Pressure Grows for Rebuilt British Government

King Charged With Listless Prosecution

Suggest Group Of Five Men For Cabinet

Churchill's Powers Would Increase Under Proposed Arrangement

LONDON, March 25 (AP)—Pressure grew heavier today for a rebuilt government, concentrating the nation's economic, maritime and military power in fewer hands. A war cabinet of five ministers, instead of the present nine, was suggested.

The question of changes ranked as high in interest among the British as the details of the war itself. Only the reported discovery of a new German aerial torpedo challenged politics as the first concern of thousands getting ready to return to work tomorrow after an extended Easter holiday.

Outspoken demands for "bold and far-reaching changes" were sounded in the press. The London Star quoted "well-informed political circles" as saying a five-man cabinet would be formed to replace the present nine-man group.

Under this plan First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill would gain a greater voice, speaking for the land, sea and air forces as well as the ministries of supply and shipping. The five-man cabinet would be composed of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax and Lord Privy Seal Sir Samuel Hoare.

The present war cabinet, formed Sept. 3, 1939, the day Britain declared war on Germany, and reorganized Jan. 5 when War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha was ousted, includes the above mentioned five and these four as well: Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood, War Minister Oliver Stanley, Minister without Portfolio Lord Hankey and Minister for coordination of Defense Lord Chatfield.

Hungary Asks Italian Stand

Hungarian Minister Confers With Ciano, Will Interview Duce

ROME, March 25 (AP)—Hungary's premier, Count Pal Teleky, surveyed the war's effects and prospects for southeastern Europe in a talk of nearly two hours today with foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano preliminary to an interview with Premier Mussolini tomorrow.

Count Teleky was understood in diplomatic circles to have sought information on Fuehrer Hitler's talk with Mussolini a week ago. It was believed that Count Ciano reassured him that nothing had been agreed upon in that meeting to change the Italian "wait and see" attitude toward the European war.

It was rumored among diplomats that Hitler had suggested a reinforcement of Italian troops on the French frontier to divert several French divisions from the Maginot line so that Germany could launch a spring offensive there.

This suggestion was said to have met with the Italian argument that such reinforcements would be hard to justify. Confirmation was lacking, but informed Italian circles have indicated plainly that no action is contemplated which might change Italy's non-belligerency.

Pittman Denounces New Deal Tariff Making, Agreements

Debate Begins Over Biggest Controversy

'Senate Ratification Necessary for Trade Pacts,' Declares Pittman

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Chairman Pittman (D-Nev) of the senate foreign relations committee denounced the new deal's system of tariff making as unconstitutional today and said congress should require that trade agreements with other lands have the approval of two-thirds of the senate before they can become effective.

He spoke as the senate unexpectedly began debate on what had been billed — due to the eagerness of the administration and the determination of the opposition — as the big controversy of the session.

Pending was a bill to extend the trade agreements act for three years. Unless it is passed it already has the approval of the house — the authority of the administration to reduce tariff rates in agreement with other nations will expire in June.

An exceedingly close decision on Pittman's plan is in prospect, one that may be swung by a shift in two or three votes. Pittman and others contend that only by a requirement for senate ratification can the trade agreements act be made constitutional. Administration spokesmen argue that the Pittman amendment would nullify the bill. So great is the opposition of the new deal, in fact, that it is reported President Roosevelt will veto the bill if the ratification proviso is added.

There was but one incident to break the Easter Monday calm—a chair leg crumpled under portly Senator McCarran (D-Nev) and spilled him onto the floor. Pittman went on talking as though nothing had happened.

Cold Easter! KANE, Pa. (AP)—A post-Easter cold wave shoved down the mercury to 13 degrees below zero yesterday. It was two below zero here on Easter day.

Cold Chills White House Egg Roll; F. D. R. Fails To Make Usual Speech

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The coldest Easter Monday on record in the capitol today chilled the White House egg roll into slow motion.

According to tradition, the gates of the White House opened at 9 a. m. to youngsters under ten years of age, alone or accompanied by adults. (No adults without children were allowed). But even though the sun shone brightly, a raw wind cut the attendance down to less than two-thirds of the 1939 figure of 52,000.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt twice went through the grounds greeting her guests. A cold kept the president indoors. He was unable to speak from the White House porch as had been his custom in the past.

There was plenty of space this year to roll eggs, but the heavy wraps which thoughtful mothers insisted their children wear handicapped their rolling technique.

When the grapevine carried the word that lost children were being cared for in a downstairs section of the White House—where it was nice and warm—many children cheerfully got "lost."

The cold had another depressing effect. It put a dent into the "little businessman's take." Each year enterprising youngsters escort adults without children into the grounds at so much a head.

In years past the escort fee averaged a quarter, but this year it dropped to a dime and if the prospect hesitated it would be cut to "Aw, five cents—come on. It isn't so cold." One chap confided that last year he made about $5. "This time I've only made 19 cents," he said.

Northwestern Passenger Train Runs Switch in Rail Mishap

Fireman Meets Death As Engine Overturns; Passengers Shaken

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill., March 25 (AP)—The Chicago and Northwestern railroad's passenger train, "The Viking," was derailed near here tonight, killing the fireman and seriously injuring the engineer. At least one passenger was injured.

All the coaches of the train, enroute from Minneapolis to Chicago, left the tracks but only the locomotive overturned.

Ethyl Owners Hold Monopoly, Court Rules

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—In a far-reaching decision, the supreme court ruled today that patent-owners may not extend their legal monopoly to control their products after they reach the dealers, and specifically may not impose restrictions that fix prices.

The case in point involved the Ethyl gasoline corporation, but Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust prosecutions, said that it went "far beyond the oil industry" and was "the most important decision on the subject of the use of patents to restrain trade that has ever been handed down by any court."

In its unanimous decision, the court held that the Ethyl corporation was violating the Sherman anti-trust act by its system of licensing 123 refiners.

Making Up at University Theater

Troop Ship In Canal Zone

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, March 25 (AP)—The 35,739-ton British liner Mauretania anchored tonight in Cristobal Bay, presumably in preparation for making transit of the Panama Canal tomorrow.

The great ship, which sailed under sealed orders from New York five days ago, was dark except for her running lights. Presumably she will remain in the bay overnight.

The British consul and agents for the ship were silent concerning plans for the Mauretania's transit of the canal and the ship's ultimate destination.

