Russia Captures Viipuri Just Before Armistice

—FROM MOSCOW—
Soviet Jubilant; Declares Peace 'Blow to Allies'

Wins Strategic Gains On Military, Economic, Territorial Fronts

MOSCOW, March 14 (Thursday) (AP)—The Russian military command early today announced its troops, in a two-hour assault just before yesterday's armistice, had captured the city of Viipuri, which goes to Russia anyway by the peace treaty with Finland.

While the Soviet people and press hailed the peace treaty as a great triumph for Joseph Stalin's "policy of peace" and a shattering blow to British and French "imperialist" plans to spread the war over all of Europe, the Leningrad military command issued this communique:

"13th March: At 7 a.m., after two hours of storming, the Soviet troops occupied the town of Viipuri. On other sectors of the front there was nothing important up to 12 noon. At 12 noon Leningrad time hostilities ceased on all sectors of the front in conformity with the peace treaty.

The Russians laid siege to Viipuri immediately after the fall of the Koivisto forts on Feb. 24.

The Kremlin made no effort to conceal its satisfaction that the dictated peace with Finland was the greatest defeat of Great Britain in a century.

Not only did the Soviet gain greatly in territorial and military advantage by its treaty with Finland, but also secured economic gains of great significance.

Observers were impressed by the Soviet's gain of extensive transit rights through the Petsamo district to Norway, and the proposed joint Russian-Finnish construction of a railway directly linking the Russian Murmansk line with Sweden.

These communications, it was pointed out, may give Russia her most important economic corridor to Scandinavia and the Atlantic.

Other observers noted that copper mines near Ladoga fall to the Soviet union. While the nickel mines in the Petsamo area remain Finnish, the Soviet is expected to make a successful bid for part of the nickel exports.

Five Men on a Bed!

A Snack Before Bedtime

Mother is the one who can actually identify these two star basketball twins. Both six-footers, each able to shoot baskets with either hand, Ray and Roy Wehde are the famous Holstein combination which helped the Pikes attain an unbeaten record. They grabbed a bite in a local restaurant last night before curfew called them for a good night's sleep in preparation for

Would Protect Torn Borders Of Finland

Finnish Government Exhorts Nation To Rise From War's Mutilation

By LYNN HEINZERLING
HELSINKI, March 13 (AP)—Finland, mourning its peace with the grief of the vanquished, was given hope tonight of saving its independence and protecting its torn borders through the prospect of a defensive pact with Sweden and Norway and was exhorted by its government to rise from its "state of mutilation" through unity.

Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner, after a national broadcast to the people, told the foreign press that conversations looking to a defensive alliance with the two large Scandinavian states, already arranged but halted by the war, would be started soon. The initiative in this, he said, came from Finland.

"Too Small" Earlier, with their mourning etched black against a background of softly falling snow, the Finns had heard Tanner declare that Finland's defense against Russia had fundered on the "unwillingness or inability" of Sweden and Norway, (and behind them the western allies), to send troops or allow troops to cross their soil.

"All that can be said against us," he added, sadly, "is that as a nation we are too small."

The defensive alliance, if it is effected, would be intended to protect the independence and boundaries of Sweden, Norway and Finland from aggression—mainly, it is presumed, Russian or German.

Tanner, to the newspapermen, denied that the western powers had pressed Finland to continue the war; gave them thanks for "large quantities" of war material "although they had no obligation to Finland" and expressed grati-

F. D. R. Tells Reds To Leave Finns in Peace

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt served notice, in effect, today that Russia should let what remains of Finland live in peace and not try to swallow it up now that its defenses are weakened.

In a formal statement, the president said that the people of the Baltic republic "have won the moral right to live in everlasting peace and independence in the land they have so bravely defended."

"The president also said that the ending of this war does not yet clarify the inherent right of small nations to the maintenance of their integrity against attack by superior force."

Some observers believed the word "yet" in this sentence indicated a belief on the president's part that later developments in struggling Europe might clarify the right of which he spoke. Whether it was intended to signify that some day Finland's losses would probably be restored was not stated, however.

Hore-Belisha Hits 'Inaction'

LONDON, March 13 (AP)—Former War Secretary Hore-Belisha angrily challenged the allied "excuse for inaction" in the dispatch of large-scale aid to Finland during a stormy session today of the house of commons which showed the makings of a full-fledged parliamentary rebellion against Neville Chamberlain's government.

State Subjects Federal Dam To Martial Law

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 13 (AP)—Gov. LeCn C. Phillips today declared martial law at a section of the Giant Grand River dam and ordered national guardsmen to bring work to a halt on the $20,000,000 hydroelectric project.

The governor said 100 national guardsmen, mobilized earlier in the day and held in readiness at Wagoner, had been ordered to proceed to the damsite.

Finnish Relief Will Continue

NEW YORK, March 13 (AP)—Various organizations formed in the United States to extend relief to Finland planned today to carry on their activities despite the cessation of Russian-Finnish hostilities.

Former president Hoover cabled Finland's President Kyyosi Kallio assurance that the Finnish Relief Fund, Inc., would "continue to its utmost in service to the Finnish people."

Weeks Sees Literature in Light of World Events

By IRENE SUTTON
"Think carefully, read quietly, and be prepared!" Bringing this message to a responsive university audience, Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, criticized and recommended recent publications in last night's lecture at Macbride auditorium.

Cognizant of a troubled world today, Weeks stated that war has left its mark on current literature. With war invading most of our private thinking, we cannot apply a policy of isolation to literature any more than we can to the United States, according to Weeks.

Out of such a background of dilemma, Weeks named such books arising as "Voice of Destruction" by Herman Rousching and "Reaching for the Stars" by Nora Wain. The latter, dealing with the deplorable conditions in Germany, brings up the question of existing attitudes of German subjects toward their Fuehrer. To answer this query, Weeks recommended reading "Voice of Destruction," which is based on Rousching's intimate acquaintance with Hitler.

"The book is a testimony which cannot be overlooked," said Weeks, "but should be read critically, remembering that the author wrote it with a motive of revenge."

"Take Vincent Sheehan's 'Not Peace But a Sword' with a grain of salt," further recommended Weeks. The author biased by European-American ideas has written a book, reproaching both Britain and France for a series of fatal mis-steps which have jeopardized democratic peoples. Weeks advocated that Americans consider the book in the light of what it means to them if the British Empire is weakened, and that they be prepared to assume a strong position at the end of this war.

Speaking lightly of John Gunther's "Inside Europe," which has to be revised every six months, Weeks went on to describe Gunther's latest, "Inside Asia," which deals with the people, policies and motives coming into play in the East. Weeks defended the inaccuracy of facts of the publication, stating that this defect is offset by the presentation of the material in the right direction toward explaining what these policies mean to the United States.

From factual war publications, Weeks turned to the exciting war novels. In this category, he prescribed as one of the better thrillers, Ethel Vance's "Escape," interspersed with suspense and characterizations well done. Another war novel not to be overlooked, according to Weeks, is Geoffrey Household's "Rogue Male."

singular poverty of patriots and brains.

