edgar Hoover

Efforts of Congress To 'Civilize' FBI Sherlocks Meets Strong Opposition of J. Edgar Hoover

Chief J. Edgar Hoover of the justice department's bureau of investigation seems to be getting into a mean row with congress over the civil service-ing of his organization.

The FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation) isn't generally under Civil Service rules. The theory is that these FBI sleuths are specialists, who can't properly be picked, for employment, by the ordinary rules of competitive examination.

But there's one stunt for which anybody ought to be qualified—or otherwise. The fingerprint division! It requires only first-class eyesight and a magnifying glass to spot fingerprint evidence.

Accordingly, the FBI's fingerprinters were civil service-ized. Not the rest of the bunch.

Hoover's story is that the Civil Service commission has "certified" to him, as finger printers, "Communists, criminals and miscellaneous lunatics."

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

The truth is that there are quite a few congressmen with whom the FBI isn't altogether popular. They regard it as a kind of a potential OGPU or GESTAPO.

Nobody charges that that's what it is now, but back in Harry M. Daugherty's day as attorney general, when William J. Burns was his boss investigator, plenty of ugly tales were told of it—the effect that its operatives broke into the offices of anti-administration senators and representatives, ransacked their filing cabinets and engaged in numerous other questionable activities.

That's a thing of the long past, but it isn't entirely forgotten. The treasury's secret service never has had any scandals, nor has the postoffice department's, though the postal inspectors have been accused of some errors of judgment.

Nevertheless, lots of congressional objections were raised not so long ago, when somebody suggested the desirability of consolidating the FBI, the treasury and postoffice investigational groups and the army and navy information divisions.

J. Edgar Hoover's competency as a super-detective isn't questioned, but there's quite a bit of sentiment to the effect that he wants too much authority.

'Stars' Rare In Theater Only Seven Great Actresses on Stage, Says Drama Critic

By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK—Most Broadway and Hollywood writers sin against accuracy every time they use the words "star" and "great."

There are about a dozen Broadway columns in the New York papers, and this morning they listed 47 actors and actresses as "stars." If you checked those papers for a week the total would run into the hundreds.

I mention this as a deep-dyed sinner—against—accuracy myself and because, actually, there aren't more than a handful of stars in the whole, wide scope of the American theater. I would say that at most the theater has only seven or eight women stars and maybe five or six men.

There are any number of able, conscientious people right behind these. But they still have a long way to go, and if any real standards of acting are to be recognized they cannot legitimately be classified as stars.

You'll find on Broadway today many nice people who have had a hit now and then and who may have other hits in the future. But one hit, or two hits, doesn't make for greatness. The woods are full of one-shot Johnnies who flame brilliantly for awhile and never quite fulfill their earlier promise.

A fair example of this, I think, is little Helen Claire who was on Broadway last year in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye." Miss Claire is a lovely young woman with a face and a figure that are very pleasing across the footlights.

While she was on Broadway she must have been "starred" hundreds of times. But Helen Claire will have to duplicate that success many times and in many kinds of comedies and dramas before she can hope to belong with the Lawrences and Barrymores.

So much for Broadway and the stars. Out in Hollywood the boys take their jags on an entirely different brand of catnip. They go in for "great." I have read where at least nine "great" pictures have been released in recent weeks.

"Gone" was a great picture. "Mr. Smith" was great. So were "Grapes" and "Mice." So was "Wuthering." "Pinocchio" was great too.

Now, maybe all these pictures really are great. But it seems to me that at least one of these named must be considerably better than the others, and in that case you have one great film and several very good seconds. It also seems to me that when greatness comes along in carload lots the very qualities that make them great become a commonplace.

I know of one movie, and only one, that I think is great; it was made 20 years ago and I think it will still be great 50 years from now. Its name was "The Birth of a Nation." How great do you think "The Grapes of Wrath" will be, say 20 years from now, in 1960?

Foreigners are naturally amazed at the way we do things. Thousands of men will gather next summer in Chicago and Philadelphia to decide which two will go to Washington.

The man at the next desk says that if some of these European war lords don't watch out they are liable to wind up behind the "hate" ball.

English Universities Care More About Curfew Than Attendance SYRACUSE, N. Y. (ACP)—Leges, the two English universities as corporate bodies are as "elusive as smoke," Dr. Terhune stated.

A central office to dispense information is non-existent in English universities. The only source of information is the university calendar, whose contents have so accumulated through the years as to present a confused mass of data which Dr. Terhune calls "as helpful as an unabridged dictionary."

The English course of study is only three years. The college year is divided into three semesters, each consisting of approximately 10 weeks, known as Michaelmas, Lent, and May semesters.

Students take only one subject, although brilliant students may take two.