Blind Students From Vinton To Appear

Twelve class C Iowa high schools present plays in University theater today, the second day of the 15th annual Iowa high school play production festival.

Highlight of the day's program will be a presentation on the evening program by the Vinton school for the blind. The blind cast will present "Hunger" by Ella Mae Daniel. Four Vinton students play in the production which is directed by Mrs. Irma VanderVeer McAtee.

Four high schools presenting plays this morning beginning at 9:30 include What Cheer, "Last Flight Over" by Allan Lemmon; Oxford, "The Castle of Mr. Simpson" by John Kirkpatrick; Randallia, "Knives From Syria" by Lynn Riggs, and Guttenburg, "Sit Down to Supper" by Glen Haley.

Paris Reports Artillery Fire Along Front

PARIS, March 25 (AP)—The heavy thud of artillery at several points along the western front today ended the Easter time calm.

The high command's evening communique said that in addition to "local artillery action" there was "infantry fire along the Rhine" and aerial activity.

With time working on the side of increasing the new French government's slender 17-vote majority, Premier Paul Reynaud announced his first speech to the nation would be broadcast tomorrow at 8 p. m. (1 p. m. CST.)

Class C Judges Joseph Free and Helene Blattner, both of the University of Iowa speech and dramatic arts department, are judges for the class C presentations. No results will be announced until the plays have all been given, but the (See FESTIVAL, Page 8)

Robert J. Manion Heads Conservative Party in Election

OTTAWA, Ont., March 25 (AP)—The fate of Canada's liberal government, which rode into power in 1935 with a record majority, hung in the balance tonight at the end of an eight-week election campaign in which the conduct of the dominion's war effort has been the major issue.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, who dissolved parliament last Jan. 25 and summoned the election to silence critics who charged he prosecuted Canada's share of the war ineffectually, fired the last campaign broadside at tonight's traditional election-evening mass meeting in the capital.

Political leaders, meanwhile, voiced anxiety lest many of the dominion's 6,600,000 eligible voters be kept from the polls tomorrow by snowstorms which have seriously hampered rural transportation facilities in the provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick.

Members of Canada's armed forces at home and abroad, numbering approximately 90,000 men, already have cast their ballots but the result will not be known until April 1 or later.

For many of the older voters conditions recalled the last wartime election in 1917, but the issues, the parties and the men are different.

The main question to be decided is whether the MacKenzie King government shall carry on or give way to a national government headed by Dr. Robert J. Manion, veteran conservative party leader.

Although some eight or ten political parties are represented by the 672 candidates contending for the 245 seats in the house of commons, only the liberals and the national government followers of Dr. Manion, who have dropped their conservative label for this election, have sufficient nominees to obtain a majority.

Of the minor parties in the running, the most outstanding are the cooperative commonwealth federation under J. S. Woodsworth, with 96 candidates in the field, and the new democracy, sponsored by W. D. Herridge, former minister to Washington, with 28.

Members of the social credit group led by John Blackmore are stringing along with Herridge's new democrats.

Both major parties are opposed to conscription. Throughout the campaign the liberals have stood solidly on the government's record, recounting the things accomplished in the first six months of war and comparing them with the progress made in the early months of the last war under a conservative administration.

Red Assumes F.D.R.'s Name

Alleged by Communist Before Dies Group; Police Seeking Man

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Acting on instructions from the White House, secret service agents tonight were trying to find a communist who used the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" on his communist party membership credentials.

Meanwhile, the Dies committee on un-American activities decided to institute contempt proceedings against James H. Dolsen, a communist who acknowledged that a member of his party had used the president's name but declined to divulge the man's identity or to answer several other questions asked by the committee.

The credentials in question—a book containing records of dues payments and other data—were found in Dolsen's room in Pittsburgh. Dolsen said the unidentified communist gave the book to him so that stamps showing the payment of dues and assessments could be affixed. He said he had tried to dissuade the man from using the Roosevelt name because President Roosevelt "never was a member of the communist party and never would be."

Welles—The Fleet-Footed Messenger

LEAVING for home, Sumner Welles, the president's special envoy to Europe, talked out loud at last. He said: "In order to allay the flood of rumors about my mission, I wish to state categorically that I have not received any peace plan or proposals from any belligerent or from any other government; that I have not conveyed any such proposals to any belligerent, nor to any other government; nor am I bringing back to the president any such proposal."

In short, Welles didn't go over to settle war, and hasn't settled it, and isn't now trying to settle it. Apparently he just went over to listen. And from the length of time he spent there, and the number of statesmen who apparently wanted to see him, and his skittering back and forth from capital to capital, he must have got an earful. All of which will be at the disposal of his boss when he reaches Washington.

The United States government should now be in better position to understand the European situation and to act intelligently in foreign affairs in a very delicate and troubled time.

Certain things, however, in Mr. Welles' trip have not been explained. Important statesmen in European capitals seem to have utilized him as a confidential messenger. Impersonally and unofficially he may have helped in important negotiations—perhaps regarding peace. But if so, the facts may not come out for years.

The Quizzer Make 'Em Like It!

SOMEONE suggests that Senator Tobey, or someone else in a place of prestige and authority, should get after the quiz-bees that are flooding this country. The idea is a masterful one. The indictment against quiz-bees is ravaging. Observe: 1. So far, for some inexplicable reason, the public seems to stand for them. 2. And, (horrors!) even to like them! 3. But they certainly do get personal at times. 4. And they show up an awful lot of ignorance. We've tried to figure out why the people of this nation should tolerate quiz-bees when the opposition to the census is so evident. Maybe it's because they learn something from the former. You don't learn anything from a census quiz, because you're doing all the talking and supplying all the facts yourself. It's the government there that is getting the knowledge, and maybe business men that will be wanting to sell you a lot of things. Anybody can see that there's a considerable difference. And yet there is in both cases the basic fact of asking questions, some of 'em embarrassing, and wasting time.

The government may just be using bad technique. Maybe if the federal officials would go into a huddle with the quiz-bee experts of the air, they would get some pointers about asking people pertinent questions and making 'em like it.

The Shortcomings Of Science

WE HAVE often pondered this thought: Americans take science for granted. Americans believe that science "knows all," has an answer for almost any problem, has a cure for any disease. Scientists themselves are humble. They know how little science knows, how many hundreds of facts of medicine are still to be found. One of the startling surprises for every college freshman must be his first few weeks in a science course. How frequently the professor or textbook tells him "We haven't discovered that yet." The medical student is equally amazed in the pursuit of his study of medicine to find repeated over and over in his texts, "Etymology unknown."