To say that is to be silly, because it is the same as saying that in a nation of 130,000,000 only one is capable of leadership. If that were true, ours would be a bankrupt democracy indeed.

Are Some Races Better Than Others?

"AMONG THE human races there are no qualitative differences in the sense that some race or races have mental capacities that others lack. The main mental characteristics of human beings appear to be alike in all races of men. No race seems to have any native trait or deficiency that would prevent a cultural advance comparable with that of any other."

Just imagine how quickly the sociology text book containing the above statements would be blacklisted if it appeared in Nazi Germany. Herr Hitler would certainly feel embarrassed if the majority of his Nazi followers read and believed such declarations. A part of the German people might then doubt the validity of Hitler's "Mein Kampf" in which he tells them that they are a superior race destined to dominate all other races.

Certainly these statements might make some of the Nazis wonder about Hitler's program of persecution against the Jews. Could it be possible that the semitic people are not a degenerate race? Was there any chance that the Jews were intellectually on the same plane as the glorified German race? An affirmative answer by the German public to such questions as these would cause the Fuehrer a few unhappy moments.

But the fact that a scientist reaches the conclusion that there are no appreciable differences in the mental capacities between the races will never influence the German people. Men of science are not concerned with building up one race's ego so that this race will come to believe itself superior to all others. The scientist merely presents the truth as he finds it. In Germany the truth is not presented unless Hitler finds it complementary to his political program.

We Need Some Super-Men!

LATELY WE have noticed in the comic sections—yes, we read them, too—of our daily and Sunday papers the inception of an extraordinary character—the superman. This fictional marvel is distinguished for his ability to cope with the direst situations. While operating against the enemies of society, he lifts automobiles with one hand, tears the doors off bank vaults with ease, and defies the law of gravity with mile-high leaps into the air. He has super-sensitive ears, and can swim or run so fast he becomes invisible. No doubt he is worshipped by every youthful heart who follows his many hairbreadth adventures.

We do not know for sure the source of the idealistic philosophy behind this superhuman character. Perhaps his name was pirated from that of Nietzsche's ideal man, subsequently being cloaked in a pseudo-scientific aura of respectability. But we do know that today we could use a few supermen, especially of the intellectual variety.

For instance, our political world sadly lacks figures of sufficient stature to cope with our growing national problems. Oh, for a super-economist to juggle our national debt into obscurity! And we need an invincible defender of a new educational system based on the latest psychological research. How about a super-statesman able to weld our Latin-American relations into something tangibly binding and not shoddily tied by mere promises? Or even further, how about a super-diplomat capable of convincing Europe that war is a brutal, unnecessary way of achieving economic ends?

Verily, verily, we are asking impossibilities. The human race, even as exemplified by American civilization, does not produce such supermen. We need them, yes, but only in dreams, stories or cartoon sections do they accomplish our cherished ends.

Meanwhile we must keep our nose conscientiously to the grindstone of progress, slow though it operates, so that the future may see a society of cultured, if not superhuman, JUST PLAIN MEN.

The Census: Is Gripping Legitimate?

THE SENATE commerce committee's approval of a resolution to prevent census-takers from asking citizens about their incomes is another attempt to inject petty politics into a vitally constructive project.

Senator Tobey of New Hampshire fears that census-takers might tattle to neighbors the income information they gathered and that this data also might be used for political purposes.

Senator Tobey forgets that such information has been gathered in the past without disastrous results. March 15, the day countless perspiring American citizens complete their struggle with income taxes and lay bare their every financial secret to the government, is upon us, yet there has been no storm of disapproval from an outraged John Q. Public. Such information becomes a routine and necessary, although distasteful, element of the annual tax-gathering procedure. A more universal survey occurring only once every ten years should not meet with any resentment.

More important than the mere accumulation of figures is the necessity for full data for use in a long-needed attack on the unemployment problem.

What About This Third Term Question?

UNTIL HE speaks out on the subject of a third term, the president of the United States will be lending strength to a suspicion many Americans now feel, and speculation will grow more and more disturbing the longer he maintains silence.

It may be argued with some cogency that practical politics and the foreign situation impel the president to keep his thoughts to himself. His apologists feel this is particularly true in respect to affairs abroad. If he declared against a third term at this point, they say, his removal from the political scene would lead foreigners to suspect that our international policy might soon be subject to revision, and that could mean that our gestures overseas would carry less weight in the crucial months ahead.

Be that as it may, however, the importance of the third term debate cannot be minimized. A point not to be overlooked is that the traditionalists are on solid ground when they keep peering away to spread the impression that the Jeffersonian precedent has not been overrated. The two-term presidential tradition did not grow out of one man's whimsy; it has taken root because it has served well as a safeguard against self-perpetuating power in our government.

Third terms may lead to fourth terms and fourth terms to fifth terms, and fifth terms to perpetuity. To say that the continued service of any one man can be more essential than the continued observance of the two-term tradition is to confess by implication that the United States suffers a

Going Home This Easter?

EASTER BRINGS another one of those holidays which fosters family reunions. Your parents will be expecting you home.

If you are thinking of going your own personal way this Easter vacation, rather than spending that time at home, perhaps you had better think again. Who is it that sent you to the university? Who is it that pays your bills? Who is it that is concerned about your every desire? Who is it that cares about your welfare, your present and your future? Who is it that is interested in everything you do? And who is it that would rather see you this vacation than anyone else on earth? It's your parents!

So plan to be at home for Easter! Who has ever begrudged, when years bring inevitable changes in the family circle, one moment spent in happy holiday meetings at home?

Stewart Comments on Presidential Aspirants Who Deny Making Plans for Entering Big Race

Some of the public men who announce that they're not presidential candidates are as interesting, in their way, as some of those who announce that they are, or at least keep quiet on the subject, to the general effect that they're receptive, if their respective parties insist on them.

The other day I had occasion to refer to Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York as having counted himself out of the race. Just which party he meant to say he didn't want to be nominated by wasn't very clear, but he made it clear that he didn't "choose to run," anyway. He didn't explain why not, but it was easy enough to read, between the lines, that he didn't care to be placed in the position of aspiring to a nomination he knew he couldn't get in any event.

Now Representative Hamilton Fish of New York has served notice that he isn't a candidate, either. If Congressman Fish were to be nominated at all it would be on the republican ticket. And he stated in plain terms why he wasn't in the running. He said he hasn't the financial resources to put up a campaign for the White House.

That may or may not have been his real reason. The general impression is that he has plenty of money. The best guess is that he doesn't "choose" to spend a lot of it hopelessly.

Well, it's his credit that he recognizes that he isn't presidential timber. He assesses himself correctly. Some presidential aspirants don't. For instance, Sen. Styles Bridges of and more liberal than a good many anti-new deal democrats.

His opinion already is on record to the effect that the G. O. P., in order to stand the ghost of a show in the autumn, must nominate a progressive.