Minnesota Runners Down Hawkeyes in Dual Meet

LOS ANGELES, March 1 (AP)—Henry Armstrong, sturdy little negro welterweight champion and Cefirino Garcia, recognized as middleweight champion in New York and California, fought to a ten round draw here tonight before a crowd estimated at more than 20,000. Garcia's title was at stake.

The Gophers from the Minnesota school peeped out of their "losing-hole" long enough tonight to take the Hawk thinclads in a dual meet for the first time in seven years, 48% to 37%.

Jack DeFella, national junior A.A.U. champ in the pole vault, easily took the event at 12 feet. Olson of the Gophers was second.

Minnesota did not enter the one-mile relay and thereby forfeited the event to Iowa. An exhibition relay race was run with the freshman team, the yearlings taking the varsity's measure.

The freshman squad ran exhibition races in the 60 yard dash, 440 and 880 yard runs and the 60 yard high hurdles.

U-High Trims West Branch In Tournament

Blues Meet Anamosa Tonight for Title At Sectional Meet

The U-high Bluehaws ran roughshod over a West Branch team last night in a first round basketball game of the district play held at Mount Vernon, 35-30.

The Bluehaws, with a 10-2 lead at the quarter, played their entire second team in the second stanza. Evans, with nine points to his credit, paced the victors.

Evans' exhibition, however was overshadowed by the play of teammates Bus Smith, and of the West Branchers' Jefferson. Smith scored seven points and played a whale of a rebound game.

This was the second defeat this season for West Branch at the hands of U-high. Their previous meeting occurred in regular play of the Eastern Iowa conference.

CAPTAINS Hawklets Name Cage Leaders

Iowa City high's 1939-40 basketball squad yesterday elected Dick Culberson honorary captain of the team for the past season, and Ray Sullivan captain for next year's team.

Culberson, elastic Negro center, was outstanding for the Little Hawks in all of their games this season, leading the team in scoring. He was their mainstay on defense and the best rebound man on both bankboards that City high has seen for many years.

Sullivan, a sophomore who made good in varsity competition his first year out for basketball, was the second best scorer for the Hawklets. Probably the best shot on the squad, he has a year and one-half of competition left.

Iowa Matmen Face Nebraska Tonight in Final Dual Meet

Baseball Writers Select All-Stars For Relief Tilt

TAMPA, Fla., March 1 (AP)—Thirty-five members of the National Baseball Writers' association, voting tonight, picked two squads of National and American league players to take part in an all-star major league game for the Finnish relief fund here March 17.

They decided, however, to withhold publication of their selections until tomorrow.

Members of the squads were picked from the 11 big league clubs now training in Florida. At the request of managers Bill McKeechie, who will pilot the National league all-star team, and Joe McCarthy, director of the American league's entry, the writers agreed to increase the playing squads from 20 to 25 players. This was desirable, the managers said, because of the possibility that not all of the players selected might be in playing condition by March 17.

Hawk-Kansas State Meet Cancelled When Transportation Fails

Forced to cancel last night's meet with Kansas State, Iowa wrestlers face Nebraska today at Lincoln in the last dual event of the 1940 season. After that there is but the conference meet at Lafayette, Ind., March 8 and 9. The Kansas State meet was dropped yesterday when one of the two automobiles carrying the matmen to Manhattan broke down at Creston. The Hawk-eyes, unable to reach Manhattan in time, took a bus to Lincoln.

In tonight's meet, Coach Mike Howard will use the same Iowa team as in meets today, with James Taylor working in the 145-pound class instead of Phil Millen. Other Hawkeyes scheduled to work tonight are Bill Sherman, 121; Loy Julius, 128; Newell Ingle, 136; Capt. Clarence Kemp, 155; Ralph Geppert, 165; Paul Whitmore, 175, and Art Johnson, heavyweight.

Allen Doesn't Worry Tribe President Bradley Will Let Holdout Take His Choice

FORT MEYERS, Fla., March 1 (AP)—Efforts to sign holdout pitcher Johnny Allen were called off today, on orders of President Alva Bradley, until after Bradley's arrival at the Cleveland Indians spring training camp here March 8.

"If Allen doesn't want to work he doesn't have to," Bradley declared in Cleveland. "I think we've made a very fair proposition to him. No, we're not considering a compromise."

The Indians' offer of a bonus contract has been rejected by Allen. Manager Oscar Vitt had intended to make Allen a peace offer today.

PRESSBOX PICKUPS By OSCAR HARGRAVE

Yesterday brought a lesson for the athletic department—Iowa had to cancel a wrestling meet because an automobile broke down.