What does this mean? It means that Americans would be wise to stop taking science for granted. It means that millions of dollars will have to be spent on laboratory research—not just on cancer or infantile paralysis research but for many lesser known diseases.

It means that unless we are willing to pay for vitally needed information on matters pertaining to our civilized life, that we can sometimes expect our civilized life to be its own downfall. We take science for granted. We might better realize that science has just scratched the surface and that grants for research will have to be made by the public if any great amount of progress is to be made in the future.

How's Your Psychosis Today?

HAIR STYLES, hat styles, dress styles, shoe styles, —and now here's another, Dr. Martin Grotjahn of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis says styles in psychological illnesses are changing with the shifting social and economic pattern.

The latest styles include beliefs of many people, unsupported by anatomical reasons, that they are ill and are on the verge of insanity. Dr. Grotjahn says that if a person gets into psychological difficulties today, he usually chooses the symptoms of a depression. The one so afflicted uses the medical knowledge which nowadays he may pick up anywhere in order to construct some kind of organic illness.

"Centuries ago people expressed their psychological illness in more dramatic form, by going into ecstasy; around the turn of the century, by having hysterical convulsions or by throwing terrific fits of anger," observed the doctor. So if you feel slightly "off" on the psychological side, be sure to be in style. Say you don't feel well.

Mr. Wilkie Might Reconsider—

WENDELL L. WILKIE, president of the Southern corporation, no doubt found sympathetic listeners when he spoke before the Commonwealth club in San Francisco the other day.

However, his remarks about liberalism are open to criticism. Liberals, he said, are persons who believe men should be free. The definition has nothing to do with economic considerations, Mr. Wilkie insisted. That much we might have swallowed without thinking, as we are prone to do with ambiguous generalities.

But he didn't stop. Mr. Wilkie proceeded to illustrate his 'uneconomic liberalism' by accusing the present administration of concentrating power in ECONOMIC terms.

"The answer under your democratic system is for government to get off the back of the people's industry with its unscientific taxation, its arbitrary and capricious regulations and controls, its wasteful, extravagant and competitive public expenditures, and its constant attack and harassment of business."

In fact, Mr. Wilkie thought that because of those conditions "it is time for the American people to take up the revolution their forefathers started, and to carry it further." So the freedom of the liberalist has nothing to do with economics? Why, Mr. Wilkie doesn't believe that himself. Or is he trying to kid us? He can't.

Iowa And The Good Earth

A COUNTRY preacher from one of Iowa's smaller communities scores the University of Iowa for not giving due recognition to its students from the rural districts of the state.

We agree with him that such a situation would be unwholesome. We believe he is right, too, in stating that "Iowa University needs to stand on the Good Earth." "What interested me," he writes, "is that a boy I knew told me he came from a certain Iowa city. I found out later that he gave the name of the nearest city to the small town from which he really came."

If it were true, this statement from a defender of the small towns would be justified. But we find ample evidence on the University of Iowa campus to show that there is no discrimination against students from small towns.

We can think of hundreds of a score of campus leaders who come not from out-of-state cities or from the cities of Iowa, but from the rural communities and from farms. We could tell our correspondent about the girl who was elected to receive the most coveted beauty crown on the campus—and would point out to him that she comes from a village in Iowa whose population is less than 100.

Stewart Sees Movement To Curb Power Of Agencies as Gaining Momentum in U. S.

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist

THE ADMINISTRATIVE functions of our government are bewildering. Which means that the ordinary American citizen is so befuddled by the barbed wire entanglements surrounding the more than one hundred boards, commissions, bureaus and nondescript agencies, all affecting in various degrees the rights and interests of the taxpayers, that something has to be done about it.

It all started when the first of these sub-departments was set up many years ago. But those were comparatively simple times and certainly there was then no deliberate purpose to inaugurate a super-government now irritating and confusing almost every element of our national life.

All is confusion. Of recent years government by edicts, rules, regulations and orders, arbitrarily set up by swarms of petty political appointees, has thrown a thousand monkey wrenches into administrative gears. In the making of this mess of regulations neither congress, the courts nor the public, for that matter, have had a part.

The helpless victims of this vicious system have practically no method of protection against injustice or redress in appeal to the courts. Something must be done about this growing menace of despotism and congress proposes to do it. So today we have up for consideration in both houses of congress bills designed not to curb the rightful functioning of administrative agencies, but merely to regulate them and free the public from on-rushing despotism that—leading to its logical conclusion—as the

Postcard Impressions

Tucker Gets Kick Out of Pawn Shop Which Collects Guns

By GEORGE TUCKER

RENO, Nev.—In this column I am going to try to sort out a few of the postcard impressions a man picks up between Reno and ... I got a kick out of a pawn shop called The End of the Trail, because there you can see a wonderful collection of old second-hand frontier guns which no doubt figured sharply in the boom-time adolescence of this mining district.

One in particular is a pepper pot gun, a pistol that has nine barrels which can be fired separately, or collectively. Another is a "life preserver," meaning a small gun built into a pair of brass knuckles. They also used to build a small, sharp knife into the knuckles, so that as you crushed a man's jaw you also could lay him wide open, but I did not see one of these at The End of the Trail. But it had old Colt single action .45's, known as "peace makers," and these came in cap and ball, or cartridge models.

Then there were the miniature bottles of spirits which are only two inches high and which are now available in only six states in the Union. In Reno, every bar, drug store and restaurant has them, and they sell from a quarter to 60 cents apiece. All the standard brands of Scotch, rye and Irish whiskies, as well as cordials, gins and anything else you can think of, are available in miniature. They are just like the big bottle on the locker-room shelf, with the exception that they hold only about a pony full. These should be kept as souvenirs and as something with which to edify and entertain one's friends. Any man who would open one and drink its contents is the sort of barbarian who would pillage a temple, or hock his wife's wedding ring for a can of beer.

Reno citizens, or at least the downtown citizens, dress pretty western. Not so many go in for boots, but most of them wear those big hats and neckerchiefs, and also frontier-style shirts, which are of broadcloth and have yoked shoulders, buttons from cuff to elbow, and over-sized breast patch pockets. It may be that this is a hold-over from the "Virginia City" premiere, but it seems to me the women go in for western motif more than the men. You see hundreds of fringed, knee-length buckskin skirts of tan, white and black, with fancy vests of the same color and material. You may have noticed that only this year the east began to feature satin and chiffon blouses with mannish collars and wide bishop sleeves. Reno women have been wearing these for years. Walking the street are a great number of young men with black beards. It seemed reasonable to identify them as members of some sect, but that is an error. They are University of Nevada students preparing to celebrate Founders' Day.