The fact is that he's an enthusiastic democrat, minus the big "D" that would entitle him to the democratic label. His contention is that the new deal isn't democratic, either.

Communist? Murder!

"Ham" is violently anti-Nazi and anti-fascist.

As for communism, he chaired an anti-communistic congressional investigation several years before Representative Martin Dies' quiz ever had been thought of.

He evolved the theory that communists ought to be marooned on an island.

"Why an ISLAND?" I asked him.

"Oh," he replied, "I've no especial brief for an island, except that it's convenient. A destroyer could keep circling around it and they couldn't get off possibly. If we interned 'em on the mainland, they'd everlastingly be snooping out and infecting other susceptibles."

"But why not kill 'em?" I queried.

"Mercy!" exclaimed "Ham." "That would be inhuman. If you've got a smallpox patient, you've got to quarantine him. But you don't KILL him."

That's "Ham" Fish. His heart's right, but he's too moderate and kindly for the presidency in the present disturbed era.

New Hampshire doesn't. He operates an expensive organization and he stands no more chance than I do. He'll look rather ridiculous when he doesn't get a hatful of G. O. P. delegate votes. "Ham" Fish doesn't want ANY, knowing that he can't get a respectable modicum.

Quite an Influence

But Ham Fish is quite an influence in the house of representatives.

For one thing, he's from President Roosevelt's home congressional district. That is to say, President Roosevelt's district sends Ham Fish to the capital as its congressman. In other words, the neighbors prefer republican "Ham" to new deal "F. D."

But that isn't national.

The Twenty-sixth Congressional district of New York is a pretty tony locality — aristocratic. It's understandable that its voters aren't new dealishly sympathetic. On a country-wide ballot "Ham" certainly wouldn't score nearly as high a percentage as in his local bailiwick. I don't argue that a republican can't win next November, but there are other republicans who surely can run more formidably than "Ham" could. Anyway from his special neck of the woods and outside congress, he hasn't been sufficiently advertised. Evidently he's aware of his limitations.

Yet Congressman Fish is no reactionary, or even a conservative. He's much more than an averagely liberal republican —

Oysters For F. D. R.
White House Orders 2 Gallons of Oysters Weekly for 7 Years

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you hurry around to the oyster bar in Grand Central terminal you may be in time to see two one-gallon cans of Cape Cod oysters addressed to the White House in Washington, D. C. "It's a standing order," explains the man in charge. "We've been sending two gallons of oysters to the president every week for seven years."

Jack Burrows, the florist, tells of a broker who ordered orchids sent aboard a ship for a 32-day cruise, two for every day to be delivered at dinner. His sweetie pie was taking a little pleasure cruise and, by George, he wasn't going to have her want for orchids just because she was on the ocean. Burrows packed them on ice, using the ordinary variety, the Cateclayas, for the first two weeks. Then he switched to the sturdier varieties, which last longer, and also cost a little more. The bill was $240.

Marek Weber wanted to become a doctor, but he flunked his exams and became the Viennese Waltz King instead. He has been rewarded with medals by many crowned heads, but these trinkets on ribbons are not his most treasured souvenirs. The thing he likes to remember most is a certain night in a cafe in Berlin. Rain fell over the grey and gloomy city. Few patrons were astir. In fact, only one customer was in the cafe, a lonely sort of fellow who sat at his table four hours while Weber played him a ghostly concert. At length the man arose and walked out of the cafe. On the table he left his card, with a pencilled note expressing his appreciation. The name on the card was Fritz Kreisler!

Bob Considine is a sports writer and Eddie Dowling is a Broadway producer and actor of note. When Considine wrote a play about a screw-ball baseball player (Diz Dean in mind) Dowling wanted to play it. It's the Iliad of a slugger who lapses into strange slumps and carries the team up and down with him. The economic welfare of the wives of the ballplayers rise and fall with the slugger's success or failure.

But what I really wanted to get over is that Dawling will do two plays at the same time. One night he will impersonate the big league star, and the next he will play the Cannon in "Shadow and Substance," which has to do with the power of the Catholic church in Ireland. A versatile lad, Eddie, especially when you consider that he never has divorced himself from his political aspirations.

His friends gave George Riley a farewell dinner the night before he left N. Y. to become general manager of the Roosevelt in New Orleans. George is a sandy haired quick-witted Irishman, and he hopes the Deep South will judge him on his own merits and not by the fact that his grandpappy preceded him to New Orleans some 70 years ago in the company of a certain Yankee general named Butler. "I hope all those claims for lost spoons have been adjusted by the time I get there," says George, "but if they haven't, well, the Roosevelt has plenty, and I'm willing."

A housing expert calculates that if all the United States employables could find jobs, the lower income third of the people would no longer be ill-fed or ill-clothed, but would still be ill-housed. According to statistics, 80 per cent of farmhouses are sub-standard, and a third of city dwelling units are a hazard to health and decency.

The United States now is the world's greatest consumer of onions, statistics show. Perhaps that's the reason Uncle Sam is said to be so unpopular in Europe.

The Great Dean Accepts Cub Contract; Will Join Team Sunday

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT
DALLAS, Tex., March 13 (AP)—The great Diz Dean, strangely mellow after a wordy holdout, accepted Chicago Cub terms today and said he would join his mates Sunday in California.

Nervous as a rookie packing for his first training camp, Dean hurried in from his nearby farm and gleefully confirmed he had reached "a happy understanding" with the Cubs and was "darn glad about the whole thing."

"I wouldn't talk of such ugly matters as contracts or specific amounts, but the feeling was that he had finally descended to Owner Phil K. Wrigley's original offer of $10,000. The big right-hander had demanded $15,000—until last night."

Then, he admitted, he telephoned Clarence Rowland of the Cub staff at Avalon, Cal.

"Very fair," said Dean of Rowland. "I'm happy to sign. We both agreed on every point and I'll be with those Cubs Sunday. We agreed not to discuss the terms or anything else about our conversation."

"Just say I'm happy and feel like I'll have a good year."

So, on Friday the big fellow boards a train for a trip that

18 Men Will Make Journey

Vogelmen Begin 1,800-Mile Trip To Lafayette, La.

Iowa's 18-man baseball squad will open its schedule in the south without an outdoor workout at home. Yesterday Coach Otto Vogel held his last indoor workout devoting most of the practice period to offensive and defensive signals.

Because of the opening day of the state tournament the Hawk-eyes will devote this afternoon to a skull practice late in the afternoon.

The team will leave the Iowa fieldhouse at 9:30 tomorrow morning. Their first stop will be Cape Girardeau, Mo., Friday evening, Saturday night they will encamp at Vicksburg, Miss., and sometime Sunday they should reach their destination, Lafayette, La., which is 1,100 miles from Iowa City.

The men making the trip are Norman Hankins, William Welp, and John Brochner, catchers; Harold Haub, Fred Hohenhorst, Robert Stasny, Cecil Schomer, Ted Gordinier, and Richard Hein, pitchers; Rudolph Radice, 1st base; Erwin Prasse, 2nd base; Andy Kantor, shortstop; Frank Kocur, third base; Lloyd Warren Smith and Robert Cook, reserve infielders; and Keith Wymore, Jim George, and Clark Briscoe, outfielders.