That little matter of the Hawkeyes being able to get to Kansas State last night doesn't matter so much, but it would seem that Iowa could travel by train for minor sports just as well as for the major ones. There are bad weather, car trouble and quite a few other difficulties that must be considered under the present system. It saves a few nickels, but they don't make up for the grief.

Tonight's meeting between Iowa and Nebraska wrestlers has historical roots insofar as intercollegiate sports are concerned. The Hawkeyes and the Huskers met on the mat in 1911 in the first college wrestling meet west of the Mississippi river—a three match meet, with each match scheduled at two-out-of-three falls. Dad Schroeder, Iowa mat coach at that time, says it lasted half the night with the Huskers winning.

Tonight, at Lafayette, Ind., another traditional struggle will be waged, with Indiana trying to smash a precedent by knocking off Purdue for the second time in one year. The Hoosiers won the first game this season, but haven't beaten Purdue twice in one winter since the series started in 1901.

As an added incentive, the Hoosiers have a possible share in the Big Ten title if Illinois can knock off the Boilermakers Monday—a very fertile possibility. The state of Indiana takes due notice of the Hoosier classic by attending, man, woman and child. At least, the Purdue-Indiana game was a sellout a couple of days ago and it's advertised that there isn't going to be even standing room available.

Our own glimpse of the Hoosiers this year gives an idea why they pack in the pay customers. Menke, Armstrong and the rest use the regular Indiana basketball philosophy, in which you shoot instead of play around on the floor—some of them have to go in. That, incidentally, is what the customers come around for.

The weight classes are 118, 126, 135, 145, 155, 175-pound and heavyweight. Medals will be given to first and second place winners and the winner will be eligible for all-university intramural tournament.

Mercy Hospital Nun Describes Experiences as Nurse to Lepers in British Guiana

By MARY KATHERINE HURN

Chosen as one of six out of a hundred volunteers to nurse the lepers in British Guiana!

That was the assignment received by Sister Philomena of Mercy hospital several years ago—an assignment from which she gleaned an abundant amount of information about life in a leper colony. Sister Philomena has related her experiences to many an interested audience, among which was the group at the meeting of the fifth district of the Iowa Association of Registered Nurses in Cedar Rapids Thursday.

"Probably very few of you associate British Guiana with sea sickness but I am not able to think of one without thinking of the other," began Sister Philomena.

Sister Philomena, 'Theater' at Leprosy Hospital

Seasickness First
Then, beginning with the sensations of seasickness that she experienced between leaving the pier at Brooklyn, N. Y., and arriving at her destination, she went on to describe a few of the things that she had seen and done in the Mahaica Leprosy institution.

The group within the institution, representing the East Indians, Negroes, Chinese and Portuguese, comprise only about one-third of the lepers in British Guiana, she said. The non-infectious cases were permitted to live outside of the colony and to engage in almost any kind of work except that involving the handling of food.

These lepers were also permitted to marry and to maintain their own homes outside of the institution. The bridegroom was usually saved the expense of buying a ring, however, since most of these arrested cases of leprosy had no fingers.

Loss of Sensation
This mutilation occurred from spontaneous absorption of bone and tissues, contraction of the muscles and injury due to loss of sensation in the extremities. Because there was no feeling in these affected parts, it was not uncommon for a leper to report to the hospital displaying toes which had been badly burned.

"It is wrong to think of leprosy as most people do," cautioned Sister Philomena, "for many diseases are more repugnant to take care of." She explained that the perseverance of the afflicted ones was remarkable in such a place where there was every reason to be discouraged. The same patients came every day to have their bodies dressed and were in general very cheerful.

Undertakers and gravediggers are lepers, and a person within the colony, in fact, anyone living in British Guiana, was buried the same day he died, without being embalmed. After a funeral, undertakers felt very much contaminated and proceeded to

In the picture at the left is Sister Mary Philomena, supervisor of nurses at Mercy hospital, who spent several years nursing leprosy patients in the colony in British Guiana. She was one of the first six women from the United States to take up this work. They were chosen from a group of 100 volunteers. Sister Philomena greatly enjoyed her work among the lepers and hopes someday to return to the colony. In the picture at the right is the "operating theater" used in the Mahaica Leprosy Institution in British Guiana. Built on stilts, because of the excessive heat and because the colony is below sea level, this theater is very much like the living quarters of the colonists. When the rains come, which is often, the water pours into the dwellings. It is very welcome, however, since it is their only source of drinking water.

any arm was almost gone before they would come to the doctor. In most cases, however, they were very appreciative of what was done for them.

Work for Weeks
Sometimes the nurses would work for weeks on a patient and just when they thought he was improving he would appear with some kind of a weed tied to his afflicted spots. Someone had told him that it was just the thing to cure it in a short time.