Yank Battery
Young Blood
Other Pitchers
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25 (AP) — The other American league clubs, which are afraid something might happen to the Yankee pitching staff, they hope, make as well pull up chairs and make themselves comfortable. It looks like a long wait.

Yank Battery
It is generally agreed that if the Yankees start coming apart at the seams it will be the pitching and catching departments that will drop off first, and even the most powerful machine won't go far on a weak battery.

It has been pointed out that Red Ruffing is getting along in years and that his arm troubles of last year might be just a hint of what might be in store this year. And Lefty Gomez, the other half of the 1-2 pitching punch of the past, was only so-so in 1939, and even right now his once great wing is behaving like a surly stranger.

Add to these facts the question of how long Bill Dickey can go on being the greatest catcher in the game, and you get a total that doesn't show much profit.

Young Blood
But Joe McCarthy can read the handwriting on the wall as well as the next man. Last year he brought in Buddy Rosar, hard-hitting Newark catcher, to prepare for the day when Dickey's joints crack instead of his bat. And last June, seeing that Gomez showed signs of fading, he recalled Marius Russo, a left-hander from Newark.

This year, to guard against any wilting on the part of Ruffing, he has plucked another ripe plum from the Yankee farm system in the person of Marvin Breuer, from Kansas City. McCarthy had both Breuer and Russo at camp a year ago, and liked them so well then he wanted to keep them, but George Weiss howled for help for the Newark and Kansas City clubs so loudly that the boys were shipped back.

As the situation now stands, Russo is understudying Gomez, and Breuer is learning the lines of Ruffing. As a matter of fact, if their showing to date is any criterion, both have mastered the dialogue and can step into a winning role at any time.

Their performance has been the brightest spot at the spring camp. Russo, who won eight and lost three after joining the club last June, has excellent control, and every ball he throws has something on it. Yankee followers already are predicting he will be the league's leading left-hander this year.

Other Pitchers
Breuer has a great curve ball, almost as good as that of Monte Pearson whose hook is just about the sharpest in the business. Russo and Breuer can take up some of the possible slack left by Gomez and Ruffing, but other pitchers are very much among those present. Atley Donald, who won 12 straight as a first-year man in 1939, should be valuable, although he apparently isn't being counted upon as heavily as Breuer and Russo.

Steve Sundra, Bump Hadley and Pearson should account for their share. In fact, even considering a possible letdown on the parts of Gomez and Ruffing, the Yankee pitching staff rates with the best. Lee Grissom, the erratic southpaw acquired from Cincinnati, is not being counted on too strongly. In fact, there is doubt that he is being counted any way but out.

The remainder of the Yankee lineup — the infield and the outfield — can be searched from head to foot without uncovering a real weakness. To give an example of the defensive strength, the first ball pitched in a game with Newark last week was a line drive to left field. Alvin Powell made a running dive. If he had had blades on his chest he would have moved half the infield. He caught the ball prone, with one hand. And he's only a substitute.

Ramblers Draw Virginia Team In Cage Meet

The tournament, at Chicago begins Wednesday and runs through Sunday, with 32 of the nation's best Catholic teams competing.

Frisch Hustles Pirates; They Look Like A Ball Club

By ROBERT MYERS
SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., March 25 (AP) — Fiery Frankie Frisch sank down in the dugout and looked out on the field where his Pittsburgh ball club was toiling away under a hot sun.

Wiping away the perspiration, the new skipper of the Pirates sighed wearily. "What I need is a new pair of legs. This work is killing me."

The work may be killing Frankie, but it isn't making the rollicking Buccos fat, either. In fact, it is just the opposite, and that is the main reason Pittsburgh fans will see a very different team this year.

Without taking away a thing from mid-mannered Pie Traynor, who treated his men a lot better than they treated him, it is a cinch bet that the Pirates will give a first class imitation of the old college try for a change, instead of sloughing away ball games with all the aplomb of tired prima donnas.

Mr. Frisch will see to that. He cracked down at the start, hasn't let up, and won't. His men will hustle or get bounced off the squad. And you can almost wager that the Pirates will not finish sixth this year as they did last season in their worst season since 1917.

The outfield is decidedly open for competition, with the old line guard of the Waner boys and Johnny Rizzo in for a fight to keep newcomers like Bob Elliott and Maurice Van Robays from barging in.

There is another struggle on between Ray Berres, Virgil Davis, Ray Mueller and young Joe Schultz Jr.

The pitching staff is another up-in-the-air affair. Once again the Pirates had trouble last year in finding a hurler who could last nine innings. They may have the same difficulty this season for a while — and then Frisch will perform a little head chopping act and find new faces.

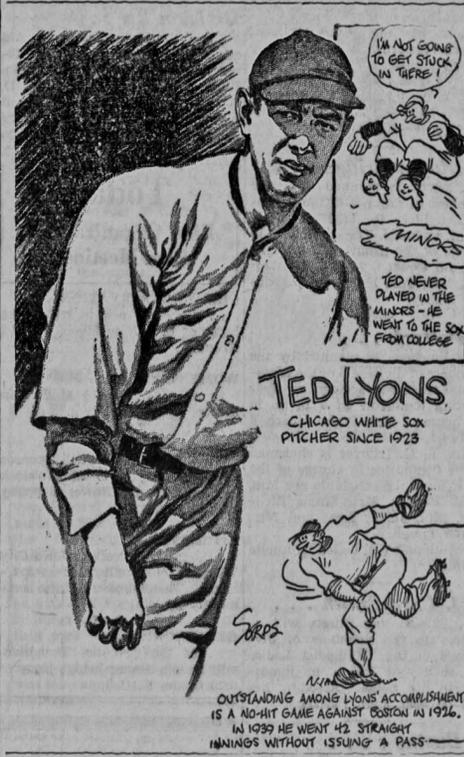

Fourteen pitchers came to camp. It's too early to say who will remain. Russ Bauers, Joe Bowman and Mace Brown of the old guard are still on hand, along with Bob Klingner, veteran Danny MacFayden, obtained from the Boston Bees; Rip Sewell, Ray Harrell and Oadis Vaughn Swigart, to name a few.