We'll Topple the Champs

All set to tear into a steak are Centerville's cagers, above, who meet Creston today in the opening state basketball tournament game for both teams. Centerville, conqueror of the mighty defending champions during the regular season, feels that chances are good to put the Panthers out of the running. Arriving in Iowa City yesterday, the Centerville cagers went through a brief workout on the field house floor and then sat back to await the game with the Panthers. The game will be one of eight first round games to be played. The teams will play for a chance to enter the quarter finals, to be played tomorrow.

Relief Game To Be Played Despite Peace

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 13 (AP)—Com. K. M. Landis said today the all-star baseball game scheduled for Tampa Sunday for the Finnish relief fund will be played despite the truce between Russia and Finland.

"There must be some relief fund remaining from Herbert Hoover's efforts on behalf of the Finns and we'll let the proceeds of the game go to that fund," Landis said. "It was never for soldiers or arms, anyway, but for the relief of non-combatants and they are still in need."

"So we'll play the game as planned with the same stars, same managers and everything else the same."

Creston, Diagonal Might Nip Mohawks In Later Rounds

By OSCAR HARGRAVE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

"The favorites will have their hands full" was the general sentiment around Iowa City yesterday as the state's choicest quintets gathered for the high school basketball finals.

By "favorites" the experts mean, to the man, Mason City's Mohawks, the flashy outfit that has smashed all opposition this year. The Mohawks, coached by Judge Grimsley, are without doubt the team to watch, but a favorite hardly ever comes through.

Thus, Creston's seasoned defending champions and Pop Varner's hot-shot Diagonal team, number one and two teams of 1929, get their share of the backing. They have been tried and found "not wanting" in tournament competition.

Workouts at the fieldhouse yesterday found fans taking a look at all teams, from Waverly's fast-breaking Go-Hawks to little Keystone from the class B ranks. Keystone, incidentally, seems smoother on the floor than the Diagonal outfit, but doesn't pour through the shots quite so regularly.

Today, with the meet opening at 9:30, eight games are scheduled, with one taking the role as the day's feature performance. That game, between Creston's defending champs and Centerville's powerful crew, comes at 10:40 in the morning session and looks like a battle. The brilliant Panthers meet in Centerville one of the teams that has done them this year, that by a lopsided score. Yet, there doesn't seem much choice in that conflict.

Today's program opens at 9:30 with Ames in a tussle against Albert City's eighth district class A champions, continues in the morning past the Centerville-Creston tilt and starts up again in the afternoon with Diagonal's battle with little Hinton, class B powerhouse from northwestern Iowa.

Other games on the afternoon program are the Holstein-Humeston game and Keystone's meeting with Lynnville, while the evening session will feature Mason City-McGregor, Muscatine-Sergeant Bluff and Waverly-Whitten.

Holstein seems to have taken the sinister role of the "Dark Horse" contender. The boys from the state's far corner are big, rangy and potent. They overwhelmed Central of Sioux City in the district meet and can't be laughed off.

Player Sets Scoring Mark In Cage Meet

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 13 (AP)—A tournament record was established and two favored Texas teams eliminated in today's opening games of the second round in the third annual national intercollegiate basketball tournament.

Therman (Blackie) Blackledge, forward for Delta State college of Cleveland, Miss., popped in 32 points as he helped defeat Superior, Wis., Teachers 57 to 40. He cracked the mark of 28 set last year by Gordon Rhoades of Glenville, W. Va., State.

The Wisconsin five made a game of it until the half. Then Blackledge went to work and poured in 22 points in the last 20 minutes.

In the preceding game, Tommy Cooner, a stubby forward for Hamline university, potted 24 points against a rusty Kansas Wesleyan aggregation that bowed out of the meet, 61 to 50. Cooner's efforts surpassed the previous 1940 scoring mark of 23 hung up Monday by Robert Carpenter of East Texas State.

Rival Texas schools were eliminated in the day's first two games. West Texas State's "world's tallest team" was outlasted by Tarkio, Mo., college, 50 to 49. Despite their distinct height disadvantage, the Missourians controlled the rebounds more than 50 per cent of the time.

Carpenter was held to four points today by Larry Uhlenhop of Kansas State Teachers of Pittsburg and the Kansans won, 55 to 33. While Uhlenhop kept Carpenter tied up Jimmy Adams and Don Rutherford sneaked through for a combined total of 11 baskets.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

● Bucky Is Busy
● Good Defensively
● Dutch Leonard

ORLANDO, Fla., March 13 (AP)—Bucky Harris says he will have a right nice Washington baseball club in 1940 if he can get the pitching, a statement which has a strangely familiar ring. It seems that pitching is the one thing four out of five clubs don't have this year.

Bucky Is Busy
Bucky is busier than a snorting tubograt trying to keep track of two squads at once. In the morning the men on the regular roster work out.

Comes the noon whistle and Bucky takes down the "English spoken here" sign, unwraps his sandwiches and munches away thoughtfully while awaiting the arrival of the yipping and ki-yowling Cubans and the rest of the miscellaneous assortment of ball players that make up the afternoon shift.

Where they all come from only scout Joe Cambria knows. He turns over rocks and beats through the brush and comes up with them, leaving them on Bucky's doorstep at dawn each day like milk bottles. Bucky shoes them down to a boarding house. Some are gone by nightfall. Occasionally one is promoted to the regular roster and moves to the hotel.

Bucky dismisses the afternoon class with a shrug. It's his morning squad he's counting on, and summing up his opinion of it he says:

"The Nats will balance up better defensively, he says, although he admits he's counting heavily on a new triple-threat man at shortstop. He is Jimmy Pofahl, the $35,000 prize from Minneapolis, and he threatens to gum up three positions unless he makes good, which Bucky insists he will.

"He's a cat," Bucky explains, which is his highest tribute. It means he pounces on the ball anywhere, his speed making up for a rather feeble arm. If he makes the grade, Cecil Travis can be moved to third and Buddy Lewis from third to the outfield. If he doesn't all is confusion.

With Jim Wasdell on first and Jim Bloodworth on second to fill out the infield, and George Washington Case and Gerald Walker, acquired from the White Sox, to take care of the other outfield positions, Harris believes the Senators will do better than the ancient mariner, who stopped only one of three.

"Last year we booted the games away," he says. "We had more chances. It was just like a new flock of ducks coming in all the time."

Coach Ousts Own Team

Dave Armbruster Gets Himself in Spot; Disqualifies Iowans

Dave Armbruster, Hawkeye swimming coach, had probably one of the toughest jobs ever dished out to a coach when he had to disqualify his own sprint relay team at the Big Ten swimming meet last week. The explanation for this Spartan sacrifice is that Dave was referee at the meet.