Wet and Dry Seasons
"There was no change of season except the wet and dry seasons," she explained. "We had 12 hours of day and 12 hours of night the whole year round. The mattresses and pillows, which were filled with dry grass, had to be filled before the rainy season began."

High Temperature
Sister Philomena recalled that when she first arrived in the colony, she became very excited over such a temperature and notified the doctor but she finally came to realize that 106 degrees was not a high temperature in British Guiana.

Nursing Procedure
But what were the procedures used in nursing these unfortunates? Sister Philomena admits that their efforts proved futile in many instances. They assumed a professional attitude, gave prompt and efficient service and attempted to carry out scientific nursing procedure but were soon convinced that the only satisfactory way to nurse them was to give them what they wanted, as much as they wanted and when they wanted it.

Medicines were compounded by the gallon in the institution and one-half ounce was the dose of everything, be it "soda bic" as they called it, or strychnine compound. Most of the medicines, however, were taken only for their psychological effect.

below sea level, most of the 50 or 60 buildings within the leprosy enclosure were constructed on stilts. Nearly 100 inches of rain fell each year and the rain did not drip—it poured—in upon the beds, making it necessary to move frequently "as if you were playing a game of Chinese checkers," as Sister Philomena so aptly put it.

Forgotten Men
One of the saddest things about the colony, according to Sister Philomena, was that relatives and friends forgot those who have contracted the disease. Due to this negligence, the lepers are very kind and helpful to one another. Many times not one "outsider" would write to a leper throughout his illness which may be from one to 50 years and no one, except possibly a few fellow lepers, would attend his funeral.

The greatest punishment which could be inflicted upon a leper was to deprive him of the privilege of visiting his lady friend, she said. The men and women were separated by means of a high wall and allowed to be together only during certain recreation periods.

Because of the excessive heat and because the institution was

The first treatment when a patient was delirious or very ill was to put him on the floor so that he could not injure himself. It was not uncommon, according to Sister Philomena, to see three or four on the floor when she came to work in the morning. Among them might be one who was dead, as the undertakers did not work after 8 o'clock in the evening.

"The treatment of the very ill, the dying and the method of burial were the most pitiful things that we had to witness in British Guiana," said Sister Philomena. "No effort was made to keep one alive, in fact, we had nothing to do it with."

Five Million Afflicted
A big step has been made in research work on leprosy and the day may come when something can be done for these five million afflicted people in the world, one thousand of whom are in the United States. The first step in

Peace was the ruling thought of the institution and there was no use of quarreling with the patients, she continued. Many times they would care for the ulcers themselves until a leg or

John D. Morrison of St. Louis was chosen president of the new St. Louis Iowa Alumni club organized last Sunday, Feb. 25, at the University of Iowa dinner and reunion in the New Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis.

The event was planned in conjunction with the annual national meeting of the American Association of School Administrators of the National Education association which was convening in St. Louis at the same time.

The Iowa dinner was attended by over 200 persons including men from the University of Iowa, school men from all over the United States who graduated from the university and St. Louis alumni.

Other officers of the new alumni organization are Dr. William A. Griffith of East St. Louis, Ill., vice-president, and Agnes Englert of St. Louis, secretary-treasurer. President Morrison was a student at the university during the 1920-21 school year. Dr. Griffith received his B. S. degree here in 1922 and Miss Englert, a former Iowa City resident, received a B. S. C. in 1932.

Both President Eugene A. Gilmore of the University of Iowa and President-Emeritus Walter A. Jessup were present at the meeting and the Iowa dinner.

Ensign Presides

Prof. Forest C. Ensign of the university college of education presided over the after-dinner program of which the showing of the colored moving pictures, "Highlights of Iowa" and the Iowa-Notre Dame football game, were highlights.

Special guests at the reunion dinner, in addition to President Gilmore and President-Emeritus Jessup, included A. E. Harrison of Storm Lake, president of the Iowa State Teacher's association and county superintendent of schools in Buena Vista county, and Mrs. Harrison; Jessie M. Parker of Des Moines, superintendent of public instruction for Iowa; Agnes Samuelson of Des Moines, secretary of the Iowa State Teacher's association.

S. D. Shankland

S. D. Shankland of Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the American Association of School Administrators; Gladys Harlow of Washington, D. C., chief clerk of the American Association of School Administrators, and Mrs. J. K. Pettigill of Detroit, Mich., president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Several other school administrators from all over the United States were invited to see the two visual instruction department's colored motion pictures. The St. Louis showing was the first public showing of the new "Highlights of Iowa" movie.

Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the university extension division, reported that the film was very well-liked among the school men who saw it and among the Iowa alumni present.