Also present, but yet to prove his value as a major league pitcher, is towering Johnny Gee, the super-six-footer purchased from Syracuse late last year.

The infield of Elbie Fletcher at first, Pep Young at second, Lee Handley at third and Arky Vaughn at short seems fairly secure. Best looking rookie here is Frank Gustine, 20-year-old hopeful who played with Gadsden, Ala., last year.

Best guess out here is that if Frankie Frisch doesn't have a real ball club this year, he will have one within two years. He has already done things to this outfit, and he'll do more.

Bunny Oakes Leaves Colorado U. Position

Takes Cash For Contract Grid Mentor Goes After Student Petition Asks His Dismissal

BOULDER, Colo., March 25 (AP) — Bernard F. (Bunny) Oakes, whose teams won two conference championships and whose star pupil was all-American Byron (Whizzer) White, stepped down today as football coach at Colorado university with a cash settlement in his pocket.

He and President L. Stearns reached an agreement to terminate his contract — it had three years to run — five weeks after 35 players from the team that won the Big Seven conference title last fall signed a petition urging the board of regents to dismiss him.

The 41-year-old coach contended in a statement that "the cash settlement and my record are a complete vindication of me and my coaching methods."

President Stearns, announcing the severance of relations, said in a four paragraph statement that Harry Carlson, director of athletics "has been instructed to make recommendations in the near future for the appointment of a new football coach."

During the months of controversy in the athletic department, Oakes had charged Carlson, Walter B. Franklin, graduate manager of athletics, and Mark Schreiber, assistant to Franklin, did not cooperate with him.

At Oakes' request, the amount of the cash settlement was not disclosed. His present contract, signed in January, 1938, a few weeks after Whizzer White and his fellow Buffaloes lost to Rice in the Dallas Cotton bowl, reportedly called for $5,000 annually.

Ruppert Estate's Attorney Thinks Next Owner Of Yanks Will Want Team for Advertising

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP) — Byron Clark Jr., who is familiar with the New York Yankee financial structure as Bill Dickey is with Red Ruffing's Sunday pitch, thinks the next owner of the world champions will be "a national advertiser who might buy the club as a medium for radio advertising."

Clark was busy all day discussing rumors again flooding town — to the effect this time the Yanks were to be sold either to a syndicate headed by Postmaster General James A. Farley and a former Gov. James Cox of Ohio or one headed by Joseph Patterson, New York publisher, and an unnamed associate.

The latest rumors that have been mushrooming since the death of Col. Jacob Ruppert over a year ago came today in a World-Telegram copyrighted story from Florida.

Clark, attorney for the estate of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, who will know about a sale as soon as anyone else, said he had no knowledge of the rumors — and he said he doubted if there is any syndicate actually in position to swing the deal.

"The number of purchasers is very limited," he pointed out, "any potential purchaser must have plenty of money, a sufficient interest in baseball, and a desire to be identified with such a big undertaking that is not a sure-fire investment."

That's why he thinks it more probable that a manufacturer, who advertises on a nation-wide scale, is the likeliest candidate to buy the properties valued variously at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Clark knows of but one offer that has been made for the greatest empire in baseball — a paltry $3,000,000. It was made by a source unknown to him, through a middleman whom he personally knows is "trustworthy."

All these reports of someone wanting to buy the Yankees probably come from commission merchants, who stand to make anywhere from $250,000 to $500,000 if they can swing the deal."

Clark was moderately bitter about these syndicates with a national reputation.

"We don't need that kind of a figurehead to impress us," he said. He referred to deals such as those suggested today, or one previously in which Governor Francis Murphy of New Hampshire was supposed to be "interested" in purchasing the team.

Although the terms of Col. Ruppert's will directed "this enterprise shall be perpetuated" the Yankees are for sale, simply because "the position of the executors is that if we don't dispose of the property on a good market — and then prices depreciate — we are subject to criticism," he said.

"The executors have the absolute power of sale," he pointed out. "Pending the complete settlement of the colonel's estate, the disposition of the baseball interests lies with the three executors — George E. Ruppert, H. Garrison Silleck Jr., of Greenwich, Conn., the colonel's brother-in-law, and myself."

Clark pointed out "the three young women" to whom the colonel willed the club — Mrs. Joseph Halloran, and Mrs. J. Basil McGuire of Greenwich and a former actress, Helen Winthrop Weyant of New York — actually have no say in the management or sale of the club.

"Their position is that of three individuals who have the right to receive during their lifetime the net income received from the operation of all the Ruppert interests," he explained.

If any sale is made it will be a "painless proposition" in that the policy and personnel will not be substantially changed.

Hawkeye Diamond Team Gets Home From Tour of South

Face Bradley This Week End In Home Opener

Victorious in five of their six starts in the southland, Iowa's diamondmen arrived in Iowa City yesterday to prepare for the opening home series, against Bradley Tech this week end.

In their six-game southern tour, the Hawks downed Southwestern Louisiana institute three times and Louisiana Tech twice, the final game ending in a 2-2 tie after 11 innings.

Defending Big Ten champs, the Hawkeyes have six home games on the schedule before the opening gun of their championship defense begins against Purdue at Lafayette April 10 and 11. Counting the Purdue series, there are 12 conference games on the schedule.

Although successful in their early tilts, the Hawks have still to undergo a more thorough testing, especially in the case of the several newcomers Coach Otto Vogel must depend upon. Harold Haub, ace of last year's mound staff and one of the co-captains, checked opponents in his starts in the south and some of the other pitchers did some good work, but it isn't certain as yet who can go the route. In addition to Haub, Fred Hoehendorf, a veteran, Stastny, Ted Gordiner, Dick Hein and Keith Wymore are possibilities.

In the infield Vogel has been working Frank Kocur at third, Andy Kantor at shortstop and Erwin Prasse at second, with Rudy Radics at first. All except Radics are veterans, while Norm Hankins, a veteran, and sophomore Bill Welp have handled the catching. Hankins injured a shoulder early in the trip, but will soon be ready for heavy duty again.

Jim George, co-captain with Haub, is the outfield's only veteran, although Keith Wymore is used occasionally in the outer garden. George's running mates thus far have been George Smith and Bob Cook, and both are sophomores, which means that two-thirds of the outfield is still a trifle uncertain as to performance.