It seems that good swimming officials are rather scarce in the middle west, so in order to guarantee satisfactory officiating, Western Conference swimming coaches decided a few years ago that they would choose their championship officials from their own ranks. This year the Iowa mentor was appointed as referee.

The sprint relay team has been one of the strong departments of the Hawkeye squad this season and was expected to make a good showing at Columbus. They came up to expectations by turning in the third fastest time in the preliminaries, one second behind Northwestern. The heart-break came, however, when one of the officials ruled that Al Armbruster dove into the water to start his lap before his team mate had touched the side of the pool. Other spectators backed up this contention and Dave, as referee, had to rule out his own team. If the Hawks would have placed third in the finals, as they were almost certain to do, they would have garnered six points, enough to nose out Northwestern for third place.

Other members of the Iowa team were just squeezed out in the preliminaries. Co-Capt. Tony Bremmer had a close race in the back stroke, Russ Dotson just lost out in the 440, and both divers, Vic Vargon and Leo Biedrzycki, barely missed qualifying.

Since most of these men were sophomores tasting their first championship competition, their showings can probably be blamed on the jitters.

are all knuckles when he throws, tops the pitching staff, which includes Kendall Chase, Joe Krauskas, Joe Haynes and Alejandro Carrasquel as other hold-overs. The boy Bucky is watching, however, is a long, lean right-hander named Sidney Hudson.

Hudson had a remarkable record with Sanford in the Florida State league last year, and when Clark Griffith puts out $12,000 for a class D player the lad must have what it takes. Hudson finished 27 of 28 games he started, won 24 of them, and was beaten twice, 1-0.

He's a little nervous yet, but Harris says he is going to pitch him as much as he can in exhibitions, and is sure he'll be a valuable asset.

Hawkeye Highlights

The American record for the 220-yard low hurdles around a curve, :23.8 made in 1924 by Charles Brookings of the University of Iowa, now is the second-oldest on the books. . . . excluding marks made at odd distances not standard in meets. . . . It's mighty unusual in these swift times for a track mark to stand for 16 years.

Iowa's 18-man baseball squad will open its schedule in the south without an outdoor workout at home. . . . in most years some sort of drills before the first game have been possible on the asphalt tennis courts.

Iowa was one of five Big Ten teams which scored 60 points or more in some basketball game last season. . . . but the Hawk-eyes set the season's high mark for a conference game, 62. . . . Purdue and Indiana, champion and No. 2 teams, had high marks of 52 and 57.

A dozen ticket windows are open at the entrances to the Iowa field house to accommodate state prep tournament fans. . . . and the crowds swarm in through fourteen entrance lanes.

Hawkeye swimmers are setting themselves for the Northwestern dual meet here next Monday evening. . . . the reason: The Wildcats finished a surprise third in the conference championship meet, edging the Hawks out by the position by four points. . . . Iowa has already beaten Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Chicago in dual meets, losing only to Michigan.

And there is one more meet for the track team. . . . Iowans go to Madison to take on Wisconsin next Wednesday, the first day of Easter recess.

Feller Loses First Game

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 13 (AP)—Bob Feller was charged with a 2 to 0 defeat today in the young speedball pitcher's first mound appearance of the training season. He worked three frames of a 7-inning intra-squad game.

After blanking the rookies without a hit for two innings, Feller was touched for two runs in the third on two singles, a walk, and an infield out.

The Indian regulars were unable to bunch hits off pitchers Johnny Broaca and Cal Dorsett.

Cubs Leave Training Camp

AVALON, Cal., March 13 (AP)—Chicago's Cubs broke camp today and headed for Los Angeles and their opening exhibition game with their city rival White Sox tomorrow.

Reds Down Cards
TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Rookie Mike McCormick, with two triples and a double, led Cincinnati to a 7 to 1 triumph over St. Louis yesterday, the Reds' second straight win from the Cardinals. It was McCormick's day. He scored two runs and drove in one in five times at bat.

Tigers Whip Boston Bees By 6-4 Score

BRADENTON, Fla., March 13 (AP)—The Boston Bees slugged as well as the Detroit Tigers today, but it was the visiting team which won the 6-4 victory through the medium of four unearned runs off rookie Al Javery in the second inning.

Javery pitched impressively and a momentary letdown in his support was enough to give Detroit the edge and hand Freddie Hutchinson the credit for the victory.

Les Scarsella led the Bee attack with two doubles, while Hank Greenberg's triple was the best of Detroit's hits. Hank did not look impressive in the outfield, dropping an easy fly to give the Bees their only unearned run.

Cardinals Warn Ducky Medwick Of Ineligibility

ST. LOUIS, March 13 (AP)—Joe Medwick, baseball's No. 1 holdout, said he received a letter today from Vice-President Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals, warning him of possible ineligibility if he failed to sign his contract.

"Nothing was mentioned in the letter about salary or a salary conference," Medwick asserted.

The slugging outfielder and former National league batting champion, who quit the Cardinal camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., a week ago, wants a $2,000 salary cut he took last year restored to the $20,000 he received in 1928.

Medwick said his reply to Rickey would put them no nearer a settlement in the controversy.

Rickey apparently was referring to the rule which says any player who fails to report to his club within 10 days after the opening of its championship season shall not be eligible to play in any league games until authorized by the league president or baseball commissioner.

Phillies Win Opener

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Philadelphia Nationals opened their exhibition baseball season yesterday with a 5 to 3 decision over the Syracuse Chiefs. Five Syracuse errors contributed to the victory.

The Canary Islands are said to derive their name from the Latin word for dog, canis. When the Spanish first landed there the islands were so infested with large dogs that they named them "The Islands of the Dogs," or Canary Islands.

Season Ducats Go Fast, But 400 Still Left

Nearly 400 of the reserved season tickets for the state high school basketball tourney, beginning here today, are still available, according to Charles Galtner, in charge of sales. Originally, there were 2,800 of the season ducats placed on sale.

He also added that, while single session tickets were going fast, plenty would be available throughout the meet for late comers. The Iowa fieldhouse accommodates 13,200, counting the new bleachers that have been erected.

Frat - Dorm Wrestlers Win

Wrestlers in the fraternity and men's dormitory leagues in the intramural all-university tourney reached the semi-final and final rounds yesterday afternoon.

Kirby of Kellogg annexed the championship of the co-operative league, gaining a decision over Baughton of Gables in a close match.

Hannon of Beta Theta Pi threw Mueller of Sigma Chi in two minutes and forty-five seconds in the 145 pound class of the fraternity league.

In the same class, Bauman of Beta Theta Pi reached the semi-final round by throwing Fender of Delta Upsilon in one minute and ten seconds.

Mahoney of Delta Upsilon threw Boatman of Sigma Phi Epsilon in five minutes and twenty seconds in the 165 pound class.

In the Quadrangle league, Bill Pinkston won a decision over Thomas in the 175 pound class.

Johnson of Gables won the final round in the 175 pound class over Norman Kladstrup of Mansie by a decision.