After the showing, he received requests from officials of Purdue university, Penn State university, the University of Kansas and the University of California to borrow the film for showing on their campuses.

Low Wing Monoplanes Used At Randolph Field as Trainers

Low wing monoplanes, known as BT-9's, are used at Randolph field, Texas, for the secondary phase of training of future pilots for the United States army air corps.

The flying cadets, reporting to the "West Point of the Air" after completing their first three months of flight training at one of the nine civilian flying schools throughout the country, are assigned to these counterparts of modern day combat planes.

Powered with a 400 horsepower engine, the BT-9's are capable of speeds up to 170 miles per hour. In addition, these planes are equipped with a complete radio transmitter and receiver, landing flaps and tow position adjustable propeller in order to obtain maximum speeds.

During the flying cadet's primary phase of training at the various civilian schools, experienced army officers are in constant attendance to supervise his work on the BT's, the air corps designation for primary training planes.

He is taught the fundamentals of military flying in about 65 hours of flying time, more than half of which is solo. The transition from the comparatively simple primary plane to the complicated basic trainer is a gradual one, several hours of dual instruction being given before solo in this type plane.

However, the flying cadet, having been well-grounded in the fundamentals, readily acquires the necessary technique in about four or five hours, and from then on his training is partly dual and partly solo.

Night flying, during which radio is used to instruct the student pilot on landings, is one of the important specialized forms of aerial training. Finally, the secondary phase of training is completed and the class of cadets is again advanced to the final stage of the nine month course at Kelly field.

Three months more are spent there and then he is graduated, a full-fledged military pilot, and commissioned a second lieutenant in the air corps reserve.

Pharmacy College Laboratory Makes Progress in Ointments

Important progress in the preparation of ointment bases has been made during recent months in the University of Iowa's pharmacy college laboratories, Dean R. A. Kuever reported yesterday.

He said that bases have been developed which will take 600 per cent, or six times their own weight, of aqueous media and yet make relatively stable ointments.

"This is indeed revolutionary, since ointments with a high water content readily may be prepared. Physicians now have an opportunity to prescribe ointments with greater antiseptic potencies, since they have larger aqueous phases," Dean Kuever said.

According to the dean, the base includes 97 per cent of white petrolatum, to which small but varying quantities of such substances as white bees wax and olive oil may be added for specific purposes.

The illusion of an airplane crash can be effectively created for the radio by crushing a matchbox and rustling brown paper close to the microphone.

Iowa Film Shows Typical Scenes

(Editor's Note—This is the first in a series of four articles which will follow through and describe the new "Highlights of Iowa" motion picture which will have its first campus showing Thursday evening. With each story there will appear a "still" shot taken from the film.)

By D. MAC SHOWERS
Daily Iowan Campus Editor

Introduced with a tribute to an impressive view of Old Capitol, the new "Highlights of Iowa" colored motion picture of university campus life first shows a general view of the entire campus from the air.

The premiere campus showing of the visual instruction department's latest movie will be in Macbride auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Thursday sponsored by The Daily Iowan and the extension division.

Typical of the opening of a school year each fall is the arrival of students in Iowa City as portrayed by scenes at the local airport, the bus depot and fraternity members arriving by auto.

Featured in the arrival by plane is Margaret "Peg" Leeper, A4 of Waterloo, arriving in Iowa City from Hollywood where she reigned for a week as "Queen of Iowa's Redheads" following her selection as such at the 1939 Iowa State fair.

Full registration is shown next in the picture with students lined up to receive materials and scenes in Iowa Union lounge during freshman registration and then the annual qualifying examinations in the fieldhouse.

Induction ceremonies on the opening day of school are shown followed by scenes of sorority rushing during rush week on the campus.

The first college to be represented in the new film is the college of liberal arts. Through the entire picture, all colleges and schools are shown with representative scenes from each as well as other parts of university life including housing, social life and recreation.

From an impressive outdoor shot of Schaeffer hall with the elm tree leaves falling on the campus, the liberal arts pictures go into Dean George F. Kay's office to show the dean chatting with Harry G. Barnes, university examiner and registrar, are shown talking in Dean Kay's office in Schaeffer hall, a scene taken from the new campus life colored moving picture, "Highlights of Iowa."

WSUI Plans Discussion Of Recent Books

The programs for March in the WSUI series "Two Books a Month in Review" by Prof. Joseph E. Baker of the English department will be devoted to recent books on the type of American life seen at its best in Iowa.

The first of these, at 11 o'clock this morning, will be a review of the social ideals set forth in recent books by Herbert Agar, who is to deliver a university lecture here on March 28.

For a concrete example of these theories, Professor Baker will review, on March 16, Paul Carey's "Three Miles Square," a novel that portrays Iowa farm life with a new gusto and delight.