Around The Big Leagues

Angels Whip Bruins, 6-3
LOS ANGELES, March 25 (AP) — Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league pounded two pitchers for 13 hits and a 6-to-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs today in an exhibition game.

The veteran Charlie Root gave up three runs in the first four innings and Ken Raffensberger as many more in the last five. The Cubs got only four hits off the coast hurlers. It was the Cubs' first loss in their last eight exhibition games.

Bosox Wallop Fette and Bees
BRADENTON, Fla., March 25 (AP) — The Red Sox greeted Lou Fette with a five-run barrage in the first inning today as they evened the intra-city series by drubbing the Bees, 7-4.

The sockers bunched six of the 14 hits they totalled against four Bees' fingers to drive Fette from the box after the opening frame. Denny Galehouse and Emerson Dickman gave the Bees nine safeties, but kept them scattered until the latter took over in the fifth and gave the National leaguers half of their runs.

Vaughan's Hit Wins for Bucs
SAN FRANCISCO, March 25 (AP) — Captain Arky Vaughan's ringing eighth inning triple with two men on base gave Pittsburgh's Pirates today a 5 to 4 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics and their third win in the five games between the two teams.

Vaughan, who has been hitting above a .400 clip, tied the score at 4-all with his wallop. A pinch-runner for him scored the winning tally after a long fly.

Art Fletcher, Pirates first baseman, got two of the six hits which Athletic pitchers Caster and Besse allotted the Bucs.

Browns Cancel Exhibition Tilt
LAREDO, Tex., March 25 (AP) — Rain forced cancellation of today's scheduled game between the St. Louis Browns and the San Antonio Missions. Another contest is on tap for tomorrow.

Manager Fred Haney of the Browns said he would start reducing his squad a week from today. He plans to start north with a squad of 28 or 30 men. There are 39 in camp now.

Chisox Hurlers Show Promise
PASADENA, Calif., March 25 (AP) — Harold Ruel, Chicago White Sox coach who handles the pitchers for manager Jimmy Dykes, said today that his hurlers show every promise of putting in a better season.

What impressed him, he said, was the control of all the Sox pitchers. He pointed out that only 65 walks were issued to the opposition in almost 100 innings of spring games.

The Sox, idle today, will resume competition tomorrow against Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league.

Tribe Rallies To Nip Phils
MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 25 (AP) — A two-run outburst off the delivery of rookie Thomas Pullin in the 12th inning gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-1 triumph today over the Phillies.

The two runs broke a 1-1 tie that had existed from the seventh inning. The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the fifth on Gus Suhr's home run, but the Indians tied it up in the seventh on a double and a single.

At the Chicago event last Saturday night the Hawkeye team, numbering six invited men, placed in three events. Hank Vollenweider was fourth in the open high hurdles race, Jim Wilson took third in the 55-yard dash, and the mile relay team of Art Schlauder, Gil Gillespie, Joel Hinrichs and Wilson placed third in a matched relay event.

Deadline Set For Medwick

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25 (AP) — The war of nerves between holdout Joe Medwick and the St. Louis Cardinals is getting really serious.

The club has set Tuesday night as a "deadline" and if the slugging outfielder is not signed on the dotted line by that time it was said his $18,000 offer will be withdrawn. The move was interpreted as a warning the club isn't fooling.

Joe has his neck bowed and there was no indication he would back down — or even compromise — on demands for restoration of his 1938 salary of $20,000.

Following another unsuccessful meeting today, general manager Branch Rickey said: "We have reached a stage of temporary finality and this was my last conference with Medwick."

The Cardinals will break camp here tomorrow and if Medwick and the bosses fail to get together solution of the problem probably will be postponed indefinitely.

President Sam Breadon will be on his way to Cuba with the team; Rickey will be starting on a tour of his minor league camps, and Medwick will be left out in the cold to run the risk of suspension — 10 days after the opening of the season.

It's the principle of the thing — not the mere $2,000 difference, which is virtually pin money to them, insist the Redbird executives.

"Two thousand dollars — phooie," Breadon is reported to have said. "It isn't the money, he declared, but a question of hatching hold-out ideas among other players next year. Baloney — shouts Medwick."

"If I give in now," Breadon argues, "the boys will plague me a year from now, especially if we win the pennant."

Pressbox Pickups By OSCAR HARGRAVE

The 14th annual convention of the National Association of Basketball Coaches will come this week end at Kansas City, Mo., and, despite arguments to the contrary, B. T. Grover, president of the organization, doesn't think the rules will undergo much change.

Most discussed of the possible rule changes have been elimination of the four fouls and you're out rule, raising of the baskets to 12 feet and a return to the center jump.

Grover, advisory cage coach at Ohio university and long a colorful figure in midwestern cage circles as head coach at the Ohio school, is insistent in his belief that the rules should be let alone for a few years so coaches, players, officials and spectators can catch up on details for once. To which we can voice an agreement.

Of the three main suggestions, the four foul elimination would probably win the most support from the public, the others appearing rather needless changes.

For the foul law there seems little reason, practically everyone agreeing that it costs the fouling player and his team plenty anyway — at least free throws have won many a game. But, that rule is only a minor one and probably wouldn't make much difference outside of letting a few players get in more time.

Probably the biggest of the changes would be raising the baskets. Coaches who don't approve of having a big center, especially if he's the opposition, plant his flag under the bucket and drop the ball in, think the higher baskets would put more stress on shooting and less on mauling around under the basket.

On the other hand, most spectators enjoy seeing the minor scuffles and they would object to anything which removed the sensational tip-in shots from the game. The change wouldn't cut that out entirely, but it would be very apt to slow things down. And, I have never cared to watch teams snipe away at long range — they might just as well stage a free throw contest.

Even more foolish seems to be the return of the center jump idea. Coaches studied years on the new system and gave it a thorough testing before it was ever adopted. Most people liked the change, believing that it speeds up the game and places a higher premium on alertness. The tip-off gives everybody, including spectators, a few seconds to sleep between plays, while the out of bounds rule brings an occasional fast break into being.

So, there seems little reason to expect much in the way of changes. Two of the three proposed changes would probably hurt the game and the other makes little difference, which means that there won't be any very strenuous campaigning in its behalf.

House Committee Authorizes $85,000,000 for Nation's Youth

Georgia's Cox Says Leopold Stokowsky Is a Communist

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—A resolution authorizing an $85,000,000 appropriation for the national youth administration was approved by the house rules committee today after an angry debate on the question whether or not Aubrey Williams, NYA head, and Leopold Stokowsky, the orchestra leader, lean toward communism.

Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) started the debate by suggesting an amendment to forbid payment of any of the funds to Williams. He said that a special house committee which investigated the WPA had received testimony that Williams "consorted with communists."

Rep. Tarver (D-Ga.), chairman of an appropriations subcommittee which considered the NYA resolution, replied that he was satisfied that the NYA chief was not a communist.

He described him as "an idealist and dreamer" who perhaps "needs to be guided and restrained."

Rep. Fish (R-NY) commented that he considered Williams to be "the most dangerous man in the government."

Stokowski's name was brought in by Rep. Taber (R-NY) who asserted that Williams was aiding in supplying musicians for a good will tour of South America which the Philadelphia orchestra leader is arranging.

American Youths
Declaring that Stokowski belonged to several allegedly communistic organizations, Taber said Williams was "planning to take 100 American youths and turn them over to a man whose record is communistic."

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill) challenged Taber's statement, contending none of the organizations to which Taber referred were communistic.

Tarver said Williams had asserted that the NYA had spent $2,600 conducting auditions for musicians to qualify for the South American tour but that otherwise no NYA funds were involved in the venture.

"I think he made a mistake," the Georgian added, "and we have written into the bill a provision that will prevent the NYA in the future from serving as an employment agency."

Tarver said the committee had also put in "safeguards" which would prevent the use of NYA funds for employment of communists.

Ice Water Father of Female Rabbit

Two Scientists Demonstrate That Coldness Can Fertilize Ova

NEW YORK, March 25—Birth of a female rabbit whose father was merely 20 minutes of the coldness in ice water was announced today in the proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

The ovum which grew into this little bunny was cooled while in its own mother's body and she later gave it normal birth. This event marked the first time that science has accomplished virgin birth in the same animal where the ovum originated.

The report was made by Dr. Gregory Pincus and Herbert Shapiro, respectively of Clark university and Vassar college. Dr. Pincus is the scientist who two years ago started the scientific world with the discovery that rabbits' ova can be fertilized by chemical irritation.

Such things had previously been confined to lower animals, of the worm rank, and it had been denied that this parthenogenesis, or virgin birth, could be possible in

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

mammals. Dr. Pincus convinced a doubting scientific and medical world by producing several litters of rabbits whose fathers were merely solutions of salts in which the ova were placed for a short time.

All these rabbits were females. In all cases the ova were taken from one rabbit and after fertilization transplanted to another.

The ice water bunny came from trying a new experiment, to learn whether cold alone might act as a father. This was not just a lucky guess, for temperature is known to be important in embryonic development. Immediately appeared a surprising discovery, that in glass tubes ova were activated more often by cold alone than by the chemical solutions.

The final tests were made on 16 living rabbits. Under surgical operation a small, hollow brass cylinder was placed around one of the two fallopian tubes of each animal. This tube is the duct in which ova emerge and is the place where it is believed that normal fertilization often takes place.

In 12 of the rabbits ice water was run through the brass cylinder from periods varying from 5 to 20 minutes and in 4 of the animals dry ice was used. Two rabbits had the 20 minutes of ice water.

One of these 20-minute rabbits gave birth to a young bunny, whose father was the brass tube of ice water.

Dr. Pincus points out that this birth rate is very low compared with rabbit fecundity. He says that each fallopian tube must have had 12 to 15 ova and figures that the ice water was successful as a father in one chance out of 20. He also points out that all the methods of virgin birth so far tried give low birth rates.

Better Broadcasting Facilities and Studios At WSUI Expand Service to State and Student

By JACK HAGENS

The service to the state and to the University of Iowa is one of the greatest aspects found today in the campus radio station, WSUI. Aided by its new studios and better facilities for broadcasting, the station has opened its airwaves for student and state interests to a larger degree than ever before.

To contribute to the adult education in Iowa, WSUI presents during the year a great variety of interesting, authoritative and informative programs. WSUI makes available to the people of the state the expert information which comes from the colleges of the university in forms of lectures, papers and musical presentations.

This year's college series includes classroom broadcasts, studio chats and round table discussions. From the classroom such programs as "The Greek Drama in English," "The American Novel," "History of American Journalism" and many others are heard regularly. From the studio the listener learns the French language in "Elementary French" and also hears discussions concerning speech, economics and many other fields.

Broadcasts to schools are rapidly becoming an established educational procedure and WSUI this year offers an unusual list of programs designed for classroom reception or informal listening. Special programs will appeal to all ages from preschool to high school and the subjects included are such as music, literature, and current events.

From numerous requests from women listening to WSUI, a new field of radio entertainment has been added recently to the morning's list of programs. These requests asked for more programs between the morning and noon hours of educational interest to replace the "serial" network programs heard in the surrounding radio stations.

To comply to the requests, WSUI placed such programs as "This Week in the Magazines," "The Week in Government" and "The Week in the Theater" as a few of the many types of programs particularly appealing to the women radio audience.

In keeping with its policy of broadcasting to the public interest, WSUI again in 1940 makes its facilities available to state organizations. Each of these programs is designed to carry a specific message to the state with the hope of instilling in the listener a desire for greater information and a better appreciation of the work of the group.

One series is interested in civic responsibility, another in history and a third in education for peace; but all are desirous of doing their part in creating a better understanding of American government, American ideals and democratic education.

The Daughters of the American Revolution have presented numerous lectures by prominent people throughout the state. Other organizations such as the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs, Iowa Congress of Parents and Teachers and the American Legion Auxiliary have presented programs.

Constantly promoting better programs for WSUI is Mrs. Pearl Bennett Broxam, program director. Through her careful guidance, the programs have reached the recognition of being some of the finest presented over any of the nation's university educational stations.

Mrs. Broxam is especially proud of the fact that WSUI gives the students one service that they are not too familiar with. As WSUI is a non-commercial station and accepts no advertising, the time between programs is filled with campus briefs or announcements of coming prominent events.

She also emphasizes the fact that WSUI does, as far as she has been able to determine, more re-

Hapsburgs Tour Iowa, Marvel At Corn Production in State

DES MOINES, March 25 (AP)—Two members of the royal house of Hapsburg, long-time rulers of central Europe, toured Iowa's farm lands today and exclaimed over the "marvelous" yield of corn.