Former Ump Dies

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Ira Flagstead, 46, former major league baseball player, died at his home yesterday. He had been ill since August. Flagstead played with Detroit from 1919 to 1923 and with the Boston Red Sox from 1923 to 1928. In 1925 he was a contender for the American league's most valuable player award. He was named Boston's outstanding player in that year.

Beta's Take Interfraternity Swimming Meet

Beta Theta Pi won the interfraternity swimming title for the third consecutive time at the field house pool last night in what Dr. Fred Beebe, intramural director, termed the largest and most successful meet ever held at Iowa.

The Betas scored 43 points, while Delta Tau Delta counted 24, Sigma Nu 23, Sigma Chi 21, Phi Delta Theta 14, Delta Upsilon and Phi Kappa Psi 7 each, Sigma Alpha Epsilon 1, and Phi Gamma Delta nothing.

New intramural records were set by Jim Ramsey, Beta, in the 60-yard breast stroke; Keith Carstens, Phi Delta, in the 60-yard back stroke, and the Beta relay team of Clark, Sprout and O'Connor.

Boxing Wallop Giants, 7 to 3

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 13 (AP)—Manny Salvo, the New York Giants' big righthander who was walloped all-too frequently in the National league last season, got a going over by experts today as the Boston Red Sox captured their exhibition tussle 7 to 3.

Salvo was battered for seven hits, including a home run by Jimmie Fox, in the first three innings and even though the Sox subsequently were tamed down, the Giants never could catch up and were shut out until the last inning.

Accident

Mason City Coach In Mishap
Coach J. A. "Judge" Grimsley of Mason City had a minor automobile mishap while coming into Iowa City yesterday. In an accident near Oelwein the front end of his car was damaged, but Grimsley was able to continue into Iowa City with the machine.

The Mason City mentor's Mohawks are one of the favorites in the tournament, boasting an undefeated record during the past season.

AROUND THE BIG TEN

WISCONSIN'S boxing team, halted last week by Louisiana State after an impressive record of 18 consecutive victories, meets another formidable opponent this week when Penn State's eastern intercollegiate champions invade the Badger stronghold. . . . State finished in every bout except the 120 pound class (they got second in that) at the eastern meet last week. . . . Hawk swimmers are out to get revenge over Northwestern when the latter comes to town Monday night for the final home meet of the season. . . . The Wildcats nosed out the Hawk-eyes for four points for third place in the conference meet last week at Columbus, Ohio.

BRANCH McCracken, Indiana's popular cage coach, has had to cancel approximately 15 speaking engagements since the Hoosiers accepted a bid to participate in the national collegiate AAU meet which takes place in Butler Fieldhouse, Indianapolis, March 22-23. . . . Iowa's track team goes to Madison the first day of Easter vacation. . . .

THIS LAST season saw intercollegiate hockey reach something of an all time high in popularity and participation—especially in the Big Ten. . . . Too bad Iowa hasn't adopted the sport which is rapidly coming into the limelight as one of the foremost winter athletic contests in the conference. . . . Charles Brookings of the University of Iowa hung up a new American record for the 220-yard low hurdles around a curve, in :23.8. . . . that was back in 1924 and the record still stands. . . . 16 years for a track mark to hold up seems to be something of a record itself.

Thinking About Spring?

A thoughtful girl chases her new spring costume with care, and if she's careful she'll take this jacket frock with a two occasion purpose. The dress is an aqua and black print silk with a draped bodice, short squared sleeves, entirely suitable to wear by itself any afternoon. But when the jacket is worn the frock is a street dress in no time. Soft aqua blue wool is used for the jacket, which boasts patch pockets and a thin leather belt. No university woman could need or ask for a more versatile dress. The sketch was made in a local shop.

Get Ready to Swing Into SPRING

And spring stands for fun . . . new fads . . . new loves . . . and NEW CLOTHES!

Spring means Easter . . . and both mean fun! There is a new spirit of fun and happiness in the most prosaic business. People sense it as they walk about in your stores . . . as they see your brand new merchandise and they feel more like shopping. Why? Because it's fun!

Students are anxious to cast off their dull winter clothes. Men are eager to sport the new checks, chevrons, tweeds, and twists . . . the light sweaters in spring shades . . . and the new pleated slacks. Women are marking time before they slip into pastel skirts and sweaters . . . wash dresses and spectator pumps. They're watching the advertisements . . . they're eager to buy. Cole's Book 'Iowa Through the Years' First To Be Published in Iowa Centennial History

"Iowa Through the Years" is the title of the first volume to be published in the Iowa Centennial History in co-operation with the State Historical Society of Iowa, under the direction of Prof. Benjamin F. Shambaugh.

The book, written by Cyrenus Cole, was sent yesterday to 1,800 members of the society and to public and college libraries. This edition begins the volumes which will be published by the society to celebrate the admission of Iowa as a state in 1846.

The book is a comprehensive survey of the history of the state and it is stated that no other one volume which has been published to date is as complete. The cover design was by Mrs. Benj. Shambaugh and the title and preface were written by Professor Shambaugh.

The author, Cyrenus Cole, passed away last November in Washington, D. C., where he had

Harry Freeman Experiments With Clay in Clarifying Water

By JEAN M. DAVIS

Constructed last spring, the "pilot plant," is a small experimental set-up, duplicating the actual university water plant. The model is designed to treat one gallon of water per minute with a calculated detention period of six hours which is equivalent to the detention time employed by the university's water plant.

Freeman received his Ph. D. degree from the university in January for his work on water purification. He was awarded his B. S. and M. S. degrees from Kansas State college in 1937.

Bentonite, mined in western South Dakota and eastern Wyoming, has been used for a great many years in the soap making industry as a detergent and polish, as well as in the rubber, petroleum, steel and pharmaceutical industries. It is in demand throughout the wine producing areas of the world for the clarification of wines.

"Bentonite does not change the original composition of the water in the purification process, but removes only the non-chemical substances; whereas chemicals, such as alum and lime, when added in the process, make for hardness in the purified water," Freeman said.

The bentonite clay provides a more economical water, since it can be purchased for $17 a ton. Present expenditure for alum is $16 and for lime is $11 per ton, Freeman explained, in discussing the money now spent by the university in clarification of the Iowa river water.

But the new process of using bentonite for clarification in water plants is still in the experimental stage," Freeman said, "since the clay has not been proven satisfactory for all types of water."

But the chemical engineer's study with his "pilot plant" shows a marked degree of clarification, through the use of bentonite on the turbid water of the Iowa river.

Vitality effecting everyone connected with the university is the water used and consumed each day. And for six months, Harry F. Freeman, graduate student in chemical engineering here, has been working on the problem of clarification of the water taken from the turbid Iowa river. Freeman has constructed an experimental "pilot plant" at the university's water works and is shown above working with his model. A duplicate of the regular plant, the "pilot plant" has continual flow of water with settling basins, filter basins and stilling tanks.