Professor Baker has published in the "Saturday Review of Literature" "American Review" and "English Journal" a series of articles which seek to advance the conception of "regional culture in the middlewest."

In books such as those he is reviewing on his March program Professor Baker sees the hope of a new movement in American literature in which Iowa might hold the position that Massachusetts held a hundred years ago.

Expect Throng For R. Crooks Concert Here

Enforced cancellation of the concert at the University of Iowa March 6 by Erem Zimbalist has centered attention upon the appearance of Richard Crooks, Metropolitan Opera company tenor, here May 2.

The singer will appear during the university's first annual high school music festival when selected groups and individuals will perform in a program of 34 events.

Undersecretary of State in Germany—

Welles' Arrival Seen as Pushing War Developments Into Background

Mission Not An Uncle Sam Peace Crusade

—INTERPRETATIVE—
BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer
Arrival in Germany of Undersecretary Welles, American undersecretary of state and President Roosevelt's fact-finding ambassador-at-large to the warring nations of Europe, overshadows in importance the developments in the war itself.

Intentionally or not, Welles is the man-of-the-moment around whom center the peace hopes of the peoples of the embattled powers, and of Europe's little neutrals who are fearful of being dragged into the conflict. Every precaution was taken by Washington to strip Welles' mission of that peace crusade significance. From all belligerent capitals, Berlin, Paris, London, have come advance intimations of a strong official feeling that American peace intervention now might do more harm than good; and would be welcomed by none of the belligerent governments. Yet there are circumstances about the decision of President Roosevelt to dispatch his personal emissary which surround Welles' trip with incalculable possibilities. Only time and the course of events can determine the real significance of the American move, or the hopes or information which led the president to make it. It is no secret that over a period of months highly conflicting reports have reached Washington as to the actual war aims of the major belligerents, Germany, France and England, and as to the terms on which they would consider peace suggestions of any sort from any source. The whole energy of all three countries has gone into six months of economic and psychological preparation for war to the death. It is obvious that peace initiative by either side would only be construed as a sign of weakness. Whether Welles can penetrate the fog of belligerent propaganda and inveigle to find a foundation for a Washington-sponsored peace effort, now or in the future, is a matter of conjecture. Whatever his observations or conclusions, they are only for the president's information. Yet in addition to his own training and native abilities as a diplomat observer and reporter, Welles begins his mission in Berlin with one distinct advantage. There must be among Nazi officials as much speculation as to just why President Roosevelt sent Welles to Europe as there is in this country, or in England or France. There must be also extreme uneasiness in Nazidom as to what role the most powerful neutral of the world may play ultimately in this war, if it drags on indecisively for years. There can be little doubt in Germany or in London and Paris that President Roosevelt has aimed all along at making American influence an effective force in rallying world public opinion for a cessation of hostilities whenever a real opportunity for that comes. And the possible impact of that on public opinion in any of the warring countries is a matter no government leader could ignore. Welles, and behind him President Roosevelt, are men of mystery at this stage to the statesmen of warring Europe, no less than to the press on both sides of the Atlantic. It is a reasonable guess, therefore, that whatever may be said to the president's personal fact-finding representative by top-ranking spokesmen for any of the three powers will be carefully worded. It will be so phrased, unquestionably, as to avert any possibility that it could be used from Washington later to pillory the speaker as reckless of the bloodshed and suffering the war is causing and must cause on so vastly increased a scale if it becomes "complete war" this spring. If the Welles mission has no other immediate effect, it possibly has served to defer the hour for ruthless air attack by either side until the American mystery man shall have come-and-gone.

'Winterset' To Use One of Largest Sets University Theater To Begin Run of Six Performances Monday Night

When Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset" opens at University theater Monday night for a run of six performances, the curtain will rise on one of the largest sets ever used in a university production. Extending beyond the proscenium opening the set at its widest point is 44 feet, has a depth of 36 feet and its tallest unit is 32 feet high. The ordinary interior set is 14 feet high. The scene is the bank of a river under a bridgehead. On the right side of the stage is the pillar of a bridge with a gigantic span extending into the distance. The wall of an apartment house is at the left of the stage. Beyond the river at the rear, the lights of apartment houses glow in the distance. The set was created by Prof. Arnold S. Gillette of the dramatic arts department.

In comparison with the large set the cellar scene seems small, but is 22 feet wide and 10 feet high. The university theater has used much smaller sets than this.