Archduke Otto von Hapsburg, heir to the throne of Austria, and his brother, Archduke Felix visited several Polk county farms, lunched with a group of persons prominent in Iowa agriculture, and then went to Ames, to visit Iowa State college.

Archduke Otto declared Iowa's vast stretch of cornfields failed to impress him because the valley of the Danube in Hungary has fields that stretch as far.

The yield, however, is much greater in Iowa and the use of hybrid corn more successful, he said.

One of the farms visited was that of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who prevailed on the two archdukes to include Iowa in their tour of agricultural land in this country.

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. John F. (Jafsic) Condon, 79, a major witness against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the convicted kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, was reported yesterday at his home to be ill—so seriously ill that he had not been informed of the recent death of a brother.

BILLINGS, Mont., March 25 (AP)—Lightning struck the right wing of a Northwest Airlines plane west of Helena today. The plane continued to Billings, where it landed 21 passengers and crew of three. Damage was slight.

Pilot A. F. Olson said the bolt seemingly "appeared from nowhere" as no electrical storm was visible and radio reception had been good.

The fabric covering over the right aileron, which is the movable part of the wing used in turning the ship, was burned.

The passengers transferred to another plane in Billings and continued the flight east.

RUNNING WATER! Plumber Hears Sound After 15 Years

JOPLIN, Mo., March 25 (AP)—The sound of running water suddenly came to Charles Colson's ears today while he was repairing plumbing in an apartment house.

Colson was overjoyed. It was the first sound he had heard in 15 years.

The 65-year-old plumber knocked off work and started telephoning his friends.

He said specialists could not determine why he lost his hearing and he could not explain what brought it back.

If you constantly use your leather-bound books they will last longer than if they remain in the bookcase, because salt in the perspiration from the hands helps preserve leather bindings.

22 days at hard labor in the county jail.

A similar case against Rose Agnew was dismissed by Judge Gaffney.

The sheriff was ordered by the court to destroy the gambling machines alleged to have been found in the possession of the defendants and to turn the money in them over to the county school fund.

George Royster Jr., R. W. Wetzel, Clarence Dvorak and Paul Beecher pleaded guilty to charges of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Each defendant was fined $300 and costs of court actions.

Judge Gaffney then suspended $150 of the fine during the good behavior of each defendant. The driver's license of each defendant was suspended.

Governor Wilson Grants Time Extension to Rhodes' Attorneys

Lawyers Fail To File Answers to Arguments Of State on Date Set

Gov. George A. Wilson yesterday granted attorneys for Walter H. Rhodes, accused slayer, a two-day extension of time for filing briefs in answer to the state's arguments against commutation of a death sentence for the former Iowa City quarry worker, the Associated Press reported last night.

Attorneys for Rhodes were to have filed an answer to the state's arguments today. Governor Wilson said the attorneys had not received a copy of the state's briefs in sufficient time to form a reply.

Rhodes, now in Fort Madison penitentiary, faces death on the gallows or life in prison—depending on the governor's decision—for the dynamite-shotgun slaying of his wife in 1937.

Lines and Sidelines of the play festival

First school to register at festival headquarters in the lobby of Iowa Union yesterday was Kalona, also the first school to present a play on the week's schedule.

IN CONTRAST, the largest cast of the week's schedule comes to Iowa City from Franklin high school in Cedar Rapids. Twelve persons make up the cast for "Rich Man, Poor Man" by Bertha Y. Burrill. It is directed by Geraldine Green, also a university speech graduate.

Eight high schools will present plays with casts of only three members. The schools and the plays they will present are Letts, "The Boor"; Malcom, "The Terrible Meek"; Earlville, "Good Medicine"; South English, "Box and Cox"; Strawberry Point, "The Purple Door Knob"; Maynard, "The Boor"; DeWitt, "Box and Cox"; and Grand Junction, "Jean-Marie."

UNIVERSITY HIGH school of Iowa City presents its entry Thursday evening, second on the evening session schedule. "Road Into the Sun" by Foster Fitz-Simmons is the production. Five characters take part and it is directed by Donald C. Streeter, university graduate student and speech instructor at University high school.

"The Happy Journey," comedy, one of the plays being presented three times during the festival, is being given by a class A, a class B and a class C school. They are, respectively, East high of Waterloo, Jesup and Wadena.

Smallest cast representing any school in the play festival is that of two members from Waverly high school, "Brother Bill" is the name of the play. It is written by Alfred Kreyborg and is set in a Harlem sitting room. Marjorie Moodie plays the part of "Jennie" and Edwin Neumann plays "Benjie." Marry Ellen Graziam, a University of Iowa graduate, directs

"The Boor" by Anton Tchekoff, and "The Happy Journey" by Thornton Wilder both will be presented three times during the week-long festival. Such duplications are not unusual, however.

Highlight of today's program will be the presentation, "Hunger" by Ella Mae Daniel, by the Vinton school for the blind. Four blind students take part in the play and move about the stage with amazing ease. Such performance is the result of long and constant training by the group's director, Mrs. Irma VanderVeer McAltee.

Ransom Sherman 'Lives and Loves It'

Right at Home Before a 'Mike'

By ART GOLDBERG
If people have more fun than anybody, they must hang around quite a bit with this guy Sherman—Ransom Miles Sherman.

Pay no attention to the sourpuss who tells you it's absolutely impossible to mix business with pleasure. Just drag him up to a radio some afternoon around Club Matinee time, give him a listen to this guy Sherman—he'll laugh.

This guy Sherman is certainly different. In fact, if there's anything at all he typifies, it's a temperamental artist who is not temperamental. To top it all off, you can't even get the guy sore! Give him something to get griped about and he'll go 20 percent of the way with you; after that you do the griping yourself.

Talk to him five minutes and he'll start bragging about Helen. She's the little wife who makes the beds and waters the flowers around their home in one of Chicago's quieter suburbs. Talk to him half an hour and he'll tell you who holds the first mortgage on the home.

But even though mortgages are a trifle inconvenient it's worth it to be able to live in the suburbs and get away from a large city that seems to have missed the boat on "personability." There's no reason for Chicago's being so personally cold, he says. New York is just as had and San Francisco is worse. Always some dope trying to cut your throat.

He comes from a small town in Wisconsin and is used to the small-town "breed" of people. They're different; they really live. Look at all the trees and lawns in this town, for instance: "That's what I call living, chum."

Work to Be Done
Of course, a man has to do some work, even this guy Sherman. Mortgage payments have to be met. All right, so he does write the scripts for his two or