Engineers To Dine Tonight At Annual Banquet in Union; Many Alumni Asked To Come

Professors To Give Skit; Two Awards Will Be Presented

The 38th annual banquet for faculty, students and alumni of the college of engineering will start at 6:30 tonight in the river room of Iowa Union. Invitations to the dinner have been issued to all alumni within a radius of 200 miles.

Skits written and performed by faculty members and students are a traditional highlight of the banquet program. "Faculty Meeting," to be presented first by the professors, is expected to be in the nature of a "take-off on the student body." The engineers will then retaliate with their skit, "Guilty as Charged" or "Exposed at Last."

A band, composed of both students and faculty, will play during the banquet. Prof. C. J. Posey will lead the group in the singing of engineering songs.

The winner of the freshman scholastic award will be announced at the banquet, along with the names of the 1941 staff members for the Iowa Transit, monthly publication of the college of engineering. The latest issue of the magazine will be distributed among the engineers at the dinner.

One faculty member, selected by a special committee, will be presented an award at the dinner. Prof. F. G. Higbee, head of the engineering drawing department, A. F. Fischer, a graduate of the college in 1911 who is now president of the Iowa Culvert and Pipe company in Des Moines, and Dean F. M. Dawson will all address the group.

P. E. Coonly, E2 of Buffalo, N. Y., is chairman of the banquet. Others in charge are Eugene Knott, E3 of Avoca; C. G. Colony, E4 of Iowa City; Maynard Stalter, E1 of Wappenger Falls, N. Y.; G. E. Brownell, E2 of Fayette, and E. B. Meier, E1 of Kansas City, Mo.

Dental Health Education

Dr. John C. Brauer Answers Pertinent Questions in Article

"Dentistry is today concerned with the attitudes of the public, and the future of the profession lies within the realm and understanding of our lay brethren," Dr. John C. Brauer, professor and head of preventive dentistry and pedodontia in the college of dentistry, has written in an article printed in the current issue of the Iowa Dental Bulletin.

Entitled "Why Dental Health Education?", the article answers for dentists the questions of how helpful dental health can be to the dental profession.

"School dental examinations, for the most part, have been of no educational value, and the end result in such examinations has been wasted time for teachers, dentists and pupils," Dr. Brauer has written in the explanation.

"Significant results have been demonstrated over a period of years in the classroom in which the teacher has taught the fundamentals of general and dental health," he explains, and continues with the statement that "The attitudes attained within the classroom become those accepted as standards throughout the life of the individual."

"Such a child is cognizant of the value of prevention . . . and is a far more acceptable patient than the one who has not received such instruction," he continues.

"Counties, cities and towns in which a program of dental health education has been active show a decided change in attitude toward dental work. In such communities, the dental profession has every advantage," the doctor, a specialist in children's dentistry, has reported.

The Iowa Dental Bulletin is published six times a year by the Iowa State Dental society.

Method for Blood Transfusion Five Local Medical Men Explain Method in Medical Journal

Five local medical men are represented in two articles published this month in the "Journal of the American Medical Association."

Dr. Elmer L. DeGowin, Dr. Robert C. Hardin and Dr. L. W. Swanson, all members of the college of medicine teaching staff, have written that the transfusion of stored blood without preheating is a safe, convenient and economical procedure which often avoids dangerous delays.

After studying thoroughly 10 patients, the doctors came to their conclusion, and added further proof by administering transfusions of preserved blood without preheating to 568 patients, without reactions because of the method.

"It is still common practice to maintain at body temperature fluids which are being administered into the veins. This principle is of practical clinical importance because considerable labor is expended by the intern and nursing staff and frequently costly apparatus is used in an effort to maintain fluids at body temperature during injection," the doctors explain.

"When the preserved fluid is blood, there is the danger of disintegration of the blood from the injudicious application of heat. Moreover, time may be consumed in warming blood to body temperature or even to room temperature," they conclude.

Dr. DeGowin and two other doctors, Dr. John E. Haggis and Dr. E. D. Plass, in another article explain three contributions which they make to the technique of transporting stored blood considerable distances, with emphasis on the use of the method during the present European war.

The authors say that blood stored in flasks containing air trapped by rubber stoppers disintegrates no faster than blood exposed to the air in cotton-plugged flasks. This fact, they point out, is a great advantage in designing facilities for transportation.

"Lastly, the storage of blood in flasks from which all air is displaced by the blood mixture reduces to a minimum the possible injury by shaking," they further explain.

Fish Parasites To Be Studied Next Summer

Additional scientific studies on the parasites of fish of Iowa lakes will be done next summer by University of Iowa men at the Iowa Lakeside laboratory.

Prof. J. H. Bodine, director of the laboratory at West Okoboji lake, said that this continues studies under way for several summers.

It is expected by the scientists that they soon will have enough information to make a contribution toward the conservation of the lakes' fish population.

Engineers Annually Honor Their Patron Saint, St. Patrick

It was sort of a silly situation when you got to thinking about it. After all, what COULD you call a celebration in honor of St. Patrick, but "St. Patrick's Day?"

Back in 1912 senior engineering students asked themselves this question. They sat around looking at each other, gloomily wondering what to do.

It seemed a shame to give the whole thing up—tradition was so nicely established. They really wanted to have an annual celebration for their patron saint. And the blarney stone ceremony, the colorful parades and the student plays had become very popular events.

But pressure from certain local groups demanded that the engineers get a new name for "St. Patrick's Day." Alas and alack, what to do?

Relief at End of 'Little War' Tinged With Foreboding for Norway, Sweden—

Finnish Peace Effects on War In West Uncertain; Scandinavia Apprehensive

World Opinion Supports Finns In Defeat

Swedish Economic Freedom Threatened By Russian Victory

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer
The carnage of war has ended for Finland and the world is left groping for a clue as to what the effect will be upon the struggle between nazi Germany and the Franco-British allies.

One thing is certain, however. The Finns have written a new page of valor into world history by a 105-day stand against the Russian red army juggernaut which for bravery has few parallels in the written records of mankind.

The bitterness of defeat is a little assuaged for the vanquished by the homage of the world to Finnish gallantry. Nor will the final word be said on Finland's place in the family of nations until the greater war, of which she is an innocent victim, also ends.

World Opinion
Regardless of allied threats to abandon them at the peace table if they capitulated, the Finns still can count on world popular opinion to demand restitution for Finland as an allied peace aim if ultimate victory in the fight with Germany rests with Britain and France.

That could prove a more powerful guarantor of Finnish independence in a post-war world than any diplomatic commitment that could have been wrested from London or Paris, or any Scandinavian-Finnish defensive union which might evolve out of fears in Sweden and Norway that they may be "next" on Moscow's march westward. Relief in both countries that the war in Finland has ended is tinged with foreboding.

Dread Warranted
A casual glance at the map and text of concessions wrung from Finland by Moscow warrants that obvious dread in Scandinavia. At a stride, communist Russia has brought her social philosophy and soaring economic ambitions to the very threshold of Sweden, both by land and sea.