Professor Gillette said. The unusual thing about the cellar set is the fact that the whole thing is "floored." That is, it is suspended above the stage. "Flying" the walls or ceiling is a common theater practice, but this set which weighs about half a ton is easily raised and lowered. Three stage hands are capable of handling it. "Winterset" was first produced in 1935 by Guthrie McClintic, husband of Katharine Cornell, starring Richard Bennett as Judge Gaunt and featuring Burgess Meredith as Mio and Margo as Miramne. Edward Cianelli played Trock.

In the university production, Henderson Forsythe, G of Monroe City, Mo., plays Mio; Harold Hansen, G of Logan, Utah, is cast as the judge, Sidney Sandnes, A2 of Brooklyn, N. Y., has the role of Trock. Double-cast as Miramne are Lois Tallman, A1 of Iowa City, and Mary Kay Waldron, A4 of Milwaukee, Ore. In this drama Anderson has turned his poetic gifts on a modern subject and has told the story of Mio Romagna, who believes his executed father innocent of the crime for which he was charged, and of Mio's attempt to find vindication. Following a clue of evidence which he believes may prove that his father was unjustly sentenced to the electric chair, Mio meets Miramne, who lives in the shadow of a towering East Side bridge. Haunted by the specter of his father, he cannot love her unless he learns that his belief in his right to decency, self-respect and the respect of others is confirmed.

In April, 1936, "Winterset" was awarded the New York Critics Circle plaque for the outstanding play of the season. It was the first to receive the prize, now awarded annually.

Iowa Gymnasts Face Minnesota

Seeking their first conference win in the last dual meet of the season, the Iowa gymnasts match their skills with the University of Minnesota gymnastic team in Minneapolis today.

Lack of experience has been the biggest opponent of the Hawks this year, with most of the performers making their first appearance in college athletics this season. Co-Capt. Roy Lipoti and Lyle Felderman are counted on heavily by Coach Albert Baumgartner, since they have netted the only firsts for the Hawks this year.

Army Engineer Not Worried With Lack of Appropriations

Gross Sees Little Effect On Local Dam

Conservation Group Will Act First On Original Objections

By ARTHUR BELLAIRE
Daily Iowan City Editor

Whether or not congress appropriates money for the $6,600,000 Coralville dam project this session would mean little to the progress of work on the new site, Lieut. Col. Charles P. Gross of Rock Island, army engineer in charge of plans, told The Daily Iowan last night.

After economy advocates in the national house of representatives Thursday refused to increase funds for flood control and turned thumbs down to a new set of Panama locks proposed by President Roosevelt, it was unofficially reported in Washington, D. C., yesterday that chances of the Coralville flood control project's receiving an appropriation from this session were remote.

Colonel Gross said the $320,000 he has remaining from a preliminary grant of $420,000 could be used slowly and stretched over a long period of time.

"Little Danger"

"Assuming the state conservation commission decides to withdraw its objection to the reservoir," Colonel Gross said, "the worst that could happen if congress actually did not grant funds this session would be a slightly slower construction."

He pointed out that the entire amount of more than six million dollars may be given to the chief engineer by congress in small portions to extend over several years.

Approximately $100,000 has already been used for surveying and exploring the dam's foundations, the colonel said, adding that the fate of the whole project lies with the conservation commission, scheduled to meet in Des Moines about March 12.

Fred J. Poynor of Cedar Rapids, a commissioner member, said the group will probably issue its final decision on the same day it convenes, the facts having already been made available for them by 500 persons who crowded the Johnson county courtroom here Feb. 14.

The state conservation commission had previously contended that such a reservoir would cause damage to both Lake Macbride and Lake Macbride state park.

Shortly after the objection was publicized, labor groups throughout the state spurred into action by the Iowa City Building Trades council, began fighting for the reservoir. The local group circulated petitions addressed to the governor in favor of the dam and later submitted them to the conservation commission.

Governor in Favor

The governor indicated he was in favor of the dam early last month after he and Colonel Gross had a short conference. The colonel said last night he expects to confer with Governor Wilson again shortly after the commission issues its opinion later this month.

The measure passed by the house on an unrecorded vote carried $70,000,000 for flood control in general, $30,000,000 for flood control on the lower Mississippi river, $66,721,510 for rivers and harbors improvements and $30,098,771 for the Panama canal.

Put on Permanent Basis; E. L. Bladow Chosen as Head

The organization of the new Iowa City community players was put on a permanent basis last night as a group of interested Iowa Citizens met last night in the Community building and elected a board of directors, appointed a play director and organized a production staff.

Elmer L. Bladow was appointed director for the group's dramatic productions and will automatically become a member of the board of directors, which will formulate plans and a program for the new organization. The six Iowa Citizens elected to one-year terms on the board include Roland Smith, Attorney Dan C. Dutcher, Harry Bremer, Mrs. A. D. Hensleigh, Charles A. Bowman and Ray Keys.

Speaking at the meeting, Bladow described the little theater movement in other parts of the country, and how the Iowa City community players could benefit from the experiences in other cities.

"To be effective," Bladow said, "this organization must be financially sound and professionally productive. It is only through the cooperation of the entire community - both university and town - that we will be able to accomplish this. We need not only actors but people who are interested enough to work on set-painting, ticket-selling, committee work and the numerous other tasks that go on behind the actual production."

The board of directors will meet soon to draw up a constitution and to suggest names for the organization which the group will vote on at an open meeting.

Johnson County Farmers Plan Farm Program Anniversary Banquet Friday in Iowa City

Johnson county farmers and their wives will observe the seventh anniversary of the national farm program at a dinner next Friday night, Ed Opfell, chairman of the anniversary farm dinner committee, announced yesterday.

Radio addresses by President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and Postmaster General James A. Farley will be heard after the dinner, Opfell added. The half-hour broadcast from Washington, D.C., will begin at 9 p.m.

"It was on March 8, 1933, that President Roosevelt authorized Wallace to call representative farmers to Washington to write a farm program, which became the forerunner of the present AAA," Opfell explained.

The committee expects more than 300 persons to attend the Iowa City dinner, which will be held at Youde's Inn. Iowa's observance of the anniversary will not be confined to Johnson county; however, Opfell disclosed, for virtually every county has arranged one or more dinners to observe what he described as "the independence day of American agriculture."

Most Johnson county farmers participate in the federal farm program, Opfell said.

Other members of the committee planning the local dinner are Joe G. Raim, Ray E. Smalley and Dale F. Anderson.

Plan Seal Sale As County Aid In State Drive

Prof. Clarence M. Updegraff of the college of law, last year chairman of the Easter seal sale committee for Johnson county, has again been named to that post, Charles Rhinehart, president of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children, announced yesterday. Mrs. Howard L. Beye will serve as secretary-treasurer on the committee.

Annually during Easter week a drive to raise funds to aid crippled children is carried on throughout the state by county units in cooperation with the society. Nearly all the states carry on similar campaigns.

Other members of the county committee include Robert P. Adams, Dr. A. W. Bennett, Mrs. Homer V. Cherrington, Emmett C. Gardner, Attorney William R. Hart, Elizabeth Hunter, Earl Kurtz, Mrs. Willis Mercer, Dr. Pauline V. Moore.

Helen Moylan, Leland Nagle, Mrs. F. B. Olson, Albert B. Sidwell, Myron J. Walker, Mrs. Frank B. Whinery and Mayor Henry F. Willenbrock.

This year the society's main purpose, officials said, will be in lending a "helping hand" to physically handicapped children. Services not otherwise possible in the home community will be made available to the crippled child by the money raised, it was pointed out.

Money raised by the sale of Easter seals will go into the local treasury, Rhinehart said.

Iowa City Community Players Appoint Directors, Producers

The organization of the new Iowa City community players was put on a permanent basis last night as a group of interested Iowa Citizens met last night in the Community building and elected a board of directors, appointed a play director and organized a production staff.

Elmer L. Bladow was appointed director for the group's dramatic productions and will automatically become a member of the board of directors, which will formulate plans and a program for the new organization. The six Iowa Citizens elected to one-year terms on the board include Roland Smith, Attorney Dan C. Dutcher, Harry Bremer, Mrs. A. D. Hensleigh, Charles A. Bowman and Ray Keys.

Bladow will also head the production board, while Winston La Porte will hold down the position of technical director. Other members of the production board are Ted Sealy, Elenore Lee White, Alyce - Lou Isenberger, Grace Martin, Jack Doyle, Marie E. Bladow and Leone Harris.

Speaking at the meeting, Bladow described the little theater movement in other parts of the country, and how the Iowa City community players could benefit from the experiences in other cities.

Local Temperature Hits High of 41

Iowa City's temperature climbed to a high of 41 degrees yesterday, only two degrees above average, but 15 more than was recorded a year ago yesterday.

Even the low of 28 degrees was nearly enough to encourage the melting of snow to contrast with the five-above-zero high a year ago.

To Hear Radio Talks By National Leaders Commemorating Event

Johnson county farmers and their wives will observe the seventh anniversary of the national farm program at a dinner next Friday night, Ed Opfell, chairman of the anniversary farm dinner committee, announced yesterday.

Radio addresses by President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and Postmaster General James A. Farley will be heard after the dinner, Opfell added. The half-hour broadcast from Washington, D.C., will begin at 9 p.m.

"It was on March 8, 1933, that President Roosevelt authorized Wallace to call representative farmers to Washington to write a farm program, which became the forerunner of the present AAA," Opfell explained.