The pact of Moscow which ended the war in Finland turns the Gulf of Finland virtually into a Russian lake. With Russian naval and air bases dotting both sides of the gulf and the Finnish "Gibraltar," Hanko, in Russian hands under a 30-year leasehold, even the Gulf of Bothnia between Finland and Sweden is menaced by Russian ambition. Through it pass Sweden's most treasured natural resources, sea-borne cargoes of Swedish iron ore.

Threatening Clause
Another clause of the peace pact is an even more threatening spearhead aimed at Sweden's economic heart. It is the provision calling for prompt extension of a railroad across Finland's "waistline" from the head of the Gulf of Bothnia to connect with Russian trackage.

Nominally, that provision was enforced by Moscow to provide a land contact with Swedish iron and other resources. Actually, on the strength of the grim lessons Moscow militarists learned in the 105-day war in Finland, it is an obvious military threat as well.

The red army attempt to cut Finland in half at the "waistline" failed for lack of rail and road routes adequate to the needs of mechanized warfare. The Russian thrusts which finally crumpled the Finnish Mannerheim line on the Karelian isthmus followed the pathway of railroads or main highways that traverse that critical front. Sweden cannot doubt that the new Russo-Finnish railway across the Finnish waistline has grim potentialities for her.

Naz Guarantees
Whether Russian peace terms were fully known in advance in Sweden yet is subject to speculation, yet the circumstances under which Sweden intervened to act as intermediary in presenting the terms, suggests that they were. Sweden facilitated, if she did not actively urge, Finnish capitulation.

That raises a question as to what guarantees Berlin may have given to Scandinavia against Russian aggression. Something must have outweighed Franco-British offers to send military reinforcements to Finland if a route for their passage across Norway and Sweden were opened.

There is no escape from the conclusion that Berlin, not the red army, was the dominant factor in the grim game of international politics that closed the door to allied help for Finland. Scandinavia's fear of German as well as Russian reprisals, a fear more potent than any be-

Relief of an ultimate allied victory in the main war, destroyed Finland's only hope to rescue. That Moscow peace pact which took her Baltic out of the European war picture must go down as another bloodless Hitler victory over his slow-moving Franco-British foes.

Iowa Sends Out Invitations For Festival

University Committee To Make Selections For May Music Meet

Invitations now are being dispatched to various Iowa high school individuals and groups to participate in the University of Iowa's music festival May 2, 3, and 4.

This announcement was made yesterday by the festival committee which includes five faculty members. The invitations are being sent from the office of Prof. Charles B. Righter of the music department. For the first time the university is sponsoring the festival independent of the Iowa High School Music association, with which the university was associated for 14 years.

Outstanding Groups
Invitations are issued only after a careful review of the applications by the university committee. Only the definitely outstanding groups and individuals were asked to reply.

In considering the applications of high school organizations, the committee took up such points as number of rehearsals per week, musical training and professional experience of the director, list of numbers presented in public programs and size of group.

Non-Competitive
Items in the consideration of soloists are length of private study, names of private teachers and list of solo presentations in public.

The festival will be non-competitive, its purpose being to recognize outstanding performance, to provide a chance for the best talent in Iowa schools to be heard by critic judges, and to emphasize musical values and sound technical accomplishment.

Judge Gaffney Sentences Robert Ross to 6 Years on 2 Charges

Plea Changed To Guilty By Defendant

Accused of Assault, Escape From Jail In Two Informations

Judge James P. Gaffney, in Johnson county district court yesterday, sentenced Robert Ross of Des Moines to the state penitentiary at Ft. Madison for a period not to exceed five years and an additional period not to exceed one year.

Ross pleaded guilty to two county attorney informations filed against him charging assault with intent to commit robbery and breaking from jail and escape.

He was arraigned before Judge Gaffney last Tuesday when he pleaded not guilty to both offenses and asked the court for counsel. Attorney Ingalls Swisher was appointed by the court to represent the defendant.

The first information was filed Jan. 26. While the defendant was being held in jail awaiting trial, he and an accomplice, Leo Lovell, Moline, Ill., sawed the bars from one of the first floor windows in the Johnson county jail.

Reports Break
One of the pair was seen as he slipped through the window by Sheriff Don McComas, who was just returning to the jail. After a hasty investigation, Sheriff McComas reported the break to city police and a warning was sent over the county-city short-wave radio.

Less than an hour after the first warning had been broadcast a telephone call came to the police station telling of an attempted auto theft on South Dubuque street.

The second call was sent over the police broadcasting system, and Sheriff McComas and Deputy Sheriff Preston Koser, whose autos are both equipped with short-wave receiving sets, answered the call simultaneously.

They found Lovell being held by the two men whose automobile he was said to have attempted to steal. Ross was found three blocks further south, near the Rock Island depot, where he was apparently waiting for Lovell to take the car and pick him up, officials said.

County Attorney Harold Vestermark filed the second information March 9.

Appeal bond was fixed by the court at $2,000 and $1,000 for the respective sentences.

Miller Gets 6 Months in Jail

Harry Miller, after changing his plea from not guilty to guilty to a charge of lascivious acts with children, was sentenced yesterday by Judge James P. Gaffney to serve a term not to exceed six months in the Johnson county jail.

Miller was arraigned before the court Tuesday, when he made a plea of not guilty. Judge Gaffney appointed Ingalls Swisher to represent the defendant.

The information was filed by County Attorney Harold Vestermark, Jan. 26 against Miller.

Appeal bond was fixed at $2,000 by the court.

Prof. Olson Addresses Club Asserts Reciprocal Trade Treaties Given Too Much Importance

The reciprocal trade treaties, which were added in 1934 as an amendment to the tariff act of 1930, do not deserve the importance they are now being given in American politics because they have not affected American economy to any great extent.

This was the contention of Prof. Paul R. Olson of the college of commerce in a talk given yesterday noon at the regular meeting of the Lions club in Reich's pine room.

Reductions made in these agreements, which were an effort of the Roosevelt administration to stimulate American foreign trade that had slumped 66 per cent between 1929 and 1933, were largely on non-competitive articles, Professor Olson declared.

In the 22 agreements now in effect 60 per cent of the imports and exports have not been changed, he continued. However, exports to the countries affected have increased over imports, Professor Olson added.

Prof. Olson Addresses Club Asserts Reciprocal Trade Treaties Given Too Much Importance

The reciprocal trade treaties, which were added in 1934 as an amendment to the tariff act of 1930, do not deserve the importance they are now being given in American politics because they have not affected American economy to any great extent.

This was the contention of Prof. Paul R. Olson of the college of commerce in a talk given yesterday noon at the regular meeting of the Lions club in Reich's pine room.

Reductions made in these agreements, which were an effort of the Roosevelt administration to stimulate American foreign trade that had slumped 66 per cent between 1929 and 1933, were largely on non-competitive articles, Professor Olson declared.

In the 22 agreements now in effect 60 per cent of the imports and exports have not been changed, he continued. However, exports to the countries affected have increased over imports, Professor Olson added.
